Ambrose J. Moore, a well-to-do farmer, residing three miles north of Perryville, Perry Co., Mo., was born December 23, 1842, where he now resides. His parents were William and Monica (Moore) Moore, both natives of Perry County, but of distant consanguinity. William Moore was the son of James Moore, who came to Southeast Missouri from Kentucky about the first of the present century, and located in Perry County on the farm now owned by Mrs. Barbara Huber. William Moore was born December 22, 1811, and in 1840 he settled on his patrimonial portion of the homestead where his son, Ambrose, now lives. William Moore died February 6, 1874. Monica, his wife, was born January 12, 1818, and died September 14, 1884. She was the daughter of Bede Moore, who was another very early pioneer settler, who settled an adjoining farm now owned by Felix Miles, his son-in-law. On this place was held the first court in Perry County. Bede Moore also built and operated on this farm about the first horse mill and distillery in Perry County. To William Moore and wife were born six children, of whom the subject of this sketch is the only one living. He remained with his parents until he was twenty-four years old, attending the district schools from four to eighteen years of age, and from that time until twenty-one he began teaching school and taught six terms very successfully. He has always taken an active interest in school affairs, having served as director of his district about fifteen or sixteen years. He was one of the leading men who had the fine brick schoolhouse erected in his district. In 1866 he married Mary Ambrosia Tucker, a daughter of Raymond Tucker. She was born in Perry County, Mo., June 23, 1847. To them have been born ten children whose names are Arthur Rosalba, Victor Vitalis, Mary Minettie, Mary Avelene, Mary Amelia, Mary Jessamine, Mary Ambrosia (deceased), Lillie Margarette, Mary Arelina and Mary Ambrosia. After his marriage Mr. Moore settled one-half mile from the old homestead, returning to the latter in 1884. Mr. Moore owns 207 acres of good land conveniently situated, and is one of the county's highly esteemed citizens. Politically he is a Democrat. He and family are members of the Catholic Church.

Basil Moore, a well-to-do farmer of Bois Brule Township, Perry County, is a native of the county, born in 1844. He is a son of James J. and Cecelia (Manning) Moore. James J. Moore was the first male child baptized in St. Mary's parish, and received the name of the missionary priest who baptized him. His father, James Moore, wife and brother, Richard, removed from Eastern Maryland, and located in Perry County in 1790, two miles north of Perryville, where he secured a homestead of 640 acres of land from the French Government. Among the early settlers the Moores were prominent, and were members of the first Catholic Church built in this vicinity. At that time the Indians were numerous, and the settlers were protected by an organized force composed of a part of their number, of which Richard Moore was captain. One evening, on returning after drilling his company, and feeling very soldier-like, he and his brother James were feeding the pigs, when a large panther crept out of the brush and caught one of them. Capt. Richard seized a hatchet and sprang to the swine's rescue, and, while the panther was sucking his blood, with Spartan courage dealt him a blow that forever ended his panthership. He measured nine feet from tip to tip. The children of James Moore, Sr., and wife, were: sons, James, William, Ignatius and Thomas; daughters, Sabina Rice (Sister Lucy), Mrs. James May and Mrs. Rhodes. These children were left orphans at an early age, and the court bound all the sons to tradesmen. The second daughter entered a convent, and after spending a long life as teacher died at an advanced age. Thomas entered the community of St. Vincent of Paul, and died after being ordained deacon. The remaining brothers and sisters married and reared families. After James J. Moore was married he settled on a quarter section of land two miles east of Sereno, where he reared his family. His children are Thomas J., who married Theresa Hagan; Martin V., who graduated in the St. Louis Medical College in 1869, after which he practiced medicine in Perryville until death relieved him; William V., who became a priest of the order of St. Vincent of Paul, and is now located in New Orleans; James J., who married Charlotte Duvall; Basil; Hillary, who wedded Matilda Layton; Theresa, wife of Thomas Burgee; Elizabeth, wife of Lucius Hughey; Alfonso L., who married Gertrude Seemes; and Matilda, who married Albion Miles, and after his death became a Sister of Charity. Basil remained at home with his parents until the age of twenty-two years, when he entered college at the Seminary of Our Lady of Angels, Suspension Bridge, Niagara Falls, N. Y., and remained there four years and a half. Returning home he taught school until 1872, when he was appointed deputy county assessor, and in November, 1872, he was elected county surveyor, and served four years. In 1873 he was commissioned notary public, and served four years, after which he located on a farm, and has since given his attention to agriculture. His farm contains 213 acres of fine land, under a good state of cultivation. Mr. Moore stands foremost in the advancement of education in his district, of which he is clerk and a member of the school board. He married Emma Burgee, daughter of Judge Joab W. Burgee, by whom he has a family of seven children — six sons and one daughter. They are Martin V., Basil, Leonidas, Henry, James, Lucius and Mary. In 1874 he was appointed administrator of Dr. Martin V. Moore's estate, and in 1876 he and his brother, Thomas J., were appointed executors of his father's last will.

Laurence S. Moore, a prominent young farmer of Perry County, was born on April 21, 1857. His grandfather, Isidore Moore, came to Perry County from Washington County, Ky., near the close of the last century, and located about six miles southeast of Perryville, in what is now Cinque Homme Township. Being a man of sterling worth and intelligence, he was a valuable acquisition to the new settlement, and became its leader in both political and social life. Upon the organization of the State he was sent as the first representative of Perry County to the Legislature. He was twice married, and reared a family of twelve sons and seven daughters. He died at the age of eighty-seven, having received from the people of his county all the honor that it was in their power to bestow. Leo Moore, the father of Lawrence, married Mahala Cissell, and resided during his life upon a farm near Longtown. He died in his sixty-ninth year on August 23, 1880. His widow, now in her seventy-second year, is a resident of St. Louis. They were the parents of ten children, of whom seven are living. They are Lewis F., Joseph V., Mary A. (a sister of the order of Loretta and mother of the Edina, Missouri, Convent), Isabella J., Rosa J. (also a sister of Loretta), Theodore L. and Laurence. Laurence is a bachelor and resides upon a farm in Bois Brule Bottom, overlooking the city of Chester.

James Moranville was born in Perry County, Mo., in 1853, and is a son of Jerome and Elizabeth (Hayden) Moranville. Jerome Moranville was also born in Perry County, Mo., in 1825. His father, John B. Moranville, was a native of France, who was born in 1790, and sent to America in 1804. He was educated in Baltimore, Md., by his uncle, John Francis Moranville, who was a Roman Catholic priest. After finishing his education he was bound to some monks to learn a trade. They took him to St. Louis, Mo., where he learned the carpenter's trade, remaining with the monks until he was twenty-one years of age. About this time the Black Hawk War broke out, and he enlisted, and served a few months, after which he came to Perry County, Mo., and commenced work on St. Mary's Seminary, which was then in process of erection. He soon after married and settled on the farm now owned by Vincent Seemes, being one of the first Frenchmen to locate in the county. He died in 1852. He married Susan Manning, a native of Maryland. Her father, Joseph Manning, was born in Baltimore, and was a son of Mark Manning, a direct descendant of Lord Baltimore. Joseph Manning came to Perry County about 1802, and settled on the farm now owned by C. J. Pecant. Susan Moranville died in 1860, and was the mother of nine children by her marriage with John B. Moranville, Jerome being the fourth child. By a previous marriage with Thomas Seemes, another pioneer settler of Perry County, she was the mother of two children. Jerome grew to manhood on his father's farm, and in 1852 married Elizabeth Hayden, who was born in 1823 on the farm where she now lives. She is a daughter of Thomas Hayden, a native of Ireland, who came to America and located in Perry County about 1820. Jerome Moranville and wife have three children: James, Thomas, and Mary, a sister of charity in a convent in New York. Jerome Moranville is a highly esteemed citizen, and a successful farmer. He has resided on his present farm for the past thirty-six years. His son, James, married Rosa Dean in 1888, and has one child, Mary. Mrs. Moranville is a daughter of Leo T. Dean. She and her husband are members of the Catholic Church. He is a Democrat in politics.

Anson H. Morey, one of the substantial farmers of Perry County, was born in Ashtabula County, Ohio, on January 6, 1833. His parents, Anson and Maria (Wooley) Morey, were both natives of New York, and were pioneers of the Western Reserve of Ohio. In 1839 they came to Missouri and lived in Jefferson County, where the father worked in the lead mines two years, then going to St. Francois County and remaining until 1847, when he removed to Chester, Ill., and there passed the remainder of his life. They were the parents of five children: Ann, Nelson L., Anson H., Helen W. and Samuel. The oldest and youngest are dead. In 1853 Anson H. went by the overland route to California, reaching his destination after a trip of eighty days. He was engaged in mining for about eight years, but not securing satisfactory results he returned to Missouri, and in company with his eldest brother purchased a section of the fertile Bois Brule bottom lands. At that time not a tree had been cut on the entire tract, but he went to work and soon erected a small log cabin, with a mud and stick chimney, and furnished it with the rude pole bedstead so common in an early day. Although his cabin was without a floor he felt so comfortably situated that he decided to secure a wife to share his home. On July 7, 1865, he was united in marriage with Margaret Fenwick, who still lives to share his prosperity. They have a family of five children: Anson R., Morse S., Margaret A., James M. and Melissa R. They have also reared several of his brother's orphan children, giving them a good home and providing for their education. For a number of years Mr. Morey resided on the farm now occupied by Augustus Layton, of Saline Township, but the improvement of his bottom lands made his residence upon them a necessity, and he removed to his present location in 1887. He was the principal mover in the organization of the school district in which he has served as director and clerk for several years.

David F. Morton, M. D., a promising young physician of Perryville, Mo., was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in 1858, and is a son of William P. and Eliza (Abernathy) Morton. William P. Morton was born in Tennessee in 1824, and when five years of age came with his parents to Cape Girardeau County, Mo., where he has since resided, and has become one of the most substantial farmers of the county. He resides on a farm of 225 acres one-half mile south of Pocahontas, and is a highly respected citizen. His wife, who was born in Perry County, Mo., in 1828, was the daughter of Dr. Lot Abernathy. She died in 1875, leaving seven children: Charles, a miller at Pocahontas, Mo.; James L., a prominent stock farmer of Bollinger County; Mary J., Mrs. William Alexander of Ladlin, Mo.; Dr. David F.; Maggie, wife of Dr. George W. Tarlton, of Oak Ridge, Mo.; William A., who is in partnership with his brother, James L.; and Lou R. David F. grew to manhood on his father's farm, and secured a good education in Fruitland Academy, Oak Ridge High School and the Southeast Normal at Cape Girardeau. He taught one term of school in 1880, and in the meantime began the study of medicine. The following fall he entered the St. Louis Medical College and attended one year. The next year he attended the Missouri Medical College, from which he graduated as an M. D. in the spring of 1883. After finishing the course he practiced a few months at both Jackson and Longtown, Mo., and in the fall of 1883 located at Perryville, where he has since practiced his profession very successfully. In April, 1886, he became a partner with Thomas L. Phillips in a drug store, which business they still control, under the firm name of Phillips & Morton. In politics the Doctor endorses and supports the principles of the Democratic party. He is a Mason, and a member of the Southeast Missouri Medical Association.

John P. Münch, a farmer of Central Township, Perry Co., Mo., residing four miles west of Perryville, was born in the Kingdom of Bavaria, Germany, in 1825, and is the youngest son of a family of eight children, born to Paul and Margaret Münch. John P. was reared to manhood on his parents' farm in his native country, and in 1852 immigrated to the United States, where he was soon afterward employed on the Pennsylvania & Ohio Railroad, on which he worked four months. He then worked eighteen months on the Steubenville & Indiana Railroad, and in 1855 came to Perry County, Mo. In the same year he was married to Miss Rosena Meyer, a daughter of John Meyer. She was born in the Kingdom of Bavaria, Germany, in 1831, and came to the United States with her parents when eleven years of age. In 1857 Mr. Münch purchased 181 acres of land where he now resides, for $1,140, which means he had earned by hard work, having come to America without money or friends. By paying close attention to business and practicing economy he has added to his farm until he now has 416 acres and a good home. To him and wife have been born six children, who are living: Mary (wife of John Bergman), B. John, George A., Elizabeth (wife of John M. Hoehn), Michael and Annie M. In religious belief the family are Lutherans. Mr. Münch is a Republican, and served in the Home Guards during the war.

Pancratius John Muench, an enterprising young farmer residing three miles north of Perryville, Mo., is a native of the county, born on March 1, 1858. He is the eldest son of John P. and Rosa Ann (Meyer) Muench [see sketch]. He grew to manhood on his father's farm, and on June 14, 1885, was united in marriage with Anna C. Ochs, a daughter of John C. Ochs. She was born in Perry County, Mo., on November 19, 1863. After his marriage Mr. Muench settled on his present farm of 101 acres of valuable land, which he is rapidly improving. His political views accord with the principles of the Republican party, and in religion he and wife are members of the Lutheran Church.

John V. Noell, a prominent lawyer of Perryville, Mo., was born one and one-half miles from Perryville, on September 17, 1851, and is a son of John W. and Mary A. (Gregoire) Noell. John W. Noell was of English descent, born in Bedford Co., Va., on February 23, 1816. In 1833 he with his father, John Noell, immigrated to Missouri and located at Fredericktown, Madison County, where they lived one year and removed to Perry County. John Noell settled three miles east of Perryville on the farm now known as the Killian farm. John W. soon after commenced clerking in a store in Perryville, and in 1835 was married, after which he engaged in merchandising and milling. In 1842 he was elected clerk of the circuit court of Perry County, and was re-elected in 1846, holding the office eight years. During these years he read law, and in 1850 was admitted to the bar. In 1854 he was elected to the State Senate. In 1858 he was elected to represent his district in Congress, and was re-elected in 1860 and 1862. Before the expiration of his third term he died in Washington (March 14, 1863), and his remains were returned home and interred in St. Mary's Cemetery. In 1860 he introduced a bill in the Lower House of Congress to emancipate the slaves of Missouri and to pay the slave holders of the State $10,000,000 for the same. The bill passed the House and went to the Senate, where $5,000,000 was added to it. It was then returned to the House and defeated. John W. Noell was a self-made man, who was highly endowed with natural ability and energy. This, with close application to business, made him an able and influential man in the councils of the State and nation. He was a Democrat, but during the war was an uncompromising Union man. His wife was of English and Pennsylvania German descent, and was born in Pittsburgh, Penn., in 1818. She died in 1880, and was the mother of eleven children. Thomas E. Noell, the second son of John W. and Mary A. Noell, was born April 3, 1839, at Perryville, Mo. He was chiefly educated at St. Mary's Seminary, in Perry County. After having read law for several years in the office of his father he was, in the year 1857, admitted to the bar, whilst yet under age. He practiced his profession from this time until the War of the Rebellion broke out, when he enlisted in the State Militia of Missouri, being appointed first lieutenant of a company therein. Subsequently he was promoted to the rank of major. Afterward, in the year 1862, he received a commission in the regular United States army as captain, which position he occupied until after the death of his father, in 1863. During this year he was transferred from the active field service to the position of mustering and disbursing officer, and was stationed first at Cape Girardeau and afterward at St. Louis, Mo. On the death of his father he became the sole dependence of his widowed mother and her four youngest children, for their support. In 1864 he was elected to Congress and was again elected in 1866. Like his father he was a Democrat, but during the war he was an unflinching Union man. He died at St. Louis, Mo., October 3, 1867, whilst a member of Congress. John V. Noell, was the eighth child in his parents' family. His education, which was begun in the public schools of Perryville, and St. Mary's Seminary, was finished at St. Vincent's College, Cape Girardeau, from which institution he graduated with the degree of A. B., in June, 1873. The same institution afterward conferred on him the degree of A. M. In the spring of 1870 he began reading law with Judge John H. Nicholson, and during the following fall and winter he taught a term of school. In 1873 he entered the St. Louis Law School, and graduated in 1874 with the degree of LL. B. After finishing his studies he returned to Perryville and began practicing his profession. In the same year he was elected prosecuting attorney and re-elected in 1876 and in 1878. In 1884 he was again elected to the same office. On June 27, 1875, he was united in marriage with Miss Louise Preston, a native of the county, born on May 18, 1859, and a daughter of James Preston. To Mr. and Mrs. Noell have been born five children: Mary A., Thomas E., Jr., John V., Jr., Ruth and Ada. In religious faith the family are Catholics. Mr. Noell has been a life-long Democrat.

George Neubeck, a general merchant of Altenburgh, Mo., was born in 1836, in the Kingdom of Bavaria, and is the son of Jacob and Barbara Neubeck, both of whom were also natives of Bavaria. Jacob Neubeck was born in 1800, and was a farmer by vocation. He died in his native country in 1842, leaving a widow and three children. His widow married again and became the mother of one child by her second husband. George Neubeck was educated in Germany, but left the fatherland when seventeen years of age, and embarked for America, being the first one of his family to immigrate thither. Not being acquainted with the language and customs of the United States he labored under many disadvantages, but he stopped in St. Louis and engaged as an apprentice at the cabinet-maker and carpenter's trade. After serving two years he began working at his trade for himself, at which he continued in St. Louis for twelve years, three years of which he kept a furniture store. He sold his stock of furniture, and removed to Birmingham, Perry County, where he became proprietor of a general merchandise store. In 1868 he removed his stock of goods to Altenburgh, where he has since been doing a good business. In 1869 he married Joanna Kross, also of German nativity, by whom he is the father of five children: Concordia, Bertha, Emma, Louisa and Antoinette. All are members of the Lutheran Church.

Henry C. Oliver, a thrifty farmer of Perry County, Mo., residing four miles southeast of Perryville, was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in 1833. He is one of three living children of a family of ten born to Harry Oliver, a native of North Carolina, who, when a young man, came to Cape Girardeau County with John Oliver. Harry Oliver died about 1872. Henry C. was born the slave of Mrs. Hannah Harris, with whom he remained until he was eleven years of age, after which he was successively owned by Alonzo and Caswell Abernathy, remaining with the latter until he was made a free man by Abraham Lincoln's emancipation proclamation in 1863. After the war was over and peace restored he began farming in Perry County on rented land. He had not a cent he could call his own, but possessed a large amount of latent energy and self-determination, and soon gained a foothold. He worked hard and attended strictly to his own business, and now owns 170 acres of fine land, which is well improved. He is a worthy example for his people, showing that it is not impossible for even the poorest citizen to carve out his own fortune. He is well respected in his county, and is a member of the Republican party. In 1855 he married Mary Black, a native of the county, by whom he has ten children: William Henry, Richard Green, Uriel Wright, John, Effie, Martha, Henderson, Laura, Julia and Mary. Mrs. Oliver and children are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Sebastian Olivar, a wealthy farmer of Bois Brule Township, Perry County, was born on the Island of Majorca on December 1, 1847. He is a son of Antonia and Catherine (Company) Olivar, both of whom were of Spanish blood, and also born on the island of Majorca. When a lad of ten years Sebastian, prompted by a desire to see something of the world, left his parents' home, and, unattended and alone, secured a steamboat passage to Barcelona. For nine long years afterward he was on the sea, first serving as cabin-boy, then as "matri-cule." Before his four years as a marine had fully expired he deserted on account of severe punishment to which he and two other marines were forced to submit. He escaped from Havanna, making his way to New Orleans with the assistance of Capt. Mike Parade, who had charge of the sail vessel "Mary." Upon his arrival at New Orleans Mr. Sebastian contracted the yellow fever, but managed to make his way up the Mississippi River to St. Mary's, where he recovered, but his comrade, who accompanied him, died of the disease. For several years our subject was employed at St. Mary's Seminary, and in 1875, his good management being recognized, he was made overseer of the bottom farm. Having made investments in stock, and carefully saved his money, the next year he took charge of the farm himself, which he managed very successfully. After three years he had saved money enough to buy some land. He purchased seventy-six acres in the bottoms, and from this date his good management and superior judgment have made him conspicuous among the farmers of the county. Other lands have been added to his farm until it now comprises 528 acres, within full view of the grand Mississippi River, and about one mile from Chester. On May 28, 1876, he was married to Matilda Miles, a native of the county. Her parents came from Marion County, Ky., and were among the early settlers of Perry County. Mr. and Mrs. Olivar have one daughter, Mary, now ten years of age.

Henry G. and Charles Palisch, of the general mercantile firm of Palisch & Bro., of Frohna, Mo., were born in Perry County in 1861 and 1867, respectively. They are of German-French descent, and the sons of Ernest and Julie Palisch. Ernest Palisch was born in the Kingdom of Saxony in 1828, and came to America with the German colony that settled in Perry County at an early day. His father, Gottlieb Palisch, is still living, and a resident of the county. He is one of the few survivors of the early Teutonic colonists. Ernest Palisch died in 1876. His widow, who still survives aged forty-eight years, is the mother of seven children: Amalia, Susan, Sarah, Henry G., Theodore, Charles and Gotthilf. Henry G. Palisch received his education in the common schools of the county, and worked on a farm until he was nineteen years of age, when he commenced his commercial career as a clerk in a store at Frohna. He worked in that capacity for five years, when he and his brother purchased the store in which he was employed, and have since conducted the business in a very successful manner. They are energetic and progressive young business men, and have before them a desirable future. Charles was educated in the Southeast Missouri Normal School at Cape Girardeau. On July 15, 1887, Henry G. was united in marriage with Julia Fischer, a native of Perry County, who was born in 1864.

Thomas L. Phillips, senior member of the firm of Phillips & Morton, druggists of Perryville, Mo., is a native of the county, born in 1863, and is a son of Robert L. and Evelyn (Entler) Phillips. Robert L. Phillips, was of Scotch-Irish descent, and was born in Marion County, Ky., in 1818. When about eighteen years of age he left his native State and came to Perry County, Mo., and later established a general store, which he managed until his death. He was a very successful business man, owning at one time over 2,000 acres of land. He was married three times, his last wife, to whom he was married in 1862, being the mother of the subject of this sketch. But one child was born to their union. Mrs. Phillips, was born in Kaskaskia, Ill., on March, 18, 1839, and after the death of Mr. Phillips, in 1864, married again. In 1867 she married Augustus Doerr, who now resides in Perryville. Thomas L. Phillips received his education at St. Vincent's College, Cape Girardeau, and St. Louis University, St. Louis, Mo., attending the former three years and the latter eighteen months. In 1880 he attended St. Louis College of Pharmacy, and in 1881 he and N. E. Farrar established a drug store in Perryville, under the firm name of Farrar & Phillips. They continued ten months, when Dr. W. R. Newman, purchased N. E. Farrar's interest, after which the firm was known as Phillips & Newman. On May 1, 1886, Dr. Newman sold his interest to Dr. David F. Morton, and the present firm was established. They have a first-class drug store, one of the best in Southeast Missouri, and are doing a good business. On September 30, 1885, Mr. Phillips married Emma C. Litsch, a daughter of William Litsch, who for years was one of the reliable merchants of Perryville. Mrs. Phillips was born in the county in 1864. They have two children: Harry Robert and Alfred A. He and wife are members of the Roman Catholic Church. Politically he is a Democrat.

Theo Picou, a native of Ascension Parish, La., was born in 1827, and is a son of Joseph and Gertrude (Hamilton) Picou, also natives of Louisiana and of Freuch ancestry. Joseph Picou was the owner of a sugar plantation in his native State, and owner of a number of slaves. Prior to the Civil War both plantation and slaves were disposed of, and Joseph Picou removed to Newburg, Ind., where he purchased a residence and other property, and remained several years. During the war he returned to Louisiana, and took charge of a wharf boat at the Red River Landing, owned by Gustavus, one of the sons, at which point he was captured by Admr. Farragut. After his release he located with his family at Donaldsonville, La. After the location of his son, Theo, in Perry County, Mo., he and wife removed thither in 1867, and passed the remainder of their lives within its border. In 1841 Theo Picou was sent by his parents to St. Mary's Seminary, Perry County, Mo., to finish his classical education, from whence, after his graduation in 1843, he returned to his native parish, and assumed charge of a sugar plantation belonging to his father and W. H. Gilbert, and managed the same for several years. While in Southeast Missouri he became fascinated with the country and, foreseeing her future wealth and prosperity, returned thither in 1850. For several years he was engaged in merchandising at Bailey's Landing. On May 21, 1850, he was united in marriage with Mary De Lassus, by whom he became the father of six children: Trasimond (deceased), Cornelius (who married Mrs. Mattie Meridith), Delia (who became the wife of James B. Russell), Eudora (the widow of John Young), Mary E. (the wife of David Brown) and Theo E. (who married Edith Seadears). Mr. Picou was early employed as teacher in the public schools of Claryville, where for five years he served as principal. His education and strict methods of business soon made him a man of note in the community, and in 1864 he was elected justice of the peace, and has served almost three terms in that capacity, being in office at this date (1888). He is also recording secretary of the Bois Brule Bottom Levee Drainage & Agricultural Association. His first wife died in October, 1863, and on March 3, 1864, Rachel Patterson became his wife. To this union have been born nine children. Those living are Nancy Manette, Rosetta, Corinne and Delphine, all of whom are at home. The family are well known and highly respected. During the Civil War Mr. Picou served as captain in a company in the Sixty-fourth Enrolled Missouri Militia.

Henry Pingel, a substantial farmer of Cinque Homme Township, Perry Co., Mo., was born on his father's farm in Perry County in 1850. His parents, Anton and Theresa (Wiedebusch) Pingel, were natives of Prussia, who were married in 1849. Anton Pingel was born in 1825, and after receiving a good education learned the blacksmith's trade. The same year in which he was married he embarked with his wife for America, and landed at New Orleans. From thence he came to Perry County, Mo., and entered eighty acres of land, to which he afterward added sixty more, all being good bottom land. Here he located and reared his family of nine children, viz.: Henry, Theresa (now the wife of Anton Budenholzer, of Madison County, Mo.), Anton F., Mary (who died when a child), Joseph, Anna (the wife of Barney Baudendistle), Frank A., Mary E. (wife of John T. Budenholzer) and Barney (who died in 1887). Henry grew up on the farm, and received his education in the county schools. In 1878 he was united in marriage with Barbara Hernerick, a native of the county, after which he removed to his present farm, which he had previously purchased. He and wife are members of the Catholic Church, and are the parents of five children, viz.: Theresa, John, Henry, Rosa and Christina. In politics Mr. Pingel is a supporter of the Democratic party.

John C. Popp, a brick manufacturer, of Perryville, Mo., was born in 1849 in the Kingdom of Bavaria, Germany. He is a son of Philip and Margaret (Kodisch) Popp, both of whom were natives of Bavaria, born in 1801 and 1810, respectively. In 1851 they immigrated to the United States, and afterward settled in Perry County, Mo., on a farm of 120 acres seven miles east of Perryville, on which both parents died, the mother in 1865 and the father in 1893. They had six children, three of whom are living: Christopher, John H. and John C. The children were reared on the farm. When young John C. and Christopher began manufacturing brick and lime on the old home place, the former working for the latter. In 1866 Christopher opened a brickyard in Perryville, and John C. continued in his employ until 1875. They made an average of 350,000 bricks per annum. Since 1875 John C. has made bricks on the same yard in Perryville, averaging 250,000 per year, this making about 6,000,000 bricks manufactured by the Popp Brothers in Perryville since 1866. Mr. Popp is well prepared for the work, and makes first-class brick. He employs four men per season. In 1879 he was united in marriage with Mary Denizet, who was born in Perry County, Mo., in 1849, and is a member of the Catholic Church. To this union have been born five children: Clara M., Louisa M., William J., Cecelia E. and Hattie F. Mr. Popp is a member of the Lutheran Church.

Claude U. Prost, one of the most enterprising farmers and stock raisers of Cinque Homme Township, Perry Co., Mo., is a son of John A. and Genersure (Roussillion) Prost, natives of France, born in 1804 and 1803, respectively. John A. Prost was educated in his native country, and learned the stonemason's trade, at which he worked for twelve years before coming to America. He landed at Rozier Landing, Perry Co., Mo., in 1841, soon after which he purchased land and engaged in farming in Perry County, and also worked some at his trade. In 1854 he removed to Ste. Genevieve County, where he passed the remainder of his life. His first wife, the mother of the subject of this sketch, died in Perry County in 1853. She was the mother of four children: Claude U., Alban, Eulalie (Mrs. Louis Besand) and one that died in infancy. John A. Prost became a large land owner of Perry County. After the death of his first wife he married Mrs. Matilda Cladet, a widow, who had one daughter by her first marriage. Claude U. was born in France in 1830, and came to Perry County, Mo., with his parents. His education, which was begun in his native country, was finished in America. When a boy he began farming, and also learned the carpenter's trade. In 1851 he was united in marriage with Mary Besand, a daughter of Cyrill and Claudine (Combe) Besand. She was born in France in 1832, and came with her parents to Missouri in 1840. After his marriage Mr. Prost engaged in farming, and a few years later purchased his farm. He is a successful farmer, and takes much interest in raising fine blooded horses. In 1861 he enlisted in the Federal army, joining the Fourth Missouri State Militia, and is now a member of the G. A. R. He was township clerk, and is school director, and for the past five years has been crop reporter for the county. He and wife have had ten children: Narcis, Francis, Lawrence, Antonia (Mrs. Thomas Burgee), Teodule (deceased), Vincent, Corine, Urbain (deceased), Cyrill and Leopold. The family are Catholics, and in politics Mr. Prost is a Republican. He was elected county judge of the Western District in the fall of 1886, but for some defect in his father's naturalization papers did not get to fill the office to which he was elected. He is also the manager of the Perry County Agricultural and Live Stock Association, a corporation duly incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri.

Alban Prost, a substantial farmer of Perry County, Mo., residing four and one-half miles southwest of Perryville, is a native of France, born in 1832, and is a son of John A. and Genersure (Roussillion) Prost [see sketch of Claude U. Prost]. Alban Prost was nine years of age when he came to Perry County and located with his parents on a farm, on which he grew to manhood. In 1853 he was united in marriage with Mary J. Chappuis, also a native of France, who was born in 1831, and came to the United States in 1852. Their union has been blessed by the birth of nine children, who are living: Donalle, wife of Alfred Faivre; Zoä, wife of James Greene; Rosallie, wife of Joseph Faivre; Louis, Alfred, Felix, Marcillene, Mille and Jule. After his marriage Mr. Prost located on the farm which is his present home. It consists of 200 acres of good land, upon which are indications of rich copper deposits. In politics he endorses and supports the principles of the Republican party, and he and his family are communicants of the Roman Catholic Church.

Henry F. Quick, an old resident and farmer of Union Township, Perry Co., Mo., was born in Central Township, of that county, in 1836, and is the son of John W. and Catherine (Finch) Quick, and grandson of Tunis Quick, who immigrated to Perry County, Mo., about the beginning of the present century. John W. was of German descent, born in the State of Virginia in 1794. He located in Central Township, where he passed the remainder of his life. He was a Methodist Episcopal minister by profession, and also followed farming and blacksmithing. His ministerial duties were local. He died in 1836. His wife was born in Virginia, and died in 1833. She was the mother of seven children, only two of whom are now living: William, in Jasper County, and Henry F. The latter received a fair education in the common schools, and was reared on a farm. In 1852 he began teaching, and taught one term of school. December 23 of the same year he married Miss Sarah M. Blair, who was born in Perry County in 1828, and who is the daughter of Thomas M. and Elizabeth (Mitchell) Blair, natives of Georgia and Kentucky, born in 1800 and 1795, respectively. Mr. Blair is yet living, but his wife died in 1879. To Mr. and Mrs. Quick were born six children: Missouri L. (wife of Joseph B. Hazelbud), Emma (deceased wife of John W. Abernathy), Mary (deceased), Ann (deceased), Iva and Etta. Mr. Quick settled in Union Township in 1859, where he bought 100 acres, and afterward purchased eighty in addition. In 1881 he moved to Farmington, where he resided until the spring of 1888, when he returned to his farm in Perry County, and there he now resides. In 1879 he was appointed county collector of Perry County, and served two years. He is a Democrat in politics, and cast his first vote for Gen. Taylor, in 1848. He and family are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and he is steward and trustee of the same.

John Rauh, Jr., a farmer of Central Township, Perry Co., Mo., residing three miles east of Perryville, was born October 5, 1842, within two miles of his present home. His parents, John Rauh, Sr., and Elizabeth (Behr) Rauh, were born in the Kingdom of Bavaria, Germany, January 24, 1814, and September 1, 1819, respectively. In 1840 John Rauh, Sr., with his family left the fatherland, and came to the United States, settling in Perry County, Mo., four miles east of the county seat. He and wife still survive, and have six children living, viz.: John, Kunendia (wife of William Haltman), Adam, Elizabeth (wife of Henry Boxdorfer), Dora (wife of Ferdinand Hoehn) and Annie (wife of Adam Knoll). John Rauh, Jr., was reared on the farm, making his home with his parents until he was twenty-two years of age. During the war he was a Union man, and in 1860 he enlisted in Company A, Fourth Regiment, Missouri State Militia, with which he remained seven months. He was then discharged, but afterward joined Company B, Eighth Regiment, and served seven months longer, his service being confined to the State of Missouri. On January 3, 1864, he was united in marriage with Mary A. Lang, a daughter of John Lang. She was born January 2, 1845, in Perry County, Mo. In the same year Mr. Rauh purchased 160 acres, where he now resides, and on which he at once located. In 1872 he erected a good brick residence, at a cost of $1,800. His farm is otherwise improved, being one of the best in the township. Mr. Rauh stands high in the estimation of his friends for honesty and good citizenship. He and wife have had twelve children born to them as follows: Louise K. (wife of Charles Groh), Elizabeth M. (deceased), Henry J. (deceased), Pauline L. (deceased), Charles F., Emanuel M., Otto J. (deceased), William (deceased), Martin J., Alwin A., Anna M. and John E. All are consistent members of the Lutheran Church. In politics Mr. Rauh votes with the Republican party.

Edward Robb, a prominent young lawyer of Perryville, Mo., is a native of the county, born in 1857, and is a son of Dr. Lucius F. and Lucinda C. (Shaner) Robb. Dr. Lucius F. Robb was of Irish lineage, born in Rutherford County, Tenn., in 1820. His medical education was secured at Louisville Medical College, Louisville, Ky., from which institution he graduated with the degree of M. D. When about twenty-five years of age he located at Brazeau, Perry Co., Mo., and began practicing his profession. He was married about 1852. He was one of the most successful physicians and surgeons of the county, but died just in the prime of life, in 1864. His wife, who was of German descent, was born in Perry County, Mo., in 1829, and died in 1873. They were the parents of six children, four of whom are living, viz.: William, an attorney at law, Perryville, Mo.; Edward; Laura, wife of John P. Robb, of California, and Effie, wife of James M. Hatcher, also of California. William received his literary education at the Southeast Missouri Normal, at Cape Girardeau, and graduated from the law department of the Missouri State University in 1885. For the last few years he and Edward have been practicing their profession in partnership. The latter was educated in the common schools, in Fruitland Academy, Cape Girardeau County, Mo., and the State University, graduating from the law department of the latter institution in March, 1879, with the degree of LL. B. The following May he returned to Perryville and immediately entered upon the practice of his profession. During 1880 he was in partnership with Judge J. H. Nicholson. In 1880 he was elected prosecuting attorney of Perry County, and was re-elected in 1882. In 1884 he was elected to represent Perry County in the thirty-third General Assembly of the State of Missouri, and served on the following committees: Criminal Jurisprudence, Federal Relations and University. In 1886 he was elected to the thirty-fourth assembly, and served on the same committees as before, and during the extra session of that assembly was on the committee of Internal Improvements. Mr. Robb is one of the leading members of the bar of Perry County, and is a practical business man. He is a member of the A. O. U. W.

Thomas W. Robinson was born in Newmarket, Marion Co., Ky., in 1836. He is a son of George C. and Dorothy A. Robinson, who removed to Perry County, Mo., in 1846. Mrs. Robinson died prior to the beginning of the Civil War, and during the war Mr. Robinson was employed by the United States Government to manage a wagon train, freighting across the plains. Since then all trace of him is lost. Thomas W. enlisted in the Federal army, and was sworn in as blacksmith for the Twelfth Missouri Cavalry, which later became a part of the Fifth Missouri Cavalry, and did service in that position until the close of the war. He afterward returned to Missouri, and erected a smithy at Stono, where for more than a score of years he carried on his trade, being the first man to fell a tree or erect a house at that place. In 1866 he was united in marriage with Melissa J. Fenwick, a daughter of Clement and Cecelia C. Fenwick [see sketch]. Mr. Robinson and wife began their domestic life at Stono, where they remained several years, when he purchased a farm near Claryville, now known as "Wimpsatt farm." Later he sold his land at a good profit, and engaged at his trade at Brewerville, at the same time purchasing his present farm, one of the most attractive places in Saline Township. He has been prosperous as a farmer, and now deals largely in stock. He is truly a self-made man. He and his young wife began life's battle without money, but with strong arms and willing hearts they have secured a good home and a competency that they may enjoy their declining years surrounded by the comforts that they so well deserve. With her own hands Mrs. Robinson grubbed the stumps around their first homestead, while her husband's brawny arm wielded the hammer whose stroke made merry music and brought to their home ample returns in coin.

Thomas B. Sanders was born in Perry County, Mo., on February 2, 1834. His parents were Thomas and Louisa (Coteaux) Sanders. His father was a native of Germany, and his maternal grandfather, Francis Coteaux, was a native of Canada and came to Upper Louisiana when it was yet occupied by Indians, among whom he traded. Thomas B. Sanders, at the age of eighteen years, went to California, and spent nine years of his life in the gold mines of that State. In 1861 he returned again to the home of his childhood. On April 28, 1863, he was married to Letitia A. Burgee, and located permanently on the farm where his family now reside. He died February 2, 1874. He was father of five children, all of whom are now living: Norah (wife of James E. Moore) Edgar J., Henry B., Ida M. and Thomas B. Sanders. Mrs. Sanders was formerly a teacher, as was also her daughter Norah.

William Sandler, an enterprising farmer of Perry County, Mo., residing four miles north of Perryville, was born in St. Louis on December 18, 1842. He is a son of John and Margaret (Schubas) Sandler, natives of Germany, who immigrated to the United States in 1841, and settled in St. Louis. In 1843 they removed to Perry County, Mo., and made a location in Bois Brule Township, where Mr. Sandler became the owner of 135 acres of land. He died in 1882 at the age of sixty-four years. His widow died in 1883, aged sixty-three years. To them were born eleven children, five of whom are dead. Those living are Christine, wife of Edward Rolewalt; Ann, wife of August Strouse; Barbara, wife of Jonathan Preston; John, Peter and William. William was but an infant when his parents removed to Perry County. He grew to manhood on his father's farm, and in 1870 married Ann Boxdoffer, a daughter of Gottlieb Boxdoffer. She was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1851. In 1868 Mr. Sandler purchased 123 acres where he now resides, and on which he has made valuable improvements. In politics he endorses and supports the principles of the Republican party. He and his family are members of the Lutheran Church. He and wife have a family of eight children, as follows: Margaret, Louise, Gottlieb, August, Clara, Anna, Edwin and Wiley.

Martin Schamel, a promising young farmer of Bois Brule Township, Perry Co., Mo., was born in Bollinger County in 1852. His parents, Michael and Catherine (Shane) Schamel, were born, reared and married in Germany, and immigrated to America about 1842, settling near Sedgewickville, Bollinger Co., Mo. Here Michael Schamel entered land which he afterward improved, and upon which he resided until his death in 1882, respected by all who knew him. His widow, now about seventy years of age, still resides on the old mansion farm. They were the parents of five children: Nicholas, who married Jet Ruth; Michael, now the husband of Martha Dickinson; Martin; John, who married Catherine Zahner, and Catherine, Mrs. Joseph Underriner; Martin was educated in Bollinger County, after which he came to Perry County and engaged in farming. During his first year in the county he met Martha A. Layton, who became his wife in the autumn of 1883. She is a daughter of Leo Layton and a member of one of the oldest and best families in the county. In the fall of 1886 Mr. Schamel purchased a nice farm on which he located and to which he is still adding valuable improvements. Since coming to the county he has proved himself in every way worthy of the esteem of its citizens. Having a good education he was chosen school director in his district, and upon him the choice of teachers largely depends. He is also serving his fourth term as road supervisor, and in March, 1888, was elected treasurer of Sereno Farmers' Alliance. To him and wife has been born one child, a daughter, Julia A.

Raymond Schindler, a prosperous farmer of Perry County, Mo., was born on August 30, 1828, in the Grand Duchy of Baden, and is a son of Anton and Magdalena (Christ) Schindler. Anton Schindler was born in the Grand Duchy of Baden in 1790, and in 1847 immigrated to the United States, settling in Perry County two miles southwest of Perryville. Here he passed the remainder of his life, dying in 1861. His wife was also a native of Baden, and was born in 1791. To them were born six children: Catherine (Mrs. Alex. Kirn), Genevieve (Mrs. Caspar Lousman), Alouis, Clement, Raymond and Magdalena (Mrs. Anton Sutterer). Mrs. Schindler died in 1863. Raymond was nineteen years of age when he came to America. He was reared on a farm, remaining with his parents as long as they lived. In 1851 he married Mary Ann Sutterer, a daughter of Frederick Sutterer. She was born on a ship on the Atlantic Ocean in 1831, while her parents were on their way to America. She died in 1852, leaving one child, Clement. Mr. Schindler afterward married a sister of his first wife, Catherine Sutterer, who was born in Perry County, Mo., in 1833. Ten children have been born to this union, viz.: Anton, Ferdinand, Mary, Catherine (wife of Joseph Unverferth), Barney, Raymond, Josephine, Julia Ann, Wendlien and Herman. Mr. Schindler cultivated the old home place until 1866, when he removed to Perryville and engaged in milling, which he continued for two and one-half years. In the milling business, however, he was not successful, and he left town a poor man but not discouraged, knowing he could farm, and in 1869 he settled where he now resides. After giving three of his sons eighty acres of well-improved land each he still has 395 acres. Catherine (Sutterer) Schindler, his second wife, died June 27, 1888, at the age of fifty-three years and six months. He is a Democrat and a highly esteemed citizen. He and family are members of the Catholic Church.

Joseph Schindler, a member of the firm of Anderson, Hooss & Co., general merchants of Perryville, Mo., is a native of Perry County, born in 1851. He is a son of Alouis and Rubena (Schneider) Schindler, natives of the Grand Duchy of Baden, Germany, born in 1821 and 1827, respectively. In 1847 Alouis Schindler immigrated to America and settled in Perry County, Mo., about four miles south of Perryville. He has become one of the large land owners of the county, and for the past twenty years has resided about four miles west of Perryville. His wife is also living, and they are the parents of eight children, viz.: Kate (widow of John Gatto), Joseph, Fannie (wife of Frank Geile), Raymond, William, Lizzie (wife of Theodore Geile,) John and Frank. Joseph grew to manhood on his father's farm, and received his education in the common schools and St. Mary's Seminary. His marriage with Octavia Cissell was celebrated in November, 1878. She was born in Perryville in 1854, and died on August 10, 1884, leaving two children: Coira and Lulu. On November 21, 1887, Mr. Schindler married Mrs. Zena Tucker, a daughter of John Byington. She was born in Ste. Genevieve County, Mo., in 1860. After his first marriage Mr. Schindler located on his farm adjoining Perryville, where he has since resided. He was appointed deputy postmaster of Perryville in 1879, and served as deputy sheriff from 1882 to 1885. In 1886 he and William P. Faherty engaged in selling agricultural implements at which they have been very successful. In July, 1887, Mr. Schindler purchased an interest in his present business. Politically he is a Democrat. He and wife are members of the Roman Catholic Church.

Clement Schindler, a son of Raymond Schindler [see sketch], was born in Perry County in 1852. He remained at home until his marriage, when he bought 140 acres of land near the old homestead upon which he has since resided. Mr. Schindler was first married in November, 1876, to Julia C. Killian, a daughter of John M. A. and Matilda Killian, by whom he is the father of four children: Verena J., born June 19, 1880; Helena Mary, born August 18, 1883; Colette Bernardine, born on October 20, 1884; and Alfred Benedict Clement, born November 25, 1886. Mrs. Schindler died on April 6, 1887, and on May 15, 1888, Mr. Schindler married Mary T., a daughter of Henry Johnson. Both he and wife are members of the Catholic Church, and he is a Democrat in politics.

Anthony H. Schindler, a prosperous farmer of Cinque Homme Township, Perry Co., Mo., is a son of Raymond Schindler [see sketch]. He was born in Perry County in 1854, and was liberally educated in the county in both German and English, receiving the former at Snow Bush and the latter at St. Mary's Seminary. After finishing his education he began working on a farm, and in 1880 was united in marriage with Mary E. Baggett, a daughter, of John and Elizabeth (Welch) Baggett, of Kentucky. Mary E. was born in Kentucky in 1855, and came with her parents to Perry County in 1861, where she afterward grew to womanhood and received her education. After his marriage Mr. Schindler took his wife to the home he had previously prepared for them, one mile southeast of Perryville and remained there three years, when he sold out and purchased where he now resides. His farm comprises 197 acres of fine land on which are good improvements. Mr. Schindler is a practical farmer and a respected citizen. In politics he endorses and supports the principles of the Democratic party, and in religious faith is a Catholic.

Caspar Schlattman was born on January 28, 1826, in the Province of Hanover, Germany. He is a son of Herman and Mary (Harkmaller) Schlattman. Herman Schlattman was born in Hanover in 1776, and in 1856 immigrated to the United States, after which he resided with his son, Caspar, until his death in 1862. His wife died in the fatherland in 1846. They were the parents of three children, two of whom are living: Christiana (wife of Morand Compass, of Scott County, Mo.) and Caspar. The latter grew to manhood on a farm, and in 1853 left his native country and came to America, settling in Perry County, Mo. In January, 1854, he was united in marriage with Anna Schwenne, also a native of the Province of Hanover. She was born in 1826 and came to America at the same time as her husband. In the fall of 1854 Mr. Schlattman purchased forty acres of land near Highland, six miles Southwest of Perryville, and commenced tilling the soil. His wife died in 1865, leaving four children: Henry, Bernard, Clements and William. In 1866 Mr. Schlattman married Catherine Heckman, who was also born in the Province of Hanover in 1838. She came to America in 1866. Mr. Schlattman commenced life without a dollar, but by industry and close attention to business he earned little by little which he invested in land until he owned over 400 acres. In 1884 he purchased 110 acres two and one-half miles north of Perryville, on which he located and has since resided. He gave his old farm to his two sons, Henry and Clements, and still owns 130 acres on which are good buildings and other improvements. He and family are highly respected and are members of the Catholic Church. His political principles accord with those of the Republican party.

G. F. Schmidt, a prominent citizen of Altenburgh, Mo., was born in 1834, in the Duchy of Saxe-Altenburgh, Germany. He is the son of Joachim and Mary Schmidt. Joachim Schmidt was born in Mecklenburg, Germany, in 1795, and was a locksmith by trade. He with his family left the fatherland and immigrated to America, and, after a thirteen weeks' voyage, landed in New Orleans in January, 1839. Going from thence to St. Louis they remained until spring, when they came to Perry County. There he located on a farm, and followed agricultural pursuits the remainder of his life, passing away in 1870. His widow, who was born in 1805, is still alive, and is remarkably strong and active for one of her age. She has two children living. G. F. Schmidt received a limited education in the German congregational schools and the night schools at Altenburgh, which he has greatly improved by business experience and much reading. He followed agricultural pursuits until 1862, when he commenced his commercial career as a clerk in a store, but he possessed too much enterprise to long work for others. In the spring of 1863 he, in partnership with Dr. Buenger, purchased a store, which they managed until 1867, when they dissolved partnership, and Mr. Schmidt engaged in business alone at his present place in Altenburgh. Since then he has operated a first-class general merchandise store, and controls a large patronage from the surrounding country. In 1865 he wedded Wilhelmine Seibel, a native of the county, by whom he has five children: Mary, Ernest, Emanuel, Louisa and Clara. Squire Schmidt is a man of more than ordinary intelligence, and is esteemed and honored by those who know him. He has held the office of justice of the peace for more than ten years, and has rendered decisions in many important cases. For the past eight years he has been a notary public. Politically he is a Democrat, and religiously is a Lutheran. He has accumulated some property, and is one of those men of Teutonic blood who appreciate Republican institutions, and confirms his appreciation by good citizenship.

Thomas Seemes, a substantial farmer of Central Township, Perry Co., Mo., is a native of the county, born in 1835. He is a son of Felix and Ann (Maddock) Seemes. Felix Seemes was born in Ste. Genevieve County, Mo., in 1813, and was the son of Thomas Seemes, a native of Maryland, who removed to Kentucky and thence to Ste. Genevieve County, Mo., being one of the early settlers of the latter district. He was a tanner by trade, and about 1815 removed to Perry County, Mo., and sunk a tanyard near St. Mary's Seminary. Felix Seemes grew to manhood in Perry County, and settled on the Farmington road where Martin Muefeldt now resides. He owned 190 acres of land. His wife was born in 1816, in Tipperary County, Ireland, and came to America when about fifteen years of age. She died in 1882, Mr. Seemes having died in 1873. They were the parents of thirteen children, eleven of whom are living, viz.: Thomas, Elizabeth (wife of Stephen Miles), Joann (widow of Simeon Layton, of St. Louis), Emanuel, Mary Ann (wife of Mearies Layton), Vincent, Susan (wife of John Boland of St. Louis), Gertrude (widow of Alfonsus Moore), Albin, Henrietta (wife of George Preston of St. Louis) and Margaret, of St. Louis. Thomas was reared to manhood on his father's farm, and, in November, 1857, married Philomena Miles, a daughter of Francis Miles. She was born where she now lives in 1838. To their union have been born four children: Albert, Victor Lisbon, Christine and Cora. After his marriage Mr. Seemes located where he now resides. He and family are members of the Catholic Church. During the war he was in the Home Militia. Politically, he endorses the principles of the Republican party.

Dr. Reuben Shelby (deceased) was born in Greene County, Penn., in 1803, and was a son of James and Hannah (Ross) Shelby. James Shelby was also a native of Pennsylvania, and was a farmer by vocation. Reuben Shelby grew to manhood on his father's farm, and received only a common school education. Upon attaining his majority he began teaching school, and continued until he had accumulated sufficient means to attend a medical school, after which he entered the Pennsylvania Medical Institute of Philadelphia, from which he graduated. He afterward went to Texas and began practicing his profession, but after two years in the Lone Star State, came to Perryville, Mo. This was in 1833 and in 1836 he was appointed judge of the county court, which position he filled for six years. In 1842 he was elected county surveyor, and served until January 10, 1845, when he was appointed county treasurer to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of John F. Huse. Dr. Shelby held the office until August, 1848, when he also resigned. In 1850 and 1851 he represented Perry County in the Legislature as speaker in the House of Representatives. In 1874 he was placed in nomination by his friends as the Democratic candidate for State senator from his district. He was elected by a large majority, and his political experience and scholarly attainments made him a most efficient member of that body. He practiced his profession for over forty years, and was a very successful physician and surgeon. He was married three times: first, to Sallie Flynn, who died about fifteen months after her marriage; second, to Mary Beauvias, who died in 1857. She has four children living: Joseph (a merchant at Highland, Mo.), Louise (Mrs. Robert Slaughter), Jennings (Mrs. Walter Mattingly) and Reubena (Mrs. James T. Greenwell). In 1881 Dr. Shelby married Marcella Manning, a daughter of Alexis and Mary (Moore) Manning. Mrs. Shelby was born in Perry County, Mo., and is the mother of five children who are living: Carrie (Mrs. Sebastian Moore), Bessie (Mrs. Joseph De Lassus), Reuben, Ernest and Reece. The Doctor died on October 4, 1882. He was a member of the Catholic Church, as is also his widow and children.

William H. Shoults, senior member of the firm of Shoults & Co., manufacturers of soda water, Perryville, Mo., is a native of Perry County, born in 1843. He is a son of Micager and Berthens (Belsha) Shoults. Micager Shoults was born of German parents in North Carolina in 1811. When six years of age his father, Marcus Shoults, removed his family west, and located in Cape Girardeau County, Mo. Micager Shoults settled in Perry County about 1829. He was married twice, the last time in 1840 with Bertha Belsha. She was born in Perry County, and was a daughter of James Belsha. Micager Shoults located on a farm eight miles east of Perryville, where he still resides. His wife died in 1875, having borne him nine children, six of whom are living, viz.: Catherine (widow of Robert F. Burns), William H., Alexander (a farmer of Perry County, Mo.), James (who resides on the home place), Mark (a farmer near the old home), and Sallie (the wife of Hollis Saddler, a farmer of Cape Girardeau County). William H. was reared on his father's farm. During the war between the North and the South (though called a Southern sympathizer by some) he was a strong Union man, and served seven months in the Federal army, being discharged at Ironton, Mo. His belief was that the government should be protected, but not that the slaves should be freed. In 1869 he married Mrs. Jane Farrar, nee Black, a daughter of Robert Black. She was born in Perry County, Mo., in 1831. To Mr. and Mrs. Shoults has been born one child, Robert N. Mr. Shoults resided on his farm seven miles east of Perryville, until the fall of 1887, when he removed his family to town. He purchased a grocery store of N. E. Farrar, which he later sold to J. V. Moore, and on February 2, 1888, formed a partnership with Emil Guth and Lawrence Leibler, and engaged in manufacturing soda-water, sarsaparilla, buffalo mead, ginger ale and cider. Politically, Mr. Shoults is a Democrat. His wife is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Francis S. Smith, a general merchant and postmaster at Brewer, Mo., is the only survivor of four children born to the marriage of Samuel Smith and Jane Thomas, the former of German, and the latter of English lineage. The parents were married in Illinois, where the father died when Francis S. was a mere lad. In 1844 his widow, with her four children, James H., Cornelius T., Eliza A. and Francis S., came to Missouri and located in Stoddard County. Two years later they came to Perry County, settling first on Apple Creek, but later removing to Bois Brule bottoms, where the mother remained the rest of her life. Francis S. was born on August 7, 1835, in Jackson County, Ill. He was engaged in agricultural pursuits until 1874, when he sold his land, and began merchandising at Eureka, continuing until 1876, when he sold his stock and removed to Brewer and established his present general mercantile business. He can justly claim the distinction of being the first merchant in the town, and the first postmaster, having been commissioned by President Arthur in May, 1884. On February 17, 1859, he was united in marriage with Mary C. Kinnison, at the residence of her mother, in Perry County. One child was born to their union, William Francis, who was taken from them by death when nineteen years of age, just as he was entering manhood. Mr. Smith is now doubly bereaved, his wife having died on December 12, 1887. She was a devoted member of the Catholic Church. Mr. Smith is left without family, but has a multitude of friends who esteem and honor him.

Richard Swann, an old and highly respected citizen of Perry County, Mo., was born in Cape Girardeau County in 1827. He is the son of Richard Swann, a native of Maryland, who, when young, immigrated with his parents to North Carolina, where he remained until after his marriage. He then came to Missouri, and, after living two years in Cape Girardeau County, made a permanent location in Perry County. His wife was Catherine Barber, a native of North Carolina, by whom he was the father of thirteen children. The subject of this sketch received his education in the primitive log schoolhouse, and has spent his life in agricultural pursuits. He is the owner of 260 acres of land, and is one of the well-to-do farmers of Perry County. He belongs to a family remarkable for physical strength and strong constitution. He cast his first presidential vote for Buchanan, and has since adhered to the Democratic party, but took no part in the war. He has been twice married, and is the father of seventeen children, fourteen of whom are now alive. His first wife was Mary A. Allan, who bore him thirteen children. After her death he married Elizabeth Johnston, by whom he is the father of four children. His children now living are as follows: Jane, wife of Joseph Callier; Catherine, wife of Eli Callier; Ann, Betsy, Lydia, Louise, Nolia, May, Nellie, Maud, Samuel, Charley, Edward and Benjamin.

Charles Thieret, a merchant and farmer at Longtown, Mo., was born in Germany in 1844. When he was about seven years of age his parents immigrated to America, and three years later located in Perry County. He received a common school education, and was employed in farming until 1870, when he met with an accident which caused him the loss of a leg. The next year he engaged in merchandising, and has since been very successful. During the Civil War he served nine months in the State Militia, and is now a member of Difani Post, G. A. R., of Perryville. In 1868 he married Barbara Hoehn, who was born in Perry County in 1851, and to them have been born eight children: Amelia (the wife of Emanuel Bergmann), Martin, Clara, August, Amalie, Binnetta, Adaline and Arabella. Mr. Thieret is the son of Christopher Thieret, who was born in Germany in 1822. He served his time in the army, was married to Mary Lang in 1843, and lived upon his mother's farm from that time until 1851. He then came to America, and after living two years in Pennsylvania and one year in Ohio he came to Perry County, Mo., and located on a farm. He served two years in the State Militia during the war, and died in 1864. His wife was born in 1822, and died in 1885. She was the mother of seven children, five of whom are living.

Oliver Thorpe and Lewis Thorpe, brothers, who reside on a nice farm in Bois Brule Township, Perry Co., Mo., are sons of Lewis and Elvretta (Phillips) Thorpe. Their grandfather, Joel Thorpe, a native of England, and a member of an old and aristocratic family, came to America about 1790, and located in Connecticut, where he married. He served in the United States army during the War of 1812, and was later killed by the Indians. His children were Basil, Lewis, Dayton, Warren, Pharis, Julia and Diantha. Basil served in the United States army during the Mexican war, in which he was wounded. After the war and the healing of his wound he became a resident of Ohio, and was located on the shore of Lake Erie. For a number of years prior to his marriage Lewis was a sailor on Lake Erie, and after coming West was engaged in carrying produce on a flat-boat down the Mississippi River to New Orleans. He came to Missouri about 1818, and three years later was married to Anna Preston, who died, having borne several children, none of whom are now living. Mr. Thorpe afterward married Elvretta Phillips, who is yet living, aged sixty-five years. To them were born the following children: Sarah (Mrs. William E. Rhoades), Joel (who married Margaret Manning), Martha (Mrs. James B. Davis), Caroline (Mrs. James Bradham), Oliver (is single) and Henry L. (married Columbia A. Pearson). The family at first lived below Allen's Landing, on land which Mr. Thorpe entered and improved, and upon which his first wife and her children died. Oliver was born after the family removed to the highlands, and now resides on the homestead, one of the best known bachelors in the county. The death of Lewis Thorpe occurred on May 1, 1859, and his widow later became the wife of James A. Burns, who died in 1873. By this marriage she was the mother of two daughters: Rebecca A. (the wife of Henry R. Killian) and Vletoria (the wife of George Killian). Mrs. Thorpe was the widow of Joseph Sadler when she became the wife of Lewis Thorpe, and was the mother of the following children: Elizabeth (Mrs. Frederick Layton) and James J. (who was a soldier in the late war). Besides their farming interests the Thorpe brothers own and operate a saw mill located on their farm. They are men of enterprise and integrity, who are respected by all who know them.

Hon. James F. Tucker is a member of one of the oldest families in Perry County, where he was born in 1828. He is one of thirteen children born to Josephus and Nancy (Kenner) Tucker. Josephus Tucker was born in Richmond, Va., in 1780, and when a lad removed with his parents to Georgia. In February, 1803, he arrived in Missouri, and located in what is now Perry County, where he died in October, 1858. During his early residence in the county he was employed at the salt works of Gen. Dodge, but during the greater portion of his life he was engaged in farming. James F. Tucker was reared upon the farm, and received his education at the Hertich Academy in Ste. Genevieve County. Subsequently he was engaged in teaching and farming for several years. In 1853 he engaged in merchandising at Rozier's Mill, and continued until 1858, since which time he has devoted his attention to farming and trading in stock, carrying on an extensive business in that line. He is the owner of 600 acres of land lying in St. Mary's Township. He is thoroughly well acquainted with Perry County and her people, and in 1884 he was elected to the Legislature, in which he was an influential member. He was an advocate of all worthy measures, and refers with especial pride to the advocacy of the supreme court commission bill and of the Downing high license bill. In the summer of 1858 Mr. Tucker married Miss Margaret Abernathy, a native of Perry County, born in 1839, and they now have one child, Robert L., a student in the Columbia Law School.

Nereus Tucker, public administrator of Perry County, Mo., is a native of the county, born in 1838. He is a son of Raymond and Mary Martina (Cissell) Tucker, both natives of Perry County, Mo., born in 1811 and 1815, respectively. Raymond Tucker's father, Peter Tucker, was a native of Virginia, who came into Perry County at the beginning of the present century and settled in St. Mary's Township. Raymond Tucker afterwards located on the old home farm, where he owned 640 acres. He died in 1877, and his widow in 1879. To them were born five children, who lived to be grown: Nereus, Ferdinand (deceased, who was the wife of Francis M. Moore), Ambrosia (wife of Ambrose Moore), Joseph Raymond and Mary Irena (wife of Frank N. Miles). Nereus grew up on his father's farm, and in June, 1858, was united in marriage with Miss Tresa Tucker, a native of the county, born in 1837. She is a daughter of Josiah Tucker. After his marriage Mr. Tucker located on the old home farm, but after two years he purchased seventy-four acres in Saline Township, to which he afterward added eighty-two acres. In March, 1888, he located where he now resides, one and a half miles northwest of Perryville, on a farm of 110 acres. He has deeded 152 acres to his two eldest boys. He and wife have seven children, viz.: Albert C., Philip L., Annie Belle, Nellie, Bertie, Sadie and Jodie. All of the family are members of the Catholic Church. Mr. Tucker is a Democrat, and in 1884 was elected to his present office, having served nearly four years. During the war he served in the Home Militia.

Simeon S. Tucker, a well-to-do farmer and stock raiser of Perry County, Mo., was born in 1839, and is a son of Josiah and Sarah (Miles) Tucker, both natives of Perry County. Josiah Tucker was a farmer by occupation, and lived and died in his native county. His wife was born in 1812, and died on January 5, 1877. She was followed by her husband in 1880. They were among the first people born in what is now Perry County, and were the parents of eleven children, only one of whom is dead. Simeon S. was reared on his father's farm. During the war he served about fourteen months in Company B, Sixty-fourth Missouri Home Guards. He was married on January 25, 1864, to Mary A. Cissell, a native of the county, born on May 15, 1845. Her parents, Joseph and Mary Cissell, were natives of Kentucky, born in 1792 and 1801, respectively. Joseph Cissell came with his parents to Missouri in 1802, where he married afterward and located on a farm. He died on March 22, 1878, followed by his wife on January 15, 1883. Of their eight children only two are living. Mrs. Tucker is the mother of five children: Mary L., Joseph E., Clara, Mary B. and Grace M. The eldest daughter is now attending the Visitation Convent, St. Louis. Mr. Tucker is an enterprising farmer, and owns 400 acres of fine land. In politics he is a Republican. From 1880 to 1884 he served as public administrator of the county. He and family are communicants of the Catholic Church.

Leo P. Tucker, a prosperous farmer of Perry County, Mo., is the son of Josiah and Sarah Tucker (see sketch of Simeon S. Tucker). Leo P. was born in Perry County, Mo., in 1859, and was reared on his father's farm, securing a good education in the common schools. He has devoted himself to agricultural pursuits, and is now the owner of 300 acres of fine land. He was united in marriage with Miss Elizabeth McBride, a native of Perry County, who was born in 1856. Two children have been born to their union: Leo E. and Mary L. Mr. Tucker and family are respected citizens, and are zealous members of the Roman Catholic Church.

Emanuel Urban, a merchant of Longtown, Mo., was born in Germany in 1840, and is the only child of John G. and Sophia (Hopfer) Urban. John G. Urban was born in Reuss, Germany, in 1800. He attended Bueggen College, and learned the linen weaver's trade, at which he became a master workman. In 1833 he inherited a grocery store, which he managed in connection with working at his trade until 1841, when he immigrated to America, and located on a farm near Uniontown, Perry Co., Mo. He, however, continued weaving until 1845, when he became colporteur for the American Tract Society, traveling through Southeast Missouri and Southern Illinois. He retired to his farm in 1860, and made his home with his son, Emanuel, from 1865 until his death in 1879. His wife, to whom he was married in 1839, died in 1842. She was born in Saxony in 1822. Emanuel was educated in the common schools of Perry County, and in 1861 enlisted in the Federal army, joining Company I, Eighth Missouri Regiment of Volunteers, with which he participated in the battle of Shiloh, siege of Corinth, battle of Arkansas Post, and the siege of Vicksburg, from Sherman's attack until the surrender to Grant. After the evacuation of Jackson, Miss., in 1863, he was taken sick and was in the hospital from September until December, after which he served in the Veteran Reserve Corps until he received his discharge in August, 1864. He was then engaged in business in St. Louis until his marriage in 1865 with Theresa Gertiser of St. Louis. She was born in Switzerland in 1845, and is the mother of twelve children: Belle (wife of C. Wirth), Emma, Eugene, Sophia, Walter, Nora M., Emanuel T., Flora, Carl, Robert, Hilda and John. In 1865 Mr. Urban engaged in business in Longtown, Mo., which he has successfully continued, and in 1878 purchased a grist mill which he has also managed. He controls a large trade, and is one of the leading men of the township. He served as postmaster of Longtown from 1868 to 1881, and is a member of the Masonic fraternity and G. A. R. He and wife are consistent members of the Baptist Church.

Venantius Van Eeckhoutte, a prosperous blacksmith of Bois Brule Bottoms, was born in Sheboygan County, Wis., in 1856. His father, Leonard Van Eeckhoutte, was a native of Belgium, and his mother of Holland. They were married in Wisconsin in February, 1855, and Venantius was four years of age when they came to Perry County, Mo. Locating at Allen's Landing Mr. Leonard Van Eeckhoutte began working at his trade, that of carpentering and wagon-making. The first store house at that place was built by him. He built many houses in Wisconsin prior to coming to Missouri. Besides his work at his trades, he rented land and was engaged in agriculture. Both he and wife died in Perry County, he on January 17, 1876, aged nearly sixty-six years, and his wife on April 8, 1881, in her fifty-fifth year. They were the parents of five children: Venantius, Polycarpus, Mary C., John B. and Mary Josephine, of whom only the oldest two are living. Venantius was married on July 26, 1880, to Mary J. Layton, seventh daughter of Augustine A. Layton, and to them have been born five children, only two of whom, Joseph V. and Peter Francis, are living. At the time of his marriage, Mr. Van Eeckhoutte was engaged in the blacksmith business at Brewer, where he had previously learned the trade with Thomas W. Robinson. In 1885 he began business at his present location, where he has been very successful. He operates a blacksmith and general repair shop in both wood and iron, having learned the wagon-maker's trade from his father. In the fall of 1886 he was elected justice of the peace, and is filling the office in a satisfactory manner. He is the second youngest justice in the county, James H. Difani being his junior only a few months.

Henry Verschelden was born in Belgium, in 1838, and is a son of Louis A. and Eugenia (Geobert) Verschelden. When Henry was about six years of age his mother died, and his father married Miss Mary Gysels in the autumn of 1855. Soon after the family came to America and located at New Hope, Lincoln Co., Mo. Three years later they removed to St. Louis, and in 1859 made a permanent location in Perry County, where Mr. Verschelden died in 1868, and his wife in 1867. Henry was a soldier during the late war, serving as a member of Company L, Fifth Cavalry, Missouri State Militia. He received his discharge in March, 1865, and upon his return home began farming in Bois Brule Bottom.

In 1867 he was joined in marriage with Lucinda E. Case, who died in the fall of 1871. The next year Mary Daily, a native of Hamilton County, Ill., became his wife, and to them has been born one child, Alice E. In 1867 Mr. Verschelden was appointed constable, and served until his election as justice of the peace in 1870. In 1886 he was again elected to the latter office, but resigned in 1887. He is the owner of a portable engine, and a saw and grist mill located in Claryville, and is also the proprietor of a steam thrasher.

John L. Vessels, a retired farmer of Perryville, Mo., is a native of Perry County, Mo., born in 1837. He is a son of George and Mary (Burns) Vessels, natives of Kentucky and Perry County, Mo., respectively. When a youth George Vessels came to Perry County, Mo., with his father, Elijah Vessels, who was one of the pioneers of Perry County. George Vessels settled on a farm in Saline Township, and became one of the county's most influential citizens. He served four terms as county judge. His death occurred on February 3, 1856. His wife, who was a daughter of David Burns, died on December 26, 1848. She was the mother of seven children, only two of whom are living: Lydia (wife of Joseph Klump), and John L. The latter grew up on a farm, and on February 20, 1862, married Miss Elizabeth Meridith, a daughter of Daniel and Mary (Hogard) Meridith, natives of Perry County, Mo., and Virginia, and born in 1814 and 1819, respectively. Daniel Meridith died in 1852, and his wife in 1864. Mrs. Vessels was born in Perry County, Mo., in 1842. After his marriage Mr. Vessels located on a farm of 145 acres in Bois Brule Township, Perry County, and devoted his time and attention to tilling the soil. Being a good manager he was prosperous, and added acre after acre to his farm until he had 600 acres of good bottom land, 300 acres in cultivation, on which he resided until 1885, when he removed his family to Perryville, that his children might have the benefit of the superior schools in town. He owns a fine residence in Perryville, and twenty-two acres of land in the suburbs. In politics he is a Democrat, and is a member of the A. O. U. W. His wife is a member of the Baptist Church. They have four children, viz.: Henry, John, Frank and Nellie.

John F. Walker, late of the general mercantile firm of Walker Bros., Crosstown, Mo., was born in 1856. His father, William H. Walker, was a North Carolinian by birth and a farmer by occupation. He was born in 1838, and while yet a young man came to Missouri and located in Perry County. He married Emily E. Delapp, who was born in Cape Girardeau County in 1828. They were the parents of nine children, six of whom are living. They are Enos L., Susan E. (wife of J. A. Cook), Mary M. (wife of Americus Dixon), Thomas O. and John F. John F. received a common-school education, and at the age of sixteen years began his mercantile career as a clerk. After working several years in that capacity, he began business at Brazeau as a member of the firm of E. & J. Walker. After three years the store was removed to Grand Eddy, and there the firm continued to do business until 1881, when they sold out the stock. In 1883 John F. engaged in the general mercantile business in partnership with a younger brother, where he did his share in building up an excellent trade. In politics he is a Republican, and is one of the rising young men of Perry County.

Rev. James M. Warren, of Perry County, Mo., a minister of the Missionary Baptist Church, was born in Iredell County, N. C., on February 21, 1828. He is the son of Joshua and Nancy (Clary) Warren, also natives of North Carolina. Joshua Warren was a farmer, and in 1843 left his native State and came to Missouri, locating in Perry County, near where the subject of this sketch now resides. Becoming dissatisfied he removed to a farm on the line between Arkansas and Missouri, but when the plague known as the black tongue broke out he left there with the intention of taking his family back to North Carolina, but, stopping a while in Perry County with some of his married children, he finally decided to remain there himself. Here he died, about the close of the war, after a life of great usefulness, at the age of seventy-three years. His widow followed him one year later, at the age of seventy-five years. They were the parents of six boys and four girls, two of whom are now alive. Joshua Warren's father, William Warren, was drafted into the Revolutionary War, and lived to the extreme old age of one hundred and ten years. The year before he died he grew quite strong and could work like a youth. He read without spectacles, and went to and from the fields whistling as gaily as a boy. Rev. James M. Warren is chiefly a self-made man. He has a good education and is a prominent minister. In 1851 he married Eliza Jane Cottoner, who was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in 1834, and to them have been born nine children, five of whom are now alive: Richard, Joseph, William, Rutter and George. Rev. Warren has always been a man of deep religious convictions. He was reared a Methodist, but from a close study of the Scriptures, he concluded that immersion was the proper form of baptism, and consequently joined the Baptist Church. He served as a deacon in his church for many years, and was ordained to preach the gospel when forty years of age. During the past seven teen years he has preached in many different places in Southeast Missouri, and has been instrumental in bringing many souls to Christ. He is dearly beloved by his church people, and is respected as a citizen.

Robert C. Waters, M. D., a physician of Perryville, Mo., was born five miles from Perryville, in 1836. He is a son of Robert C. and Margaret (Rice) Waters. Robert C. Waters was born in Missouri, Ste. Genevieve County, April 18, 1820. During the religious persecutions in France, three brothers, John, William and Andrew Caldwell, fled to Scotland. After the persecutions ceased they returned to France and secured their coat of arms, a roebuck, a star and three waves of the sea, and set it in the house of Claud, in Scotland. When James VI of Scotland ascended the throne of England the families of these three brothers settled in the North of Ireland, and from that house John Caldwell descended. He immigrated to the United States and settled in Lancaster County, Penn., from whence he removed to Virginia. The senior Robert C. Waters' mother was a Caldwell, and a direct descendant from the above. When Robert C. was about six years old his father, Joub Waters, removed to Perry County, Mo., and settled in Bois Brule Bottom. Robert C. married in Perry County. In 1856 he located on the farm now owned by the widow of Frank Hoffman. Mr. Waters died in 1865. His wife was a native of Perry County, born in 1831, and a daughter of James Rice, a leading political factor in the county for many years. He served for a number of years as clerk of the county court. He was of Irish birth and could speak German fluently. Mrs. Waters died in 1859, and was the mother of five children, the subject of this sketch being the only one living. He was but two and a half years old when his mother died, and about nine years old when his father died. He received his literary education in the public schools and in St. Vincent's College, Cape Girardeau. At the age of eighteen he began teaching school and taught one year. When nineteen years of age he began the study of his chosen profession, and in 1878 graduated from the St. Louis Medical College. Returning to Perryville he began practicing his profession. He now has a large practice, and stands high in the estimation of the people who know him. He has a fine library, and possesses excellent literary taste. In 1879 he married Clara M. De Lassus, a native of the county, born in 1856. She is a daughter of Leon De Lassus, a grandson of Charles Dehault De Lassus, the last lieutenant-governor of Upper Louisiana. Her mother was Mary Louise Elliot, a relative of President Elliot of Harvard College, and a descendant of John Elliot, the apostle to the Indians. Politically the Doctor is a Democrat. He is a member of the Southeast Missouri Medical Association, and also of the American Medical Association. He and wife are members of the Catholic Church. They have four children: Robert, Elma, Leon and Cyrille.

Charles A. Weber, judge of probate of Perry County, Mo., was born at Plana, in the Kingdom of Prussia, on January 15, 1833. He is a son of Christopher and Dorothea Weber. In 1838 Christopher Weber immigrated to the United States and landed at St. Louis, Mo., where he died on or about the 24th day of December, 1838. In the spring of 1839 the widow, with her six children—three sons and three daughters, of whom Charles A. is the youngest—removed to Perry County, Mo., and settled on a farm near Altenburg in said county, where Charles A. received his education, and where the widow died in 1860. At the age of fifteen years he returned to St. Louis and engaged in the business of druggist and apothecary, serving three years as an apprentice and one as a clerk. He then returned to Perry County, and, in company with E. Estel, opened a general store at Altenburg, and a few years later this firm established another store, with a warehouse attached, at Wittenberg, in the same county, which was placed in the charge of Charles A., who also engaged in the business of receiving and forwarding and in selling cord wood to steamboats until the beginning of the Civil War. In September, 1861, Mr. Weber organized Company G, of the Fourth Regiment, Missouri Militia, six months' volunteers, of which he was elected captain, and with which he served until February 25, 1862, when he was honorably discharged by reason of expiration of term of service. In March, 1862, he was elected county clerk to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Henry T. Burns, his predecessor, and, being re-elected from time to time, he occupied that position until December 31, 1878. In June, 1862, he was appointed assistant enrolling officer for Perry County, and in that capacity enrolled and organized the Sixty-fourth Regiment Enrolled Missouri Militia, of which he was commissioned major in November of the same year. In May, 1863, he was placed on detached service with a battalion of three companies and attached to the Eighth Provisional Regiment, Enrolled Missouri Militia. He remained in active service with his battalion until October 19, 1863, when he resigned and resumed the duties of the county clerk's office, which had been conducted by a deputy during his absence. April 25, 1864, he was commissioned lieutenant-colonel of the Sixty-fourth Regiment, Enrolled Missouri Militia, and in August, 1864, he recruited and organized Company C, of the Forty-seventh Regiment Infantry, Missouri volunteers. He was elected captain thereof and was mustered into the United States service on August 29, 1864, for a term of six months, and, having served the United States in this organization something over seven months, he was honorably discharged at St. Louis, Mo., March 29, 1865. Judge Weber was married to Martha A. Hellwege, October 23, 1856; she is a native of the Kingdom of Hanover, born in 1837. There were born to them seven children, one of whom, an infant daughter, died at the age of about one year; the remaining six are Rosalie D. (wife of William Preusse), Martha S. (wife of August P. Beckman), Ottilie (wife of W. J. Ochs), Charles E., Adolph J. and Martin A. Having been defeated for the office of county clerk in November, 1878, he was commissioned notary public in January, 1879, which he held until he was elected judge of probate in 1880. Judge Weber entered upon the discharge of the duties of the office of judge of probate on January 1, 1881, and now occupies the same, having been re-elected twice since his first election in November, 1880; his term of office will expire December 31, 1890. Politically he is a liberal Republican, a member of the G. A. R., and he and his family are members of the Evangelical Lutheran Church.

Among the industries of Southeast Missouri which demand attention both for its past history and present prosperous condition is the Frohna Steam Flour Mills, of which Weinhold Bros. are the present proprietors. The mill was founded in 1863 by their father, H. Weinhold. By the aid of his superior skill, the flour produced by this mill was awarded the highest premiums at the following places: Mississippi Valley Sanitary Fair, St. Louis, in May, 1864; St. Louis fairs of 1869 and 1871, and also at the third annual fair held at New Orleans in 1869. In fact the flour ground by this mill has been awarded the highest premium in every place at which it has been exhibited. The mills were run under the old system until the invention of the new process, when that was adopted. The sons inheriting the propensities of their father, since taking charge of the mills have done an extensive mercantile business, shipping flour to the important cities and business points up and down the Mississippi River. It is stated by them that the fame of the Frohna Mills is not only due to superior skill in milling, but partly due to the fine quality of wheat grown in Southeast Missouri. The proprietors stand in the front rank of men of enterprise and intelligence in Southeast Missouri. H. Weinhold, their father, was a miller of national renown, having erected many mills. The mills which he erected at Cape Girardeau ground the flour that took the prize at the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia, and the World's Fair at Vienna, Austria. H. Weinhold was a native of Germany, born in the Kingdom of Saxony on October 17, 1817. He landed in America on January 1, 1839. After coming to Perry County, Mo., he was married to Christiane Walther, also a native of Saxony, born on June 8, 1812. She is still living, and is the mother of four children. After a life well spent, one of constant enterprises crowned with success, H. Weinhold died in 1871.

Joseph G. Weinhold, of the firm of Estell & Weinhold, Wittenberg, Perry Co., Mo., was born in the county in 1844. His father, a native of the Kingdom of Saxony, came to Perry County with the colony in 1839. He was by trade a miller and millwright, and worked as a carpenter and millwright until 1851, when he rented Wilkinson's Mill. By his skill this was made a paying enterprise both to him and the owner of the mill. [For more extended mention of him, see sketch preceding this.] Judge Weinhold attended the schools of Altenburg until he was fourteen years old, after which he spent two years at a college in St. Louis. He then became an apprentice in the milling business, and in 1863 he returned to Frohna and assisted his father in the erection of the mills at that place. Three years later he assisted his father in erecting a mill at Wittenberg, of which he has since become one of the proprietors. These mills have a reputation equal to that of Frohna Mills, and the flour ground here has received the highest award at several State fairs. The roller process was adopted in 1881, and the annual shipments now amount to from 22,000 to 25,000 barrels. Judge Weinhold is held in high esteem by the citizens of Perry County, and has served for six years as judge of the county court. He has also been justice of the peace for several terms, and is now notary public. He is a staunch Democrat, and is the present chairman of the Democratic Central Committee of Perry County. He was married in 1863 to Mary Bretscher, who was born in St. Louis in 1845. They have a family of eight children: Emily, Dora, Agnes, Josephine, Martha, Cora, Lydia and Adele.

Prof. J. H. Welp, of the Evangelical Lutheran School, of Frohna, Mo., was born in St. Louis in 1858. He is the son of Henry and Elizabeth Welp. Henry Welp was born in the Kingdom of Prussia in 1828, and when a young man came to America where he was married to Elizabeth Kleiborker, a native of the Kingdom of Hanover, born in 1830. This couple now reside in South Chicago, and are the parents of six children who are living. Prof. J. H. Welp was educated in the Evangelical Lutheran Teachers' Seminary, at Addison, Ill., from which institution he graduated in 1881. After finishing his education he taught school in South Chicago for more than a year, when he was called to Frohna, Mo., to teach in the Evangelical Lutheran parochial school. He is a man of culture, and has been very successful as an educator. He is a close student, and has a library of useful books by which he can gratify his taste for reading. In 1882 his marriage with Regina Swenhafel was celebrated. She was born in Illinois in 1860. To their marriage have been born three children: Rosa, Albert and Amanda.

