I am seeking information on the Romaines that settled in the Hackensack area (originally) of NJ in the 1600s (from Holland, prior to that, from England). My mother is a Romaine born in Pompton Plains and raised in Oakland.

I know the origin of the name for my line (my mom has the actually page on which this information is typed):

In the 1300s, an Italian gentleman married an English lady and had children. The eldest, Peter, went to Rome for his education. When he returned, he called himself Peter the Roman, or Peter Romeyn. His children settled in Holland. In the 1600s, the Romaines settled in the Hackensack area of NJ.

(I need to dig out my mothers scrap albums, she has all kinds of things in it)

My mothers father was Wallace Patterson Romaine, her mother Freda Heneker and they had 18 children, 12 of which survived childhood.
