Tony,
Wanted to let you know that i received the blue print chart on Thurs and hope to write a nice big email about it next weekbut I wanted to let you know that it had arrived.
I double checked the letter that I had from Mildred and it would appear that this is indeed the chart that she spoke of way back then. Only I incorrectly stated that the original was then in the Cincinnati Public Library. The correct lodging should have been the Detroit Public Library.
And you are so right...it really does follow the "distaff" houses! As I guessed, this is what I call the "NY bunch" and even some of the "Bergen bunch" and this is great, particularly for people who have Romine females who married into other lines.
And...Audrey...be real careful down in that lower left corner. A good deal of that does not agree with what I have and we all may want to compare some notes on it. Will try and post what I have next week but the one thing that I really remember is that Benjamin is not the son of Elias but his half-brother.

My own research will mostly be in Holland, where my roots are. Through Tony, I for one would love to see what you might come up with posted here to the list. How good is your Dutch? How about Old Dutch?! Do you know of anything like "Dutch for genealogist" type of thingy? The reason that I am asking is that the LDS library has a pretty good holding of film from the old Dutch West Indies Company dealing with the Dutch colonies in Brazil and I have been wanting to try my hand at them but am going to need some serious linguistic help.

Also while going thru some of my mom's stuff the other day, I notice that she has a folder marked "Romeyn in Holland". Will try and look at it this weekend and see if I can't get some of it off to you if you are interested.....)
Talk to you later.