Walter S. Wilkinson, merchant and postmaster of Bois Brule, was born in Perry County in 1850, and is the son of William and Teresa J. (Sweenk) Wilkinson [see sketch of Judge William R. Wilkinson]. His mother was the fifth wife of Mr. Wilkinson, and to her were born four children by this marriage. Those living are Walter S., Munson (who married Annie Nellis, and is now a mechanic at West Fall Brook, Cal.) and Benjamin F. (who married Julia DeLassus, and is now a resident of San Diego, Cal.) By a former marriage Mrs. Wilkinson was the mother of one son, J. V. Worshum, who resides upon the old homestead. The subject of this sketch for ten years was engaged in agricultural pursuits. In March, 1884, in partnership with his brother, Benjamin F., he purchased a stock of goods of De Lassus & McKinzie, at Anchor Landing, and has since been engaged in merchandising. He has built up a fine trade, his sales during 1887 amounting to about $9,000. Mr. Wilkinson was as successful a farmer as he is a merchant, and during his last year upon the farm raised upon 200 acres of land 5,800 bushels of wheat, that netted him over $6,000. He has been twice married. His first wife was Emma Dickson, who died, leaving one daughter, Ella May. He chose for his second wife Carrie McPike, whom he wedded September 12, 1880. They have two children living: Lulu B. and Walter E.

William R. Wilkinson, judge of the county court for the Eastern District of Perry County, was born in the county September 7, 1854. He is the son of John and Elizabeth (Lawson) Wilkinson, natives of Yorkshire, England. John Wilkinson, at the age of four years, came to America with his parents, who located at Jeffersonville, Ind., where he grew to manhood. When sixteen years old he began working at the ship carpenter's trade and continued about seven years. He and his father then built the steamboat "Laurel," and launched it for trade between Louisville, Ky., and Alton, Ill. On its second trip it sunk at what has since been known as Wilkinson's Landing, on the Mississippi River, in Perry County. By this misfortune John Wilkinson was left penniless but not discouraged. He began chopping cord-wood for the steamboats, hauling it to the bank of the river in winter on a hand sled and in summer on a wheelbarrow. He worked in this way until he was able to buy a yoke of oxen, and from this time forth prosperity smiled upon him. As soon as he obtained a little surplus of money he invested it in land, and in this way he added acre after acre and tract after tract until he became the owner of 12,000 acres, valued at fully $100,000. He died in 1876 esteemed and honored by all who knew him. He was the father of three children, who survived him: Amelia (wife of Isaac Meredith, of Chester, Ill.), William R. and Jennie (wife of George S. Hatch, of Perry County). William R. received his early education in the public schools, and in 1871 entered the University of Missouri, from which, in 1874, he graduated in the horticultural course. He then returned to his native county, and has since been engaged in farming, milling and the improvement of his lands. He is proprietor of Wilkinson Anchor Mills, Altenburg, Mo., and saw mills in Jackson County, Ill. giving employment to thirty or forty men, cutting more lumber than any mills in this section of country. In politics he is a Democrat, and cast his first vote for Tilden. In 1884 he was elected a judge of the county court, over two Democratic opponents, by a large majority, and in 1886 was re-elected without opposition. He was the youngest man ever elected to the county bench. He is a member of Triple Tie Lodge, A., F. & A. M., of Brazeau; of Wilson R. A. C., of Cape Girardeau, and of the St. Louis Commandery, K. T. In 1877 Judge Wilkinson was united in marriage with Miss Jennie McPike, a daughter of Hon. H. G. McPike, of Alton, Ill., and to them have been born three children, only one living. It has been well said of him that he is a man of intelligence, coupled with good, practical, business sense, acquired in the successful personal management of extensive legitimate business interests. As a public servant, in the responsible capacity of county judge, he has invariably exhibited equally as good, sound judgment, as much executive ability, and as much fidelity to the interests of the public, as he has shown in his private affairs—as much in fact as though he alone were to be affected by his official acts. And the impress of his sound, practical, business sense is seen in the present gratifying financial condition of the county, and which is largely due to his efficient service in the county court. He has always stood up for economy in the management of county affairs and in that useful capacity has justly earned the title of "watch dog of the county treasury." By his prompt and efficient work in capturing St. John, the burglar, Judge Wilkinson again demonstrated the high sense of responsibility with which he regards a public office, and to him is due much of the credit for the capture and conviction of the other burglars and especially for the recovery of the money found on St. John's person.

Robert M. Wilson was born in Perry County, Mo., in 1851, and is a son of Jacob F. and Hannah M. (Martin) Wilson. Jacob F. Wilson was born in Iredele County, N. C., in 1813, and was a farmer by vocation. When about four years of age he came with his father, Robert Wilson, to Perry County, Mo., and settled on a farm in Union Township, being among the first settlers of the county. After his marriage Jacob F. Wilson settled on the old home place, where he passed his life, dying in 1866. He owned 360 acres of land. His wife was born in 1816 and died in 1887. They were the parents of five children, two of whom are living, viz.: Emma (wife of James M. Seibert, treasurer of the State of Missouri), and Robert M. The latter received a fair education, which was begun in the common schools and finished at the State University, at Columbia, Mo. In 1875 he began teaching school and continued for three years, after which he was engaged in farming until 1880 when he was elected collector of Perry County. The following year he removed his family to Perryville, and in 1882 was re-elected to the same office. In 1886 he was elected county treasurer and is the present incumbent. In 1885 he and William Furth established a bank at Perryville, of which Mr. Wilson is cashier and manager. His marriage with Miss Emma E. Young was celebrated in 1877. She is a native of the county, born in 1861, and is a daughter of Reuben Young. Mr. Wilson is a man of good business capacity, and is highly esteemed by all who know him. He is a Royal Arch Mason, and in politics is a Democrat, having cast his first vote for Horace Greeley.

Mathias Wukasch, of the Evangelical Lutheran School at Frohna, Mo., was born in the Kingdom of Saxony in 1850. He is the son of Mathias and Anna Wukasch, natives of Germany. Mathias Wukasch, Sr., is still living and residing in Texas. His wife died in 1874. Mathias Wukasch, Jr., was educated in the Lutheran Seminary at Addison, Ill., graduating from the institution in 1873. He was immediately called to his present position, where for the last fifteen years he has instructed the youth. His ability and success as an educator is amply illustrated by the length of time he has held his first position. The schools at Frohna are well managed, and are in a prosperous condition. In 1877 he was united in marriage with Anna Fischer, who died in 1880 leaving one child, Joseph. Mr. Wukasch afterward married Johanna Schieferdecker, by whom he is the father of four children: Clara, Emma, Paul and Magdalena.

Simon Yount, a farmer of Bois Brule Bottom, was born in Bollinger County, Mo., in 1854, and is the son of Catherine Yount, who at that day was the property of John S. Yount. During the war, and immediately after the proclamation of emancipation, Catherine Yount and her son went to Cape Girardeau, where they secured employment. Simon became a waiter for Captain R. Butler, of the Second Missouri Cavalry, with whom he remained until 1866. He then sought out his mother, who had removed to Sparta, Ill., and remained with her until his marriage, securing work in different capacities. On September 29, 1870, he married Ellen Thompson, who was born in Cape Girardeau County on June 21, 1855. She is the daughter of George and Lucinda Thompson, both of whom at her birth were the property of James Davis. After his marriage he was engaged in farming in Illinois until 1882, when he came to Perry County and resumed his former occupation. His first crop was washed away by the high waters of the Mississippi River, but the next year he succeeded better, and he has persevered until now he is accounted one of the successful farmers of the Bottom. His wife is a thoroughly good housekeeper, and their home is tastily furnished. They have a family of five children: Anna, Mary, Allie, Snowie and Samuel.

Ferdinand Zoellner, of the firm of Tacke & Zoellner, of Muehlhime, Perry Co., Mo., was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in 1862. He is the youngest child of Ferdinand and Nettie (Dolle) Zoellner, both of whom are natives of Langenholtshausen, Prussia, born in 1808 and 1820, respectively. Ferdinand Zoellner, Sr., was educated in the fatherland, and, his mother being left a widow, his youth was spent in helping to do the farm work. When twenty-one years of age he was drafted into the German army, and served four years. For some time he was engaged in digging ore from the copper mines of Germany. In 1839 he came to America, landing at Baltimore in October, after a fourteen weeks' voyage. He came from Maryland to Cape Girardeau County, where he purchased land, which he immediately began improving. In 1840 he married Nettie Dolle, who came with her parents to America on the same ship as her husband. Their union was blessed by the birth of five children: Henry, Lizzette (the deceased wife of Adolph Tacke), Gustave, Tilda and Ferdinand. The last named was educated in the public schools, and at the age of twenty-two years engaged in the mercantile business, at which he has been very successful. In politics he is a staunch Republican, having cast his first vote for Blaine.

CAPE GIRARDEAU COUNTY.

J. Alfred Abernathy, a farmer of Byrd Township, was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., on November 29, 1845. He is the son of Hamilton and Belle J. Abernathy, who immigrated to Missouri from North Carolina. The father died in Cape Girardeau County about 1848. The mother married again and reared her family at home. J. Alfred was the third of four children. He received a limited education in the common schools. On December 11, 1870, he was united in marriage with Miss Emily Harris, daughter of Rev. R. P. Harris, a minister of some note in the Universalist Church. Mr. Abernathy rented a farm for about eleven years, when he bought a place three miles north of Jackson, which he cultivated three years. He then sold it to S. W. Brown, and in June, 1837, bought the farm where he now resides, consisting of 105 acres, all fenced, with about eighty-seven acres in cultivation. He has a good house and outbuildings, and an orchard of about 200 trees. They have three children, viz.: Albena, Harry and Sammy. Mrs. Abernathy is a member of the Baptist Church.

Benjamin H. Adams, editor of the Cape Girardeau Democrat, was born in Scott County, Mo., on December 2, 1847. He is the ninth of twelve children born to Jefferson and Susan (Ollar) Adams, both natives of Kentucky, from which State they came to Missouri in 1844, and located on a farm in Scott County, where they remained until their deaths, the former in 1865, the latter in 1857. Benjamin was reared at home on the farm, receiving his education in the schools of his native county and at Cape Girardeau. In 1867 he entered the office of the Dispatch, at Commerce, where he remained about two years. He then, after working a short time in St. Louis, came to Cape Girardeau and worked on the Argus until 1871, when he established the Gayoso Democrat, which in one year he sold out to Maj. G. W. Carleton. Returning to Cape Girardeau he, in 1876, established the Democrat, which he has since conducted. May 18, 1869, he was united in marriage with Mattie Casebolt, daughter of S. M. Casebolt, then editor of the News. They have six children living and one dead.

Sebastian Albert, wholesale grocer and commission merchant, was born in France in 1828, and with his parents, John and Mary Albert, immigrated to America in 1829. They located at Louisville, Ky. The mother died in 1830 and the father in 1836. Sebastian remained at Louisville until 1846, when, with a brother, he located at Jackson, Mo., and engaged in general merchandising until 1850; he, however, spent the time between 1850 and 1853 in California. They then located at Cape Girardeau, and engaged in the dry goods business under the firm name of Albert & Bro., for several years. In 1857 the brother succeeded R. Sturdivant and formed the firm of Hunt & Albert in the commission business. Soon after the death of Mr. Hunt, in January, 1860, Sebastian purchased his interest, and the firm became J. & S. Albert, which existed until 1877, since which time S. Albert has conducted the business alone. In 1885 he and Mr. Klostermann purchased the foundry from the stock company, which business they have since managed. He and Mr. Madison own the celebrated Richard's Cape Lime Kiln. In all of his business he employs about eighteen laborers. In 1865 he was united in marriage with Rosa L. Miles, a native of Cape Girardeau. Their marriage has been blessed by seven children, three sons and four daughters. Mr. Albert is a Freemason. He and wife are members of the Catholic Church. Mr. Albert had two brothers, who died at Cape Girardeau, John and Nicolas; the former was mayor of the city for awhile, and sheriff of the county for two terms.

Hon. Leon J. Albert, cashier of Sturdivant Bank and mayor of Cape Girardeau, was born in Jefferson County, Ky., in 1840. He is the son of Nicolas Albert, a native of France, who immigrated to America while a young man and located near Louisville, Ky., where he was united in marriage with Anna Hoin, also a native of France. They removed to Cape Girardeau in 1852. The father at the time of his death in 1876 was a United States gauger. The mother died in 1875. Leon J., being twelve years old when his parents removed to Cape Girardeau, was educated at St. Vincent's College. He afterward returned to his native country and engaged in merchandising until the beginning of the war, when he returned to Cape Girardeau and became connected with the commission firm of Hunt & Albert. He was also, during the war, in the employ of the St. Louis & Memphis Packet Company (now Anchor Line) about two years. At the close of the war he became a member of the firm of J. & S. Albert, from which he severed his connection in 1871 to accept his present position as cashier in Sturdivant Bank. In 1864 he was united in marriage with Clara Haydock, a native of Marshall County, Ky. They have had three sons and six daughters, of whom two daughters are dead. Mr. Albert is a member of the A. O. U. W., and the Select Knights.

William E. Alexander, a prominent farmer and stock raiser of Randol Township, Cape Girardeau Co., Mo., is a native of Cabarrus County, N. C., born on December 4, 1818. He is the only living member of a family of seven children born to the union of Ambrose Alexander and Eleanor Query, both natives of North Carolina. They resided in their native State a number of years after their marriage, and removed to Missouri in 1829. They pre-empted the land upon which the subject of this sketch now resides. The parents lived there until their deaths. The father died February 1, 1843. His wife survived him a number of years, and died about 1866. William E. came to his majority in Cape Girardeau County, and when land was thrown upon the market he entered that which his father had homesteaded. On January 20, 1842, he was united in marriage with Ann H. Short, daughter of John and Jane Short. She was born in Rowan County, N. C., but removed to Cape Girardeau County, Mo., when eleven years of age. Mr. Alexander served as justice of the peace, and in 1870 was appointed public administrator, and two years after was elected to the same office. He was re-elected several times, serving in all ten consecutive years. Mr. Alexander was a Whig until the dissolution of that party, since which time he has been a Democrat. He and wife are members of the Pleasant Hill Presbyterian Church, in which he has served as deacon nearly forty years. They have reared a family of two sons and six daughters, viz.: Charles E. (killed in the Confederate service), Emily (a widowed daughter at home), Julia (deceased), Oliver, Mary L. (Mrs. L. C. Oliver), Jennie (Mrs. J. C. Davis), Margaret E. (Mrs. J. E. Morton), Ella L. (Mrs. George A. Woods). All of these children reside in Cape Girardeau County, Mo. The subject of this sketch has always been identified with the educational interests of the county, and his home has been the resort of the minister and educator at all times.

John H. Altenthal, a farmer and stock raiser residing one and a half miles west from Jackson, was born in the Kingdom of Hanover, Germany, January 29, 1830. He is the son of Anton and Mary (Brons) Altenthal, both natives of Hanover, Germany. They immigrated to the United States in December, 1845, landing at New Orleans. They located in Cape Girardeau County in 1846. Here the father bought land, upon which he resided until his death. John H. received a fair education in his native country. He learned the carpenter's trade with his father, and engaged in that business until 1865. On March 3, 1853, in Cape Girardeau County, he was united in marriage with Caroline Klemme, a native of Brunswick. After marriage they located near Jackson, and engaged in farming. In the spring of 1869 he removed to the farm where he now resides. He has 200 acres of land, all in a good state of cultivation, and upon which is a good residence and other buildings. Mr. and Mrs. Altenthal have reared a family of six children, viz.: Matilda (Mrs. William Wessal, of Jackson), Caroline (Mrs. William Wagoner), Wilhelmina (Mrs. Robert Kneibert, of Jackson), Henry (married and residing on the home farm), Anna (now married to George Biculein) and Louisa (who died August 4, 1887, in her twenty-first year). Mr. and Mrs. Altenthal are members of the Lutheran Church. Mr. Altenthal is independent in politics, and is in favor of local option.

Henry A. Astholz, marshal and collector of Cape Girardeau, was born in Hanover, Germany, October 24, 1840. He is the son of Christian and Sophia Astholz, both of whom died in Germany in 1857. The year after his parents' death Henry A. immigrated to America, locating at first in Louisiana, where he served a few months as overseer on a plantation. He then went to St. Louis, where he engaged as clerk in a store until 1861, when he enlisted in the army, joining Company B, Fifth Missouri Cavalry, and at the time of its consolidation with the Fourth Missouri Cavalry was color bearer. After this he filled various private positions, and at the close of the war was quartermaster-sergeant of Company D, Fourth Missouri. After the war he located at Cape Girardeau, and engaged in the tanning business until about 1869, after which he traveled a few years, and filled various clerkships until 1881. From 1881 until 1883 he was deputy clerk of the common pleas court, and in 1883 was elected to his present position. In 1867 he was united in marriage with Augusta Brandes, a native of Germany. They have had fourteen children, of whom five are dead. Mr. Astholz is a member of the A. F. & A. M. and the I. O. O. F., and has been commander of Justi Post No. 173, G. A. R., since its re-organization, and was re-elected for four consecutive years. On account of wounds received during the war he receives a pension from the Government.

Francis M. Baker, a substantial farmer and proprietor of Baker's Flouring Mill in Apple Creek Township, Cape Girardeau County, was born on the farm where he now resides, on March 9, 1838. He is the son of Joseph Baker, Jr., also a native of Cape Girardeau County, born in 1806. He was a son of Joseph Baker, Sr., who immigrated to Missouri from North Carolina when a young man, and was married in Cape Girardeau County. Joseph Baker, Jr., grew to manhood at his father's home, and was married to Anna Young, also a native of Cape Girardeau County. He settled on the farm where the subject of this sketch now resides, in 1838, remaining there until his death, about 1848. His wife still survives (1888). Francis M. grew to manhood on his father's farm, and in 1859 went to California by the way of New York. Crossing the Isthmus of Panama he sailed along the Pacific coast as far as San Francisco. He remained in California and Nevada about eight years, and was engaged in mining, ranching and freighting. He arrived home on December 17, 1867, after which he bought out the other heirs' interests in the old homestead, and has since been engaged in farming. On May 5, 1868, he was united in marriage with Mary C. Reeves, a native of Cape Girardeau County. She is a daughter of William Reeves, formerly from North Carolina. Mr. Baker is a Mason, and a member of the A. O. U. W. In politics he is a Democrat. He purchased his mill in the fall of 1881, and rebuilt it the next year. He now has a good custom mill, with a daily capacity of about 200 bushels. He has a fine farm of 300 acres, of which about 300 acres are under cultivation, upon which he has a nice home.

Jonathan H. Barks was born in what is now Bollinger County, September 22, 1840, and is a son of Joseph and Serena (Parton) Barks. The former was born in Bollinger County in 1811, and was the son of Humteel Barks, a native of North Carolina, who settled in Cape Girardeau County in 1800, having received a Spanish grant of 640 acres of land on Whitewater Creek. Humteel Barks' father was killed in the Revolutionary War. After his marriage Joseph Barks located on Whitewater Creek, where he resided until selling his farm in 1855, then moving to Kansas. The following fall he returned to Dent County, purchased a farm which he cultivated until the spring of 1856, when he removed to Cape Girardeau County and located upon the farm where George H. Barks now resides, living there until his death, in 1882. His widow still survives. She was born in Cape Girardeau County in 1819. J. H. Barks was reared at home, and received his education in the subscription schools. He has been twice married; first, on February 6, 1862, to Josephine Snider, a native of Bollinger County and a daughter of Andrew Snider, deceased. Soon after his marriage Mr. Barks removed to his present home in Cape Girardeau County. His farm consists of 300 acres, with about 140 under cultivation. His wife died in 1875, leaving one daughter, Mary C., wife of Joseph Manning of Bollinger County. Mr. Barks next married October 31, 1886, Narcissa Jones, a native of Arkansas, born near Helena on March 11, 1856. She was reared in Cape Girardeau County, and is a member of the Methodist Church. Mr. Barks is a Master Mason.

George H. Barks, a substantial farmer of Liberty Township, Cape Girardeau County, was born in Bollinger County, Mo., on February 26, 1840. He is a son of Joseph Barks, also a native of Bollinger County, born in 1810. The latter was the son of Humteel Barks, one of the early settlers of Southeast Missouri from North Carolina. Joseph Barks grew to maturity, and married in his native county. His wife, Serena (Parton) Barks, was born in Cape Girardeau County. After his marriage Mr. Barks located in Cape Girardeau County on the farm where the subject of this sketch now resides. The former purchased new land, which he improved, and upon which he resided until his death in July, 1882. His widow is still living. She and her husband reared four children, all of whom are living, and, with the exception of one daughter in Bollinger County, reside in Cape Girardeau County. George H. remained with his father until his death, after which he took charge of the home farm. Since his father's death he has purchased more land, and now has about 350 acres, of which 125 acres are cleared. In December, 1871, he married Sarah Newkirk, a native of Bollinger County. She died in 1873. On April 20, 1879, Mr. Barks was united in marriage with Mary Ann Proffer, a daughter of George Proffer, and a native of Cape Girardeau County. This union has been blessed by the birth of two children: Dora J. and Joseph L. Mr. Barks is a member of the Agricultural Wheel.

George W. Bast, a member of the firm of Bast & Kurre, proprietors of the Burfordville Saw Mills, Cape Girardeau County, Mo., was born in that county, October 8, 1833, and is a son of George Bast, a native of Lincoln County, Ky., born in 1795. The latter grew to manhood in his native State, and married Ruth Bell, born near Harper's Ferry, Va. After their marriage they removed to New Orleans, and thence to Cape Girardeau County about 1827. They first located near Jackson, but afterward removed to the west part of the county, which is now a part of Bollinger County. Mr. Bast died there in 1882. His widow still survives and is eighty-two years old, being remarkably active for one of her age. They reared a family of three sons and five daughters, all of whom are now grown and married. They all reside, with the exception of one daughter in California, in Cape Girardeau County. George W. grew to manhood at his father's home, and received a common school education, which has been greatly improved since arriving at mature years by much desultory reading. He taught school one term in his younger days. On December 6, 1857, he wedded Mahala Slinkard, a native of Cape Girardeau County, and a daughter of Joseph and Ally Slinkard. After his marriage Mr. Bast located on a farm in Bollinger County. In 1861 he enlisted in Col. Jeff. Thompson's regiment (Confederate), with which he served six months, when he was discharged and returned home. In 1864 he went to Montana, and was there engaged in mining for six years, returning home on December 29, 1870. He was then engaged in the hotel business for a short time at Des Arc, Mo., after which he removed to Poplar Bluffs and engaged in the mercantile business, but after eighteen months he sold out and went to St. Louis, where he resided one year. Returning to Cape Girardeau County he engaged in the saw mill business under the firm name of Bast & Baker, and in 1880 the present partnership was formed, since which time the firm have been doing a large business, manufacturing over 30,000 feet of lumber per year. They also own a farm of new land on White Water Creek, which is being managed and improved by hired men. Mr. Bast is a member of the A. F. & A. M., and of the A. O. U. W. He and wife have two daughters: Alice (Mrs. Fred Kurre) and Lourana E. (Mrs. J. H. Estes).

Lewis M. Bean was born in Cape Girardeau County, September 20, 1843, and is a son of Robert Bean and Mary McFarland. The former was born in North Carolina in 1805, and was a son of Moses Bean, a native of Scotland, who settled in Pickets County, S. C., when a young man. He was married there in 1792. Robert Bean was reared in North Carolina and Tennessee, and came to Missouri in 1828. The year of his arrival he was married on the farm where the subject of this sketch now resides. Mary McFarland was born in Ireland, of Scotch parents, who came to America about 1810. After his marriage Robert Bean located on the farm adjoining Lewis M. Bean's present farm in Hubble Township, Cape Girardeau County. He improved the place and resided there until his death, August 13, 1864. His widow lived until July, 1885. They reared to mature years seven sons and three daughters, of whom two sons and three daughters are still living. They all reside in Cape Girardeau County. Lewis M. grew to manhood in the neighborhood of his birth, and received a good education in the common schools, which was completed at the Jackson High School. For thirteen years he was a teacher in his native county. Previous to the war Mr. Bean was a Democrat, but since that time he has acted with the Republican party. He has held various county offices. He was appointed and served four years as deputy county surveyor. He also served as deputy assessor and deputy sheriff for a number of years. In 1880 he was elected county assessor and re-elected in 1882. In 1884 he was again appointed deputy sheriff and served until 1887. Mr. Bean has been married three times. His first wife was Elizabeth A. Miller, to whom he was married on December 24, 1866. She died August 29, 1872, leaving one son, Robert B. His second wife, Sarah A. Priest, to whom he was united on May 26, 1876, died on March 13, 1885. There are four children by this union: Mary M., William W., Lewis M., Jr., and Wilson Cramer. On May 19, 1886, Mr. Bean married Miss Fannie Mackley, a daughter of John C. Mackley, of Portland, Ore. Mrs. Bean was born in Oregon, but was reared and educated in Illinois and Missouri, and had taught school for seventeen years previous to her marriage. Mr. Bean is now engaged in surveying and farming. He is a member of Excelsior Lodge No. 441, A., F. & A. M.

William M. Bennett is the son of James N. and Sarah (Sheppard) Bennett, the former a native of Madison County, Mo., and the latter a native of Cape Girardeau County. The father was born in 1807, and was the son of Joseph Bennett, a native of Tennessee, who was one of the early settlers of Madison County, Mo. James N., the father, served as constable of Byrd Township twelve or fourteen years. He served as deputy sheriff and then as sheriff each four years. In 1849 he bought and settled on the farm where William M. now resides. He remained there until his death in May, 1857. His wife survived him several years. They reared to maturity a family of three sons and two daughters, of whom two sons and one daughter are still living. The brother is in Arkansas, and the sister resides in Cape Girardeau County. William M. was born in Jackson, on November 14, 1833, and grew to manhood on his father's farm. On November 26, 1857, he was united in marriage with Miss Margaret Sheppard, daughter of Elisha and Malinda (Blount) Sheppard. The father, a native of North Carolina, came to Cape Girardeau County when a young man. The mother came to Jackson with her parents in 1804. She is now living with Mrs. Bennett. After marriage Mr. Bennett located on a farm near his present farm, to which he removed in 1871. He has 119 acres, of which seventy-five acres are improved, and upon which he has a comfortable house and outbuildings. Mr. and Mrs. Bennett are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He is a member of the A. O. U. W. They have had four children, viz.: Ida May (Mrs. Albert P. Sheppard), James E., Sarah J. (died in infancy) and Minnie A. (died at the age of seventeen years).

C. F. Betten, city clerk of Cape Girardeau, was born in Madison County, Mo., in 1856. He is the son of John Betten, a native of Westphalia, Germany, born in 1825. About 1850 the father came to America, locating in Madison County, Mo., and engaged in mining very extensively. In 1869 he removed to Ste. Genevieve, where he died in November, 1884. The mother is also a native of Germany, and at present resides with her son, the subject of this sketch. Eleven children were born to the parents, of whom two sons and two daughters are living. When C. F. Betten was ten years of age he was taken by his parents to Ste. Genevieve, Mo., and was soon after placed in St. Benedict College, Atchison, Kas., where he remained four years, graduating in 1871. He then filled the position of bookkeeper in Carondelet Savings Bank for five years. In 1878 he came to Cape Girardeau County and served as United States deputy collector from that time till 1884. He then engaged in the hotel business until he was appointed to his present position in May, 1887. In November, 1880, he was united in marriage with Mary Julia, eldest daughter of Judge David L. Hawkins of Cape Girardeau. Mr. Betten is vice-president of Branch No. 274 of the Catholic Knights of America.

Charles L. Blattner, proprietor and manager of the farm and saw mills located two miles west from Cape Girardeau, was born in Switzerland, August 10, 1859. He is a son of Charles and Anna (Dubs) Blattner, both natives of Switzerland. Mr. Blattner died in his native country in 1881. His widow married again and in 1869 immigrated with her family to the United States, and in the spring of that year located in Cape Girardeau County. She died in August, 1880. Charles L. Blattner grew to maturity in Cape Girardeau County. He worked by the month on a farm and in a saw mill until he was twenty-two years of age. In the fall of 1882 he made a trip to Europe and visited the land of his birth. Returning home in the spring of 1883 he engaged in the manufacture of lumber below Dutchtown, in Cape Girardeau County. After seventeen months of successful business there he bought the place where he now resides. His farm contains 140 acres, nearly all of which are under cultivation. On September 16, 1884, he was united in marriage with Miss Anna Keller, a daughter of J. G. Keller [see sketch]. This union has been blessed by the birth of one daughter, Laura. Mr. and Mrs. Blattner are members of the Evangelical Church.

John A. Bowers is a native of East Tennessee, born in Greene County, on July 7, 1844. He is the son of Henry and Sarah (Cobble) Bowers, both of whom are natives of Greene County, Tenn. The parents removed from their native State to Missouri, about 1854, and settled on a farm in Cape Girardeau County, entering land at first. They have since added to their farm by buying more land. The father enlisted in the Union army, joining Company A, Second Missouri Artillery, with which he served about one year, when he was wounded by accident and so disabled that he was mustered out of the service. He then returned home, and he and wife still reside on their farm. In October, 1862, John A. Bowers also enlisted in Company A, Second Missouri Artillery, with which he served until the close of the war as a non-commissioned officer. He participated in the battles around Nashville, and was in several skirmishes. He received his discharge in July, 1865, after which he returned home. On December 20, 1867, he was united in marriage with Sarah Beal, daughter of John Beal (deceased). Mrs. Bowers was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. After their marriage they rented a farm for several years, buying and locating where they now reside in February, 1876. They have a good farm with substantial buildings upon it, situated in Oak Ridge, Cape Girardeau County. They have a family of seven children, viz.: James Marion, Clara E., Mahala J., Sallie A., Oliver O., John H. and Olea A. Mr. and Mrs. Bowers are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Politically, Mr. Bowers has always been a strong supporter of the principles of the Republican party. He is a member of the A. O. U. W., and also a member of the Farmers' Mutual Benefit Society.

Samuel S. Bowman, proprietor of Oak Ridge Mills, was born in Kanawha County, W. Va., on October 27, 1843. He is the son of Benjamin and Sophia H. (Ferguson) Bowman, both natives of Franklin County, Va. The father was born in 1804, and lived in his native State until the fall of 1857, when he and family came to Missouri and located at Jackson. He was a miller by trade, and upon his arrival at Jackson took charge of a mill, which he managed for three years. He afterward ran several other mills in the county, among which were those at Pocahontas and Wilkinson. Samuel S. learned the mill business with his father, and afterward had charge of the mill at Millersville for ten years, and a mill at Burfordville for two and one-half years. In 1882 he engaged in a mercantile business at Pocahtontas, where he remained for about two years. He then, after farming a short time, purchased his present mill, which is doing a good business. Mr. Bowman was married on November 2, 1868, to Serilda, daughter of Aaron Abernathy, and a native of Cape Girardeau County. They have four children living, viz.: Lulu, Russell, James and Lyman, and four dead, the oldest of whom, Robert D., died March 4, 1884, at the age of fifteen years. The others died in early childhood and infancy. Mr. and Mrs. Bowman are consistent members of the Baptist Church. He is also a member of the A. O. U. W.

William C. Bowman, an enterprising citizen of Cape Girardeau County, and a member of the firm of J. C. Clippard & Co., proprietors of Burfordville Roller Mills, was born in Cape Girardeau County on September 27, 1859, and is a son of Rev. B. L. Bowman, a native of Virginia, who came to Missouri when a young man of eighteen years. He settled in Cape Girardeau County, and afterward married Eliza J. Ford, daughter of Daniel Ford. She was born in Virginia, but was reared in Cape Girardeau County. Rev. B. L. Bowman and wife now reside at Marble Hill, Bollinger Co., Mo. William C. Bowman grew to manhood in his native county, and while young commenced learning the milling business at Burfordville. He afterward worked for a few months at Tiedemann's Mills, Jackson, Mo. In 1882 he took charge of the Burfordville Mills, buying an interest in the same in March, 1887. This is a water mill, with the improved roller process, and is among the best mills of the county. Its daily capacity is eighty barrels. On January 25, 1883, Mr. Bowman was united in marriage with Emma Estes, a native of Bollinger County. Their union has been blessed by two children: Lyman R. and Eula. Mr. Bowman is a member of the Burfordville Lodge of A. O. U. W., which he is serving the second term as financier. He and wife are members of the Missionary Baptist Church.

Jasper N. Brooks, a well-to-do farmer of Cape Girardeau County, was born on the farm where he now resides, November 18, 1837, and is a son of Hardy Brooks, a native of Virginia, who came to Missouri with his father about 1810, and settled near Cape Girardeau City. Hardy Brooks grew to manhood in Cape Girardeau County, and married Susanua Dunham, after which he bought land and settled where his son now resides. He improved the farm and remained upon it until his death. His wife died on August 14, 1848, and he married again. His death occurred on August 21, 1879. He reared to maturity three sons and three daughters, of whom Jasper N. and two daughters are the only survivors. Jasper N. is the youngest child. He spent his youth on his father's farm, and received a good education in the common schools. In July, 1861, he enlisted in Col. Jeffrey's Eighth Missouri Mounted Infantry (Confederate), with which he served until their surrender at Shreveport, La., at the close of the war June 9, 1865. He participated in most of the engagements of his regiment. Among others were Pilot Knob, Little Rock and Blue Mills. In August, 1863, he was captured in Stoddard County, and held a prisoner in St. Louis at McDowell College for about three months, when he and eight others escaped. After the war he returned home, and on February 14, 1866, was united in marriage with Margaret McLane, a native of Cape Girardeau County, and a daughter of David McLane. After his marriage he purchased a farm and located in Shawnee Township, where he remained for ten years. He then came back to Randol Township and took charge of the home farm. His wife died November 28, 1867, leaving one son, George J. Mr. Brooks afterward married Sarah Louisa Gibbs, daughter of John N. Miller. After the death of his father Mr. Brooks bought the other heirs' interests in the old home farm, upon which he has since made some valuable improvements. The farm contains about 400 acres of land with 200 under cultivation. Five children have been born to him and last wife: Laura L. (Mrs. Wilber Jaden), Ida Belle, Hardy O., Ettie Alice and Walter W. Mrs. Brooks is a member of the Methodist Church.

Otto Buchermann, a prominent merchant of Cape Girardeau, was born in that city in 1849. He is the son of Otto Buchermann, who was born in the Dukedom of Brunswick, Germany, and came with his parents to America in 1833. They located at New Orleans on November 13, and a few weeks later removed to Cape Girardeau, being the first German family to locate at that place. They remained in the city a short time, then located on a farm near by. The father died in Cape Girardeau in 1880. The paternal grandfather, whose name was also Otto Buehrmann, died there in 1854. The subject of this sketch was educated in St. Louis, and in 1865 engaged in the saddlery and leather trade in Cape Girardeau as a member of the firm of Buehrmann & Son, which he continued until 1873, at which time he engaged in general merchandising on Harmony Street, where he remained until 1877. He then located on the southwest corner of Main and Harmony Streets, but soon after moved to his present location on the southeast corner of those streets. He has now two large rooms and employs from five to nine clerks. In 1873 he was united in marriage with Mary L. Williams, a native of Cape Girardeau County. They have had four children, two of whom are living. Mr. Buehrmann is a Freemason. He and family are members of the Episcopal Church.

Dr. K. H. Burford, druggist and postmaster at Gravel Hill, Cape Girardeau Co., Mo., was born in Bedford County, Tenn., on May 23, 1921. He is a son of Ben W. and Margaret (Ray) Burford, natives of Virginia and South Carolina, respectively. Ben W. Burford grew to manhood in his native country, and was married there. His marriage with Margaret Ray, who was his second wife, was celebrated in Tennessee. After their marriage they resided in Tennessee, in which State they died. Dr. K. H. grew to manhood in his native county, in which he studied medicine and practiced his profession. His studies were directed by Dr. William O. Beckley, of Virginia. In 1848 the Doctor removed to Illinois, and from thence in 1853 to Missouri, locating at Cassville, where he practiced his profession for five years. In 1858 he removed to Cape Girardeau County, and located on land in Kinder Township, in which vicinity he practiced his profession twenty years. While in Tennessee he married Louisa Awalt, who died in 1861, or 1862, leaving seven children: A. J. D., of Cape Girardeau County; J. M., of Marquand; D. W., of Gravel Hill; D. L., of Fruitland; Cornelia A., Mrs. John S. Henry; Belle P., a widow; and W. S., of Gravel Hill. The Doctor was appointed postmaster of Gravel Hill in 1878. He chose for his second wife Sophia Price, daughter of Thomas Price, of Lexington, Mo. She was born in Jackson County, this State. The Doctor is a Master Mason, and a member of the I. O. O. F.

Frank E. Burrough, a promising young attorney of Cape Girardeau, was born in that city in 1865. He is one of three surviving children born to the union of Jacob H. and Mary E. (Deane) Burrough. The former was a native of Philadelphia, who came to Cape Girardeau about 1853. He was a lawyer by profession and had previously practiced in Tennessee, St. Louis and Iowa. He held the rank of captain in the Enrolled Missouri Militia, and was provost-marshal a few months at Cape Girardeau. He was one of the promoters of the Southeastern Missouri Normal, and was president of the board of regents from its inception until a short time previous to his death, which occurred in December, 1883. The mother died in July, 1884. The maternal grandmother was a daughter of George Henderson, one of the early settlers of Cape Girardeau, being located there as early as 1803. Frank E. graduated at the Southeastern Missouri Normal in 1883, after which he entered the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, graduating in 1885, since which time he has practiced his profession in his native city.

William Byrd, a prominent farmer and stock dealer of Byrd Township, was born in that township on May 11, 1845. He is the son of Stephen and N. Isabella (Moore) Byrd [see sketch of brother, A. R. Byrd]. William is the eldest of a family of seven children—three sons and four daughters—of whom the three brothers and one sister are living. He grew to manhood on his father's farm. In June, 1863, he enlisted in the Confederate army, joining Jeffrey's Eighth Missouri Cavalry in Marmaduke's old brigade, and served until October, 1864. He participated in the fight at Little Rock, and a great many skirmishes, also, in the engagements at Pine Bluffs and Ironton; at the latter place he was detailed to take care of the wounded Confederates, and upon the arrival of the Federals, after the battle, was taken prisoner and paroled. Returning home he soon after went to Illinois, and remained until 1865, when he again returned home and engaged in farming. On November 21, 1867, he was united in marriage with Mary J. Evans, daughter of J. R. and Catherine Evans. She was born in Cape Girardeau County. Soon after marriage they located where they now reside. Mr. Byrd has a farm of 286 acres, of which 200 acres are improved, and upon which he has a good house, barn and other farm buildings. Mr. and Mrs. Byrd had a family of nine children, six of whom are still living, viz.: Ella, Katie, Della, Edward R., Charles William and Stephen. Mrs. Byrd is a member of the Methodist Church. Mr. Byrd is a member of Jackson Lodge of the A. O. U. W.

Abraham Ruddell Byrd, of the firm of Horrell, Byrd & Co., proprietors of the Orient Roller Mills, Jackson, Mo., was born near Jackson December 9, 1851. He is a son of Stephen and Nancy Isabella (Moore) Byrd, both of Cape Girardeau County, Mo. The father, who was born June 20, 1815, and died January 15, 1866, was a successful farmer, stock raiser and speculator. The mother was born December 22, 1826, and died February 13, 1861. They were married May 9, 1844. Seven children were born to them, two of whom died in childhood, Catherine and Clarissa, and five attained majority, viz.: William, Elizabeth (McCombs) deceased, Abraham R., Edward and Isabella (Barringer). Abraham R. was reared on his father's farm, and engaged in farming until February, 1885, when he became interested in the milling business. October 2, 1878, he was united in marriage to Miss Sallie M. Hunter, daughter of Judge Joseph Hunter, of New Madrid, Mo. Their family consists of three sons and one daughter, viz.: William Joseph Hunter, Abraham R., Olga and Oliver Carlisle. Mrs. Byrd is an ardent worker in the temperance cause, and is president of the Cape Girardeau County W. C. T. U. Both are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. The following is the genealogy and history of the Byrd family of Cape Girardeau County, Mo. Andrew Byrd, of English descent, lived in North Carolina the early part of the eighteenth century. Amos Byrd, son of Andrew Byrd, was born in North Carolina in 1737, married a Miss Ruddell, moved from North Carolina to Virginia in January, 1773, thence to Tennessee, within six miles of Knoxville on the Holsten River, where he reared to maturity five sons and three daughters, viz.: Stephen, John, Abraham, Amos, Moses, Mary, Clara and Sallie. He, with his sons and daughters and their families, moved to Missouri, landing at Cape Girardeau in the fall of 1799. Amos, Sr., died June 5, 1818, and was buried on the Penny, or Byrd farm, six miles west of Cape Girardeau, by the side of his wife who had preceded him. In the spring of 1800 the Byrds, having obtained grants of land from the Spanish Government, settled near Jackson, on Byrd's Creek, in Byrd Township, Cape Girardeau County. Stephen Byrd, Sr., was colonel in the Black Hawk War, and was a member of the constitutional convention that framed the first constitution of the State of Missouri. Abraham, Sr., participated in the Indian wars of Tennessee, and was captain in the Black Hawk War; was several times a member of the Missouri Legislature. He was married in Tennessee, near Knoxville, to Miss Elizabeth Gillispie, daughter of William Gillispie, of a Scotch Presbyterian family, in the fall of 1799. There were born to them eleven children, nine of whom attained majority, viz.: Amos, Gillispie, Ingabow (Byrd), Mary (Horrell), Nancy (Kelso), Stephen, Sabina (Alton), Clarissa (Horrell) and Emily (Martin).

Very Rev. P. V. Byrne C. M., president of St. Vincent's College, was born in the city of Carlow, Ireland, in 1846. He came to this country when quite a boy, and entered the Seminary of Our Lady of Angels, Suspension Bridge, New York, to pursue his studies for the priesthood. In 1864 he entered the novitiate of the Vincentians, or priests of the congregation of the mission of St. Vincent de Paul. The novitiate was then located at St. Louis, but shortly after the admission of the subject of this sketch it was removed to Germantown, Penn., where Father Byrne completed his ecclesiastical studies. The confinement of seminary life and the close application to study broke down his health, and he was sent to New Orleans to recuperate. On the 19th of March, 1869, he was ordained by Bishop Odin, in St. Mary's Church, in the Crescent City. Shortly after his ordination Father Byrne was appointed to the responsible position of treasurer of St. John's College, Brooklyn, N. Y. Here he remained for six years, doing parochial duty and filling a professor's chair in the college, besides attending to the finances of the institution. In 1875 he was sent by his superiors to St. Vincent's Church, Germantown, Penn., where he remained for twelve years until called to his present position in January, 1887. During the term of his pastorate in Germantown Father Byrne was distinguished for his great zeal for religion, and an unflinching energy in undertaking and carrying to perfection many works of great importance, not alone to his flock, but to the community at large. His crowning work, which he just had time to finish before being called away, was the erection, at a cost of $60,000, of a parochial building to be devoted exclusively to the amusement and instruction of the young men of Germantown. Libraries, museums, gymnasium, bath rooms, billiard halls, etc., make it one of the most unique institutions of its kind in the United States. This institution was its founder's practical argument in favor of temperance among young men, of which he was always an ardent advocate. He would draw them away from the saloons by offering them attractions that are calculated to amuse, while they elevate instead of degrading the man. Father Byrne has been long enough at the Cape to make it evident that the same success which followed him in the East will crown his labors in behalf of one of the oldest and most popular institutions of learning in Missouri.

John H. Caldwell, a substantial farmer of Byrd Township, was born in Mecklenburg County, N. C., on March 21, 1833. He is the son of Andrew and Margaret McCord (Query) Caldwell. The father was born in Scotland on December 24, 1800, and came to the United States when a child. The mother was born in North Carolina on November 5, 1800. The father moved from North Carolina to Missouri in the fall of 1834, and settled the following year in Cape Girardeau County on land now owned by John H. He resided here until his death in July, 1862. The parents reared to maturity a family of four sons and five daughters, of whom three sons and four daughters are living. One brother is in Texas and one in Arkansas. Two sisters are married and the other two are living with their brother, John H. He grew to manhood on his father's farm, and in the fall of 1856 went to Texas and spent about one year. He was married in Cape Girardeau County on February 14, 1861, to Miss Emily Howard, daughter of James Howard, of Cape Girardeau County. She was reared in her native county. After marriage they located on the farm where they now reside. Mr. Caldwell has 104 acres of land, of which eighty acres are improved, and upon which he has a comfortable house and other buildings. They have a family of four children, viz.: George William, Edward W., Albert N. and Ida. They have two children dead. Mr. and Mrs. Caldwell and the two sisters are members of the Presbyterian Church. Politically Mr. Caldwell is a Democrat.

Jacob H. Campbell, a farmer and stock raiser of Randol Township, was born on the old Campbell farm, upon a part of which he now resides, on July 26, 1860. His father, Robert J. Campbell, was born on the same farm. The latter's father was one of the early settlers of Cape Girardeau County from Georgia. Robert J. was reared at his father's home, and was married in Scott County to Caroline Prince, daughter of William Prince of that county. After his marriage Robert J. settled on the old homestead, where he resided during his lifetime. His death occurred by accident in September, 1881. He reared a family of five children, of whom all are grown and married, except one. Jacob H. is the youngest child. His youth was spent on the home farm, and he received a good common school education. Since his father's death he has managed the farm and takes considerable interest in rearing and handling stock. He built the nice house and barn on the part of the farm where he lived in 1887 and 1886, respectively. On November 17, 1887, he was united in marriage with Sarah E. Marquis, of St. Louis, in which city she was born, reared and educated.

James Carroll was born in New Orleans in September, 1850. He is the son of Richard Carroll, a native of Ireland, who was married there, and with his wife and one child immigrated to America. His wife died soon after the birth of our subject in 1850. The father died in Cape Girardeau three years later. James was brought in early childhood to Cape Girardeau, where he was principally reared and educated. He and his brother, Richard, formed the undertaking and furniture firm of R. & J. Carroll about 1868. This firm existed, with one intermission of three years, until 1874. During the three years James was in the same business at Farmington, Mo. In 1874 he returned to Farmington, and again established the business, which he continued until 1878, when he removed again to Cape Girardeau, and with his brother built the furniture factory at that place, which he managed until 1880. He then engaged in his present undertaking and furniture business. On April 17, 1877, he was united in marriage with Lillah P. Ramsey, a native of Cape Girardeau. Their union was blessed by the birth of one child, who is now dead. His wife died on October 17, 1884. Mr. Carroll is a member of the Catholic Church.

Christopher C. Clippard was born in Cape Girardeau County near where he now resides, February 10, 1831. He is the son of Daniel and Elizabeth (Crites) Clippard. The father was born in Lincoln County, N. C., October 26, 1795. The paternal grandfather was a native of North Carolina, but the family were of German descent. Daniel came to Missouri about 1817 and located in Cape Girardeau County. He had no means, but had learned the blacksmith's trade in his native State, at which he worked, having started a shop on White Water near Burfordville. He was married in 1818 to the daughter of Peter Crites, one of the early settlers of Cape Girardeau County, having emigrated there from North Carolina in 1802. Mrs. Clippard was born in the latter State on September 18, 1796. They were very poor at the time of their marriage, but Mr. Clippard carried on his trade successfully, and when land came in the market entered seventy-nine acres at first. He afterward entered at different times until he had large tracts of land. He owned at the time of his death 850 acres, after having given 160 acres to each of his sons. He died in July, 1865; his widow survived him until January 6, 1875. They reared a family of five sons and four daughters, of whom four sons and two daughters are living. Christopher C. is the seventh child. He was reared at his father's and married in that neighborhood, on December 1, 1853, Miss Elizabeth Wheeler, daughter of John Wheeler, a native of Maryland. Mrs. Clippard was born and reared in Kentucky. Upon marrying they removed to the farm where they now reside, located about two and one-half miles south of Oak Ridge. Mr. Clippard has about 192 acres now, after having given to his children, and upon which is a good residence and other improvements. He and wife have reared five children. They are Mary J. (Mrs. Peter Powell), J. D., Ellen (Mrs. Samuel Welker), C. Price and Walter F. Mr. and Mrs. Clippard and their children, except the two youngest boys, are members of the Missionary Baptist Church.

James A. Clippard was born near Oak Ridge, Cape Girardeau County, on August 16, 1855. He is the son of William and A. M. (Crawford) Clippard, the former a native of Cape Girardeau County, and the latter of Illinois. The paternal grandfather, Daniel Clippard, was born in North Carolina on October 26, 1795. He was married in 1818 to Betsey Crites, who was born in 1796. Soon after their marriage they removed to Missouri, and entered a large body of land in Apple Creek Township, Cape Girardeau County, where they reared their family. Mr. Clippard died there July 8, 1865. William grew to manhood on his father's farm, and after his marriage settled on land near his father, where he reared his family. He built the Oak Ridge flouring mills, and was engaged in the milling business about ten years. His wife died on October 7, 1884. Previous to her death he had removed to California where he now resides. The parents had seven children, five of whom are living. James A. grew to manhood on his father's farm near where he now resides. On February 6, 1886, he was united in marriage to Miss Mollie Landis, a native of Henry County, Tenn. Mrs. Clippard was reared in Cape Girardeau County. Mr. Clippard has a valuable farm three-fourths of a mile west of Oak Ridge, upon which he has good buildings. He and his wife are members of the Baptist Church. Mr. Clippard is master of the A. O. U. W. lodge in Oak Ridge.

George W. Cobble was born in Greene County, Tenn., on April 21, 1852. He is a son of Joseph M. and Polly A. (Brown) Cobble, both natives of Tennessee. They removed from their native State in 1853 and settled on a farm in Cape Girardeau County, where they still reside. George W. grew to manhood at the home of his parents, and received a fair common school education, which was supplemented by one year's attendance at the Fruitland Normal Institute. He was then engaged in teaching school and farming in Cape Girardeau County for three years. In 1878 he purchased the farm where he now resides, and has since spent his time in its cultivation. He has 263 acres of good land, upon which are many valuable improvements. He was united in marriage in October, 1872, with Sarah Welker, who was born in Cape Girardeau County, and was a daughter of Jacob Welker. She died in March, 1878, leaving two children: Cora and Amazon. Mr. Cobble was married on November 30, 1883, to Mary M. Kinder, daughter of A. H. Kinder [see sketch]. Three children have blessed this union: Connie, Mamie and Joseph Harvey. Mr. Cobble is serving his second term as justice of the peace of his township. He is a Democrat in politics, and is a member of Millersville Lodge of the A. O. U. W.

William H. Coerver, druggist at Cape Girardeau, was born in 1848 in Monroe County, Ill. He is the second of ten children born to Jacob and Frederica (Schutt) Coerver, the former a native of Bavaria, and the latter of Hesse Darmstadt, Germany. They immigrated to the United States at the age of eighteen and fifteen, respectively, and located in Monroe County, Ill., where they afterward resided. The father was a carpenter by trade, but engaged in farming after coming to the United States. He enlisted in the Mexican army, but was not called into active service. He died in 1866 on his farm, where his widow is still living. William H. grew to manhood in his native county, and began his education in the public schools. At the age of eighteen years he entered the seminary of St. Francis, in Wisconsin, where he remained for five years, after which he traveled extensively over the United States and Canada. He then engaged as telegraph operator for a short time. In 1873 he removed to Cape Girardeau, and was employed as a clerk in a drug store until the next year, when he embarked in the drug business on his own account. He built and removed to his present business house in 1878. In 1874 he was united in marriage with Mrs. Mary E. (Justi) Brenneke, a native of Cape Girardeau County. They have had five children, viz.: William, deceased; Elizabeth, deceased; Mamie, deceased; Henry J. and Helen J. Mr. and Mrs. Coerver are members of the Catholic Church. Mr. Coerver is a member of the A. O. U. W. Politically he has been a life-long Democrat.

Nathan C. Collins, a substantial farmer and stock raiser of Cape Girardeau County, is a native of Lincoln County, Tenn., born on October 14, 1828. He is a son of Nathan and Mary (Wells) Collins, both natives of North Carolina, born in 1784 and 1787, respectively. Mr. Collins served in one of the Indian wars in his native State. After their marriage he and wife removed from the Old North State to Tennessee, and from thence in 1833 to Illinois. The next year (1834) they removed to Missouri, and located in Cape Girardeau County in May of that year. Mr. Collins bought land and improved a farm in the neighborhood of Nathan C. Collins' present home. He resided there until his death in 1868. His wife died one year later. They were the parents of twelve children who grew to mature years, and, with the exception of one, became the heads of families. Nathan C. is the only surviving member of that large family. He grew to manhood on his father's farm in Cape Girardeau County, and in March, 1851, was united in marriage with Missouri Caroline Randol, a daughter of James Randol. She was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. Previous to his marriage Mr. Collins had purchased and located upon his present farm, to which he took his bride. He has 100 acres of land, upon which is a comfortable house, barn and other buildings. To him and wife have been born five children, Clara Isabelle (Mrs. Alex. Giboney), Narissa Ann (a young lady) and Ezra P. (a young man) and two died in childhood: Milinda and Isadora. Mr. Collins is a member of the Agricultural Wheel.

William B. Colyer, a successful farmer and stock raiser of Cape Girardeau County, was born in that county on September 23, 1846. He is the son of Hugh W. Colyer, a native of North Carolina, who came to Missouri when a small boy with his father, William Colyer, also a native of North Carolina, who settled in Cape Girardeau County about 1820. Hugh W., the father, grew to manhood in Cape Girardeau County, and was married there to Keziah P. Reid, who was also reared in that county, but was a native of North Carolina. They settled on a farm in Apple Creek Township, which they improved, and upon which they resided until the death of the husband on March 19, 1864. They reared five children, all of whom are married, and, with the exception of one, the youngest son, who resides in Perry County, Mo., residing in Cape Girardeau County. William B. is the eldest of the children. He spent his youth on the farm, and during the war served in the militia, and was called out on numerous occasions, remaining out six months at one time. He was in the engagement at Cape Girardeau. On December 16, 1866, he was united in marriage with Sarah Bonney, a native of Cape Girardeau County. After his marriage he rented land for one year, and then bought the farm where he now resides. His wife died there on March 1, 1871. On March 19, 1872, he was married again, choosing for his second wife Clara E. Gilliland, a daughter of Hiram Gilliland, deceased. Mrs. Colyer was born and always lived in the neighborhood where she now resides. Their union has been blessed by five children, viz.: Curtis L., Linnie A., Zona B., Athle W. and Ray W. Mr. and Mrs. Colyer are members of the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Colyer is a member of the Grange organization, and of the Farmers' and Mechanics' Mutual Benefit Association of St. Louis, also of the Farmers' Mutual Benefit Association, being president of his lodge at present. He is also president of the school board, of which he has been a member eight years.

Maurice Cramer, a promising young attorney of Cape Girardeau, was born at that place in 1837. He is the son of George H. Cramer, one of the highly esteemed citizens of Cape Girardeau, and one of the popular pioneer Germans of the county. Maurice received his early education in the common schools of his native city. He afterward attended the law department of Ann Arbor University, and Columbia College, New York City, graduating from the latter with the class of 1881. In September of that year he was admitted to the bar of his native county, where he has since practiced his profession.

Sidney Daugherty, a farmer and stock raiser, residing six miles northeast of Jackson, was born in Lincoln County, N. C., on May 15, 1835. He is a son of Barney Daugherty, a native of Ireland, who was reared in his native country and educated for the priesthood. He came to the United States while a young man and located in North Carolina, where he married Mollie Powers, a native of that State. They removed from the Old North State to Missouri about 1843, and located in Cape Girardeau County, where they reared their family. Mr. Daugherty was a man of fine education, and engaged in school-teaching in North Carolina, and afterward in Cape Girardeau County till he was quite an old man, teaching only private schools. He died on September 17, 1856. The parents reared a family of four sons and four daughters, of whom three brothers and two sisters are now living. Sidney grew to manhood in Cape Girardeau County, where, on December 13, 1860, he married Margaret Drum, a native of that county, and the daughter of John Drum, formerly of North Carolina. After marriage they settled on a farm in Shawnee Township, where they resided about six years. In 1862 Mr. Daugherty enlisted in Company B, Twenty-Ninth Missouri Infantry, and served till discharged for disability in March, 1864. He participated in the siege of Vicksburg, and the engagement at Arkansas Post, besides a number of skirmishes. Politically he is a Republican, and is a member of the G. A. R. After the war they bought a farm in Apple Creek Township, where they resided about fourteen years, when they sold it and removed to their present place. They have about 280 acres of good land, of which some 200 are improved, and upon which they have a comfortable house, barn and other buildings. They have seven children, viz.: Sheba (Mrs. C. Ruppel), John, Mollie, Horace, Luella, Lewis and Bede. Mr. and Mrs. Daugherty are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Eldridge G. Davidson, a farmer residing two miles north from Jackson, was born in Henry County, Tenn., on September 12, 1825. He is the son of Robert and Lucy (Brooks) Davidson, the former a native of North Carolina, and the latter of Cape Girardeau County. After his marriage Mr. Davidson located in his native county, where he resided until about 1832, when he settled in Cape Girardeau County on a farm three miles north from Cape Girardeau, on which place he resided until his death about 1847. His wife died in the spring of 1846. Eldridge G. was the eldest of four children. On September 29, 1843, he was united in marriage with Francis D. Penn, daughter of Joseph Penn, of Tennessee. She was born in Lincoln County, Tenn. After their marriage Mr. Davidson cultivated the home farm until the spring of 1866. He then conducted a woodyard and warehouse on the river above Cape Girardeau. In 1881 he came to the farm where he resides at present, and remained a year and a half, then returned to the old place. In February, 1897, he came back to his present farm, consisting of 154 acres, of which 120 acres are in cultivation. They have had five children, as follows: Lucy A. (Mrs. William Taylor), Mary A. (widow of H. C. Ansel), William G., Sarah J. (Mrs. Robert Taylor, deceased), and Ellen Ann (deceased).

Chesley Booker Davis, merchant at Bee Postoffice, Byrd Township, was born in Buckingham County, Va., on July 22, 1830. He is the son of Watson S. and Rebecca A. (Ford) Davis, both natives of Virginia. The father was a blacksmith by trade, and also the paternal grandfather. The father located on a farm in Cape Girardeau County in 1854, where he resided until the death of his wife about 1860. He afterward married again, and removed to a farm near Hubble Creek Church, where he resided until his death about 1880. He was the father of fourteen children, twelve by the first wife—eight sons and four daughters—of whom all grew to maturity, and all except one are yet living. C. Booker removed with his father to West Virginia, and located in Cabell County in 1838. In June, 1849 he was united in marriage with Jeannette N. Hatfield, daughter of George Hatfield, of Cabell County, W. Va. After their marriage he engaged in blacksmithing until 1854, when they removed to Cape Girardeau County, Mo. He bought a farm, and later built a blacksmith shop on Oak Ridge about eight miles from Jackson, where he remained until 1861. During the war he served in the Home Guards, but was not called out after the engagement at the Cape. After the war he engaged in farming and blacksmithing on Byrd's Creek until 1877, when he bought his present farm. He has since resided here, but his sons managed the farm until 1883, while he worked at his trade. He engaged in the mercantile business in 1883, and was appointed postmaster of Bee Postoffice in May, 1884, which position he still holds. He was sergeant in the Home Guards during the war. He and wife have reared a family of five sons and two daughters, viz.: Francis M., John C., Rebecca Ann, Zettia Alice, George W., Ulysses G., Chesley B., Greer R. George W. died about 1865. Mrs. Davis is a member of the Baptist Church.

B. F. Davis, a prominent young attorney of Cape Girardeau, was born in Delaware in 1855. He is the son of Thomas J. and Mary J. (Potter) Davis, who reside at Milford, Del. B. F. Davis was educated at Amherst College (Massachusetts), graduating in 1878 in the classic course, after which he studied law at Dover, Del., where he was admitted to the supreme court in 1882. In that year he came to Cape Girardeau, where he has since practiced his profession. He was in partnership with Judge D. L. Hawkins until January, 1886. He is attorney for the Cape Girardeau Building and Loan Association. In November, 1887, he was united in marriage with Olivia Waples, a native of Dover, Del. Mr. Davis is a member of the I. O. O. F. He and wife are members of the Presbyterian Church.

Hon. L. H. Davis was born at Jackson, Mo., on December 14, 1836. He is the son of Greer W. Davis, a native of Mercer County, Ky., born January 12, 1799. He came to Missouri in 1818 and located in Jackson, where he practiced law until his death, on February 25, 1878. The son, Hon. L. H., was reared in Jackson, and entered Yale College in the fall of 1857, graduating in the collegiate department in 1860. Later, in 1863, he graduated from the Louisville Law School. He was elected State attorney for the Tenth Judicial Circuit of Missouri in 1868, serving four years. He was a Greeley-Brown elector in 1872, and a member of the constitutional convention in 1875. In 1876 he was elected to the General Assembly, and in 1878 elected to the Forty-sixth Congress, and re-elected to the Forty-seventh and Forty-eighth.

N. Monroe Davis, an enterprising farmer and influential citizen of Cape Girardeau County, residing about three-fourths of a mile from Fruitland, was born in that county on March 8, 1842. He is the son of George W. and Martha (McLain) Davis, both natives of North Carolina. The father came to Missouri while a young man, but soon after returned to North Carolina. He made two subsequent visits to the former State, the last time purchasing land in Cape Girardeau County. He then returned to his native State, and married about 1841, after which he removed with his bride to Missouri, locating on his farm, which he improved and upon which he resided until his death, about 1877. His wife still survives him. N. Monroe spent his youth on his father's farm, and received a fair education in the common schools. In September, 1862, he enlisted in the Fourth Missouri State Militia, serving for six months. He afterward served for a short time in the Enrolled Missouri Militia, and in September, 1864, enlisted as a private in the Fiftieth Missouri Infantry. He was afterward promoted to a sergeant and served with the regiment until the close of the war, being discharged in May, 1865. He participated in the fight at Cape Girardeau. Returning home after the war he engaged in agricultural pursuits on his father's farm. In 1863 he was united in marriage with Julia Wilson, of Cape Girardeau County, and after a few months of wedded life, the wife died, on January 1, 1864. On August 29, 1866, Mr. Davis was again married, choosing for his second wife, Elizabeth M. Campbell, daughter of John Campbell, deceased. She was born in Cape Girardeau County. Nine children blessed this union: Alice R., Georgie Ella, Lulu A., Pinkney B., Floy E., Charles, Jesse, Nora M. and Ben. Soon after Mr. Davis' second marriage he bought his present farm. He is engaged, in connection with his other farm work, in breeding and handling thoroughbred Jersey cattle, and has now a herd of thirteen head. Mr. Davis takes great interest in educational matters, and is at present a member of the school board. He and wife are members of the Presbyterian Church. He is a member of the grange, also of the Farmers' Mutual Benefit Association.

Robert W. Davis, a prosperous farmer of Cape Girardeau County, was born in Cabell County, Va., on February 7, 1840. He is the son of Watson S. and Rebecca A. (Ford) Davis, both natives of Virginia. R. W. Davis is a brother of C. B. Davis, whose sketch appears in this work. The parents removed to Missouri in 1854, and located in Cape Girardeau County on the land where Robert W. now resides. The latter grew to manhood on this farm. During the war he served in the militia, and was called out at different times, on some occasions remaining out three months at a time. On November 29, 1860, he was united in marriage with Miss Nancy A. Sheppard, daughter of I. N. Sheppard of Cape Girardeau County. She was born on July 30, 1843, in that county. After marriage Mr. Davis bought his father's farm, where he has since resided, having made some valuable improvements on the place. He and wife have five children in life and five dead, viz.: Mary R., Emma L., Martha B., Charles N., Tina E., Robert W. (who died in the summer of 1886, aged sixteen years), Francis L. (died in August, 1864, in infancy), Eva M. (died on January 26, 1870, in early childhood), Mildred E. (died in 1876 when about eleven years of age), and Ella V. (who died on September 4, 1880, in her ninth year).

Jacob Deck, a farmer and stock raiser of Kinder Township, Cape Girardeau Co., Mo., was born near Marble Hill, Bollinger County, December 27, 1833, and is a son of Thomas W. and Sarah (Barks) Deck, natives of North Carolina and Bollinger County, Mo., respectively. Thomas W. Deck came to Missouri with his parents when a child (about 1809). His father, John Deck, settled in what is now Bollinger County, on a Spanish grant. All of Southeast Missouri was a wilderness at that time. John Deck was born in Europe, and came to the United States with Gen. LaFayette, with whom he served in the Revolutionary War, in which he received a wound, for which he afterward received a pension. Thomas W. Deck grew to manhood on his father's farm, and after his marriage located in Bollinger County, removing from there to Cape Girardeau County, where he resided until his death in 1844. He and wife reared nine children to maturity, of whom four sons and one daughter are now living. Three reside in California; the others in Cape Girardeau County. Jacob Deck grew to manhood on his father's farm. In 1853 he went to New Orleans, and from thence to California, and remained two years in Nevada County of that State, engaged in mining. Returning home in 1854, he remained until the following spring, when he went back to California, making the trip from St. Joseph, Mo., with a team of cattle in about four months. He spent six years on the Pacific Slope, but was in Sonoma County, Cal., the most of the time, engaged in ranching and dairy business. Returning home in the fall of 1860 he purchased a farm, and has since been successfully engaged in farming. He located on his present farm soon after his return. In 1861 he enlisted in the Confederate army, joining the Eighth Missouri Cavalry, under Col. Jeffrey, with which he served until the surrender of the regiment at Shreveport, at the close of the war. In May, 1867, he was united in marriage with Eliza Davis Cook, daughter of Judge John Cook, of Cape Girardeau County. Mrs. Deck was born and reared in that county. They have had six children: Augustus N., Sallie M., Blanche H., Cadman T. and Guy, living, and Charles A., deceased. Mr. Deck is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and is also a member of the A. O. U. W.

P. H. Dempsey, wholesale and retail grocer, commission merchant and grain dealer, of Cape Girardeau, Mo., was born in County Galway, Ireland, in 1834. His parents came to America in 1844, and settled on a farm a few miles from the Cape, and here, in the quiet pursuit of farming, P. H. Dempsey spent many years of his life. But his mind was bent on a mercantile life, and when opportunity offered, he accepted a clerkship in a boot store, which occupation was more congenial to his taste. In 1865 he embarked in the general grocery business on the levee, where he has successfully built up a steady trade. Being of a quiet, contented disposition, he has spent all his life in his adopted city, and remembers the gradual changes that slowly but surely mark its growth, and to which he has contributed his share by the erection of commodious store houses and a fine residence. He served a term in the city council, and is a director in the Cape Girardeau Building and Loan Association. In December, 1885, he married Ella O'Regan, of St. Louis County. Seven children have been born to them, of whom four are living. Mr. Dempsey and family are members of the Catholic Church.

Joseph Devenport, an influential farmer of Cape Girardeau County, was born in that county on November 8, 1837. He is the son of Z. A. Devenport, a native of North Carolina, born in 1807, who came to Missouri with his father, John Devenport, also a native of North Carolina, in 1816. Z. A. Devenport grew to manhood in Cape Girardeau County, and was married there to Eliza Whittenberg, daughter of Henry Whittenberg, who settled in Cape Girardeau County in 1808. After his marriage Mr. Devenport located on Government land, which he improved and upon which he resided until his death on December 23, 1852. The parents reared eleven children, of whom four sons and one daughter are living. Joseph grew to manhood on his father's farm, and on December 22, 1857, was united in marriage with Matilda Etheridge, a native of Cape Girardeau County. Her parents had removed to Missouri from Tennessee. After his marriage Mr. Devenport resided on the old homestead until 1862. In September, 1862, he enlisted in the Confederate Army, joining Col. William Jeffrey's regiment of Eighth Missouri Cavalry, with which he served until the close of the war, during which time he did not visit home. He was in all of the principal battles of his regiment, except two, among which were Little Rock, Benton, Ark., Camden, Jenkin's Ferry, and all of the battles of Price's raid with Marmaduke's brigade. He received two slight wounds. At the close of the war he returned home (June, 1865). His wife died on February 13, 1875. There is one daughter living by this marriage, Nora (wife of Prof. T. M. Wilson, of Jackson, Cape Girardeau County). On October 22, 1879, Mr. Devenport was again married, choosing for his second wife, Mrs. Mary J. Cobb, a native of Illinois. One daughter has blessed this union, Lydia D., a miss of five years. Mr. Devenport removed to his present farm in 1879. He is a charter member of the A. O. U. W. at Oak Ridge, and has filled most of the offices in the lodge.

John M. Devore, a farmer of Liberty Township, Cape Girardeau County, was born in that county on April 25, 1855, and is a son of William Devore, a native of Pennsylvania, who came to Cape Girardeau County with his parents when a lad of eleven years (in 1833). He grew to manhood here, and married Margaret Strong, also a native of Cape Girardeau County. The latter died in October, 1879. John M. Devore grew to maturity on his father's farm, and was married on March 6, 1882, to Alice Cole, a daughter of Levi J. Cole, of Cape Girardeau County. After his marriage Mr. Devore rented land, which he cultivated for two years. In 1873 he purchased his present farm of 332 acres, of which 180 acres are now under cultivation. Mr. Devore has a steam thrasher, with which he does a large business during the threshing season. During the winter he uses his engine for sawing lumber. He also owns a blacksmith shop, in which he usually keeps a smith, who does the work for the neighborhood. Mr. and Mrs. Devore have a family of four children: Ira L., William, Ella C. and Daisy. Mrs. Devore is a member of the Baptist Church. He is a member of the Agricultural Wheel.

Marion Drum, a prominent farmer of Cape Girardeau County, residing four miles northwest of Oak Ridge, was born on the farm where he now resides on January 28, 1838. His father, David Drum, was born in North Carolina, on February 18, 1800, and came to Missouri with his parents in 1818. The paternal grandfather, Joseph Drum, was one of the earliest settlers of Cape Girardeau County. The father entered the land and built the house where the subject of this sketch now resides. About 1822 he was united in marriage with Sarah Crites, also a native of North Carolina. After marriage they improved the land that Mr. Drum had entered, and reared their family there. The father was a blacksmith by trade and conducted a shop on his farm for a number of years. The mother died in February, 1871, and the father in 1884. They had a family of four children, of whom Marion is the only survivor. He grew to manhood on his father's farm, and in the fall of 1859 was united in marriage with Sarah A. Hinkle, daughter of Daniel Hinkle [see sketch]. After marriage they located on their present farm. In the latter part of 1862 Mr. Drum enlisted in the Confederate Cavalry under Gen. Marmaduke, and served twelve months. He participated in the fight at Little Rock and several picket skirmishes. In 1863 he returned to his farm, which now consists of 205 acres, of which 130 are in cultivation, and are well improved. He and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. They have six children, viz.: Cerilda C., Anna A., Andrew F., John P., Thomas W. and Iva I. Mr. Drum is a member of the A. O. U. W.

John Eggimann, a farmer residing near Dutchtown, Cape Girardeau Co., Mo., is a native of that county, born on September 24, 1838. He is a son of John and Mary (Scholl) Eggimann, both of whom were natives of Switzerland. They were married in their native country, and immigrated to the United States in 1837. They located on a farm near Dutchtown, where they resided until their deaths. Mr. Eggimann died in May, 1868. His wife died about four years later. John was reared at the home of his birth, and assisted with the farm work, until the breaking out of the Civil War. In September, 1861, he enlisted in the Federal army, and was assigned to the First Missouri Engineer Corps, with which he served over three years, engaged in engineering and bridge building, beside some skirmishing with bushwhackers. After the war he returned to Cape Girardeau County, and on March 5, 1868, was married to Emily F. Michele, a native of Saxony, Germany, who was chiefly reared in Cape Girardeau County. Mr. Eggimann purchased his present farm in November, 1867, which at that time was unimproved. It consists of 240 acres, with 110 acres now under cultivation. Mr. and Mrs. Eggimann are members of the Evangelical Church. Mr. Eggimann's political sentiments accord with those of the Republican party.

E. H. Engelman, clerk of the common pleas court of Cape Girardeau, was born in Cape Girardeau County, March 21, 1860. He is the only son of eight children born to the union of E. D. Engelman and Adeline B. M. Weiss. The father, who is now city recorder of Cape Girardeau, was born in Hanover, Germany, August 1, 1830, and was brought to America in 1845 by his parents, August D. and Frederica Engelman; the former was a tailor by trade, and died on his farm in that part of Cape Girardeau County now included in Bollinger County, in 1846. E. D. Engelman received a complete classical education in his native country. After the death of his father he engaged in tailoring, agricultural pursuits and school teaching for a few years. He then conducted a tailoring establishment at Jackson for several years, but which he abandoned on account of ill health, and engaged in merchant tailoring at different points until 1862. In the spring of 1863 he was elected clerk of the common pleas court of Cape Girardeau, and in the same year elected city clerk, filling the latter position nine years, and the former until January 1, 1879. He was also mayor of the city several terms. E. H. Engelman received his education in the schools of Cape Girardeau, and it may be said was reared in the office he now occupies, and to which he was elected in 1882 and re-elected in 1886. He was deputy collector several years. He is secretary of the Southeastern District Agricultural Society. In 1881 he was united in marriage with Pauline Tirmentstein, a native of Cape Girardeau. Their union was blessed by two sons.

Thomas W. English, a prominent farmer of Byrd Township, was born on the farm where he now resides, on July 2, 1814. He is the son of Thomas and Elizabeth (Howard) English, the former a native of Georgia, and the latter of Maryland. The father came to Missouri while a young man with his father, who was among the first settlers of Cape Girardeau County. The father located on the land now owned by Thomas W. He died here in April, 1814, previous to the birth of his son. The mother married again and remained on the farm, where Thomas W. grew to maturity. In February, 1841, he was united in marriage with Miss Mary Morrison, daughter of Robert Morrison, also one of the early settlers of Cape Girardeau County. She died about 1871, having reared a family of three children, all of whom are still living. Mr. English married again in 1872 Susan Summers, a native of Cape Girardeau County. She is the daughter of Alexander Summers. Mr. English resides on a part of the old home farm. He has here 100 acres, of which sixty acres are improved. He has 470 acres of land in other tracts, some of which is improved. He and wife are members of the Baptist Church.

Henry Fenimore, a substantial farmer of Byrd Township, was born in Cape Girardeau County in June, 1825. His father, John Fenimore, was a native of Ohio, who came to Missouri about 1820, while a young man. He settled in Cape Girardeau County, and wedded Mary Howard, a native of that county. He was an architect and builder, and carried on an extensive business in this and adjoining States. He died of yellow fever in New Orleans in 1831, leaving a family of three sons and one daughter. Henry was reared in his native county, and received a fair education, almost wholly by self-culture after reaching maturity. He taught for about five years in Cape Girardeau County. On May 1, 1856, he was united in marriage with Sarah J. Sheppard, also a native of Cape Girardeau County, and a daughter of John Sheppard, one of the early pioneers of that county. After marriage Mr. Fenimore removed to New Madrid County, where he engaged in farming about seven years, when he returned to his native county. His wife died in 1864, having borne five children, viz.: J. W., Charles R., Mary, Anna (Mrs. Arthur Statham) and Sarah N. In 1866 Mr. Fenimore wedded Cynthia Morgan, a native of Cape Girardeau County. Six children have blessed this union. They are Omar, George, Ira, Robert, Matt and Corrine. Mr. Fenimore now resides three miles northeast from Jackson, where he owns a valuable farm. He and wife are members of the Baptist Church.

Albert C. Ford was born in Putnam County, W. Va., on March 8, 1844. He is the son of Chesley and Rebecca (Canterbery) Ford. The father was born near Richmond, Va. He removed his family to Missouri in 1850, and located in Apple Creek Township, Cape Girardeau County, where he died about two years afterward. His wife is still living. Albert C. was reared on his mother's farm. In the fall of 1863 he enlisted in the Federal army, joining the Second Missouri Artillery. He was in the fight at Cape Girardeau, and was at Nashville during Hood's campaign against Thomas. Serving till the close of the war he returned home and bought the old homestead. On December 10, 1868, he was united in marriage with Miss Eunice Sheppard, daughter of Newton Sheppard, one of the old pioneers of Cape Girardeau County. Mr. Ford bought his present farm about 1874. It consists of 288 acres of valuable land, situated two miles southwest of Oak Ridge. Mr. and Mrs. Ford have nine children, viz.: Newton D., Vara Belle, Mora F., Ada, Walter W., Robert U., Lou, Mary and Tacie. Mr. Ford is a member of the A. O. U. W. at Oak Ridge.

John Adam Frank, dealer in fine liquors, cigars, etc., is a native of Bavaria, Germany, and was born in 1848. His parents died in Germany, and he immigrated to America in the spring of 1870, locating at Cape Girardeau. He attended bar for several liquor dealers until 1880, when he began business in his present location. He now handles some of the finest brands of whisky, etc. He and a brother, who resides in Cape Girardeau, were the only members of the family to immigrate to America.

John W. Fulenwider was born in Cape Girardeau County, on June 10, 1835. He is the son of Caleb R. and Margaret (Atwell) Fulenwider; the former born in Lincoln County, N. C., and the latter in Cape Girardeau County, near Jackson. The father was born in 1798, and came to Missouri in 1820. He was a school teacher, and bought land where St. Louis now stands, but after one night he was displeased with his bargain and sold it back to the Frenchman of whom he bought it. He then came to Cape Girardeau County, where he occupied a public position for over thirty years. He served as clerk of the county court, and as county judge. He died in Jackson in 1853. The mother died about 1882. The maternal grandparents came from Maryland to Cape Girardeau County, where they both died. John W. is one of a family of seven children who grew to maturity, of whom five sons and one daughter are still living. Two of the brothers and the sister reside in Cape Girardeau County. John W. was reared in his native county. He was married in St. Louis, on November 28, 1867, to Miss Anna Rowland, who was born in St. Louis, but reared in Memphis. She is the daughter of Capt. James Rowland of St. Louis. After marriage they located in Jackson, where Mr. Fulenwider has been engaged in farming and dealing in stock. During the war he served eighteen months in the Confederate army, and was in the engagement at Chalk Bluff, Ark. Politically he is a Democrat, and is in favor of the temperance movement of the day. Mr. and Mrs. Fulenwider have a family of seven children, viz.: James R., Maggie J., John A., Katie G., William, Harry and Mary. Mrs. Fulenwider is a member of the Presbyterian Church. Kitchen's regiment in Price's brigade. He participated in the following engagements: Ironton, California, Boonville, Glasgow and Kansas City. After the war he returned home, and on March 21, 1867, he was united in marriage with Sarah Adeline Yount, daughter of John S. Yount, of Bollinger County, in which county Mrs. Hartle was born and reared. After his marriage Mr. Hartle located on his present farm, upon which he has a nice residence and suitable farm buildings. He owns 1,300 acres of land in Cape Girardeau and Bollinger Counties, with about 600 acres under cultivation. Mr. and Mrs. Hartle have seven children, as follows: Carrie A. (Mrs. Dr. Jeff. Mayfield, of Millersville), Revie R., Katie M., Jessie M., Corie A., John F. and Myrtle E.

Christian C. Haupt was born in the Kingdom of Hanover, Germany, on April 22, 1843. He is the son of Charles and Minnie Haupt, both natives of Hanover, Germany. They immigrated to the United States about 1854, and settled in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., where they bought land and improved a farm. The father was a stone-mason by trade. He died on his farm in October, 1876. Christian C. Haupt grew to manhood on his father's farm, and in September, 1861, at the age of eighteen years, enlisted in the Federal army, joining the First Missouri Engineers, with which he served until he received his discharge in June, 1865. He was taken prisoner in South Carolina and held for two months. After the war he returned home and engaged in farming. In June, 1866, he was united in marriage with Mary E. Maintz, a native of Cape Girardeau County. Before his marriage Mr. Haupt located on the farm where he now resides, in Apple Creek Township. His wife died in September, 1878, leaving three children: John H., Bertie and Minnie C. Mr. Haupt married again in May, 1880, choosing for his second wife Polly A. Seabaugh, a native of Bollinger County, Mo. Four children have been born to this union, viz.: Martha A., George C., Adaline L. and Mary E. Politically Mr. Haupt is a Democrat. He has held a commission as notary public for ten years. He is a member of the G. A. R.

Henry Heise, a prosperous farmer of Randol Township, Cape Girardeau County, was born in the Province of Hanover, Germany, June 26, 1834. He is a son of John Henry and Loretta Heise, both natives of the Province of Hanover. They immigrated to the United States in December, 1849, making the trip to Cape Girardeau County via New Orleans in eight weeks. Upon his arrival Mr. Heise purchased land in the neighborhood of Henry Heise's present home, upon which he resided until his death. His widow is still living at the advanced age of ninety-one years. Henry Heise was but fifteen years of age when his parents came to America, and he had received a fair education in his native country. He remained with his parents until his marriage in 1857 with Anna Heeb. After his marriage Mr. Heise purchased and located upon his present farm, of which fifty acres had been cleared and partially improved for thirty years. The farm consists of 300 acres of land, with about 150 acres under cultivation, upon which is a good substantial residence, barn and other buildings. Mr. Heise's wife died in 1859, leaving one son, August F. On May 10, 1860, he was married again, choosing for his second wife Mary Schroder, a native of Brunswick, Germany, who came to the United States when six years of age. Seven children have been born to this union: Henry F., William, Anna, Ernest, Gustav, Robert and Albert. Mr. and Mrs. Heise are members of the Lutheran Church.

Jehoidia H. Held, miller and manufacturer of lumber at Dutchtown, Mo., was born in Ballard County, Ky., September 8, 1852, and is a son of Peter Held, a native of Switzerland, who immigrated to the United States when about twenty years of age. He was a miller, which trade he learned in his native land. His first location in America was in Ballard County, Ky., where he married Lurana Sams, a native of that county. About 1856 he removed his family to Missouri, and located on Whitewater River, near where Whitewater Station is now situated. He purchased a mill, which he managed about three years, when he sold it, after which he was engaged in farming for four years. In 1863 he bought the old mill at Dutchtown. He repaired the old mill, and ran it until 1872, when he tore it down and built the present mill, which he managed until his death, May 19, 1877. His wife died previously, August 5, 1875. They reared to maturity a family of three daughters and two sons, all of whom are now living in Cape Girardeau County. Jehoidia H. is the eldest child. His youth was spent at his father's home, and when not at school he assisted at the mill, and clerked in a store. For four and one-half years he ran the back from Allenville via Dutchtown to Cape Girardeau, making a trip each day. After the death of his father he took charge of the mill. He was also engaged in the mercantile business from 1878 to the spring of 1880. In 1881 he sold the mill, and was engaged in farming near Allenville for two years, after which he removed to Cape Girardeau, and was engaged in the foundry and machine business for two years. In 1884 he purchased his former mill, and has since devoted his time to custom grinding and managing the saw mill, which he operates about nine months each year. On February 22, 1873, he married Miss Loretta Williams, a daughter of A. J. Williams, deceased. She died February 14, 1874, leaving one son, Charles. Mr. Held married Alverda R. Jackson, daughter of David Jackson, on June 11, 1875. She is a native of Ohio. Two boys have been born to this union, one of whom died in infancy. Mrs. Held is a member of the Methodist Church. He is a member of the A. O. U. W. Politically Mr. Held is a Democrat, but votes independently for town and county officers. He held the office of justice of the peace of Hubble Township for six years.

Dr. Benjamin R. Hempstead was born in Randol Township, Cape Girardeau County, August 26, 1854, and is a son of Dr. John B. Hempstead, a native of New London, Conn. The latter came to Missouri when eighteen years of age with his father, Dr. John E. Hempstead, an Englishman by birth, who grew to maturity and studied his profession in his native country. After removing to Missouri in 1835 Dr. John B. studied medicine under the direction of his father. He married Margaret D. Thompson, a native of Cape Girardeau County, and a daughter of James Thompson. Dr. John B. practiced his profession in Cape Girardeau County, in the same vicinity that his father had practiced, until his death in 1864. His wife lived until 1877. Dr. Benjamin R. was reared at the home of his parents, and attended the Southeast Missouri Normal at Cape Girardeau, and had nearly completed the course when he had to leave school on account of failing health. He studied medicine under the direction of Dr. J. H. Rider, one of the leading physicians of Cape Girardeau. He entered the Missouri Medical College in 1878, graduating from that institution in the spring of 1880. After completing the course he returned to Egypt Mills, and began the practice of his profession, which he has continued with reasonable success, and now controls a good practice. In connection with his practice he is engaged in the mercantile business, under the firm name of Taylor & Hempstead. They carry a stock of general merchandise, including drugs, hardware and farm implements. The Doctor is a member of the Masonic lodge at Cape Girardeau. Soon after engaging in the mercantile business he was appointed postmaster, which position he still holds.

Judge John R. Henderson, one of the most prominent farmers of Cape Girardeau County, was born in the "Cradle of Freedom," Mecklenburg Co., N.C., on December 20, 1818. He is the son of Cyrus and Jane (Harris) Henderson, both of whom were born and reared in North Carolina. They were married in the "Old North State," and removed from there to Missouri in the fall of 1819, locating in the north part of Cape Girardeau County. There they obtained a farm by pre-emption, to which they afterward added by entering land when it came upon the market. Mr. Henderson led a very active life, and in connection with farming engaged in merchandising and trading until his death, which occurred the latter part of 1844. He and wife reared six daughters and one son, of whom the son and two daughters are living. One daughter resides in Chicago, the other near Sulphur Springs. John R. spent his youth on his father's farm, and received a good common school and academic education. He entered the freshman class at Marion College, Missouri, but gave up the course soon after on account of the death of his mother. He then returned home and took charge of the store, where he remained until February 20, 1839, when he was united in marriage with Mary F. Steel, daughter of Robert and Mary Steel, formerly from North Carolina. Mrs. Henderson, however, was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. After their marriage the Judge engaged in farming, removing to his present farm in 1852. Politically he is one of the foremost Democrats of the county, and has filled several public offices. He was first elected county judge about 1850, and re-elected consecutively for about sixteen years. At the close of the war he was elected justice of Shawnee Township, in which office he served two years, when he was again elected county judge and served a term of four years. On May 12, 1852, his wife died, having borne him three sons and one daughter, all of whom are living, viz.: Dr. Robert T. [see sketch], Mary Jane (Mrs. Benjamin Ruff, of Cape Girardeau County), William D. (residing on a farm in that county) and John R. (a young man at home). Judge Henderson was again married on January 13, 1853, to Mrs. Amelia Shackelford, daughter of Col. Samuel R. McKnight, who was a colonel under Gen. Jackson. Mrs. Henderson was born in Cape Girardeau County. Four children have blessed this union: Emma G. (Mrs. Philip Camp, of Mumfords, Ala.); Charles W. (surveyor of Cape Girardeau County; see sketch), Dr. George S. (a dentist located at Marion, Ill.), and Mosa S. (a young man at home). Mr. and Mrs. Henderson are members of the Presbyterian Church. Judge Henderson is one of the most highly respected citizens of Cape Girardeau County. He holds honest, liberal views, and has a good library with which he is well acquainted. Although about seventy years of age he is strong and active in both body and mind.

Dr. Robert T. Henderson was born in Cape Girardeau County on March 17, 1840. He is the son of John R. and Mary F. (Steel) Henderson. [See sketch.] The Doctor received a liberal education at the common schools, and the academies of Pleasant Hill and Jackson. He commenced the study of medicine in 1858, under the direction of Dr. S. A. Bateau, one of the leading physicians of Cape Girardeau County. He entered the Cincinnati College of Medicine and Surgery in the winter of 1860, graduating from that institution in March, 1862. The following summer he located at Perryville, Mo., and began the practice of his profession, but owing to poor health he discontinued the practice the next fall, and, at the solicitation of an uncle, bought and fitted up a train of mule teams and engaged in freighting across the plains to Denver and the Rocky Mountains for about one year, when he resumed his practice at Perryville, with his health much improved. He was commissioned surgeon of the Sixty-fourth Regiment of Missouri Militia by Gov. Willard P. Hall in 1864, and re-commissioned in 1865 by Gov. Thomas C. Fletcher. This regiment was in active service during a part of the year 1864 and the spring of 1865. In September, 1865, the Doctor removed to Shawneetown, buying out his old preceptor, Dr. Bateau, who was located three-fourths of a mile east of Shawneetown. Since then he has built up a large and successful practice. The Doctor was married at Cincinnati on November 10, 1864, to Anna, daughter of Cornelius Moore (deceased), former editor of the Masonic Review, which paper he edited for twenty-eight years. Mrs. Henderson was born at Zanesville, Ohio, but was reared and educated at Cincinnati. They have had two children, both of whom are dead; one died in infancy, the other, Clarence, died at the age of six years, on December 18, 1883. Dr. Henderson is a member of the American Medical Association, and of the Southeast Missouri Medical Association, of which he was the former president. He is also a member of the Apple Creek Valley Medical Society. He is master of Wilson Lodge No. 191, A. F. & A. M., at Pocahontas, and is also a member of the Wilson Royal Arch Chapter at Cape Girardeau, and of the A. O. U. W. of Shawneetown.

Solomon D. Hensley, a farmer and stock raiser residing three miles from Jackson, was born in White County, Ill., on February 19, 1859. He is the son of Richard D. and Sarah (Hon) Hensley, both natives of White County, Ill. They removed from their native State to Missouri in 1869, locating on a farm in the neighborhood where Solomon D. now resides. The father died there in 1882. The mother still survives. They reared a family of three sons and two daughters, of whom all are married, and with the exception of one, living in Cape Girardeau County. Solomon D. was reared at his father's, and his education, which was begun at the public schools and later at Oak Ridge, was finished at the State Normal at Cape Girardeau. Upon leaving the Normal, he taught for three years in Cape Girardeau County. On December 6, 1883, he was united in marriage with Miss Mollie Shaner, daughter of George W. Shaner, of Cape Girardeau County. She was born in Perry County, Mo. After marriage they located on the farm where they now reside. They have two children: George C. and Cline D. Mrs. Hensley is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

August Heiter, an enterprising and prominent farmer of Randol Township.

Cape Girardeau County, was born in the Province of Brunswick, Germany, on May 21, 1841. He is a son of Johan and Ferdmandena Heuer, both natives of Brunswick. They immigrated to America in 1848, landing at New Orleans, from whence they came to Missouri. Mr. Heuer purchased forty acres of land in Randol Township, Cape Girardeau, upon which he located. He afterward built a comfortable house and made other valuable improvements on his farm, and resided there until his death on March 14, 1861. His widow died there about two years later. August Heuer grew to manhood on his father's farm, and, when a young man, learned the carpenter's trade, under the direction of his father. During his early manhood he worked at his trade. In 1863 he enlisted in the State Militia, joining Capt. Tackey's company, Tenth Missouri Cavalry. He participated in the fight at Cape Girardeau, and was in several skirmishes after bushwhackers. He was in active service for six months. Mr. Heuer was a bugler, and was promoted to bugler of Richmond Regiment, but did not accept the promotion. On August 26, 1869, he was united in marriage with Augusta Meyer, a native of Cape Girardeau County, and daughter of Charles Meyer, deceased. After his marriage Mr. Heuer purchased the other heirs' interest in the old homestead, and resided there for a number of years. In 1881 he purchased his present farm, upon which he located in the fall of that year. The farm consists of 685 acres of good land, which is handsomely improved. Mr. and Mrs. Heuer are Lutherans in faith. They have had eight children: Charles W. (died March 16, 1887, aged seventeen years), Rosa Matilda, Robert Lewis, Anna Malinda, Freda Louisa, Clara Ella, August A. and George Washington. In politics Mr. Heuer is a Republican.

John Hink, a merchant and saddler of Gordonville, Mo., is a native of Germany, born in Hanover on January 4, 1828. He grew to manhood in the fatherland, and in 1848 went to England, where he spent six years in London, working in a sugar house. In 1854 he immigrated to the United States, and spent the first year after his arrival in New York City in a sugar house. He went to California in 1857 and remained until 1868, engaged the most of his time in farming and mining. In 1868 he returned to Hanover, where he was married in June, 1869, to Mary M. Schilling. He and wife returned to the United States in 1870, and purchased property in Gordonville, upon which they located. Subsequently Mr. John Hink started a saloon and saddle shop, both of which he managed for several years, when he abandoned the saloon business, and put in a stock of groceries. To him and wife have been born three children: Rebecca L. M., Ernest William and Gerhart Albert. Mr. and Mrs. Hink are members of the Lutheran Church.

Daniel Hinkle, a retired farmer and stock raiser of Oak Ridge, Cape Girardeau County, was born in Tennessee, on September 25, 1811. He is the son of Peter and Amelia (Clodfelter) Hinkle, both natives of North Carolina. They removed from their native State to Missouri in 1816, and settled on a farm in Cape Girardeau County, where they afterward resided. The father died in 1833. They reared nine children, of whom three sons and one daughter are living. The sons reside in Cape Girardeau County, and the daughter in Stoddard County, Mo. Daniel grew to manhood in Cape Girardeau County, where, in the latter part of 1832, he wedded Sarah Drum, daughter of William Drum. She was born in North Carolina, but reared in this county. After marriage they located on a piece of land in Apple Creek Township, which Mr. Hinkle had entered and which he afterward greatly improved. He resided there during his wife's lifetime. Her death occurred in March, 1873. Mr. Hinkle is now a partner in the mercantile business of Hinkle, Drum & Co. He and wife had a family of seven children, viz.: Mary Ann (Mrs. Peter Wills), Susan C. (Mrs. Jasper Wise), Sarah A. (Mrs. Marion Drum), Nancy S. (Mrs. John P. Wills), Martha J. (Mrs. Carmi Steele). Two sons, Peter and William, died while serving in the army. Politically, Mr. Hinkle was formerly a Whig, but is now a Democrat.

Jacob L. Hinkle, senior member of the firm of J. L. Hinkle & Co., general merchants of Burfordville, Cape Girardeau Co., Mo., was born at Oak Ridge in that county, March 12, 1850. He is a son of Louis Hinkle, who came to Cape Girardeau County, when a lad of six years. The latter's father removed from North Carolina to Tennessee and from thence to Missouri [see sketch of Daniel Hinkle]. Lewis Hinkle married in Cape Girardeau County, Margaret Fulbright, a native of that county. Jacob L. Hinkle grew to manhood at the home of his parents, and when twenty-one years of age (in 1871) removed to Burfordville and engaged in the mercantile business, in which he continued for twelve years. He also served as postmaster from 1872 to 1883. After selling his store he was not actively engaged in business until July, 1885, when he formed the present partnership. The firm occupy a large store building, which is their own, and carry a fine stock of general merchandise, and command a good trade. Mr. Hinkle also owns a one-fourth interest in the Burfordville Flouring Mill, which is among the best roller mills of the county. On December 3, 1885, he was united in marriage with Miss Lou Wilson, a native of Cape Girardeau County, and a daughter of John Wilson (deceased). Mr. Hinkle was also appointed postmaster in December, 1885, which office he still holds. He is a member of the Burfordville Lodge of A. O. U. W., of which he was receiver the past year.

Henry C. Hinton, merchant and postmaster at Allenville, Mo., was born in St. Clair County, Ill., November 9, 1833, and is a son of Vachel Hinton, a native of Kentucky, born of German parents. The latter, when a young man, removed to St. Clair County, Ill., where he married Phebe Cox, also a native of Kentucky, whose parents were formerly from Maryland. After his marriage Vachel Hinton engaged in farming in St. Clair County, which he continued until his death. Henry C. grew to manhood on his parents' farm, and received a fair education in the common schools, which has been greatly improved by reading since arriving at mature years. In 1860 he came to Missouri, and located in Cape Girardeau County, where he was married on April 13, 1863, to Anna C. Pauch, a native of Hesse Cassel, Germany, who came to the county when but three years of age. After his marriage Mr. Hinton located on a farm near Dutchtown, which he cultivated until 1870, when he engaged in merchandising at Dutchtown. After one year he removed his stock of goods to Allenville. He now has the Wheeler store, and controls a good trade. He was appointed deputy postmaster in 1871, but the next year was commissioned postmaster. In politics Mr. Hinton is a Democrat. In 1870 he was appointed justice of the peace of Hubble Township, and was afterward elected and re-elected, holding the office eighteen consecutive years. He and wife are members of the Methodist Church. They have four children: Mary (Mrs. Joseph Courtway, of Horton, Kas.), Harry H., Flora A. and George C. Mr. Hinton is a Royal Arch Mason.

C. Hirsch, Jr., wholesale and retail grocer, forwarding and commission merchant of Cape Girardeau, was born in Cape Girardeau County in 1856. The father, C. Hirsch, Sr., is a native of Germany, who came to Cape Girardeau about 1855, of which city he is still a resident. He is at present proprietor of the Farmer's Home, but previous to 1878 was engaged in the meat trade. The subject of this sketch was reared and received a liberal education in Cape Girardeau. His first business venture was as a member of the firm of Kerstner & Hirsch, with which firm he was identified one and one-half years, after which he engaged in the mercantile business in various places in the county until March, 1888. He then located in Cape Girardeau and engaged in his present business as a member of the firm of N. V. Dittlinger & Co. The year following (1884) Mr. Hirsch assumed full control of the business.

Greer D. Hitt was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., January 27, 1852, and is a son of Bradford Hitt, also a native of that county, born in 1824. The paternal grandfather, William Hitt, was an early settler of Cape Girardeau County. Bradford Hitt married Cynthia Williams, daughter of Hon. Isaac Smith Williams. After his marriage Mr. Hitt located on some land in Cape Township, and improved a farm upon which he resided until his death, February 21, 1873. His wife survived until April 22, 1887. They were the parents of three sons and one daughter, all of whom are now heads of families. The sons reside in Cape Girardeau County, and the daughter, Lizzie (Mrs. Taylor Cox), resides in Texas. Greer D. Hitt grew to manhood on his father's farm, and on September 5, 1872, married Priscilla Randol, daughter of Eli Randol, of Cape Girardeau County. She was born and reared in that county. After his marriage Mr. Hitt was engaged in farming for about five years in Cape Township, when he purchased and located upon his present farm in Randol Township. He has 112 acres of good land, upon which he has a comfortable residence and other buildings. He and wife have three children: Wilbur V. (born April 18, 1880, died July 15, 1882), Donna A. and Jesse L. In politics Mr. Hitt holds to the principles of the Democratic party.

Isaac Cooper Hitt, a farmer and stock raiser of Welch Township, Cape Girardeau County, was born in that county September 10, 1852. He is a son of Judge Samuel and Susan (Cox) Hitt, both of whom are natives of Cape Girardeau County. The paternal grandfather, Benjamin Hitt, was one of the early settlers of Cape Girardeau County. Judge Samuel Hitt is now retired from active business life, and resides in the city of Cape Girardeau. Isaac C. Hitt was reared at his father's home. He was married September 10, 1876, to Eseneth Ellen Ventres, a native of White County, Ill., and a daughter of George and Mariah Ventres. Mr. Hitt had located where he now resides just previous to his marriage. At that time the farm had about forty acres cleared. There are 380 acres in the farm, and at present about 160 acres under cultivation, upon which is a neat, substantial residence, a large barn and a fine orchard of select trees. Mr. Hitt was elected justice of the peace, but resigned before he had served one term. Mrs. Hitt died October 9, 1887, leaving one daughter, Minnie Grace. Mr. Hitt is a Master Mason, and is also a member of the Agricultural Wheel.

Joseph V. Hobbs, a prominent farmer of Randol Township, Cape Girardeau County, was born in that county, February 14, 1845, and is a son of Green B. Hobbs, a native of Tennessee, who came to Missouri when a young man. After coming to the latter State he married Sarah F. Penn, also a native of Tennessee, after which he located on a farm near Cape Girardeau, on the Perryville road. He improved the farm and resided there until his death about 1870. His widow still survives. They reared a family of eleven children, of whom three sons and one daughter are living, all residents of Cape Girardeau County, except one son, who resides in Stoddard County. Joseph V. grew to manhood on his father's farm, and received a good common school education. Toward the close of the war, he served a few months in the State Militia. On February 9, 1864, he was united in marriage with Miss Elvira C. Ervin, daughter of Eli Ervin, of Cape Girardeau County. After his marriage Mr. Hobbs located on a farm near Cape Girardeau. His wife died, leaving three children: Ernest M., now in business at Cape Girardeau; Joseph E. G. B. and Charles J. W. Mr. Hobbs afterward married Frances L. Brooks, daughter of John Brooks (deceased). She was born on the farm upon which she now resides, to which Mr. Hobbs removed in 1870. He has 330 acres of land, all fenced, with about 270 acres under cultivation. The land is in three farms, with a good two-story residence upon each. Mr. Hobbs served about six years as justice of the peace of his township, when he resigned his position. He is a Mason, and is a member of Wilson Royal Arch Chapter and Council. To him and present wife have been born five children: Isaac H., Sarah F., Mary Jessie J., Robert E. Lee and Ella M.

David Loy Hoffman is a native of Franklin County, Penn., born on September 28, 1841. He is the youngest of nine children born to John G. and Catherine S. (Swartz) Hoffman, also natives of the Keystone State, where they passed their lives. The former was serving as sheriff of Franklin County at the time of our subject's birth, and after the expiration of his term of office engaged in the mercantile business in Chambersburg. In December, 1843, his wife died. He then retired from business, and lived with his sister the remainder of his life, dying on February 28, 1851. David, upon the death of his mother, went to live with a man named John Byers, with whom he remained until he was about seventeen years of age. He then entered the Valley Spirit office at Chambersburg, where he served a three years' apprenticeship. In April, 1861, he entered Company B, Second Pennsylvania Volunteers, known as the Chamber's Infantry, as second corporal, with which he served three months, the term of enlistment. In July, 1862, he entered Company A, One Hundred and Twenty-sixth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and served nine months. After his return home he was for several years connected with the Inland & United States Telegraph Company as line builder and repairer, after which he rambled over Illinois and Missouri, working at various occupations, a portion of the time as watchman on a snag-bunt. On December 19, 1869, he came to Cape Girardeau and worked on the C. G. & S. L. Railroad, and later was engaged in farming and teaching until 1872. He then went to Morley, Mo., and established the Advance, which he conducted for five years. He then bought the Commerce Dispatch in March, 1878, and conducted it until the fall of 1881, when he established the Mason County Dispatch, which he published until the fall of 1882. He next went to Olathe, Kas., and took editorial charge of the Kansas Patron. After eighteen months he returned to Cape Girardeau and established the Missouri Cultivator, which was merged into the Courier. About January 1, 1885, he severed his connection with it, and soon after took charge of the News, which he has since conducted. In 1862 he was married to Lillie McCone, who died two years later, leaving one daughter, Mary K., now living in Harrisburg, Penn. In January, 1872, he was united in marriage with Rebecca A. Adams, and to them has been born one child, Sarah A., born in September, 1872. Mr. Hoffman and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and also of the Patrons of Husbandry. He is a member of the G. A. R., and is serving his third term as adjutant of Justi Post. Politically he is a Democrat.

Thomas D. Hope, a respected farmer residing one-half mile north of Pocahontas, Cape Girardeau County, was born in that county on February 29, 1844. He is the son of Robert Y. Hope, who was born in Cabarrus County, N. C., in 1803. He left his native State and came to Missouri when a young man, crossing the Mississippi River on Christmas day, 1822. He was married in Cape Girardeau County to Mrs. Margaret B. Torrence, daughter of a Mr. Walker, also a native of North Carolina. Mr. Hope settled on the farm where the subject of this sketch now resides, and where he lived until his death, which occurred on October 23, 1886. His wife died on December 22, 1869. Thomas D. grew to manhood at his father's home. On January 9, 1873, he was united in marriage with Margaret A., daughter of William Baldridge, who removed to Missouri from Tennessee. Mrs. Hope was born and reared in the neighborhood where she now resides. After his marriage Mr. Hope located on his father's old farm, where he has since remained. He has 240 acres of good land, of which 115 acres are under cultivation, and upon which he has a good residence and other buildings. He and wife have three children, viz.: James Robert, Maud Y. and Annas Cross, a lad of nine years. Mr. and Mrs. Hope are members of Apple Creek Presbyterian Church, in which Mr. Hope is an elder.

Dr. John A. Horn, physician and surgeon at Millersville, Cape Girardeau County, was born December 20, 1833, in Pike County, Mo. He is a son of John Horn, a native of Pennsylvania, in which State he grew to manhood, and married Esther Leetch, also a native of Pennsylvania. They removed to Missouri in 1831, and settled in Pike County, where Mr. Horn purchased a farm, and afterward entered more land when it came into market. He resided on his farm until his death in 1843. He and wife reared three sons and five daughters, of whom two sons and four daughters are living. Four of his children reside in Missouri and two in Montana. The Doctor spent his youth on his father's farm, and received a good common school education. At the age of twenty years he engaged in teaching school during the winter seasons and farming during the summer. In 1865 he commenced the study of medicine in his native county under the direction of John T. Bell, one of the prominent physicians of Louisiana, Mo. He took his first course of lessons at Keokuk in the winter of 1866-67, graduating in the spring of 1869. After completing the course he located at Millersville, and engaged in the practice of his profession, which he has successfully continued. The Doctor is not married, and his sister keeps house for him. He is examining physician of his lodge of the A. O. U. W. at Millersville.

S. B. and J. A. Horrell, members of the firm of Horrell, Byrd & Co., proprietors of the flouring mill at Jackson, Mo., were both born and reared near Jackson. The former is the son of Thomas Horrell, and the latter is a son of William Horrell. John Horrell, the grandfather, came from Maryland about 1818, and located on a tract of land two and one-half miles northwest of Jackson, where he resided until his death. He reared six sons and two daughters (the five eldest of whom were born in Maryland), viz.: William W., Thomas, John, Benjamin M., Elijah W. Alexander B., Maximillian, Barbara M. and Rachel M. William W. was born in 1809, and was united in marriage with Mary Byrd, a daughter of Capt. Abraham Byrd, of Cape Girardeau County. He followed agricultural pursuits. He represented the county in the Legislature one or two terms and filled various county offices. He died in 1864. His widow still resides in Byrd Township. There were born to them eleven children, viz.: Sophia, Nancy, Rebecca Buckner, William Gillespie, Mary Emily, Rachel G., John A. and one son and three daughters who died in infancy. At present (1888) only four are living: J. A., one of the subjects of this sketch, and three sisters, Nancy, Mary Emily and Rachel G. John A. was united in marriage on May 8, 1883, to Miss Lucy Riley, daughter of Judge Amos Riley, of New Madrid, Mo. Three children were born to them, viz.: Louia, Mary Eugenia and William Amos; the eldest died in infancy.

Thomas, the second son, was reared near Jackson, and was a tanner by trade, but engaged in farming as a vocation. He died in 1864. His wife, Clarissa (Byrd) Horrell, died in 1866. They reared two children: Stephen B., the other subject of this sketch, and Benjamin, who resides in Kansas; one child (John) died in infancy. John Horrell, Jr., was reared near Jackson, and died in 1864. Benjamin M., Sr., still resides at Cape Girardeau. Elijah practiced medicine in New Madrid and Cape Girardeau, Mo. He died in Mississippi. Alexander went to California in 1854, and died there a few years ago.

Louis Houck, president of the Cape Girardeau Southwestern Railway, and one of the principal owners of the road, was born in St. Clair County, Ill., in April, 1841. His father, Bartholomew Houck, was a native of the Kingdom of Bavaria, and landed in the United States in 1839, while his mother, whose maiden name was Anna Senn, came originally from the Canton of Argau, Switzerland, immigrating to this country in the year 1830. The parents were married in the city of St. Louis in 1837, and subsequently, from 1838 until 1843, resided upon a farm in Gasconade County, Mo. Bartholomew Houck was a printer by trade, and in the capacity of publisher and editor became connected with several of the earliest German papers in the West; as editor and publisher of the Belleville Zeitung (Gazette) in 1849 he became especially well known in Illinois and portions of Missouri among the German element. The subject of this sketch passed his youthful days in Belleville, Ill., receiving his education principally in his father's printing office, but during the years 1858 and 1859 he attended the Wisconsin University. In 1860 he began the publication of a German paper in Belleville, and as a Democrat took active interest in the great political campaign of that year throughout his native State. In 1865 he retired from the journalistic profession. Having begun the study of law in 1861 in the office of the late Hon. W. H. Underwood, one of the leading lawyers of Illinois, he was admitted to practice by the supreme court in 1862, and some time after, in 1865, became associated with Hon. H. K. S. O'Melveny in the active practice of his profession in Cairo, Ill. In 1868 he removed to St. Louis, where he was shortly afterward appointed assistant United States district attorney, but in 1869 he resigned this position and removed to Cape Girardeau. Mr. Houck now entered upon the general practice of law in the southeastern counties of the State, but, subsequently, in 1880, after a successful legal career, retired from his labors in this direction to devote himself to the construction of the Cape Girardeau Southwestern Railway. In 1880 he built fifteen miles of this road, in 1881 eleven miles, in 1882 seven miles, and in the next two years twenty-five additional miles were constructed. In 1886-87 the road was extended eight miles farther, and he is now engaged in securing the construction of thirty-five miles more, thus completing, by forming a junction with the Current River Railroad, an unbroken east and west line through Southern Missouri. Although not a politician Mr. Houck was nominated as alternate Democratic elector for the State at large in 1872, and, as such, made a canvass of the southeastern counties in that year. He has also published two legal works of recognized merit, one on the law of "Mechanic's Liens" (Chicago, 1865), and another on the law of "Navigable Rivers" (Boston, 1868). From 1870 to 1871 he edited and annotated a new edition of the first fifteen volumes of the Missouri Reports. In December, 1872, he was married to Miss Mary Hunter Giboney, only daughter of Mr. Andrew Giboney, a lady belonging to one of the oldest pioneer families of Missouri.

H. W. Howard, of the firm of Wiggington & Howard, general merchants, was born in Cape Girardeau County on December 1, 1842. He is a grandson of Henry Howard, a native of England, who came from Kentucky to Cape Girardeau County about 1799, locating three miles northwest of Jackson on a Spanish grant, where he resided until his death. His son, Hamilton B., the father of H. W., was the youngest child of his family. He was born in 1807, and was reared on the farm near Jackson. He married Sarah Daughtery, born in 1806. She was a granddaughter of Henry Hand, who located in Cape Girardeau County in 1798. The parents resided on their farm northwest of Jackson till their deaths, the father's occurring in 1853, and the mother's in 1855. H. W. is the elder of two children. A sister, Nancy (Mrs. Clodfenter), now resides on the old home place. He was reared on the farm, and on June 26, 1861, enlisted in the Missouri Confederate Home Guards. On September 26, 1864, he was taken prisoner at St. Louis, and held for five months, when he was exchanged. He then served in the cavalry with Forrest until the close of the war. Returning home, he began the study of medicine, but abandoning that he returned to the farm and remained until 1877, when he took a position as deputy in the sheriff and collector's office. Filling that position six years he next engaged in the mercantile business, and on September 16, 1885, the present firm was established. B. F. Wiggington is the other member of the firm. Mr. Howard was married on July 3, 1866, to Mary P. Shaner, a native of Cape Girardeau County. She died in 1870, having borne two children—one son and one daughter. He was afterward united in marriage with Rachel G. Horrell, a native of Cape Girardeau County. Three children have been born to this union—two sons and one daughter. Mr. Howard is a member of the A. F. & A. M., and of the A. O. U. W.

Edward F. Jenkins, farmer and stock raiser near Jackson, was born in Loudoun County, Va., on June 6, 1840. He is the son of Edward B. and Martha (Keen) Jenkins, both of Virginia. They removed to Missouri in 1851, and located in Cape Girardeau County five miles southwest from Cape Girardeau. In 1857 they came to Jackson and engaged in the hotel business, where they remained until 1859. They then bought land and removed to the place on which the subject of this sketch now resides. He owned about 600 acres, which he improved. Upon the place is located "Old Bethel Church" (Baptist), said to be the first church built west of the Mississippi River. Mr. Jenkins was twice married. His first wife died in Virginia. He died in 1874. The mother of Edward F. died in 1877, having reared to maturity a family of four sons and one daughter, of whom the sons are still living, and with the exception of one, Dr. L. E. Jenkins, of Fredericktown, Madison County, are residents of Cape Girardeau County. Edward F. grew to manhood on his father's farm. He and two brothers and one half brother served in the Confederate army in Company F, Eighth Missouri Cavalry, under Gen. Price. They participated in all the engagements of the regiment. Among others were Fredericktown, Hartsville, Helena, Little Rock and Jenkins' Ferry. After the war they returned to their homes on June 25, 1865. On October 13, 1880, Edward F. was united in marriage with Fannie Wright, a native of St. Louis, but who was reared in Jackson. Previous to his marriage Mr. Jenkins bought the old homestead and a part of the old farm, on which he has since resided. The family are relatives of Gen. Jenkins, a noted Confederate soldier, who was accidentally killed by one of his own soldiers in Virginia. Mr. Jenkins is a member of the Baptist Church, and Mrs. Jenkins is a member of the Old School Presbyterian Church. Mr. Jenkins is a member of the Masonic Lodge, and all four of the brothers belong to the A. O. U. W.

Thomas E. Johnson, M. D., is a native of Cape Girardeau County, born on October 13, 1849. He is the son of Robert Perry Johnson, a native of Ohio, born in 1817. The latter came to Missouri when a young man (about 1838), and settled in Cape Girardeau County, whither his father had previously immigrated, and engaged in the millwright business. Robert P. was also a millwright by trade, in which business he engaged during his life, having built several mills in Cape Girardeau County. He also conducted a farm. He was married on April 21, 1847, to Isabella B. Little, daughter of John Little, who settled in Cape Girardeau County in 1820, having removed from North Carolina. Mrs. Johnson was born in Tennessee, but was mostly reared in Cape Girardeau County, being but five years of age when her parents removed thence. Her father came to Missouri with about forty persons, of whom but four are now living, viz.: Mrs. Johnson, a brother residing in California, and two cousins. Mrs. Johnson reared three children—two sons and one daughter—of whom the two sons are living, and with whom she now resides. Her husband died in November, 1855. Dr. Johnson was reared on his mother's farm, and received a fair education in the country schools and the Pocahontas High School. He commenced the study of medicine under the direction of Dr. Robert T. Henderson in 1881. He took his first course of lectures at Missouri Medical College in the winter of 1882-83. He completed the course the next year, graduating from that institution in the Spring of 1884, after which he began the practice of his profession at Pocahontas, which he has since continued, and at present controls an extensive practice in his part of the county. On December 31, 1882, he was united in marriage with Miss Alice E. Vandervest, daughter of Marshall Vandervest, who removed to Missouri from Pennsylvania. Mrs. Johnson was born and chiefly reared in the latter State. The Doctor and wife have three children, viz.: Mabel, Thomas and Harry. The Doctor is a charter member of Wilson Lodge No. 191, A. Prof. Thomas E. Joyce, principal of the Cape Girardeau public schools, is a native of Scott County, Mo. He was born in 1858, and is the son of Edward and Georgia A. Joyce. The former was a native of Louisiana, and the latter of Scott County, Mo. The father was born in 1830, and when nine years of age located with his mother in Cape Girardeau County. He was reared on a farm, but in his young days followed steamboating. The parents were married in Arkansas, and after their marriage resided in Scott County for twenty years, when they removed to Cape Girardeau County, and located on a farm, where they afterward resided. Mr. Joyce died at his home in 1882; his widow died in 1886. The subject of this sketch is one of a family of eight children—five sons and three daughters—and, being sixteen years of age when his parents removed to Cape Girardeau County, he has since made that his home. At the age of eighteen years he began teaching school, which profession he has since followed. His education was completed in the Southeastern Missouri Normal, having graduated from that institution in June, 1887. Soon after he accepted his present position, taking charge of the schools on September 5, 1887. He has so far conducted the schools in such a manner as to insure his success in the future as a teacher.

John G. Juden, an enterprising citizen and prosperous farmer of Cape Girardeau County, was born in that county on March 10, 1827. He is a son of Judge Thomas Juden, a native of Maryland, whose ancestors immigrated to the United States in an early day. He was a silver plater by trade, and first carried on his trade in Baltimore. About 1817 he came to Missouri, his father, John Juden, having located in this State about 1805. After coming to Missouri, Thomas Juden married Nancy Holcombe, a native of North Carolina. Soon after he purchased land about two miles from Jackson, on the Jackson and Cape Girardeau road, upon which he resided until 1837, when he purchased a farm near Cape Girardeau, upon which he resided until his death in 1876. He served as judge of the county court for one term. He and wife were the parents of eight children that grew to maturity, of whom three sons and two daughters are living, all in Cape Girardeau County, except one son in California. John G. spent his youth on his father's farm, and in 1850 he and his brother went to California, making the trip, which required a little less than three months, with a team. He remained there about four years, engaged in mining, and returned home by way of Panama, Aspinwall and New Orleans. Arriving home in June, 1855, he soon after purchased a farm, and has since been engaged in farming. In 1857 he located on his present farm, consisting of 547 acres, with about 300 under cultivation, upon which he has a good residence, barn and other out-buildings. On June 15, 1856, he wedded Laura Alton, daughter of Amasa Alton, deceased. To them have been born five children: William R., Julia E., John G., Jr., Wilber A. and Thomas Judson. Mrs. Juden died October 22, 1869. Politically Mr. Juden and sons are very ardent Democrats.

Edward S. Juden, one of the successful teachers of Cape Girardeau County, was born in Cape Girardeau Township, that county, February 5, 1867. He is a son of William Juden, also a native of that county, born in 1834. The grandfather, Judge Thomas Juden, was a native of England, who came to the United States when a child. He removed to Cape Girardeau County, Mo., when a young man. He afterward served as judge of the county court for one or two terms, and resided in the county until his death. William Juden grew to manhood at his father's home, and married Mary E. McLeary, also a native of Cape Girardeau County. He was a farmer, and after his marriage located near Cape Girardeau, where he resided until his death in 1874. He left a widow, who still survives, and four children—three sons and one daughter—all of whom are nearly grown. Edward S. was reared on his father's farm, and received a good education, which was finished at the State Normal School at Cape Girardeau. A young man of sterling character, he is excellently qualified for the profession of teaching school. He is also a humorist of merit, and writes under the pseudonym of "Ed. Chinaman." He is an adherent to the Democratic party.

F. A. Kage, liveryman at Cape Girardeau and proprietor of the Star Stables, is a native of Cape Girardeau County, born on April 4, 1848. He is the son of Christian Kage, a native of Germany, born in 1823, who came to America in 1845 and located near Cape Girardeau. When our subject was six years of age the father removed to the city, where he afterward followed various occupations. He died in 1876. F. A. Kage is the only surviving member of the family. The mother and two sisters died in 1868. She had a son by a previous marriage, but he is also dead. The subject of this sketch has lived in Cape Girardeau since early childhood. He served as deputy sheriff before he was twenty years of age, and filled the office until 1881. He was deputy United States marshal for one year. In 1882 he was elected sheriff as an independent candidate, defeating the Democratic nominee by a majority of 886. He served in that office for four years, and was county coroner for two years. In 1864 he enlisted in the Union army, joining the Second Missouri Cavalry. He was mustered out in the latter part of that year, and re-enlisted in a volunteer company, and was mustered out in June, 1865. He engaged in his present business in 1871. His building burned in 1887, and he immediately afterward erected the large building he now occupies. In 1867 he was united in marriage with Barbara Fritz, a native of Pennsylvania. They have had four children—three sons and one daughter.

William N. Keeling, a well-to-do farmer and stock raiser of Randol Township, Cape Girardeau County, was born in that county December 25, 1842. He is a son of Harrison Keeling, a native of Kentucky, who removed to Missouri when a young man, after which he married Margaret Poe, a daughter of James Poe, deceased. She was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. After his marriage Mr. Keeling purchased a farm in Randol Township, which he cultivated until his death in August, 1847, after which his widow managed the farm. She is still residing there (1888). She and husband had a family of three children—one son and two daughters—of whom one daughter is dead. The other daughter is a widow and resides with her mother. The son, William N., after arriving at mature years, managed the home farm until 1872. On December 27 of that year he was united in marriage with Mrs. Elizabeth (Randol) Brooks, a daughter of A. D. Randol [see sketch]. After his marriage Mr. Keeling cultivated his wife's farm one season, when he bought his present place, consisting of 188 acres of good land, with more than 100 acres under cultivation. He and wife have one daughter, Ida May, aged nine years. Mrs. Keeling has a son by her former marriage, J. Frank Brooks, a resident of Nebraska.

John G. Keller, one of the most substantial farmers of Cape Girardeau County, was born in Germany, March 10, 1829. He is a son of John Jacob and Katherina (Bender) Keller, both natives of Germany. The family immigrated to the United States in 1840, and located in Cape Girardeau County in August of that year. John Jacob Keller purchased the land and settled where John G. Keller now resides. The former died there about 1846, and his wife died on the same farm in 1870. John G. grew to manhood on his father's farm, and on July 20, 1850, married Augusta Weiss, a daughter of Henry Weiss, a native of Germany. Mrs. Keller was also born in Germany, and came with her parents to America when twelve years of age. Mr. and Mrs. Keller have seven children living, and one daughter, who died when four years of age. Those living are John H., George J., Louis T., Anna Mary (Mrs. Charles Blatter), August W., Otto J. and Mary Louisa. After the death of his father Mr. Keller remained on the home farm, which he has managed most successfully. He had over 1,200 acres at one time, but he has given each of his sons a farm, and has 160 left. Mr. and Mrs. Keller are members of the German Lutheran Church.

George J. Keller, a farmer and stock raiser of Cape Girardeau Township, Cape Girardeau County, was born in that county on January 27, 1857. He is a son of J. G. Keller [see sketch]. George J. remained on the home farm until he was married, on March 11, 1880, to Minnie Schwab, a native of Cape Girardeau County. She is a daughter of John Schwab. Soon after his marriage Mr. Keller located on the farm where he now resides. His farm consists of 134 acres under an excellent state of cultivation. The place is located three miles west of Cape Girardeau, and has a large brick residence, two good barns and other substantial buildings. Mr. and Mrs. Keller are enterprising young people, and are members of the Evangelical Church.

Louis T. Keller is a native of Cape Girardeau County, and was born on the farm where his father, John G. Keller, now lives, on February 24, 1859. He remained with his father, assisting with the work of the farm, until he was twenty-four years of age. On September 20, 1883, he was united in marriage with Anna Thilenius, a daughter of Col. George C. Thilenius, a prominent citizen of Cape Girardeau. Col. Thilenius made the flour that took the first premium at both the Vienna Exposition and the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia. Mrs. Keller was born and reared in Cape Girardeau. After his marriage

Mr. Keller located upon his present farm in Cape Girardeau Township, Cape Girardeau County, which he had previously purchased, and upon which he had made some valuable improvements. It consists of 300 acres of land, with 100 under cultivation. Mr. Keller has a nice residence and other convenient farm buildings. He and wife are members of the Lutheran Church. Their marriage has been blessed by the birth of one son, Edwin.

Henry Kerstner, a general merchant of Gordonville, Mo., was born on December 28, 1837, in the Province of Hanover, Germany, and is a son of Henry and Engel (Detjer) Kerstner, both also natives of Hanover. The family immigrated to the United States in 1852. They first located in Perry County, Mo., but in the spring of 1853 settled in Cape Girardeau County, near New Wells. Mr. Kerstner purchased land and improved a farm, upon which he reared his children and resided many years. His death occurred on November 13, 1873. Mrs. Kerstner died in January, 1859. Henry is the eldest of three sons. His youth was spent on the farm, remaining there until he was twenty years of age. He then clerked at Appleton for five years, after which he became a partner in the business, taking a third interest with David and Daniel Seibert. He continued with them until the winter of 1865, when he removed to Gordonville and purchased his present store. For a time he had a partner in the person of John A. Lange, now of Wilson, Kas., and was afterward associated with James M. Seibert, present State treasurer of Missouri, who sold out to Mr. Kerstner's brother, Claus, in 1871, but since 1876 he (Henry Kerstner) has been sole proprietor. He has a good brick building, and carries a large stock of general merchandise. He also has farming interests. In January, 1867, he wedded Augusta Ahrens, who was born in Cape Girardeau County, March 14, 1850. They have five children—Claus, Albert, Martha, Edward and Laura—living, and two girls who died in early childhood. Mr. Kerstner and family are members of the Lutheran Church. In politics Mr. Kerstner is an ardent Republican, and he is a member of the Farmers' and Mechanics' Mutual Aid Association.

John Kerstner is a native of Germany, born in the Province of Hanover on January 6, 1840, and immigrated with his parents to the United States in 1852 [see sketch of Henry Kerstner]. He grew to manhood in Cape Girardeau County, and enlisted August 24, 1862, in the Twenty-ninth Missouri Infantry, and served in the army until he received his discharge in February, 1863. The next year he went to California by the way of New York City and Panama. Remaining in that State until 1867, engaged in farm work, he returned home by the same route. Soon after his return he and his brother engaged in the mercantile business at Gordonville, Mo., but in the spring of 1871 they sold out, and he purchased his present farm. He founded Farmers Village, in which he engaged in the mercantile business in January, 1878, having previously erected a store building. He continued in the business about ten years, when he sold out. On November 12, 1868, he was united in marriage with Sophia Nienstedt, a daughter of Henry Nienstedt. She was born in Hanover, Germany, and was brought to Cape Girardeau County by her parents, when five years of age. To Mr. and Mrs. Kerstner have been born four children: Emma E., Louis H., Albert H. and Henry William. The family are members of the Lutheran Church. Mr. Kerstner is a member of the Grand Army Post of Cape Girardeau, and is also a member of the Farmers' and Mechanics' Mutual Benefit Association of St. Louis, in which he has a life certificate of $4,000.

Claus Kerstner, dealer in hardware, cutlery and tinware at Gordonville, Mo., was born in Hanover, Germany, July 16, 1844, and is a son of Henry Kerstner, Sr. [see sketch of Henry Kerstner, Jr.]. Claus was reared on his father's farm in Cape Girardeau County. On May 5, 1863, he enlisted in Company E, Eighth Missouri Provisional Regiment, and served for six months. At the special call for six months' volunteers on July 5, 1864, he re-enlisted, joining Company B, with which he served until the expiration of the time. On June 5, 1865, he was appointed deputy clerk of the circuit court, in which capacity he served for twenty-two months. In the early part of 1867, he opened a saddlery shop at Gordonville, which he managed until March, 1871, when he sold out and bought an interest in his brother's general mercantile business. He withdrew from that business in 1875, and engaged in the sale of farm implements, which he continued until 1877, when he engaged in his present business. Politically he has always held to the principles of the Republican party. He was appointed postmaster at Gordonville in 1875, which office he still holds. Mr. Kerstner has been married twice. His first wife was Bertha Kummerle, to whom he was united on November 12, 1867. She died on January 7, 1869, leaving one daughter, Lillie E. Mr. Kerstner was married on April 13, 1871, to Lizzie A. Hirsch, daughter of Christ Hirsch, of Cape Girardeau. Six children have been born to this union: Martin G., Ida K., Corie E., Paulina O., Leonora B. and one that died in infancy. Mr. and Mrs. Kerstner are members of the Lutheran Church. He is a member of Maj. A. B. Carroll Post No. 310, G. A. R., Department of Missouri, and of the Farmers' and Mechanics' Mutual Aid Association.

Fred Kies, editor of the Volksfreund, Jackson, Mo., was born in Wuertemberg, Germany, on December 8, 1837. He came with his parents, Christian and Jacobina Kies, to America in 1852, locating in Winnebago County, Wis. The father was a vintager in the old country, but resided on a farm in Wisconsin. After about ten years' residence there he with his wife and the younger members of his family returned to Germany, where they remained about two years. Coming to America again, he located for a time in Union County, Ill. In 1869 he and wife located at Jackson, making their home with their son, Fred, until their deaths, which occurred within a few weeks of each other in 1870. Fred attended Brockway College in Wisconsin two years, and in 1860 went to Germany and received instruction from eminent German teachers. Returning to America in 1861 he taught school in Pike County, Ohio, for two years. In October, 1865, he was united in marriage with Theresa Wimmer, a native of German Austria. Soon after he removed to Cape Girardeau County, and engaged in preaching and teaching. He organized the Jackson German Evangelical Church in 1867, and had charge of a German Church in the country a short time. He has preached almost all over the county without being regularly stationed. From the fall of 1874 to the spring of 1877 he had charge of a school at Zoar, a German colony in Tuscarawas County, Ohio. He founded the Volksfreund on March 11, 1886, and has already secured a good subscription. He resides two miles east of town on his farm of 105 acres. He is a hard laborer both on the farm and in the office. He has had twelve children—five sons and seven daughters—of whom one daughter died in infancy. He and family are members of the Evangelical Church. Mr. Kies is thoroughly Americanized in his views, and has no sympathy with the Herr Most followers and other so-called social revolutionists.

Andrew H. Kinder was born near Marble Hill, Bollinger, Co., Mo., December 6, 1828. He is the son of John and Mary (Sulder) Kinder, both natives of North Carolina. In 1811 the father came to Bollinger County with his parents. He entered land and was married there, but afterward came to Cape Girardeau County, and bought and improved land near Millersville, where he resided until his death, in November, 1858. The parents had five sons, of whom the two eldest are dead. Andrew H. grew to manhood in Cape Girardeau County, and received very little instruction in youth, but since reaching years of maturity has acquired a good education by study at home. At the age of eighteen years he commenced teaching school, which he continued for five consecutive years. In 1850 he was elected county assessor, and re-elected in 1852. He engaged in the mercantile business in the neighborhood where he now resides for about eighteen years, also had an interest in a store at Smithville, Bollinger County, for awhile. Besides his mercantile business and farming he had an interest in the Shawneetown Woolen Mills for ten years. On April 13, 1856, he was united in marriage with Sarah E., daughter of Judge John Drum. She was born in Stoddard County, but was reared and married in Cape Girardeau County. After marriage they settled on the farm where they now reside. They have seven children, viz.: Mary M. (Mrs. George W. Cobble), Oliver B., Gilbert C., Edward B., Eva J., Ida V. and Iva O. Mr. Kinder and son, Oliver B., are members of Mystic Tie Lodge, A. F. & A. M., at Oak Ridge. In politics Mr. Kinder is a Democrat.

Judge Levi J. Kinder, a farmer residing near Gordonville, Mo., was born in Cape Girardeau County in the neighborhood of his present home in September, 1830, and is a son of Joel and Sarena (Thompson) Kinder, both natives of Cape Girardeau County. The former was a son of Adam Kinder, who immigrated to Cape Girardeau County from North Carolina about 1800. Joel Kinder was reared at his father's home, and after his marriage located on land which he had entered in Hubble Township. He improved a farm, made a home for himself and family, and resided there until his death, about 1868. His first wife, Irene Thompson, was the daughter of Rev. Ben Thompson, a pioneer Baptist minister of Cape Girardeau County. She died about 1839, having borne three children—two sons and one daughter—of whom the subject of this sketch is the eldest. He remained at his father's home until his marriage, February 14, 1850, with Martha J. O'Neal, a daughter of Raford O'Neal, from Tennessee. She was born in Tennessee in 1830, but was mainly reared in Cape Girardeau County. Previous to his marriage Mr. Kinder had purchased forty acres of land, upon which he located in 1852, and upon which he still resides. He soon after purchased another forty-acre tract, and later 160 more, all of which was in the woods. He now has 100 acres under cultivation, with good improvements. To him and wife have been born five children: Susan J. (Mrs. William J. Strong), Sarah Elizabeth (Mrs. Jane Hamilton), William M. (on the home farm), Mary (Mrs. Daniel Lape, died April 12, 1878) and Martha Ann (Mrs. Jacob Thompson). Mr. Kinder is a member of the Democratic party, and was elected judge of the county court in November, 1886. He has held other minor offices, and was justice of the peace of his township for about five years. He is a member of the Methodist Church, and of the A. F. & A. M.

Louis C. Kipping, merchant and blacksmith of Tilsit, Cape Girardeau Co., Mo., was born in Saxony, Germany, on January 26, 1834. He was reared and educated in his native country, and in 1872 immigrated to the United States. Locating in Perry County, Mo., he learned his trade and remained there until 1877, when he removed to Cape Girardeau County. He worked three months each at Shawneetown and Oak Ridge, when he removed to his present location and started a blacksmith shop, which he has since managed. On March 1, 1886, he was appointed postmaster of Tilsit, which office he still holds. He is also engaged in the general mercantile business, having purchased a store in August, 1887. On January 25, 1879, he was united in marriage with Minnie Feuerbahn, a native of Cape Girardeau County. Their union has been blessed by the birth of five children, viz.: Sidona, Agnes, Mary, Albert and Hulda. Mr. Kipping and wife are communicants of the Lutheran Church.

Louis F. Klostermann, proprietor of "The Bee" store, was born in Levern, Westphalia, Germany, February 23, 1837, attending the public schools at Levern until the age of fourteen. When he came to America he first located for a short time in Cincinnati, Ohio, but upon leaving that city he moved to Cape Girardeau, Mo. At the age of fifteen he commenced clerking in grocery and dry goods houses in Cape Girardeau, which he continued till 1861. He then raised a company of Union soldiers from Cape Girardeau and Scott Counties for the Twenty-ninth Missouri Infantry, of which company he was made second lieutenant. He was severely wounded in 1862 at Chickasaw Bayou, near Vicksburg. After remaining in the hospital at St. Louis four months he returned to his regiment, but, finding that the condition of his wounds prevented him from resuming active duty, he resigned in May, 1863. Returning to Cape Girardeau he received the appointment of postmaster, which position he filled until 1882 (nineteen years). In 1883 he embarked in the retail dry goods and clothing business, and in January, 1887, he purchased his present store, and at the same time bought the Cape City Woolen Mills. He also owns a half interest in the Cape Girardeau Foundry. In 1866 he was united in marriage with Matilda Tribelhorn, a native of Jackson, Mo. They have had two sons and two daughters, of whom one son is dead. Mr. Klostermann represented his county in the State Legislature of 1884 and 1885. In politics he is a Republican. He is a member of the A. F. & A. M., Select Knights, and the A. O. U. W.

John W. Knox, a farmer of Cape Girardeau County, residing near Shawneetown, was born in Perry County, Mo., on February 15, 1839. He is the son of Ezekiel Knox, a native of Rowan County, N. C., born in 1801. The latter immigrated to Missouri when a young man (in 1829) and located in Perry County, where he married Mary E. Hughey, also a native of North Carolina, born in 1808. She remained in her native State until she reached womanhood. After their marriage Mr. Knox entered land and improved a farm in Perry County, where he resided until his death in August, 1860. John W. grew to manhood on his father's farm. On November 10, 1859, he was united in marriage with Martha E. McNeely, daughter of Ezekiel McNeely, a native of North Carolina. Mrs. Knox was born and reared in Perry County. After his marriage Mr. Knox engaged in farming for four years in his native county, and in November, 1864 removed to Cape Girardeau County and bought the farm where he now resides. Mr. and Mrs. Knox are members of the Presbyterian Church. They have four children, viz.: Chloe A. (wife of L. L. McNeely, a farmer of Cape Girardeau County), Lillie (a young lady at home), Willis (now in school at the State University) and Walter (a young man fifteen years of age). Mr. Knox is a member of the A. O. U. W., also a member of the organization of the Patrons of Husbandry.

Louis F. Rostermann

Frederick Kurre, postmaster of Kurreville, is a native of Cape Girardeau County, and was born on the farm where he now resides, on January 23, 1857. He is a son of Henry Kurre, a native of Germany, who immigrated to the United States when a young man. He came to Missouri in 1842 and entered land, which he afterward cultivated. In 1844 he was united in marriage with Mollie Haupt, also a native of Germany. She died in 1861, leaving three children: Frederick, Mary (wife of A. Estes) and Caroline (Mrs. Herman Hahsler). Henry Kurre engaged in the mercantile business in Kurreville in 1860, which he continued in connection with farming until his death on April 16, 1887, at the age of sixty-seven. He left his second wife, by whom he had seven children; Frederick grew to manhood on his father's farm, and when twenty-one years of age assumed an interest in his father's store, which he sold after three years and engaged in the manufacture of lumber at Burfordville. He remained in the lumber business, meanwhile managing a farm, until the death of his father, when he removed back to Kurreville and took charge of the store. He was appointed postmaster in June, 1887, his father having held that position since 1879. On January 25, 1880 he was united in marriage with Alice Bast, who was born in Cape Girardeau County, and is the daughter of G. W. Bast of Burfordville. Three children have been born to this union: Freda, Lela (who was born in January, 1893, and died July 27, 1884) and Flossie. Mr. Kurre is a member of the German Lutheran Church.

William E. Lang, a substantial farmer and stock raiser of Cape Girardeau County, was born on the farm where he now resides on May 23, 1843. His father, Dr. David Lang, was a native of Germany, in which country he grew to manhood and received his education, both literary and professional. He immigrated to America while a young man, and settled on the land now owned by his son, William E. He was married in Cape Girardeau County to Mrs. Dorothy E. Bruhl, widow of Dr. Bruhl. Dr. Lang practiced his profession in the neighborhood of his home about seven years, and died on July 5, 1846. He had a family of two sons and one daughter who grew to maturity and married. One son now resides in Kansas. William E. grew to manhood on the farm, and on August 1, 1864, enlisted in the Fiftieth Missouri Infantry, with which he served until he received his discharge on April 15, 1865. During his service he was on post duty at Cape Girardeau. After the war he returned home, and, on October 30, 1866, was united in marriage with Mary Schultz, also a native of Cape Girardeau County. They have reared a family of eight children. Mr. Lang has 299 acres of good land, 220 of which are under cultivation, and upon which is a large dwelling house and other buildings. Mr. Lang is giving considerable attention to raising improved stock, such as Shorthorn cattle and graded Cleveland Bay horses. He is the owner of the only Cleveland Bay stallion known in Southeast Missouri, and is also engaged in breeding Cotswold sheep and Berkshire hogs. Politically he is a Republican, and has served as justice of the peace. He is a member of the Grange organization. Mrs. Lang is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Peter Lehner, merchant at Pocahtontas, Cape Girardeau County, and a member of the firm of Lehner & Schoen, was born in Austria, on May 23, 1850. He is a son of Mathias and Teresa Lehner, both natives of Austria. They immigrated to the United States in 1854, and settled in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., where the father died two years after their arrival. Peter remained in that county until he was sixteen years of age, when he went to Perry County and learned the saddler's trade, at which he worked in that county for three years. In 1867 he went to St. Louis, and worked at his trade two years, in the meantime attending night school. He had by his own exertion received a fair education in both the German and English languages. Upon leaving St. Louis he returned to Perry County and located at Wittenberg, where he engaged as clerk in his brother-in-law's store for a number of years. He then, in the fall of 1876, came back to Cape Girardeau County and engaged in his present business. He and partner are successors of John Bonney. They carry a stock of general merchandise, including hardware and farm implements, and are doing a good business. Mr. Lehner was married in Perry County in October, 1873, to Mary Birner, a native of that county. His wife died in 1883, having borne three children, of whom but one daughter is living—Bertha. In July, 1884, he was again united in marriage, choosing for his second wife Bertha Wichter, a native of Cape Girardeau County. Two children have blessed this union, viz.:

Rudolph and Louisa. Mr. and Mrs. Lehner are members of the Lutheran Church.

Joseph C. Lewis was born in Cape Girardeau County, June 9, 1820, and is a son of Thomas H. Lewis, also a native of Cape Girardeau County. The grandfather, Joseph Lewis, was a native of Virginia, who removed to Missouri and located on what is known as Lewis Prairie, in New Madrid County. He resided there during the great earthquake, soon after which he removed to Cape Girardeau County and located near the city of Cape Girardeau. Thomas H. Lewis grew to manhood at the home of his parents, and married Fannie Bohannon, a daughter of George Bohannon, an early settler of Cape Girardeau County, from Jefferson County, Ky. Mrs. Lewis was born in Kentucky, but was reared in Cape Girardeau County, Mo. After his marriage Mr. Lewis settled in the vicinity of Joseph C. Lewis' present home, and resided there until his death from cholera in 1832. His wife lived until January 7, 1857. They were the parents of three children: Thomas H. (who died about 1878), Frances (Mrs. O. L. Harwell, of Cape Girardeau County) and Joseph C. The last named grew to maturity in his native county, and in the spring of 1852 went to California, making the trip, which required about four months, overland. He spent about one and one-half years in the mines of that State, and returned by water via New Orleans. He reached home December 5, 1854, soon after which he purchased and located upon his present farm in Cape Girardeau Township, Cape Girardeau County. At the time of his purchase some of the land was cleared, upon which was a comfortable log residence and barn. He now has a tract of about 390 acres, which is handsomely improved. On November 16, 1855, Mr. Lewis was united in marriage with Elizabeth A., daughter of William Randol, who is a member of one of the early families of Cape Girardeau County. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis were both born and married on the same farm. Seven children have been born to them, viz.: Charles T., John S., Martha (Mrs. John Hitt), Joseph G., Fannie E., Robert C. and Mary L. Mr. Lewis is a Mason, and a member of the Royal Arch Chapter at Cape Girardeau.

Edward S. Lilly, a member of the late firm of Edward S. Lilly & Co., and a prominent dealer in hardware, iron and steel, is a native of Adams County, Penn. He was born in 1851, and is the son of Joseph and Catherine (Reilly) Lilly. The father was born July 4, 1814. His ancestors came from England to America in 1730, and located in Pennsylvania, in which State and Maryland the family have since resided. They followed woolen manufacturing just 100 years from 1730. The mother was born in 1816, and is still living. Her father immigrated to America from the North of Ireland in 1785. Edward S. was reared and educated in his native State and in Maryland. He engaged in agricultural pursuits until he removed from Pennsylvania to Cape Girardeau County in 1871. He was employed as clerk in Philip Reilly's hardware store for nine years. This hardware establishment was founded by James I. Reilly in 1848. The firm as above mentioned, Leo Doyle being the other member, succeeded Philip Reilly on August 9, 1880, but on the 1st of January the partnership was dissolved. Mr. Lilly succeeding to the business. In 1881 Mr. Lilly was united in marriage with Nattie Albert, a native of Cape Girardeau. Their union has been blessed by three children—two sons and one daughter.

J. W. Limbaugh, attorney at law, Jackson, Mo., was born in Apple Creek Township, Cape Girardeau County, on December 7, 1852. He was reared on the farm, and received his education at Westminster College, in Callaway County, and the State Normal at Cape Girardeau. He afterward taught school, and studied law with Houck & Ranney, of Cape Girardeau. Later he went to Lake County, Tenn., where he continued to teach school, and where he was admitted to the bar in 1878. He began practice at Jackson in 1881 in partnership with R. B. Oliver, with whom he continued until January 1, 1886. In 1881 he was united in marriage with Miss Annie Moon, who is a native of Cape Girardeau County. Mr. Limbaugh is the son of J. W. and Hannah A. (Wilkinson) Limbaugh, both natives of Cape Girardeau County. The former was born in 1826, and died in 1852 of cholera.

Amos Link was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., on August 23, 1824. He is the son of Daniel and Eleanor (Keepers) Link, both natives of Lincoln County, N. C. The father, who was born in 1794, came with his father, John Link, to Missouri in 1811. He served in the War of 1812, and was a farmer and stock raiser by vocation. He died in Cape Girardeau County on March 31, 1850. The parents reared a family of five sons and six daughters, of whom four sons and six daughters are still living, and, with the exception of one, residing in Cape Girardeau County. Daniel Link resides in Dade County, Mo. Amos is the third child. He was reared at his father's home. On May 22, 1856, he was united in marriage with Miss Mary Waller, who was born and reared in Williamson County, Tenn. After marriage they lived for three years on a farm near the gravel road, but in 1858 bought and settled on the place where they now reside, six miles west from Jackson. He owns 265 acres of good land, of which about 200 acres are moderately improved, and upon which he has a large brick residence and outbuildings. He and wife are members of the Universalist Church. They have one daughter, Mary (Mrs. Albert English).

Andrew Litzelfelner, a substantial farmer residing near Pocahtontas, Cape Girardeau County, is a native of Austria, born on May 10, 1833. He is a son of Joseph and Anna Litzelfelner, also natives of Austria. The family immigrated to America in 1853, and settled in Cape Girardeau County, where the subject of this sketch now resides. They pre-empted 160 acres, which was a dense woodland. Ninety acres of the farm are now under cultivation, and the present owner has lately found silver ore, some specimens of which he is having assayed, besides china clay and ocher. There is also red marble on the farm. Joseph Litzelfelner died on October 4, 1874; his wife died in Scott County in 1860. Andrew, while in his own country, learned the stone mason and plasterer's trade, which he followed about twenty years. On November 22, 1855, he was united in marriage with Eva M. Meyer, also a native of Austria. They have seven children living, viz.: Joseph C., August H., Martha (Mrs. Henry Kinninger), Mary (Mrs. Bernhart Landgarf), Bertha, William and Benjamin. The children dead are Amelia (who died at the age of fifteen years), a son (aged nine years) and an infant. Mrs. Litzelfelner and her mother, Catherine Meyer, immigrated to America in 1853, paying their transportation by service in this country at from $2 to $3 per month. During the war Mr. L. enlisted, October 1, 1861, for six months in the Fourth Missouri Regiment, under Capt. Weaver. Subsequently he entered as second lieutenant in Company I, under Capt. Tackey, of the State Militia, June 1, 1862. He was in active service about seven months.

Joseph C. Litzelfelner, a successful merchant and a senior member of the firm of Litzelfelner & Bro., general merchants and receivers and shippers at Neely's Landing, Cape Girardeau County, was born in that county on May 10, 1857. He is the son of Andrew Litzelfelner [see sketch]. He remained on his father's farm until he had reached his majority, and received a liberal education in the district schools. In the fall of 1879 he engaged as clerk in a store at Shawneetown, and while there he became well acquainted with the business. Remaining there as clerk till 1884 he engaged in his present business, and formed the partnership as before stated. The members of this firm are the successors of D. B. Seibert. They occupy a good store room, carry a fine stock of goods and command a lucrative trade. They also have charge of the freighting and shipping business at that point. Joseph C. was married on April 30, 1882, to Camilia V., daughter of L. N. Torrence (whose sketch appears in this work). Mrs. Litzelfelner was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. Three sons have blessed their marriage: Robert E., Harry V. and Joseph F. Mr. Litzelfelner has been postmaster at Neely's Landing since January 5, 1885. Mrs. Litzelfelner is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

August H. Litzelfelner, a promising young merchant and a member of the firm of Litzelfelner & Bro., at Neely's Landing, Cape Girardeau County, was born in that county on February 2, 1859. He is the son of Andrew and Eva M. (Meyer) Litzelfelner [see sketch]. He spent his youth on his father's farm, which he left in November, 1882, and began a clerkship in a store at Neely's Landing. He held that position about two years, during which time he learned the merchandising business. He and brother then formed the present partnership, and engaged in merchandising on their own account. August H. was married on June 14, 1885, to Willie M. Hansel, daughter of William Hansel, deceased. Mrs. Litzelfelner was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County, and is a member of the Presbyterian Church. Their union has been blessed by one daughter, named Bessie C.

Christian Lowes, a substantial farmer and stock raiser of Randol Township, Cape Girardeau County, was born in the Province of Hanover, Germany, April 28, 1831, and is a son of Christopher Lowes, also a native of Hanover. The family immigrated to the United States in the fall of 1851. Landing at New Orleans they went to Cape Girardeau, and located near Appleton in Cape Girardeau County. The father bought 100 acres of land, and improved a farm, upon which he resided until his death, about 1867. Christian Lowes received a good education, and remained with his father about five years after his removal to America. In November, 1855, he was united in marriage with Wilmena Grave, a native of Brunswick, Germany. Directly after his marriage Mr. Lowes purchased new land, upon which he located. He has more than 500 acres, with about 190 acres under cultivation. The land is in two tracts, there being 313 acres in the home farm, upon which he has fair buildings and other improvements. Mr. and Mrs. Lowes have had a family of eight children, seven of whom are living: Henry, residing in Cape Girardeau County; Caroline, Mrs. George Meyers; Minnie, Mrs. Henry Heisa, of Cape Girardeau County; Charles, a young man at home; Augusta, a young lady; Anna and Johannah. Mr. and Mrs. Lowes and family are members of the Lutheran Church. They have one child dead, Minnie, who died at three years of age.

Caspar Ludwig, brewer and saloon keeper at Appleton, Mo., is a native of Germany, born December, 23, 1829. He is the son of Conrad and Margaret Ludwig, both natives of Germany. The parents immigrated to America in 1853, and located at Appleton, Mo., where they both died a few weeks after their arrival. Caspar grew to manhood in his native country, and there learned the cooper's and brewer's trades. In 1856 he started his brewery in Appleton, which business he has since followed, brewing an average of about 800 barrels per year. He also engaged in the saloon business about the same time. In 1862 he enlisted in the Enrolled Missouri Militia, and was called out but a few times, and remained not more than two months at a time. In 1854 he was united in marriage with Margaret Ross, a native of Germany. His wife died one year after their marriage, and on December 15, 1856, he was married to Catherine Schreiner, who was born in Germany but reared in Cape Girardeau County, Mo. Six children have been born to them, viz.: Mary (Mrs. Gabe Lottes), Harmon, Louisa (Mrs. Dr. Wilson), William, Julia and Bertie. Mr. Ludwig is a member of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Peter Ludwig, a successful farmer and stock raiser residing two and one-half miles east of Oak Ridge, is a native of Germany, born on February 29, 1840. He is the son of John and Mary (Karben) Ludwig, both natives of Germany. The parents immigrated to the United States in 1855, locating in Cape Girardeau County, Mo. They bought land, and improved the farm upon which their son, Peter Ludwig, now resides, and upon which the father lived until his death in October, 1885, being eighty-one years and six months old. He lived to see two of his god-grandchildren. The mother died soon after arriving in America. Peter was fifteen years of age when he came with his parents to Missouri, and had received a good education in his native country. In August, 1861, he enlisted in the Union army, joining Company I, Eighth Missouri Infantry under Col. Morgan L. Smith. He served with that regiment for three years and participated in all of its engagements. The most important battles were Pittsburg Landing (in which he received a slight wound), Corinth, all of the battles around Vicksburg, Jackson, Miss., Chattanooga, Lookout Mountain, Missionary Ridge and Knoxville. After his discharge he returned home, and on May 30, 1865, was united in marriage with Elizabeth Gratz, daughter of Mathias Gratz (deceased). Mrs. Ludwig was born in Germany, but came to Cape Girardeau County, when quite young. After his marriage Mr. Ludwig took charge of the old home farm. He has 140 acres of land with about ninety acres under cultivation, upon which he has a good residence and other buildings and all necessary machinery for farming. He and wife have a family of six children, viz.: Ferdinand, M. J., Mary K., Henry W., Minnie R., William B. and Ida M. Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig are members of the Lutheran Church. Mr. Ludwig is a member of the Farmers' Mutual Benefit Association.

Dr. Samuel M. McAnally, of Stroderville, Cape Girardeau County, is a native of Tennessee, born in Shelbyville, Bedford County, on February 6, 1838. He is a son of William M. and Jane R. (McMullen) McAnally, natives of Tennessee. William M. McAnally was a tailor, and followed his trade at Shelbyville until his death. Dr. Samuel M. is the youngest of two sons and two daughters, who grew to maturity in their native town. He secured a good education at McMinnville College, Tennessee, and in 1856 began the study of medicine under the direction of Dr. Barksdale, of Shelbyville, and continued with him for three years. In the winter of 1859 he entered the Missouri Medical College of St. Louis, and was finishing his second year at that institution when the war broke out. Owing to military operations in St. Louis he did not complete the course, but went to Springfield, Ill., and enlisted in the Sixth Illinois Cavalry in March, 1863. He participated in the engagements at Franklin, Tenn.; Selma, Ala.; Meridian, Miss., and a number of skirmishes. He received his discharge at Selma, Ala., in December, 1865, after which he returned to Shelbyville, and was engaged in stock trading until March, 1867. He then came to Missouri, and commenced practicing his profession at Kennett, Dunklin County, in partnership with Dr. J. W. McAnally. On June 6, 1868, he married Melissa M. Thompson, daughter of Judge Anderson P. Thompson, of Dunklin County. The next year Dr. McAnally located at Fredericktown, Madison, Co., Mo., remaining there until 1871, when he removed to White Water Station, Cape Girardeau County. He remained at the later place, engaged in the mercantile business in connection with the practice of his profession, until 1873, when he removed to Northwest Arkansas. In 1880 he returned to Cape Girardeau County, and located where he now resides. He has since been engaged in practicing medicine, and managing a farm which he owns on the Bloomfield road. He took a course of lectures at Nashville in 1866. The Doctor has traveled extensively in the United States. He and wife have reared a family of two sons and three daughters: Anna, Mary D., Samuel J., Maud R. and Hughey. Dr. McAnally is a member of the A. F. & A. M., and of the I. O. O. F.

James W. McBryde, a farmer and stock raiser of Byrd Township, Cape Girardeau County, was born in Chatham County, N. C., on May 21, 1832. He is the son of Archie and Rebecca (Coffee) McBryde, the former a native of Scotland, and the latter of North Carolina. When a young man the father immigrated to the United States, located in North Carolina and resided there until his death. James W. is the third son of a family of five sons and three daughters, all of whom grew to maturity. He left home at the age of fourteen years, and went to Tennessee, where he learned the carpenter's trade. He worked at his trade a number of years in Memphis and other parts of West Tennessee. While in Memphis on January 14, 1848, he was united in marriage with Mrs. Harriet Baker Dixon, daughter of Edward Gordon. She was born in Ohio where the city of Cincinnati now stands. Directly after marriage they removed to Missouri, and settled on the farm where they now reside. He managed his farm and worked at his trade for about five years, but since that time has given his time to his farm except some carpentering for himself. He at first bought sixty-five acres, but he now owns 298 acres which are in two farms, both of which are well improved. He and wife have had two children, of whom one son, Edward, is living. He is married, and lives on one of his father's farms. Rebecca died in infancy. In politics Mr. McBryde was formerly a Whig, but is now a Democrat.

John M. McClean, a traveling salesman, also proprietor of the Riverview Hotel at Cape Girardeau, was born in that city in 1847. He is the second of three children of Moses McClean, who was born in Adams County, Penn., in 1798. The father, in his childhood, was taken by his parents to Chillicothe, Ohio, and when nineteen years of age (in 1817) came from Ohio to Missouri. Locating at Cape Girardeau he engaged in the tanner's business, which trade he had previously learned. He at once built a small tannery at the present site of the Bee Store, and in a short time had his leather for sale at all the principal points within a radius of many miles. He made periodical trips throughout the adjacent counties, furnishing his customers with leather and buying hides for the supply of his tannery. Prior to his death, January 1, 1880, his trade had so increased that he began the manufacture of shoes, harness, etc. He was married in 1844 to Margaret Ferguson, a native of Versailles, Ky., whose death occurred on December 7, 1874. The Riverview Hotel was built prior to the war, and was then known as the Johnson House. After the war T. J. Rodney purchased and improved it, giving it the name of Marble City Hotel, which name it retained until Mr. McClean took charge, January 1, 1887, when it received its present appropriate name. At present it is owned by P. R. Van Frank.

John S. McGhee, A. M., professor of mathematics in the State Normal School at Cape Girardeau, is a native of Newton County, Mo. He was born January 9, 1849, and is the son of C. W. and Amanda C. (Wells) McGhee. The former was a native of Grainger County, Tenn., and the latter of Virginia. The parents were of Scotch descent. The father was born in 1818. After his marriage he removed with his family to Newton County, Mo., in 1846. In 1857 they removed from that county to Wayne County, Mo., where both the parents died in 1876. John S. is one of eight children reared to maturity. When eight years of age he located with his parents in Wayne County, Mo., and resided there twelve years. His education was begun in an academy and the public schools, and he followed agricultural pursuits and teaching school until he graduated from the State Normal School at Kirksville in 1875, since which time teaching has been his only occupation. After graduating he taught two years in the public schools of Pierce City, and in 1879 came to Cape Girardeau to accept his present position. In 1878 he was united in marriage with Josie Johnson, a native of Pierce City, Mo. Three children have been born to them, of whom one, a daughter, is living. Prof. McGhee is a member of the I. O. O. F., the A. O. U. W., and the Select Knights. He and family are members of the Presbyterian Church.

The McGuire family has an extensive connection in Cape Girardeau County. They are descendants of Col. William McGuire, who came from Kentucky to Missouri in 1818. He was the son of John McGuire, and was born in the "Old Dominion" about 1779. When a youth he went to Kentucky, where, in 1806, he married Miss Susannah Daniel, also a native of Virginia. During the War of 1812 he served as a lieutenant in a Kentucky company, and after his return home was elected to the Legislature. Upon his arrival in Missouri he located in Jackson, where he conducted a tanyard. He was an intelligent and popular gentleman, and served one term in the Missouri Legislature. He died on July 20, 1857. His family consisted of four sons and seven daughters. They were John Willis (who married a daughter of Johnson Ranney), James M. (who married successively Lucinda Farrar, Martha Farrar and Rachel Ferguson), William E. (who married Elizabeth Farrar), Elizabeth (Mrs. Greer W. Davis), Susan (Mrs. Adlai Brevard), Bernard S. (who married Mary De Lashmutt), Emily (Mrs. Robert Brown), Mary M., Lucretia (Mrs. Dr. William West), Sarah A. (Mrs. Dr. D. T. Pace), and Amanda (Mrs. J. D. McFarland). At the breaking out of the Civil War the four McGuire brothers—John Willis, James Madison, William E. and Bernard S.—were opposed to secession, while those of their sons who were old enough sympathized with the South and joined her armies. William E. McGuire expressed his disapproval of the South's course by taking an ax and publicly chopping down in the presence of a town full of rebel volunteers the first Confederate flag-pole they raised. But when what was known as the Iron Clad Oath was proposed to him he refused to take it, and rather than go to prison he decided to follow the fortunes of the South, and went with his two sons, G. W. and J. W., to the Southern army. He died in 1863 from harsh treatment received in Northern prisons. His son, John W., was killed at the age of twenty-one, in a fight at Glasgow, Mo., while with Price on his raid into the State in 1863. John Willis and Bernard S. McGuire died shortly after the war, and James M. at his home in Jackson, Mo., in 1888.

James McKenna, member of the firm and manager of the store of A. Landau & Co., dealers in hides, furs, wool, feathers, tallow, deerskins, etc., at Cape Girardeau, is a native of Decatur County, Tenn. He is the son of C. J. McKenna, a native of Ireland, who removed from his native land to America locating in Tennessee, where he was married to a Miss Bowman. The father died in Texas. The mother is still living. She and a daughter are now making their home with our subject. He was brought by his parents in childhood to Cape Girardeau, and when twelve or fourteen years of age, began clerking in a store, which occupation he continued until he was eighteen years of age. He was then employed in a hide house in St. Louis for four years, after which, April 1, 1885, he returned to Cape Girardeau and succeeded in forming the present firm, and secured the position he now fills as manager of the business. They have the most extensive trade of any similar establishment in Southern Missouri, amounting to about $30,000 per annum. In June, 1885, Mr. McKenna was married to a St. Louis lady, and has since made Cape Girardeau his home. He is a member of the I. O. O. F.

James W. McLane was born in Cape Girardeau County on March 16, 1830. He is the son of Judge Joseph R. and Jane (Gilliland) McLane, both natives of North Carolina. The father was born February 14, 1799. Directly after his marriage, in 1820, he removed to Missouri, and located in Randol Township, Cape Girardeau County, where he resided two years. He then bought a homestead in Apple Creek Township. He afterward entered more land, and resided there until 1855, when he sold his land and removed to Stoddard County, where he resided about ten years, and returned to Cape Girardeau County. He was a millwright by trade, at which he worked most of his time. He served as county judge of Cape Girardeau County. Politically he was an old-time Whig, but, upon the dissolution of that party, identified himself with the Democratic party. He was married four times, and died in February, 1866. There were nine children by the first marriage, of whom James W. was the fifth. He was reared at his father's home, and in 1850 went to California by the overland route, making the trip from the Missouri River in about ninety days. He returned by the way of Aspinwall, Panama and New Orleans, reaching home in July, 1854. He then bought an interest in a store in Bollinger County, which he sold in 1859, and went to Pike's Peak. In 1860 he took the census of Bollinger County. On April 1, 1862, he was united in marriage with Rachel, daughter of James R. Johnson, one of the early settlers of Bollinger County, having removed there about 1808. After marriage Mr. McLane engaged in farming one year in Bollinger County, but in 1863 bought the mill property at Appleton, and engaged in milling for ten years. He then bought a farm in Apple Creek Township, which he cultivated for ten years, and in September, 1883, bought the farm where he now resides about one-half mile north of Oak Ridge, consisting of 252 acres of land mostly in cultivation. Mr. and Mrs. McLane lost two children in early childhood, and have three living, viz.: Ora, Nora and Idona. Mrs. McLane is a member of the Baptist Church. Mr. McLane is a Master Mason.

John W. McLeary, an enterprising farmer and stock raiser of Randolph Township, Cape Girardeau County, was born on the farm which is now his home, November 25, 1848. He is a son of William McLeary, who came to Missouri with his parents, when a young man (about 1830), and located in Cape Girardeau County. He afterward married Martha Smith, a native of Cape Girardeau County. He entered land and improved the farm upon which John W. now resides, and upon which the former lived until his death about 1859. His widow survived him many years, and proved a kind, loving protector to her children. She and husband were the parents of five sons and three daughters that grew to mature years, all of whom are living. Each child received a good education, and six of the eight children have been teachers in Cape Girardeau County. The sons are graduates of the Southeastern Missouri Normal at Cape Girardeau, and have chosen teaching as a profession; one is now in Texas, and the other is superintendent of the Charleston schools. The mother died on November 4, 1883. The homestead, which is undivided, belongs to the children. The subject of this sketch is now successfully managing the farm, and his two sisters, formerly teachers, reside with him.

George W. McNeely was born in Cape Girardeau County on February 7, 1836. He is the son of John R. McNeely, a native of North Carolina. The latter was reared in his native State, and was married there to Mary Shuford, who was also a native of North Carolina, born in 1807. After their marriage they immigrated to Missouri, and settled in Cape Girardeau County in 1833. There they entered land and improved a farm, upon which Mrs. McNeely still resides. Although Mr. McNeely was a cooper by trade he managed his farm during his life, and died there about 1843. They were the parents of six children, four of whom are living. One son, Archibald, resides in California. The two other sons and the daughter live in Cape Girardeau County. George W. grew to manhood on his father's farm, and in 1858 was united in marriage with Marillus Hale, daughter of Thomas Hale. After his marriage Mr. McNeely rented land for a few years, but located upon the farm where he now resides in 1868, having purchased it two years previously. His wife died on May 4, 1866, leaving three children, whose names are John T., Mollie (Mrs. W. P. Merton) and Dovey Ann. Mr. McNeely chose for his second wife Mary Mitchell, daughter of Anderson Mitchell, a pioneer citizen of Cape Girardeau County, who came from North Carolina. They were married on April 22, 1868. Mrs. McNeely was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. They have two children, viz.: Ruthie and Augusta. They are also rearing Mrs. McNeely's sister's child, Henry E. McLard. Mr. and Mrs. McNeely are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He is a member of the Farmers' Mutual Benefit Association. He and son are Republicans in politics, and are members of the Grange.

of Cape Girardeau County, born on June 1, 1841. He is a son of John and Jane (Miller) McNeely, both of whom were natives of North Carolina. The latter was of Irish descent. He came to Missouri in 1828, and settled in Cape Girardeau County, near Pocahontas. He resided there about ten years, and went back to his native State for his wife. Returning with his bride, the following spring, he entered land and improved a farm, where he resided until his death about 1875. John N. McNeely grew to manhood on his father's farm, but from early childhood had a natural taste and desire for machinery, and early learned to use tools. He started a machine shop at Shawneetown about 1867, which he conducted for ten years, after which he located at Jackson and worked in machine shops for one year and a half. He then located at Fruitland, and established his repair shops and foundry two years later. He also has a portable saw mill. Mr. McNeely is an enterprising man, and his repair shops have proved a valuable enterprise for the people of this vicinity. In February, 1891, he was united in marriage with Ann (Alexander) Daniels, daughter of Robert A. Alexander. Mr. McNeely had been married three times previous to this, and has six children, viz.: William, George, Nellie, John, Carl and Harry. Mrs. McNeely has three children by her first husband: Robert, Emma (Mrs. Ernest H. Brühl) and George. Mr. McNeely and family are members of Pleasant Hill Presbyterian Church. He is a Master Mason, and he and wife and four children are members of the Grange.

Henry Martens, a substantial farmer of Cape Girardeau County, was born in Germany, January 18, 1833, and is a son of Henry and Hannah (Phillips) Martens, both natives of Germany. The family emigrated from their native country to the United States in 1846. Landing at New Orleans they came to Missouri, and located in the same neighborhood in which the subject of this sketch now resides. The father, Henry Martens, Sr., died on his farm in 1883; his wife had died some time previously, in 1864. Henry Martens, Jr., grew to manhood on his father's farm, and received a good common school education. On May 31, 1857, he married Dorothea Schmidt, daughter of Frank J. Schmidt, now a resident of Cape Girardeau. Mrs. Martens was born in Germany, and was brought to the United States by her parents, when but fourteen years of age. After his marriage, Mr. Martens located on a farm near his present home, and was engaged in farming until the war. He had previously learned the cooper's trade, which he followed in connection with farming for a couple of years. In September, 1861, he enlisted in the Federal army, and was assigned to Company G, First Missouri Engineer Regiment, with which he served until he received his discharge. His work was with a bridge engineer corps, and he participated in but one fight, which was against Price, on the Tallahatche below Corinth. While building a bridge at luka, on the Memphis & Charleston Railroad, in October, 1863, he met with an accident which mashed both his limbs, after which he remained in hospital about one year in a critical condition, but with the care of a good physician he managed to save both limbs. He received his discharge in June, 1864, and returned home disabled for life. He removed to his present farm, upon which he has a good residence and outbuildings, in 1883. He and wife are members of the Baptist Church. They have eight children, born as follows: Caroline (Mrs. Henry King), of St. Louis, December 23, 1858; Dorothea (Mrs. Henry Mahnicke), of Cape Girardeau, June 21, 1860; Martha, January 8, 1862; Henry J., May 25, 1865; Herminnie, July 5, 1870; William F., July 8, 1875; Frank, June 1, 1880, and Emma, May 1, 1882. Mr. Martens is a member of the Grand Army lodge at Cape Girardeau.

Joseph D. Massey, a substantial farmer of Cape Girardeau County, residing two miles north of Oak Ridge, was born in Macon County, Tenn., on October 26, 1844. He is the son of Abijah P. and Judy (Coker) Massey, the former a native of North Carolina, and the latter of Tennessee. Abijah P. was taken by his parents to Tennessee when an infant, and was reared in Macon County. In 1859 he removed his family to Cape Girardeau County, Mo., and located about five miles north of the town of Cape Girardeau, where he resided and engaged in farming until his death, in 1874. His widow is now living at Cape Girardeau with a son and daughter. The parents reared a family of seven children, of whom three sons and two daughters are now living. One son is in Dakota, the other two are in Cape Girardeau County. Joseph D. enlisted in the Confederate army on July 29, 1862, serving in Col. Jeffrey's regiment of cavalry about one and one-half years, and about the same length of time with Maj. Pratt's light artillery. He was in the fight of Little Missouri River, and in all of the engagements of Price's raid. Among others were Pilot Knob, Glasgow, Boonville, Blue Mills and Independence. He was wounded in the thigh at Bloomfield. Returning home after the war he was united in marriage, on March 5, 1868, with Elmina Story, daughter of Jesse and M. (Whitney) Story. Mrs. Massey was born, reared and married in Cape Girardeau County. Two children have blessed this union, viz.: Charles W. and Ida L. Mr. Massey commenced life, after his marriage, with no means, but by hard work, good habits and good management has secured a nice home, which he bought in April, 1884. His farm contains 100 acres, all fenced, of which eighty acres are in cultivation.

Medad Masterson, a substantial farmer of Randol Township, Cape Girardeau County, was born in that county on November 25, 1829. His grandfather, David Masterson, was born in Nelson County, Ky. He served in one of the Indian wars, and received a land warrant for 160 acres of land. He came to Missouri in 1809, and settled within one mile of where the subject of this sketch now resides. He pre-empted and afterward entered the land, and improved a farm upon which he resided until his death. His son, Elijah, the father of Medad, was born in Kentucky, but was brought to Missouri when an infant. He grew to manhood on his father's farm, and was married to Rebecca Hall, a native of North Carolina, who came to Missouri when seven years of age. Elijah entered the land and improved the farm upon which his son now resides, and upon which he lived until his death on June 20, 1852. His wife died on March 20, 1842. Medad Masterson is the eldest and the only survivor of a family of three children that lived to be grown. He spent his youth at his father's home, and was married in his native county on January 1, 1850, to Lucinda C. Phillips, daughter of Moses Phillips, deceased. She was born in Alexander County, Ill., on December 25, 1829. After his marriage Mr. Masterson engaged in farming, and after the death of his father he bought out the other heirs, and removed to the old homestead. He has 230 acres, with about 125 under cultivation, upon which he has a good residence, barn and other buildings. He and wife have five sons: William E. Masterson, born March 1, 1854, was married September 28, 1882, to Mollie F. Thompson, whose birth occurred February 29, 1856; they have one child Lucy, born March 20, 1886. John F. Masterson, born March 3, 1856, married, February 18, 1886, Mollie E. Campbell, who was born October 9, 1862; their only child, Garnett, was born December 8, 1896. Samuel L. Masterson was born January 6, 1858, married, November 16, 1882, Mary E. Hitt, who was born October 15, 1866, and they have two children, Luella E., born October 6, 1893, and Emory W., born July 15, 1896. Robert Jackson Masterson was born August 19, 1867, and Forrest Lee Masterson was born February 15, 1874.

J. A. Matteson, the subject of this sketch, is prominent in the business circles of Cape Girardeau as developing the natural resources of the county, and establishing a manufacturing enterprise, which promises to contribute much to the future prosperity of the city. Prior to 1881 a few shipments of potter's clay and yellow ocher had been made from Cape Girardeau County, but the task of thoroughly investigating and fully developing the mines of the above materials remained for Mr. Matteson, who began operations in 1881. The present capacity of J. A. Matteson & Co.'s Cape Girardeau mills is from six to ten tons daily. The company employ about a dozen laborers in their mills, and about twenty-five more to operate their half dozen mines in the county. Mr. Matteson is a native of New York. In early childhood he went to Chicago, and has since been identified with the paint business.

Charles P. Medley, a farmer and stock raiser of Byrd Township, was born in Marion County, Ky., on April 22, 1837. He is the son of John S. and Barbara Ann (Wathen) Medley. The former was a native of Kentucky, and the latter of Maryland. They removed to Missouri in 1855, and located on the farm now occupied by Charles P. The father served in the Kentucky State Senate for one term. He engaged in farming and stock dealing, and was quite a prominent man in his county. He died in November, 1866. The paternal grandfather, Ignatius Medley, served in the Revolutionary War, and married a granddaughter of Daniel Boone. The parents reared to maturity a family of eight children—six sons and two daughters—of whom four sons are still living. Charles P. came to Cape Girardeau County at the age of eighteen years. In 1861 he enlisted in the army, and participated in the engagements at Belmont, Fredericktown and Big River Bridge. In 1862 he returned home, and took charge of his father's farm. On November 24, 1875, he was united in marriage with Miss Anna G. Welling, daughter of the postmaster at Jackson. After marriage Mr.

Medley remained on the farm, where he has since resided. He and wife have reared a family of six children, viz.: Christina, Welling, Freddie, Connie, Robert and Bessie (twins). Mrs. Medley is a member of the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Medley holds to the Catholic faith.

Anton F. Meister, a merchant at Shawneetown, and a member of the firm of Torrence, Walker & Co., was born in Germany on October 22, 1840. He received a good education in his native country, and immigrated to the United States in 1860, landing at New Orleans in December of that year. He soon after located in Perry County, Mo., and engaged at work on a farm. During the war he served in the militia six months. Directly after the war he engaged in the mercantile business at Appleton in partnership with Mr. Schaefer (present collector of Cape Girardeau County). In 1870 the former sold his interest in the store and removed to Morgan County, and engaged in business at Excelsior. Remaining there three years he sold out and returned to Appleton. Soon after he purchased the Seibert farm in Perry County, and cultivated it from 1874 till 1879, when he sold it and removed to Shawneetown. The next year the present firm was formed, and Mr. Meister has since been an active partner in the business. Politically he is a Republican. In 1881 he was appointed postmaster at Shawneetown, which position he still holds. He had previously served as postmaster in Morgan County. On May 21, 1866, he was united in marriage in Perry County with Gabriella Hopfer, a native of Missouri. Their eldest child, a daughter, died in October, 1879, in her thirteenth year. They have twelve children living, viz.: Charles, Amelia, Benjamin, Louis, Theodore, Anton, Willie and Arthur (twins), Walter, and Martha, Alma and Adolph, (triplets). Mr. and Mrs. Meister are members of the Lutheran Church.

Julius and George Meyer, two enterprising farmers of Randol Township, Cape Girardeau County, are the sons of Henry and Caroline (Schweger) Meyer, both natives of Germany. They (the parents) immigrated to the United States in 1847, and located on new land in Randol Township. Mr. Meyer improved a farm, upon which he resided until his death in July, 1872. His widow still survives (1888). Julius Meyer, Jr. was born in the neighborhood of his present residence, November 28, 1848, and spent his youth at the home of his parents. In 1872 he went South, and spent about five years in Mississippi and other Southern States, working at the blacksmith's trade. He was in business for one year in Bolivar County, Miss. In 1877 he returned to Cape Girardeau County, and has since been engaged in farming. He has a shop upon his farm in which he still does his own blacksmithing. On October 26, 1876, he was united in marriage with Anna Happel, daughter of Theodore Happel, of Cape Girardeau County. After his marriage Mr. Meyer located on a farm, adjoining his father's, where he remained about one year, after which he removed to a farm in Cape Township. In 1883 he removed to his present farm consisting of 400 acres with 200 acres under cultivation. Mr. and Mrs. Meyer have had four children: Emma, William, Helena (deceased) and Charley. Mr. Meyer is a member of the Lutheran Church, and his wife is a Methodist. George Meyer was born on the farm, which is now his home on January 20, 1853. He grew to manhood at his father's home, and on October 30, 1878, he wedded Caroline Loves, a daughter of Christian Loves. She was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. After the death of his father Mr. Meyer bought the other heirs' interests in the old home place. He has a good farm of 320 acres with about 200 under cultivation, upon which he has a good residence and other buildings. He and wife are the parents of four children: Henry, Anna, Amelia and Julius. In politics Mr. Meyer is a Republican. Mr. Meyer and his wife belong to the Lutheran Church.

L. W. Miller, proprietor of Miller's saloon, Independence Street, Cape Girardeau, is a native of Prussia. He was born on November 30, 1828, and lived in his native country until he was twenty-four years of age. He then came to America and located at Cape Girardeau. At the beginning of the Civil War he enlisted in the Federal Army, joining Company F, Second Illinois Light Artillery, with which he served over three years. After the war he engaged in the retail liquor business in Cape Girardeau, which business he has since continued. During the summer of 1883 he built his present business house. He also has an interest in the Turner Hall Building. In 1860 he was united in marriage with Caroline Essick, also a native of Germany. One son has been born to them. His name is John L. Mr. Miller is the only member of his family who immigrated to America.

James H. Miller, a prominent farmer of Cape Girardeau County, was born near Millersville, that county, on November 1, 1841. He is a son of William Miller, born on January 12, 1819, who was also a native of Cape Girardeau County. The latter's father, Henry Miller, was a native of North Carolina, who came to Missouri with his father, John Miller, in 1802. John Miller received a grant of 640 acres of land near Millersville from the Spanish Government. William Miller grew to manhood on his father's farm, and was married to Sarah Acre, daughter of Rev. Christie Acre, whose family were among the early settlers of Cape Girardeau County from North Carolina. Mrs. Miller was born in Bollinger County, in which county Mr. Miller located after his marriage. Residing there about three years he removed to Cape Girardeau County, and afterward purchased the old homestead near Millersville, where he resided until his death, on November 18, 1862. His widow is still living (January, 1888). They were the parents of eight children who lived to be grown, of whom three sons and four daughters are still living, three sons and two daughters residing in Cape Girardeau County. James H. is the eldest living child. He grew to manhood on his father's farm, and in 1863 enlisted in the militia. He was elected second lieutenant of his company, and had command on one eleven days' scout, and during some skirmishing. He was only in active service about one month at a time. On February 22, 1863, he was united in marriage with Matilda Cauvey, a native of Cape Girardeau County. After his marriage he bought unimproved land, and located where he now resides. He now has a valuable farm of 540 acres, with about 300 acres under cultivation, upon which he has a large residence, good barns, other suitable farm buildings, and an orchard of about 400 trees. His wife died on February 4, 1877, leaving one son, E. S. Miller. On April 21, 1878, he wedded Maradia Edinger, a daughter of George Edinger, deceased. Mrs. Miller was born and reared in Bollinger County. There are four children by this union: Trentis V., Nilly Curtis, James E. and George A. Mr. Miller is a member of the Universalist Church, and of the A. O. U. W. He is a Republican in politics.

Alexander H. Miller, M. D., of Gordonville, Mo., is a native of Cape Girardeau County, where he first saw the light of day, on November 20, 1849. His father, Benjamin Miller, was born near Baltimore, Md., and with his parents came to the county when three years of age. He married Amanda, a daughter of Isaiah Poe, after which they lived in Scott County five years and then bought and located upon his farm, where he died in 1872. Alexander received a good English education in the common schools and Bellview Collegiate Institute at Caledonia and at the Southeast Missouri Normal. In the winter of 1875 he began the study of medicine with Dr. C. G. Wilson, of Cape Girardeau, and the following year entered the St. Louis Medical College, from which institution he graduated in March, 1878. He then practiced his profession at Smithville, Bollinger County for about five years, and at Cape Girardeau for one year. In December, 1884, he located at Gordonville, where the next year he opened a drug store. He is a successful practitioner, and is a respected member of the Southeast Missouri Medical Association. On November 3, 1880, he was united in marriage with Ellen Wilson, a daughter of Dr. W. B. Wilson, of Cape Girardeau. They have one daughter, Ann Wilson. The Doctor is a Royal Arch Mason, and in politics is a Democrat.

W. H. Miller is a native of Whitewater Township, Cape Girardeau Co., Mo., born September 28, 1856. He remained on his father's farm until he was eighteen years of age, when he entered the Southeast Missouri State Normal at Cape Girardeau, from which he graduated in 1878. He then entered the State University at Columbia and graduated in the law department in 1879. Upon leaving school he located in Jackson and was admitted to the bar. On October 5, 1881, he was united in marriage with Elizabeth Welling, a granddaughter of Maj. Bollinger. They have one child, Julien G. Mr. Miller is a member of the F. & A. M., and also of the A. O. U. W. The grandfather, Henry H. Miller, was born on the Cumberland River, Kentucky, where he was married, but he afterward removed to Cape Girardeau County, Mo., and located on what is now the old Miller farm, which is still in possession of the family. The father, Andrew Miller, was born on February 25, 1825, on the old farm, where he still resides. He was presiding judge of the county court from 1872 to 1878. The mother, Sophia Miller, was born on a farm adjoining that of her husband's. She died in 1856. They had a family of three sons and one daughter, of whom the daughter is dead. The father afterward married Sarah Hudson, who is still residing with him. She is the mother of three children—two sons and one daughter—of whom one son is dead.

Robert A. Minton, a progressive farmer of Randol Township, Cape Girardeau County, was born in that township, December 27, 1848. He is a son of Willis C. Minton, who was born in Virginia in 1800. When a young man he immigrated to Missouri, and located in Cape Girardeau County, after which he married Mary D. Hall, a native of North Carolina. After his marriage Mr. Minton bought new land, which he improved, and made a good home for himself and family. He died there on July 31, 1869, and his widow, October 17, 1877. Robert A. Minton grew to manhood on his father's farm, and received his education in the common schools. He was united in marriage in his native county, with Nancy Taylor, a daughter of Robert L. Taylor (deceased), and sister of Robert L. Taylor (whose sketch appears in this work). She was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. After his marriage Mr. Minton located on a farm in Randol Township, but purchased and located on his present farm in August, 1887. He has 177 acres of good land, with about 100 acres under cultivation, upon which he has a comfortable dwelling and outbuildings. Mr. and Mrs. Minton have a family of four children; Martha, Maggie E., Willis and Andrew Jefferson.

William H. Minton, a prosperous farmer of Randol Township, Cape Girardeau County, was born on the farm where he now resides, October 10, 1854. He is a son of Alfred Minton, also a native of Cape Girardeau County, to which his father, Hugh Minton, had immigrated in an early day from Kentucky. Alfred Minton grew to manhood in his native county, and was married there to Sarah Cook (now deceased), also a native of that county. After his marriage Mr. Minton located in the river bottoms in Randol Township, and engaged in farming. He made some valuable improvements on his farm, and resided there until 1882, when he removed to Cape Girardeau, to give his children the advantages of the schools. Mr. Minton has held several local offices in the county. William H. is the eldest of a family of eight children. He remained with his father until he reached his majority. On March 17, 1881, he was united in marriage with Miss Mattie C. Thompson, daughter of John Thompson (deceased). She was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. After his marriage Mr. Minton resided on the bottom farm for one year, after which he removed to his father's farm. In 1885 he built his present substantial residence, and located where he now resides. One son has been born to them, James Harry.

William P. Morton, a prominent farmer and stock raiser residing near Poca-hontas, Cape Girardeau County, was born in Carroll County, Tenn., on May 27, 1826. He is the son of James G. C. and Eliza (Steele) Morton, both natives of North Carolina. They removed from their native State to Tennessee, and resided there for several years. In March, 1831, they came to Missouri, and settled in Shawnee Township, Cape Girardeau County, one mile from the river, where they entered land and afterward resided. The father was a millwright, carpenter and cabinet maker. He built a mill on Apple Creek, which he managed for several years and until his death, about 1838. His wife survived him several years, dying about 1872. They reared a family of ten children, of whom three are still living and residing in Cape Girardeau County. William P. grew to manhood on the home farm, and on February 10, 1848, was united in marriage with Eliza Abernathy, daughter of Lot Abernathy (deceased), of Perry County, being one of the early settlers of that county from North Carolina. Mrs. Morton was born and reared in Perry County. After his marriage Mr. Morton bought a small farm near Neely's Landing, which he improved, and upon which he resided for five years. He located on the farm where he now resides in 1855, since which time he has made many valuable improvements. During the war Mr. Morton served in the militia and was called out on several occasions. His wife died on August 25, 1874, having reared seven children, viz.: Charles A. (engaged in milling at Poca-hontas), James L. (residing in Bollinger County), Mary J. (Mrs. William Alexander), Dr. David F. (of Perryville, Mo.), Margaret E. (Mrs. Dr. Tarlton), William A. (residing in Bollinger County), and Rebecca L. (a young lady at home). On June 17, 1875, Mr. Morton was again married, choosing for his second wife Mrs. Eliza E. Alexander, daughter of Joseph Glenn (deceased). This marriage has been blessed by one son, L. Glenn. Mrs. Morton was born and reared in Jackson County, Mo. She was the widow of Rev. William Alexander, a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He died on December 15, 1872, leaving six children, viz.: William W., residing in Bollinger County;

Cyrus E., of Texas; Joseph P., one of the county teachers; Robert C., Sarah E., died when twenty years of age; and Charles A., died in his twenty-first year. Mr. and Mrs. Morton are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Mr. Morton is Senior Deacon of Wilson Lodge, A. F. & A. M., and is a Master Mason.

Hiram G. Morton, a substantial farmer residing near Pocahontas, Cape Girardeau County, was born in that county on January 10, 1834. He is the son of James G. and Eliza F. (Steele) Morton, both natives of North Carolina. They removed, after their marriage, from the "Old North State" to Tennessee, in which State they resided a few years, and then came to Missouri, locating in Cape Girardeau County. Mr. Morton entered land there and improved a farm upon which he resided until his death in 1836. His wife survived him a number of years, and died on the farm on November 29, 1871, having reared a family of six sons and four daughters to maturity. Of those ten children there are only three living, viz.: Pink Morton (of Pocahontas), Eliza Ann (now Mrs. Robert P. Masterson), and the subject of this sketch, all of whom reside in Cape Girardeau County. Hiram G. remained with his mother until his marriage with Nancy E. Ruff, which marriage was celebrated on January 3, 1861. His wife was the daughter of John W. Ruff, an early immigrant to Cape Girardeau County, from South Carolina. Mrs. Morton was born in South Carolina, but reared in Cape Girardeau County. Previous to his marriage Mr. Morton had purchased the farm upon which he has since resided. During the late rebellion he served in the militia, and was often called out for active service. Mr. Morton lost his wife on August 25, 1884, she having reared a family of six sons and one daughter, viz.: William P., James E., L. W., Robert H., George P., Oliver and Anna. Mr. Morton is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He is also a member of the Grange organization at Fruitland.

H. H. Mueller was born in Prussia in 1857, and was brought to America by his parents, Henry and Henrietta Mueller, in 1868. They located at Cape Girardeau. The father followed agricultural pursuits in this country, and died near Cape Girardeau in 1869. The mother died in 1870. In 1882 the subject of this sketch became connected with the pork packing firm of H. H. Mueller & Co., of Cape Girardeau, with which he remained until 1884, when he removed to Jackson and engaged alone in the same business. On November 1, 1886, the firm of Shaner & Mueller, pork packers and butchers, was established, with John B. Shaner and H. H. Mueller as members of the firm. They employ ten laborers during the winter, and three during the summer seasons. They ship to different points on the Iron Mountain Railroad, and pack about 1,300 hogs annually. In 1882 Mr. Mueller was united in marriage with Ida Ermertz, a native of Cape Girardeau County. Their union has been blessed by three sons and one daughter. Mr. Mueller is a member of the I. O. O. F.

D. A. Nichols, a farmer of Allenville, Mo., is a native of Putnam County, Ohio, born on March 14, 1844. His parents, Samuel and Hannah (Wickham) Nichols, are also natives of Ohio. They removed to Missouri in 1852, and located in Daviess County, where Mr. Nichols purchased land and made a farm upon which he and his wife still reside. The subject of this sketch spent his youth on the farm in Daviess County, and served as a soldier in the Federal army from 1861 to 1865, being once wounded. In 1869 he came to Cape Girardeau County. Although he came without money, by industry and good management he has acquired considerable property. Upon coming to the county he contracted for timber for the St. Louis market. In 1872 he engaged in the mercantile business, which he continued until 1876, when he sold out his stock. During that time he also ran a large saw-mill, doing an extensive lumber business. In 1882 he again engaged in the mercantile business, from which he has but recently retired. Besides his property in Allenville, consisting of a fine dwelling, store building and large barn, he has a farm near town, which he has managed for the past three years. Mr. Nichols has been twice married. His first wife was Mary J. Turner, of Chicago, whom he married in Solon Mills, Ill., in 1873, and who died in August, 1879. In April, 1882, he was united in marriage with Mrs. M. A. Courtway, of St. Louis. Mr. Nichols is a Royal Arch Mason, and is highly respected by all who know him.

Richard C. Norton, LL. D., president of the faculty of the Third District Missouri State Normal School, is a native of Hiram, Ohio, born June 16, 1840. His ancestors were of French and English origin. They were among the early settlers in the New England States. Richard C. is the son of Thuel and Harriet R. (Harrington) Norton, whose marriage occurred on August 4, 1822. The father was born at New Hartford, N. Y., March 10, 1801, and was the son of Peter Norton, who located with his family in Ohio in 1807. The mother was born in Connecticut on July 15, 1803, and was reared in New York. She died August 30, 1880. The subject of this sketch entered the Western Reserve Eclectic Institute (now Hiram College) in 1856, being a pupil of the lamented Garfield. His studies there were completed in 1861, and in September of that year he enlisted in Garfield's regiment, Company A, Forty-second Ohio Volunteer Infantry, serving two years. He received the degree of A. M. from Eureka College, Illinois, and LL.D. from Grand River College, Missouri. He engaged in teaching school in his native State both before and after his military service. In 1865 he located at Trenton, Mo., where he had charge of the public schools for ten years. He then accepted the vice-presidency of the State Normal at Warrensburg, which position he filled five years, and in 1880 removed to Cape Girardeau and assumed his present position. Under his efficient management the school has been very prosperous. In his native State in 1864 Prof. Norton was united in marriage with Maria L. Mason, also a native of Ohio. He is a Royal Arch Mason and a member of the Christian Church.

R. B. Oliver was born in Shawnee Township, Cape Girardeau County, on January 23, 1851. He lived on the farm with his parents until 1873, when he entered the State University, at Columbia. He spent two years in the academic course, and then two years in the law department, graduating in the latter in 1877. He at once opened an office in Jackson. In 1878 he was elected prosecuting attorney and re-elected in 1880. In 1882 he was elected State Senator, and during the thirty-third General Assembly (1885) was appointed chairman of the judiciary committee. He also represented Cape Girardeau in the convention of the State Immigration Society of 1881. In 1879 he was united in marriage with Miss Marie Watkins, who is a native of Ray County, Mo. Four sons have blessed their union, of whom one is dead. Mr. Oliver is a member of the A. F. & A. M., and is also a member of Phi Kappa Psi. He and family are members of the Presbyterian Church. Thomas Oliver, the great-grandfather, was one of the old Virginian cavaliers, and served in the Colonial and Revolutionary Wars. He died in his native State. John, the grandfather, was born in Virginia. He removed to Lincoln County, N. C., and from there to Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in 1819, locating on the homestead where R. B. was born. He brought with him an old flint lock rifle, which bears date of 1718. It is now a valuable heirloom, and is at present in possession of the youngest brother. He died in Cape Girardeau County in 1848, and is buried in the cemetery at Apple Creek Church. John, the father of our subject, was born in Lincoln County, N. C., but when four years of age came with his parents to Cape Girardeau, Mo. He spent the remainder of his life on the Old Oliver Farm, and is buried by the side of his father. The mother, Margaret (Sloan) Oliver, is also a native of Lincoln County, N. C. She now resides with her children. The father first married a Miss Cobb, who was a native of Knoxville, Tenn. They had two sons: Adolph and Augustus, both of whom are dead. The latter died while in the Confederate service, near New Madrid, Mo. There were four children by the last marriage, all of whom are living, viz.: Louella (now wife of Dr. Baldrige, of Jackson), John F. (who resides in Johnson Township), R. B. and Henry Clay (who resides on the old homestead).

Dr. D. T. Pace is a native of Shelby County, Ky., born March 16, 1827. He was the fourth of seven children, three sons and four daughters, born to the union of Joseph Pace and Ann Magee. The father, who was a Virginian by birth, died in Kentucky in the doctor's early childhood. The mother was born in Shelby County, Ky., in 1799. In 1837 she removed with her children to Pike County, Mo., where she died on September 27, 1886. The Doctor was reared on his mother's farm until he was sixteen years of age, when he began teaching school and studying medicine. During the years of 1852 and 1853 he attended the Medical Department of the St. Louis University, after which he practiced a few months in Monroe County, Mo. The next fall he located at Jackson, where he practiced his profession until recently, with but an intermission of four years. When he retired from practice, he engaged in the drug business. In 1862 he was united in marriage with Sarah A. Criddle, a native of Cape Girardeau County. They had two sons and one daughter, of whom the daughter is still living (now Mrs. Joseph Williams) near Jackson. The mother died May 29, 1869. Dr. Pace was afterward united in marriage with Mrs.

Sarah A. Moreland, nee McGuire, an estimable lady, who is still living. The Doctor is a member of the order of A. F. & A. M.

William Paar, clerk of the county court of Cape Girardeau County, was born near the city of Cape Girardeau on December 28, 1848. He is the son of Andrew Paar, a native of Hesse Cassel, Germany, born on February 9, 1813. In 1834 he immigrated to America, locating in New York City, where he resided five years. On October 9, 1836, he was united in marriage with Elizabeth Losekam, a native, also, of Hesse Cassel. In 1839 they removed to Missouri, locating a few months in Perry County. They then removed to Cape Girardeau County. Prior to 1854 they resided both in town and country, but at that time he removed to the city of Cape Girardeau, where he was in the mercantile business until his death. He was at one time a member of the city council. He served in the Union Army during the late war, at first in the Home Guards, but afterward as first lieutenant in Fifty-Sixth Missouri State Militia. The mother still resides at Cape Girardeau. William is one of five children, four sons and one daughter, all of whom were reared to maturity, but the youngest, a brother, is now dead. When a child he removed with his parents to Cape Girardeau, where he was reared. He assisted his father in business until the latter's death on August 3, 1867. He then conducted the business alone seven years. In April, 1873, he was elected clerk of the city, which office he filled fourteen years, and which he resigned in December, 1886, to accept his present position. In 1879 he was elected city assessor, and served eight years. He also served as justice of the peace four years. On May 22, 1887, he was united in marriage with Miss Katie Frank, a native of Bavaria.

John Painter, a pioneer business man of Cape Girardeau, was born in Mason County, Ky., on April 6, 1803. He is the son of John Painter and Sarah Downey, both natives of Virginia. The father was a contractor and builder. He removed to Kentucky early in the century, and resided in that State until 1837, when he came to Missouri. John Painter, Jr., came to Missouri with an elder brother in 1819. They located at Old Franklin on the Missouri River, but at the end of one year they built a boat and, loading their effects upon it, floated down the river to New Orleans. Soon after reaching that city John returned to Kentucky, but in May, 1824, accompanied by the entire family except the father, he returned to Missouri and located at Jackson. Two years later, with his brothers, Aaron, Louis, Wilson, Mason and Hiram, he removed to Cape Girardeau, and in partnership they purchased six acres of land west of the city, upon which was a tanyard. Together they conducted the tannery and a saddler shop. Louis soon returned to Jackson. One brother died in 1836 and another in 1840. John, with the other two brothers, continued the business until 1855. He then engaged in general mercantile business, but withdrew from it in a short time. He has been very successful, and is now one of the wealthiest men of the county. He has done much to build up the city, and is the owner of the St. Charles Hotel, several business blocks and a number of residences. Mr. Painter has been married three times. His present wife was Miss Sophia Horrell, a native of Mississippi, with whom he was united in marriage in October, 1885. Both are consistent members of the Catholic Church. They reside in the suburbs of the city on the property first purchased by the Painter brothers.

H. P. Peironnet. The subject of this sketch is one of the most enterprising and successful merchants of Cape Girardeau. He was born in Susquehanna County, Penn., on October 24, 1851. In early childhood he was taken by his parents to Arlington, Ill. He remained with his parents, who made various changes, till he located at Cape Girardeau. He there engaged in agricultural pursuits near town, until he assumed the management of the Grange Coöperative store in Cape Girardeau. When he first took charge of the store, the finances of the establishment were in a very crippled condition, but under his efficient management were greatly improved. At the end of two years, he and three other parties purchased the stock and formed the firm of H. P. Peironnet & Co., which firm existed until March 10, 1885, when Mr. Peironnet purchased the interest of his partners, and has since conducted the business with renewed energy and success. His stock is divided into three departments and as many rooms: one contains clothing, boots and shoes, another dry goods and notions and the other groceries and queensware. In 1878 he was united in marriage with Julia Moon, a resident of Cape Girardeau. They have one daughter. Mr. Peironnet is a Mason and a member of the A. O. U. W.

John M. Penny, a farmer residing about three miles northwest of Oak Ridge, Cape Girardeau Co., Mo., was born in the neighborhood where he now resides on January 10, 1833. He is a son of Rev. Cullen and Dorcas (Sides) Penny, both natives of North Carolina. The father was born in 1812, and after marrying in his native State removed to Missouri about 1831, stopping in Perry County about one year. He then entered land and settled in Apple Creek Township, Cape Girardeau County, where he resided until his death on September 10, 1852. He was a minister in the Methodist Episcopal Church for a number of years, and for ten years was an active preacher and circuit rider. The parents reared seven children, of whom four sons and one daughter are now living. John M. grew to manhood on his father's farm, and in March, 1853, was united in marriage with Miss Susan Drum, who was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. She is the daughter of Judge J. Drum, one of the pioneers and former representatives of that county. Previous to their marriage Mr. Penny had bought land on which they located and have since resided. They have a family of ten children, viz.: George C., Isabella (Mrs. Bennett Breckenridge), James, Jefferson, Gilbert, Jasper, Bertie, Charles, Thomas and Eva. Mr. Penny and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He is a member of Mystic Tie Lodge, A., F. & A. M., at Oak Ridge.

Judge William M. Peterman, a farmer and stock raiser residing two miles west from Jackson, Cape Girardeau County, was born in Overton County, Tenn., November 4, 1818. He is the son of George and Elizabeth (Moore) Peterman, the former a native of Georgia, and the latter of North Carolina. They were married in Tennessee, from which State they removed to Missouri, and settled in Madison County in about 1820. Here he bought a farm and afterward entered land adjoining it, all of which he improved and upon which he resided until his death about 1855. He was twice married, and his last wife is still living. The paternal grandfather, Jacob Peterman, served in the Revolutionary War. William M. grew to manhood in Madison County, and in Cape Girardeau County was united in marriage on April 6, 1848, to Sarah A. Wilkinson, who was born in Cape Girardeau County on October 30, 1824. She is the daughter of William and Jemima Wilkinson. The Judge learned the blacksmith's trade in early life, which he afterward followed in connection with making and laying brick, but after his marriage he settled on a farm in Madison County. In 1852 he removed to Cape Girardeau County, locating on a farm in Whitewater Township. He removed to the farm where he now resides in 1874. He has reared a family of five children, viz.: George W., Joel E. (married and residing on the old place), John P. (married and living at Cape Girardeau), Lewis R. (a widower residing in the Chickasaw Nation), Eliza E. (Mrs. John Tucker, of Cape Girardeau County). He lost one child in infancy and one in early childhood. Politically the Judge is a Democrat. He served as deputy sheriff in Madison County for four years, and as county judge in Cape Girardeau County two years. He is a Royal Arch Mason.

George W. Peterman, a farmer and stock raiser of Byrd Township, Cape Girardeau County, was born in Madison County, Mo., on February 12, 1850. He is the son of William M. and Sarah A. (Wilkinson) Peterman [see sketch of parents]. When a child George W. came to Cape Girardeau County with his parents. His education, begun in the public schools, was finished in the Fruitland Normal Institute of Cape Girardeau County. He taught school in Cape Girardeau County for five winters, farming during the summer seasons. On September 3, 1874, he was united in marriage with Miss Emily N. Snider, daughter of G. W. and Z. C. Snider, of this county. She was born July 8, 1853. After marriage he resided on the old home farm near Millersville until March 12, 1878, when he removed to his father's, and lived with him till April 20, 1879, when he removed to where he now resides. He has a farm of ninety-six acres, all fenced and in a fair state of cultivation, lying in Surveys 219, 2205 and 3046, Township 31, Range 12, and upon which he has a good residence and outbuildings. Mr. and Mrs. Peterman have two children, viz.: Byrne S., born Friday, October 15, 1875, and Connie M., born Tuesday, May 1, 1877. Mr. Peterman takes great interest in educational matters. He has served as a member of the Jackson school board for a number of years, and has been recently elected for another term. He is a Master Mason, and is a member of West View Lodge No. 103, Millersville, Mo. His political principle is Democratic. He has kept a record of his every day proceedings since January 1, 1872, stating where he was and what he did each day, and also a record showing his expenses and sales since the above date. His great desire is to teach his children to be honest and truthful, and to give them a good education. He is always ready to assist those who are in need of help, believes in the "Golden Rule," to do unto others as you would have them do unto you, and also to do good for evil.

Isaiah H. Poe, a farmer, and manager of the Cape Girardeau poor farm, was born in that county on October 20, 1843. He is a son of William H. and Barbara (Miller) Poe, both of whom are natives of Cape Girardeau County. The former is a son of Isaiah Poe, a native of Kentucky, who served in some of the Indian wars of that State, after which he located in Cape Girardeau County, Mo. William H. grew to manhood on his father's farm, and was married in his native county. His wife was a daughter of Alexander Miller, who removed to Cape Girardeau County from Maryland, having previously served in the American army in the War of 1812. After his marriage William H. Poe bought new land, which he afterward cleared and improved, having built the residence in which he died in December, 1845. He died when yet a young man. He was the father of two children, Isaiah H., and a daughter, of whom the former is living. He was reared on his father's farm in Cape Girardeau Township, and on January 21, 1868, married Miss Martha E. Williams, a daughter of Jacob Williams, of Cape Girardeau County [see sketch]. After his marriage Mr. Poe was engaged in farming for several years in both Randol and Byrd Townships. In January, 1884, he took charge of the county poor farm and its inhabitants, which he has since successfully managed. He is a member of the A. O. U. W. at Jackson, and is also a member of the Select Knights. He and wife are members of the Methodist Church. They have six children: Jacob H., William E., Sarah E., Mary E., Benjamin E. and Barbara A. Politically Mr. Poe is a Democrat.

Fred. W. Pott, proprietor of the Planter's Mill at Cape Girardeau, Mo., was born in Prussia, in 1839. He is the eldest of seven children born to Frederick and Joanna Pott. They came to America in 1854, locating at Cape Girardeau the same year. The father served three years in the Federal army, and near the close of the war died from disease contracted while in the service. The mother has since resided with her children, of whom there are four living. Fred. W. received a liberal education in the "fatherland," and soon after locating at Cape Girardeau secured employment in a mill, and followed the various departments of milling till the Civil War. He then enlisted in the Federal army, joining the Second Illinois Light Artillery, and on April 6, 1862, was taken prisoner at Shiloh. After seven months' imprisonment he was exchanged and rejoined his regiment at Memphis, Tenn., and remained in the service until October, 1864, when he returned to Cape Girardeau and resumed milling, which has since been his occupation. About 1869 he rented a mill at Clear Creek, Ill., almost opposite Cape Girardeau, which he operated for seven years, and in 1877 built his present mill, at a cost of about $14,000. His success with this mill has been phenomenal, which is due to his untiring energy, industry and superior knowledge of the business. With only a capacity of eighty barrels at first he realized from his profits sufficient to pay for the mill in four years. The present capacity is 200 barrels daily, and gives employment to ten men. In 1866 Mr. Pott was united in marriage with Mary Karau, a native of Germany. They have had eleven children—eight sons and three daughters—of whom three sons are dead. The family are members of the Lutheran Church.

Peter Powell, a substantial farmer and enterprising citizen of Cape Girardeau County, was born in Knox County, Ky., on May 4, 1846. He is the son of Thomas and Easter (Wills) Powell, both natives of Kentucky. The parents were reared in Kentucky and always resided there. The father died in Knox County, Ky. Peter grew to manhood in his native State and received a fair education in the common schools. After finishing his education he engaged in teaching school. He was also employed for a time as clerk in a store. In 1866 he removed to Missouri and located in Cape Girardeau County. He first settled on a farm four miles north of Jackson, where he remained about ten years. On April 17, 1874, he was united in marriage with Miss M. J. Clippard, daughter of C. C. Clippard [see sketch]. Mrs. Powell was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. Mr. Powell bought the farm where he now resides in the fall of 1884. It is on the Oak Ridge and Jackson road about three miles from Oak Ridge, and consists of 297 acres, of which about 240 acres are in cultivation, and upon which are good buildings and an orchard of 300 trees. Mr. and Mrs. Powell are members of the Missionary Baptist Church. They have four children, viz.: Willie May, Bettie, C. C. and Ethel. Mr. Powell belongs to the order of United Workmen at Oak Ridge.

John A. Proffer, a farmer of Liberty Township, Cape Girardeau County, was born in that county on December 3, 1846. He is a son of David Proffer, whose father, George Proffer, came to Cape Girardeau County from North Carolina about 1810. David Proffer grew to maturity at his father's home, and was married in Cape Girardeau County to Mary J. Hutchison. John A. Proffer grew to manhood in his native county. His father died when he was a mere child, and his mother died when he was thirteen years of age. He secured a good education, but mostly by private study, having received only a limited education in the common schools. In early life he taught school for three terms. He served as justice of the peace of Liberty Township before his marriage. In November, 1870, he went to Texas, and spent about two and one-half years in that State working on a farm, returning to Cape Girardeau County in May, 1873, with his health much improved. On November 24, 1881, he was united in marriage with Emma Lail, a native of Cape Girardeau County, and a daughter of Robert Lail. After his marriage Mr. Proffer settled on the farm, where he still resides. To him and wife have been born two children: Luther E. and Beulah M. Politically Mr. Proffer holds to the principles of the Democratic party. He is a member of the Agricultural Wheel. He and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Father Edward Pruente has had charge of the German Catholic congregation of Cape Girardeau since December, 1881. He was born in the Prussian Province of Westphalia, January 26, 1855, and is the son of Henry T. and Angela Pruente, who were both natives of Westphalia, where they died in 1876 and 1856, respectively. Father Pruente was reared and received his literary education in his native country. In 1874 he immigrated to America and located near Milwaukee, entering the Seminary of St. Francis, where he was educated for the priesthood. He was ordained in 1879, and for a few months acted as assistant priest at the Church of Peter and Paul of St. Louis. He was then located at St. Charles until he came to Cape Girardeau. He has a sister residing with him, they being the only members of the family to immigrate to America.

Abram D. Randol, one of the most highly esteemed citizens of Cape Girardeau County, was born in that county on June 8, 1815. He is a son of James Randol, who came to Missouri when a young man, some time previous to 1800, and settled in Cape Girardeau County. He was there married to Nancy Olar, after which he located on a farm which was his home until his death. He had three sons and six daughters by his last marriage, and one son and two daughters by a previous marriage. There are four children living: Abram D. and three daughters, all in Cape Girardeau County except one daughter in Nebraska. Abram D. grew to manhood and was married in the house in which he now resides. His nuptials were celebrated in January, 1838, with Sarah Poe, a daughter of Simon Poe, one of the early settlers of Cape Girardeau County, from North Carolina. After his marriage Mr. Randol engaged in farming, and after several years bought out the heirs to the Poe estate and removed to his present farm. He has been a very successful farmer, but has now practically retired, having given the hard work of the farm to his son. His wife died in January, 1877, having reared a family of four children—one son and three daughters—all of whom are living and married. The son, Judson M. Randol, was born May 25, 1848. He spent his youth on the farm, and received a good common school education. He married, in Cape Girardeau Township, on February 25, 1869, Luvena J. Randol, daughter of Eli B. Randol, of Cape Girardeau County. Mr. Randol has spent his life on the farm with his father. He has 187 acres of land, with about 100 under cultivation, upon which he has a comfortable residence and other buildings, and an orchard of about 150 trees of select fruit. He and wife have five children: John Cooper, Charles D., Mary Louisa, Webster and Sarah E.

Hon. William C. Ranney was born at Whitehall, N. Y., February 20, 1815, and is the son of Stephen and Elizabeth (Hathorne) Ranney, natives of Connecticut and Massachusetts, respectively. Stephen Ranney served in the army for seventeen years, having been in the Revolutionary War and the War of 1812. He was lieutenant-colonel at the close of the War of 1812. After peace was restored, in 1815, he removed west and settled at Charleston, Ind. He next resided at Jeffersonville, Ind., for seven years, after which he came to Missouri. His wife died in Jeffersonville. He located in Cape Girardeau County in 1825, selecting for his home a farm one and one-half miles north of Jackson. He died at the residence of his son in Jackson about 1827. He held, during his residence in Indiana, a commission from the Governor as adjutant-general of the State, and he was buried with military honors. William C. Ranney, being but ten years of age when his father removed to Cape Girardeau County, was mostly reared and educated there. He secured a good common school education, which was supplemented with a course at St. Mary's College in Perry County, Mo. When a boy he obtained a position in the circuit clerk's office, and when fifteen years of age he was appointed deputy clerk, which position he filled a number of years, after which he read law with his brother, Johnson Ranney. He was admitted to the bar about 1840. He first located at New Madrid, but remained only a year or two, when he removed to Benton, Mo., remaining there about two years. His brother at Jackson then offered him a partnership, which he accepted, holding it until his brother's death in 1848. He continued the practice of his profession at Jackson for a number of years, when the Legislature passed an act constituting the common pleas court, of which he was named as judge in 1851. Three years later he was elected to the same office, and after he had served four years longer was re-elected, and served until the war between the States. In 1853 he removed his family to his present farm. About 1871 he was elected State senator, to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Judge Green. He made the race by a nice majority against two Democrats and one Republican. Following his service in the Senate he served one term as representative of Cape Girardeau County, since which he has held no official position. The Judge was formerly a Whig, but since that party lost its organization he has been acting with and supporting the principles of the Democratic party. On December 10, 1846, he was united in marriage with Elizabeth Giboney, a daughter of Robert Giboney. She was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. They have reared four sons, three of whom are living: Robert G. (an attorney of Cape Girardeau County), William A. and Herbert H. (a resident of Cape Girardeau). William A. resides at home and manages the home farm. Stephen died after reaching mature years. The Judge is a Master Mason.

Frederick Reck was born in Cape Girardeau County, on December 18, 1844, and is a son of George and Catherine Reck, both natives of Germany. The parents grew to maturity and married in their native country, but the year after their marriage (about 1838) they immigrated to the United States, and located in Cape Girardeau County, on the farm where they now reside. They celebrated their golden wedding in May, 1887. The husband learned the shoemaker's trade while in the "fatherland," at which he did an extensive business in Cape Girardeau County, in the days before the war. They were the parents of nine children, six of whom are living. Frederick spent his youth on his father's farm. He served about ten months in the militia, and on May 2, 1863, enlisted in the United States army, joining Company C, Second Missouri Light Artillery, with which he served until December, 1865, having spent six months fighting Indians after the close of the Civil War. He participated in numerous engagements, among which were Jefferson City, Glasgow, four desperate battles with the Indians and a great many skirmishes. He was mustered out at St. Louis, after which he returned home, and the following year (on April 8, 1866) he was united in marriage with Adeline Whittedge, daughter of E. H. Whittedge [see sketch]. Mrs. Reck was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. Upon his marriage Mr. Reck had no property, and rented land for about three years, when he bought the farm where he now lives. He has been a hard laborer and a good manager, and now has a good home and a competence. He and wife have three children: John A., Edward and Cora. John, the eldest, was born April 6, 1867; Edward was born September 1, 1869, and Cora was born July 23, 1874. John's early opportunities for securing an education were very limited, yet he has had a desire to learn. Each winter he had the advantage of the district school, but being resolved to go to high school, saved his money and entered Mayfield Smith Academy, at Marble Hill, at the age of seventeen, where he attended two years. During vacation he helped his father on the farm. At nineteen years of age he taught his first school, at Oak Hill, where he gained considerable reputation. He united with the Presbyterian Church at the age of sixteen. His religious character is deep and earnest. At prayer meetings he always has a word to speak for Christ. He is a Sunday-school teacher in Sunday-school, and is assistant superintendent in Sunday-school. He delights in taking an active part in every good work. He treads the wine press alone, and neither chews nor smokes tobacco. He is respected by all, and is a worthy young man for example. He is now twenty-one years of age, and is attending the Pocahontas Institute. Mrs. Reck and the children are members of the Presbyterian Church. In politics Mr. Reck is a Republican.

John H. Renfroe, M. D., of Allenville, Mo., was born near the city of Cape Girardeau, January 2, 1852, and is a son of William and Mary E. (English) Renfroe, also natives of Cape Girardeau County. The former is a son of Joel Renfroe, a native of Georgia, who located in Cape Girardeau County in the early part of its settlement. After his marriage William Renfroe settled on a farm near Cape Girardeau, which he cultivated until his death in October, 1880. John H. Renfroe grew to manhood at the home of his parents, and received a good education in the high schools of the county and Bellview Collegiate Institute, Caledonia, Mo. Upon leaving school he taught one year, and in 1875 began the study of medicine under Dr. J. H. Rider, of Cape Girardeau. He took his first course of lectures at Missouri Medical College, St. Louis, in the winter of 1876-77, graduating from that institution on March 5, 1878. Beginning the practice of his profession at Gravel Hill, Mo., he continued there about eighteen months, and removed to Dutchtown in December, 1879. In the spring of 1880 he removed to his present location, where he has since been very successful in the practice of medicine and surgery. Near Gordonville, on November 14, 1878, he married Mary E. Priest, also a native of Cape Girardeau County, and a daughter of James W. and Mary Priest. She was born on January 1, 1857. To their union one child has been born, Lillian N. The Doctor is a member of the Masonic lodge, at Jackson.

Henry Reutzel was born near Oak Ridge, Cape Girardeau County, on October 5, 1844. He is the son of George Reutzel, who was born in Hesse Darmstadt, Germany. He grew to manhood in his native country, and married Catherine Loos, also a native of Hesse Darmstadt. They immigrated to the United States about 1839, and located in Apple Creek Township, Cape Girardeau County, where they resided until their deaths. The wife died first, having borne three children. Mr. Reutzel married again. Henry is the son of the first wife. The father died in 1881. Henry was reared on his father's farm. In 1863 he enlisted for six months in the Second Missouri Infantry. He served mostly in Missouri, and was discharged at St. Louis. Returning home he was married on the farm where he now lives in August, 1867, to Antonia Pentzel, daughter of John Pentzel. She was born in one of the German States, but came to America when six years of age. After his marriage Mr. Reutzel bought of his father-in-law the farm upon which they now reside. He has 101 acres, of which eighty are under cultivation. Mr. and Mrs. Reutzel have a family of seven children, viz.: Bertha, Alvin, George, Carrie, Henry, Jr., Ida and Edwin. The parents are members of the Lutheran Church at Jackson. Mr. Reutzel is a member of the A. O. U. W.

Dr. James H. Rider, a prominent physician of Cape Girardeau, was born in Shelby County, Mo., on October 12, 1841. He is the son of James and Elizabeth (Moore) Rider, the former a native of Maryland and the latter of Delaware. The father removed to Missouri in 1830, and engaged in agricultural and mercantile pursuits in Shelby, Howard and Bollinger Counties, Mo., and at Pine Bluffs, Ark. He and wife died in Bollinger County in 1871. Dr. James H. received his education in Howard High School (now Central College) at Fayette, Mo. He afterward studied medicine two years under Dr. J. B. Winn, of Macon County, and during the fall and winter of 1860-61 he attended lectures at St. Louis Medical College, after which he began the practice at Callao, Macon County. In September, 1861, he volunteered in the Confederate army, under Price, being assigned duty as associate surgeon in the Fifth Regiment, Clark's brigade, Missouri State Guards, with which he served four months, when he enlisted in the regular Confederate army, and was assigned to the hospital department. He served in the hospitals of Columbus, Lauderdale Springs and Iuka. After the battle at the latter place he was left as one of the surgeons to take care of the wounded, and where also the wounded in the battle of Corinth were sent. In January, 1863, he was ordered to the Fortieth Mississippi, then at Vicksburg, and had charge of the medical department of that regiment until the following May, when he was assigned to duty in Gen. Marmaduke's command. He engaged in all the principal battles of that department and of Price's raid. After the war he resumed the practice of his profession in Macon County.

In May, 1866, he removed to Pine Bluff, Ark., where he remained until April, 1868, when he located at Marble Hill, Bollinger County, and remained there until he removed to Cape Girardeau in 1875, having, in the meantime, graduated at the Missouri Medical College, St. Louis. Upon locating at Cape Girardeau he formed a partnership with Dr. J. H. Traylor, which continued until the latter's death. Politically the Doctor is a Democrat, and was a member of the constitutional convention, which met at Jefferson City, Mo., May 5, 1875. On November 26, 1873, he was wedded to Mattie Leech, and to them five children have been born, of whom two are living. The Doctor is a Freemason.

Ernst Riemann was born in Brunswick, Germany, on August 31, 1828. He is a son of Frederick and Caroline (Boehm) Riemann, both natives of Brunswick, in which country they died. Ernst received a good education in the German language, and in January, 1851, immigrated to America. Landing at Baltimore he went from there to Philadelphia, where he remained one year, when he came west. He spent one year on a farm in Illinois, and the next year (1853) located in St. Francois County, Mo. He remained there about four years, clerking in a store, when he went to Pilot Knob and took charge of the shipment of the iron. He was married there on March 30, 1859, to Barbara Wilford, daughter of W. Wilford, a native of Bavaria, in which country Mrs. Riemann was born. Mr. Riemann remained at Pilot Knob until 1861, when he returned to St. Francois County, and was there engaged in the mercantile business until 1867. He then removed to Cape Girardeau County, and purchased the farm where he has since resided. He has 200 acres of land, with about 120 acres under cultivation, upon which he has made some valuable improvements. Mr. and Mrs. Riemann have eight children, viz.: August, Ettie, John W., Sophia (Mrs. Otto Hoffman, of Jackson), Mary, Louisa, Emma and Albert. Mr. Riemann is treasurer of Millersville Masonic Lodge and is a Master Mason. He and wife are members of the German Lutheran Church.

John F. Robb, proprietor of the Jackson House, at Jackson, Mo., was born in Shawnee Township, Cape Girardeau County, on May 3, 1853. He is one of six surviving children born to John S. and Eliza (Crawford) Robb. The father was born in North Carolina in 1808, but in infancy was taken to Tennessee, where he resided in Wilson County. In 1843 he removed to Missouri and located in Shawnee Township. He graduated in medicine at Nashville. He practiced his profession while in Tennessee, and continued practicing in Missouri until his death on August 23, 1879. The mother was also a native of North Carolina. She died on May 27, 1881. John F. remained on the farm until 1876, when he entered the mercantile business at Shawneetown, continuing until 1878. He was then united in marriage with Iva E. Howard, a native of Cape Girardeau County, and located on a farm in Shawnee Township, where they remained until February, 1884. Removing to Jackson he again engaged in merchandising for one year, and was a distillery watchman almost a year. On October 27, 1887, he opened the Jackson House, and is making it a first-class hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Robb have three children, viz.: Mattie, John and Mabel Clare.

William J. Roberts, a promising young attorney of Cape Girardeau County, was born in that county on the farm where he now resides, on July 9, 1849. His father, a native of North Carolina, was born on May 28, 1826. He came to Missouri with his parents when a young man. He entered land there, which he improved greatly and upon which he located and resided until his death. He was married in Cape Girardeau County, to Melissa Crites, a daughter of Davault Crites, one of the pioneer citizens of that county. Mr. Roberts died on his farm on January 18, 1875, leaving twelve children—seven sons and five daughters—of whom the subject of this sketch is the eldest son. He received a liberal education at the common schools and academies of his native county, and in 1876 entered the law department of the Missouri State University at Columbia, graduating in March, 1878. Returning home he has since practiced his profession in the courts of Cape Girardeau and adjoining counties. Since the death of his father he has superintended the work of the farm in connection with the practice of his profession. He is secretary of Mystic Tie Lodge, A. F. & A. M., at Oak Ridge.

Chester J. Roehl, manufacturer and dealer in marble and granite monuments at Cape Girardeau, was born in St. Louis in 1868. He is the son of Julius and Maria (Walsh) Roehl, natives of Berlin, Germany, and St. Louis, Mo., respectively. The father graduated from Berlin Art Academy at the age of twenty-two years, and was also a graduate from the Berlin University, having taken the general course of study. He immigrated to the United States in 1861, and landed at Galveston, but soon after went to St. Louis. He located at Cape Girardeau in 1869, and established the business in which the subject of this sketch is now engaged. He was distinguished as a practical sculptor. Although he began business with small capital, under his excellent management and skillful hands it increased to splendid proportions, when through misfortune he failed. He had again made a small start in the business when he died in September, 1883, leaving his son, Chester J., with entire control. The latter began his education at the parochial schools of his native city, and graduated from the State Normal School at Cape Girardeau in 1888, having taken the full course. Since taking charge of the marble works he has increased the business until it now aggregates more than $12,000 per year. He does the bulk of the marble work of the city and most of the German work of the surrounding country.

Frederick Rueseler, merchant tailor of Cape Girardeau, Mo., was born in Mühlhausen Furstenthum, Waldeck, Germany, September 16, 1837, and is the son of John F. Rueseler. He grew to manhood in his native country, and served three years in the Prussian army. In 1859, having completed his apprenticeship, he came to the United States, and located at New Orleans. At the beginning of the war he came to Perry County, Mo., where on July 24, 1861, he enlisted in the Second Missouri Infantry, and participated in the battles of Pea Ridge, Shiloh, Perryville, Stone River and Tullahoma. On account of disability he was discharged on August 1, 1863. In 1865 he located at Cape Girardeau, Mo., where he has since been successfully engaged in his present business. On July 31, 1865, Mr. Frederick Rueseler married Maria Schmidt, of Cape Girardeau, Mo., and to their union have been born eight children, three of whom are living: Freda, Ledia and Amiel. Mr. Frederick Rueseler is a member of the G. A. R. and I. O. O. F.

Dr. L. P. Ruff, dentist, and a member of the firm of Whitmore & Ruff, real estate and insurance agents, Jackson, Mo., was born in Shawnee Township, Cape Girardeau County, Mo., on September 15, 1849. He is the youngest son of John W. Ruff, a native of Fairfield District, South Carolina, born in 1810. He located near Fruitland, Cape Girardeau County, in 1889, and died in 1880. The mother, formerly a Miss Travis, and a native of Georgia, is still living, and resides with her children. The Doctor is one of five sons and four daughters, of whom three sons and two daughters are still living. He attended the country schools until after the war, then attended a Normal at Fruitland for two years, after which he took a regular course of two years at the Missouri Dental College, St. Louis, Mo. Upon leaving school he located in St. Louis till 1875, when he removed to Perryville, Mo., and remained until 1883, and in October of that year came to Jackson, where he has since, as well as before, enjoyed a good practice. He ranks as a first-class dentist and a gentleman of integrity. In 1872 he was united in marriage with Lou A. Davis, of Prairie City, Iowa, and a native of Indiana. Their union has been blessed by five sons and two daughters, of whom one son is dead. The Doctor is a member of the F. & A. M., the A. O. U. W. and Good Templars. He and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He has about 4,800 fine archeological specimens, found principally in Southeastern Missouri, Ste. Genevieve, Perry and Cape Girardeau Counties contributing largely to the assortment. He has also a fine mineralogical and geological collection, which, added to his archeological collection, makes one of the finest in the West.

G. R. Whitmore, partner of Dr. L. P. Ruff in the real estate business, is a native of New York, born in 1839. At the beginning of the Civil War he enlisted in the Twenty-second New York Infantry, but was afterward transferred to the One Hundred and Fifty-fifth Indiana, ranking as lieutenant. At the close of the war he taught school in Michigan till 1876. He then resided in Illinois until he located in Jackson in 1885. His father, Pearly Whitmore, was born in Massachusetts, and died in New York in 1851. His mother died in Illinois at the advanced age of eighty-seven years. His wife, Francis A. (Nims) Whitmore, is also a native of New York. They have a family of one son and one daughter. Mr. Whitmore and family now reside near Allenville, Cape Girardeau County, Mo.

James Runnels was born in Bollinger County, Missouri, on June 10, 1833. He is a son of Forney Runnels, a native of Alabama. The latter went from his native State to North Carolina, where he married Nancy Davis, a native of the old "North State." They removed to Missouri about 1825 and settled in Bollinger County. Mr. Runnels purchased land, upon which he resided until his death, about 1840; his wife survived him and died about 1850. They reared six children to mature years, of whom five became heads of families. There are only three living—two sons and one daughter—James, Forney and Sally, widow of Warner Dodd. James Runnels left Bollinger County when in his twentieth year, and went to Cape Girardeau County. He received a limited education in his youth, which has been greatly improved by much desultory reading. In 1853 he was married to Rachel Presley, a native of Tennessee. After his marriage he located in Cape Girardeau City, and was engaged in the butcher's business for five years, since which time he has followed farming. His wife died nine years after her marriage, leaving one son, James F., a young man of sterling worth. He is identified with the Democratic party, and has served as constable of Whitewater Township since 1886. On Easter Sunday, 1865, Mr. Runnels was married again, choosing for his second wife Sophia Miller, daughter of Joseph Miller, deceased, who was a pioneer of Cape Girardeau County from North Carolina. Mrs. Runnels was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. Six children have been born to this union: Joseph Henry, Emily, Willis J., Albert A., Cannie (who died at the age of ten years) and Alvin W. (who died when three years of age). Mrs. Runnels is a member of the Universalist Church. Mr. Runnels is a member of the A. O. U. W.

Hon. Elam W. Russell was born in Cape Girardeau County on February 8, 1828. He is the son of Hon. James and Elizabeth (Gilliland) Russell. The father was born in Cape Girardeau County on March 12, 1803. He was the son of William Russell, a native of Scotland, who immigrated to the United States and settled in Virginia. From there he removed to Tennessee and thence to Missouri in the spring of 1797 or 1798, settling about six miles northwest from Jackson, on Byrd's Creek, where he reared his family and resided until his death. The father was a prominent farmer and politician. He served the county first as sheriff and collector, and later as representative and also as State senator. He resided in his native county until his death in 1864. The mother was born in North Carolina, and was the daughter of John Gilliland, who immigrated to Cape Girardeau County from North Carolina about 1820. The parents reared to maturity a family of six children—two sons and four daughters—of whom Hon. Elam W. and four sisters are living. Elam W. grew to manhood on his father's farm. In March, 1857, he was united in marriage with Miss Nercena Clodfelter, who was born in Cape Girardeau County and is the daughter of Jacob Clodfelter. After marriage Mr. Russell settled on the farm where he now resides, five miles northeast of Jackson. In 1851 he was appointed county surveyor, in which capacity he served until 1855. In 1858 he was elected sheriff and collector and served until 1861, when he resigned. He was re-elected in 1874 and served two terms. In 1880 he was elected to represent his county in the State Legislature, which position he filled with honorable distinction. He and wife have reared a family of six children, viz.: John E., Robert W., Dr. James W. (a graduate of the St. Louis Medical College), Bettie (Mrs. Wade H. Shaner), Elam, Jr., and Luke B. Russell.

William A. Russell, a substantial farmer of Cape Girardeau County, was born on the farm where he has always resided, on March 12, 1860. He is the son of Elliott Russell, who was also born on the same farm. Elliott Russell is the son of William Russell, who settled on the farm in an early day. [See sketch of E. W. Russell for the early history of the Russell family.] Elliott Russell was born on December 3, 1819, and grew to manhood on his father's farm. He was united in marriage with Mrs. Delilah (Abernathy) McCombs, daughter of John W. McCombs. She was born in Cape Girardeau County, on October 15, 1825. After their marriage Mr. Russell resided on the old home place until his death, on August 15, 1874. The parents reared one son and one daughter, both of whom are living in Cape Girardeau County. The mother now resides with her son. She is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. William received a fair education at the country schools and at the Oak Ridge High School. On July 15, 1883, he was united in marriage with Augusta Hines, daughter of Edwin Hines, of Cape Girardeau County. Mr. Hines was born in Kentucky, but reared in Missouri. His wife, Emily Russell, is a daughter of Hon. James Russell, and a sister of E. W. Russell [see sketch]. Mr. Hines removed to Virginia in August, 1882, and located in Charlotte County, where he now resides. Mr. and Mrs. Russell have one son, Hines Elliott, a bright little fellow, who was born on September 30, 1885. Mr. Russell, his sister and mother have a good farm of 367 acres with 200 acres under cultivation. He is a member of the Farmers' Mutual Benefit Association.

A. H. Russkamp, a member of the firm of Klostermann & Co., dealers in dry goods and clothing, Cape Girardeau, Mo., is a native of that city. He was born in 1855, and is the son of Fred and Maria (Wittenburg) Russkamp. The father is a native of Germany, who came to America in 1853. He is still residing at Cape Girardeau, and is a cooper by trade. The mother is also a native of Germany. A. H. Russkamp is the eldest of four surviving children, he having three sisters living. At the age of thirteen he engaged as a clerk in a store, which he continued with various firms for several years. After filling a clerkship of eight years with W. V. Leech he formed the present partnership. The firm carry a general line of merchandise, and are enterprising and successful business men. In 1887 the nuptials of Mr. Russkamp and Amelia Bock were celebrated. The latter is a native of Cape Girardeau, and is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Russkamp is a member of the Lutheran Church.

Theodore Sachse, a substantial merchant of Appleton, Mo., was born on April 27, 1841, in Germany. He is the son of Julius and Rosa (Schultz) Sachse, both of whom were born in Germany, in 1810. They were reared and married in their native land, and immigrated to America in 1849. They first located in St. Louis, where they remained three years, when they removed to Perry County, Mo., and settled one-half mile from Appleton. The father was a cabinet maker by trade, which he followed until his death, in 1880. The mother died in 1872. Theodore was reared at his father's, and worked on the farm until he reached his majority. In April, 1862, he enlisted in the Union army, and was assigned to the Fifth Missouri Cavalry, with which he served until his discharge, in April, 1865. He participated in the fights at Boonville, Independence, and Little Blue, in Kansas, where Gen. Marmaduke was captured. Besides those engagements he was in a number of skirmishes. After his discharge he returned home, and the next October engaged in the mercantile business, which he has since continued. He now carries a good stock of general merchandise, and has built up a splendid trade. On December 24, 1865, he was united in marriage with Mehitabel Whitley, a native of Cape Girardeau County. She died on May 22, 1873, having borne four children, viz.: Cora, Edward, Emma and August. Mr. Sachse married his second wife in Perry County. She was Victoria Unterreiner, a native of Missouri, of German parentage. She died in March, 1885, leaving two children: Rosa and Louisa. Mr. Sachse is a member of the G. A. R.

Henry F. Sadler, farmer and stock dealer of Cape Girardeau County, was born near Sparta, Ill., on January 16, 1848. He is the son of H. F. and Adaline (Davis) Sadler. The father was born in North Carolina on September 6, 1805, and came to Missouri when quite young. The mother was the daughter of Daniel Davis, one of the early settlers of Cape Girardeau County. She was born in North Carolina on November 9, 1811, and was brought to Missouri by her parents when a child. Several years after their marriage the parents removed to Illinois, where they resided a few years and then returned to Cape Girardeau County. They entered and improved a part of the land where our subject now resides. Here they reared their family, and resided until the death of the husband in January, 1863. Henry F. is the youngest of a family of five sons and two daughters, of whom four sons and one daughter are now living, and all, with the exception of one, F. A. Sadler, who resides in Bollinger County, resides in Cape Girardeau County. Henry F. remained on the home farm until he was fifteen years of age, and after the death of his father labored on a farm away from home. In March, 1867, he was united in marriage with Serena D. Morton, daughter of John Morton (deceased). Mrs. Sadler was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. After his marriage Mr. Sadler removed to his father's old farm, to which he has since added more land, until he has more than 115 acres, with about 100 acres under cultivation. He and wife have three children, Ella M. (a young lady and one of the county teachers), John A. and D. F. They are also rearing a child of Mrs. Sadler's sister, Jesse Kitchen, a lad of twelve years. Mr. Sadler is a member of the Mystic Tie Lodge, A. F. & A. M., at Oak Ridge, and is a Master Mason. He is also Overseer in the Oak Ridge Lodge of United Workmen.

Linus Sanford is a son of Henry Sanford, who was a native of the State of Connecticut, born on October 3, 1794. He located at Cape Girardeau in 1816. He had previously studied law, but he taught school at the Cape one year, then came to Jackson and taught three years. He then removed to Lawrence County, Ark., where he served as circuit clerk for four years. Returning to Jackson he was elected circuit clerk in 1838, which office he filled, excepting one term of four years, till his death on November 5, 1861. On March 2, 1832, he was united in marriage with Mary Daugherty, a daughter of William Daugherty. She was born near Jackson on land granted to her father by the Spanish Government. Her maternal grandfather was Andrew Ramsey, who located on the Cross farm in 1794. Her death occurred on August 24, 1885. They had three sons and two daughters, of whom one son, Eli, died of cholera in 1833; another, Pearl, died in Australia in 1863 at about thirty-three years of age. Linus, the only son living, was born January 1, 1839. He was reared near Jackson, and received his literary education at St. Vincent's College at Cape Girardeau. In 1859 and 1860 he attended the Harvard Law School, and was admitted to the bar and began practicing in 1861. He represented his county in the Legislature in 1872. In 1873 he was united in marriage with Mattie J. Russell, a granddaughter of Maj. Bollinger, one of the first pioneers of Southeast Missouri. One son and two daughters have been born to them as follows: Linus, in 1873; Julia, in 1877, and Mattie Russell, in 1883.

Judge John J. Sawyer, a farmer and one of the leading men of Cape Girardeau County, was born in Caswell County, N. C., on January 8, 1833. He is the son of Stephen and Louisa (Weeden) Sawyer, the former a native of Virginia, and the latter of Maryland. The parents removed to Missouri in the fall of 1850, locating six miles north of Jackson, in Cape Girardeau County. They entered land, to which they afterward added more by purchasing, and improved a farm, upon which they resided until the death of the father in 1865. Judge John J. Sawyer came to Missouri with his parents and remained with them until after the war, but served in the State militia during the war, being called out a number of times. When twenty years of age (1854) he was united in marriage with Nancy M. Templeton, daughter of O. S. Templeton, a pioneer citizen of Cape Girardeau County, who removed from North Carolina. Mrs. Sawyer was born in Tennessee, but was reared and educated in Cape Girardeau County. The Judge has always resided on the old homestead, and has a good farm with modern improvements. Politically he has been identified with the Republican party since Lincoln's second election, but previous to that time was a Democrat. He was elected county judge for the first district of Cape Girardeau County in November, 1884, and was re-elected in November, 1886, and is now filling that position with satisfaction to his constituents. He and wife have seven children, viz.: Robert M., William, James H., Charles, DeWitt, Burrett and Emma. He and wife, three sons and the daughter are members of the Presbyterian Church at Pleasant Hill. The Judge has been a member of the Grange for about fifteen years, and is also a member of the Farmers' Mutual Benefit Association.

Henry Schaefer, collector of Cape Girardeau County, was born in Germany, on February 8, 1838. In December, 1851, he came with his parents to America, locating near Appleton, Cape Girardeau County, where he has since resided. The parents, John and Gertrude (Ohley) Schaefer, were both natives of Germany, and died when more than eighty years of age, the father in 1882 and the mother in 1887. Henry learned the carpenter's trade while young, and worked at it for seven years. In August, 1862, he accepted the position of deputy sheriff and collector, which he filled four years. He then engaged in the mercantile business at Appleton, which he still continues. In the fall of 1884 he was elected to his present office, as the nominee of the Republican party. During the war he served a few months in the Missouri State Militia. In 1862 he was united in marriage with Mary Hopfer, a native of Perry County, Mo. They have had ten children, four of whom are dead. Mr. Schaefer and family are members of the Lutheran Church.

J. H. Schaefer, treasurer of Cape Girardeau County, is a native of Germany, born on February 9, 1840. He is the son of Jacob H. and Lena (Steiner) Schaefer, both natives of Germany. The father was born on November 22, 1811, and was a civil engineer. He died on October 23, 1877. The mother now resides in Germany, at an advanced age. J. H. is the eldest of six children—two sons and four daughters—all of whom are living. The sons and one daughter are in America. The subject of this sketch immigrated to America at the age of sixteen years, locating in Galena, Ill., where he learned the baker's trade.

After two years he removed to St. Joseph, where he engaged in his trade, till the beginning of the Civil War. He enlisted in Company B, of the First Nebraska Regiment, which was organized at St. Joseph. After serving three years with that regiment he enlisted for four months as second lieutenant in the Missouri State Militia. He was mustered out at Omaha at the close of the war. In 1864 he was united in marriage with Minnie Grill, who is a native of Hanover, Germany. Their marriage has been blessed by two children, both dead. They adopted a girl by name of Katie in its very infancy, which is the pride of the parties named. In 1866 he located in Jackson, and continued his trade in the same house he now occupies, as a grocery and hardware store. For several years he was justice of the peace, and in 1884 he was elected to his present office, being the regular nominee of the Republican party. He is a member of the A. F. & A. M., and is Past Grand of the I. O. O. F. He is also a member of the G. A. R., and he and wife are members of the Evangelical Lutheran Church.

Henry Schenimann, farmer and stock raiser at Neely's Landing, Cape Girardeau Co., Mo., is among the substantial and influential men of that county. He is of German birth, and was born in Hanover, February 9, 1835. His father, D. Schenimann, and his mother, whose maiden name was Christena Busche, were both natives of Hanover. The family immigrated to the United States in the fall of 1844, and settled in Cape Girardeau County. Both parents are now deceased. There was a family of two sons and a daughter that grew to maturity. Mr. Schenimann and a sister are the only survivors. The brother died in St. Louis while serving in the army. The subject of this sketch commenced life for himself as a poor boy, and when eighteen years of age was engaged as a hand on a steam-boat on the river. He followed steam-boating about two years, when he took charge of a wood-yard on the river, first for other parties, then as a partner in the business and later as proprietor. He followed that business for a number of years until 1873; during a part of the time, however, he was also managing a farm. Mr. Schenimann served about three years in the army as first lieutenant of the Enrolled Militia. After the close of the war he returned to his business and farm in Cape Girardeau County. In 1873 he engaged in the mercantile business at Neely's Landing, which he very successfully carried on for eight years, when he was compelled by failing health to discontinue the business. Mr. Schenimann has, however, been actively engaged in business since that time, and is considered one of the best business men in Cape Girardeau County. He owns about 1,800 acres of land, which is in four farms, with valuable improvements on each, and he is still building upon, clearing and improving his land. Mr. Schenimann married in Cape Girardeau County, January 5, 1860, Mary J. Massey, a native of Tennessee and a daughter of Mr. A. Massey. Mr. and Mrs. Schenimann have a family of six sons and two daughters: Eliza E., D. E., J. O., Julia A., Joseph F., Robert B., Lem C., and Harry R. They lost one daughter, Lulu M., April 19, 1881, in her twentieth year. They have also lost three children in infancy. Mrs. Schenimann is a member of the Methodist Church. Mr. Schenimann is identified with the Democratic party, having held to the principles and acted with that party since the close of the war. He is a member of Wilson Lodge No. 191, A. F. & A. M., at Pocahtontas, and also a member of the Wilson Royal Arch Chapter at Cape Girardeau.

Andrew H. Schlueter, a farmer of Hubble Township, Cape Girardeau Co., Mo., was born in Hanover, Germany, January 10, 1829. He is a son of Frederick and Mary (Sanders) Schlueter, also natives of Hanover. The parents immigrated to the United States in 1841, and located in Cape Girardeau County. Mr. Schlueter entering the land upon which the subject of this sketch now resides. He improved the farm and resided there until 1857, when he sold out, and removed to Minnesota, where he resided until his death on July 15, 1869. Andrew H. came to the United States with his parents, and grew to manhood on his present farm. On August 14, 1850, he married Caroline S. Schlimme, a native of Hanover, Germany, and a daughter of Henry Schlimme, deceased. After his marriage Mr. Schlueter cleared land and built the house in which he now resides. His farm consists of 150 acres, with 110 under cultivation. To him and wife have been born twelve children, nine of whom are living, viz.: Mary L. (wife of Aaron Stainhoff, of Jackson), Caroline (wife of William Sparling), Anna (wife of Henry Veleke), Henry F., John A., Martie (wife of Thomas Poinsett), Elizabeth (wife of William B. Fullenwider), Rosanna and Lydia. Politically Mr.

Schlueter is an ardent Republican. He has filled several local offices, and was elected public administrator in November, 1884, which position he still fills. In 1864 he enlisted in the Federal army, joining the Second Missouri Mounted Infantry, with which he served until the close of the war. Mr. Schlueter and family are members of the Methodist Church. He is a Master Mason, and a member of the G. A. R.

Judge William G. Schneider, a prominent farmer and stock raiser of Cape Girardeau County, was born in Hubble Township of that county, April 6, 1838. He is a son of Nicklaus and Mary (Hauert) Schneider, both natives of Switzerland, the former born in 1810 and the latter in 1815. They immigrated to America in 1837, and located in Dutchtown, Cape Girardeau County. Nicklaus Schneider was accompanied by his father and mother and two brothers and two sisters, his uncle, Benedict Schneider, having settled in Cape Girardeau County two years previous. Nicklaus Schneider purchased and entered some land at Dutchtown, and afterward improved a farm, upon which he resided until his death in 1848. William G. spent his youth on his father's farm. He is well informed on the principal topics of the day, but is wholly self-educated. On May 3, 1866, he was united in marriage with Matilda Grossheider, who was born in Apple Creek Township, Cape Girardeau County. Previous to his marriage (1859) the Judge had bought and located upon his present farm, which at that time had about twenty acres cleared. He has now a valuable farm of 185 acres, with 125 acres under cultivation, with good improvements. Politically he is a Republican, and was elected presiding judge of the county court in November, 1885, which position he still holds. He and wife have a family of five children: Edward, Amelia, Rosena, William Tell and Sophia. The Judge and family are members of the German Evangelical Church.

Gustave Schoen is a native of Glaüchaü, Saxony, Germany, born on December 29, 1840. He is the son of E. F. and Henrietta (Zentmeir) Schoen, both natives of Saxony, Germany. The family immigrated to the United States in 1852, and settled in Perry County, Mo., where the mother died in 1854. Two years after her death the father removed with his family to Cape Girardeau County, where he bought an improved farm and resided for a number of years. He then removed to Jackson and resided until his death in 1880. Gustave is the eldest of a family of two sons and one daughter. He grew to maturity on his father's farm in Cape Girardeau County. During the war he served in the militia about four months. On February 12, 1865, he was united in marriage with Anna Lehner, daughter of Mathias Lehner (deceased). She was born in Austria, and was brought to America when she was nine years of age. After their marriage they lived on Mr. Schoen's father's farm for about two years, when they bought the farm where they now reside, and which was partially improved at that time. Since February, 1883, Mr. Schoen has been engaged in the mercantile business in connection with farming. He is a member of the firm of Lehner & Schoen, general merchants at Pocahtontas. Mr. Schoen takes great interest in educational matters, and has been a member of the school board for seventeen years, of which time he has been clerk of the board for sixteen years. He and wife have a family of five sons, viz.: Frederick J., Gustus M., E. Rudolph, William A. and Charley L. Mr. and Mrs. Schoen are members of Pocahtontas Lutheran Church.

Dr. F. B. Schulz, a physician of Cape Girardeau, was born in Mecklenburg, Schwerin, April 22, 1828. He was reared and educated in his native country, and in 1854 came to America. He located in New York City, and began practicing medicine, which he continued in that city one year and then removed to Chicago, where he practiced for three years. He afterward located at Fountain City, Wis., but in 1868 removed to Cape Girardeau County. In 1872 he graduated at the Louisville Medical College. He practiced his profession in different places in Cape Girardeau County until 1876, when he located in the city of Cape Girardeau, and now has a lucrative practice both in the city and country. In 1882 he was examining pension physician. In 1860 he was married in Wisconsin to a German lady. They have a family of eight children. Dr. Schulz's parents lived and died in Germany.

Benedict S. Schwab, postmaster at Dutchtown, Mo., is a native of Switzerland, born on May 6, 1849, and is a son of Benedict S. Schwab, Sr., also a native of Switzerland. The family immigrated to the United States in 1852, and located in Cape Girardeau County, near Dutchtown, where both of the parents died. Benedict S. Schwab, Jr., grew to manhood on his father's farm. He has secured a fair education by private study since arriving at mature years. In April, 1869, he was united in marriage with Arvina Belle Wagner, a daughter of David Wagner, deceased. She was born in Ohio. After his marriage Mr. Schwab engaged in farming on the old homestead, which he continued until 1882. He then engaged in the mercantile business at Dutchtown, where he has since carried a large stock of groceries, queensware, hardware, etc., and controls a good trade. He was appointed postmaster in 1883. He and wife have four children: Anna, John, Ollie and Ben. Mr. Schwab is a member of the Evangelical Church. He is also a member of the A. O. U. W., and of the Select Knights of Cape Girardeau.

Herman Sebastian, a farmer and wagon maker of Gordonville, is a native of Saxony, born April 14, 1838. At the age of sixteen years he came to the United States, and located in Perry County, Mo. Two years later he removed to Appleton, and in 1857 opened a shop at Pocahontas, where he worked at his trade until 1861. During the war he was engaged in farming, with the exception of about six months, when he was working for the Government in Tennessee. He opened a shop at Gordonville in 1866, and ten years later purchased a farm near the village. On March 3, 1856, at Appleton, he married Elizabeth Warosky, a native of Germany, and is the father of the following children: Emile, John, Emma (Mrs. W. C. Poe), Albert and Bertha. The family are communicants of the Lutheran Church.

George Seibert, a prominent citizen of Cape Girardeau County, residing at Shawneetown, was born in Berkeley County, Va., on November 16, 1814. He is the son of Hon. Henry and Catherine (Null) Seibert, both natives of Pennsylvania, in which State they grew to maturity and married. After their marriage they removed to Virginia and from thence to Missouri about 1824, settling in Perry County, where Mr. Seibert engaged in milling. After running Wilkerson's Mill for ten years he sold it and settled on a farm. He was a Whig until the dissolution of that party, when he became a Democrat. He served one term as representative of Perry County. Earlier in life he held the rank of general of militia both in Missouri and Virginia. He died on his farm about 1859, having reared to maturity two sons and one daughter, of whom the subject of this sketch is the only one living. The present State treasurer is a grandson. George Seibert grew to manhood on his father's farm in Perry County, and was married in that county on December 9, 1841, to Margaret Price, daughter of William Price. After marriage Mr. Seibert located in Cape Girardeau County, having purchased a farm near Shawneetown on the creek of that name. His wife died on October 21, 1857, leaving two children, viz.: William H., who is married and now resides on the home farm, and Catherine E., who died on July 3, 1868. In November, 1868, Mr. Seibert was united in marriage with Mrs. Martha Byrd, daughter of William Beal (deceased), who removed to Missouri from North Carolina, when Mrs. Seibert was five years of age. In March, 1880, Mr. Seibert left his son to manage the farm and removed to Shawneetown, where he has since resided. He has been a successful farmer, and is now one of the substantial citizens of Cape Girardeau County. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church. His wife is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

F. W. H. Siemers, a well-to-do farmer and stock raiser of Cape Girardeau Township, Cape Girardeau County, is a native of that county, born September 20, 1855. He is a son of George and Sophia (Sander) Siemers, both of whom were born in Germany, and now reside on a farm adjoining that of the subject of this sketch. F. W. H. Siemers grew to manhood on his father's farm. On April 8, 1880, he was united in marriage with Ida Koerber, a daughter of William Koerber, of Cape Girardeau County. Mrs. Siemers was also born and reared in that county. Soon after his marriage Mr. Siemers took his wife to his present farm, which he had owned and upon which he had resided several years previous. He has 230 acres of good land, with about 180 acres under cultivation, upon which is a good house, barn and other buildings. Mr. and Mrs. Siemers are members of the Lutheran Church. They have three children, born as follows: George, April 15, 1881; Amelia, July 3, 1883, and Clara, August 7, 1886.

Herman Philip Siemers, a farmer and stock raiser of Cape Girardeau Township, Cape Girardeau County, was born in that county on November 25, 1861. He is the son of Philip Louis Siemers, a native of Germany, who is now a resident of Cape Girardeau County. Herman P. Siemers spent his youth at his father's home, assisting in the work of the farm. On September 23, 1886, he was united in marriage with Minnie C. Hager, a daughter of William Hager (deceased). Mrs. Siemers was also born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. After his marriage Mr. Siemers located on the farm where he now resides, three miles from the city of Cape Girardeau, on the Gordonville road. The farm consists of 100 acres of land under a good state of cultivation, upon which are a good residence, barn and other buildings. Mr. and Mrs. Siemers are members of the Lutheran Church.

John M. Smith, a farmer and stock raiser of Byrd Township, Cape Girardeau Co., Mo., was born on the farm where he now resides on January 24, 1857. He is the son of William C. and Anna E. (Potis) Smith, both natives of Warren County, Ky. The father was born in 1815. He grew to manhood and married in his native county. They removed to Missouri about 1850, and settled on the land where John M. now resides. The father died in December, 1871, leaving a family of five sons and two daughters, all of whom are living. John M. was reared at his father's home. On December 12, 1878, he was united in marriage with Sarah Long, a native of Cape Girardeau County, and a daughter of John Long, of that county. She died in February, 1880. Mr. Smith chose for his second wife Luella Dickerson, and was married on September 1, 1882. She was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County, and is the daughter of Robert Dickerson, deceased. Three children have blessed this union, viz.: William R., Mary E. and John S.

Julius M. Snider, a prominent farmer of Cape Girardeau County, was born in what is now Bollinger County, on June 16, 1831. He is a son of Hon. Aaron Snider, a native of North Carolina, born in 1800. The latter came to Missouri with his father, George Snider, also a native of North Carolina, in 1811. They settled in Bollinger County, where Aaron Snider grew to manhood, and married Cynthia Young, a native of Virginia. After his marriage he located on a farm near the one on which he was reared. He was county surveyor for a number of years, and also worked on Government surveys in different States. He represented his county in the Legislature several terms, and was serving in that capacity at the time of his death, which occurred on April 12, 1857. His wife died on April 21, 1855. They were the parents of ten children, of whom only two are living, Julius M. and a brother in Millersville. The former grew to manhood on the Bollinger County farm, and received a good common school education. At the age of twenty-one years he engaged in teaching school, which he continued for two years. He went to Cape Girardeau County when a young man, and was married there on April 27, 1854, to Margaret C. Clippard, daughter of Daniel Clippard. She was born in Cape Girardeau County. After his marriage Mr. Snider was engaged in the mercantile business until 1861, at Marble Hill, Mo. He then settled in Cape Girardeau County, and located on the farm where he now resides in 1865. His wife died on January 27, 1863, leaving two children, Thomas H. and William O. On March 5, 1865, Mr. Snider married Sarah J. Wilson, daughter of J. M. Wilson, of Oak Ridge. He was one of the founders of Oak Ridge, and was the first merchant in the town. Mrs. Snider was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. She has eight children, viz.: Yuba, Marshall, John A., Mason, Wilson, Julius M., Cynthia A. and Robert B. Politically Mr. Snider is a Democrat. He served as treasurer of Bollinger County for two terms. He has been justice of the peace for about eighteen years, and has been a member of the school board for a great many years.

J. A. Snider, prosecuting attorney, is a native of Cape Girardeau County, born in what is now Whitewater Township on March 7, 1860. He is the son of George W. Snider, who was born on October 16, 1826, in what is now Bollinger County. He was reared in the locality of his birth, but was afterward a farmer in Cape Girardeau County. In 1868 he built a large flouring mill on Whitewater Creek, in Kinder Township, which he had in operation till his death. He filled the office of county surveyor for twenty years. He died December 25, 1884. The mother, Z. C. (Edinger) Snider, is a native of Cape Girardeau County, and still resides in Jackson with the subject of this sketch. She is the daughter of John P. Edinger, an old pioneer of Cape Girardeau County, who was sheriff and collector for two terms. Aaron Snider, the paternal grandfather, was born and reared in what is now Bollinger County. He was in the land office in Jackson for several years, and was for a number of years in the United States service as surveyor. He was a member of the Legislature in 1836. The paternal great-grandfather immigrated to Cape Girardeau (now Bollinger) County at a very early date. He died in the same vicinity. J. A. is the eldest son of six children—three sons and three daughters—of whom one son is dead. He was reared on the farm of his parents until eighteen years of age, when he entered the South-eastern Missouri Normal at Cape Girardeau, which he attended three years, taking a select course. He then began the study of law with Wilson Cramer, and graduated in the law department of the Missouri State University on March 26, 1885. He was admitted to the bar, and began practicing the next May. In November, 1886, he was elected to fill his present office. He is a member of the F. & A. M.

Marquis L. Spradling, a substantial farmer and stock raiser of Kinder Township, Cape Girardeau County, was born in Perry County, Mo., September 29, 1852. He is a son of Thomas Spradling, a native of Coffee County, Tenn., who came to Missouri when a young man. He (Thomas Spradling) married, in Cape Girardeau County, Susan J. Huston, a daughter of John Huston, deceased, who was a pioneer citizen of Cape Girardeau County from North Carolina. Mrs. Spradling was born in North Carolina. After his marriage Mr. Spradling resided in Perry County for a few years, when he removed to Phelps County, in which he died about 1859, leaving a widow and two children, Marquis L. and Mary C. His widow afterward married Thomas Crafton, of Cape Girardeau County. Marquis L. removed to Cape Girardeau County with his mother about 1861. He was reared on a farm and received a good common school education. On September 7, 1876, he was united in marriage with Tennessee M. Lessley, a daughter of G. F. Lessley, of Cape Girardeau County. Mr. Spradling was engaged in farming with Mr. Lessley for five years after his marriage, and in 1881 he removed to his present location. Previous to his marriage he had purchased a small, unimproved farm. He now has 139 acres of land, upon which he has a comfortable residence and other buildings. In November, 1884, he was elected justice of the peace, and was re-elected in the fall of 1886, which position he still holds. He and wife have seven children, viz.: Albert M., Cora M. and Carry M. (twins), Luther L., Mollie J., Silas W. and Thomas F. Mr. and Mrs. Spradling are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He is a Mason, and a member of the A. O. U. W., in which he is Master Workman.

John St. Avit is an old citizen of Cape Girardeau, Mo. He was born in Southern France on September 25, 1835. His parents were also natives of France, in which country they lived and died. He was educated in his native country, and remained there until he was twenty years of age, when he came to America, reaching Cape Girardeau on March 18, 1855. He learned the carpenter's trade while in France, and after coming to America worked at his trade for six years in Cape Girardeau, after which he embarked in the produce commission and pork packing business until 1877. He then speculated in various branches of trade, till July 1, 1884, when he began his present grocery business. He carries a complete stock of groceries, and is assisted in the store by his sons. In 1858 he was united in marriage with Joan DuPont, a native of France. Their union was blessed by the birth of two sons, John and Eugene. His wife died on May 4, 1872. After nine years he was married to Mrs. Eliza (Gordner) Wilkes, of Cape Girardeau, who is a native of England. She is a member of the Episcopal Church. Mr. St. Avit and sons are members of the Catholic Church. He is also a member of the A. O. U. W. and Select Knights.

Gilbert D. Statler, of the firm of Hinkle, Statler & Co., general merchants, Oak Ridge, Mo., was born in Cape Girardeau County on December 1, 1848. He is the son of Wiley Statler, who was born in what is now Bollinger County on March 23, 1811. The grandfather, Christopher Statler, was a native of North Carolina, born in 1777, and was married in that state to Elizabeth Smith. They removed to Missouri and settled in Cape Girardeau County about 1808, where they afterward resided. The father grew to manhood in Cape Girardeau County, and was married there on January 19, 1834, to Mrs. Mary Hart, a daughter of Henry Steele. She died on December 22, 1886, having been a true and faithful wife for more than fifty-two years. Mr. Statler is still living, and is well preserved for a man of his age. His memory is good and his mind quite active. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church. Gilbert D. was reared in his native county, and his education, which was begun in the common schools, was finished at Westminster College at Fulton, Mo. He taught school for three years. In 1873 he began his present business. The firm has a large store and commands a good trade. Mr. Statler was married on May 29, 1877, to Mary E. Hinkle, daughter of Lewis Hinkle, the senior member of the firm.

They have two children, viz.: Olla and Retta. Mr. Statler is a member of the A. O. U. W.

William W. Stathem was born on July 26, 1825, in Hamilton County, Ohio. He is a son of William and Ann (Andrews) Stathem, both natives of New Jersey. The former served in the War of 1812. He settled in Hamilton County, Ohio, at an early day, and resided there until the death of his wife. During his old age he lived with his children, and died at Connersville, Ind., when seventy years of age. The subject of this sketch grew to manhood and was educated in his native county. He landed in Cape Girardeau County on January 4, 1854, and engaged in agricultural pursuits on the farm of his brother, who had previously settled in Hubble Township, of that county. In 1861 William W. enlisted in the State Guards (Confederate), and in 1862 in Company B, Eighth Missouri Cavalry, under Col. Jeffers, with which regiment he served until he was paroled at Shreveport, La., at the close of the war. He participated in the following engagements: Little Rock, Camden, the second engagement on Red River, and was with Price in his raid through Missouri and Kansas. After the war he returned to Cape Girardeau County and engaged in farming. On September 6, 1867, he was united in marriage with Marzilia Adeline Jeffers, sister-in-law of Col. Jeffers, and daughter of James Bennett, deceased. She was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. Since his marriage Mr. Stathem has followed agricultural pursuits, and bought the farm where he now resides in 1877. He has a fine farm of 230 acres, upon which he has made some valuable improvements. They have four children, viz.: Cora, Carrie, Newton and Linnie. Mrs. Stathem is a member of the Baptist Church. Mr. Stathem is a member of the Farmers' Mutual Benefit Association, and of the Grange.

Charles B. Stearns, an enterprising farmer and stock raiser of Cape Girardeau County, was born in Bollinger County on February 3, 1844. He is the eldest of seven children born to the union of Joseph Stearns and Sarah Seabaugh, both natives of Bollinger County, who were playmates in childhood. The paternal grandfather was a pioneer settler of that county from North Carolina. Joseph S. entered land and improved a farm in his native county, upon which he resided until his death on March 31, 1877. His wife still survives, and resides on the old home farm. Their children are all nearly grown, and five of them are heads of families. Charles B. grew to manhood at the home of his parents, and received a good education in the public schools. In 1866 he, in company with his brother, came to Cape Girardeau County. They purchased raw land, which they improved and cultivated, remaining in partnership until 1869. Charles B. now has 260 acres, upon which is a nice residence, two good barns and other outbuildings, and an orchard of 200 trees. Mr. Stearns was united in marriage on January 27, 1867, with Mary J. Baker, daughter of Joseph and Anna (Young) Baker, both natives of Cape Girardeau County, the former of whom is deceased. Mr. and Mrs. Stearns are Spiritualists. They have five children, viz.: Cecelia Ann, Sarah J., Charles J., Mary Effie and Orie Odie. Mr. Stearns is a member of the A. O. U. W.

Nathaniel P. Stearns, a substantial farmer and stock raiser of Cape Girardeau County, was born in Bollinger County on December 18, 1845. He is the son of Joseph and Sarah (Seabaugh) Stearns (see sketch of brother, Charles B. Stearns). Nathaniel P. spent his youth on his father's farm, and received a good education in the common schools. He taught school two winters in his native county, and also taught for the same length of time in Cape Girardeau County. He purchased the land and located where he now resides in the spring of 1866. He bought raw land, which he has cleared and improved. His farm now contains 247 acres, upon which he has a nice residence, two barns and a large orchard. On January 13, 1870, Mr. Stearns was married in Bollinger County to Anna Bast, daughter of George Bast, deceased, who was formerly from Kentucky. Mrs. Stearns was born and reared in Bollinger County. Four children have been born to them, viz.: Benjamin S., Clara E., Ella May and Walter P. Mr. and Mrs. Stearns are Spiritualists. Mr. Stearns is a member of the A. O. U. W.

Alpheus C. Stevenson, a farmer and stock raiser residing near New Wells, Cape Girardeau County, is a native of that county, born on February 3, 1852. He is the son of Alexander K. and Elizabeth (Clodfelter) Stevenson. The former was born in North Carolina in 1809, and came to Missouri with his parents when ten years of age. The parents located in Cape Girardeau County, where they entered land and improved a farm, upon which Alexander grew to manhood. He was married twice, the last wife being the mother of the subject of this sketch. She was a native of Cape Girardeau County. After his marriage Mr. Stevenson settled on a farm, where he resided until his death on December 16, 1881. He and last wife reared a family of seven children—five sons and two daughters—all of whom are still living. Alpheus C. grew to manhood on his father's farm, and received a good education at the common schools and the Fruitland High School, with a supplementary commercial course at Cape Girardeau. After finishing his education he taught school for four years. On January 6, 1876, he was united in marriage with Miss Julia Boren, daughter of Hiram Boren, of Cape Girardeau County. Mrs. Stevenson was born and reared in that county. After his marriage Mr. Stevenson resided for two years at Neely's Landing and kept the warehouse at that place, after which he removed to Pechontas, and served as clerk in a store during the winter and spring of 1879. He then removed to the farm where he has since resided. He and wife have two children—Myrtle and Roy. Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson are members of the Presbyterian Church, and workers in the Sunday-school at Shawneetown. They are also members of the Grange.

Samuel E. Stewart is a native of Giles County, Tenn., born on November 15, 1843. He is a son of William and Zilthia Ann (Bridwell) Stewart, natives of Tennessee. They both died in their native State, when Samuel E. was a child, and when nine years of age he came to Missouri with an uncle, and located in Butler County. He remained with his uncle until he was eighteen years of age, and then enlisted (in the fall of 1861) in the Confederate army, joining Col. White's regiment of cavalry, but was soon after assigned to Parson's brigade. He participated in all the engagements of his regiment except one, among which were Helena, Ark., Little Rock, Pleasant Hill, La., and Camden, Ark. He remained in the service until the close of the war, when his regiment was disbanded, and he returned home. In 1866 he removed to Cape Girardeau County, and engaged in farming in Hubble Township, and in August of the next year was united in marriage with Levica Hayden, daughter of Hiram Hayden, deceased. She was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. She died in 1877, leaving three children, viz.: Laura (Mrs. Amos V. McLain), Alpha (a young lady) and Emma D. Mr. Stewart purchased and located on the farm where he now resides in 1877. He was married in January, 1878, to Mary L. Bean, daughter of Robert Bean, deceased. Mrs. Stewart was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. Three children have been born to this union—Lewis, Amelia F. and Samuel A. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart are members of the Methodist Church. Mr. Stewart is a Master Mason.

H. Stratman is a native of Germany, born on August 10, 1823. His parents lived and died in Germany, but he was sent from his native country to America at the age of thirteen years to avoid military service. A brother followed him in 1846, and died in St. Louis in 1849. Another brother came over in 1861, and afterward died in Nebraska. The subject of this sketch landed at New Orleans, where he remained one year. He then located in various places, as follows: Cincinnati, one year; New York, a few months; Covington, Ky., one and one-half years; New Orleans and St. Louis, reaching the latter place in 1844. He there engaged in the grocery business until 1853, when he located at Cape Girardeau, and engaged in the same business. In 1851 he was united in marriage with Margaret Luttike, a native of Pennsylvania. They have had five children, only one of whom is living. Mr. Stratman and family are members of the Catholic Church.

William Stroder, justice of the peace of Liberty Township, Cape Girardeau Co., Mo., was born in that county on September 24, 1840. His parents were Magness and Cynthia (Young) Stroder, natives of North Carolina and Cape Girardeau County, Mo., respectively. The former was born on March 4, 1817, and when but two years of age came with his parents to Cape Girardeau County, and located near Burfordville. He there grew to maturity and was married. His wife was the daughter of William Young. After his marriage he located in Kinder Township, Cape Girardeau County, but soon after removed to Liberty Township, where he resided until his death on October 7, 1872. His widow is still living. They were the parents of eight sons and four daughters, of whom two sons and three daughters are living. William Stroder received a good education in the common schools, and remained with his parents until August, 1862, when he enlisted in the Confederate army, joining Col. Jeffrey's Eighth Missouri Mounted Infantry, with which he served until May, 1863, when he was captured at his home. He was held a prisoner at St. Louis about four months, when he was exchanged. He then joined Hood's army, and served until the close of the war. He participated in the battles of Lost Mountain and Altoona, Ga., in the latter of which he received a gunshot wound in the face. On December 18, 1863, he wedded Nancy Moore, a native of Kentucky, who was reared in Wayne County, Mo. After the war Mr. Stroder located on a farm near Stroderville, in which vicinity he still resides, but not on the same farm. Politically he is a Democrat. He was appointed justice of the peace in 1880. In 1882 he was elected to that office, and was re-elected in 1886. He has also held other local offices. He and wife have one son, John William. The Squire is a member of Lutesville Lodge No. 385, L. O. O. F. He and wife are members of the Missionary Baptist Church.

Mrs. Eliza J. Strong was born on November 20, 1833. Her father, Hardy Brooks, a native of South Carolina, came to Missouri with his parents when a young man. He was there united in marriage to Susan Dunham, a native of Tennessee. He located in the bend five miles above Cape Girardeau City, where he resided until his death in August, 1879. He and wife had a family of six children—three sons and three daughters—of whom three are living—one son and two daughters. Eliza J. grew to maturity in her native county, and was married in January, 1851, to William M. Armstrong, a native of Illinois. After their marriage they resided in the husband's native State for one year, when they removed to Cape Girardeau County, where Mr. Alexander died on August 17, 1864. There are four children living by this marriage, viz.: Annetta (Mrs. James W. Young, of Cape Girardeau County), Orlando (of Stoddard County), Albert (residing with his mother), and William J. (residing on an adjoining farm). The subject of this sketch was married to William J. Strong on August 17, 1871. Mr. Strong was a farmer and a native of Cape Girardeau County. He resided on the farm where his widow now lives for seven years, and then removed to a farm near the river, where he died on January 26, 1880. Mrs. Strong has two children by her second marriage, Effie (a young lady) and Alma (who died when seven years of age). After the death of her husband Mrs. Strong returned to her present farm, which her boys have managed for several years. She is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Robert Sturdivant, president of the Sturdivant Bank and proprietor of the Union Mills, was born in Lunenburg County, Va., on March 31, 1817. He came across the country on horseback to Cape Girardeau, in the summer of 1835. Soon after his arrival, he embarked in the mercantile business in a small way with Edwin White under the firm name of White & Sturdivant, and so continued until the general collapse of 1839-40. He re-entered business in the mercantile line again in 1843, but during this interim taught school, clerked in a store and was guilty (as he expresses it) of the folly of undertaking to edit and publish a political newspaper, called the Cape Girardeau Patriot, devoted to the interest and principles of the Whig party. From 1843 to 1847, he was merchandising in partnership with Andrew Giboney, under the firm name of R. Sturdivant & Co., and in 1848 bought one-half interest in the Cape Girardeau Steam Mills, the first manufactory built in the town. In this enterprise he was associated with B. M. Horrell. After a few years he sold his interest in the mill and entered the wholesale and retail grocery business, in which he remained until 1857, when he was chosen cashier of the branch of the bank of the State of Missouri. He continued in that capacity until the mother bank was changed to a National bank and all branches were discontinued, which occurred in 1866 or 1867. He then began the banking business in his own name, and so continued until 1882, when the Sturdivant Bank was organized under the State law, and he was made president. In 1880 he bought the Union Mills, which he still operates. During the great flood of 1844 he suffered severe loss, the water having risen in his store to the depth of five feet. His mill was also damaged to a considerable extent by the flood of 1851. Mr. Sturdivant is a quiet, unassuming gentleman, and his uniform courtesy and dignity win the regard of all with whom he comes in contact. For half a century he has been one of the foremost citizens of Cape Girardeau, and no man has done more to advance the interests of the town.

Capt. Adolph Tacke, an enterprising merchant, and proprietor of the Arnsberg Flouring and Saw Mills, Arnsberg, Mo., was born in Prussia on April 21, 1833. He resided in the "fatherland" until he was twenty-four years of age, and received a good education in his native language. He served an apprenticeship of six years at the millwright trade, after which he served three years in the Prussian army. In 1857 he immigrated to the United States, landing in Philadelphia; he remained there six months, and then went to Kentucky for a short time. In 1859 he settled in Bollinger County, Mo., where he built a mill and remained a few months. In the latter part of the same year he located in Cape Girardeau County, where he followed the millwright business, exclusive of the time spent in the army, until he built his present mill. In 1861 he enlisted in the Federal army for six months as a private, joining the Fourth Missouri Infantry. At the expiration of his first enlistment, he re-enlisted and was promoted to first lieutenant, and later to the rank of captain, in which capacity he served until the close of the war, being discharged in February, 1865. He then returned home and engaged in the mercantile business, which he has since continued, carrying a stock of general merchandise and commanding a good trade. He built his sawmill in 1882, and afterward the flouring mill, which has a capacity of about seventy barrels per day. Since building the mill, Mr. Tacke has given most of his attention to it, doing both custom and merchant milling. He has been married twice, and has reared a family of four children. Politically Mr. Tacke is a Republican, and is a member of the G. A. R.

Dr. Jesse R. Talley was born near Halifax Court House, N. C., on April 22, 1826. He is a son of Rev. Willis H. and N. P. (Carver) Talley, natives of Virginia and North Carolina, respectively. The parents resided in North Carolina after their marriage until 1833, when they removed to Tennessee and located in McMinn County, where they remained ten years, then locating in Hamilton County, where his mother died; his father died in Sumner County, Tenn., north of Nashville, aged about eighty-two years. Dr. Jesse R. went to Georgia when in his teens, and was engaged in mining about two years, after which he returned home, and entered school at Georgetown, Tenn. Upon leaving school he engaged in teaching, which he followed for two years, after which he was engaged in merchandising about the same length of time. About 1853 he commenced the study of medicine in Hamilton County, continuing about four years under two different preceptors. He removed to Missouri in 1858, locating in Bollinger County, where he practiced his profession until 1861. The next year he came to Cape Girardeau County and continued practicing until 1874, when he entered the Missouri Medical College, from which he graduated the next year. Returning home he resumed the practice of his profession, which he has continued with great success, especially in diseases of women, etc. He was married first in Cape Girardeau County to Sophia E. Miller, who died thirteen months after her marriage. He then wedded Harriet E. Lanpher, who died leaving two children, Andrew W. and Aza Myrtle. The Doctor's present wife was Sarah E. Ford, of Cape Girardeau County. She is the daughter of Rev. John F. Ford, (deceased). Two children have been born to this union, viz.: John R. and Jessie L. Dr. Talley and wife are members of the Baptist Church at Millersville. He is a Mason.

Andrew J. Tant, a substantial farmer of Cape Girardeau County, residing on the Jackson and Pechahontas road, six miles from the former place, was born on May 15, 1846, near Nashville, Tenn. He is the son of Felson and Lucinda (Williamson) Tant, the former a native of North Carolina, and the latter of Virginia. The paternal grandfather Williamson was a soldier in the Revolutionary War under Washington. The father, Felson Tant, died in 1863; his wife died a number of years previously. Andrew J. came to Missouri when only thirteen years of age (in 1859), and has since resided in Cape Girardeau County. In 1861 he enlisted in Col. Ward's regiment of infantry, which was soon after disbanded. Mr. Tant re-enlisted in 1863 in Col. Jeffrey's Eighth Missouri Confederate Cavalry, and served until the close of the war, being on detail duty most of the time. He participated in the fight at Helena, Ark. After the war he returned to Cape Girardeau County and engaged in farming, attending school during the winter seasons. On December 9, 1869, he was united in marriage with Mary A. McNeely, daughter of Gracy McNeely (deceased), formerly from North Carolina. Mrs. Tant was born and reared in the neighborhood where she now resides. After their marriage they rented land for a couple of years, but in 1871 Mr. Tant bought his present farm, which is well improved and upon which he has a nice residence. He and wife have six children, viz.: Alma Grace (a young lady), Eula, Della, Jesse T., Anna Myrtle and Victor. Mr. and Mrs. Tant and their four eldest children are members of Pleasant Hill Presbyterian Church.

Robert L. Taylor, a prosperous farmer and merchant of Randol Township, Cape Girardeau County, is a native of Tennessee, born December 18, 1845, and is a son of Robert L. Taylor, Sr., and Nancy (Uhles) Taylor, both natives of Tennessee. The parents removed to Missouri in 1846, locating first on Cedar Creek, Wayne County. After about four years' residence there, Mr. Taylor removed to Cape Girardeau County, and purchased the farm upon which the subject of this sketch now resides. At the time of the purchase by Mr. Taylor, the farm had but nine acres cleared, upon which was a little cabin. He cleared the land and made valuable improvements. The farm is six miles from Cape Girardeau, on the Egypt Mills road. Nine children were born to the parents, the mother of whom died about 1872. Mr. Taylor married the second time, by which marriage he had one child. He died at his home about 1875. Robert L. Taylor, Jr., was reared on his father's farm and married January 30, 1868, Sarah Jane Davidson, a native of Cape Girardeau County, and a daughter of Eldridge Davidson [see sketch]. After his marriage Mr. Taylor located in the river bottoms, where he built a house and cleared considerable land, upon which he resided about nine years, when he bought out the other heirs and removed to the old homestead. He now has 265 acres of land, with about 160 acres under cultivation. His wife died on April 24, 1878, leaving one daughter, Mary L., now a young lady. Mr. Taylor was married again on December 25, 1879, choosing for his second wife Elizabeth Faust, daughter of John Faust, deceased. She is a native of Indiana, but was mostly reared in Cape Girardeau County. One child has blessed this union, Henry Cleveland. In July, 1887, Mr. Taylor engaged in the mercantile business at Egypt Mills, as a member of the firm of Taylor & Hempstead. They carry a nice line of general merchandise and command a good trade.

James C. Thompson, an enterprising merchant of Pocahontas and an influential citizen of Cape Girardeau County, was born in that county on November 22, 1841. He is the son of John A. and Jane C. (Morton) Thompson, both natives of North Carolina. The former was born in 1815 and came to Missouri when five years of age with his father, James Thompson, who entered land and settled in Cape Girardeau County. John A. grew to manhood and was married there, after which he located on a farm where he resided until his death, about June 15, 1882. He was married three times, the mother of the subject of this sketch being his first wife. They had six children, of whom five are living. One son, Oliver, resides in Madison County, Mo., the daughter, Olive (Mrs. James A. Wallace) resides in Texas, the other three sons reside in Cape Girardeau County. James C. is the eldest living member of the family. He grew to manhood on his father's farm and is mostly self-educated. He taught school some in his early manhood, and served a short time in the State Militia. At the age of fourteen years he began work in a woolen mill, which he continued for fifteen years. He was appointed first postmaster at Flat Rock in 1863 (office since abandoned). In the fall of 1866 he engaged in merchandising at Pocahontas, for one year, and in 1870 again engaged in merchandising at the same stand, continuing for five years. He then bought a farm of 320 acres adjoining the town, which he cultivated for ten years. He had, however, bought an interest in his present business in 1881, becoming sole proprietor in 1887. He carries a general stock of merchandise and has built up a large trade. He was appointed postmaster at Pocahontas in January, 1886. In October, 1861, he was united in marriage with Nancy J. Abernathy, daughter of Aaron Abernathy, of Cape Girardeau County. Mrs. Thompson was born and reared in that county. They have three sons and four daughters, three of whom are grown. Mr. Thompson was elected public administrator in 1880 and served four years. Politically, he has always held to the principles of the Democratic party. He is a member of the Masonic order and is a Master Mason. Mrs. Thompson is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Frederick Tiedemann, proprietor of Cape Girardeau County Roller Mills, was born in what was formerly the Kingdom of Hanover, in a town near Bremen, in 1830. He is one of a family of five sons and three daughters, of whom the daughters and three sons are living at O'Fallon, St. Clair Co., Ill. One of them, Charles Tiedemann, is the owner of two large merchant mills, and another, Ernest, is proprietor of a general mercantile business. They immigrated to America from Germany between 1848 and 1852. Frederick, at the age of nineteen years, left the fatherland for California. He sailed by the way of Cape Horn, and landed at San Francisco. Not finding that city to his liking, he went to Mexico, where he was engaged in a mercantile and commission business, until 1868. He then returned to Germany, where he married Lilly Bishoff, in Munich. The next year he came to Cape Girardeau, but in 1872 went to St. Louis, where he remained until 1884, since which he has been a resident of Jackson. He is one of the most enterprising and successful business men in Southeastern Missouri, and has contributed very greatly to the growth and prosperity of Jackson. The mill of which he is the proprietor was originally a small custom mill with a sawmill attached, owned by Miles Niblack. After having been burned and rebuilt it went into the possession of Jacob Kneibert and William Tiedemann, who ran it until 1870. Since that time it has been operated by the subject of this sketch. It was remodeled and enlarged in 1872, and again in 1875, and in 1882-83 it was transformed into a roller mill, with a daily capacity of from 350 to 400 barrels. In 1887 an elevator with a capacity of 50,000 bushels was erected. In 1875 a stave and heading factory was erected to supply material for the cooper shop. When running on full time employment in the various departments is furnished to about seventy-five men. In addition to his large milling interests Mr. Tiedemann finds time to carry on a trade in agricultural implements and building material, and to manage a farm of 200 acres, which he owns, adjoining the town on the east.

John B. Tooke was born in Cape Girardeau County, on July 2, 1842. He is the son of William and Ada (Holman) Tooke, both natives of England. The father was born in 1796. He grew to manhood and was married in his native country. He and wife immigrated to the United States about 1838, and entered land in Cape Girardeau County. They afterward settled on the place where John B. now lives, about two miles southeast from Jackson. The father died there in 1872. The parents reared to maturity a family of two sons and five daughters, of whom the subject of this sketch and two sisters are the only ones living. John grew to manhood on his father's farm, which he managed awhile, previous to his father's death. He received a fair education at the common schools, supplemented with one year at the Jackson High School and one term at the State Normal at Cape Girardeau. In June, 1861, he enlisted in the Confederate army, joining the Jackson Guards. On September 10, 1861, he was wounded at Lucas Bend and lost a limb, which prevented him from further service. Returning home in November he resumed his studies, and in 1865 began teaching school, which he continued until 1878. On November 23, 1869, he was united in marriage with Missouri J. McGuire, daughter of Ezekiel McGuire of Cape Girardeau County. Mrs. Tooke was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. Since abandoning teaching Mr. Tooke has given his attention to farming and stock dealing. He has 186 acres of land, with about 100 in cultivation. He and wife have reared five children: Eulalia, Burette, Jerome, Vilas and Ila. Mr. and Mrs. Tooke and their eldest daughter are members of the Baptist Church. He is a member of the A. O. U. W., at Jackson.

Levi N. Torrence, a merchant and manufacturer, and a member of the firm of Torrence, Walker & Co., of Shawneetown, Cape Girardeau County, was born in that county on November 6, 1835. He is the son of L. N. and Margaret B. (Walker) Torrence, both natives of North Carolina, in which State they were reared and married. The former was born in 1802. About 1826 they left the Old North State and immigrated to Missouri, settling in Cape Girardeau County, where they entered land and improved a farm, upon which they resided until the death of the husband in 1835. Levi N. Torrence, Jr., was reared on his father's farm, and in early life learned the carpenter's and millwright's trades, which he followed for several years. In 1872 he bought an interest in the woolen mills at Shawneetown, and embarked in the manufacture of woolen goods, jeans, blankets, etc., for eight years, and then (in 1880) engaged in his present business, retaining his interest in the woolen mills. The firm carry an extensive stock of general merchandise and have established a good trade. They own the woolen mills, which they operate about eight months each year, and can show some nice woolen goods as the product of their mills. Politically Mr. Torrence has always adhered to the principles of the Democratic party. On November 21, 1856, he was united in marriage with Miss M. J. Brown, daughter of Benjamin Brown (deceased), formerly from North Carolina. Mrs. Torrence was born and has always lived in Cape Girardeau County. They have had nine children, viz.: Cora V. (deceased), Alpha (died when two years of age), Camelia V. (Mrs. J. C. Litzelfelner), Minnie J. (Mrs. Dr. William Malone), May, Flora, Louie B., Robert N. and J. Albert. Mr. Torrence was a charter member of Wilson Lodge, A. F. & A. M., at Pochontas, and is also a member of Wilson Royal Arch Chapter of Cape Girardeau. He and wife are members of the Presbyterian Church.

Louie B. Torrence was born near Pocahtontas, Cape Girardeau County, on May 22, 1864. He is a son of L. N. and M. J. (Brown) Torrence [see sketch]. He was reared at his father's, and received a liberal education at the Oak Ridge High School, and the State Normal at Cape Girardeau City. He spent considerable time with his father in the woolen mills, and in the winter of 1882, he entered a woolen factory at Louisville, Ky., in which he remained ten months, learning the business more fully. Since 1883 he has superintended the woolen mills at Shawneetown. In the winter of 1886-87 he commenced teaching school, and is now teaching his second year. He is a young man of sterling character, and has a bright future before him. He is a charter member of the A. O. U. W. lodge at Shawneetown.

Dr. G. W. Travis, dentist, is a native of Augusta County, Va., born in 1834. When but three or four years of age he removed with his parents, John W. and Margaret A. (Trimble) Travis, to Eastern Illinois, where he was reared and received his education. The father, who was of Welsh descent, was born in the "Old Dominion." He died near Paris, Ill., in 1863. The mother was of French descent. She was also born in Virginia, and died in Illinois in 1871. In boyhood days Dr. Travis spent some time with an old dentist, and while there became interested in the profession. In 1862 he enlisted in the Federal army, joining the Seventy-ninth Illinois Infantry, with which regiment he served three years in the quartermaster department. At the close of the war he began practicing dentistry at Paris, Ill., where he continued until 1868. He then located at Cape Girardeau, and has since practiced his profession. In 1878 he was united in marriage with Mrs. Althea (Brown) Sloan, a daughter of Lieut-Gov. Brown. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church. The Doctor is a Mason, and belongs to the A. O. U. W.

Henry Tuschhoff, an enterprising farmer residing near Appleton, Cape Girardeau County, was born in that neighborhood on June 27, 1852. He is the son of John F. Tuschhoff, a native of Germany. He learned the mason's trade in his native country, and immigrated to the United States while a young man. He settled in Cape Girardeau County, and followed his trade, building a number of stone houses in that and Perry County. He was married in Cape Girardeau County to Mary Ann Dolle, also a native of Germany. After their marriage they located on a farm. At the time of the father's death he owned 500 acres of land which was divided among his heirs. He died on June 1, 1874, being sixty-nine years of age. The parents reared four sons and one daughter to maturity, the later dying at the age of three years. One son, Charles, enlisted in the Union army, joining Company B, Twenty-ninth Missouri Infantry. He was taken sick soon after the surrender of Vicksburg, and died on the Black River near Jackson, Miss. The eldest son, John, died on December 2, 1875. He married Miss J. Lieble, in 1870, and they reared three children, two now living. Bernhard and Henry, the only living members of the family, live on adjoining farms. The former married Miss E. Kromann, and they have three sons and one daughter. Henry was married on October 29, 1877, to Rosa Schultz, who died on February 14, 1885, leaving three children, viz.: Richard F., William H. A. and Eleanor W. Mr. Tuschhoff was married again on February 21, 1886, choosing for his second wife Mary Grebe, who was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. Mrs. Tuschhoff is a member of the German Methodist Episcopal Church.

Henry Ueleke was born and reared in Brunswick. He was a mechanic, and superintended the pattern department in machine shops. He was married in the fatherland to Hannah Schnuppmann, a native of Hanover. After their marriage they immigrated to the United States (in 1846), and located near Dutchtown, Mo., where they improved a farm, upon which they resided until their deaths. Mrs. Ueleke died on February 14, 1875, and Mr. Ueleke, on February 24, 1884. Henry F. Ueleke was reared at the home of his parents, and in his youth learned the carpenter's trade, which he followed for several years. He bought his present farm in the spring of 1878. It consists of 125 acres of land, of which about 100 acres are under cultivation with good improvements. He has been married twice. His first wife, to whom he was married on July 15, 1873, was Louisa Eggmann, a widow lady. She died on April 17, 1874. On September 30, 1875, Mr. Ueleke married Anna Schlucter, a native of Cape Girardeau County. To this union have been born five children: Rosena C., Emily A., Henry A., Albert J., and Otto B. Mrs. Ueleke is a consistent member of the Methodist Church. Mr. Ueleke is a member of the Evangelical Church.

William J. Ulrich, general merchant and postmaster at Houck, Mo., was born in Cape Girardeau County, near his present home, March 30, 1862. He is a son of Frederick Ulrich, a native of Germany, who came to Missouri when a young man. The latter located in Cape Girardeau County, where he married Christina Hille, also a native of Germany. Soon after his marriage Mr. Ulrich settled near Jackson, but later located in the neighborhood of William J. Ulrich's present home, where he remained until his death, about 1884. His widow is still living (1888). They were the parents of nine children, who grew to maturity, six of whom are living. The subject of this sketch is the youngest child. He was reared at the home of his parents, and assisted with the farm work until he was twenty-two years of age. He then engaged in his present business, in which he has been very successful. He is an energetic young man, possessing good business qualifications. He is postmaster of Houck, which appointment he received on February 1, 1887.

Dr. John A. Van Amburgh, a promising young physician of Burfordville, Cape Girardeau County, was born in that county July 26, 1860. He is a son of B. L. and Mary F. (Ford) Van Amburgh, natives of Cape Girardeau County and Virginia, respectively. Both parents are now deceased. Dr. John A. spent his youth on his father's farm, and secured a good education at the Oak Ridge High School, after which he taught one winter in Cape Girardeau County. He then took a course at the Bryant & Stratton Commercial College, St. Louis, after which he returned to Oak Ridge (in 1884) and commenced the study of medicine under the direction of Dr. G. W. Tarleton, one of the leading physicians of Cape Girardeau County. In the fall of 1884 he entered the Missouri Medical College at St. Louis, graduating from that institution in the spring of 1886. Returning to Cape Girardeau County he located at Burfordville, and began the practice of his profession, which he has very successfully continued. He is a young man of excellent character, and is one of the rising professional men of his county. He is a member of the Burfordville Lodge of A. O. U. W., being at present its examining physician.

John Waller, an enterprising merchant at Millersville, Cape Girardeau County, was born in Pittsylvania County, near Danville, Va., on January 27, 1825. He is a son of John and Frances (Woody) Waller, both natives of Virginia. The former served in the War of 1812. He remained in his native State until 1831, when he removed his family to Tennessee, locating in Williamson County, where he died in 1833. After the death of her husband, Mrs. Waller removed with her family to Kentucky, and in 1853 came to Missouri with the subject of this sketch, with whom she lived until her death, in 1864. John Waller, Jr., grew to mature years in Butler County, Ky., and was married there, in 1847, to Hestes Young, a native of that county. In 1853 he located in Cape Girardeau County, where he purchased land and engaged in farming until 1876, when he engaged in the mercantile business in partnership with Mr. Miller. In 1885 he sold his interest to Mr. Miller, and opened up his present store. He served as constable of his township for ten consecutive years, and has filled the positions of road overseer, township clerk and school director. Mr. and Mrs. Waller lost three children in infancy. One daughter, Binnie, lived to be grown, and was the wife of William Serrell, of Cape Girardeau. She died about 1878. Mr. and Mrs. Waller are members of the Universalist Church. Mr. Waller is a member of the Masonic order, and is a Master Mason.

Dr. John H. Walker was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., on February 16, 1840. His father was James Walker, a native of North Carolina, where he grew to manhood and married Jemima Young, also a native of that State. They removed to Missouri about 1829, and settled on a farm in Cape Girardeau County, where they resided until their deaths, the mother's occurring in 1857 and the father's in about 1883. They reared a family of three sons and three daughters. Dr. John H. and two brothers served in the Confederate army, during which service one brother, James C., was killed. The Doctor received a good English education in his youth, which has been greatly improved by private study since reaching years of maturity. He began his professional study in 1861, under the tutorship of S. A. Buteau, M. D., of Shawneetown. After the war he resumed the study, and in 1866 entered the Miami Medical College at Cincinnati, from which institution he graduated in 1868. In April of that year he began the practice of his profession, which he has since continued at Oak Ridge, and now has a large and lucrative practice. He is a member of the Southeast Missouri Medical Association. On March 12, 1874, he was united in marriage with Avis Day, daughter of Nighton Day, of Cape Girardeau County. William C. Walker, farmer and stock raiser of Cape Girardeau County, was born in that county on February 4, 1841. His father, Ephraim Walker, was born in Lincoln County, N. C., on July 6, 1816, and when about ten years of age came with his father, John Walker, to Missouri. They settled in Cape Girardeau County, where they entered land and afterward improved a farm. John Walker died there in 1862. Ephraim Walker grew to manhood there and married Louisa Patterson, who was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. She was the daughter of Robert Patterson, deceased. After their marriage Mr. Walker located on a farm in Shawnee Township, which he improved and upon which he resided until 1866, when he sold his farm and removed to Montague County, Tex., where he still resides. William C. Walker grew to manhood in the neighborhood where he now resides. In September, 1862, he enlisted in Col. Jeffrey's regiment of Missouri Cavalry, with which he served until the close of the war. He participated in all the engagements of his regiment, including all the engagements of Price's raid in Missouri. After the war he spent one year in Texas, returning to Cape Girardeau County in the fall of 1866. He then engaged in farming, and on February 12, 1871, he was united in marriage with Miss Laura, daughter of William Whittenburg, deceased. Both father and daughter were born and reared on the farm where Mr. Walker now resides. Mr. and Mrs. Walker have three children, viz.: Calla L., Ora J. and Birdie L. Mr. Walker has a fine farm of 200 acres, of which 150 acres are under cultivation. The farm was settled by Mrs. Walker's grandfather, Henry Whittenburg, about 1809. Mr. Walker is a member of the A. O. U. W. at Oak Ridge.

Peter B. Walker was born on the farm where he now resides in Cape Girardeau Township, Cape Girardeau County, on May 26, 1866. He is a son of Thomas E. Walker, a native of Kentucky, born in 1830. The latter came to Missouri with an uncle when a lad of nine years, his parents having died previously. His uncle located in the city of Cape Girardeau, where Thomas E. grew to manhood and received a good education in the common schools, which was supplemented by a course at St. Mary's College in Perry County, Mo. After reaching his majority he served as bookkeeper for a firm in Cape Girardeau for a number of years. He married Sophia J. McCarty, a native of Cape Girardeau County, after which he located on the farm where the subject of this sketch now resides. After managing the farm for a number of years, he removed to Cape Girardeau and followed the hotel business for about two years. He was then employed by the Cape Girardeau & Scott County Gravel Road Company, for which he kept the toll gate until his death in November, 1886. His wife died about 1872. Peter B. is the only survivor of a family of three sons. His youth was mostly spent on the farm. He received a good education at St. Vincent's College, in which he finished the commercial course. Upon leaving school he clerked for two years in a wholesale grocery store in Cape Girardeau. In July, 1887, he removed to the home farm which he has since managed. It consists of 250 acres, with about 125 under cultivation. On October 20, 1887, Mr. Walker was married to Miss Emma L. Houck, a daughter of Julius Houck, of St. Clair County, Ill. Mrs. Walker was born and educated in Belleville, Ill. Mr. and Mrs. Walker are members of the Catholic Church.

James E. Wallace, an enterprising farmer, and proprietor of the Home Nursery, situated two and one-half miles south of Pocahontas, Cape Girardeau County, was born in that county on October 23, 1849. He is the son of Joseph C. Wallace, also a native of Cape Girardeau County, born on November 19, 1826. He is the son of John Wallace, an early settler of Cape Girardeau County who emigrated from Rowan County, N. C. He is still living, and is in his ninety-first year. Physically he is weak, but his mind is active and his memory good. Joseph C. Wallace, the father of our subject, grew to manhood and married in Cape Girardeau County. His wife, Mary A. Clodfelter, is also a native of that county. After his marriage Mr. Wallace engaged in farming, and settled on his present farm about 1853. He and wife reared two sons and one daughter, all of whom reside in Cape Girardeau County. James E. is the eldest child. He spent his youth on the farm and received a fair education in the common schools. Since reaching his majority he has engaged in the nursery business, which he learned in his youth. He put out his first trees in 1875 and has since increased his stock, until he has about ten acres in his nursery. He grows for home demand in Cape Girardeau and the adjoining counties, and has a splendid trade. On February 3, 1870, he was united in marriage with Cora C., daughter of Judge R. M. Woods, of Cape Girardeau County. Mrs. Wallace was born and reared in that county. Four children have blessed their marriage, viz.: Carl, Louis, Olga and Gail. Mr. Wallace and wife are members of the Presbyterian Church. He is a member of the Grange.

Herman Weiss, a prominent farmer and stock raiser of Randol Township, Cape Girardeau County, was born in the Province of Brunswick, Germany, July 13, 1833. He is a son of Jacob and Matilda Weiss, both natives of Brunswick [see sketch of George Weiss]. Herman Weiss came with his parents to the United States when but a lad of fourteen years. He secured a fair education, having attended school eight years in his native country. In 1860 he was married in Cape Girardeau County to Christena Frick. After his marriage Mr. Weiss bought and located upon the farm which is now his home. At the time of his purchase the farm was slightly improved; since then he has cleared much more of it and has made some valuable improvements. He has 209 acres of land, with about 120 under cultivation. During the war Mr. Weiss served about three months in the Enrolled Militia. His first wife died about one year after his marriage, and about 1862 he married Eliza Fiehafer, a native of Hanover, Germany. She died about seven years after her marriage, leaving two sons, William C. and Erich H., both of whom are young men. On May 25, 1871, Mr. Weiss wedded Pernesia E. Masters, a native of Bollinger County, who was reared in Cape Girardeau County. Mr. Weiss is a member of the Lutheran Church.

George Weiss, a well-to-do and enterprising farmer of Randol Township, Cape Girardeau County, was born in the Province of Brunswick, Germany, July 24, 1836. He is the son of Jacob and Matilda (Claudetz) Weiss, both natives of Brunswick. They immigrated to the United States in 1847. Landing at New Orleans, they came up the Mississippi River to Cape Girardeau, arriving at the latter place in December of that year. Mr. Weiss purchased some land, where his son, George, now resides. At that time there were twenty-four acres improved, upon which was a log house. Mr. Weiss improved the farm and made a good home, residing there until his death in 1863. His wife survived until March, 1873. George Weiss grew to manhood at the home of his parents. After the death of his father, he bought the other heirs' interests in the home farm, upon which he has since resided. Since the farm came into his possession he has made some valuable improvements, and now has a nice brick residence, good barn and other buildings. He owns 820 acres of land, which includes two farms, with five dwellings, three barns, and four good orchards. On August 13, 1866, Mr. Weiss was united in marriage with Wilhelmina Loves, daughter of Christian Loves. She was born in Hanover, Germany. Seven children have blessed their union: August, Herman, Matilda, Henry, George, Robert and Charles. Mr. Weiss is a member of the Masonic lodge at Cape Girardeau, and is a Master Mason.

Richard J. Welch, an enterprising farmer and stock raiser of Kinder Township, Cape Girardeau County, was born in Bollinger County, Mo., on December 6, 1845. He is the son of Judge William and Cinderella C. (Snider) Welch, both natives of Bollinger County, Mo. Judge William Welch was born on the farm which is still his home. His wife was the daughter of Martin Snider, who came to Missouri when a lad of twelve years of age. She died about 1855. Richard J. grew to manhood on his father's farm, and received a good education in the common schools. He taught one term of school in his younger days. On December 23, 1867, in Cape Girardeau County, he was united in marriage with Louisa E. Lessley, who was born and reared in that county. After his marriage Mr. Welch located on a farm in Bollinger County, but in the fall of 1873 he purchased and located upon his present farm. He has 163 acres of land upon which he has a comfortable residence and other buildings. His first wife died on October 4, 1881, leaving four children, Cinderella C., Missouri E., Marzilla C. and Alburn S. Mr. Welch was married again on February 16, 1882, choosing for his second wife Levina J. Proffer, a daughter of William M. Proffer, of Cape Girardeau County. Three children have been born to this union: William M., Ira W. and Hattie J. Mr. Welch is a member of the General Baptist Church. His wife is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a member of the A. O. U. W., and of the Wheel.

Levi Welty was born in Cape Girardeau County on December 5, 1817. He is a son of Daniel Welty, a native of North Carolina, who was born on October 6, 1785. He went to Kentucky when a young man, and was married there to Polly Hendricks, who was also a native of North Carolina, born September 26, 1790. After their marriage they resided in Kentucky for a few years, and in 1809, accompanied by several of their brothers and sisters, removed to Missouri and settled in Cape Girardeau County. Mr. Welty pre-empted land, and when land came into market, he entered more, and improved a farm in Apple Creek Township. He died on February 23, 1848. His wife lived until April 30, 1857. They were the parents of thirteen children that lived to be men and women, of whom only three are living, viz.: Levi, Daniel and Nancy C. (Mrs. Aaron Link). Levi grew to manhood on his father's farm, and on December 15, 1842, was united in marriage with Rillie Ann C. Baker, daughter of Peter Baker. She was born in Cape Girardeau County on August 6, 1826. After his marriage Mr. Welty engaged in farming, and after two years bought and located on the land where he has since resided. This farm was a Spanish grant conferred to Joseph Baker, which, at the time Mr. Welty traded for it, had a small piece of clearing, upon which was a cabin. The latter has made some valuable improvements, and now has a fine farm. His wife died on December 9, 1881, having borne seven children, four of whom are living, viz.: William, Mary E. (Mrs. R. B. Hurtle, of Bollinger County), Emma J. (Mrs. William P. Wilkerson, of Cape Girardeau County), and Ira B. (now of Bolinger County). The other three died as follows: one son in infancy; Sarah L., January 28, 1867, in her fourteenth year, and Hannah A., November 15, 1870, in her fourteenth year. Mr. Welty served as justice of the peace for fourteen years. He is a member of the Universalist Church, and is a Mason. Politically he was formerly a Whig and cast his first vote for Harrison, but since the dissolution of that party he has been identified with the Democratic party. His son, William Welty, has had charge of his farm since January, 1884. He was born on June 4, 1846, and received a good common school education at the district and high schools of Cape Girardeau County. He taught school one term, and on April 24, 1874, was united in marriage with Sarah E. Miller, daughter of H. H. Miller, of Cape Girardeau County. They have three children, William O., Effie and Russell B. Mr. Welty has been engaged in farming since his marriage, excepting two years in which he was merchandising. He is a Mason.

Thomas Franklin Wheeler, secretary and paymaster of the Cape Girardeau Southwestern Railway, was born December 25, 1843, in Cape Girardeau, Mo. He is the son of Benjamin F. and Mary (Wathen) Wheeler, and when a child removed with his parents to Columbus, Ky. Later they removed to St. Louis, and then returned to Cape Girardeau. He was educated in the common schools of his native county, and began life for himself when about eleven years of age. Commencing without any capital, what he has accumulated is due to his own energy and business ability. On June 21, 1861, he enlisted at Jackson, Mo., in Capt. William L. Jeffrey's company of Missouri State Guards, known as the "Swamp Rangers," and served six months. In the spring of 1862 he re-enlisted in Capt. Jeffrey's company, and afterward, at Little Rock, Ark., was transferred to Col. Charles H. Matlock's regiment of Arkansas Infantry, in which he served as second lieutenant of Company K, until the depletion, by death and capture, compelled the re-organization of the regiment; then he was put on recruiting duty in North Arkansas, where he remained until Gen. Price's raid through Missouri, when he joined Col. Jeffrey's regiment and was appointed adjutant in place of Lieut. Joe Hunter, of Cape County, Mo., who was killed at Ironton, Mo., in which capacity he served until he reached Jefferson City, Mo. He was then placed on Gov. Thomas C. Reynolds's staff, remaining until the raid ended, in Texas, when he was again detailed for recruiting duty in North Arkansas, where he served until the war closed. He was surrendered and paroled at Wittsburg, Ark., in May, 1865, and returned to Missouri in the fall of that year, and in 1866 went to Grand Tower, Ill., to fill a position with an engineer corps under Col. P. R. Van Frank, now of the Missouri Pacific Railway, on the Grand Tower & Carbondale Railroad. In 1867 he returned to Cape Girardeau County and engaged with his brother, Will. H. Wheeler, and John V. Priest, in the dry goods business at White Water, until 1870. He returned to Cape Girardeau

City the next year, where he has ever since resided. He received his present position in 1881. He was publisher and editor of the South Eastern Champion during one campaign, and he owned an interest in and was local editor of the Daily Herald, of Dallas, Tex., in 1876. On February 13, 1871, he was united in marriage with Isabella A. Medley, a daughter of Col. John S. and Barbary A. Medley, of Marion County, Ky. Their union has been blessed by two children, viz.: Christini I. and Charles Henry Medley Wheeler. Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler are members of the Catholic Church. Politically, Gen. Wheeler is a Democrat, and is at present chairman of the Central Committee of the county. He served four years as deputy sheriff, and eight years as deputy county court clerk, under Gabriel C. Pepper. He also served four years as clerk of the court of common pleas, and refused a re-election on account of other business engagements.

Elza H. Whittedge, a successful farmer of Cape Girardeau County, was born near Jackson in that county on August 28, 1816. He is the son of John and Frances (Whittedge) Whittedge, both natives of Virginia. The father was reared in Kentucky, where his father, William Whittedge, was killed by the Indians. John Whittedge returned to the "Old Dominion" for his wife, but soon after their marriage they removed to Kentucky, where they resided until they came to Missouri in February, 1816, and settled in Byrd Township among the Indians. He afterward sold his farm there and removed to Perry County, Mo., where he entered land and resided until his death about 1846. He engaged in school teaching the greater part of his life. He and wife reared a family of twelve children, of whom four are living. One son and one daughter reside in Pike County, Mo. One daughter is in California. Elza, the subject of this sketch, is the youngest of the family. He grew up among the Indians, and had the youths and maidens of that race for his playmates. He received his education in the common schools, and spent his early manhood on the river. He first engaged in flat-boating down the Mississippi River to New Orleans and afterward was engaged on a steamboat about seven years. In February, 1844, he was married to Ann Cotner, daughter of George and Sarah Cotner. She was born on the farm where she was married in Cape Girardeau County. She died in September, 1869, leaving a family of seven daughters and three sons. Mr. Whittedge afterward married Mrs. Clarinda McKnight, daughter of Jesse Shoults. Mr. Whittedge settled on a farm after his first marriage, buying at first eighty acres with slight improvements. He afterward entered and bought more land, until he had three good farms. He now owns 162 acres, of which about 135 acres are under cultivation. Mr. Whittedge was an old-time Whig, but now votes independently. Mrs. Whittedge is a member of the Methodist Church.

Henry Wilhelm, a substantial farmer and influential German of Cape Girardeau County, was born in Germany on May 28, 1832. He is the son of Louis and Reaba (Meyers) Wilhelm, both natives of Germany, in which country they lived and died. Henry Wilhelm grew to manhood in his native country, and in October, 1857, was united in marriage with Mena Hoyer, also a native of Germany. The year following their marriage they immigrated to America and located in Cape Girardeau County, Mo. Mr. Wilhelm engaged in farming, leasing land for about seven years. In 1865 he bought 160 acres and located where he now resides. He has since purchased more land and now owns 235 acres, of which about 150 acres are under cultivation, and upon which he has a good residence, barns and other buildings. He and wife have five children living and one dead. Those living are Charles (who is married and resides in Cape Girardeau County), Albert (who is also married and residing in his native county), Augusta (Mrs. Otto Willie), Henry (who is married and resides on the home farm) and Lena (a young lady at home). Mr. and Mrs. Wilhelm are members of the Lutheran Church.

Jacob and S. Van B. Williams, two prosperous farmers of Cape Girardeau County, are the sons of Hon. Isaac S. Williams [see sketch of Judge Francis M. Williams]. Jacob Williams was born in Byrd Township, Cape Girardeau Co., September 5, 1822. His youth was spent on his father's farm, and he received a limited education in the subscription schools. In 1862 he enlisted in the State Militia, and was called into active service a number of times in Cape Girardeau County, but was in no regular engagement. On August 10, 1847, he was united in marriage with Mary Ann Liles, daughter of Jesse Liles, who settled in Cape Girardeau County from Tennessee in 1837. Mrs. Williams was born and partially reared near Nashville, Tenn. After his marriage Mr. Williams removed to his present farm in Randol Township, which is one-fourth of a mile from where he was born and reared. The land, at the time of his purchase, had a house and some clearing, but since then he has cleared much more of it, and has made other valuable improvements. Mr. and Mrs. Williams are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. They have had four children, two of whom died in infancy, and one, Ebenezer G., died in his twenty-second year. The other, Martha, is the wife of I. H. Poe. Politically Mr. Williams is a Republican, having held to the principles of that party since the war. S. Van B. Williams was born in Cape Girardeau County, January 12, 1838. He grew to manhood on his father's farm, and received his education in the district schools. In October, 1859, he was united in marriage with Louisiana Randol, a daughter of Samuel H. Randol, a pioneer of Cape Girardeau County. Mrs. Williams was born and reared in that county. After his marriage Mr. Williams purchased and located upon his present farm in Byrd Township. The place was partially cleared at that time, but he now has 100 acres under cultivation, upon which he has a good residence, barn and other improvements. Six children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Williams: Cynthia E. (Mrs. Frank McLain), Louisa (Mrs. John Lewis), Elma Jane, Candus M., Ida C. and Horace Wesley (who died when five years of age). Mr. and Mrs. Williams are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He is a member of the A. O. U. W., and of the Select Knights.

Judge Francis M. Williams, an enterprising citizen and prominent farmer of Cape Girardeau County, was born in Byrd Township of that county, January 1, 1826. He is a son of Hon. Isaac Smith Williams, a native of Kentucky, who came with his father, William Williams, to Missouri, when but two years of age. William Williams settled in Cape Girardeau County near Jackson in 1804. He there improved a farm upon which he reared his family. Isaac S. Williams grew to manhood on his father's farm, and married Elizabeth Glascock, a native of Kentucky, born in 1801, and reared in Cape Girardeau County. After his marriage Mr. Williams located on a farm in Byrd Township, where he reared his family. He was a very active politician, and a member of the Democratic party. He served as representative of Cape Girardeau County for two terms, and was in the State Senate for four years. He died at his home on December 6, 1858, and his widow died on March 30, 1872. They were the parents of seven sons and two daughters, who became the heads of the families, of whom four sons and one daughter are now living, all in Cape Girardeau County. Judge Francis M. is the fourth child. He grew to mature years on his father's farm, and married, in that neighborhood January 20, 1848, Malinda Randol, daughter of Jeremiah Randol (deceased). She was a native of Cape Girardeau County. Soon after his marriage the Judge settled on the farm, which is now his home, in Randol Township. He has cleared the land and made valuable improvements, and now has a comfortable home. His wife died February 23, 1855, and on December 4, 1855, he wedded Charlotte Randol, a sister of the former wife. Politically Judge Williams is a Democrat. In the fall of 1874 he was elected judge of the county court, which position he held four years. He has held other minor offices of trust in his township. He has six children, all by his last marriage: Philbert R. (a physician of Scott County, Mo.), Rosella (Mrs. Abner McFeron of Scott County), John P., Malinda, Francis M. and Isaac Smith. The Judge is a Master Mason. He and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

William Wesley Williams, the great-grandfather of William Williams, proprietor of the Red Star shoe store at Cape Girardeau, went with his family and several other families of relatives, including the Fosters, from Cincinnati down the Ohio River in flat-boats, and about 1803 landed at New Madrid, Mo., where they remained until the earthquakes of 1812. They then located near Jackson, Cape Girardeau County, but the Foster branch of the family soon after located on White River, Arkansas. Mr. Williams and his family remained on his farm near Jackson till his death, and his remains are buried there. His son, Jacob, was reared on the old home place, and in early manhood married a Miss Hanley, and removed to Illinois, locating near Grand Tower, where his wife died, leaving a son, John A., and a daughter, Jane, who married a Murray, and immigrated to California. Jacob married again while in Illinois, and died there when his son was fifteen years old. Soon after his father's death John A. longed for river life, and secured a position on a flat-boat. He can be called a pioneer steamboat man, and has filled all the positions from flat-boating to pilot and captain on fine Mississippi steamers. He is at present a steamboat captain, and he and wife reside at Cape Girardeau. He was born in 1827, and was married in the winter of 1850 to Martha E. Liles, whose father, Jesse Liles, emigrated from Lebanon, Tenn., to Cape Girardeau in 1832. John A. and wife reared two children, William E. and Mary L.; the latter is the wife of Mr. Buehrmann, of Cape Girardeau. William E. was born in 1856, and engaged in steamboating when but sixteen years of age, which he followed several years. He clerked one year in Mr. Buehrmann's store, and on August 23, 1886, opened out his present business. On November 27 (Thanksgiving day), 1883, he was united in marriage with Virginia E. Hawkins, daughter of Judge David L. Hawkins.

Drury Wills, a substantial farmer residing near Oak Ridge, Cape Girardeau County, Mo., was born in Lincoln County, N. C., on August 22, 1812. He is the son of John and Anna (Best) Wills, both natives of North Carolina. They immigrated to Missouri in 1832, and entered land in Apple Creek Township, Cape Girardeau County, where they afterward resided. The father died about 1839. The parents reared five sons and five daughters, of whom four sons and two daughters are living. Drury Wills came to Missouri with his father when twenty years of age. He entered eighty acres of land, and made some improvements previous to his marriage. He now has a farm of 256 acres, of which about 170 acres are in cultivation, and upon which he has good buildings, and an orchard of 200 trees. On February 11, 1838, he was united in marriage with Celia E. Bowman, daughter of Shepherd Bowman, one of the early settlers of Cape Girardeau County. Mrs. Wills was born in North Carolina. After marriage they located on the land that Mr. Wills had entered, and which has since been their home. They have had seven children, viz.: Albert M., Marshall, G. S., B. F., Minerva J. (Mrs. J. F. Smith deceased), Jackson B. (deceased) and one that died in infancy. Mr. and Mrs. Wills are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Dr. W. B. Wilson, a popular physician of Cape Girardeau, was born in Cape Girardeau County, near the village of Appleton, on the 12th of January, 1831. He was reared at his father's home. In 1852 he graduated in the medical department of the University of New York City, after which he returned to his native county and began the practice of his profession at Cape Girardeau, which he has since continued, being now the oldest practitioner in the city. In 1856 he engaged in the drug business, which he has continued in connection with his practice. The paternal grandfather was a native of Virginia, where he was married. He removed from his native State to Kentucky, and from thence to Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in 1808, and located on a farm near Jackson, where he afterward died. The father was born in Virginia in 1791, and came to Cape Girardeau County with his parents. He learned the carpenter's trade, and located at Jackson in early manhood. He was there united in marriage with a Miss Johnson, after which he resided in Jackson awhile, and then removed to Perry County, where he remained a few years, and returned to Cape Girardeau County. Locating on a farm near Appleton, he married his second wife, Virginia (Bull) Anderson. Two children blessed this union, the subject of this sketch and a brother, P. G. Wilson, who is judge of the probate court at Bloomfield, Mo. The mother died about 1858, after which the father broke up housekeeping, and resided with his children till his death at Cape Girardeau in 1863. In 1853 the Doctor was united in marriage with Ann Eliza Juden, a native of Jackson, but who was reared in Cape Girardeau. They have had ten children—seven sons and three daughters—of whom three sons and two daughters are dead. The Doctor is a member of the F. & A. M. and the A. O. U. W. Dr. C. G. Wilson, of Cape Girardeau, is the eldest child. He was born in 1854, and is a graduate of the class of 1875 of the St. Louis Medical College. He was married in 1877 to Emma A. Williams, a native of Cape Girardeau County. They have four children.

Prof. Thomas M. Wilson, principal of the Jackson schools, was born in Stoddard County, Mo., on September 7, 1854. He is the son of Michael A. Wilson, who was born in Cape Girardeau County, and who died in Thomas M.'s childhood. His mother died when he was ten years of age, since which time he was reared in Cape Girardeau County. His early education was secured at Fruitland and Oak Ridge, but he afterward attended the Southeast Missouri State Normal, graduating in 1875. In 1882 he was united in marriage with Nora Devenport, a native of Cape Girardeau County. Two sons have blessed their union. Prof. Wilson and wife are members of the Presbyterian Church. He is a member of the F. & A. M. He was county school commissioner from 1882 to 1887. He began teaching in 1874 in Perry County, and is now teaching his fourth year at Jackson.

J. B. Wilson M. D.

CAPE GIRARDEAU CO

Hon. R. P. Wilson was born at Shawneetown, Cape Girardeau County, on March 29, 1857. He is the only child born to the union of Richard E. Wilson and Catherine Knox. The father was one of a large family. He was born March 20, 1833, and was the son of Thomas Wilson, a native of North Carolina, who with his family immigrated to Missouri, locating in Cape Girardeau County with the early pioneers. He and wife died on the birthplace of our subject. The father also resided there until his death, which occurred March 19, 1883. The mother, a native of Perry County, is now residing with her son. He was reared on the farm of his birth. In the fall of 1875 he entered the State University at Columbia, taking the academic course of four years. He graduated in the law department of the same school in the spring of 1880. The next fall he located at Jackson, and began the practice of his profession. He was the city attorney for several years, and in the spring of 1886 he was elected mayor. On December 14, 1882, he was united in marriage with Lillie Seibert, a native of Perry County, Mo., but who was reared in Cape Girardeau County. Two sons and one daughter have been born to them, viz.: Robert Kent, Kirk (deceased) and Alpha, Irene (deceased).

James E. Wilson is a native of Cape Girardeau County, Mo., born on July 11, 1859. He is the son of Sandy H. and Minerva A. (Clippard) Wilson. When about ten years of age the father came to Cape Girardeau County, where he was reared and married. The mother was a sister of C. C. Clippard [see sketch]. She died leaving a family of three sons, one of whom resides at Oak Ridge, one in Texas, and the subject of this sketch. The father married again, and now resides on a farm near Oak Ridge. James E. was reared on his father's farm, and received a fair education in the country schools and the Oak Ridge High School. On February 26, 1880, he was united in marriage with Miss Sarah L. Rumpfelt, daughter of Logan Rumpfelt (deceased). Mrs. Wilson was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. One year after marriage Mr. Wilson bought the farm where he now resides in Apple Creek Township. Mr. Wilson is a model farmer and a good business man. He and wife are members of the Oak Ridge Baptist Church. They have three children, viz.: Daisy, Hines and Dennis.

William G. Wilson, junior member of the firm of J. L. Hinkle & Co., general merchants, Burfordville, Cape Girardeau County, was born at Oak Ridge in that county, August 12, 1860. He is a son of C. C. Wilson, a native of Tennessee, who came with his father, John Wilson, from his native State to Missouri in 1838, he being but eight years of age at that time. John Wilson entered land in Apple Creek Township, Cape Girardeau County, and improved a farm, upon which he reared his family. C. C. Wilson grew to manhood on his father's farm, and married Addine Beal, a daughter of Giles Beal. She was born in North Carolina, but was reared in Cape Girardeau County. After his marriage C. C. Wilson located on a farm in Apple Creek Township, which was his home until his death, on December 31, 1886. He left eight children, of whom William G. is the second. He received a good education, having attended the Oak Ridge High School for three years, after which he clerked three years in the store of Hinkle, Statler & Co. In July, 1885, he engaged in his present business. He is a member of the A. O. U. W., and is at present recorder of his lodge. Mr. Wilson is a young man of sterling character, and good business qualifications.

William Winkler, Sr., proprietor of the Gordonville Grist and Saw Mills, was born in Prussia on June 3, 1834. He came to the United States in 1858, and after living a few months at Baltimore, removed to Wisconsin. In August, 1862, he joined the Twenty-first Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, with which he served until mustered out at Milwaukee in June, 1865. He participated in the battles of Perryville, Stone River, Hoover's Gap and Chickamauga. After the battle of Chickamauga he was taken sick, and did not recover sufficiently to resume active service. At the close of the war he located at Madison, Ind., where he followed his trade till 1876. He then came to Cape Girardeau County, and purchased the mill which he has since operated. He was married in Baltimore, in September, 1858, to Doretta Meisner, a native of Germany and a daughter of Michael Meisner. They have three children: William Winkler, Jr. (who married Emma Ehlebe, of Warsaw, Ill.), Henriette (wife of Menne Lüpkes), and Cella

Judge Rufus M. Woods was born in Rowan County, N. C., on May 20, 1820. He is the son of James and Jane (McCullom) Woods, the former a native of Virginia, and the latter of North Carolina. They removed to Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in 1829, and located on a farm in Shawnee Township, where they reared their family. The father died January 16, 1858. The parents reared to maturity a family of four sons and two daughters, of whom the Judge and a brother, James A. Woods, of Henry County, Mo., are the only members living. The Judge was reared at his father's home and is entirely self-educated. On October 28, 1847, he was united in marriage with Miss Mary A. Adams, daughter of Elam W. Adams, formerly of North Carolina. Mrs. Woods was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. After their marriage they settled on the land where they now reside, about six miles northeast of Jackson. They have a farm of 160 acres, with about seventy-five acres in cultivation. Politically, Mr. Woods always held to the principles of the Republican party. He was elected county judge in 1866, and was presiding judge for four out of six years that he served in that capacity. He adopted the plan for the present courthouse at Jackson. He and wife have reared a family of eight children, viz.: Lucinda A. (deceased), Cora C. (Mrs. James E. Wallace), Jane A. (deceased), Lillie L. (Mrs. O. Alexander), John J., George Andrew, Mary C., Rush M. (deceased). Mr. and Mrs. Woods are members of the Presbyterian Church at Pleasant Hill.

Patrick Ahern was born in Ireland in 1834, and is a son of James and Catherine (Geary) Ahern. James Ahern was born in Ireland in 1806, and early learned the the cooper's trade, at which he worked until his death in 1874. His wife was also a native of Ireland, born in 1803. She died in her native country in 1878. They were the parents of six children. Patrick was reared at the home of his parents, and attended school until his fourteenth year, when he began learning the cooper's trade under the direction of his father. In 1857 he immigrated to America, after which he worked at his trade in nearly all of the large cities of the United States, and at one time was foreman of Fairbank's cooper shop at St. Louis. In 1862 he enlisted in the Federal army, joining Company C, Ninetieth Illinois Infantry. He participated in the siege of Vicksburg, in the battles of Jackson, Miss., LaGrange, Tenn., Lookout Mountain and the Atlanta campaign. In the assault on Fort McAllister he was wounded through the shoulder. He was with his regiment at the front when Gen. Johnson surrendered to Gen. Sherman, and was discharged at Washington, D. C., in June, 1865. After the war he resumed work at his trade, and in 1872 was united in marriage with Anna Sullivan at Osage Mission, Kas. They located on a farm in Kansas, but in 1879 removed to Bollinger County, Mo., and located on their present farm. Mr. and Mrs. Ahern's marriage has been blessed by the birth of six children, viz.: James, Patrick, Bartholomew, John, Mary and Anna.

James William Back, an intelligent young citizen of Bollinger County, Mo., was born in 1863, and is a son of William H. and Mary (Wells) Back, natives of South Carolina and Southeast Missouri, respectively. William H. Back was born in 1825, and when eighteen years of age immigrated to Missouri and located in Stoddard County, where he was married. He always followed farming as an occupation, and died in 1886. His wife was born in 1839 and died in 1875. They were the parents of nine children, only one of whom is dead. James W. Back is their second child. He was born in Stoddard County, Mo., and received his education in the Mayfield-Smith Academy, Marble Hill, Mo. After finishing his education he taught very successfully in the public schools. For some time he was in the employ of the Northwestern Railroad Company. In 1885 he was united in marriage with Miss Ella King, a native of Bollinger County, Mo., born in 1871. The next year after his marriage Mr. Back located on a farm and engaged in agricultural pursuits, at which he has a good prospect for success. He and wife are the happy parents of one child, Cora.

H. B. Baker, a well-to-do farmer of Bollinger County, Mo., is a native of Wayne County, Mo. His parents, John and Susie (Wills) Baker, were both born in Missouri. Their parents were natives of North Carolina, who immigrated to Missouri in the early settlement of this State. Both families entered land and erected cabins in which they lived for several years. John Baker was born near the present site of Glen Allen. The farm upon which he was born is now owned by Mrs. Louisa Myers, one of the Baker girls. H. B. Baker was reared in Bollinger County, and at the breaking out of the Civil War enlisted in the Federal army, and saw active service in the western army with Company C, Second Missouri Volunteers. He was one of the number detailed to carry the United States mail from their quarters on Powder River to Fort Laramie, and, owing to Indian hostilities, were five days making the trip. The command he was with running out of rations, they were compelled for six weeks to live on the flesh of horses and mules shot down in battle or that had died from fatigue; during this time they had no bread or salt. In many of the skirmishes with Indians Mr. Baker took an important part, and, in speaking of his comrades who were killed or wounded and afterward died, says that after burying the bodies at night they would picket the horses over the graves to destroy all traces of the place of interment lest the Indians should disinter the body and mutilate the remains. Mr. Baker's regiment suffered many hardships, and he is now suffering from disease contracted during his term of service. After the war he was united in marriage with his cousin, Mary Baker, and a happy domestic life has followed. They have eight children: Philip, Cora, Francis, Noub, Allie, Adam, Joseph and Henry.

Jacob Barks, one of Bollinger County's oldest native citizens, was born in 1826, one mile from his present home, in Lorraine Township. He is a son of Isaac and Sarah Barks. Isaac was born in Bollinger County, Mo., in 1801, and was a son of Jacob Barks, a native of North Carolina, who came to Bollinger County about 1797, and settled in what is now Lorraine Township. He was one of the first white men who settled within the boundaries of what is now Bollinger County. Isaac Barks died in 1854, and his widow in 1880. She was the mother of ten children, Jacob, the subject of this sketch, being the eldest. He was born and grew to manhood on his father's farm, and has never resided more than one mile from his birthplace. In 1851 he married Sarah Shrum, also a native of Bollinger County, born in 1824. She was the mother of three children, viz.: Eli, Pinkney (residing in California) and Ephraim (who died in December, 1887, at the age of thirty-one years). The latter left two children: Clara Alma (aged six years), and Dora May (aged four). In 1876 Eli married Margaret McJimsey, who was born in Perry County, Mo., in 1843. Their union has been blessed by the birth of two children: Ephraim Edward and Hattie Victoria. Eli owns 240 acres of land, and is an industrious farmer and an enterprising citizen. Jacob Barks lost his wife in 1880, and for the last three years has made his home with his son, Eli, residing in Bollinger County. He has always led a simple and unostentatious life, and has accumulated considerable property, a part of which is a good home. At one time he owned over 600 acres, but being of a kind disposition and benevolent nature has given liberally to his children. Being strictly honest he has always kept his promises faithfully, and is a man of good standing with all of his neighbors. The Barks family is among the oldest of the county, and has aided much in its development. Mr. Barks is a devoted member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and is a Democrat in politics.

William Berry, a successful farmer residing four miles north of Marble Hill, was born in 1828, in Bollinger County, Mo., four miles from his present home. He is a son of Hiram and Amelia (Lincoln) Berry. Hiram Berry is of English descent, and was born on April 16, 1784, in Lincoln County, N. C. He married in his native county and in 1816 immigrated to Missouri and located in Bollinger County. In 1827 he removed to Madison County, Mo., and settled near Fredericktown. His wife was also a native of North Carolina, and died in 1874 at the age of ninety-two years. She was the mother of ten children, five of whom are living, viz.: John, William, Hiram, Malinda (widow of William Smith) and Lydia (wife of R. E. Kelley). About 1865 Hiram Berry broke up housekeeping, and has since been living with his children. He is now one hundred and four years old, and is at times quite active, being able to walk over the farm and ride to Glen Allen, Marble Hill and the adjoining towns. He is, beyond doubt, the oldest man living in the State of Missouri. He is a neat and fine old gentleman, and has lived through every administration since the formation of the Government. Politically he was a Democrat until the late war, and being a strong Union man he has cast his votes since then with the Republican party. For the past sixty years at least, he has been a consistent and devoted member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and has lived a truly Christian life. William Berry was reared on a farm in Madison County, his parents removing there when he was but one year old. In 1842 he was united in marriage with Miss Corentha Whitner, a daughter of Daniel Whitner. She is a native of Madison County, Mo. After his marriage Mr. Berry located ten miles south of Fredericktown, and at the same time established a general store at his home. In 1867 he removed to his present home and established another store at his home. About 1870 he engaged in general merchandising at Glen Allen, and also engaged in the tie and timber business for the Iron Mountain Railroad. He has very successfully continued the mercantile business. His wife died in 1843, leaving one child, William. The following year Mr. Berry married Miss Cynthia Barks, who was born in Bollinger County, Mo., in 1822, and is the daughter of Jacob Barks. Nine children have been born to this union, viz.: Pinkney J., Jacob, John, Martha (Mrs. N. J. Smith), Mary E. (Mrs. Guy Sample), Lydia (Mrs. Miles Whitner), Julia, Dehelia and Caroline. Mr. Berry owns about 700 acres of land, and is one of the substantial citizens of his county. For years he has been one of the leading men of the Democratic party of Bollinger County. About 1860 he was elected justice of the peace, and served four years. He was elected to the Twenty-seventh, Twenty-eighth, Twenty-ninth and Thirty-second General Assemblies of the State of Missouri, thus illustrating the confidence placed in him by his neighbors. He proved a very useful member, always looking carefully and wisely after the interests of his constituents. In 1854 he studied law under Judge David Fox, and although he has never been admitted to the bar, has managed and looked after many important cases and disputes. Having made a profession of religion on March 8, 1875, he united with the Congregational Methodist Church, and in September, 1876, was licensed to preach the gospel, since which time he has been engaged in the good work. In 1887 he had charge of three churches, and this year (1888), has four. He is a consistent Christian gentleman, and a highly esteemed citizen.

Father Francis Bettels, priest of St. John's Church, at Leopold, Bollinger County, Mo., was born in Hildesheim, Germany, in 1853. He received a good education in his native town, and in 1871 immigrated to America. Soon after he entered St. Francis Seminary, St. Francis, Wis., from which institution he graduated at the end of five years. He is a polished scholar, and is thoroughly conversant with the Latin, Greek, German, French and English languages. In June, 1876, he was given charge of St. Henry's Church at Charleston, Mo., and in August, 1878, was removed to his present charge. Father Bettels is a gentleman who is thoroughly imbued with his work, and is highly respected and loved by his parishioners.

Joseph M. Bollinger, a miller of White Water Township, Bollinger Co., Mo., is a son of Moses Bollinger, who was born in Lincoln County, N. C., in 1789. Moses was a descendant of a family of North Carolina Dutch, and received a fair education in German and English. When quite young his parents removed to Cape Girardeau County, Mo., where he was married in 1813 to Miss Elizabeth Statler, a daughter of Peter Statler and wife, both also of German descent, and natives of the Old North State. In his youth Moses Bollinger worked on a farm and learned the tanner's trade, but after his marriage he located on a farm, and followed that vocation until his death in 1854. His wife died in 1838. They were the parents of seven children, viz.: Polly (afterward the wife of Judge Connard), Mathias, Joseph M., Peter, Priscilla (wife of Ephraim Hawn), John, and Francis (wife of Frederick Grouse). Joseph M. was born in 1819, and as facilities were poor received a very limited education. He early began to work on the farm, and when twenty-five years of age was united in marriage with Miss Priscilla Bollinger. He owned eighty of land upon which he located after his marriage, and engaged in farming. Like many others, in 1852 he started to California in search of gold. Making the journey with an ox team he was seven months on the route, after which he mined in different portions of the State, and returned home in 1854, and resumed farming. Knowing something of the milling business, in 1878 he purchased an old mill, which he remodeled into a good mill, which he now operates, and is doing a good business. His marriage has been blessed by the birth of six children: William A., Eeran L., Moses E., Reuben W., David and Henry. In religious belief Mr. Bollinger is a Presbyterian. He is a member of the Farmers' Alliance. During the war he served six months in the State Militia.

Mrs. Eleanor Bollinger, widow of Daniel Bollinger, was born in Hanover, Germany, in 1821, and is a daughter of Conrad and Dora Fischover, born in 1780 and 1789, respectively. Conrad Fischover was also born in the Kingdom of Hanover, and was a tiller of the soil. He died in 1847, and his widow in 1863. They were the parents of eight children, three of whom are alive. Mrs. Eleanor Bollinger, with her sister and brother-in-law, came to America in 1848, landing at New York, they went to St. Louis, from whence they came to Southeast Missouri and located. In 1858 Eleanor was married to Daniel Bollinger, a native of Bollinger County, born in 1817. He was a farmer by vocation, and, after a life of great usefulness, died in 1869. To him and wife were born three children, one of whom died young; another, a daughter, was married to John Miles, and lived to be twenty-six years of age. She was the mother of two children, one of whom died, and the other is being reared by its grandmother Bollinger. Benjamin H. Bollinger, the only living child, is an industrious and intelligent young man of twenty-three years. He received a good education in the common schools, and has remained on the farm with his mother, to whom he is a great stay in her declining years. Together they own 280 acres of land in Wayne Township, Bollinger Co., Mo. Mrs. Bollinger is a devoted member of the Lutheran Church.

Daniel E. Bollinger, one of the most successful farmers and stock raisers of Bollinger County, Mo., is the fifth child born to David and Elizabeth (Whitener) Bollinger, natives of North Carolina. They were married in their native State, and immigrated to Southeast Missouri before the present county of Bollinger was formed. David Bollinger was born in 1808, and by occupation was a farmer and miller. His wife died in 1861, being the mother of eight children, three of whom are now alive. Daniel E. Bollinger was born in Bollinger County on December 8, 1853. In early life he worked on his father's farm, and attended the primitive common schools of Missouri. On September 30, 1875, his marriage with Miss Rosilla J. Sitzes was celebrated. She was born in Wayne County, Mo., in 1860, and is a daughter of Andrew M. Sitzes, a native of Wayne County, Mo., born in 1830. He was a farmer and blacksmith, and died in 1883. Mrs. Bollinger's mother, Mrs. Andrew (Lutes) Sitzes, was born in 1838, and died in 1880. Mrs. Bollinger is the eldest of eight children, five of whom are living. She is the mother of three children, two of whom, George W. and Daniel F., are alive. Daniel E. Bollinger has a fine farm of 223 acres of land, a great part of which lies in the productive Castor River Valley. In politics Mr. Bollinger is a staunch Democrat. He is a member of the Lutheran Church. His wife is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Frederick Bramer, an enterprising farmer and carpenter, of Bollinger County, Mo., was born in Holland, in 1831, and is a son of George and Grada (Greathouse) Bramer, both natives of Holland. George Bramer was born in 1800, and was educated in his native country for the priesthood; but, preferring not to enter the ministry, he learned the dyeing trade. In 1840 he came to New Orleans, and the next year removed to St. Louis, where he worked several years as a contractor. In 1860 he located on a farm in Bollinger County, Mo., and resided there until his death in 1866. Mrs. Bramer was born in 1802, and was married in 1822, after which she became the mother of nineteen children, only three of whom are living. She is still living and makes her home with her son, Frederick. The latter was educated in St. Louis, and early learned the carpenter's and trunk-maker's trades. In 1850 he went west and located in Eldorado County, Cal., where, besides working at his trade, he engaged in hotel keeping and mining. In 1857 he was united in marriage with Miss Cynthia Eddie, who was born in Vermont, in 1830. She went to California in 1854, with some friends. In 1870 Mr. Bramer and wife returned to Bollinger County and located on a farm, where they now have a pleasant and comfortable home. They have no children of their own, but have adopted a sister's children. In politics Mr. Bramer's views accord with the principles of the Republican party.

Nathan L. Cato, one of the most successful farmers of Bollinger County, Mo., was born in 1840, and is a son of Granderson Cato, a farmer of Bollinger County, born in 1813. The latter married Nancy Taylor, also a native of Southeast Missouri. The grandparents of our subject were among the first settlers of Southeast Missouri. Granderson and Nancy Cato were the parents of three children, of whom Nathan L. is the only one living. He was born in Stoddard County, Mo., and in his young days was instructed in the work of his father's farm, and attended the primitive common schools. Mr. Cato has been three times married; first, to Rebecca Allen, who died leaving him one child, Nancy Caroline; secondly, he married Mary Catherine Ladd, who died after having borne him four children, only one of whom, Virginia Ann, is living; thirdly, he was united with Sarah Jane Kinder who is now thirty-three years of age. To this marriage have been born five children, viz.: Martha J., William G., James V., Ader A. and Nathan W. During the Civil War Mr. Cato served in the Federal army, fighting for the preservation of the Union. He was assigned to Company A, Seventy-ninth Missouri Cavalry, and, when the war was over, was mustered out of service at Bloomfield, Mo. Returning home he resumed work on his farm, and now owns over 500 acres of land. His home is situated in Section 10, Wayne Township, Bollinger County. He and family are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

George E. Clark, hardware merchant of Lutesville, Bollinger County, Mo., was born in Norfolk County, Mass., in 1834, and is one of two children born to the union of Abijah Clark and Ann Calista Sayles. The former is of Scotch-English descent, and was born in Norfolk County, Mass., in 1806. He is a machinist and carpenter by trade, and is yet living in his native State at the ripe old age of eighty-two years. His wife was of English origin, and was also born in Norfolk County, Mass., in 1810. She died in 1881. Their other child is Addie Augusta. George E. received a good education in the common schools, and in 1862 enlisted in the Federal army, joining Company B, Forty-second Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry for nine months. At the battle of Brashear City he was wounded by a gun shot in the left leg, and was taken prisoner. After being retained four weeks at Brashear City, La., he was released, after which he returned home. In 1865 he went west, and locating at Cobden, Union Co., Ill., engaged in stove and tinware merchandising. In 1867 he was united in marriage with Miss Eliza J. Walker, who was born in Union County, Ill., in 1842. She was the daughter of Charles T. Walker, of that county. Their union has been blessed by the birth of three children who are living: Herbert Abijah, Nellie Augusta, and Addie Calista. In 1868 Mr. Clark removed to Bollinger County, Mo., and locating at Marble Hill, established a general hardware store, but in 1872 he removed to Lutesville and engaged in his present business. He carries a first class stock of stoves and tinware, etc., having the largest line of general hardware in Bollinger County. Mrs. Clark died in 1884. Politically Mr. Clark's views accord with the principles of the Republican party. He has served as treasurer of Lutesville for the past three years, and as secretary of the school board for seven years. He is a member of the Congregational Church, I. O. O. F. and of the G. A. R.

Andrew Clippard, a prominent citizen of Bollinger County, Mo., and a general merchant of Ladin, was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in November, 1822. He is a son of Daniel Clippard, who was born in Lincoln County, N. C., in 1794, and when about twenty-two years of age immigrated to Cape Girardeau County, Mo. In 1818 he married Elizabeth Crites, who was born of German parentage, in North Carolina, in 1797. She came to Missouri when but six years old, with her father, Peter Crites, who settled in Cape Girardeau County. Being one of the pioneer settlers of Southeast Missouri, for the first few years Mr. Crites was compelled, on account of the Indians, to seek protection for himself and family in a block-house at Maj. Bollinger's mill. After his marriage Daniel Clippard located on a farm in Cape Girardeau County, where he resided until his death, in July, 1865. His wife died in January, 1875. They were the parents of nine children, who lived to be grown. Six are now living, viz.: John F., Andrew, William, Martha A. (Mrs. John Snider), Christopher C., and Elizabeth (Mrs. William F. Kinder). Andrew grew to manhood on his father's farm, and in 1843 was united in marriage with Miss Mary J., a daughter of James Wilson. She was born in Perry County, Mo., in 1825. To her and Mr. Clippard were born two children, James C. (who resides in Cape Girardeau County, on the old Clippard homestead) and Marzilla J. (deceased wife of Dr. M. Hattler). Mr. Clippard lost his first wife in February, 1849, and in 1874 he wedded Miss Sarah S. Lloyd, a native of Wayne County, Mo., born in 1853. This union has been blessed by eight children: Missouri B., Dora May, Ida E., Leonidas, Carrie, Minnie, and Maud and May (twins). Mr. Clippard farmed near his birthplace until 1870, when he removed to Laffin and began merchandising in partnership with his brother-in-law, W. F. Kinder. They were the first merchants in Laffin. After four months Mr. Kinder sold Mr. Clippard his interest, since which time he has been alone in business. In 1870 he erected a house 42x40, and in 1885 erected a brick 22x63 feet, two stories high, and a ware-room 16x63 feet, one story. Being a first class businessman he has met with deserved success. He is one of the largest landholders in Bollinger County, having in all about 2,000 acres. While a resident of Cape Girardeau County he served as justice of the peace for eight years, and in 1854 was elected to the State Legislature, in which assembly he served his constituents ably. In 1871 he was appointed postmaster at Laffin, which position he still holds. In politics he is a liberal Democrat, and has been a Mason since 1854.

George W. Clippard (deceased), a prominent farmer and ex-judge of Bollinger County, was born in 1829 in Cape Girardeau County, Mo. He is the son of Daniel and Elizabeth (Crites) Clippard [see sketch of A. Clippard]. George W. was born and reared to manhood on a farm. In 1854 he married Miss Cordelia M. Snider, a daughter of George Snider. She was born in Bollinger County, Mo., in 1830. Three children were born to them, viz.: Felix G., Martha E. (wife of W. B. Finney) and Mary S. (wife of W. J. Fischer). Mr. Clippard lived in Cape Girardeau County until 1870, when he removed to a farm near Laffin, Bollinger Co. His first wife died in 1861, and in 1867 he married Mrs. Sarah E. Armagost, nee Horn, daughter of David and Elizabeth Horn, natives of Chester County, Penn., born in 1805 and 1807, respectively. David Horn died in Cape Girardeau County in 1869, having removed there in 1865. His widow is still living. Mrs. Clippard was born in Clearfield County, Penn., in 1839. She was first married to William K. Armagost, who was born in Clarion County, Penn., in 1836. By this marriage Mrs. Clippard has one child, viz.: Eliza Lorena (wife of Barton S. Snider). George W. Clippard was a substantial citizen, and owned 120 acres of good land. In 1880 he was appointed county judge, and, being elected to the same office in 1882, served in all about six years. For many years he served satisfactorily as justice of the peace of his township. In politics he voted with the Democratic party, and was a member of the Masonic order. He died December 15, 1887. There are two children living by the last marriage, Frank B. and Frederick S.

David Cloninger was born in Gaston County, N. C., in 1848. He is a son of Lewis Cloninger, a native of North Carolina, born in 1813. The latter married Elizabeth Froneberger, also a native of the Old North State, born in 1808. She is still alive and resides in Southeast Missouri. Lewis Cloninger was a farmer and some time after his marriage immigrated to Missouri and located in Madison County. He and wife were the parents of seven children, all of whom are living. David Cloninger came to Missouri with his parents when ten years of age. During his early life he worked on his father's farm, and attended the common schools. In 1872 he was united in marriage with Miss Louisa Bollinger, who was born in Bollinger County, Mo., in 1850. She is of German descent. Mr. and Mrs. Cloninger are the parents of two children who are living, viz.: Daniel L. and Norah N. Mr. Cloninger has a farm of 140 acres in Sections 4 and 5, Wayne Township, Bollinger County, and is one of the thrifty and successful farmers of the county. In politics his views accord with the principles of the Republican party.

Thomas Clubb was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in 1832, and is a son of John and Jane (Frizel) Clubb. John Clubb was born in South Carolina, and came to Southeast Missouri with his parents when but three years of age. After his marriage he located on a farm in what is now Bollinger County, and remained until his death. His wife was born in Madison County. She was the mother of six children. Both parents died when the subject of this sketch was twelve years of age, after which the latter made his home with Mr. Hamilton Winters until he reached his majority. In 1857 he was married to Elizabeth Dennis, and located on the home farm, buying out the heirs as they became of age. He has added to this land until he has 330 acres of good farm land which is well improved. His wife was born in Wayne County, Mo., in 1835. To them have been born five children: Mallinda (Mrs. Henry Fowler), Nancy J. (Mrs. Jacob May), Rebecca A. (Mrs. Frank Fowler), Parley F. (Mrs. William Dellaner) and Thomas C. While the Civil War was in progress Mr. Clubb was robbed several times of all his movable property. Although his opportunity for securing an education was limited, he has given his children the advantages of good educations, and is giving each of them financial aid as he starts out in life. Mr. and Mrs. Clubb are members of the Missionary Baptist Church. Politically Mr. Clubb supports the Democratic party.

Mrs. Ader Ann Clubb, widow of William D. Clubb, was born in Middle Tennessee, in 1855. She is a daughter of Thomas and Lucinda (Ray) Baker, both natives of Tennessee, born in 1831 and 1827, respectively. They were married in their native State, and resided on a farm. In 1857 they sought a home in Southeast Missouri. Here, amid all the hardships of frontier life, by energy and industry they established a comfortable home. In 1873, after a life of great usefulness, Thomas Baker died. His widow, the companion of his manhood, still survives, and at the age of sixty-one years is reasonably strong. She and three of her children reside three miles south of Lutesville. Mr. and Mrs. Clubb were married in 1874, and after twelve years of married life he died on October 21, 1886. Mr. Clubb was a farmer, and by industry and frugality had just gained sufficient wealth to live in comfort, when he was called to give up a pleasant home and enter into the happiness of that more blessed land beyond. Mrs. Clubb has four bright, intelligent children, viz.: Cora E., Ermina Lee, William M. and Bertha Ann. The family still reside on the home farm. Mrs. Clubb is a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Her husband was also a member of the same church.

David R. Conrad, one of the most prominent citizens of Bollinger County, Mo., was born in Lincoln County, N. C., in 1811, and is a son of Peter and Sarah (Abernathy) Conrad. Peter Conrad was born and reared in Lincoln County, N. C. He was a carpenter by trade, and was married in his native State in 1810. His wife, who was of Scotch extraction, was also a native of the Old North State. In 1820 Peter Conrad removed to Missouri and located in Cape Girardeau County, but in 1823 he removed to Perry County and settled on a farm, which he managed. He also worked at his trade while living in Perry County. He died there in 1842. His widow died in 1844, leaving seven children. David R. Conrad secured his education by studying at night while learning the carpenter's trade. Having worked at his trade a number of years, in 1833 he was united in marriage with Mary Bollinger, of Cape Girardeau County, after which he purchased a farm in Union Township, Bollinger County. For eight years he filled the office of justice of the peace, and was appointed to act as county court justice during the war. Having been made prisoner by the bushwhackers in 1862, he was held for two months, when he was exchanged and allowed to return home. He had three sons, Peter, Jacob and John, in the Union army. In 1868 Judge Conrad was elected for a term of four years to represent Bollinger, Cape Girardeau and Perry Counties in the State Senate. Politically, he is a Republican, and is one of the leading men of his party in the county. His wife was born in 1817, and was the mother of thirteen children, eight of whom, Peter R., Jacob J., Elizabeth, John C., Clara (Mrs. William Heitman), George E., Frances J. and Daniel E., are living. Mrs. Conrad died at her home in 1881. Mr. Conrad is truly "the architect of his own fortune," and has been very successful in business. At one time he owned 1,140 acres of good farming land, and after giving liberally to his children, has a fine farm which is well stocked and improved. He is a consistent member of the Presbyterian Church.

Jacob J. Conrad, an enterprising farmer residing three-fourths of a mile northeast of Marble Hill, Mo., is a native of Bollinger County, Mo., born in 1835. He is a son of David R. and Mary (Bollinger) Conrad [see sketch of David R. Conrad]. Jacob J. remained on the farm with his father until he reached his majority, and received a liberal education in the common schools, after which he taught school at intervals for four years. In May, 1861, he was united in marriage with Miss Emeline, a daughter of James Burnes. She was born in Perry County, Mo., in 1841. Mr. and Mrs. Conrad have six children, Ida, Mettie (wife of D. P. Bailey), Anna, David J., Maude and Rudolph B. In 1864 Mr. Conrad enlisted in the Union army, joining Company C, Forty-seventh Regiment of Missouri Volunteers. He was in the service seven months, receiving his discharge at Benton Barracks, St. Louis. In November, 1866, he was elected clerk of the county court of Bollinger County, and in 1870 was re-elected. Politically he is a Republican. He and wife are members of the Presbyterian Church.

Mahlan Cox, one of the most enterprising and prosperous farmers of Bollinger County, Mo., was born in Lawrence County, Ind., in 1843. He is a son of Scarlet and Malinda (Sears) Cox, also natives of Indiana, born in 1817 and 1820, respectively. Mrs. Cox was of German descent. Scarlet Cox always followed farming as a vocation, and died in 1849. His wife died in 1874, and was the mother of three children. Mahlan was the second child. His boyhood days were spent on his father's farm, and his education was secured in the common schools of his native State. In 1869 his marriage with Emeline Lewis was celebrated. She is also a native of Indiana, born in 1853. This union has been blessed by the birth of seven children, all of whom are living, viz.: Elsworth, Alexander, Lustetta, Claudius, Arley J., Hettie E. and Zeffie M. Mr. Cox and family immigrated to Missouri in 1879, and located where he still resides. His farm comprises 465 acres, almost all of which is tillable land. Mr. Cox is one of those patriotic Northern men whose love of country caused him to leave home and friends and risk his life for the preservation of the Union. Accordingly, in 1862, he entered the Army of the Cumberland, joining Company G, Fourth Indiana Cavalry, and remained with that army in all its historic defeats and victories until the close of the war. He was mustered out of service at Edgefield, Tenn., after which he returned home.

John S. Dunn, a native of North Carolina, was born on August 18, 1830, and is the son of Thomas and Eleanor F. (Hamilton) Dunn, also natives of North Carolina. Thomas Dunn was born in 1785. He was a farmer, and in 1835 immigrated to Missouri and located in what is now Bollinger County. He died in 1864. His wife was born in 1788 and died in 1865. To them were born seven children, only two of whom are now alive. John S. Dunn was born in Mecklenburg County, N. C., and came to Missouri with his parents, with whom he resided until he reached maturity, and received his education in the common schools. In 1855 he married Miss Elizabeth E. Hudson, a native of Missouri, born in Cape Girardeau County in 1826. This union was blessed by the birth of four children, only one of whom is now alive, viz.: William A. The latter was reared on the farm, and his education, which was begun in the common schools, was finished at the State Normal School, at Cape Girardeau, he having taken an irregular course in that institution. He is now one of the best educators in the county, and is president of the Farmers' Alliance of his vicinity. He married Mary B. Linville, also a school teacher, and a native of Wayne County, Mo., born on September 3, 1865. They have two children: Christa Myrtle and Mamie. Mr. John S. Dunn is one of the oldest settlers of this community. He owns 120 acres of land in Sections 5 and 6 of Fillmore Township, Bollinger County. His wife died on April 15, 1880.

Hon. John I. Ellis, an intelligent and enterprising young citizen of Bollinger County, Mo., is a son of James K. P. and Margaret (Sample) Ellis. James K. P. Ellis was born in Hawkins County, Tenn., and received a liberal education in the subscription schools. His wife is a native of Greene County, Tenn. After his marriage Mr. Ellis located in his native county, but in 1865 purchased a farm in Bollinger County, Mo., to which he removed his family. They are the parents of seven children, viz.: William, John L., James F., George F., Mary E., S. E. and Ida M. John I. was born in Hawkins County, Tenn., and being but four years of age when his parents removed to Missouri, has been reared in Bollinger County. His education, which was begun in the public schools, was finished at the Carleton Institute, Farmington, Mo. In 1886, after finishing his literary education, he began the study of law, which he has since abandoned and chosen the profession of medicine; and accordingly has attended two courses of lectures at the St. Louis College of Physicians and Surgeons. In politics he is thoroughly Democratic, and cast his first vote for Hancock. In 1886 he was elected Representative to the Legislature from Bollinger County.

Judge Hezekiah Estes, an enterprising citizen and thrifty farmer of Bollinger County, Mo., is a son of Joseph and Catherine (Miller) Estes. Joseph Estes was born in Kentucky in 1783 and was self-educated. When twenty years of age (in 1803) he, with his parents, immigrated to Missouri, and located on Whitewater River, Cape Girardeau County. He afterward removed to Bollinger County, Mo., and resided until his death in 1867. His wife, who was of German descent, was born in Pennsylvania in 1787, and, when quite young, immigrated with her parents to Cape Girardeau County, Mo. She died in 1865, having reared eleven children, viz.: Matilda, Hezekiah, Burzilus, Rilla (now the wife of John Ikard of Iowa), Malinda, William, Joseph (deceased), Polly (now the wife of James Cowell), Jefferson, Columbus and Cordelia. Hezekiah was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in 1820, and received a limited education in subscription schools. Possessed of much energy, since arriving at years of maturity he has acquired a good education by private study. In 1842 he was united in marriage with Miss Judia R. Slinkard, a daughter of Daniel and Hannah Slinkard. She was born in what is now Bollinger County in 1824. In 1841 Mr. Estes purchased eighty acres of land, for forty acres of which he paid $150 in money that he had saved from earnings of 37½ cents per day; the other forty acres he entered at $1.25 per acre. After his marriage he located on this land, which was in Apple Creek Township, Cape Girardeau County, but soon after sold it with the intention of removing to Texas. However, he did not leave Missouri, but purchased some improvements in Bollinger County for $50, and entered 160 acres. When the "Bit Land" at 12½ cents per acre came into market he purchased 320 acres, to which he soon added 360 acres. He now has over 500 acres, of which 200 acres are improved. During the war he enlisted under Capt. Wilson and served six months, receiving his discharge at Bloomfield, Mo. Judge Estes is a Democrat of long standing, and served as judge of Bollinger County from 1885 to 1887. He has been a Mason for twenty years, and is a member of the Farmers' Alliance and of the Wheel Association. He and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Ransom B. Estes, a well-to-do farmer of Lorraine Township, Bollinger County, residing four miles north of Marble Hill, was born in 1851, six miles from his present home. He is a son of Hezekiah and Juda Rue (Slinkard) Estes [see sketch of Hezekiah Estes]. Ransom B. remained with his parents until he reached his majority. In January, 1873, he was united in marriage with Miss Sarah J. Barks, who was born in Bollinger County in 1847, and is a daughter of Jacob Barks. After his marriage Mr. Estes located where he now resides. His farm consists of 186 acres, and is well improved. Mr. and Mrs. Estes have seven children living, viz.: Martha J., Cora A., Ransom E., Cynthia Addie and Ruey Ida (twins), Jacob H., and Pinkney C. In politics Mr. Estes' views accord with the principles of the Democratic party, and he cast his first vote for Greeley in 1872.

William Fears is a son of Pleasant and Elizabeth (Bates) Fears. The parents were married in Illinois. Soon after their union and before their first child was born, they separated. Mrs. Elizabeth Fears was afterward married to Archibald Moore, by whom she was the mother of six children. William Fears was born in 1834, and was reared on a farm, assisting with the work until he was thirteen years of age, when, with his mother and stepfather, he came to Missouri, and located in what is now Bollinger County. Here his mother died at the age of forty-seven years. In 1870 William Fears was united in marriage with Rebecca A. Ladd, a native of Southeast Missouri, born in 1857. Her parents, Elisha and Elizabeth (Kerr) Ladd, were born in 1821 and 1825, respectively. Elisha Ladd was born in Kentucky, but settled in Missouri in early life. He died December 20, 1871, and his wife died on the 30th of May, 1862. They were the parents of nine children—six girls and three boys. Mr. Fears owns 320 acres of fertile land, and is one of the leading farmers of Bollinger County. The family residence is in a romantic place. Surrounding it are mounds supposed to have been erected by Mound-Builders. Mr. and Mrs. Fears have three children—Benjamin F., John Wesley, and Dora Iona. Mr. Fears has one child by a previous marriage, Wilson P.

Dr. John M. Finney, a physician of Laffin, Mo., was born in Johnson County, Ill., in 1852, and is a son of Green P. and Rachel (Latham) Finney. Green P. Finney was born in Johnson County, Ill., about 1820. He was a farmer by vocation, and was one of the influential men of his county. In 1860 he was elected county treasurer, and was re-elected in 1862. He died in office in 1863. He also served as assessor of his county one term. His wife was also a native of Illinois, and died in 1864 at the age of forty-three years. They were the parents of eight children, only two of whom are living. Dr. William N., of Cape Girardeau, and Dr. John M. Being but eleven years old when his father died, and twelve when his mother died, John M. was taken by his uncle, Dr. Samuel C. Latham, of Eldorado, Ill., with whom he lived until he reached his majority. He received his literary education at Ewing College, Franklin Co., Ill., and at the age of seventeen commenced the study of his chosen profession, his uncle, Dr. Latham, who was a graduate of Keokuk Medical College, being his preceptor. Afterward Dr. Finney attended Missouri Medical College two terms.

Dr. J. M. Finney

BOLLINGER COUNTY.

In 1873, with his brother, Dr. William N. Finney, he began practicing his profession in Alexander County, Ill. The next year Dr. John M. went to Marble Hill, Mo., and began practicing with Dr. W. C. Talley, with whom he continued until 1876, when he removed to Ladin and resumed his practice, which he has very successfully continued. In 1888 Dr. Finney and Dr. A. B. Mayfield formed a partnership. Having established a general store in 1884 Dr. Finney has since managed that in connection with his practice. In 1877 he was united in marriage with Miss Mary G. Manning, who was born in Perry County, Mo., in 1855, and is a daughter of George Manning. They have four children, John M., Louisa A., Norman J., and Rachel. Dr. Finney is a Mason and a member of the A. O. U. W. In politics he is a Democrat. Mrs. Finney is a member of the Roman Catholic Church.

Jasper Frymire, probate judge of Bollinger County, Mo., is a native of Vanderburgh County, Ind., born in 1838. He is a son of Jacob and Allie (Foster) Frymire. The former was of German descent, born in Pennsylvania about 1808. His father, William Frymire, was also born in Pennsylvania, and about 1816 removed to Perry County, Ind., and lived on a farm and continued to farm during his natural life, and for years ran a flatboat on the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers to New Orleans every fall. Jacob Frymire remained in Perry County until he reached his majority, then removed to Vanderburgh County. Soon after he was married in Posey County, Ind. His wife was of Scotch descent, born in North Carolina about 1812. In 1856 Mr. Frymire removed to White County, Ill., and in 1865 to Hamilton County, that State, remaining there the rest of his life. He died about 1878, and his wife, in 1872. They were the parents of fifteen children, of whom four are living: George R. (of Chicago), Ella (Mrs. David Allen), Harriet Cunningham, and Jasper. The last named grew to manhood on his father's farm, and was educated in the common schools of Indiana and Carmi, Ill. On March 10, 1861, he was united in marriage with Emma Hudson, a native of White County, Ill., born in 1844. They have two children, Flora Lee and Wendel H. In 1863 Mr. Frymire enlisted in the Federal army, and was assigned to the Eighty-seventh Regiment Illinois Mounted Infantry. He participated in the battle of Vicksburg, Sabine Cross Roads, Red River expedition and various minor skirmishes. After receiving his discharge at Helena, Ark., June 16, 1865, he returned to White County, Ill., and resumed farming. In 1869 he came to Marble Hill, Mo., and worked at the carpenter's trade and various other employments for several years. Elected justice of the peace in 1874 he served six years, and in the meantime served as deputy clerk of the circuit court. In 1880 he was elected sheriff of Bollinger County, and in 1882 declined a second nomination. The next year he made a short trip to Dakota. Elected to his present office in 1886, he is filling it with credit to himself and with satisfaction to his constituents. Politically he is a Democrat. He is a Mason and a member of the I. O. O. F., and A. O. U. W. Mr. and Mrs. Frymire and daughter are members of the Christian Church, the former having served as elder for the past sixteen years.

Henry Gaines, a prosperous blacksmith and farmer of Bollinger Mills, Mo. was born in Giles County, Tenn., in 1842, and is a son of William H. and Martha Ann (Hannon) Gaines. William H. Gaines was a native of Virginia, born in 1817. He emigrated from his native State to Tennessee and from thence to Missouri. While in Tennessee he was married, his wife being a native of that State, born in 1826. They have eight children. Henry is the eldest child. He early learned the blacksmith's trade with his father, and has since followed it very successfully. He came to Missouri with his parents, and in 1844 married Sarah Sweazen, a native of Bollinger County, Mo., born in 1842, of German-Irish parentage. During the Civil War Henry Gaines was one of those brave Union men who shouldered arms and risked their lives to save their distressed country. He enlisted in the Third Missouri Volunteers, and remained in the service almost four years, being mustered out at St. Louis. Rejoicing in the preservation of the Union he returned home, and has since enjoyed a quiet and peaceful domestic life. For the last three years he has been working at his trade at Bollinger Mills, and as his is the only blacksmith shop in the place he is doing a good business. He also owns a farm of 196 acres which he superintends. Mr. and Mrs. Gaines have five children: Emma, Ella, Andrew, Henry and Martha. In politics Mr. Gaines is a staunch Republican. He and family are consistent members of the General Baptist Church.

George E. Gibbs, a farmer of Bollinger County, Mo., was born in Burke

County, N. C., in 1838, and is a son of Urban C. and Mary S. (Bowman) Gibbs. Urban C. Gibbs was born in Burke County, N. C., in 1809. He was married in the Old North State in 1837. His wife was born in Caldwell County, N. C., in 1815. Soon after his marriage Mr. Gibbs located on a farm in his native State, but in 1849 he removed to Missouri and entered some land in Scott County on which he located, it being the ground upon which the town of Morley now stands. Mr. Gibbs died soon after coming to Scott County, but his widow lived until 1886. They were the parents of seven children, three of whom, George E. Adolphus L. and Mary J. (now the wife of J. H. Bowman), are living. George E. attended school but little, but secured a fair education by studying at night by the light of a pine knot. He early learned the carpenter's trade, which he still follows at times, but being a natural mechanic, repairs guns, wagons etc., for his neighbors. In 1861 he enlisted in Company A, of Col. Jeffrey's regiment (Confederate), and did duty with the State Guards for six months, after which he was mustered into regular service as a heavy artilleryman and was stationed at Columbus, Ky. In 1862 he went with his command to Island No. 10, where he was taken prisoner and sent to Camp Douglas at Chicago. The next year he was paroled, after which he located at Sparta, Ill., and worked at his trade until 1869, when he returned to Bollinger County. For one year he worked at bridge building for the Iron Mountain Railroad, but in the spring of 1870 he purchased and located on his present farm, since which time he has been engaged in agricultural pursuits.

Adolph L. Gibbs, a substantial farmer of Lorraine Township, Bollinger Co., Mo., was born in Burke County, N. C., in 1841. He is a son of Urban C. and Mary S. (Bowman) Gibbs, both also natives of the Old North State, in which their seven children were born and reared. Their children are George E. (unmarried), William G. (a soldier in the late Civil War never returned, consequently no evidence as to his decease is positive), Adolph L., Julius R. (who died in Scott County, Mo.), Mary J. (Mrs. James H. Bowman), Simpson J. (deceased), and Mary A. (who died in childhood). The family immigrated to Missouri in 1849 and located in Scott County, where the father passed the remainder of his life. The last days of the mother were spent beneath the roof of her son, Adolph L. She died in 1886, being seventy-two years of age. In 1871 the subject of this sketch was united in marriage with Elmira Zimmerman, after which he purchased and located upon a farm of 158 acres. Since then he has added to his farm and now has 216 acres of well improved land, upon which he has a handsome residence, erected in 1883, which, when completed, will be the best farmhouse in Lorraine Township. By industry and frugality Mr. Gibbs has become an independent farmer. Eight children have been born to him and wife, viz.: Etta, Urban W., Myrtle, Mary C., Grace, Lulu, George H. and Norah. In 1876 Mr. Gibbs was elected justice of the peace and served four years. Independent in all things he is allied to no party, but both he and wife are consistent members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. At this writing he is president of the Bollinger County Farmers' Alliance and Co-operative Union of America, an organization whose aims and objects are the advancement and elevation of farmers, in the science of economic government and home interest.

Ransom B. Hartle was born in Cape Girardeau County in 1840, and is a son of Jesse and Sarah (Seabaugh) Hartle. Jesse Hartle was born in Cape Girardeau County in 1818 and became a farmer. After his marriage he located on a farm in the woods, but being industrious and energetic he soon had a good home and before his death owned 1,100 acres of good farm land, a part of which his wife helped him clear. He died in 1877, but his widow still survives and is now enjoying good health and the income of her toil in early life. Ransom B. was educated in the common schools of his native county, and early in life began farming. At the age of twenty-one he was united in marriage with Miss Mary E. Welty, also a native of Cape Girardeau County, who was educated in the same school as her husband. She was born in 1850. After his marriage Mr. Hartle located on a farm in Bollinger County, which he had previously purchased. Having been very successful in his vocation he is now one of the most prosperous farmers of this county. In politics he has been a life-long Democrat. To him and wife have been born eight children, of whom six are living.

where he afterward lived engaged in farming. Jesse Hartle was born in 1848. He was reared at his parents' home and received a very limited education. Choosing farming as a vocation he located in Bollinger County, Mo., and at the age of twenty years was united in marriage with Miss Priscilla Statler, who bore him three children, two of whom died when quite young. Mary E., the surviving one, still resides with her father. Mrs. Hartle died about sixteen years since, and after her death Mr. Hartle broke up housekeeping. In 1876 he married again, choosing for his wife Miss Matilda Seabaugh, also of German descent. This union has been blessed by the birth of five children, viz.: Robert L., James T., Pearley Edward (deceased), Jesse M. and Rhoad C. Mr. Hartle has a farm of 160 acres of good land in German Township, and has a comfortable home. He is a member of the A. O. U. W., and of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Politically he supports the principles of the Democratic party, and cast his first vote for President in 1868.

Thomas Hawn, a highly respected citizen and farmer of Bollinger County, Mo., is a native of that county, born in 1832. He is a son of David and Emily (Craddoc) Hawn, of German and English descent, respectively. David Hawn was born in Catawba County, N. C., and was first married to a niece of Maj. Whitener, after which he removed to Madison County, Mo. His wife died soon after, and he returned to North Carolina and remained a short time, when he came back to Madison County and worked for awhile at the carpenter's trade. In 1831 he was united in marriage with Miss Emily Craddoc and removed to Bollinger County, and settled on a farm, where he died in 1842. To this union were born four children: Thomas, Ann, Samuel and Christian. Thomas grew to maturity on his father's farm, and received such education as the schools of those times afforded. In 1854 his marriage with Miss Harriet J. Yount was celebrated. Mrs. Hawn is of Dutch descent, and is the mother of fifteen children, viz.: Emily S. (Mrs. H. Lee), James C., Matilda A., Jessie D., Margaret E. (Mrs. Jacob Wallace), Samuel D., Mary C. (Mrs. John Salyer), Luvare E. (Mrs. James Wallace), William, Charles, Sarah J., Eliza R., Thomas C., Epps M. and Serepta O. During the Civil War Mr. Hawn was in sympathy with the South, but took no part in the contest. Having been conscripted by Col. Green, he was released after paying the commutation tax, but afterward was taken prisoner by the bushwhackers, who held him two days after he had taken the oath of allegiance to the Confederacy, when he was allowed to return home. Mr. and Mrs. Hawn are devoted members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Aaron M. Hawn, a prosperous young farmer of Bollinger County, Mo., is a son of Alfred and Caroline E. (Whitener) Hawn, natives of North Carolina. When but seven years of age Alfred Hawn came with his parents to Cape Girardeau County, Mo. He was married in 1848, after which he located on a farm in Bollinger County; but in 1867 he removed to Madison County, Mo. He and wife were the parents of eleven children, viz.: Nathan G., Aaron M., Martha J. (now the wife of Thomas Albright), Rosa A., Sarah E. (the wife of J. J. Priddy), Josephine (the wife of William A. Mouser), Oliver B., Catherine, Dora, Henry B. and Felix. Aaron M. was born in Bollinger County in 1851, and was reared at the home of his parents, receiving a good education. For twelve years he was engaged in teaching in the public schools during the winter season and working on the farm during the summer. In 1878 he was united in marriage with Miss Nannie A. Hevvin, who was born in 1861. After his marriage Mr. Hawn located on a farm in Bollinger County, where he has since resided, engaged in tilling the soil. He is an enterprising citizen, and he and wife have a nice family of five children: Otto D., Rochester H., Mettie V., Almer Z. and Ethel C.

Benjamin William Henley, M. D., was born in Virginia in 1850, and is the son of Thomas and Elizabeth (Bowman) Henley, both natives of Virginia. Thomas Henley was born in 1824, and while in the "Old Dominion" served an apprenticeship at the blacksmith's trade. About 1853 he with his family removed to Ohio and resided four years, and in the winter of 1857 came to Missouri and located in Cape Girardeau County. Soon after they removed to Bollinger County and settled on a farm, where Thomas Henley still resides. His wife died in 1859, having borne five children, three of whom are living. Benjamin W. Henley worked at the blacksmith's trade until he was twenty-two years of age, and in the meantime received a good literary education in the common schools. Having a desire to enter the medical profession he began study under the tutorship of Dr. W. C. Talley, with whom he remained two and one-half years. He then began practicing at Bollinger Mills and continued for a time very successfully, when, in the fall of 1879, he entered the Missouri Medical College at St. Louis. After taking a course of lectures he returned to his previous field of labor and practiced his profession until 1882, when he entered the Louisville Medical College, from which he took his degree of M. D. February 26, 1884. Again returning to Bollinger Mills, he located permanently, and resumed the practice of his profession, and is now the leading physician of that vicinity. In 1876 he was united in marriage with Anna Willic, who was born February 15, 1856. They have four children: Mary, Ida A., Thomas A. and Robert Lee.

Dean B. Hill, a prominent citizen of Bollinger County, Mo., is a son of John S. and Sarah E. Hill, who were married in 1853. John S. Hill was reared and educated in West Tennessee, and when a young man learned the printer's trade. In early life he served as sheriff of Madison County, Tenn., and afterward removed to Trenton, Gibson Co., Tenn., and remained there some time engaged at bookkeeping and writing in the various offices. He then engaged in the mercantile business at Spring Creek, but in 1869 removed his family to St. Louis, where he was engaged for several years as traveling salesman, first for R. B. Price & Co., hatters; second for Crow & Hill, and next for a drug firm. From St. Louis he removed to New Orleans and began working at his trade again, since which time he has visited the sanctums of some of the best printing offices in the world. His wife departed this life on March 11, 1868, at Trenton, Tenn. She was the mother of four children: Dean B., Emmerson, Mary (who died at the age of seventeen years) and Emma L. (who now resides with her brother, Dean B.). The subject of this sketch was born in Madison County, Tenn., on June 24, 1855. He attended the common schools, and Andrew College, Trenton, Tenn., and, after coming to Missouri, the public schools of Cape Girardeau County. The family were separated in St. Louis, and Dean B. and Emmerson came to Southeast Missouri and engaged to work for B. F. Cannon, near Jackson. Remaining with him awhile, they started to Kansas, but their wagon gave out and Dean B. stopped in Bollinger County, and remained four years with George F. Limbaugh, after which he stayed with Robert Drum, engaged in clerking, doing the chores and attending school. In 1877 he managed Mrs. Mary E. Limbaugh's farm and put in the crop next year, when he married Mrs. Limbaugh. She was born in 1843, and is a daughter of David and Catherine Smith. Suffering from heart disease and rheumatism, Mr. Hill went to Southern Montana and remained six months, when he returned home in good health. Mr. and Mrs. Hill have two children: Mattie L. and John Smith. In 1872 Mr. Hill united with the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and since then has served as trustee, and as Sunday-school superintendent for six years. He served as school director one year, and in 1887 was appointed by Gov. Marmaduke associate judge of the county court.

Randolph James, a well-to-do farmer and stock raiser of Bollinger County, Mo., was born in Tennessee in 1845, and is a son of William and Catherine James [see sketch of Levi B. James]. On August 15, 1861, Randolph James and his father went to Cape Girardeau County, and both father and son joined the Fremont Rangers. At their disbandment three months later, both joined the Twelfth Missouri Cavalry. This regiment was, however, afterward consolidated with the Tenth Missouri regiment, forming the Third Missouri Cavalry. At this time, William James was placed in the quartermaster's department at Cape Girardeau, where he died from spotted fever in 1862. Randolph served with the company in which he enlisted for three years, when the period of his enlistment expired and he returned to his friends at home; but Southeast Missouri was then the theater of bloodshed and strife. Soon after his return, his home was attacked by guerrillas. A fight ensued in which about fifty shots were fired, and one of the enemy was wounded. Mr. James escaped and immediately after went to St. Louis and joined the Federal forces again, enlisting in Company I, Fourteenth Missouri Cavalry, with which he remained two years. When the Civil War had ended, he went with his regiment under Sheridan to the Southwest to suppress Indian hostilities. After traveling over most of the Western States and Territories, he was mustered out of service at Fort Leavenworth on November 17, 1866, when he returned home. Mr. James was with Gen. Grant when he was commissioned brigadier-general, and afterward went with him on his first march—to New Madrid. Soon after his return from the Indian War he was united in marriage with Nancy A. Gaines, a native of Tennessee, born in 1846. To them have been born seven children: Henry L., William H., Harriet, Mary, Hiram J., Adolph and Martha. Mrs. James died on February 25, 1880, after which Mr. James married Martha Slinkard, who was born in Indiana in 1855. Mr. James is Master Workman of the A. O. U. W. lodge at Bollinger Mills, and is commander of the G. A. R. post, with headquarters at Lutesville.

Levi B. James was born on January 13, 1850, and is the son of William and Cassie (Lawson) James. William James was of English lineage, and was a farmer by occupation. In 1859 he removed with his family from Tennessee to Missouri. He was one of those patriotic Union men whose devotion and bravery preserved the Nation against dismemberment. He was a volunteer in the Third Missouri Cavalry, and was wounded at Jackson, Mo., soon after which he died. His first wife, the mother of our subject, was a native of Tennessee, and was the mother of five children, four of whom are living. After her death, Mr. James married Elizabeth Fensel, also a native of Tennessee. Levi B. James was born in Tennessee, and came to Missouri with his father. He received his education in the common schools and in St. Louis. At the extremely young age of twelve years he volunteered in Company I, Fourteenth Missouri Infantry, with which he remained two months, when he joined Capt. John R. Cochran's Raiders. In this service, the beardless boy remained through all its trials for two years, when he was mustered out at Perryville, Mo. Recently the G. A. R. made an investigation to ascertain who was the youngest member of the Union army. There were several claims asserted and only two found that were younger than Mr. James; but the reason he is not recognized as the youngest in the whole army is, the colonel was killed and he did not receive his discharge from the Missouri Infantry. Soon after returning home from the war he served as deputy sheriff under Erich Pape, after which he filled the position of deputy United States marshal for several years. During this time he was also proprietor of a general merchandise store in Marble Hill, and was one of the principal stock dealers and shippers in this section of Southeast Missouri. Selling his store at Marble Hill, in 1881, he followed agricultural pursuits exclusively for two years, when he became a partner in James & Slagel's general merchandise store at Bollinger Mills, which interest he still owns. Besides his merchandise business, he owns considerable property in Marble Hill, and 1,200 acres of land in Bollinger County. After the battle of Pilot Knob Mr. James carried the flag of truce under which the dead were buried and the wounded cared for. During the siege the women and children had fled to the hills for refuge, and at the cessation of hostilities between the forces, had come to administer to the dying and wounded. Thus on similar missions, Mr. James met, for the first time, Mina Pape, who afterward became his wife. Their marriage was celebrated in May, 1875. She is a native of Southeast Missouri, born in 1854. This union has been blessed by the birth of four children, viz.: Erich, August, Garfield and Otto.

Adolph Keehn, M. D., was born in Prussia, on October 26, 1827. He is a son of John and Henrietta Keehn, natives of Germany. John Keehn was an internal revenue officer. He was born in 1784, and died in 1865. His wife was born in 1809, and died in 1854, having borne three children, two of whom are alive. Adolphus Keehn studied medicine in Berlin Medical College, taking his degree from that institution in 1853, after which, according to the custom of the institution, he practiced medicine in the hospital for two years. Thus well equipped for life in his profession he made a tour over a part of Europe, visiting Russia, France and Italy. In 1856 he sailed for America, and after a voyage of four months and a half, in which the ship was disabled, the supplies destroyed, and, as a consequence, the passengers and crew half famished, reached New York on February 1, 1857. Soon after Dr. Keehn came to St. Louis, and first turned his attention to agricultural pursuits, but soon commenced the practice of medicine. Leaving St. Louis, he made a trip West, on a hunting expedition by himself, and his experience is of the most amusing and serious nature. He had thought of returning to Germany, but meeting a physician at Ste. Genevieve, he was persuaded to remain in America. Contemplating a visit to New Orleans to try his skill with yellow fever, he met some fellow countrymen who importuned him to go to Perry County. Yielding to their wishes he located in that county, and remained ten years, after which he removed to Bollinger County and resumed the practice of his profession, which he has successfully continued twenty years. He is also running a general merchandise store, and owns 225 acres of land, which he manages. In 1863 he wedded Miss Ellen H. Fath, who is a native of Perry County, Mo., born in 1844, of German parentage. They have five children, viz.: Ida (one of the local educators of this section and now in college at Lexington, Ky.), Gustave A. (a student of medicine) Leonard (now in college), Oscar (also in college) and Harry.

Benjamin F. Kern is a son of Noah and Eveline B. (Hurd) Kern. Noah Kern was born in Harrison County, Ind., in 1816, and, after arriving at mature years, located on a farm in Lawrence County, Ind., where he died in 1885. His wife was born in Belmont, Ky., in 1820, and was married in 1837. She still resides on the old homestead in Indiana. To her and husband were born eleven children, five now living. Benjamin F. was born in Lawrence County, Ind., in 1850. He was reared at the home of his parents, and received his education in the common schools. In 1868 he was united in marriage with Julia A. Beever, a native of Lawrence County, Ind., born in 1852, of German parentage. After his marriage Mr. Kern located on a farm in his native county, and having learned the carpenter's trade in early life, worked at his trade in connection with farming till 1881, when he removed to Missouri. Locating on a farm in Liberty Township, Bollinger County, he has since managed it, and continued to work at his trade. He and wife are the parents of seven children, viz.: Levi C., Jessie F., Victor K., Eveline G., Perline S., John R. E. and Julia L. Mrs. Kern died in March, 1885, since which time Mr. Kern has taken care of his children alone. He is an energetic man who stands high in the esteem of his neighbors.

Henry Killian, a farmer of Liberty Township, Bollinger Co., Mo., was born in Tennessee, in 1830. He is a son of Andrew Killian, who was born in North Carolina. The latter removed from his native State to Tennessee, where he married Pennina Lashater, a native of East Tennessee. After his marriage Mr. Killian settled on a farm in Tennessee, residing there until his death in 1834. He and wife were the parents of ten children. After her husband's death, Mrs. Killian removed with her children to Graves County, Ky., and located on a farm, but in 1838 removed to a farm in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., on which she died in 1842. The subject of this sketch is the only surviving member of that large family. Having to assist his mother on the farm, he received but a limited education. In 1850 he married Margaret J. Sweezy, a native of St. Francois County, Mo., born in 1831, but at the time of her marriage, a resident of Bollinger County. After his marriage Mr. Killian settled on a farm in Bollinger County. In 1855 he entered forty acres of land, to which he has added other land until he owned 900 acres of improved land. He has given each of his children a good farm, and has left 400 acres, upon which are good improvements. To him and wife have been born ten children, viz.: John M., Emanuel, Lucretia (Mrs. Henry Bidwell), Catherine (Mrs. Jacob Eldridge), Adaline (Mrs. Madison Crites), William H., Mervia J. (wife of Richard Rowe), Clara B. (wife of Henry Schell), Thomas B. and James A. Politically Mr. Killian is a Republican, and was a Union man during the Civil War.

William F. Kinder, treasurer of Bollinger County, Mo., was born in Cape Girardeau County, in 1830, and is a son of Jonathan and Sophia (Limbaugh) Kinder. Jonathan Kinder was of German descent, born in North Carolina in 1800, and when but ten years of age came with his father, Henry Kinder, to Missouri, and located near Beesville, Bollinger County. At that time this territory belonged to Upper Louisiana, and was an unbroken wilderness, teeming with wild animals and Indians. Henry Kinder spent the remainder of his life here. After Jonathan Kinder's marriage he located near his father's farm, but in a few years bought a farm of 400 acres nine miles east of Marble Hill, and resided there until his death, in 1868. His wife was also of German descent and was born in North Carolina, in 1803. She is still living and is the mother of nine children, eight of whom are living: Alfred, Serelda (wife of John Cofer), Mary, William F., Jefferson, Elizabeth, Evaline (wife of Louis Thomas) and Ellison. William F. grew to manhood on his father's farm, receiving his education in the common schools. In 1858 he married Miss Mary E., daughter of Daniel Clippard, of Cape Girardeau County. Mrs. Kinder was born in that county in 1825. Seven children have been born to them: Edward, Arabella (wife of J. G. Finney, editor of Marble Hill Press), Linus, Mason, Lyman, May and Thurman. After his marriage Mr. Kinder located near his birthplace and engaged in merchandising at Gravel Hill, but in 1859 he removed to Marble Hill. When the war broke out he gave up merchandising and engaged in farming until peace was restored, when he resumed selling goods at his home, and in 1869 returned to Marble Hill, where he continued until 1880, meeting with marked success. He now has an interest in the store of Sample & Kinder, of Lutesville. In 1856 Mr. Kinder was elected assessor of Cape Girardeau County, and held the office two years. In 1874 he was elected treasurer of Bollinger County, and was re-elected in 1876, 1878, 1884 and 1886, the last time having no opponent. It need not be said that he has made an able and efficient officer. Mr. Kinder has been a life-long Democrat, casting his first vote for Franklin Pierce in 1852. He and wife are members of the Presbyterian Church.

Emanuel Kinder was born on June 17, 1840, and is the first child born to Israel and Sarah E. (Lincoln) Kinder. Israel was a native of North Carolina, and was a farmer by vocation. When a young man he immigrated to Missouri, after which he was married. His wife was a native of Southeast Missouri, and was the mother of nine children, two of whom are living. Mr. Kinder died, and she married again. Emanuel Kinder worked in a shop with his stepfather until fourteen years of age, when, with his mother and stepfather, he removed to Bollinger County, Mo., where, for the first time, he attended school. August 3, 1861, he was united in marriage with Mrs. Caroline (Cato) Ladd. To them were born two children, who are now dead. The mother also died, after which Mr. Kinder married Matilda E. George, a native of Southeast Missouri, born in 1849. They have four children who are living: James R., Jesse, Luther A. and William F. Having dealt liberally with his family in deeding them land, Mr. Kinder still has 137 acres. He is one of the patriotic Union men who answered the call of his Government by taking up arms to fight in the Civil War for the preservation of the Union. He served in Company A. Seventy-ninth Missouri Cavalry. Mr. Kinder and some of his family are consistent members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Millington N. Kinder was born in Bollinger County, Mo., July 5, 1842. His parents, Absalom and Louisa (McMinn) Kinder, were married in 1836, and are the parents of two children, who are living. Absalom Kinder was a native of North Carolina, and a farmer, who immigrated to Missouri with his parents. He died in 1847, after which his widow, a native of Southeast Missouri, born in 1818, was married to Solomon Kittrell. She is the mother of two living children by her second marriage, and is still alive, residing in Butler County, Mo. Millington N. Kinder was reared at home, and received his education in the public schools. On April 6, 1871, he was married to Miss Margaret Dickson, a native of Wayne County, Mo., born April 1, 1851. She is a daughter of James and Sarah J. (Welch) Dickson, natives of Tennessee, born in 1813 and 1823, respectively. James Dixon was a farmer, and immigrated to Missouri with his parents when he was a boy. Mrs. Dickson's parents removed to Wayne County, Mo., when she was a child. She is still living, and is the mother of two children, who are alive. Mr. and Mrs. Kinder have six children, viz.: Marvin N., Peter B., Sarah C. L., James A., Francis M. N. and Hattie M. Mr. Kinder has always followed agricultural pursuits. Recently he sold a portion of his large farm, with the intention of entering into the business of raising small fruit. He and his family are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He is one of the respected citizens of the county, and is a Mason.

Jacob M. Kinder, a farmer and stock raiser of Bollinger County, Mo., is a native of that county, born in 1843, and is the fourth child of John and Eliza (Abernathy) Kinder. John Kinder was born in North Carolina February 14, 1801. When a young man he immigrated to Missouri, but in 1836 returned to his native State and married. Mrs. Kinder is of Scotch-Irish descent, born in North Carolina in 1805. She is still alive, and has been a resident of Missouri for fifty years. She is a devoted member of the Lutheran Church. John Kinder died at his home in Bollinger County March 11, 1874. Jacob M. Kinder was reared on his parents' farm, and, in his boyhood days, attended the common schools. Just as he was preparing to enter college the Civil War broke out, and he was destined to be educated in the severest of schools, the battlefield. In 1861 he enlisted in the Confederate army under Capt. Clarkson, First Arkansas Battery, and during the war was in Claiborne's brigade. He was under Sydney Johnston, and saw him killed at the battle of Shiloh. He also served under Joseph E. Johnston. Besides a hundred lesser engagements he participated in the battles of Shiloh, Perryville, Murfreesboro, Chickamauga and Franklin. He was under fire from Dalton to Jonesboro, Ga., a period of ninety-three days. At the time of the surrender he was at Macon, Ga. In 1875

Mr. Kinder was married to Martha Allbright, a native of Bollinger County, born April 28, 1848. She is of German, Irish and English lineage, and is the mother of two children: Sarah M. and Ureal E. Mr. Kinder owns 200 acres of land, a part of which is as fertile as any in Southeast Missouri.

Adolphus C. King, a prosperous farmer of Bollinger County, Mo., was born in 1858, and is the eldest child of John Allen and Doretta King. [See sketch of John W. King.] Adolphus C. was born in Bollinger County, and when a boy worked on his father's farm and attended the common schools. In 1882 he was united in marriage with Anna Jamison, a native of Indiana. She died one year after her marriage, leaving one child, Minnie E. Some time afterward Mr. King married Miss Kitty McLane, a native of Wayne County, Mo., born in 1865. She was educated in Caledonia College, after which she taught school for one year, when she was married. Mr. King is an energetic young agriculturist, owning a farm of 290 acres of fine land. Besides superintending his farm he holds the position of special timber agent for the Cape Girardeau Southwestern Railway Company. To Mr. and Mrs. King has been born one child, John.

John W. King was born in 1864, and is a son of John Allen and Doretta (Pape) King, natives of Tennessee and Germany, respectively. John Allen King was born in 1834, and was a farmer. When a young man he came to Missouri, after which he was married. He died in 1876. His wife was born in 1844, and died April 15, 1886. They were the parents of eight children, five of whom are living. John W. was the third child, and was born in Missouri. When a boy he worked on his father's farm, and attended the public schools of his county. In 1885 he entered the Mayfield-Smith Academy of Marble Hill, and after spending nearly three years in that institution he returned to his farm, and remained a short time. He taught school for two years, and is now engaged as clerk for the firm of McMinn & Slinkard. Mr. King was a successful teacher, and is one of the rising young men of Southeast Missouri.

Charley King, a young agriculturist of Bollinger County, Mo., is a brother of John W. King, and the seventh child of John Allen and Doretta (Pape) King. He was born in Bollinger County, Mo., in 1868, and was reared on his father's farm, receiving a good education in the common schools. At the death of his parents he inherited a farm of 180 acres of fine land, which he is now managing very successfully. He is a prudent, ambitious young man, and is anxious to finish his education by taking an academic course.

William G. Kitchen was born in Roane County, Tenn., in 1832, and is a son of Thomas Kitchen, also a native of Roane County, Tenn., born in 1804. The latter was reared in his native State, and married Nancy Ingram, who was born in 1806. She died in 1834, leaving two children: Sarah (afterward the wife of Farmer Harper) and William G. In 1847 Thomas Kitchen removed to Missouri, and located on a farm in Stoddard County. Two years later he removed to Cape Girardeau County, where he died in the spring of 1850. William G. was reared on his father's farm, and came with him to Stoddard County, Mo. He received a liberal education in the common schools. In 1855 he went to California in search of gold and remained there, engaged in mining and farming, until 1865, when he returned home on a visit, but soon went back to the gold fields, and resumed his former occupations until 1869. He visited home often, making in all seven trips to California and back. In 1886 he returned to Missouri to locate, and the next year settled on a farm in Bollinger County, where he has since resided, very successfully engaged in tilling the soil. In 1887 he was married to Miss Sarah Zimmerman, of German descent, born in 1850. Mr. Kitchen's political views accord with the principles of the Democratic party. Mrs. Kitchen is a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

John W. Laird is a son of J. M. and Mary A. (Johnson) Laird. The father was born in 1830 in Central Tennessee, and early learned the shoemaker's trade. He was married in 1855 and located on a farm in Randolph County, Ark., and remained until 1863, when he removed to Jackson County, Ill., and resumed farming and working at his trade. In 1866 he returned to Tennessee, and two years later came to Missouri and settled on a farm in Bollinger County, which he afterward managed in connection with working at his trade. In 1862 he served six months in the Confederate army. He died at his home in Bollinger County in 1877. Mrs. Laird was born in Weakley County, Tenn., in 1834, and died the same year as her husband. They were the parents of ten children, five of whom, John W., Lewis D., Alice (now the wife of G. C. Markham), Leuella A. (the wife of E. Ellison) and Fonso Belle are living. John W. Laird was born in Randolph County, Ark., in 1856, and was reared at the home of his parents receiving his education in the common schools. In early life he learned the shingle-maker's trade, and in 1879 was united in marriage with Martha King. Three children have been born to this union: James L., Margaret A. and Nettie C. In 1881 Mr. Laird located on a farm in Dunklin County, Mo., but soon returned to Bollinger County and purchased a farm on which he still resides. In the spring of 1888 he was elected road commissioner of Liberty Township, of that county. Mr. Laird has traveled considerably, is industrious and well respected, and is one of the rising young men of the county.

Samuel L. Lessley, collector and a prominent citizen of Bollinger County, was born seven miles east of Marble Hill, in 1834. He is a son of James Johnson Lessley, a native of Lincoln County, N. C., born on March 12, 1802. In 1818 he immigrated to what is now Bollinger County with his father, George Lessley, who was of Scotch origin, and a second cousin of Gen. Jackson. George Lessley located seven miles east of Marble Hill, and remained there the rest of his life. James Johnson Lessley married Isabel Wilson, born in Pennsylvania on February 19, 1802. She was the daughter of James Wilson, of English descent, who came to Missouri and located in Scott County. After his marriage Mr. Lessley located on a farm near his old homestead. He died on May 1, 1867, and his widow on November 9, 1870. They were the parents of eight children, six of whom, George F., Tabitha (Mrs. John F. Dellinger), Samuel J., Joseph C., William C. and John H., are living. Samuel J. grew to manhood on his father's farm, and received a limited schooling in the common schools. In 1859 he married Miss Sarah Barks, daughter of Alexander Barks. She was born in Stoddard County. They have four children living: Charles M., Evert B., Cornelia (Mrs. Columbus Kinder) and George C. After marriage Mr. Lessley located on a farm eight miles east of Marble Hill. He lost his wife in 1872, and on July 1, 1886, he wedded Martha Laurence, a daughter of Thomas Laurence. Mrs. Lessley is a native of Tennessee. This union has been blessed by the birth of one child, Leon. In 1874 Mr. Lessley was elected assessor of Bollinger County and was re-elected in 1876. In 1884 he was elected county collector, having no opposition in the general election, and in 1886 he was re-elected with no opposition. Politically he is a Democrat, and cast his first vote for James Buchanan in 1856. He is a member of the A. O. U. W., and a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. His wife is a Presbyterian.

Mrs. Sophia Lutes is a native of Bollinger County, Mo., born in 1808, two miles from her present home at Lutesville, Mo. She is the daughter of John Lorange, born in Lincoln County, N. C., in 1771. When sixteen years of age he immigrated to Southeast Missouri with a man named Daniel Plott. The latter went on farther west, but John Lorange stopped in what is now Bollinger County, and hired to Maj. George Frederick Bollinger, with whom he worked until he married. Maj. Bollinger, in honor of whom Bollinger County and Fredericktown, Madison County, were named, erected the first mill in Bollinger County. After his marriage John Lorange located on the farm now owned by Eli Deck, where he remained until his death in 1825. His wife, Hannah Baker, was also a native of North Carolina. She died about 1822. Lorange Township, Bollinger County, was named for John Lorange. He was the father of seven children. Sophia Lutes is the second child and the only one living. In 1825 she was married to Jacob Lutes, who was born in North Carolina in 1802, and came to Bollinger County, Mo., with his mother, when but two years old. After his marriage he located where the town of Lutesville is now situated, it having derived its name from him. He there erected a water mill and distillery in which he made peach and apple brandy and whisky. He had as many as three distilleries burned on the same ground. He died in 1854. Mrs. Lutes is an active old lady, with a very retentive memory. Grandma Lutes, as she is commonly called, is the mother of fifteen children, eleven of whom grew to maturity, married and reared families. There are eight living at present. She also has ninety-three grandchildren and seventy-four great-grandchildren, which makes the largest family in Bollinger County or Southeast Missouri. Grandma Lutes lives with her daughter, Mrs. Martha King, and is a bright, intelligent old lady. For over sixty years she has been a consistent and devoted member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and is known throughout the county as a lady of many Christian virtues. In the evening of life Grandma Lutes is revered by all, both old and young.

David Lutes is the eldest son of Jacob and Sophia Lutes, who were among the early settlers of Bollinger County, Mo. [see sketch of Sophia Lutes]. David was born at the old Lutes homestead in Lorraine Township, that county, in 1827, consequently has resided in this township for sixty-one consecutive years. He is a blacksmith by trade, and for more than thirty years the strokes of his hammer made merry music on his anvil. Prosecuting his trade with enterprise, he became one of the best known smiths in Southeast Missouri. During the war, and for some time after, he engaged largely in manufacturing plows, many of which were shipped to Arkansas and other Southern States. Investing his money in land he now owns over 500 acres, and lives in that easy style characteristic of Southern gentlemen. In 1848 he was married to Miss Louvina Baker, who bore him five children, three of whom, Lysander (who married Henrietta A. Clark), Jacob M. (who first married Jane Mayfield and afterward Susan F. McGee) and Riley (who married Sarah J. Santifer), are living. After the death of his first wife Mr. Lutes wedded Catherine Shell, who was born and reared in Bollinger County. To this union were born twelve children, eight of whom are living. Mr. Lutes' third wife was Elizabeth Sitze, who has borne two children, one of whom is living. Mr. Lutes is the father of nineteen children. His house is known as a hospitable mansion, and the family relationship is the largest in Southeast Missouri. In 1866 Mr. Lutes was elected treasurer of his county, and served as an able officer for six years.

Jesse Lutes is the second son of Jacob and Sophia Lutes [see sketch of Sophia Lutes]. Jesse Lutes was born on the old Lutes homestead in 1838. He was reared on the farm, and from a child assisted with the farm work, and there learned his life's occupation. His marriage with Miss Mary Shell was celebrated on October 18, 1849. She is a daughter of David and Sarah (Eaker) Shell, who came to Missouri from Lincoln County, N. C., about the same time as the Lutes family (in 1804), and located in the vicinity of the present town of Lutesville. The fertile valleys of this region were then great canebrakes, full of deer, wolves, panthers and other wild animals. The subject of this sketch was a noted hunter, and tells of killing as many as ten deer in one winter. When building the house in which he now resides he shot two deer from his door. Mr. Lutes began farming in this new country when it was prosecuted in a primitive manner. Plows with wooden mold boards and hoes were in use, grain was cut with a sickle and threshed by driving horses over it. He entered his farm and made all of the improvements. At one time he owned 700 acres, but has sold much to the Ozark Iron Company and the St. Louis Clay Company. He still owns 280 acres of choice bottom land. He is a hale, vigorous man of fifty-nine years, and during his life has had no sickness except three chills. Even at this age few young men can do more farm work than he. Like his ancestry he is a staunch Democrat. Eight children have been born to him and wife, two of whom died in childhood. Those living are William H., who married Mattie Clark; Willie O., wife of Jacob Hahn; Jesse B., who married Albertine Warner; Frederick M., who married Mary Robins; Sarah L., wife of Henry W. Winters, and Jacob A., who is unmarried and resides with his father. The family are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, in which Mr. Lutes has been one of the officers for twenty years.

Daniel Lutes, a prosperous farmer residing two miles west of Marble Hill, is a native of Bollinger County, born in 1834, where Lutesville is now located. He is the sixth child of fifteen born to Sophia and Jacob Lutes [see sketch of Sophia Lutes]. Daniel grew to manhood on his father's farm, and in 1861 was united in marriage with Miss Adaline Winters, who was born in Bollinger County, Mo., in 1841. Mr. Lutes resided at Lutesville until 1867, when he settled upon his present farm, which consists of 234 acres with good improvements. He has never resided outside of Bollinger County nor more than two miles from his birthplace. During the war he served in the Home Militia three weeks, which was the longest time he was ever out of the county. Politically he is a Democrat. He and wife have eight children, viz.: Jesse H., Wesley L., Melvina E., Jennie E., Eddie G., Rosa C., Henry E. and Daniel. Mr. and Mrs. Lutes and three of their children are members of the Missionary Baptist Church. He has been a member eighteen and his wife twenty years.

Eli Lutes, an enterprising and successful farmer of Lutesville, Mo., was born near his present home in 1844, and is the thirteenth child of Sophia and Jacob Lutes [see sketch of Sophia Lutes]. Eli received his education at Marble Hill, and at the Academy of Charleston. He was engaged in farming until 1868, at which time he became interested in a retail liquor store, and soon after established a grocery store. In 1875 he purchased a general store, and sold goods until 1881, since which time he has been engaged in farming. He was instrumental in securing the location of the town of Lutesville, and donated the ground upon which the depot is built. In 1864 he enlisted in the Federal army, joining Company A, Twenty-ninth Missouri Regiment, Volunteer Cavalry, and was in the service ten months in Missouri and Arkansas. In 1866 he was united in marriage with Miss Hannah Schell, a daughter of Judge Sampson Schell. She was born in Bollinger County, in 1846, and died in July, 1867. In February, 1878, Mr. Lutes wedded Miss Mary D. Virden, who was born in Ohio in 1853. Their union has been blessed by the birth of five children, viz.: Mertie, Estella, Alice, Pearl and Waldo Eli. Politically Mr. Lutes is a Democrat. He is a Mason, a member of the G. A. R., I. O. O. F., and of the Farmers' Alliance.

John P. McManus, a progressive young farmer of Lorraine Township, Bollinger County, Mo., was born in Liverpool, England, in 1852, and is a son of Patrick and Ann (Riley) McManus. The family immigrated to America in 1854 and located in Philadelphia, where they resided several years. Patrick McManus was a sailor, and made two trips back to the old country after locating in Philadelphia. The Riley family, to whom he was related, started west to find them a home, and, being wagon makers by trade, would stop at different towns on the route and work at their trade, thus paying their traveling expenses. They stopped at Keokuk, Iowa, where Patrick McManus engaged on a steamer plying between that port and St. Louis. While making one of these trips he was drowned. His family remained in Philadelphia two years after his death, when in the summer of 1859, they came to Missouri. There were four children, three of whom, Charles (who married Alice McGee), Margaret (deceased wife of William Nelson, also deceased) and John P., were born in Liverpool. Mary A., the youngest child, now the wife of Willard Caveness, was born in Philadelphia in 1856. She now resides in Hopkins County, Ky., and her mother makes her home with her. John P. grew to manhood in Cairo, Ill., where for several years he attended school. His brother and the Rileys also made that city their home during the war. In 1867 John P. came back to Bollinger County and farmed a few years on land entered by his mother. His marriage with Miss Mattie Liley was celebrated in 1871. The latter is a daughter of Maston Liley, an old resident of Bollinger County. Soon after his marriage Mr. McManus purchased a tract of woodland, upon which he erected a nice little house and built commodious out-buildings. He has made it a model farm, one of the prettiest in his vicinity. Everything about it betokens thrift, enterprise and pride. Mr. McManus has a good practical education, and has done a great deal of surveying in his county. For the past eleven years he has served as clerk of Lorraine Township. He and wife have three bright children, Harry, Maggie and Mollie. Mr. McManus has studied medicine for over five years, and has one of the finest libraries in the county.

Washington A. McMinn was born on March 20, 1833, and is the son of Samuel and Mary B. (Derr) McMinn, natives of North Carolina, born in 1798 and 1790, respectively. Samuel McMinn was of Irish descent, and when a boy served an apprenticeship of three years in a blacksmith shop. He was married in his native State, and in 1819 immigrated with his family to Missouri, and located in Cape Girardeau County, on Whitewater River, where he resided three years, when he purchased a farm on which he located in what is now Bollinger County. He died in 1852, leaving his family a small estate. His wife was of German lineage, and was remarkably active. At the age of seventy-five years she rode on horseback thirty-six miles in one day. She survived her husband several years. They were the parents of three children, two of whom are now alive. Washington A. McMinn was born in Bollinger County, and remembers distinctly the removal of the Cherokee Indians to the west side of the Mississippi River. He mentions a peculiarity which he observed among the passing tribes which is not generally known, or of which note is seldom taken, that the Cherokee tribes had in their possession many African slaves. This ignoble idea they had doubtless gained from their Caucasian brothers, and by it the negro became the slave of the savage. Mr. McMinn received a good education in the common schools. He is enterprising, and has been very successful as a farmer. He owns an immense tract of land comprising 2,770 acres, forty acres of which he entered with a warrant his father received for his services in the War of 1812. For the past thirty years he has been postmaster at Buchanan, and is now erecting a water-power corn and flour mill on the site of the old Bollinger Mill.

Besides his other business he has a half interest in the general merchandise business of McMinn & Slinkard. His son, a bright, sensible boy of eighteen years, clerks in this store. In 1866 Mr. McMinn was united in marriage with Elizabeth Catherine Burk, a native of Southeast Missouri, born on January 5, 1838. She is of German extraction, and is the mother of four children, who are living, viz.: Samuel Joseph, Andrew J., Mary L. and Emma Caroline. Politically Mr. McMinn is a Democrat, and cast his first vote for James Buchanan. He is one of the most highly respected and prominent citizens of Southeast Missouri.

Richard Masters, a farmer of Crooked Creek Township, Bollinger Co., Mo., was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in 1814. He is a son of Robert Masters, who was born in Pennsylvania. The latter was a cooper and a farmer. A short time before the earthquake of 1811-12 he settled in New Madrid County, Mo. Like a great many other inhabitants of that county he became frightened at the trembling of the earth, and left his farm and removed to Cape Girardeau County, where he located on a farm. In 1812 his first wife died, and in 1813 he wedded Elizabeth (Hawn) Smith, the widow of Daniel Smith. She was born in North Carolina before the war for independence, of which she had a vivid recollection. After her marriage with Daniel Smith she removed to Kentucky, and in 1806 came to Cape Girardeau County, Mo. In 1809 her husband died, and she struggled hard to support a family of young children until her marriage with Robert Masters. In 1815 Mr. Masters removed back to New Madrid County, and remained there engaged at his trade and farming until his death in 1817. Elizabeth Masters was the mother of two children by her second marriage, Richard and Henry. After her husband's death she removed to Cape Girardeau County, and died at the home of her son, Henry Masters, in 1843. Richard received his education in the subscription schools by breaking flax to pay his tuition. In 1841 he was married to Mary C. Baker, after which he settled on her mother's farm in Cape Girardeau County. She died in 1845, leaving three children: an infant, Henry H. (who died in 1881 at Fort Robinson, Neb.) and Louisa C. (now the wife of Daniel Bess). After her death Mr. Masters remained on the farm with his mother-in-law until 1849, when he was married to Nancy C. Lincoln. In 1851 he removed to his present farm, where he enjoys the comfort of a good home. Nancy C. Lincoln was born in Cape Girardeau County in 1832, and is a descendant of one of the Old North State settlers. She is the mother of nine children, viz.: Catherine (Mrs. Solomon Creek), William G., Sarah E. (Mrs. George Welker), David, John F., Ellen J. (Mrs. Columbus Mayfield), Alexander, Andrew J. and Julia E. The three children last named are at home with their parents.

Andrew J. Mayfield, a physician, of Lutesville, Mo., is a native of Bollinger County, born in 1845, and is a son of George W. and Polly Mayfield. George W. Mayfield was born in Cape Girardeau County in 1819, and is a son of Stephen Mayfield, a native of New England, who emigrated to Southeast Missouri in the early part of this century and settled in Cape Girardeau County, but in 1828 removed to what is now Bollinger County. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary War. George W. remained with his father until his marriage, when he located on the old homestead, on which he still lives. His wife was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in 1820. She is the mother of eight children, who are living, John J., Dr. Andrew J., Polly A. (Mrs. P. W. Grandstaff), Dr. William H., Dr. Emanuel B., Dr. Stephen A., Randal L., and Dr. Eli B. Dr. Andrew J. was reared on his father's farm, and received his literary education at Millerstown. Desiring to become a physician he began the study of medicine in 1880 under the direction of his brother, Dr. William H. In 1885 he graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons at St. Louis, after which he located in Madison County, Mo., and began practicing his profession. In August, 1885, he came to Lutesville, where he has since been located, and is now one of the leading physicians and surgeons of Bollinger County. In 1877 he was united in marriage with Mary C. Sitzer, a daughter of John F. Sitzer. She was born in Madison County, Mo., in 1848. They have four children living, Mary E. (Mrs. J. Q. Ramsey), Caroline Maradie, George Franklin, and Corrie Boyd. During the war the Doctor was a Union man, and was in the Federal service from April, 1865, until July of the same year. Politically he is a Democrat. He and wife and two children are members of the Missionary Baptist Church, of which he has served as deacon for ten years. Andrew J. has been a Baptist for twenty-two years. In connection with his practice he manages a drug store.

and has served as postmaster of Lutesville since January, 1886. The Doctor is a Mason, a member of the A. O. U. W., and of the Temperance Benevolent Association. He was elected to the office of justice of the peace in Madison County, and served eight years and then resigned.

Mrs. Mary Miller, widow of Benjamin F. Miller, is of German lineage, and was born in 1832. Her parents were born in Illinois. Her father followed farming as a vocation and died about twenty years ago. Her mother, though born in 1802, is alive and strong and active for one of her age. She resides in Bollinger County, Mo. Mrs. Miller was married on January 4, 1854, to Benjamin F. Miller, after which they located on a farm in Bollinger County. Mr. Miller was engaged in agricultural pursuits until his death in October, 1885. To them were born ten children, four of whom, Marshall, Eva Josephine (now the wife of J. P. Walker), Charles and Delia Jane, are living. The family live in good circumstances on 218 acres of land. Most of this farm is in Castor River Valley, and is very productive. It lies in Bollinger and Wayne Counties. The family residence, however, is in Bollinger County, and Mrs. Miller and children are among the most respected citizens of their section of the country.

George W. Miller, a well-to-do farmer of Bollinger County, Mo., was born in Lincoln County, N. C., in 1832, and is a son of Washington Miller. The latter was born in 1809, and, when ten years of age, was bound out as a millwright's apprentice until he was twenty-one years of age. After finishing his trade he was married in Lincoln County, N. C., to Mary Beal, a native of that county, born in 1810. Mr. Miller then located on a farm in Lincoln County, on which he resided until 1848, when he removed to Cape Girardeau County, Mo. In 1846 he entered land in Bollinger County, Mo., to which he removed his family and on which he afterward resided, engaged in farming and working at his trade. He died in 1877, and his widow the next year. They were the parents of three children—George W., Benjamin F. and Henry M. George W. received a fair common school education, and learned the carpenter's trade under the direction of his father. In 1861 he enlisted in Company B, Second Missouri Regiment (Confederate), but, on account of failing health, was discharged in 1862. Two years after, in 1864, he was captured by the Confederates and taken prisoner to Jefferson City, where he was turned over to Gen. Marmaduke, who released him and gave him a pass to secure him a safe journey home. In 1852 he was united in marriage with Sarah Lamar, who bore him five children: John F., Elmina, Josephine, Joseph M. and Mary E. (now the wife of Daniel B. Beal). His first wife died in 1864, and in 1865 Mr. Miller married Sarah E. Kinder. Four children have been born to this union: Henry B., Sarah E., Matilda and Mary. Since the war Mr. Miller has remained on the farm, and has attended strictly to agricultural pursuits. Politically, he is a Democrat. He and wife are members of the Baptist Church.

John A. Miller, an enterprising citizen of Bollinger County, Mo., was born in Canada in 1838. He is a son of David and Sarah (McCalaughan) Miller, both natives of Canada, born in 1806 and 1807, respectively. They were married in 1827, and located on a farm in their native country, where they now live. To them were born twelve children. John A. was reared on his parents' farm, and his education, which was begun in the public schools, was finished at the Toronto University. After leaving school he came to the United States and located in Pennsylvania and engaged in work at the mines. In 1861 he enlisted in the Federal army, and was assigned to Company E, Thirteenth Pennsylvania Cavalry, a part of the Army of the Potomac. He participated in the battle of Gettysburg, Sheridan's raid up the Shenandoah, and was at Winchester and saw the General's horse drop at the end of his famous ride. At the battle of Deep Bottom in August, 1864, Mr. Miller was wounded, and was discharged in January, 1865, after which he returned to Canada. In 1867 he located on a farm in Minnesota, and in 1869 was united in marriage with Anna C. Conway, who was born in New York City in 1841. Two years after their marriage they removed to Porter County, Ind., and settled on a farm, but in 1873 went to Arkansas. In 1876 Mr. Miller went to Texas, and was engaged in herding stock until he removed to Linn County, Mo. In 1879 he located on his present farm in Liberty Township, Bollinger Co., Mo., where he has since resided with the exception of two years (1886-87) spent in St. Louis to give his children the advantages of the schools in that city. Mr. and Mrs. Miller have three children: Sarah Ellen, David C. and Mary J. Mr. Miller is a member of the A. F. & A. M.

William M. Morgan, circuit court clerk of Bollinger County, was born five miles east of Marble Hill, December 14, 1849, and is a son of Albert G. Morgan of English parentage, born in Jackson County, Ala., in 1829. When small, the latter, with his father, William Morgan, immigrated to Bollinger County, Mo. In 1847 he married Sarah C. Snider, who was born in 1832 on the farm on which the subject of this sketch was born. She was the daughter of Martin Snider, one of the pioneer settlers of Bollinger County, having come here in 1817 from North Carolina with his father, Barnett Snider. The Sniders are of German extraction. Martin was born in 1809. Albert G. Morgan served through the Mexican War and was in the battle of Vera Cruz. He died in February, 1851, leaving but one child, William M. Mrs. Morgan afterward married James F. Caldwell, who was born in South Carolina in 1832, by whom she had two children, Columbus P. (attorney of Marble Hill), and Lova E. (wife of George W. Wood). William M. Morgan grew to manhood on his grandparents' farm, and received his education in the common schools. In 1875 he entered the teacher's profession, and taught two winters, during which time he became a disciple of Blackstone, studying under the direction of Hon. Alex. Barrett, of Marble Hill. In March, 1877, he was admitted to the bar at Marble Hill, and began practicing his profession. In 1880 he was elected prosecuting attorney, and was re-elected in 1882. In 1886 he was elected to his present office, and during his two years' service has proved to be an able and efficient officer. On September 2, 1868, he wedded Miss Jennie C., a daughter of William Miller. She was born in Millersville, Cape Girardeau County, in 1854. Mr. and Mrs. Morgan have five children living: George E., Ura P., Jettie M., Emma B., and William C. Mr. Morgan is a Mason. He and wife are members of the Christian Church.

Emanuel Mouser, a successful farmer of Bollinger County, Mo., was born in Missouri on the site of the present town of Marquand, December 18, 1830. He is the son of David and Holly (Kinder) Mouser. David, it is supposed, was born on Missouri soil, but he and his wife died when the subject of this sketch was about three years of age. They were the parents of five children, viz.: Nancy (deceased wife of Elijah Shelton), Rhue (deceased wife of Peter Eaker), Elisha (deceased), Emanuel, and Savannah (Mrs. Daniel Eaker). The last two are the only members of the family who are living. Emanuel was reared by his uncle, Peter Kinder, until his twelfth year, when he found employment with Caleb Eaker until he was twenty years of age. In his twenty-second year he was united in marriage with Miss Aletha J. Francis, who bore him five children, viz.: Fanny J. (Mrs. Joseph Eaker), Troy W., Arminta R. (wife of Smith Gladish), Charles J., and George W. After his marriage Mr. Mouser located upon land which he still owns. He purchased some improvements that had been made and afterward entered the land. All he has, he has made with the work of his own hands, and now owns 369 acres of good land. His first house stood near his present residence, but the former with all its contents was burned, which proved a sad loss to the young couple who had just begun life for themselves. Soon after they erected another house and again were established in their own home, which proved a prosperous and happy one for twenty-three years, when Mrs. Mouser died. On August 9, 1874, Mr. Mouser wedded Miss Susan M. Inman, who was born in Yell County, Ark. She was the daughter of Anthony and Katesy (Shelton) Inman. The mother died when Susan was nine months of age and the father, during the late war, after which Susan became an inmate of her uncle, Elijah Shelton's, home until she was fourteen years of age. In her twenty-first year she became the wife of Mr. Mouser, and has borne him nine children, seven of whom, Aletha J., Noah, Rosewell, Ida B., Holly M., Daniel and Melvin are living. With little scholastic education Mr. Mouser has a practical business one, and is accounted one of the solid and self-made men of his county. For thirty years he has been a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and for many years one of the trustees. His wife is almost a life-long member of the same church.

Zachary T. Pierce, a highly respected citizen of Liberty Township, Bollinger Co., Mo., is one of ten children born to Philip C. and Betsie (Burden) Pierce. Philip C. Pierce was born and grew to manhood on a farm in Indiana. He immigrated to Missouri, and altogether bought and entered 260 acres of land in German Township, Bollinger County, in the early settlement of that county. While in Illinois dealing in horses he was taken sick, and, although he lived to get back home, died soon after. His wife was born in Kentucky. She died in 1861, leaving ten children, all of whom are living. Zachary T. Pierce was born in Indiana in 1846, and came to Missouri with his parents. In 1872 he married Hannah Niseswaner, of Cape Girardeau County, Mo. This union has been blessed by the birth of five children: Sophronia, William G., James F., John W. and Benjamin F. R. L. From 1883 to 1887, Mr. Pierce served as road commissioner of his township. He has a nice farm embracing 200 acres of good land with fair improvements. He is a member of Lodge No. 417, A. F. & A. M., at Laffin Mo.

John W. Revelle, ex-clerk of circuit court and recorder of Bollinger County, Mo., is a native of that county, born in 1849, and is the youngest of seven children of John L. and Susannah (Row) Revelle [see sketch of Rev. Levi W. Revelle, of Madison County]. The subject of this sketch was reared on a farm until he was fifteen years of age, when he went to live or board with his brother, Rev. Levi W. Revelle, of Madison County, and for the following two years he attended school at Fredericktown and near that place. He then entered Arcadia College in Iron County, Mo., and attended two years. In 1869 he was united in marriage with Miss Philas A. Combs, a daughter of Phelan B. Combs, of Fredericktown. The year after their marriage Mrs. Revelle died. Mr. Revelle spent the next two years in school at Charleston, Mo., after which he engaged in teaching school. In the fall of 1872 he was employed as principal of the schools of Marble Hill, and the same year was elected school commissioner of Bollinger County for two years. In 1874 he was elected circuit clerk and recorder of that county, and was re-elected in 1878 and 1882, holding the position with universal satisfaction for twelve years. On September 7, 1874, he was united in marriage with Miss Mary F. Arnold, a daughter of Joseph and Sarah E. Arnold. Mrs. Revelle was born in Greeneville, Mo., in 1855. Their union has been blessed by the birth of six children: Vallie, Charles G., Albert C., Mamie, Susannah and Minnie B. Mr. and Mrs. Revelle have been members of the Missionary Baptist Church for eighteen and fifteen years, respectively. He has served as deacon for three years, and as superintendent of the Sunday-school at Marble Hill for five years. In 1884 Mr. Revelle became a partner with George E. Statler, F. M. Wells and Robert Drum in a general store at Lutesville, but in 1887, Mr. Drum and Mr. Wells having sold their interests in the firm, it became Statler, Revelle & Co. The close confinement of store and office work being injurious to Mr. Revelle's health, he sold his interest in the store in 1888 and engaged in farming. Politically he is a Democrat, and is one of Bollinger County's influential men. He is a Mason.

Henry F. Rhodes was born in 1835, on the old homestead of his father, Jacob Rhodes. The latter settled in Bollinger County, Mo., in 1818, coming from Lincoln County, N. C. He came in company with three of his brothers. They all married in Missouri, and, with the exception of Jacob, removed to Madison County, Mo., where they lived and died. Jacob entered 600 acres of land in Lorraine Township, Bollinger County, upon which he built a cabin, and soon after married Nancy Lincoln, who bore six children: J. L. (deceased), Elizabeth (the widow of Eli Deck), Lucinda E. (deceased), Nancy C. (the widow of Thomas Myrick), Henry F. and Caleb W. (who first married Isabel Martin and afterward Mrs. Clementine Taylor). Jacob Rhodes was a man of enterprise and note in his county, and for more than a quarter of a century served as justice of the peace, and was county judge for a long time. He was deservedly popular, and in the early days of Southeast Missouri his selection of land brought him considerable wealth. The site of the village of Glen Allen was selected from the original entry made by him, and the subject of this sketch is yet selling lots in the village. His first wife having died, a short time before his death he wedded Mrs. Mary Lorraine. He and she both died during the late war. Henry F. and Caleb W. own the ancestral farm; the former, having added to his portion 200 acres purchased of the railroad company, now owns 500 acres. During the latter part of the war Henry F. was a member of the State Militia. He also manufactured many spinning wheels during the war. He is a bachelor, and for fifty-three years has remained on the old homestead, and we desire to preserve his name in history as being one of two sons living of a man who was a pioneer in fact.

Dr. William W. Roberts, a prominent physician of Sedgewickville, Bollinger Co., Mo., is a son of Caswell C. and Nancy (Pigg) Roberts. Caswell C. Roberts was born in North Carolina, in 1804, and was a son of Reuben and Emily (Eshore) Roberts. Reuben was born in Lancashire, England, in 1742, and lived to be one hundred and six years of age. He immigrated to America, and, during the war for independence, held the office of first duty sergeant in the American army, and stood guard at the time the constitution was framed. Emily Eshore was born in France, and came to America with La Fayette when she was eighteen years of age. Landing in Maryland, she went from there to North Carolina. Caswell C. Roberts was educated in Tennessee, and was a farmer. His wife was also a native of the Old North State. To them were born four children, viz.: James L., Ann (Mrs. A. P. Crawford, of Tennessee) and William W. The subject of this sketch was born in Warren County, Tenn., in 1839, and received his literary education in Berk College, that State, graduating in 1857. In 1867 he came to Bollinger County, Mo., and taught school one year, when he went to Dent County, Mo., and remained one year, engaged in teaching. In 1869 he went to Denver City and began the study of medicine under the direction of Dr. John Higher. Returning to Madison County, in 1871, he resumed his study with Dr. John Dannell, of Fredericktown, and remained until 1876, when he entered the University of Nashville, Tenn., from which institution he graduated, in 1879. Locating at Columbus, Ky., he practiced his profession until 1884, when he came to Bollinger County, where he has since resided. In 1877 he was united in marriage with Mary E. Presnell, of Perry County, Mo. She is a daughter of Stephen and Elizabeth (Hudson) Presnell, natives of North Carolina and Virginia, respectively. The parents were married at Giles Courthouse, Va., and removed to Perry County, Mo., in 1816. They were the parents of seven children, viz.: Mary E. (Mrs. W. W. Roberts), Susan (Mrs. Joseph Limbaugh), Sarah (Mrs. Van Kluder), Evaline (Mrs. Frank Kritz), Julia (Mrs. William Propst), Marcella (who married Francis Bridgea), and Charles, (now attending the College of Physicians and Surgeons in St. Louis). During the war Dr. Roberts was a member of the Twentieth Army Corps of Illinois, was on detached business all the time, and reported to the Forty-eighth Illinois Regiment. He was discharged at Chicago in 1865. Five children have been born to the Doctor and wife: Sarah E., Minnie M. Eustacia Eve, Nancy Ann and Edna Pearl. Politically Dr. Roberts is a Democrat. He is a consistent member of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, and of the A. O. U. W.

Prof J. Monroe Robins, school commissioner of Bollinger County, is a native of that county, born in 1858, and is a son of George W. and Susan (Rhodes) Robins. The father was of French-English descent, and was born in Weakley County, Tenn., in 1832. When a small boy he came to Missouri with his father, John D. Robins, a Baptist minister, who preached throughout Southeast Missouri. He died in Johnson County, Ill., where he spent the last years of his life. George W. was married in 1857. His wife was born in North Carolina in 1832, and came when small to Missouri. During the Civil War Mr. Robins was a member of the Missouri State Militia. He and wife have four children: J. Monroe, Nancy C., Martha S. (Mrs. M. E. Cobb) and Rachel J. Prof. J. Monroe received his early education in the common schools, and at the age of eighteen began teaching, which he continued three years. In 1880 he entered the State Normal School, at Cape Girardeau, and graduated in a classic course in June, 1885, receiving a Normal certificate and a special State certificate. In 1885 he was elected principal of the public schools at Marble Hill, and in 1886 was re-elected to the same position. In 1887 he was elected school commissioner of Bollinger County, which position he has since filled in a very satisfactory manner. Politically he is a Republican, and although in a Democratic county, he was elected over three opponents, with a majority of more than half of all the votes cast. He is an energetic young man with a bright future before him, and is a member of the Masonic order.

Joseph Seabaugh, a substantial farmer of German Township, Bollinger Co., Mo., is a son of Henry and Matilda (Hahn) Seabaugh. Henry Seabaugh was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. The subject of this sketch was born in 1848, and was reared at the home of his parents. He received a very poor education, as the Civil War began when he was about twelve years of age, after which the facilities for education were very poor. In 1870 he started a store on Whitewater River, near Molineux Mills, and three years later was united in marriage with Miss Polly Ann Crites, a daughter of John and Elizabeth Crites, descendants of North Carolina Dutch. John Crites died in 1858 and his widow in 1867. Mrs. Seabaugh also received a limited education in the common schools. After his marriage Mr. Seabaugh began farming on his father's farm, but in 1878 purchased 108 acres in Cape Girardeau County, to which he removed. In 1884 he sold that farm and purchased 107 acres in Bollinger County, on which he now resides. He is a member of the Farmers' Alliance and the Wheeler Association. Being a Republican, he voted the first time for Gen. Grant in 1874. To Mr. and Mrs. Seabaugh have been born six children, viz.: Matilda, Benjamin F., Monroe J., Burney R., Reva R. E. and Edward R.

Allen Seabaugh, a well-to-do farmer of German Township, Bollinger Co., Mo., is a son of Allen Seabaugh, Sr., who was born in Bollinger County, Mo., in 1811. The latter, in early life, chose farming as a vocation, and assisted his father on the home farm. After reaching maturity he wedded Barbara Statler, and began making a home for himself. He became the owner of a fine farm of 200 acres, on which he resided until his death in 1871. His wife has also been dead a number of years. To them were born eleven children, six of whom are still alive. Allen Seabaugh, Jr., was born in Bollinger County, Mo., in 1852. Having little opportunity for an education, he commenced farming when a boy. In 1875 his marriage with Miss Amanda Bollinger was celebrated. She was born in 1857, in Bollinger County, and is the daughter of John and Amanda Bollinger. After his marriage Mr. Seabaugh located on a part of his old homestead, on which he has since resided. To Mr. and Mrs. Seabaugh have been born six children, viz.: Henry A., Tara, Robert W., Meradia, Mary A. and John D. In politics Mr. Seabaugh is a Democrat, having cast his first vote for Samuel J. Tilden.

Johnson M. Shell was born in Cape Girardeau County in 1838, and is a son of Casper and Milly (Hager) Shell. Casper Shell was born and reared in North Carolina. He removed to Cape Girardeau County, Mo., after which he learned the blacksmith's trade. Soon after his marriage he built a shop on Crooked Creek near Lutesville, and continued to work at his chosen trade until his death in 1848. In 1844 he entered forty acres of land in his son, Johnson's, name. For sixteen years he filled the offices of deputy sheriff and justice of the peace. His wife, who was of German descent, died in 1842, having borne seven children, five of whom survived her. Johnson M. received a limited education in the subscription schools, which has been greatly improved since arriving at years of maturity by much desultory reading. After the death of his father he worked at the blacksmith's trade with his uncle. Anxious to help his distressed country, in 1861 he joined the Fremont Rangers, with whom he served eight months, and was discharged. Soon after he enlisted in Company A, Twelfth Missouri Cavalry, which company in 1863 was transferred to the Third Missouri Cavalry and attached to the artillery corps. He participated in the battles of Pocahontas, and Ponder's Mill, the Perkins' Creek fight, and the engagements at Pilot Knob and Leasburg. The company served on detached duty most of the time, and was discharged in January, 1865, Mr. Shell being one of twenty-four men remaining out of 103 mustered into the service. While home on furlough, in 1864, he married Melissa Howell, who has borne him ten children: Mary A., Ulysses S., John M., Lucy E., Laura M., Henry W., George H., Joseph B., Bertha A., and Lucretia E. During the war Mr. Shell was robbed of all of his personal property, and when he returned home in 1865 he sold his land near Crooked Creek, and purchased a farm of 160 acres in Liberty Township, Bollinger County, on which he still resides. In 1870 he was elected justice of the peace and served eight years, and in 1883 was elected to the same office, and served four years. Mr. Shell is a member of the G. A. R., and is a Republican in politics.

Michael J. Shetley was born in Lincoln County, N. C., in 1846, and is a son of R. M. Shetley, also a native of Lincoln County, N. C., born March 6, 1816. The latter was a carpenter and farmer, and married Margaret Linebarger. She is also a native of the Old North State, born August 15, 1821. In 1851 the family, comprised of the parents and three children, immigrated to Missouri, and located in Cape Girardeau County. In 1868 they removed to Bollinger County, where R. M. Shetley died March 11, 1879. Michael Shetley came Missouri with his parents, and remained with them until he reached his majority. While a boy he worked on the farm, and attended the common schools in which he received a liberal education. Since reaching his majority he has traveled considerably over the Mississippi Valley. In 1877 he was united in marriage with Miss Jennie Whitener. She is a descendant of one of the oldest families in Southeast Missouri, and was born in Bollinger County. Michael Shetley is one of the most thrifty and substantial farmers of Bollinger County. His farm which comprises 420 acres has 280 acres located in the fertile Castor River Valley. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. In politics he supports the principles of the Democratic party. He is a Mason, and also a member of the Farmers' Alliance.

James A. Slagle, of the firm of James & Slagle, general merchants, was born in Bollinger County, Mo., in 1860. He is the son of Henry and Mary (Bennett) Slagle. Henry Slagle was of German descent, and was a farmer by vocation. He was one among that class of Union men who served their country so nobly in her hour of peril, and in the midst of that terrible struggle he sickened and died. His wife had died previously. This young couple left an only child, the subject of this sketch. He was reared until sixteen years of age among relatives, and received good educational advantages. Beginning his education at Marble Hill, Mo., it was finished by a course at the State University at Columbia, Mo. Upon leaving school he engaged in educational work, after which he began commercial life as a clerk in a store. In April, 1885, he purchased a half interest in his present business, since which time he has remained at the town now called Zulma. Mr. Slagle is a young man of energy and good business qualifications, and has before him a desirable future.

Jacob V. Slinkard, a merchant at Bollinger Mills, was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in 1839. He is a son of Daniel and Eva Slinkard. Daniel Slinkard was a native of North Carolina, who immigrated to Missouri and located in Cape Girardeau County. He there married Mrs. Eva (Helderman) Morrison, by whom he had three children, two of them living at present. Mrs. Slinkard was the mother of four children by her first marriage. Mr. Slinkard died, after which she married Miles Doyle. Jacob V. Slinkard was reared on his father's farm, and was educated in the common schools. In 1868 he entered commercial life by purchasing a share in a general merchandise store at Lowndes, Wayne Co., Mo. Remaining there a short time he sold his stock and came to Bollinger Mills and purchased a half interest in a store, Daniel Bollinger owning the other half. He afterward sold his interest in this store and purchased a farm near Lowndes, where for fourteen years he followed agricultural pursuits. In 1884, in partnership with William Alexander McMinn, he purchased the stock and store at Bollinger Mills, since which time he has had sole charge of the business. He carries a full line of general merchandise, and does a thriving business. In 1870 Mr. Slinkard wedded Sarah Jane Hopkins, a native of Wayne County, Mo. She died in 1877, having borne him four children. In 1887 he was married to Lizzie Shetley, a native of Madison County, Mo., born in 1854. In the fall of 1861, responsive to a call of Gov. Claiborne F. Jackson, he entered the service under Jeff. Thompson, and remained until the troops were disbanded. While participating in the battle of Fredericktown he was wounded. Mr. Slinkard is one of the enterprising business men of Southeast Missouri. Besides his mercantile interests he owns 183 acres of fine land. In politics he casts his vote with the Democratic party.

George W. Smith, a prominent citizen of Bollinger County, Mo., was born in Cape Girardeau County in 1829. He is a son of Reuben and Catherine (Slinkard) Smith. Reuben Smith was born in North Carolina in 1802, and came to Cape Girardeau County, Mo., with his parents in 1820. He received a fair education by studying at home after his day's work was done. In 1824 he located on a farm in what is now Union Township, Bollinger County. For eight years he served as judge of Cape Girardeau County, and represented Bollinger County in the Legislature in 1854 and 1866. From 1856 to 1860 he served as judge of Bollinger County. During the Civil War he was not in either army, but, in 1861, was arrested by the Confederates and taken to Bloomfield. However, he soon after made his escape, and returned home, where he was allowed to remain, but was robbed a number of times by bushwhackers. He died in 1870. His wife was born in Cape Girardeau County in 1806, and was the mother of ten children, four of whom are living. The subject of this sketch was reared on a farm, and received a common school education. He remained with his parents until 1851, when he was united in marriage with Isabella Bess, after which he located on the farm on which he now lives in Union Township, Bollinger Co., Mo. In 1862 he was enrolled in the State militia, and entered the regular Federal service in 1864, joining Company C, Forty-seventh Missouri Infantry, and served as duty sergeant. He served as first lieutenant of the militia company. Receiving his discharge in 1865, he returned to his farm, and has since made a good home for himself and family. He is considered one of the most enterprising farmers of the county. For about fifteen years after the war he was engaged in the stock business in partnership with two other men. His wife, who is of German extraction, was born in Perry County, Mo., in 1832. She is the mother of eight children—Albert J., Charlotte P. (Mrs. Isaac Doggott), John B., James H., Levi A., Emily J. (Mrs. Peter Welker), George W., and Mary I. But two children are at home; the others are all comfortably situated on farms given them by their father. In politics Mr. Smith is a Republican, as are all his sons.

Andrew J. Smith, a substantial farmer of Bollinger County, Mo., is a native of that county, born in 1838. He is a son of Reuben and Catherine (Slinkard) Smith [see sketch of George W. Smith]. Andrew J. remained on his father's farm until he reached his majority, and received a liberal education in the common schools. In 1858 he was united in marriage with Charlotte Bess, a lady of German descent, who was born in Perry County, Mo., in 1837. After his marriage Mr. Smith located on a farm near Patton, Bollinger County. In 1864 he enlisted in the Union army, joining Company I, Eighth Missouri Cavalry, and participated in the battles of Miller's Lane and Augusta, Ark. While on picket duty at Duvall's Bluff, Ark., on May 16, 1864, he was wounded in the left hand, which caused the loss of three fingers. Receiving his discharge at Little Rock, Ark., in June, 1865, he returned to his farm. From 1865 to 1875 he was engaged in teaching school in connection with farming, teaching in Crooked Creek and Union Townships, Bollinger County. Since 1875 he has attended strictly to farming. In 1870 he was elected for a term of six years as county court justice, but was legislated out of office in 1874. He served as notary public from 1875 to 1883. To him and wife were born six children, Parzett (now the wife of Jesse Cheek), Rosamore, Amanda C. (wife of Abraham Fadler), Fletcher, Canzada (wife of George Yount), and Reuben A. Mr. Smith has owned a great deal of land, but has given his children all except 120 acres. He is a member of the A. O. U. W., and a consistent member of the Baptist Church. His wife died in 1883, and his children are all married except Reuben A., who is at home.

Francis M. Snider, a prosperous farmer of Liberty Township, Bollinger Co., Mo., was born in 1833 in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., and is a son of John and Nellie (Wilson) Snider. John Snider was born in Lincoln County, N. C., in 1805, and came to Bollinger County, Mo., in 1825, soon after which he entered a farm. In 1855 he entered 700 acres in Welch Township, Cape Girardeau County. He was married to the mother of our subject in 1827. She was of German descent, and died in 1840, having borne eight children. After her death Mr. Snider married Mrs. Stroder. John Snider served as justice of the peace in both Welch Township, Cape Girardeau County, and Lorraine Township, Bollinger County, for a number of years. At the breaking out of the Civil War he owned 640 acres of land, two slaves and considerable stock. He gave each of his sons a piece of land, and, when he died in 1865, left all his family in good circumstances. As the schools of those days afforded opportunity for but a limited education, Francis M. Snider secured a liberal education by studying at home. In 1854 he was united in marriage with Lucinda Proffer, of Cape Girardeau County, born in 1835. She died in 1862, leaving no children. The next December Mr. Snider married Clarissa Barks, who was born in Cape Girardeau County, of German parentage, in 1846. After his first marriage Mr. Snider located on a farm in Cape Girardeau County, and he had charge of the Grange store at the cross roads in that county from 1876 to 1882. He still owns 130 acres in his native county. The farm on which he resides in Bollinger County consists of 300 acres of fine land with good improvements. He and wife have three children: Wilson, Laura J. and Dora C., to all of whom the parents are giving the advantages of a good education. Mr. and Mrs. Snider are consistent members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. In politics he is a Democrat.

John W. Snider, a substantial farmer of Liberty Township, Bollinger County, was born in Cape Girardeau County in 1836, and is a son of John and Nellie (Wallace) Snider. He was reared and educated in his native county, and in 1859 was married to Sarah E. Cargell, of Bollinger County. She was born in 1839. After his marriage Mr. Snider located on a farm, and in 1868 removed to his present farm, which at that time consisted of but forty acres. He has since added to it until now he has a well improved farm of 320 acres. In 1862 he enlisted in the Confederate army, joining a regiment of Missouri cavalry. He served on detached duty two years in Texas, driving and herding cattle, and saw but little hard fighting during the war. He was taken prisoner at Cape Girardeau in 1862, but, after about two months, was allowed to return to his command, with which he remained until the surrender at Shreveport, La., in 1865. Returning to his farm he found it completely stripped of everything. To him and wife have been born four children: Thomas, William H., George L. and John O. For a number of years Mr. Snider has served as school director in his district.

Jonas Marion Snider, who is a native of Bollinger County, Mo., was born March 13, 1837. He is a son of Martin and Margaret (Eaker) Snider. The Sniders are of German descent. Martin was born in Lincoln County, N. C., March 26, 1808, and was a son of Barnett and Sarah (Fish) Snider, who were also natives of North Carolina, and were born, respectively, August 15, 1773, and April 9, 1773. Martin immigrated with his family to Southeast Missouri in 1815, and located on Crooked Creek near the present town of Laffin. His father was one of the pioneers of Cape Girardeau (now Bollinger) County, and served as justice of the peace for a number of years. Martin remained on his father's farm until he was married, when he located near by. He afterward became the owner of about 1,000 acres of land, and also owned several slaves, and was one of the substantial citizens of the county. He died October 22, 1883. His wife was also of German descent, and was born on March 13, 1811. She came from North Carolina with her parents, Christian and Jane (Wilson) Eaker, who also settled on Crooked Creek, Cape Girardeau (now Bollinger) County. Mrs. Snider died on September 23, 1880, having borne twelve children, five of whom are now living: Jonas M., Surrilda E. (Mrs. B. F. Stevens), Thomas A., Mary A. (Mrs. Oliver A. Shagle) and Oliver M. Jonas M. spent his youth on his father's farm, and received his education at the common schools, studying considerably at home. On December 27, 1855, he married Sarah M. Stephens, a daughter of Josiah and Abigail Y. (Mederis) Stephens. She was born in Gibson County, Tenn., December 27, 1832. In August, 1860, he was elected assessor of Bollinger County, began the assessment in the following March, and had very nearly completed it when the war began, when he enlisted in the Confederate army, and served as captain and lieutenant until April, 1863, when he was captured by the Federal forces, was taken to St. Louis prison, was paroled in a short time, came home and remained until August, 1864, when he was enrolled in the Missouri State Militia, served six months, and returned home and remained on his farm until 1878, when he was again elected assessor, and was re-elected in 1880. In 1882 he was elected clerk of the county court, and was re-elected in 1886, which position he now holds, and has served his constituents faithfully, and is highly esteemed by his many friends of Bollinger County. In politics he has been a life long Democrat. He and wife have three children now living: Riva-rious E., Alice J. (Mrs. Henry L. Fornway), and Geneva L. (Mrs. D. L. Baker). The family are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Mr. Snider is a Mason and a member of the A. O. U. W.

Barton S. Snider, a substantial farmer and stock raiser of Bollinger County, residing six miles southeast of Marble Hill, is the youngest and only surviving child of a family of eight born to the union of Andrew Snider and Mary Miller. Andrew Snider was of German descent, and was born in Lincoln County, N. C., in 1803. About 1815 he immigrated to Southeast Missouri with his father, George Snider, who settled one-half mile east of Laffin, Bollinger County. Here Andrew grew to manhood, and after his marriage he located south of Laffin about one mile, where he passed the remainder of his life. He owned over 600 acres of land. He died in 1874. His wife was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., about 1820, and died in 1850. Barton S. was born in 1848, and was therefore but two years of age when his mother died. He was reared on his father's farm and received a liberal education at the district schools. In 1879 he was united in wedlock with Eliza Lorena Armagost, who was born in Clearfield County, Penn., in 1860. In 1879 Mr. Snider located where he now resides. His farm consists of 500 acres, 200 of which are in fine bottom land. He is an energetic farmer and is esteemed highly by all who know him. Politically his views accord with the principles of the Democratic party. His wife is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Jacob Speer, a substantial farmer of Bollinger County, Mo., was born in Lawrence County, Ind., January 1, 1824. His father, Richard Speer, was born in England, January 28, 1762. While a single man he came to America, and was one of the heroes of the Revolutionary War. He served in the American army. He was a farmer by vocation, and married Delpha Bivins, a native of North Carolina. Richard Speer died in 1846. To him and wife were born nine children, of whom Jacob is the seventh. The latter was born in Indiana and was reared on his parents' farm. When thirty-five years of age he learned the stone-mason's trade, which he pursued, at intervals, for several years. On February 13, 1849, he was united in marriage with Miss Jane Fields, a native of Indiana, born in 1836. They have nine children, viz.: William R., Sarah D., Mahala, Louisa, John, George W., Alonzo, Ollie and Henry. In 1879 Mr. Speer and family immigrated to Missouri and located in Bollinger County, where he purchased 200 acres of land. With the assistance of his strong and industrious family he has since made many improvements. Continuing neutral during the Civil War, he remained at home, tilled the soil, and attended to his domestic affairs. Politically, he is a Democrat, and cast his first vote for James K. Polk. He and family are consistent members of the General Baptist Church.

Henry M. Statler, a prosperous farmer of Bollinger County, Mo., is a son of Conrad and Sarah (Yount) Statler, both descendants of North Carolina Dutch, and natives of Bollinger County, Mo. Conrad Statler was born in 1808, and was a farmer and miller. He died in 1882, and his wife died in 1880. The subject of this sketch was born in Bollinger County in 1838, and was reared at the home of his parents. He received a limited education in subscription schools, which has been greatly improved by much desultory reading since arriving at mature years. In 1863 he wedded Miss Lavina Hartle, who was born and reared in the same neighborhood. She was one of nine children born to Jefferson and Christianity Hartle. After his marriage Mr. Statler settled on a farm and engaged some in the tannery business. He has continued farming as a vocation, and now owns 280 acres of land with good improvements. He is a member of the A. O. U. W. The family are members of the Lutheran Church. Mr. Statler's political opinions are in sympathy with the Democratic party.

George E. Statler, dealer in general merchandise, Lutesville, Mo., was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in 1845, and is a son of Wiley Statler, of German descent, who was born in 1811, in what is now Bollinger County. The latter's father, Christopher Statler, was born in Lincoln County, N. C., but immigrated to Southeast Missouri in its early settlement. Wiley grew to manhood in Bollinger County, and about 1833 married Mary Hart, nee Steel, immediately after which he removed to Cape Girardeau County and located near Millersville. In 1853 he removed to Oak Ridge where he has since resided. He has never held any office, but is one of the influential men of his section. His wife was born in Sumner County, Tenn., in 1812, and died in 1886. She was the mother of eight children, one by the first and seven by the second marriage. The son by the first marriage died on the day she was buried. There are five children living: James C. (of Texas), Robert F., Elizabeth (Mrs. Nicholas Day), George E. and Gilbert D. George E. grew to manhood on his father's farm, and at the age of eighteen entered a store as salesman. When twenty-two years old he taught one school. In 1869 he went into partnership with W. F. Kinder, at Burfordville, in which he remained one year, and spent the winter of 1870-71 in Texas. Returning to Marble Hill he remained one year, and in March, 1873, engaged in the family grocery business at Lutesville. The next fall W. F. Kinder again became his partner, and they added a general stock of merchandise, and continued in business seven years, when they took a third partner, W. W. Sample. After eighteen months Mr. Sample sold to W. T. Wilson, and in eighteen months Mr. Statler sold to Mr. Sample, and in the fall of 1883 he made a trip west. Returning in three months he went into business at Marquand with G. L. Fowler, but after twelve months came to Lutesville, and went into partnership with F. M. Wells, Robert Drum and J. W. Revelle, erecting a brick building at a cost of $5,000, and established a general store. In February, 1888, the firm dissolved, since which time Mr. Statler has been alone in business. In October, 1873, he was united in marriage with Mary A. Gordon, born on the shore of Lake Ontario, N. Y., in 1848. To them were born four children: Ernest W., Gordon G., William K. and Charles C. The mother died in 1883. In December, 1886, Mr. Statler married Miss Mary B. Rhodes, daughter of Samuel Rhodes. She was born in Bollinger County, Mo., in 1866. They have one child, Grover R. Politically Mr. Statler is a Democrat. He is a Mason and a member of the A. O. U. W. He and wife are members of the Missionary Baptist Church.

James W. Stepp, a prosperous farmer, of Bollinger County, Mo., was born in 1837. He is a son of James and Elizabeth (Dunlap) Stepp, natives of North Carolina and Tennessee, respectively. James Stepp, Sr., came to Missouri when a young man. After the death of his first wife he made a visit to Tennessee, where he married the mother of the subject of this sketch. She came with him to Missouri and resided until her death. To them were born eight children, three of whom are now alive. James W. Stepp was her sixth child. He was born in what is now Bollinger County, and in early life worked on a farm. He has been married four times. First, to Mrs. Rilda (Virgin) Crites, who died, leaving one child who died soon after its mother; second, to Angeline Virgin, who died leaving one child, James R.; third, to Nancy Elizabeth Gaines, who died after having borne four children, three of whom are living, viz.: Mary, William T. S. and Tumis Elvira; fourth, to Sarah Arnold, who is still living. This union has been blessed by the birth of seven children, viz.: Green W. D., Henry A., Dolly Varden, Louisa V., Laura, David A. and Columbus R. James W. Stepp is one of the most successful farmers in Southeast Missouri, and is a large land owner. He deals largely in stock, and is also proprietor of a saw mill. During the Civil War he was a Union man, and served in the Federal army under Fremont. Later he joined the State Militia. Mr. Stepp is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Judge David Stevens was born in Bollinger County, Mo., on February 9, 1828, and is the son of John and Sarah (Ramsey) Stevens. John Stevens was the first postmaster in Bollinger County, and the first one west of Jackson, Mo. When the county was organized he was appointed county judge and relinquished his position as postmaster and the postoffice was removed to Marble Hill. After serving four years as county judge Mr. Stevens retired to his farm where he spent the remainder of his life. He was appointed to locate Poplar Bluff, the county seat of Butler County, which was his last official act. He and wife were the parents of eight children: William, Riley, David, James A., Harry (deceased), Benjamin F., Garrett and Rebecca (Mrs. James Rodgers). [For additional sketch of parents see sketch of Benjamin F. Stevens]. In 1850 Judge David Stevens was married to Mary E. Kinder, and their domestic life was begun on the farm where he yet resides. Here they lived happily for thirty-two years when she died, having borne him five daughters and two sons, viz.: Sarah (the widow of Daniel M. Bollinger), Cynthia C. (wife of Charles Snyder), Cassie A. (wife of George B. Zimmerman), Albert P. (who married Arminta Bloom), John Q. (who married Cornelia Sidze), Cerilda (married Robert Berryman) and Ella (wife of Oliver J. Snider). All these children were born and reared on the old homestead, and each one has become a citizen of high respectability. In the autumn of 1886 Mr. Stevens was elected judge of the county court, and took his seat in 1887, since which time his official acts have been approved by the public.

Benjamin F. Stevens, a substantial farmer and stock raiser of Bollinger County, Mo., whose residence is five miles east of Marble Hill, was born in 1834, two miles from his present home. He is a son of John and Sarah (Ramsey) Stevens. The father was of Irish descent, born in South Carolina in 1793. He was a farmer, and at the age of fifteen years immigrated to Southeast Missouri with his father, John Stevens, who settled in Bollinger County. In the fall of 1834 John Stevens, Jr., located on what is now the county farm. He was one of the first county judges of his county, having been appointed by the Legislature. He died in 1859. His wife was also of Irish origin, and was born in North Carolina in 1801. She was the daughter of David Ramsey, who came to Bollinger County about the same time as the Stevens family (in 1808). She died in 1861 and was the mother of nine children, four of whom are living: David, Benjamin F., Garrett and Rebecca (wife of James Rodgers), of Marlette, Mich. Benjamin F. was reared on a farm and resided on the old home place until 1865, when he removed on his present farm. It consists of 420 acres of fine land upon which, in 1885, he erected a large frame residence at a cost of $1,800. In 1856 he was united in marriage with Miss Serilda Snider, who was born on the farm on which she now resides in 1847, and is a daughter of Martin Snider. Mr. and Mrs. Stevens have had seven children: Eliza A. (Mrs. William Norman), Oliver F., Mary E. (Mrs. J. M. Cover), Charles (died in 1873, at the age of six years), Cora (died in 1880, at the age of seven years), Thomas H. and Raymond. In August, 1862, Mr. Stevens enlisted in Company A, Col. Jeffrey's Regiment (Confederate), and participated in the battles of Big Blue, Jenkins' Ferry, and some minor skirmishes. The regiment surrendered at Shreveport, La., in June, 1865. Mr. Stevens has been a life-long Democrat, and is one of the leading men of his party in Bollinger County. In 1874 he was elected clerk of the county court, and was re-elected in 1878, and left the office after eight years' service without a stain against his record. He and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He is a Mason.

John W. Swan, one of the most intelligent farmers of Bollinger County, Mo., was born in 1853, and is a son of Abraham and Elizabeth C. (Barber) Swan, natives of Perry County, Mo. Abraham Swan was a prosperous farmer. He and wife were the parents of three children, of whom the subject of this sketch is the eldest. Mrs. Abraham Swan died in 1882. John W. Swan was reared in Wayne County, Mo. In early life he attended the common schools, and graduated from Chambers' Commercial College, Cape Girardeau, when he was twenty-two years of age. Having received a good education he has become one of the most enterprising and thrifty farmers of Bollinger County. Upon leaving school he returned to his home in Perry County and remained there a few years engaged in tilling the soil. In 1878 he removed to Bollinger County and soon afterward married Miss Sophia C. Sides, who was born in 1861. Mr. Swan has a good farm of 500 acres, the most of which is located in the fertile and productive Castor River Valley. Politically he favors the principles of the Democratic party. He and wife have three children: Charles A., Marvin C. and Claude S. The family are consistent members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

William C. Talley, M. D., of Marble Hill, Mo., was born in North Carolina in 1828. He is a son of Willis H. and Nacey (Carver) Talley. The Talleys immigrated to the United States from England and settled in Virginia. Willis H. was born in 1797, in Halifax County, Va. He was reared in his native county, but he was married in Person County, N. C., where he afterward located. His first wife was born in Person County, N. C., in 1800. She died in 1854 having borne fourteen children, seven of whom are now living: J. R. (a physician in Cape Girardeau County, Mo.), William C., Mary (widow of Charles M. Turner), Nancy A. (Mrs. William A. Fogate), Charles L., Barton W. and Sarah (Mrs. John Simpson, of Hamilton County, Tenn.). In 1832 Willis H. Talley removed to Hamilton County, Tenn., and remained until 1864, when he went to Allen County, Ky. In 1867 he removed to Sumner County, Tenn., and spent the remainder of his life, his death occurring in 1880. His second wife Martha (Cates) Rector, was born in Hamilton County, Tenn., in 1826. She died in 1875 having borne eight children, four of whom are living: David, G. K., Willis E. and Lou. Dr. William C. received his literary education in Tennessee, and at the age of eighteen entered upon the profession of teaching school and going to school, which he very successfully continued for over ten years. In 1856 he married Miss Sarah E. Erwin, a native of Hamilton County, Tenn., born in 1834. In 1858 the Doctor commenced studying medicine, and two years later came to Perry County, Mo., but a few weeks later removed to Bollinger County, and resumed the study of his profession. In 1862 he moved to Millersville, Cape Girardeau County, and began practicing his profession, however, continuing his studies under the direction of his brother, Dr. J. R. Talley. In 1866 he removed to Marble Hill and resumed his practice, and in 1868 graduated from the St. Louis Medical College. Dr. Talley is the oldest physician and surgeon of Bollinger County and commands a large practice. He has the confidence of the people to a high degree and is an estimable gentleman. Politically he is quite independent. In 1867 he was elected school commissioner of Bollinger County and was re-elected in 1883 and in 1885. He and wife have four children living: Dr. Jesse R., William F., Urannah A. and Joan Parlee. The family are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. The Doctor is a member of the Masonic order.

Rev. H. F. Tong was born on November 6, 1836, and is the only child of Henry D. and Virginia (Alin) Tong. Henry D. Tong was of German-Welch descent, and was born in Kentucky, on January 29, 1813. He came with his parents to Missouri when about seven years old, they settling at St. Michael, now Fredericktown, Madison County, where he was brought up. When about twenty-two years of age he was married to his first wife, a native of this State. She died in 1836, leaving her only child, the subject of this sketch, then but three weeks old. He afterward married Miss Elizabeth Woods, of St. Francois County, Mo. To them were born ten children, three of whom are now living. Mrs. Tong is now residing in St. Louis in her seventy-first year. Henry D. Tong was a typical pioneer, and visited different places in Southeast Missouri. He died in Ripley County, Mo., in 1865. His father, William Tong, was a native of Maryland, who lived there under the administration of Lord Baltimore, and immigrated to Missouri in 1820. He was the father of twenty-six children—thirteen boys and the same number of girls—all of whom grew to manhood and womanhood. William Tong served in the Revolutionary War under Gen. Washington, and was in the battle of Brandywine. His, for many years, was one of the leading families of Southeast Missouri. He was a shoemaker by trade, and died in 1848 at the ripe age of ninety-six years. Rev. H. F. Tong was born in Madison County, Mo., and in early life labored on a farm. He received his education in the common schools and Methodist Seminary at Ardenia, Mo. He began his ministerial work in 1855, and has been a Baptist minister in Southeast Missouri for twenty years. So far as pastoral and missionary work is concerned, his labors have been principally confined to the counties of Madison, Bollinger, Cape Girardeau and Scott; but while laboring as general financial agent of the Baptist denominational school known as Mayfield-Smith Academy, at Marble Hill, Mo., and also as general missionary and colporteur for the Baptist publishing house of St. Louis, his work has embraced Southeast Missouri at large. During the period of pastoral services he established the following churches, all of which occupy respectable houses of worship: Mount Zion (known as New Salem), Mount Carmel, Little Whitewater and Bethel, all in Bollinger County, and served as pastor of Castor (now known as the First Baptist Church of Marquand, Mo.), Shady Grove, Big Creek, Marble Hill, Trace Creek and Morley. Doubtless, he has officiated in the ordination of more ministers and deacons in the last twenty-one years than any other man in Southeast Missouri. In the years of 1885 and 1886, the closing years of his long extended labors, he sought the material, compiled and wrote what is known as the "Southeast Missouri Baptist History," an invaluable acquisition to the Baptist history of the State, as well as an aid to all students of history. In 1858 Rev. Tong was united in marriage with Christiana H. Jones, of his native county. To them have been born two children, Mrs. Carry Stuart (now living in California) and Mrs. Sausah Heward (who with her family resides with her parents on their little farm in Crooked Creek Township, Bollinger Co., Mo.).

Ferdinand P. Trautwein, a citizen of Lutesville, Bollinger Co., Mo., and proprietor of Snider Custom Flouring Mills, Cape Girardeau County, is a native of Missouri, born in Gasconade County, July 29, 1841. He is a son of Frederick Trautwein, a native of Germany, who came to the United States when a young man. Soon after his arrival in New York City, he married Amelia Gulden, after which he removed to Pennsylvania, and being a mechanic was there engaged in manufacturing pianos. About 1837 he removed to Missouri and settled in Gasconade County, where he bought a farm upon which he resided about five years, until the fall of 1841, when he met with an accident which caused his death. Ferdinand P. remained on his father's farm until he was twenty-three years of age, when he and an older brother began managing a small mill, which their father had previously started to build. In 1860 they began operating a regular custom water mill, but three years later they put in steam power. In 1865 they removed their machinery to Medora, Osage County, where they started a steam mill. In December, 1866, Ferdinand P. Trautwein went to Fulton and purchased what was known as Bluff Mill, which he managed about six years. On July 4, 1867, he was married in Gasconade County, to Amelia H. Gentner, a native of that county. Mr. Trautwein removed to Osage County in 1872, and located at Chamois, whither the old mill from Medora had been moved. For about two years he was engaged in the millwright business in that vicinity, and in the fall of 1875 removed to St. Louis, where he resided about three years, engaged in mechanical work. In the summer of 1878 he removed to Lutesville, Bollinger County, and built a small flouring mill, which he still operates in connection with the Snider Mills, which he purchased in 1885. The last named mill has three run of buhrs, with a capacity of about 200 bushels per day. Mr. Trautwein has made valuable improvements in both building and machinery, and is doing a good business. He and wife have six children: Emma J., Rosa L., Amanda H., Katie, Ada and Edward. Mr. Trautwein is a member of the A. O. U. W., and Select Knights, and is a Wheeler.

Dr. James A. Turner, a physician and surgeon of Sedgewickville, Bollinger Co., Mo., is a son of John R. and Ann (Shannon) Turner. John R. Turner was born in Iredell County, N. C., in 1834, of Scotch-Irish parentage. He was reared in his native State, and received his education in the subscription schools. With his mother he immigrated to Madison County, Mo., and engaged in farming. In 1849 he went to California by the overland route with an ox-team, and was six months making the trip. Landing at Housner's Bay, he began mining for gold, and remained four years in search of the precious metal, of which he found a quantity. Returning home he purchased a farm in Madison County, and the next year (1854) was married. His wife was a daughter of Dr. Robert M. Shannon, judge and surveyor of Madison County for a number of years. To them were born four children. Mrs. Turner died in 1867. Mr. Turner was a prominent man of his county, which he represented in the Legislature in 1878. Dr. James A. was born at the home of his parents in Madison County, and received a good education in the common schools and the Fredericktown High School. In 1875 he began reading medicine, and in 1882 graduated from the Louisville Medical College. Locating at Cold Water, Wayne Co., Mo., he began practicing his profession, and was united in marriage with Miss Anna Rasor, who was born in Madison County, Mo., in 1864, and is a daughter of Peter and Emily Rasor of that county. In 1886 Dr. Turner removed to Sedgewickville, and resumed his practice, which is rapidly increasing. He and wife have two children: Edgar and Daisy. Dr. Turner is also a notary public, and a member of the I. O. O. F. and A. O. U. W. Politically he is a Democrat.

Robert Vangennip, a well-to-do farmer of Liberty Township, Bollinger Co., Mo., was born in Holland, in 1846, and is a son of John and Catherine (Vandener) Vangennip, both natives of Holland. John Vangennip was educated in France, after which he was engaged in the mercantile business as a traveling salesman, and traveled through France, England and Germany. In 1852 he came with his family to America and located in Cincinnati, where he entered the carpet business. During that year he, his wife and nine out of a family of eleven children died with the cholera. Robert, the subject of this sketch, and Rosena, now the wife of A. Pickett, are the only members of the family who survived. Robert was reared and educated by Father Vanlightner, of St. Louis Rock Church. At the age of sixteen years he went to live with John Esling, of Lorraine Township, Bollinger Co., Mo. In 1868 he entered 120 acres of land in Liberty Township, of Bollinger County, and the next year was married to Rosa Chavann, of that county. She was born in Holland, in 1850. To them have been born eight children, viz.: Rosa, Anna, Robert, Alfred, Lewis, Joseph, John and Clara. In 1882 Mr. Vangennip purchased 120 acres of land near his first farm, making a farm of 240 acres of well improved land. Mr. Vangennip and family are members of the Catholic Church.

Joseph Waldrup was born in Fentress County, Tenn., in 1822. His parents, William and Lucy (Smith) Waldrup, were natives of Virginia, who removed to Tennessee after their marriage and followed farming in Fentress County. They were the parents of six children: Rebecca, Polly, Thomas, Joseph, John and William. Joseph was the fourth child. He was reared in his native county, but had no opportunity to receive an education. In 1845 he was united in marriage with Miss Nancy Tackett, a daughter of William and Betsy Tackett, the former of whom died in 1878 and the latter in 1880. Mrs. Waldrup was born in 1826. When but a boy Mr. Waldrup began farming, and after his marriage he located on his father's farm and remained until 1853, when he removed to Cape Girardeau County, Mo. He afterward purchased eighty acres, for which he paid $300, in Bollinger County. This with 128 acres of good farm land that he entered comprises his present farm. To him and wife have been born two children, Sarah (the wife of Moses Jones) and Joseph, (who lives with his parents). In religious belief, the family are Lutherans. Mr. Waldrup is a Democrat, having cast his first vote for James K. Polk.

William M. Welch, ex-probate judge of Bollinger County, was born in that county in 1820, and is a son of Thomas and Margaret (Young) Welch. Thomas Welch was born in Tennessee or North Carolina, and when a boy came to Southeast Missouri with his father, William Welch, who located on Crooked Creek near the present site of Laffin, he being one of the first white settlers of that region. Thomas died in 1829. His wife was born in Kentucky. Her father, Morris Young, came to Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in 1804, but afterward located in Bollinger County. Mrs. Welch died in 1845, having borne four children of whom two, Elizabeth E. (widow of Lawson Huffstetter, of Stoddard County, Mo.) and Judge William M., are living. William M. grew to manhood on the farm on which he now resides, his father having settled on the place when he was an infant. The farm is situated about five miles east of Marble Hill and consists of 190 acres of good land. The Judge was born about five miles south of his present home. He has been married three times; the first time in 1842 to Cinderella J. Snider, who was born in Bollinger County, Mo., in 1828, and was a daughter of Martin Snider. She died in 1854, leaving four children: Richard J. Missouri E. (Mrs. Joseph C. Lessley) Thomas M. and Franklin P. In 1856 Judge Welch married Miss Keziah J. Stevens, a daughter of Josiah Stevens. She was born in Tennessee, and was the mother of five children, viz.: Josiah B., John R., Edward H., Margaret A. (Mrs. William H. Caldwell) and Miles M. She died in 1883, and in November of that year Judge Welch wedded Grace E. Sheppard, nee Caldwell. Mrs. Welch was born in South Carolina in 1833 and came to Bollinger County, Mo., with her parents in 1839. Both the Judge and his wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He has been a life-long Democrat, having cast his first vote for James K. Polk, and is now one of the leading men of his party in the county. He has been honored with various offices, was constable for four years and justice of the peace for the same length of time. In 1852 he was elected county judge and served four years. In 1872 he was elected probate judge, and was re-elected three times, serving in all a little over fourteen years, thus forcibly illustrating his ability as an efficient officer. He is a member of the Masonic order.

John W. Hahn and Franklin P. Welch, enterprising merchants of Leopold, Bollinger County, Mo., established their business on October 13, 1886. Mr. Welch was born in 1852, in Bollinger County, Mo., and is a son of Judge William M. Welch and Catherine (Snider) Welch. He was reared on a farm, and in 1879 was united in marriage with Mrs. Eliza Snider, nee Slagle. She was born in Bollinger County, Mo., in 1847, and is the daughter of John Slagle. She was first married to Alfred A. Hahn, and after his death, to J. M. Snider. Mrs. Welch is the mother of two children by her first marriage, John W. and Flora I., the latter of whom died when an infant. John W., who is the partner of his stepfather, Mr. Welch, was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., July 4, 1865. His parents moved to Bollinger County while he was an infant, and he has resided there ever since. He completed his education in Jones Commercial College, at St. Louis, Mo., and in 1885 was joined in wedlock to Henrietta Buechner, who was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in 1868, and is a daughter of George Buechner. To Mr. and Mrs. Hahn have been born two children, viz.: Clara and John D. Mrs. Hahn is a member of the Lutheran Church. Mr. Hahn is a member of the Masonic order and the A. O. U. W. Mr. and Mrs. Welch have two children living by their marriage: William F. and Emmerson F. Mr. Welch is a member of the Masonic order and the A. O. U. W. He and his wife are consistent members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Both members of the firm are Democrats. On August 23, 1887, Mr. Hahn was appointed postmaster of Leopold, and is the present incumbent. Messrs. Hahn & Welch are good citizens, and are highly respected gentlemen.

Elias Wells, Esq., a thrifty farmer of Bollinger County, Mo., was born in Tennessee May 9, 1848, and is a son of Eli and Mary Ann (Grandon) Wells, natives of Virginia and Tennessee, respectively. Eli Wells was born October 25, 1811, and was reared in his native State. He removed to Tennessee, where, when he was twenty-five years of age, he was married. In 1856 he removed his family to Missouri, and located on Castor River, in Stoddard County, where he died in 1863. His widow, who was born in 1820, is still alive, and resides in Marble Hill. They were the parents of seventeen children, four of whom are living. Elias Wells came to Missouri with his parents. When the Civil War broke out he went to Cape Girardeau and enlisted in the Federal army to fight for the preservation of the Union, joining Company C, Second Missouri Light Artillery, with which he remained until the close of the war. He was mustered out of service at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., and received his discharge at St. Louis, after which he returned home. In 1868 he was united in marriage with Sarah George, a native of Georgia, born September 11, 1848. After the war Mr. Wells engaged in agricultural pursuits, which he has continued. After disposing of a portion of his land, he still owns 160 acres. He is a member of the Farmers' Alliance, also of the Agricultural Wheel. He and wife have had ten children, only eight living, viz.: Mary Jane (wife of U. S. Jamison), Martha Ann, Sarah Caroline, Matilda, Josephine, Lucretia E., George A., Effie Etta and Jessie K. Mr. Wells has served as justice of the peace of Wayne Township, Bollinger County, for five years. Politically he is a Republican, and is sergeant-major of Erich Pape Post No. 184, G. A. R., Department of Missouri. He is also a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Masonic lodge.

John Q. D. Whitener, an energetic farmer of Bollinger County, Mo., was born in Madison County, Mo., in 1845. He is a son of Elijah and Patience E. (Kinder) Whitener. Elijah Whitener was of German descent, and was born in Madison County, Mo., in 1821. Remaining with his parents until his marriage, in 1843, he then located on a farm in his native county. In 1850 he removed to Bollinger County, and continued tilling the soil until his death, in 1879. His wife, who was also of German extraction, was born in 1824. She was the mother of eight children: Henry D., John Q. D., Caroline L. (now the wife of Hiram Berry), Daniel M., Barbara (wife of J. W. Snyder), Andrew L., Joseph H. and Miles B. John Q. D. was reared at the home of his parents, and received a common school education. In 1866 he married Miss Matilda Berry, after which he located on a farm. In 1874 he engaged in merchandising, which he continued until 1884, when he returned to his farm, it being the one on which he now resides. His wife was born in Madison County, Mo., in 1844, of German parentage. Two children have blessed the union of Mr. and Mrs. Whitener, viz.: Columbus L. and Mattie E. Politically Mr. Whitener is a Democrat. He and his wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Turner G. Whitener, a substantial farmer and stock raiser of Bollinger County, Mo., was born in 1858. He is the son of Henry M. and Lucy E. Whitener. Henry M. Whitener, a native of Bollinger County, was a farmer by vocation. He was born in October, 1822, and died in February, 1885. Mrs. Whitener was born in January, 1821, and died in 1883. They were the parents of five children, four of whom are alive. In early life Turner G. worked on his father's farm, and attended the common schools. His marriage with Miss Amanda Jane Teeters was celebrated in November, 1880. She is of German-Irish descent, and was born on May 17, 1857. Her father, Isham Teeters, was born in 1834, in Alabama, and immigrated to Missouri in 1836. He first married Martha E. Tripp, a native of Tennessee, who bore him five children. Mr. Teeters afterward married Miss Alzena Webb. Turner G. Whitener and lady are among the most highly respected people of their section of the country. They own eighty-eight acres of the rich alluvial land of Castor River Valley, one of the best tracts of land in Bollinger County. Mr. and Mrs. Whitener have three children: Eva May, Martha Elvira and Lola Beatrice. The family belong to the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Elvis F. Williams, a farmer of German Township, Bollinger Co., Mo., is a son of William A. and Elizabeth (Watson) Williams. William A. Williams was born in East Tennessee in 1810, and in 1820 came with his parents to Southeast Missouri and located on a farm in Cape Girardeau County. He was married in that county and reared ten children, of whom Elvis F. is the eldest. William A. Williams died in 1877. The subject of this sketch was born in Bollinger County, Mo., in 1830. He was reared at the home of his parents, and in 1853 was united in marriage with Miss Surrilda J. Mayfield, who was born in Bollinger County, Mo., in 1829. She is a daughter of Elisha and Susan (Houk) Mayfield, the latter of whom died when Sarah E. was but two years of age. After his marriage Mr. Williams settled on a farm in his native county, and has since been engaged in agricultural pursuits. In 1875 he was broken down with disease, and has not been able to do a day's work since. During 1864 and 1865 he served his country in the Union army with Capt. Cochran's company, in the Seventy-ninth Regiment Missouri Volunteers. He has been a member of the Missionary Baptist Church for years.

Benjamin F. Winters, a farmer, whose residence is one mile southeast of Laffin, Mo., is a native of Clay County, Ind., and was born in 1847. He is a son of Daniel Winters, who was born in Pennsylvania. When young the latter immigrated to Indiana, where he married Martha J. Pringle, a native of that State. In 1852 he immigrated to Missouri, and located in Bollinger County. His wife died in 1854, and the next year he removed to Jackson, Cape Girardeau County, and erected a shoe shop, he being a shoemaker by trade. He there married Mrs. Mary (Crain) Self, who is still living. Mr. Winters died in 1864. He was the father of two children by his first marriage, and three by his second. The subject of this sketch was the only one living by his first marriage. Being but seven years old when his mother died, Benjamin F. was cared for by his grandparents on his mother's side. His grandfather, William Pringle, died in 1862, after which Benjamin lived with his grandmother, and cared for her until the close of the war, when her son returned home. On March 14, 1867, Mr. Winters married Miss Sarah F. Huffman, a daughter of Alex. Huffman. She was born in Bollinger County, Mo., in 1844. Four children are the fruits of this union, Laura J., Mary C., John F. and Daisy B. In 1873 Mr. Winters purchased ninety-four acres of land, upon which he still resides. Although he commenced life without means, by economy, close attention to business, and good management, he has made for himself and family a good home. In politics he votes with the Democratic party, and in 1878 was elected coroner of his county, and was re-elected in 1880. In 1883 he was appointed justice of the peace to fill an unexpired term. In 1884 he was elected to the same office and was re-elected in 1886, and has since adjusted his neighbors' difficulties with judicial fairness. He is a member of the Masonic order, and he and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

James G. Woodfin, ex-county judge of Bollinger County, was born in Cape Girardeau County in 1830, and is a son of George Woodfin, who was born in Henrico County, Va., in 1801. In 1825 the latter went to Mississippi as an overseer, and the next year located on a farm near Jackson, Cape Girardeau County, Mo. In 1829 he was united in marriage with Maria Green, who was born in Cape Girardeau County in 1810. In 1833 he removed to Stoddard County, but remained only two years, when he returned to Cape Girardeau County. He served as coroner of that county one term and died in 1849. His wife died in 1877. To them were born six children, three of whom, James G., Columbus and Virginia A. (Mrs. James Cox), are living. James G. Woodfin received such education as the common schools of his time afforded, and in 1854 went to California. During his stay in the west he engaged in mining in the winter seasons and in teaming in summer. He met with fair success and returned home in 1859 with money to buy a farm. Soon after he purchased the land in Liberty Township, Bollinger County, on which he now resides. His farm now consists of 500 acres with good improvements. In 1860 he wedded Caroline N. Summers, of Cape Girardeau County. She is a native of that county, born in 1832, of Scotch descent. To this union have been born four children, all deceased. Mr. Woodfin is a Democrat, and has filled several official positions. He was justice of the peace in 1863 and 1864, was appointed assistant assessor in 1864, appointed county court justice in 1866, and elected to the same office in 1868, and again in 1878 and 1880.

John S. Yount, a substantial farmer of German Township, Bollinger County, Mo., was born in Cape Girardeau County, and is a son of John and Mary (Hahn) Yount, both of whom were natives of North Carolina. John Yount was born in 1782, of German parentage, and received an ordinary education in English and German. His wife was born in 1788. They were married in the Old North State, and removed to Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in 1803, just too late to take up land under the Spanish land grant. However, they settled on a piece of heavy timbered land, which is now in Bollinger County, and cleared eighty acres on which they resided until their deaths. John Yount died in 1858, and his wife in 1867. They were the parents of ten children, of whom John S. is the sixth. He received his education in the subscription schools of his county, and, when but a boy, learned the blacksmith's trade with his father. When nineteen years of age he left his father, and went to Dubuque, Iowa (in 1838), and remained there two years, mining for lead, but not succeeding he engaged to work in a saw mill. In 1840 he entered a still house and learned the stilling business, when he returned home. In 1841 he was united in marriage with Miss Anna Shell, and the same year purchased a farm from his father, on which he settled and remained four years, when he traded with Philip B. Shell for the farm on which he (Mr. Yount) now resides. Having contracted the gold fever, in 1850, he started for the El Dorado of the West by the overland route, which required seven months, during which time ten of the company died. Meeting with many difficulties, they removed from one diggings to another until they were at last successful. From the gold fields Mr. Yount went to Napa Valley to visit his uncle, George Yount, and returned home in 1850. Soon after he purchased an ox-team, and in 1851 was back in the mines again. After digging more of the precious metal and working at his trade, at which he made good wages, he boarded the steamer, "Old Winfield Scott," and started for New Orleans. On the way the vessel was stranded on a reef of rocks and went to pieces; however, the passengers were all saved and in seven days they were rescued by the steamer "California," which landed them and their gold safe in Panama, from whence they went to New Orleans. After his return home Mr. Yount engaged in merchandising with A. A. Miller, the latter attending to the store and the former managing his farm and blacksmith shop. In 1858 Mr. Yount purchased Mr. Miller's interest, and continued in the business until the war, when he lost all. He served five months in the Union army, receiving his discharge at Marble Hill in 1865. Since the war he has cleared over 100 acres of land. His wife was born in Cape Girardeau County in 1820, and was also educated in the subscription schools. She died in 1883, being the mother of ten children. Politically Mr. Yount is a Democrat.

John A. Yount is a son of John S. and Anna (Shell) Yount [see sketch of John S. Yount]. John A. was born in Bollinger County, August 8, 1854, and received a fair education in the common schools. When but a boy he commenced farming, which has been his life vocation. On March 26, 1878, he was united in marriage with Miss Mariah E. Hartle, a daughter of Jesse and Sarah Hartle. Mariah E. was born in Cape Girardeau County in 1843, and was educated in the common schools. After his marriage Mr. Yount settled on one of the best farms in German Township, Bollinger Co., Mo. It consists of 387 acres of fine land, upon which are good improvements. Mr. and Mrs. Yount's marriage has been blessed by the birth of three children—two girls and one boy. In politics Mr. Yount's views accord with those of the Democratic party, he having cast his first vote for Samuel J. Tilden.

Judge Nathan M. Zimmerman is a son of Michael and Phoebe (Houk) Zimmerman, both of whom were natives of North Carolina. They were married in their native State, and all their children, five in number, were born and reared there. Being wise parents they influenced their sons to learn trades, and Nathan M. became a first-class carpenter, and worked at his trade for many years. Michael Zimmerman and wife removed to Missouri in 1848, and located in Bollinger County, where they spent the remainder of their lives. Nathan M. was born in the Old North State in November, 1821, and was married there in 1846 to Sarah E. Bowman. On December 23, 1848, they removed to Bollinger County, Mo., and after a residence of fifteen years removed to Randolph County, Ill., where they remained until 1870, when they returned to their farm in Bollinger County. Before removing to Illinois Mr. Zimmerman was elected coroner and magistrate, and while filling those offices began the study of law. In 1874 he was elected judge of Bollinger County, and was re-elected in 1886. His official acts have always been recognized by the people as most praiseworthy, and in him, both as a private citizen and an officer, they have the fullest confidence. Being a progressive agriculturist, he has done his part toward the improvement of the country of his adoption. His wife died in 1885; she was a devoted wife, mother and a consistent christian, and was a member of the Methodist Church. Nine children graced the union of Mr. and Mrs. Zimmerman, viz.: James M. (who married Emily McKelvey), Mary E. (wife of H. A. Sanders), Daniel C. (who married Mrs. Mary E. McKelvey), Deck, Elvira (deceased, was the wife of William Rhodes), Nathan A. (who married Pink Tucker), George B. (who wedded, first Cassie A., the daughter of Judge David Stevens, and after her death, Miss Emeline Watts), Susan (Mrs. Reuben Watts), John (who married Lizzie Kelley) and Cicero. The last named is a classic graduate, and, for several years has been engaged in teaching school. He was married to Miss Lottie Miller, of Cape Girardeau County, Mo., June 3, 1888.

MADISON COUNTY.

Napoleon B. Allen, judge of the probate court of Madison County, Mo., is a native of Murfreesboro, Tenn., born in 1822, his parents being John and Elizabeth (Harrison) Allen, who were born in Virginia and South Carolina, respectively. They both died the same year, 1834. The former was born in 1797 and was taken to Tennessee in his youth. About 1832 he came to Missouri, where he passed the remainder of his life. He was a farmer and served as captain in the War of 1812, being at the battle of New Orleans. He was the father of seven children, four of whom are living: Damascus T., Vermont, N. B., and Musedore E. (wife of R. L. Wood). Judge Allen's early educational advantages were very limited, but he was persistent in his endeavors to secure an education and become a good scholar. At the age of fourteen he began learning the saddle and harness maker's trade, at which he worked as an apprentice for four years and then one year as a journeyman. In 1851 he established a shop of his own, but in 1864 his goods were all taken by Confederate soldiers and he never resumed the business. In 1856 he became one of the directors of a branch of the State Bank of Missouri, and in 1863 was appointed county assessor and was once re-elected to the same position. He took the census of Madison County and the State of Missouri in 1876. From 1870 to 1874 he was deputy circuit court clerk of Madison County, and in 1882 was elected probate judge and was re-elected in 1886. He was married to Sarah Bollinger in 1841. She is a daughter of David Bollinger, and niece of Frederick Bollinger, in whose honor Bollinger County, Mo., was named. Fredericktown, Mo., was also named in his honor. Mrs. Allen was born in Missouri in 1828, and is the mother of eight children: Albert, Leven C., Robert H., Thomas B., Ninna (wife of D. B. Axtel), Laura (wife of Edward Frazier), Adelia (wife of B. W. Key), and Annie (wife of Thomas Holiday). Albert is at Jefferson City, Mo., and is swamp land commissioner of State; Levan C. is a graduate of West Point and is captain in the United States army; Robert H. is in New Madrid and is superintendent of a large dry goods house; Thomas B. is a teacher and law student; Ninna's husband is a civil engineer in Waco, Tex.; Laura's is a railway conductor in St. Louis, Mo.; Adelia's husband is a Southern Methodist minister, and is a son of Bishop Key, of Georgia; Anna's husband is in the Treasury Department at Washington, D. C. Mr. Allen is a Democrat and cast his first presidential vote for Henry Clay. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and his wife belongs to the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Hon. Josiah M. Anthony, farmer of St. Michael Township, a native of Madison County, Mo., born December 5, 1820, is a son of William and Jane (Marshall) Anthony, and grandson of Joseph Anthony. The latter was a Baptist minister and was imprisoned for preaching his doctrine during the Revolutionary War. He died in Virginia, and after his death his widow, with her children, William being among the number, moved to Sumner County, Tenn., about 1800. William was born in Virginia January 9, 1793, and was a soldier in the War of 1812. He held the rank of major and was in the battle of New Orleans. January 8, 1815, he married in Tennessee, and three years later moved to Madison County, Mo., and located three and a half miles east of the county seat, but the last twenty years of his life were spent on a farm one and one-half miles east of Fredericktown. He died October 17, 1865. He was justice of the court several terms and was a good man. His wife was born June 23, 1799, and died July 4, 1834. She was the mother of seven sons, Josiah being the second. He obtained a fair English education in the common schools, and commenced business as a cabinet maker and builder at the age of eighteen. October 22, 1843, he married Miss Sarah Ann Bennett, a native of Cape Girardeau County, Mo., born February 13, 1826, and the daughter of William Bennett. To them were born seven children, viz.: William B., Eunice, Mildred E. (wife of William Matthews, merchant at Marquand), Elmora (wife of John Pablick), Nancy E. (wife of William Buford, at New Port, Ark.), Jesse and Albert D. In 1852 Mr. Anthony, in company with about twenty persons, undertook the long and perilous trip across the plains to the State of California in search of wealth. They were four months on the route, and after reaching the State were very successful in mining. In 1854 Mr. Anthony returned to his birthplace and began his career as a farmer, which occupation he has followed up to the present. In 1871 he began the manufacture of lumber and continued this for five years. Mr. Anthony is a Democrat in politics and wields considerable influence in his party. In 1858 he was elected as representative to the Twentieth General Assembly, and his integrity and superior talents soon won for him a position of influence in that body. He was re-elected to the Twenty-eighth General Assembly, and was a member of the important committee on deaf and dumb and lunatic asylums, and was also a member of several special committees. The following editorial from his county paper shows the estimation in which Mr. Anthony is held in that county: "The people of Madison County have every reason to be proud of the gentleman who represents them in the General Assembly that finished its labors last week. Being a workman himself, having long since learned the worth of a dollar, Mr. Anthony was careful to cast his vote for no measure unless he thought it to be just to that class of men known as Grangers. And we understand that he stood as the leader of the agricultural element in which he sat. He always kept before him the principles of true Democracy, which he has always advocated and in this, as in all other matters, he follows the dictates of his own conscience." It is said, and truly too, that by a man's acts we shall know him, and the editorial expresses the sentiment of the county, for Mr. Anthony was not allowed to remain at home long. In 1880 he was elected to the Thirty-first General Assembly, and in 1882 was sent back for the fourth time to represent the people of Madison County in the Thirty-second General Assembly, thus forcibly illustrating his popularity as an able and efficient public officer. Mr. Anthony is an active member of the Masonic fraternity and has been an influential member of the Christian Church since 1854. He was chosen an elder in 1872. He is always pleasant and agreeable and assumes no manner except that which is natural. He is honorable and straight-forward and his word is as good as his bond.

James B. Anthony, who is one of Madison County's thrifty farmers and stock raisers, was born in the year 1835, and is the son of William and Jane (Marshall) Anthony. The father was born in Virginia, and was by occupation a farmer. He moved to Missouri in 1819 and located in Madison County, where he passed the remainder of his days. He was a soldier in the Creek War. He married Miss Marshall, who became the mother of seven children, three now living. The fourth child, James B., was born in Madison County, and educated in the pioneer log schoolhouses of early days. In 1846 he went to Texas, and in 1849 started for California with an ox-team, being on the road 120 days. There, like many others, he prospected for gold and was reasonably successful. After remaining in the land of gold two years he took ship at Sacramento, was in a fearful storm that threw him out of his regular course fifty-nine days, and returned by the Nicaragua route. He reached home in 1851, and after remaining here until the next spring, he and several of his brothers returned to California, where they remained until 1855, when they returned to Missouri. Here Mr. Anthony engaged in farming and in the rearing of live stock, which he followed until the war, when his experience as a pilot began. He enlisted under Marmaduke in Company A, Seventh Regiment, which was afterward consolidated into Geoffrey's regiment. He was then sent to Louisiana and kept on the outposts until the surrender of Price. Mr. Anthony is now sixty-three years old and is not married. He is the owner of 200 acres of land in Castor Township, and is a genuine Democrat in politics. He has been a member of the Christian Church for forty years.

Edward D. Anthony, publisher of The Standard and attorney-at-law at Fredericktown, Mo., is a native of Madison County, Mo., and was born in 1856, being the son of Joseph and Martha J. (Stevenson) Anthony. The father was born in Sumner County, Tenn., in 1818, and was of English descent. His father, William Anthony, was a native of Tennessee. He came to Madison County in 1818, and located four miles east of the county seat. He owned about 400 acres of land, and was one of the first settlers. He died in 1865. He was in the War of 1812, and was presiding county judge of Madison County many years. Joseph Anthony grew to manhood in Madison County, and here passed his life with the exception of about five years when in California. In 1849 he went to the Eureka State by overland with many others to seek for gold. He has made two trips to the Pacific coast, being absent in all about five years. He was a soldier in the Mexican War; was colonel of his regiment, and was in service about two years. He was a tiller of the soil and resided near the old homestead. He died in 1883. His wife was born in Madison County in 1830, is yet living, and is the mother of five children: Edward D., Eliza (now Mrs. C. F. Fulewider), Julia (now Mrs. Theodore Underiner), Sterling and Frank. Edward D. was educated at the common schools and at the State Normal at Cape Girardeau. At the age of eighteen he began teaching, and followed this profession four years. In 1878 he commenced the study of law, and in March, 1881, was admitted to the bar. December 25 of the same year he purchased The Standard, and has since been editor and proprietor of the same. The Standard is ably edited, and Mr. Anthony is a wide-awake and practical newspaper man. His items are original, and his editorials are to the point and full of interest. In October, 1880, he married Mrs. Laura Chilton, nee Nifong, a native of Madison County, and the daughter of T. J. Nifong. Two children were born to this union: Edith and Annie. Mr. Anthony is a Democrat in politics.

is a member of the K. of H., I. O. O. F., and he and wife are members of the Christian Church.

Dr. Caruthers A. Anthony, of Mine La Motte, Mo., was born in Fredericktown, Mo., in 1858, and is the son of Mark and Jane H. (Caruthers) Anthony, who were reared in this State. The father died in Fredericktown, Mo., in 1864, but the mother is still living and has her home in Nebraska. The Doctor was reared in Fredericktown and there received the rudiments of an education. In 1878 he attended the Normal at Cape Girardeau, and the next year attended the State University, at Columbia, Mo. He then attended medical lectures two terms, and in 1882 graduated from the Missouri Medical College, of St. Louis. He then practiced his profession one year at Greenville, and then in 1883 located at Mine La Motte, where he entered into partnership with Dr. William Nifong of Fredericktown. After three years' practice with him our subject dissolved partnership, but still continues at Mine La Motte, where he has a large practice there and in the surrounding country. His only sister married George P. Herzinger, who is secretary of the Silver State Insurance Company of Denver, Colo. Dr. Anthony is a member of the I. O. O. F., also Mineral Encampment No. 68, I. O. O. F., and has filled all the chairs of both lodges at Mine La Motte. He is a member and the treasurer of the Southeast Missouri Medical Association, and is a Democrat in his political views.

Hon. Robert A. Anthony, prosecuting attorney of Madison County, Mo., is a native of Coffman County, Tex., where he was born in 1859. He is the son of Patrick Henry and Elizabeth (Mathews) Anthony, and the grandson of Samuel Anthony, who was one of the early pioneers of Madison County. Patrick H. Anthony was born in Madison County, Mo., in 1828. He was a descendant of one of two boys by the name of Anthony, who escaped in a shipwreck perhaps 100 years ago. These boys settled in Virginia, and their descent was unknown. But one of them was the original ancestor of the family to which Patrick H. Anthony belonged. He was a farmer and mechanic by trade, and was reared and grew to manhood in Madison County, where he was married about 1855. He then moved to Texas, where he resided until 1865, at which date he moved to Arkansas, but the following year he returned to his birthplace. He settled in Fredericktown where he passed the remainder of his life. He died in 1879. His wife, and the mother of Robert A., was born in Madison County in 1839, and of the seven children born to her marriage only four are now living: Alice (wife of John Cacey), Mary, Samuel C. (farmer) and Robert A. The latter received his academical education in Fredericktown, and at the age of nineteen began teaching, and taught three terms of school. At the age of twenty-two he became a disciple of Blackstone, his preceptors being Hon. J. Perry Johnson, Hon. W. S. Hackney and Judge James D. Fox. In March, 1884, he was admitted to the bar and immediately entered upon the practice of law. In July, 1887, he was appointed prosecuting attorney by Gov. Marmaduke to fill out the unexpired term of Hon. John E. F. Edwards, who moved to Kansas City. Mr. Anthony is a young man of unusual ability, and a bright future lies before him. January 25, 1888, he married Miss Jennie Wiley, a native of Peoria, Ill., and the daughter of John A. Wiley. Mr. Anthony is a member of the Catholic Church, and is a Democrat in his political views.

J. P. Bailey, farmer, of Madison County, was born in Wayne County, Ind., in 1815, and is the son of Stanton and Mary (Pickett) Bailey. The father was also a native of Wayne County, Ind. J. P. Bailey, the subject of this sketch, after marrying his third wife went to Iowa, where he remained two years. He then removed to Dade County, Mo., and from there to Madison County, where he still lives. He is the father of nineteen children, and is now married to his fourth wife. The following are the names of the children now living: Henry, Hannah, John, Mary, Ora, Fena, Thomas, Lucittie and Allen B. Mr. Bailey's fourth wife is the mother of six children and is forty-eight years old. Mr. Bailey is now the owner of 173 acres of land in Section No. 4. On his farm he has discovered evidences of stone, coal oil and gas. He is an industrious, enterprising farmer and is respected by all.

Rufus Baird, one of the principal property owners of Fredericktown, was born in 1833, and is the oldest person living here now that was born in the town. His father, Moses Baird, was a native of Ireland, who settled in Missouri in 1801. He married Miss Elizabeth Arnet, who was born in 1790 and died in 1857. She became the mother of ten children, Rufus being one of that number. Moses Baird died of cholera in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in 1853. Rufus Baird is by trade a bricklayer, and his earliest years were spent in contracting and building. In 1859 he married Miss Levinia Maze. She was born in 1840, and was of English-German descent. She died in 1880 leaving three children: William, Milton and Rufus. During the late Civil War Mr. Baird was commissioned captain in the Southern forces, and took three companies of men from Fredericktown. Some of the battles in which he participated were as follows: Helena, Pleasant Grove, Mo.; Little Rock, Ark.; Saline Creek, Ark.; Pleasant Hill, La. and others. Mr. Baird is well known throughout the county, and has the respect of all as an honest, enterprising citizen.

Ahira J. Beardsley, son of James and Rachel Beardsley, was born in Hannibal, Oswego Co., N. Y., in 1832. He had one brother, Jerome Beardsley, who died in 1862. James Beardsley, father of our subject, was a farmer and carpenter by occupation. He died in New York at the age of seventy-eight. Ahira Beardsley immigrated to Illinois in 1853, where he followed photography, with good success, but after a year or so he went to Decorah, Iowa, where, for some time, he kept a hotel and speculated in land. While at times he was very successful, at other times things did not go altogether to suit him, so at last he removed to St. Louis, and soon sent for his mother to come and make her home with him. She died at the age of seventy-eight. Mr. Beardsley finally engaged in business at Victoria, Mo., where he kept a railroad eating house, in partnership with Mr. T. Espy. About a year later he went to Ironton and here became proprietor of another hotel, which he continued one season, after which he went to Olney, Ill. Here he again engaged in the hotel business, but growing weary of this he removed to Terre Haute, Ind., and after another season returned to St. Louis, where, with another party, for another season, he fed all the odds and ends of regiments that came to the city. He then left this place and went to Warrenton, Mo., where he again kept a railroad eating house for two years, and where he was made railroad brigadier quartermaster for a couple of years. During that time he went to Helena, Ark., and joined the First Arkansas Mounted Rangers, accepting the lieutenantcy as recruiting officer to St. Louis for that regiment. He went back to his home, at Warrenton, Mo., and the following season returned to St. Louis and kept a hotel. At that time (1866) the cholera was raging there, and he lost his wife, whom he had married when he was but twenty-one years of age, in New York State. This was a very severe blow to him, and for many years he mourned the death of his beloved companion. Mr. Beardsley then went into partnership in the real estate business with Daniel Dillon, who is at present judge of one of the circuit courts of that city. Mr. Beardsley finally left St. Louis and went to Mine La Motte, where for fifteen years he acted as superintendent of real estate. While there he married the widow of Prof. C. Y. Mason, of Libertyville, and with her lived happily for seven years, when he was again left a widower. After a time he began to look around for some one else to share his home and this one he found in the daughter of L. T. Cosby, of Spanish descent. Mr. Beardsley had known her as a little girl of six, when he was keeping the hotel at Victoria. In the meantime she had grown up and married Col. A. M. Tyler, of Binghamton, N. Y., and had been left a widow with one little boy, Bertie. Ahira J. Beardsley and Mrs. Emma Tyler were married in De Soto, Mo., in 1882. Two years after they lost their little boy, Bertie. About this time Mr. Beardsley became a stockholder in the first roller mill in Southeast Missouri, they being located at Marquand, Mo. Three years later he commenced their supervision, and is now sole proprietor. He was executive Democratic committee man for eight years and Congressional committee man two years, and was delegate to the judicial and congressional convention at two different times, and chairman of the county convention. It is seldom one finds a man who has changed his place of business and occupation as Mr. Beardsley has done, yet these changes have been a school to him, the advantages of which he has taken care to improve. The supplications made to him by men aspiring to political positions in the State are sufficient evidence that he is one of the influential Democrats of Southeast Missouri.

Hiram Berry, clerk of the circuit court and recorder of Madison County, Mo., of which he is a native, was born in 1847, and is the son of John and Elizabeth (Bess) Berry, and grandson of Hiram Berry, who was born in North Carolina in 1784, and is still living. He moved to Missouri in 1816, and to Madison County in 1821. He has been residing with his children since 1865, and notwithstanding his extreme old age is still in good health. During the summer of 1887 he walked one-half mile to church each Sabbath. His eldest son is seventy years of age, and he calls him "his boy Caleb." John Berry grew to manhood on the farm, and is the present owner of 200 acres of good land. He was born in 1821, and during the late war served faithfully in the Union army. His wife was born the same year as himself, and became the mother of ten children, seven of whom are living: Matilda (wife of J. Q. D. Whitener), Hiram, Cordelia (wife of James Higdon), Elizabeth (wife of Benjamin Baldwin), Jennie (wife of Newton Williams), Margaret (wife of Benjamin Wammack) and John P. Hiram was educated in the common schools, and in 1872 went to Bessville and began merchandising; but in 1879 he removed to Marquand, where he followed the same line of business, and also farmed and dealt in stock. In 1884 he settled two miles south of Fredericktown, where he owns 131 acres of land. In November, 1886, he was elected to his present position for four years. In 1866 he married Ellen C. Whitener, who was born in Bollinger County, Mo., in 1847. They have two children: Charles E. and Effie T. Mr. Berry is a Democrat, and a member of the A. O. U. W. His wife belongs to the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He served for two years, 1864 and 1865, in the Union army during the war.

Nathaniel J. Berryman, treasurer of Madison County, Mo., a native of North Carolina, born in 1832, is a son of James C. and Elizabeth (Lawrence) Berryman. The father was born in White County, Va., in 1806, and in his youth went to North Carolina, where he was married, and in 1844 immigrated to Missouri, and located in Wayne County. At the end of one year he moved to Fredericktown, Mo., and purchased a farm of 200 acres at Buckeye mines. He was county judge several years, and was one of Madison County's substantial citizens. He died in 1884. His wife, Elizabeth Lawrence, was a native of North Carolina, born in 1810, and died in 1845, in Wayne County. James C. Berryman afterward married Miss Matilda Baird, who also died. Mr. Berryman was the father of eighteen children, eight by his first marriage, Nathaniel being the second child. He attained his growth on the farm, and in 1858 went to California to seek for wealth, remaining in the Eureka State until about 1862. He then returned to Madison County, and during the war was not engaged in any enterprise. In 1867 he married Miss Carrie Newberry, a native of Madison County, born in 1842, and the daughter of Hon. William M. Newberry. To them were born four children: Teresa, James, Robert and Joseph. In 1869 Mr. Berryman was appointed postmaster at Fredericktown, and held this position fifteen years under Republican rule, he being a Democrat. In November, 1882, he was elected county treasurer of Madison County, and was re-elected in 1884. Mr. Berryman is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and K. of H., and his wife is a member of the Christian Church.

David Brewen (deceased) came to St. Francois County, Mo., when a young man, and followed mining at Mine La Motte for a number of years. In 1850 he abandoned the mining business and was elected sheriff, and re-elected two years later. At the expiration of his term of office he put up a grist mill, saw mill and a carding machine, about four miles southwest of Fredericktown. About 1862 his mills were washed away, and he moved back to Fredericktown, rented the old Golston mill (which he ran for about a year), then engaged in the saw mill and carding machine business at what is called the old Buckeye mines. He remained there about two years, and then sold out and engaged in the grocery business at Fredericktown. He again sold out, went to Arkansas and engaged in contracting or railroad work. He died March 27, 1874. His widow survived him until December 16, 1876. He was a Democrat in politics and a member of the Baptist Church. His wife was a member of the Christian Church. His son, T. M. Brewen, is a member of the firm of F. M. Tucker & Co., miners, who employ on an average fifteen men. They are working in double strata, forty to sixty feet below the surface, and output over 2,000,000 pounds of mineral per year. T. M. Brewen, a native of Madison County, Mo., born March 29, 1850, was reared and educated in his native county. He worked at milling with his father and was also engaged in farming. He began mining at Mine La Motte, April 27, 1872, separating ore, but soon after contracted on the Iron Mountain Railroad with his father for some time. He then came back to the first division of the old line of the railroad and took a wood contract. He then returned to Mine La Motte August 27, and was engaged the first two or three months in the mines, and then worked in the furnace for three years. He then went to St. Joe lead mines, where he worked two months and then returned to Mine La Motte, where he was shift boss in the furnace for about two years. Going to Colorado June 1, 1880, he was occupied in mining at Blue Bird Mine a few months, subsequently being engaged in the smelting works at Golden City for three months. December 20, 1880, he returned to Mine La Motte, resumed mining and smelting until November 15, 1881, when he was again promoted furnace boss, but the furnace blowing out October 21, 1883, he then went to Pilot Knob, following mining until January 4, 1884, when by the falling of the roof of the tunnel he was crippled and detained in the hospital at St. Louis ten months. Returning to Mine La Motte April 1, 1885, he began mining on his own account, and June 27, 1885, became a member of the firm of F. M. Tucker & Co., with which he is now connected. Mr. Brewen was married October 13, 1886, to Miss Hannah Knollhoff, a native of St. Louis and a member of the Lutheran Church. He is a Democrat, politically, and a member of La Motte Lodge No. 244, I. O. O. F., having passed through the chairs in the subordinate lodge and Mineral Encampment No. 68.

F. E. Bruce, Mine La Motte, Mo., manager of both general and drug stores, owned by Mr. R. Hazard, of Providence, R. I.

Robert A. Buckner was born February 17, 1842, his parents being Aylette and Martha Ann (Lacy) Buckner, who were born in Kentucky in 1793 and 1817, respectively. The father came to Missouri with his parents when about seven years of age. By occupation he was a farmer. Robert A. Buckner is their only child. He was born in Madison County, Mo., and attended the common schools of his native county, and later the Jones Commercial College and Wyneer College in St. Louis, graduating from the former institution. Shortly after leaving college he married Mary Ann Disinson, who died one year and five months after her marriage, leaving one son, Aylette, who is now a student of law. Mr. Buckner afterward married Minnie P. Vanhus, who is of French origin, and was born January 8, 1860. They became the parents of seven children, five of whom are living. Mr. Buckner farmed with good success until 1884, when he became county assessor, and his friends showed their appreciation of his efforts by re-electing him when his first term expired. He is the owner of 238 acres of good land, and his children are heirs to 472 acres more. Mr. Buckner is a Democrat in his political views, and an influential and esteemed citizen of the county.

Anton P. Budenholzer, farmer and miner, who resides in St. Michael Township, is a native of Madison County, Mo., born at Mine La Motte, in 1847. He is a son of Peter and Mary (Legemann) Budenholzer. The father was born in Germany in 1815, and when a young man immigrated to the United States, settling in Mine La Motte, Madison County, and here worked in the mines. He died in 1850. His wife was also a native of Germany, and died in 1880. She was the mother of three children: Anton P., John and Elizabeth (wife of Madison Baine). Anton P. was reared at Mine La Motte, and in 1874 he married Miss Treca E. Pingel, a native of Perry County, Mo., born in 1851, and the daughter of Anton Pingel. To this marriage were born six children: John, Frank, Katie, Mary, Tracy and Joseph. Mr. Budenholzer worked in the mines until 1877, when he bought forty acres one mile and a quarter north of Fredericktown, where he settled, and where he now resides. He has worked in the mines and has also looked after the interest of his landed estate since he settled on his farm, and is now engaged in mining. He is an industrious, hardworking man, and is much respected by all who know him. He is a Republican in politics, and has been school director for the past year. He and wife are members of the Roman Catholic Church.

Thomas P. and Samuel Buford, merchants, of Fredericktown, and members of the firm of Crow & Buford Bros., were born in 1862 and 1864, respectively, in Fredericktown, Madison Co., Mo., and are sons of Christopher Y. and Jane E. (Anthony) Buford. The father was born in South Carolina in 1816, and four years later he and his father immigrated to Madison County, Mo., locating at Mine La Motte, where the father worked in the mines. In 1839 Christopher Y. was married, and four children were the fruits of this union: William (who is now in Newport, Ark., engaged in farming), George C. (who is a merchant at Mammoth Springs, Ark.), Sonora (wife of M. C. O'Connell, who is engineer in De Soto, Mo.) and Cora. Mr. Buford was living at Mine La Motte when he was married, and he afterward located on a farm of 460 acres, four miles north-east of Fredericktown. In 1870 he came to the county seat, where he passed the remainder of his life. He followed farming and dealing in stock. He lost his wife, and on January 9, 1859, he married Miss Jane E. Anthony, a native of Madison County, born in 1837, and the daughter of William Anthony. Three children were the result of this marriage: Thomas P., Samuel and Nellie (wife of Robert P. Crow). Mr. Buford died in 1876. He was a Democrat in politics and a member of the Masonic fraternity. Mrs. Buford is a member of the Christian Church. Thomas P. was educated in Fredericktown, and also attended two years at the State University, at Columbia, Mo. Samuel was educated in Fredericktown, and at Washington University, St. Louis, Mo. In 1892 the Buford Bros. entered into partnership with their brother-in-law, Robert P. Crow, and have since been in business. They are young men of first-class business ability, and are meeting with good and well deserved success. They have an excellent stock of general merchandise, and are highly esteemed by all who know them. Both are Democrats in politics, and Samuel is a member of the Christian Church. The latter was married to Miss Lillie Lampher January 10, 1886. She is a native of Missouri, born in 1866, and the daughter of Geo. W. Lampher.

Benjamin Benson Cahoon, of Fredericktown, senior member of the law firm of Cahoon & Cahoon, was born July 7, 1846, at Smyrna, Kent Co., Del., of Scotch, Irish and English descent—a combination of sturdy, brave and energetic races. His common school education was limited, and in July, 1865, he commenced the reading of law under Hon. N. B. Smithers, of Dover, being admitted to the bar in the supreme court of the District of Columbia, May 27, 1868, after a highly creditable examination. Starting west to seek his fortune, he arrived at Fredericktown, Mo., August 5, 1868, without means, a stranger in a strange land, but with a determination that knew no failure. February 3, 1869, he married Miss Belle Le Compte, of Ste. Genevieve, a niece of the late Lewis V. Bogy, and a descendant of one of the old French families, who early settled in this section. Two girls and one boy have blessed this union, aged, respectively, eighteen, fourteen and twelve. During the war Mr. Cahoon, as a member of the First Regiment of Delaware Volunteer Infantry, participated in the principal battles of the Army of the Potomac under Gens. McClellan, Meade, Hooker, Burnside and Grant, and was wounded at Antietam and Gettysburg. In 1869 he was appointed county attorney of Madison County; in 1870 became circuit attorney for the Twentieth Judicial Circuit, and filled the position of responsibility with credit and honor up to 1873. Mr. Cahoon's present law practice is an extensive and lucrative one. His position in the professional world throughout Southeast Missouri is an established one, and his characteristics as a lawyer—familiarity with the fundamental principles of law, clearness of statement, and a thorough acquaintance with the facts in the case—render his conduct of legal causes highly successful. His library, legal and private, is well selected and extensive, and in its society he is often found. By numerous publications, setting forth the resources of Madison County, he has contributed liberally toward its development, no little credit being due him for this position in this matter. In his political preferences he is Republican. In 1870 he was one of the few initiators and leaders of the famous Liberal movement in Missouri, which resulted in the enfranchisement of the Confederates. His name has been repeatedly mentioned in connection with official prominence, but he has as often declined, though in political canvasses he is frequently found warmly supporting the candidates of his choice by public addresses, which he is often called upon to make. Mr. Cahoon has given much study to the development of natural means of water transportation afforded in the Mississippi Valley, and heartily favors of this great work being done by the general Government. He is a devout supporter of the Wood Local Option Law, which, largely through his influence, was successful in the late canvass in Madison County. His parents are members of the Methodist Church, while his wife and children are Catholics. He is a liberal supporter of all religious movements, as well as a friend of those enterprises tending to the benefit of his adopted home. By untiring devotion to his business he has accumulated a competency. His brother, Medford H. Cahoon, read law with him, and is now his partner.

Richard Paul Callaway, dealer in fresh meats at Fredericktown, and a member of the firm of Callaway & Mulleraman, was born in Madison County, Mo., in 1855, being the son of Power and Elizabeth (Berryman) Callaway, and the grandson of Peter Callaway, who was a native of Louisville, Ky. The latter, at the age of eighteen, and in the year 1800, immigrated to the Territory of Louisiana, and settled in what is now Madison County, at Buckeye Copper Mines, three-fourths of a mile from the county seat. He entered several hundred acres in that section, and was the first white man to settle in what is now Madison County. The entire country west of the Mississippi River was an unbroken prairie or a dense wilderness, teeming with Indians and wild animals. Power Callaway was born in Madison County, Mo., in 1820, was reared on a farm, and after mining for some years in Mine La Motte, he bought a farm three miles south of Fredericktown, and here died in 1875. He was county assessor at the time of his death, and had never resided outside of Madison County. He was a good citizen and a worthy pioneer. His wife, Elizabeth Berryman, was born in Madison County in 1829, and died in 1866. She was the mother of eight sons, Richard P. being the sixth. The latter was married to Miss Delia Shannon in 1881. She was born in 1861 in Madison County, and was the daughter of Dr. Henry Shannon. Four children were the result of our subject's marriage: Mary, Samuel, Annie and Valentine. In 1879 Mr. Callaway was appointed city marshal, and re-appointed in 1880. From 1881 to 1884 he followed agricultural pursuits, and at the last named date took a trip to Montana Territory, to search up a permanent location, but not being satisfied he returned in four months to his birthplace, with the firm conviction that old Madison County was good enough for him yet. In 1886 he was again appointed to the position of city marshal, and re-appointed in 1887. In February, 1888, he and John Mullersman established a butcher shop in Fredericktown, and are now meeting with excellent success. They are good business men, and furnish the market with first-class meat. In his political views Mr. Callaway is a Democrat, and he is a member of the I. O. O. F.

Alfred Campbell, farmer and stock raiser of Castor Township, was born in Madison County, Mo., in 1831, one mile from where he now resides. He is the son of George and Mary Ann (Stone) Campbell, and the grandson of Moses Campbell, who was a native of Virginia, and who, at the beginning of the present century, moved to Kentucky, and about 1825 came to Madison County, Mo., locating on a farm three miles east of Fredericktown, where he died about 1835. George Campbell was born in the State of Virginia in 1803, and was of Irish descent. He came to Madison County and here married (1828), and located near the old home place, but in a few years went to Webster Mines in Washington County. A few years later he returned to Madison County and bought a farm in Castor Township. He also owned a saw-mill which he operated for many years. He died in 1852. His wife was born in Tennessee in 1810, came to Madison County when young, and is still living. She was the mother of six children, four now living, Alfred being the eldest. During the gold fever excitement in the "fifties," Alfred Campbell, like many others, resolved to seek his fortune and obtain his share of the hidden wealth in California. Consequently, in 1852, he, with four others, went overland, five months being occupied in making the trip. After mining in the Eureka State for three years, he returned to his birthplace and purchased his father's old place of 120 acres. In 1860 he sold out and purchased 219 acres four miles east of Fredericktown, where he now resides. In 1872 he married Miss Lucinda S. McMurtrey, who was born in Madison County, Mo., in 1836, and who was the daughter of Martin McMurtrey. One child was born to this marriage named George William. Mr. Campbell is a Democrat politically, and his first presidential vote was for Millard Fillmore. He is a member of Lodge No. 172, I. O. O. F., a member of Lodge No. 116, Farmers' Alliance, and he and wife are members of the Christian Church.

O. K. Clardy, attorney-at-law and publisher of The Plaindealer, of Fredericktown, a native of Platte County, Mo., born in 1855, is the son of Dr. Erasmus S. and Mary M. (Ott) Clardy. The father was born in Kentucky, in 1825, and was of Irish descent. His father, Johnson B. Clardy, came to Ste. Genevieve, Mo., about 1848, and represented the people in the State Legislature. He was a merchant and farmer by occupation. Dr. Erasmus S. was about grown when he came into the State, and graduated at the Louisville Medical College when about twenty-three years of age. He was married in St. Francois County, and immediately afterward moved to Old Mines, in Washington County, where he commenced his practice. About 1851 he moved to Platte County, and located at Parkville, where he resumed his practice, at which he continued until his death, which occurred in 1888, while he was yet in the prime of life. He was a shrewd business man. His wife, Mary M. Ott, was born in New York in 1828, and was of Swiss origin. She is yet living, is a resident of San Antonio, Tex., and is an indefatigable temperance worker, having made temperance lectures in the South and West for the last twelve years. She is a very intelligent lady, being a graduate of the Albany Female College, at Albany, N. Y. She is an ardent advocate of prohibition, and has done much to promote the good work. She is the mother of only one child, the subject of this sketch. He was educated in the common schools of Missouri, and the public schools of Albany, N. Y., for four years, and also attended at Arcadia College for three years. In 1878 he began the study of law, his preceptor being Hon. John B. Duchouquette. In 1879 he was admitted to the bar at Fredericktown, and in August, 1882, he purchased the Platdealer, and has since been publisher and proprietor of the same at Fredericktown. Mr. Clardy is a live newspaper man, and the columns of the Platdealer are newsy and spicy. It is a Democratic paper. January 9, 1879, he married Miss Annie E. Roussin, a native of Madison County, Mo., born in 1858, and the daughter of Thomas Roussin. She is a member of the Catholic Church.

George Cook, farmer and stock raiser of Madison County, Mo., and a native of the State, was born in 1826, being the son of George and Anna (Limbaugh) Cook. The father was born in North Carolina in 1790, and came to Missouri in 1812, locating in Bollinger County, where he followed the occupation of farming. His wife was born in Missouri, and became the mother of eight children, six of whom are living. She was born in 1799, and died in 1876. George Cook, Jr., was married to Louraney Limbaugh, who was born in Southeast Missouri, in 1824, and by her became the father of eight children, only five of whom survive: Sarah, Mary C., Frances H. George B. and Pernicia A. Mr. Cook and family are members of the Methodist Church, and he is a Democrat, though not a partisan. His first presidential vote was cast for James K. Polk. He has an unusually intelligent family, and all are well educated. Miss Pernicia is a highly successful educator. George B. is married and owns a fine farm of 100 acres. He has one child, Grover C. Mr. Cook, the subject of this sketch, after giving liberally to his children, is yet the owner of 260 acres of good land.

Henry Cook was born in Pulaski County, Va., in 1829, and is the son of Henry and Mary (Feister) Cook. Henry Cook, Sr., was a native of Germany. He immigrated with his parents to the United States when a boy, and was reared and married in Virginia. His wife was also of German descent, and was well educated in the German language. She became the mother of eleven children, seven of whom grew to maturity. Henry Cook, Jr., is the fifth child. The father was born in 1779, and died in 1870. The mother was born in 1789 and died in 1859. The subject of this biography was married to Miss Martha Raines, at the age of twenty-eight. She was of English descent, born in 1839, and by Mr. Cook became the mother of ten children, six of whom are living: Matilda (wife of James Tesrow), Fannie (wife of Joseph Lewis), Robert Lee, John Newton, C. B. (wife of James Downs) and Samuel B. After leaving Virginia Mr. Cook resided for a time in Tennessee, and then came to Missouri in 1869, locating in Madison County. He owns 220 acres of land, 120 of which are improved, and in his political views is a Democrat. He and family are church members, and are among the intelligent and highly respected citizens of the county.

Dr. J. L. Covert, Sr., a citizen of Fredericktown, Mo., was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1828, and is the son of George and Esther (Basset) Covert, who moved to the city of Albany, N. Y., in 1829. The father was born in the State of New York, in 1802, and his parents were from Holland. He spent the earlier part of his life in Albany, but the latter part in Ithica, N. Y., where he died in 1875. He was an active business man, engaged in the manufacture of morocco, leather, etc., also engaging largely in buying and selling wool. His wife was born in the Keystone State in 1806, of English parentage. After living over fifty years together, they died within five days of each other. Dr. James was the fourth child born to his parents. He received his education in New York, where he also studied and practiced the profession of dentistry. In 1851 he went to St. Louis. In 1859 he was married to Miss Mary E., daughter of Judge Thomas Cooper, of Fredericktown, Mo. The same year he commenced merchandising at Ironton, Mo., and there continued till the battle of Pilot Knob was fought in 1864, at which time he lost a large and valuable stock of goods. To them were born four children, of whom only one is living—James L., Jr. In 1865 he went to Yazoo City, Miss., and opened up a general merchandise store, where he conducted his business for a number of years. In 1886 he returned to Fredericktown, Mo. The Doctor is now living a quiet life. He is a first-class citizen, and his wife is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Robert P. Crow, senior member of the firm of Crow & Buford Bros., dealers in general merchandise, of Fredericktown, Mo., is a native of St. Francois County, Mo., where he was born in 1853. His parents were Henry W. and Virginia (Moore) Crow. The father was born in the State of Virginia in 1804, and was of Irish descent. When a youth he went to Christian County, Ky., where he married, and afterward moved to Bloomington, Ill., where he engaged in merchandising. About 1830 he removed to Adair County, Mo., and he and his brother-in-law, John Moore, settled Osceola, and the town was called "Crow Town" for the first few years. About 1835 he moved to Farmington, St. Francois County, Mo., and again engaged in merchandising, Joseph Brady being his partner. Mr. Crow was judge of the county court a number of years, and held the position when the former courthouse was erected. About 1853 he moved to Libertyville, purchased a farm of 430 acres, and began his career as a tiller of the soil. He died in 1876. His wife was born in Virginia in 1818, and died the year after her husband's demise. Of their family of nine children, six are now living: Ellen, Lucy, Mary (wife of Jesse Jopland), William H. (farmer), John C. (also a farmer), and Robert P. The latter was educated at Libertyville and at Chester, Ill. At the age of twenty he entered the teacher's profession, and taught one term near Libertyville. In 1875 he was employed by Crow, Hargadine & Co., of St. Louis, wholesale dry goods merchants, and remained with them about eight years. In 1884 Mr. Crow came to Fredericktown, and established his present business, and is one of the leading merchants of Fredericktown. The firm of Crow & Buford Bros. are doing an extensive business, and have a first-class stock of general merchandise. In October, 1880, Mr. Crow married Miss Nellie Buford, a native of Madison County, Mo., born in April, 1862, and the daughter of Christopher Y. and Jane E. Buford. The father was born in Wilson County, Tenn., in 1814 and was of Scotch descent. He received his medical education at Louisville, Ky., and afterward commenced practicing at Aberdeen, Miss., but soon removed to Paducah, Ky. In 1855 he removed to St. Louis, Mo., and in 1857 to Hickory County, Mo., where he was residing at the beginning of the war. Being a sympathizer of the Southern cause he entered the Confederate army as a surgeon and devoted his services to the cause for four years. After cessation of hostilities he settled at Fredericktown, Mo., and continued in his practice until his death, which occurred in June, 1880. Dr. Donnell was a skillful physician and surgeon, and when he died the county lost a good citizen and one of its best physicians. His wife was a native of Logan County, Ky., born in 1813 and died in 1887. She was the mother of five children: Adelia (widow of Noah Williams), Mary L., Georgia A., Hattie B. (teacher by profession) and James G. The latter is the eldest child and was educated at Paducah, Ky. In 1855 he came to Missouri, and located at St. Louis, where he entered a real estate office, but failing health caused him to leave the city. He went to Southwest Missouri and was there at the breaking out of the war. In 1861 he enlisted in the Confederate army and fought at Lexington, Wilson's Creek, Carthage, Pea Ridge and Cold Camp. In 1863 he was captured, was taken to Syracuse and at the end of twenty-five days was paroled. He then engaged in teaching and followed this profession two years in Jefferson County, Mo. In 1864 he married Miss Mary E. Cole, a native of Jefferson County, Mo., and the daughter of A. H. Cole. Mr. Donnell resided in Jefferson County until 1868 when he sold out and moved to Fredericktown. He here bought and sold stock for nine years, doing a large and extensive business. He is a shrewd business man and has met with excellent success. Mrs. Donnell died in 1868 and in 1872 he married Miss Nannie Hill, who was a native of St. Francois County, Mo. To this marriage was born one child: Charles. Mr. Donnell lost his second wife in 1874 and in 1877 he married Mrs. Kittie J. Roberts, cousin of the first wife and daughter of W. L. Lemaster. In politics Mr. Donnell is a Democrat, and in 1882 he was elected county judge of the First District of Madison County. In 1884 he was elected to the Thirty-third General Assembly of the State of Missouri, was chairman of the committee on roads and highways, and served his constituents faithfully and well. He has always taken an active part in County, State and National affairs. In 1878 he commenced merchandising in Fredericktown and has since been engaged in the business. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, also of the A. O. U. W., and his wife is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

To them were born thirteen children, five of whom are still living. The mother was born in Johnson County, Ill., in 1834 and died in January, 1887. Mr. Estes is now engaged in merchandising in Hendrickson, Butler Co., Mo. Thomas F. Estes was born in Wayne County, Mo., was reared on the farm and educated in the common schools. In 1878 he went to Texas, where he married Miss Mattie E. Crenshaw, a native of Texarkana, Ark., born June 5, 1859, and who, by her marriage, became the mother of three children: Ellen L., Horace G. and Willie E. After marriage Mr. Estes returned to Missouri, locating at Hendrickson in 1879, where he has been engaged in merchandising and where he remained until 1886. He then went to Williamsville, Wayne Co., Mo., where he purchased a large store and again engaged in merchandising. While there he bought out the Williamsville Echo and there began his career as an editor. In January of 1887 he sold his store and with his printing press moved to Marquand, where he commenced the publication of the Marquand Echo, in connection with which he has become proprietor of one of the chief mercantile houses in Southeast Missouri. It is evident that he is at once an enterprising, energetic and successful business man.

James F. Fox, a successful agriculturist of Castor Township, is a native of County Cork, Ireland, born February 9, 1843, and is the son of Michael and Johanna (Pinn) Fox. Michael Fox was born in County Limerick, Ireland, in 1810, and was a farmer by occupation. He immigrated to the United States in 1850 and settled in Madison County, Mo., on the farm now owned by his son, James F. Michael Fox rented land for five years and in 1855 purchased the farm which contained 135 acres, and was called the "Old Spiva farm." Here he passed the remainder of his life. He was an excellent farmer and had one of the neatest farms in Madison County. He died November 23, 1865. His wife was also a native of County Limerick, Ireland, born in 1814, and is yet living, residing in Fredericktown with her two daughters, Mary and Emma (the latter being a teacher by profession). Mrs. Fox is the mother of eleven children, five of whom are living: Johannah (wife of Joseph Tessreau), Mary, Ellen (wife of Bernard O'Conner), Emma and James F. The latter was eight years old when his parents came to America. He was reared on a farm and educated in Madison County. In 1869 he engaged in teaching and followed that profession for three years. In 1872 he taught the first Catholic parochial school in Fredericktown established after the Plenary Council at Baltimore, ordering each parish priest to try and maintain a school in their various parishes. The school was under the supervision of the late Rev. Louis Tucker. Mr. Fox owns 285 acres of land and has control of the old home farm of 135 acres, paying his mother rent for the interest of the same. September 9, 1884, he married Miss Della B. Flynn, a native of Washington County, Mo., born in 1856, and the daughter of Thomas Flynn. Three children have been born to this union: Michael, Margaret Gertrude and Mary Ellen. Mr. Fox is one of the enterprising farmers of Madison County, and is highly esteemed by all. He is a Democrat in politics and his first presidential vote was cast for George B. McClellan in 1864. He and wife are members of the Roman Catholic Church.

Frohock, school commissioner of Madison County, and superintendent of the public schools of Fredericktown, Mo., is a native of Waldo County, Me., where he was born July 11, 1827, being the son of Jonathan and Lydia (Rhea) Frohock. The father was born in the State of New Hampshire, was of English descent, and a farmer by occupation. While still quite young he left his native State and went to Waldo County, Me., when it was a perfect wilderness. He here purchased a tract of land, made a home and was one of the first settlers in the county, also one of the best farmers. He lived on the same farm over sixty years. He died in 1860 at the age of seventy-five years. His wife was a native of Maine, was of French descent, and died in 1885 at the advanced age of ninety-eight years. She was for eighty years a consistent and exemplary member of the Methodist Episcopal Church and at the time of her death was the oldest member of the denomination in the State of Maine, if not in the United States. She was a niece of Gen. Putnam, of Revolutionary fame, and the mother of eleven children, five of whom are now living, Prof. J. L. being the youngest. He was educated at Kent's Hill Institute or Maine Wesleyan Seminary. At the age of seventeen he began teaching and followed this profession in the district schools in his native State for two years. He then went to Point Pleasant, Va., and established a seminary by voluntary contribution and was the superintendent of the same three years. In 1848 he became principal of the schools at Wellsville, Ohio, and after remaining there one year was called to Wheeling, Va., as superintendent of the public schools, and held that position three years. In 1852 he returned to Point Pleasant and after remaining there two years was elected to the superintendency of the schools at Wellsville, Ohio, which position he occupied nine years. In 1864 he was employed by the school board of Mount Carroll, Ill., as superintendent of their schools, and held the position two years. His next position was superintendent of the schools of Joliet, Ill., which position he occupied three years, and was then for three years general agent for the National Life Insurance Company of Chicago, traveling over Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and Iowa. In 1872 he returned to the profession of teaching and became superintendent of schools at Centralia, Ill., where he remained two years. The following seven years he was superintendent of the public schools of Mount Vernon, Ill. In 1883 Prof. Frohock came to Fredericktown, Mo., was employed as superintendent of public schools, and has since held the position to the satisfaction of the citizens of that city. In July, 1887, he was appointed by Gov. Marmaduke as school commissioner of Madison County, to fill out the unexpired term of J. E. F. Edwards. The Professor has been engaged in school work nearly his entire life, and it is only just to say that he has met with remarkable success wherever his lot has been cast. He has been almost constantly engaged in school duties for the past forty-four years and is one of the best educators in Missouri. In 1847 he married Miss Caroline Melissa Mahoney, a native of Waldo County, Me., born in 1831. She was educated at Belfast, Me., and commenced teaching with her husband soon after marriage. She has been assisting him at various times ever since, all her teaching comprising over twenty-five years. She is engaged in the profession at the present time and is a lady of culture, literary attainments and refinement. To Professor and Mrs. Frohock were born these children: Emily L. (wife of Thomas H. Hatch of Chicago), and Julian L. (teacher by profession and superintendent of schools at Ashley, Ill.). Prof. Frohock is a member of the I. O. O. F., a member of the K. of H., and has been a life-long Democrat in his political views.

In a few years Mr. Gregory went to Mine La Motte, and engaged in mining, which occupation he followed for many years. He was a soldier in the Mexican War, and was sergeant in Col. Lane's regiment. He was afterward commissioned captain as a recruiting officer, returned home and organized a company, but the war closed before he reached the field. He died in 1853. His wife was born in Madison County, Mo., in 1814. Her father, Thomas Craddock, was a native of North Carolina, who came to Madison County, and located at the Buckeye Copper Mines. He was a house carpenter by trade, and was one of the pioneer settlers of the county. Mrs. Gregory is yet living, and is the mother of four children living: Mary (wife of George P. Rogers), Sarah (wife of Mr. Austin), Felix G. and Bell (wife of Dr. L. J. Villars, of Fredericktown). Felix G. was reared and grew to manhood near the scenes of his birth. In 1861 he enlisted in the State Guards, and in January, 1862, enlisted in Company B, Second Missouri Cavalry, under Col. Green. He served four years, operating in Missouri, Arkansas and Texas. He was in the battle of Poison Spring, Pine Bluff, Fredericktown and Little Rock. He was wounded several times, but not seriously. He had the top portion of his right ear shot off in his native county. He surrendered at Shreveport, La. After the war he went to Texas, and began speculating in cattle. In 1867 he returned to his birth-place, and in February of the following year married Miss Hannah A. Anthony, a native of Madison County, born in 1839, and the daughter of William Anthony. Eight children were the result of this marriage: William, Mark, Hannah, Bertha, Lizzie, John, Charles and Mary. In 1871 Mr. Gregory established a milk dairy, one mile south of the county seat, and milks, on an average, twenty cows. He supplied the citizens of Fredericktown milk until 1886. In 1881 he established a livery, feed stable and bus line, which he has since conducted. He keeps twelve horses, four top buggies, two double buggies, two hacks, one bus and a hearse, the only hearse in the county. He meets all passenger trains, and has carried the mail for the past ten years. He owns thirty-eight acres adjoining Fredericktown. He is independent in his political views, and he and wife are members of the Christian Church.

Henry C. Hacker, farmer and stock raiser of Madison County, was born in New Madrid County, Mo., in August, 1854, and is the son of Stephen and Clara (Bravey) Hacker. Stephen Hacker was by occupation a farmer. When he first came to the State he settled in Mississippi County, but afterward moved to New Madrid County, where he died in 1858. He was married five times, Clara Bravey, the mother of the subject of this sketch, being his third wife. She was the mother of only one child. Stephen Hacker was the father of three children by his first wife, one by his second, one by his third and one by his fourth wife. Henry C. Hacker was reared in New Madrid County, and was also educated in that county. He was married in Mississippi County, to Miss Katie Maulsby, a native of New Madrid County, born in 1853, and a lineal descendant of Thomas Jefferson. She is the mother of four children: Louis H., Willie L., Clara B. and Glenda. Mr. Hacker moved to Madison County in 1884, and purchased his present farm of 100 acres, situated two miles west of Fredericktown. He is politically a Democrat.

Thomas N. Horn, manufacturer of wagons and plows, and general blacksmith, of Fredericktown, Mo., a native of Farmington, Mo., was born February 28, 1846, and is the son of William and Louisa (Cleveland) Horn, and grandson of Thomas N. Horn, who was born in Virginia, but moved to Tennessee, and in 1830 settled in Ste. Genevieve County, Mo., and afterward in St. Francois County, two and a half miles northeast of Farmington. He was a soldier in the War of 1812 and died in 1864. William Horn was born in Davidson County, Tenn., in 1815 and, at the age of thirteen, came with his father to Missouri, and settled in Ste. Genevieve County, where he was married. About 1845 he moved to St. Francois County and settled three and a half miles northeast of the county seat. For the past sixteen years he has lived nine miles southwest of the county seat. His wife was born in Louisville, Ky., in 1816, and died in 1859. Her father, Robert Cleveland, was a native of Virginia, and moved to Ste. Genevieve County about 1830. He was a captain in the War of 1812. Mrs. Horn was the mother of seven children—six sons and one daughter—five of whom are living at the present. Thomas N. was the third child born to his parents. He was reared on the farm and received a fair education in the common schools. At the age of nineteen he commenced learning his trade, and learned blacksmithing of his uncle, Dudley Horn, at Libertyville, plow manufacturing of E. L. Beard of Ste. Genevieve County, and learned the wagon and buggy trade in Neosho, Newton Co., Mo., serving an apprenticeship of four years. In 1870 he bought his uncle out at Libertyville and began business upon his own responsibility. In 1872 he sold out and located at Mine La Motte, Madison County, where in 1882 he again sold out, this time to his brothers, H. C. and F. M. Horn. He then came to Fredericktown, Mo., and erected a shop and has continued his business up to the present. Mr. Horn manufactures on an average forty wagons and forty plows per annum. He also does a large amount of first-class repairing. He is a skillful workman, and his work gives universal satisfaction. April 26, 1870, he married Miss Mary Heberlie, a native of Ste. Genevieve County, Mo., born October 14, 1849, and the daughter of Nicholas Heberlie. Two children were the fruits of this union: Harry and William. Mr. Horn is a Democrat in his political views and is a member of the I. O. O. F. encampment and subordinate lodge.

Mordecai A. Jackson, one of the old citizens of Fredericktown, Mo., is a native of Gallatin County, Ky., and was born in 1819, his parents being Mordecai and Nancy (Cook) Jackson. The father was born in Virginia, and was of Irish descent. In his youth he went to Scott County, Ky., with his parents; was married here, but soon moved to Gallatin County, Ky., being one of the first settlers of the same. He here passed the principal part of his days. He was a farmer by occupation. In 1837 he made a business trip to his brother-in-law, Nathaniel Cook, who lived at Libertyville, St. Francois Co., Mo., and while there died and was buried at that place. His wife was born in Scott County, Ky., and died in February, 1824. Her brother, Nathaniel Cook, came to Madison County about 1818 and entered the land where Fredericktown is now located. He gave the site for the county seat. John D. Cook, another brother of Mrs. Jackson's, was judge of the Tenth Judicial Circuit of Missouri, for a number of years. Mrs. Jackson was the mother of ten children, three of whom are living. Mordecai A., Jr., was reared on the farm, and was educated in the common schools. In 1838 he came to Missouri, and located in New Madrid County, where in 1845 he married Delilah Myers, daughter of Nathan Myers, and a native of New Madrid County, Mo., born in 1828. Two children, Missouri O. and Daniel C., were born to this union. Mrs. Jackson died in 1852, and in 1859 Mr. Jackson married Miss Mary Ann Emory, a native of New Madrid County, born in 1832. The result of this marriage was the birth of three children: Ida J., Edward E. and John M. Mr. Jackson located two miles west of New Madrid, and in 1859 purchased 160 acres ten miles southwest of New Madrid. He lived on this farm until 1870, when he moved to Fredericktown and purchased fifty-three acres adjoining the town. He now owns about 400 acres in New Madrid County, besides his home place near Fredericktown, and is a man much respected in the county. He has been a life-long Democrat in his politics, casting his first presidential vote for Martin Van Buren in 1840. In 1876 he was elected public administrator of Madison County, and in 1880 was re-elected, serving in all about eight years. He is a Master Mason, and he and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Nehemiah Johnson, brickmason and carpenter by trade, resides one and a half miles south of Fredericktown, Mo. He was born in Hardeman County, Tenn., in 1823, and is the son of Amos and Christina (Jones) Johnson. The father was also born in Hardeman County, Tenn., in 1797, and was a farmer by occupation. He left the State of Tennessee, and in 1844 started for Missouri, but died on the way, when half way between Cape Girardeau and Bloomfield, Mo., in Stoddard County, and here he was buried. He left a wife and six children, who came on to Madison County and located near Fredericktown. Mrs. Johnson died in 1876, at the age of seventy-seven years. She was born in North Carolina. Nehemiah was the fifth child. He and his sister, Charity, wife of John Coington, are the only ones living. Mr. Johnson received his education in Tennessee, came to Missouri with his mother, and in 1845 he commenced working at his trade. In 1850 he married Miss Martha Jane Matthews, who was born in Alabama in 1829, and who is the daughter of Thomas Matthews. Nine children were the result of this marriage, among whom were James, who is farming in California; Julius, who is in Colorado; Emma, wife of J. A. Russell; Franklin, who is a brickmason in California; Josie, and William, who is also in California. In 1850 Mr. Johnson purchased ninety acres of land, upon which he located in 1851. He now has 250 acres of land and has a good home. He has worked at his trade the greater portion of his life. Mr. Johnson is a Democrat in politics, is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and is an excellent citizen. He and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, he being a member for the past forty-four years, and she for twenty years.

Hon. J. Perry Johnson, attorney-at-law and senator for the Twenty-fourth District of Missouri, is a native of Covington, Ky., where he was born in 1835.

being the son of Jonathan and Sarah (Chase) Johnson. The father was born in Fauquier County, Va., and was of German-Irish descent. He was a ship builder and contractor on Lake Erie for a number of years. When young he went to Ohio with his parents, was married there, and in 1831 he moved to Covington, Ky., where he followed merchandising. His wife, Sarah Chase, was born in Delaware County, Ohio, in 1795, and was a second cousin to Salmon P. Chase, who was chief justice of the supreme court of the United States. She died in July, 1844. After her death Mr. Johnson broke up housekeeping, and when the Mexican War broke out he enlisted, and participated in the battle of Chapultepec, in which he was wounded. Soon after the war he started on a foreign trip, and died on the route in 1858. He was the father of four children, J. Perry being the only one living at the present. The latter was educated in the common and select schools of Missouri and Illinois, and attended St. Louis University, Jones' Commercial College, and Stewart's Mathematical Institute. At about the age of seventeen he commenced merchandising at Central City, and followed this occupation for five years. In 1859 he read law with Hon. Harvey K. S. O. Melveny, of Marion County, Ill., and the same year was admitted to the practice by the supreme court at Mount Vernon, Ill. He located at Central City, Ill., and remained there until 1861, when he removed to Chester in Randolph Co., Ill., and entered upon the general practice of the law at that place. In 1864 he was elected circuit attorney of the Second Judicial Circuit, which comprised Marion, Randolph, Monroe, Clinton and Washington Counties. He served four years. In 1863, the year previous to his election, he married Miss Mary C. Prine, a native of Chester, Ill., and to this union was born one child, John Flernoy, who is now residing in Marshall, Tex. Mrs. Johnson died in 1866, and in 1868 Mr. Johnson married Miss Abigail F. Prine, sister of the first wife. She bore him seven children: Alfred C., Mary E., Adeline C., Georgia A., Kate A., Ida J., and Blanch G. In 1876 Mr. Johnson was elector on the Democratic National ticket, and in 1881 he came to Fredericktown, where he has since resided. He is a staunch Democrat in his political views, and in 1886 he was elected senator of the Twenty-fourth Senatorial District of Missouri, representing the counties of Iron, Madison, Wayne, Reynolds, Carter, Butler, Ripley and Oregon. His term of office expires in 1890. He was on committees of corporations other than Railway—Criminal Jurisprudence, Enrolled Bills, and State and Swamp Lands. In 1887 Mr. Johnson and Erastus R. Lentz, of Poplar Bluff, Mo., became partners under the name and style of Johnson & Lentz, and now have offices at both Poplar Bluff and Fredericktown, but the principal office is at Poplar Bluff. They have an extensive law practice, and are able and influential members of the legal fraternity. Mr. Johnson is Past Master of the Masonic fraternity, and he and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

William Kassabaum, engineer of Mill Engine Dressing Works at Mine La Motte, Madison Co., Mo., is a native of Brunswick, Germany, and was born January 7, 1857. His parents, Christopher and Christina (Krone) Kassabaum, came to America when William was in his second year, and located in Mine La Motte, where the father engaged in mining, which occupation he continued until his death, which occurred January 5, 1869. William was reared in Mine La Motte, and commenced mining at the age of ten years. He afterward went to St. Joe, where he remained some time, and was also at the Cornwall Copper Works about two years, engaged in mining. When he was but fourteen years of age he fired and ran an engine, and about 1882 he commenced firing again. Two years later he became an engineer. He has been running his present engine since January 14, 1887. October 3, 1879, he married Miss L. Conner, who bore him these children: Albert, Maudie, Edmund and Carl. Mr. Kassabaum is a member of the I. O. O. F., of the A. O. U. W., and is overseer in the local lodge of the last named organization.

Reuben E. Kelly, who was born in Madison County, Mo., in 1824, was the son of Robert and Mary Magdalene (Grounds) Kelly. The father was a native of South Carolina, and died September 30, 1860, at the age of seventy-four years. The mother died March 30, 1820, at the age of sixty-nine. She was the mother of eight children, Reuben E. being the third child. He worked on the farm during boyhood, and, after attaining his majority, built a store and stocked it with general merchandise. He had a flourishing business at this for some time, but soon abandoned it, and returning to the farm, engaged in agricultural pursuits, which he has since followed. At the age of twenty-five he married Miss Lydia Berry, a native of Madison County, born October 20, 1830. By her marriage she became the mother of two children: Julia (wife of John H. Yount) and Thomas H. Benton. Mr. Berry, father of Mrs. Kelly, was a soldier in the Jackson War of 1812, or Black Hawk War, and is now living at the extraordinary age of one hundred and six, and is hale and hearty. His wife, Mary (Lincoln) Berry, died in 1870. She was the niece of the famous and honored patriot and statesman, Abraham Lincoln. Reuben Kelly is now the owner of ninety acres of land in St. Francois Township. Mr. Kelly is a Democrat, politically, and his wife is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. They are among the oldest and most respected families in Southeast Missouri. Their son, Thomas H. Benton, was born March 7, 1852, was educated in the public schools, and has since followed agricultural pursuits. He is one of the many industrious and intelligent young men of whom Madison County can boast. He is unmarried, and a Democrat, politically.

Thomas Walker Lewis was born in New Madrid County, Mo., March 7, 1841, and is the son of Warner and Margaret (Akin) Lewis. The father was born in Lexington, Ky., in 1810, and was left an orphan at an early age. He was then taken to New Orleans and was reared by his great-aunt, Martha Monroe. After reaching his majority he came to New Madrid, followed agricultural pursuits, and was here married to Miss Akin, a native of Cape Girardeau County, and of Irish descent. She became the mother of three children, of whom Thomas W. is the youngest. She died in New Madrid County, October 15, 1842, and Mr. Lewis then married Mrs. Emeline (Russel) Jarrett, who was the mother of one child by her first husband and six by her second. Mr. Lewis moved to St. Francois County in 1858, and located near Farmington, where he purchased a farm and there remained until 1873, the time of his death. His grandmother was a sister of the famous and revered statesman, Thomas Jefferson, and her husband was a descendant from the Indian princess, Pocahontas. It is said that in some of the descendants now living can be seen strong evidences of Indian blood. Thomas W. Lewis was educated in the common schools until twenty-two years of age, when he married Miss Caroline Sebastian, a native of St. Francois County, born April 19, 1845, and of French descent. Her parents are still living, and reside on the farm where the father was born. To Mr. Lewis and wife were born ten children, nine now living: Edward L., Thomas E., Mary A., Cora E., Emma L., Maggie B., Carrie M., Alberta A., and John W. Thomas W. Lewis is the owner of 195 acres of land one mile west of Fredericktown. He is a Democrat politically, and he and family are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Andrew J. McFarland, farmer, who was born in Madison County, Mo., in 1837, is a son of Arthur and Louisa (Morrow) McFarland, and grandson of John McFarland, a native of Virginia, who immigrated to Christian County, Ky., at an early date. Arthur McFarland was born in Christian County, Ky., in 1795, and was of Scotch-Irish descent. He left his native county and State in 1816, and began working at the Mine La Motte mines, but in connection with this followed farming until 1832, when he married Miss Louisa Morrow, who was born in the Territory of Upper Louisiana in 1810. Her father, Thomas Morrow, who was of Irish descent, was born in 1773, in Canada, and came to Missouri about 1797. He settled at St. Charles, and while there was married. In 1803 he moved to Farmington, Mo., and a year later he settled six miles southwest of St. Michael (now Fredericktown). He died in 1867. Arthur McFarland settled three miles west of Fredericktown after his marriage, and was occupied the principal part of his life in tilling the soil. He died in 1881. Mr. McFarland and Mr. Morrow were two of the pioneer settlers of Southeast Missouri, and especially Madison County. Mrs. Louisa McFarland is yet living, and has a remarkably good memory, relating facts with accuracy that occurred when she was a little girl. She is the mother of eight children, six now living: Andrew J., James E., Mary Jane, Martha Ann (wife of Bynum Maze), Eliza E. and Henry B. W. Andrew J. attained his majority on the farm, and in 1859 married Miss Sarah F., daughter of John M. Gholsen. Mrs. McFarland was born in the house in which she now resides in 1840, and by her marriage became the mother of two children—William A. and John G. Mr. McFarland has resided in his native county all his life, and has never lived over six and one-half miles from Fredericktown. He has made his home three years where he now resides. He is a very successful farmer, and now owns 195 acres of land. He is politically a Democrat, casting his first vote for J. C. Bell in 1860. He and wife have been members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South for the past twenty years. His mother has also been a member of the same church for forty years.

Edwin W. Marshall, farmer and stock raiser of Castor Township, and the son of James and Charity A. (Whitworth) Marshall, was born in 1851 in Madison County, on the farm on which he now resides. His father was born in Mecklenburg County, Va., in 1806, and when small, he and his father, Josiah Marshall, immigrated to Sumner County, Tenn., where James was reared. After attaining years of manhood he came to Madison County, and was here married in 1831 to Olivia S. Bennette, who died in 1843. She was a daughter of Joseph Bennette, who located three miles east of Fredericktown, where he became the owner of 275 acres of land. Of the five children born of this marriage three are now living: Josiah, Martha J. (wife of Francis M. Tidwell) and Sarah A. (wife of A. J. Gibbs). James Marshall was elected sheriff and collector of Madison County in 1838, and was also elected to the General Assembly in 1842. He was also elected county court justice in 1876. In 1846 he was married to Charity A. Whitworth, who was born in Madison County in 1826, and died in 1878. She was a daughter of Winston Whitworth, who was one of the early settlers of Madison County. By this second marriage seven children were born, three of whom are now living: Edwin W., Phoebe A. (wife of William C. Spiva) and Laura E. (wife of Walter Shields). Edwin W. was educated in the common schools, and was reared on the farm. In 1876 he was married to Miss Lizzie Gill, who was born in Wayne County in 1855, and reared in Madison County. She was the daughter of Leander S. and Margaret M. Gill. By this marriage four children were born: Nellie E., James L., Henry A. and Clarence E. Mr. Marshall has resided on the old farm his entire life, being the owner of 155 acres of land, and has never resided outside of his own county. He is a Democrat in politics, casting his first presidential vote for Greeley in 1872. He is a member of Saline Creek Farmers' Alliance No. 116, and he and his wife are members of the Christian Church, of which he has been deacon for the past six years.

Christopher C. Masters, farmer, of Madison County, Mo., was born in 1852, his parents being Andrew and Sarah (Hon) Masters. The former was born in Bollinger County, Mo., and was of German descent. He and wife became the parents of eleven children, nine of whom survive. The mother died in 1863. Christopher C. Masters was her tenth child. He was left an orphan at an early age, and was forced to earn his own living and live among strangers. He educated himself after he became of age. When twenty-seven he married Frances M. Black, who bore him three children: Armetia, Henry A. A. and Delia E. Mrs. Masters is twenty-eight years of age, and is a native of Madison County. Her father, who was of German descent, came to Missouri from Tennessee, but both her parents died when she was quite small. She and Mr. Masters have lived very happily together, and fully appreciate a home of their own. They located on their present farm in 1881. It consists of sixty-three acres, and lies three miles west of Marquand. Mr. Masters is an industrious farmer, and in his political views is a Republican. He and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

John J. Mathews, ex-county judge and farmer of St. Michael Township, was born in Tennessee in 1817, and is the son of Thomas and Jane (McDavid) Mathews. The father was born in South Carolina in 1783, and was a farmer by occupation. In his youth he went to Tennessee, and about 1820 he moved to Marion County, Ala., where he passed the remainder of his life. He died in February, 1837. His wife, Jane McDavid, was born in South Carolina, and died in 1836. She was of Scotch-Irish descent. Of their twelve children six are now living: William (farmer in Utah Territory), John J., Benjamin F. (in Southern California), Rosana (wife of Elisha Spiva), Martha J. (wife of Nehemiah Johnson), and Reuben W., who is in Jefferson County, Mo. John J. Mathews was reared on a farm, and in 1841 came to Madison County, Mo., where, November 22, 1842, he married Miss Mary P. St. Gemme in the house in which he now resides. She was the daughter of John B. St. Gemme, who was one of the early settlers of Madison County, and was born at her present home in 1825. Here she also died in 1884. She was the mother of eleven children: Mary Jane (Mrs. John D. Thompson), John B., Thomas (who died in 1879, at the age of thirty), Rose L. (Mrs. William Tesreau), Fanny (who died in 1887 at the age of thirty-three), Julia B. (who died in 1882, at the age of twenty-five, and was the wife of Anton Bruiger), Zella Julemar, Amanda Ellen, James H. (who died in 1862, aged one year), Eliza (died when an infant), and Cilace (died when an infant). In 1852 Mr. Mathews bought 157 acres of land on the farm formerly owned by his father-in-law. On this farm Mr. Mathews settled and there he has since resided. He has followed farming all his life, and is one of St. Michael's most esteemed citizens. He is especially known for his honesty and integrity. He is a Democrat in politics, and in 1847-48-49 was elected to the office of constable. In the fall of 1874 he was elected justice of the county court of Madison County, and was commissioned by Gov. Silas Woodson. He served his constituents faithfully and well for four years. Mrs. Mathews was a member of the Catholic Church.

Joseph T. Monell was born in St. Louis in September, 1859, and is the son of Archibald and Hester (Tarrigan) Monell, who were of English extraction. Joseph T. was reared and received his education in St. Louis, where he graduated from the Washington University in 1880, in mining engineering. He then went to the B. & C. Railroad coal region of Illinois, where he remained one year. He was then chemist of the Kansas City Silver Works. Later, he was manager of the smelting works at Desloge Lead Company for four years, and lastly came here to Mine La Motte, four miles from Fredericktown, Mo. For a year past he has been manager of the smelting works, and is a first-class business man and very highly respected by all connected with the mines. In 1881 he married Miss Nellie Giffhorn, of St. Louis, who bore him two children—a daughter and a son—Ida and Harry. Mr. Monell is a member of the American Institute of Mining Engineers, and also of other engineering and scientific societies.

William Newberry, salesman in the general store of W. L. Cohen, of Fredericktown, Mo., was born one mile from where he now resides in 1844, his parents being Hon. William and Gabrielle (Frier) Newberry. The father was of English origin, and was born in Kentucky in 1800. About 1790 three brothers came to the United States from London, and all settled in Kentucky. William, Sr., was from this stock. He was an attorney by profession, and in his early days followed the teacher's profession. In 1818 he came to Fredericktown, Mo., with his father, who was a physician and a graduate in London, and who was a man of considerable eminence in Southeast Missouri as a physician, having a practice of a radius of fifty miles. William, Sr., commenced the study of law while teaching, and after being admitted to the bar gave his entire time and attention to his calling. He was one of the leading men of Madison County, and held the following positions: Collector, treasurer, circuit clerk, probate judge and prosecuting attorney of Madison County. For thirty-six years he was constantly in office in Madison County, and during all these years not one stain or blot was ever attached to his name. His honesty and integrity were never questioned. He died in 1876. His wife was born in the State of Virginia in 1815, and was of English-German descent. She died the year following the death of her husband. In their family were thirteen children, six now living: Martha (wife of M. M. Kicks), Carrie (wife of N. J. Berryman, county treasurer of Madison County), Julia (wife of S. W. Chilton), Sallie (wife of J. C. Ramey) and Dr. Frank R. (who is the present representative of the county). William, Jr., was educated in the common schools and at Arcadia College. He was reared and grew to manhood on the farm, and at the age of twenty-one began clerking for W. L. Cohen, where he continued until 1880, when he was elected county collector of Madison County, and for four years served the people faithfully in that capacity. In 1885 he resumed his work with his former employer, and has since been engaged in the same business. October 3, 1866, shortly after the war, he married Miss Margaret Montgomery, a native of St. Francois County, Mo., born in 1848, and the daughter of Henry Montgomery. Four children were the result of this union: Harry, Frank, Albert and Wilbur. Mr. Newberry is a member of the Masonic order, and he and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Alexander Nifong, Sr., an old and highly respected citizen of Fredericktown, was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in 1808, and is the son of George Nifong, who was born in Davidson County, N. C., in 1783, and who immigrated to Missouri in 1805, and settled near where Marble Hill is now located. In 1818 he moved to Madison County, located one mile east of Fredericktown, and here purchased 160 acres of land. He died in 1873. He was one of the first white men to make a permanent settlement in what is now Bollinger County, Mo. He was the father of eight children, two yet living: Alexander and George W.

Alexander was ten years old when he came to Madison County, was reared on the farm, and at the age of nineteen commenced working for himself. In 1832 he married Miss Elvira Arnet, who was born in Madison County in 1814. She was the daughter of John Arnet, who settled in Madison County in 1814, one mile south of the county seat. After marriage Mr. Nifong commenced mining at Mine La Motte, but owing to the failure of his wife's health, gave it up at the end of four years. He purchased a farm one mile north of Fredericktown and began his career as a tiller of the soil. It was on this farm that Mr. Nifong lived until 1886, when he divided it between his two sons. His boyhood and youth were spent among the hills and vales of Madison County, and now, in the sunset of life, he sits musing over the varied and eventful scenes which pass in retrospect before his vision. He has lived to see the almost boundless forest, through which he in youth and early manhood hunted the deer and other wild animals, transformed into broad and waving fields of grain interspersed with farms and fine dwellings. Mr. Nifong lost his wife in 1869. He is the father of four children now living: Elizabeth (wife of Samuel P. Flemming of St. Francois County), William (an M. D. of Fredericktown), Pattie (wife of William Richie) and Alexander, Jr. Dr. William Nifong graduated at St. Louis Medical College in 1866, and has since been an active and successful physician and surgeon of Fredericktown. He was born in 1842, and in 1866 he married Miss Eliza, daughter of Col. William Anthony. Mrs. Nifong was born in Madison County in 1842, and to her marriage were born three children: Frank, Walter and Sylvester. Dr. Nifong is a member of the Southeastern Medical Association, and was a charter member of the same.

Thomas O'Bannon, collector of Madison County, Mo., was born on the old O'Bannon homestead about two miles from Fredericktown, in 1832. His father was born in Culpeper County, Va., in 1785. He was married to Lucinda Burdett, and about 1806 moved to Missouri, where he entered 640 acres of land. After his wife's death he married Mary Chilton, who was born in East Tennessee in 1798. She died in 1865. Mr. O'Bannon was a mason by trade, and erected for his own use the first brick house built in Madison County. He was a member of the Primitive Baptist Church for over sixty years. His death occurred in 1868. He was the father of fourteen children who lived to be grown, five of whom are now living. Thomas is his third child. His mother was Mary Chilton. Thomas was reared on a farm, and his educational advantages were very limited. In 1852, he and twenty-six other persons started for California to dig gold. They were ninety-seven days in making the journey. He met with very good success in his endeavors and returned home in 1856 and began hauling iron ore from Iron Mountain to Ste. Genevieve with ox-teams. At the end of one year he began working in the lead mines at Mine La Motte, but discontinued that work in 1859. In the winter of 1861 he purchased 140 acres of land in St. Francois County, and when the war broke out joined the Southern cause, enlisting in Company B Third Missouri Regiment, Mounted Infantry. He was in the service nearly four years, and was in the battle of Jenkins' Ferry and Hartsville, and numerous skirmishes. While in Kansas he was captured by Price, and was a prisoner at St. Louis, Alton and Rock Island. He surrendered at Memphis, Tenn., in June, 1865. August 30, of the same year, he married Margaret Sloss, who was born in Ralls County, Mo., in 1838, and died in August, 1880. They have three children living: Austin James, Maud and Marilin L. Mr. O'Bannon owns 120 acres of land, and resides in the house in which he was born. He is a Democrat, and in 1878 was elected county collector. He was re-elected in 1884 and again in 1886, thus showing his popularity as an official. He is a Mason and a K. of H.

V. A. O'Bannon was born in St. Francois County, Mo., December 13, 1855, being the son of William and Martha (Hunt) O'Bannon, and grandson of Elijah O'Bannon. The father was a native of Madison County, Mo., born in 1818, a farmer by occupation and of Scotch-Irish descent. To his marriage to Miss Hunt were born eleven children, eight of whom are now living, V. A. O'Bannon being the eighth. He was reared on the farm, and in 1880 entered the saw mill on what is now known as Twelve Mile. He remained in business in that place for about three years, and then removed the business from Twelve Mile to Big Creek. There he remained another three years, when he was burned out and entered business in still another place. He sold a portion of the planing mill here and moved the rest of his effects to Hot Spring County, Ark., on the Iron Mountain Railroad. He and his brother-in-law are going in partnership at that place and will operate saw mills as well as planing mills. Mr. O'Bannon was united in marriage to Miss Batie Rhodes, who bore him three children: Virgie May, Robert Edward and Emma. He is one of the stirring, enterprising young men of the community and the place may well regret his departure.

John M. Owens, railroad agent and operator at Marquand, Mo., was born in 1864 and is the son of Michael and Ellen (McDonald) Owens, who were born in Galway, Ireland, and Maryland, in 1833 and 1845, respectively. The father immigrated to America in 1849, locating in New York, where he followed the occupation of horticulturist. After a time he accepted a position on the B. & O. R. R. and traveled in various States until 1863, when he was married to Miss McDonald, and located in Irondale, Mo. He held a position in a smelting furnace until 1872, when he moved to Marquand and became track foreman of the Iron Mountain R. R. He and wife became the parents of fourteen children, twelve of whom are now living: John M., Mary, Michael M., Nellie, Maggie, Eugene D., Julia, Dora, Anastasia, Theresa, Patrick J. and Thomas. John M. Owens was educated in the common schools and in the commercial schools of Fredericktown. He commenced his railroad career in 1882 as a clerk in the road-master's office on the Iron Mountain road, and having previously learned telegraphing he accepted his present position May 8, 1883. December 29, 1887, he was married to Lizzie Schulte, who was born in Madison County, Mo. Her parents are residing near Fredericktown. Mr. Owens is also a notary public and is a young man of fine business qualifications. He is a Democrat, and he and wife are members of the Roman Catholic Church.

Edward and Samuel Peringer are the sons of Leonard and Eliza (Murry) Peringer, both of whom were born in Missouri, the former in 1822 and the latter in 1827. The father was a farmer by occupation and in his young days made several trips to California in search of gold, and his efforts were so amply rewarded that upon his death, which occurred April 9, 1882, he left a fine legacy to his family. The mother is of English and Scotch-Irish descent, and is now sixty-one years of age. Her parents were Edmond and Clarimond Murry, who were born in 1780 and 1787, and died in 1837, and 1863, respectively. Leonard Peringer and wife are the parents of one daughter, Eliza. Their son, Edward, was born in Madison County in 1861, and was educated in Fayette College, Howard County. After leaving college in 1881 he returned to the farm and has since followed agricultural pursuits and stock shipping. January 20, 1887, he was married to Lizzie Belkin, who was born in Madison County in 1866. Another son, Samuel Peringer, was born in Madison County in 1864, and was educated at Bellevue Collegiate Institute. For some time he has been engaged in farming and stock trading on the large farm of 900 acres, belonging to himself and brother, inherited from his father. On a portion of the estate rich lead ore has been discovered. The Peringer Bros. are Democrats. Mrs. Edward Peringer's parents, Jasper and Elizabeth (Hellaker) Belkin, were born in 1829 and 1838 respectively. They were both German and have been residents of Madison County since their marriage, and have a comfortable and pleasant home on the outskirts of Fredericktown.

Herman Priggel, foreman of the Mill Engine Dressing Works at Mine La Motte, Madison Co., Mo., is a native of Germany, born July 25, 1851, and the son of E. Priggel, who crossed the ocean from his native country to America when Herman was but one year old, and here passed the remainder of his days. He died January 3, 1885. He was an ore smelter by occupation. The subject of this sketch was reared and educated in Mine La Motte, and was employed in the dressing works at the age of fourteen or fifteen. He was first taken in the works in 1871, and has been foreman of the same to the satisfaction of all concerned since 1885. He is a worthy member of the Catholic Church, and is a Democrat in his political views.

Rev. Levi W. Revelle, farmer, of Castor Township, is a native of Cape Girardeau County, Mo. (now Bollinger County), born the 15th day of March, 1830, and is the son of John L. and Suannah (Row) Revelle. The former was born in Lincoln County, N. C., in 1802, and was of French origin. His father, Etheldred Revelle, was likewise a native of North Carolina, and in 1812 immigrated to Southeast Missouri and settled five miles from Marble Hill, where he passed his life. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, and was one of the first settlers of what is now Bollinger County. John L. Revelle was ten years old when he came to Missouri. He here grew to manhood, was married, and settled near where his father first located, and here he, too, passed his last days.

dying December 22, 1856. He was the owner of 320 acres of land, and was one of the solid, substantial farmers of Bollinger County. He was justice of the peace for a few years. His wife was born in Lincoln County, N. C., in 1808, and was of German descent. She died in 1887. She came with her father, John Row, to Missouri, when only four years of age. Mr. Row was a drummer in the Revolutionary War. Of the seven children (five sons and two daughters) born to Mr. and Mrs. Revelle, Levi W. was the third son. He was born and grew to manhood on the farm. At the age of nineteen he engaged in the profession of teaching school, and has followed this occupation continuously up to the present, with the exception of about four years spent in California. He has taught in Bollinger, Cape Girardeau and Madison Counties, and has met with marked success. In 1852 he went to California by overland, it taking him five months to complete the journey. He remained in this State until 1855, and while there engaged in clerking at $100 per month. At the latter date he returned to his native State, and one year later was married to Miss Elizabeth De Sha, a native of Madison County, Mo., born in 1835. To their marriage were born two children: Napoleon B. Revelle (died when two years old) and Josephine (wife of Filmore M. Hudson). Mr. Revelle purchased the farm where he now lives in 1856, and here he has since resided. He owned at one time 420 acres of land, but at present he is the possessor of 240 acres. About 1862 he commenced preaching the Missionary Baptist doctrine, and in 1865 was licensed to preach. In 1868 he was ordained into the regular ministry. His ministerial labors have been in the same counties as that of his teaching. He has had charge of from three to four churches, but for the past year he has done but little work, having no regular appointment. He organized Beulah and Union Churches in Madison County, and Friendship and Pleasant Hill Churches in Bollinger County. He is a Democrat in his political views, casting his first presidential vote for Franklin Pierce in 1852. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., of Fredericktown Lodge No. 172, and of the Farmers' Alliance, Lodge No. 116.

King David Rhodes, another enterprising farmer and stockraiser of Madison County, was born in Bollinger County, Mo., in 1830, his parents being Peter and Lizy (Smith) Rhodes. Peter Rhodes was born in North Carolina in 1770, and immigrated to Missouri, when that State was still a wilderness inhabited by bands of savage Indians, and when bears and other wild animals were numerous. He was married twice; his first wife dying, he then married Miss Lizy Smith, who became the mother of four children, two now living. Mr. Rhodes died in 1830, and his wife, who was born in 1808, died in 1883. His father, George Rhodes, came to Missouri among the first white settlers of this section, and his mother, Mrs. George Rhodes, while living in Bollinger County, at the age of seventeen, was scalped by an Indian. When the Indian approached the house she was alone, and seeing him, fled toward a neighbor's, was pursued, and after a sharp run of over a quarter of a mile, was overtaken and scalped but not killed. The Indian was pursued by friends of the young lady, and killed. She and her husband lived to a good old age. K. D. Rhodes, the subject of this sketch, worked on a farm while a boy, and at the age of twenty-two volunteered in the Union army and was made a member of Gen. Fremont's body guard. After this he entered the three years' service under McNeal and Maj. Wilson, and skirmished all over the west. During the war he married Miss Rowena Kinder, who bore him eight children, six now living: Margaret, Ross, Lizy, Martha, Rutha and Edward G. Mr. Rhodes is the owner of 190 acres of land in Sections 2, 3 and 5. He and family are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of which he is a class leader and is also a delegate to the annual conference at Sedalia, Mo. He is a member of the G. A. R. at Fredericktown.

Rev. Father John Rothensteiner, pastor of St. Michael's Church, Fredericktown, Madison Co., Mo., was born in St. Louis, Mo., January 17, 1860, being the son of John and Magdalene Rothensteiner. They are the parents of three children: Elizabeth, Rev. Father John, and Aloysius, all of whom are living. John Rothensteiner, Sr., was born in the Tyrole, Empire of Austria. He immigrated to America when a young man and located in St. Louis, where he afterward married. In 1860, taking with him his family, then consisting of his wife and two children, he returned to his native country, and with them spent four years among the wondrous scenes of his childhood and in the society of his earliest friends. His third child was born while on this visit, and in 1864, with this addition to his family, he returned to St. Louis, where he still makes his home and where he and his faithful companion are spending their declining years. Rev. Father John Rothensteiner, their second child and the subject of this sketch, attended school, first at the parochial school of St. Peter and St. Paul, St. Louis, Mo., and afterward at the Christian Brothers' College in the same city. After leaving the last-named institution he studied classics privately for one year under the tutorship of Rev. H. Groll, of St. Louis. The then youthful John Rothensteiner resolved to become a Catholic priest, and spend his life as a laborer in the vineyard of Christ; but before holy orders could be taken he must first add a long period of laborious study to the years already spent as a student. In 1875 he went to work with this end in view and entered the St. Francis Seminary, Wisconsin, where he spent eight years. His classical course, in which he had already made unusual advancement, he completed in three years; the next two years were devoted to the study of philosophy and the next three were spent in the study of the various branches of theological science. After having received deaconship at the hands of Archbishop M. Heiss, of Milwaukee, he returned to St. Louis and was ordained priest by Archbishop P. J. Ryan, May 25, 1884. He first officiated as a priest at Portage, Mo., where, for three months, he filled the place of Rev. William Rensman, who was then absent on a trip to Europe. On his return Father Rothensteiner was sent to Jackson, Cape Girardeau County, where he remained for two years. At that time a temporary vacancy occurred in St. Agatha's Church, St. Louis, which he was called to fill for four months. He was then sent to Riviere Aux Vases, Ste. Genevieve County, from where he was appointed pastor of St. Michael's Church, Fredericktown, Mo., where he still remains and is revered and loved by all his flock.

Joseph Schulte, judge of the first district of Madison County Court, is a native of Westphalia, Germany, where he was born in 1832, being a son of Anton and Antoinette (Willeke) Schulte. The father was also a native of Westphalia, Germany, and he and wife were both born the same year, 1801. The former was a miner by occupation, and in 1845 immigrated to the United States, locating in Madison County, Mo. Here he died in 1865. His wife died in 1860. Six of her children lived to be grown, and four are now living. Joseph is the second child. He was thirteen years of age when his parents located in Missouri. In 1850, he, in a company of about twelve persons, started on a perilous overland journey to California in search of gold. After making the trip successfully in five months and eleven days, he mined there for over three years, meeting with fairly good success. After his return to Madison County, Mo., in 1853, he resumed lead mining with his father, and followed this occupation up to 1871. Since 1872 he has been a resident of Fredericktown. In 1873 he and his two brothers, John and Frank, established a general merchandise store in the town and carry on an extensive business. He was married to Mary Belkin in 1857. She was born in Germany, and died in 1865, leaving two children: John and Lizzie (Mrs. J. P. Conley, of Fort Worth, Texas). In 1867 Judge Schulte married Kate Troube, who was born in Germany. They have one child, Katie. The Judge is a Democrat in politics, and in November, 1884, was elected to his present position, which he has since held by re-election. He owns 400 acres of land and a one-half interest in 720 acres, besides owning considerable town property. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., K. of H. and A. O. U. W. He was reared a Roman Catholic, but his wife is a member of the Lutheran Church.

Frederick Schulte, farmer of St. Michael Township, and son of Frederick and Hellena (Schumer) Schulte, was born in Westphalia, Kingdom of Prussia, Germany, in 1841. The parents were natives of the same place as that of their son. Frederick, Sr., was a school teacher by profession, and was highly educated, being a graduate of a university in the German Empire. He died in 1844, at the age of thirty-five, while yet in the prime of life. His wife was born in 1809, and came to the United States in 1847 with her son and her brother, Anton Schumer. She came at once to Mine La Motte, Mo., and in 1848 married Edocus Spickerman, who is also deceased. Mrs. Spickerman died in November, 1886. She was the mother of two children, one by each husband: Frederick Schulte and John Spickerman. The former was only six years old when he came to Madison County. He grew to manhood at Mine La Motte, and commenced teaming at the age of eleven. He followed this occupation until seventeen years of age, when he commenced mining. In 1866 he married Miss Louisa Sunderman, who was born in St. Louis County, Mo., in 1849, and who, by her marriage, became the mother of three children: Frank, Katie and John. Mrs. Schulte died in 1877, and in 1880 Mr. Schulte married Miss Annie Priggel, a native of Mine La Motte, Mo., born in 1859, and the daughter of Eberhart Priggel. Four children were born to this union: Hellen, Frederick, Joseph and Herman. In May, 1885, Mr. Schulte bought 280 acres of land one and a half miles east of Fredericktown, and in the spring of 1887, he located there and since that time has been a tiller of the soil. Mr. Schulte began life a poor boy, but by industry and hard work he has now a good home. He is making many improvements in his place, and will soon have one of the best farms in Madison County. He is a Republican in politics, and he and family are members of the Catholic Church.

John L. Settle, jeweler and stationer of Fredericktown, was born in Madison County, Mo., in 1861 and is the son of Henry and Mary Jane (Graham) Settle, and grandson of William Settle, who was a native of Murfreesboro, Tenn., born in 1809. He came to Missouri in 1833 and, after living one year in Bollinger County, moved to Madison County, and here in 1835 he and C. T. Graham erected a small church, now known as Big Creek Baptist Church. William Settle was ordained minister in 1839 and was soon appointed American Baptist Home Mission secretary as missionary of Southeast Missouri and North Arkansas. He labored in this good cause for five years, and while thus employed lived in Ripley County. In 1855 he became a missionary of the Southern Baptist Convention, through the Baptist Convention of Southeast Missouri. In 1868 he became pastor of Castor Church at Marquand and at Marble Hill. In 1870 he organized a church at Fredericktown and died the same year. Carter T. Graham, maternal grandfather of the subject of this sketch, was born in Tennessee in 1800 and came to Madison County in 1822. He was a Baptist minister and was called the "farmer preacher." He died in 1861. Henry Settle was reared in Madison County, on a farm, and was married in 1860. He afterward located near the old homestead where he remained until the spring of 1865, when he moved to Ironton and engaged in merchandising, but died the same year while in the prime of life. His wife was born in Madison County, Mo., in 1842 and was of Irish descent. She was the daughter of Rev. Carter T. Graham, who was a Baptist minister, as before mentioned. Mrs. Settle was the mother of three children: John L., Newton G., and H. Maggie (wife of John T. Bruce). John L. Settle remained on the farm until eighteen years of age and attended the district schools during this time. At the age of eighteen he went to Fredericktown and attended the high school at that place for two years. The following two years he attended William Jewell College at Liberty, Clay Co., Mo. At the age of twenty-one he entered the teacher's profession and taught two terms, one in Madison County and the other in Scott County. In 1885 he and J. L. Woolford became partners in the jeweler and stationer line in Fredericktown, and at the end of one year Mr. Settle sold his interest and went on a tour through the West "sight seeing," until he grew weary of this, when he returned to his birthplace and purchased the stock of Mr. Woolford. Since January, 1888, Mr. Settle has been conducting the business on his own responsibility. He was married January 31 of the same year to Miss Callie McCreary, a native of Tennessee, born in 1868, and the daughter of Robert McCreary. Mr. Settle is a Prohibitionist in his political views and he and wife are members of the Missionary Baptist Church.

John Starkey, farmer and stock raiser of Madison County, Mo., was born in Sevier County, Tenn., in 1824, being the son of Joel and Delaney (Whaley) Starkey. The father was born in South Carolina and participated in several Indian wars and also in the War of 1812. He was under Gen. Jackson at the battle of New Orleans and witnessed the death of Puckingham and the overthrow of British authority on American soil. His death remains a mystery, as the last that was heard of him was when he assisted in the removal of the Cherokee Indians west of the Mississippi River. It is supposed that he lost his life on that perilous expedition. He was the father of four sons and four daughters. His widow died at the advanced age of ninety-five years. Their son John was the first to leave home and brave the toils and dangers of frontier life in Missouri. He was married to Catherine Riding, who became the mother of seven children, four of whom are now living. She is sixty-six years of age and is hale and hearty. John Starkey, after giving each of his children a farm, has still 540 acres of land. He contributes liberally to all religious denominations and he and family are members of the Congregational Methodist Church. He served in the Union army during the late war and is one of the county's most reliable and honored citizens. Although his early educational advantages were limited, he has considerable literary taste and is an occasional contributor to one of the local journals.

John H. Townsend, farmer, of Madison County, Mo., was born in Logan County, Ky., in 1832, and is the son of George M. and Nancy (Williams) Townsend. The former was born in Kentucky May 7, 1797, and by occupation was a farmer and school teacher. His death occurred in Kentucky in 1841. His wife was born in the same State as himself April 17, 1802, and died May 30, 1876. She became the mother of eight children. Her son, John H., was the sixth child, and, with his mother, came to Missouri in 1841. He was educated in the common schools, and Arcadia College, in Iron County. June 4, 1856, he married Mary C. Sebastian, who was born in St. Francois County, Mo., June 24, 1833. Her father, Moses Sebastian, was born in Kentucky in 1807, and was a farmer by occupation. He was married five times; the first time to Margaret Santee, who was the mother of the present Mrs. Sebastian. She was born June 14, 1808, and died July 4, 1847. Mr. Sebastian died in Madison County, Mo., December 28, 1885. Mrs. Townsend is the mother of eight children: Margaret, George M., Nancy W., Edward B., Martha J., John F., Laura C., and William M. Three of the daughters and one of the sons are among the popular educators of Southeast Missouri, but Miss Laura is the only one now engaged in that work. Mr. Townsend is the owner of eighty acres of land, and in his political views is a Democrat. The family are members of the Baptist Church.

Francis Marion Tucker, of the firm of F. M. Tucker & Co., is a native of Perry County, Mo., born September 7, 1845, being the son of James F. Tucker, and the grandson of Francis Tucker, who was a native of Maryland. The family can be traced back to the time of Lord Baltimore. James F. Tucker was born in Perry County, Mo., May 1, 1812, and was there reared and educated. He married Mary Power, a native of Kentucky, and in 1851 removed to Randolph County, Ill., where the mother died May 8, 1863. The father died in Scott County, Mo., May 18, 1885. F. M. Tucker was reared in Randolph County, Ill., and received his education in Prairie du Rocher until the age of sixteen. He then worked for others at farming and saw-milling work, and on the Mount Carbon Railroad, in Jackson County. He was married in Perry County, Mo., January 19, 1869, to Miss Margaret P. Tucker, a native of Perry County, Mo., and daughter of Barney and Magdalen Tucker, nee McCouley. To Mr. Tucker and wife were born nine children, five now living: Mary Elizabeth, Agnes Elulia, Charles Henry, Clement Pius and Nina Mercedes. Mr. Tucker engaged in business with the firm of Moreau & Menard, and remained with them thirteen months, when the channel of the river was changed and his prospects destroyed there. He then went to Perry County in the spring of 1870, broken in health, and in September of the same year came to Mine La Motte, where he worked until August, 1871, at which date he removed permanently to Mine La Motte, and went to work for John Wingler & Co., contractors, on the cars. After that he went into the diggings and worked regularly for four years. He then commenced prospecting, and followed this continuously, except when need of funds compelled him to work by the day. He opened up his present business June 3, 1885. In 1888 Mr. Tucker purchased a farm of 222 acres in Castor Township, four miles east of Fredericktown and one mile south of the La Motte claim, on to which he moved on May 9 of the same year, and now, to use his own words, "I have settled down here among my friends and intend to devote the remainder of my life to the cultivation of my farm, the education of my children, and the preparation of my soul to meet its Maker whenever it pleases the Almighty and most merciful God to call me." His motto has always been to "trust like a child and strive like a man." Mr. Tucker is a Democrat of conservative principles, and is a member of the Catholic Church.

Louis J. Villars, M. D., and druggist of Fredericktown, Mo., is a native of Bonne Terre, St. Francois Co., Mo., born in 1825. He is the son of Joseph D. and Eleanor (St. Gemme) Villars. The father was born in New Orleans in 1786, and his father, Claud Joseph Villars, was a native of France and an officer in the French army. He immigrated to America, locating at New Orleans, and here passed the remainder of his days. Joseph D. moved with his mother to Ste. Genevieve, Mo., in his youth, and here was married. His mother was Mary Louise Valle, who was a sister of John Baptiste and Francis Valle, who, with John Baptiste Pratte and John Baptiste St. Gemme, were the original owners of Mine La Motte, in Madison County. John Baptiste Valle was afterward the owner of Valle Mines, in St. Francois County, and Valle Township, Jefferson Co., was named in his honor. Joseph D. Villars was the first agent of Mine La Motte. In 1820 he settled where Bonne Terre now stands, and was one-half owner of the lead mines at that place, which were being worked on a small scale. About 1827 Mr Villars returned to Ste. Genevieve, and about 1832 was appointed agent and superintendent of Mine La Motte. He moved his family there and was foreman for many years. He purchased eighty acres near Fredericktown, where he passed his last days. He was very successful, owning large tracts of land in various parts of this State. He died in 1865. His wife, and the mother of Louis J., was born in Ste. Genevieve, Mo., in 1794, and died in 1867. She was the daughter of John Baptiste Ste. Gemme, who was of French descent, a man of wealth and an early settler of the oldest town in Missouri—Ste. Genevieve. Mrs. Villars became the mother of two children: Dr. L. J. and Caroline (widow of Samuel C. Collier, who was an attorney, and who died in 1873). Dr. L. J. Villars received his literary education in the common schools and at St. Mary's College. At about the age of eighteen he began the study of medicine, and in 1849 graduated as an M. D. at the St. Louis Medical College. In the spring of 1850 he went overland to the Pacific coast to seek gold, it taking him six months to make the trip. He worked in the mines until about 1853, when he returned to his birthplace. He located at Pilot Knob and entered upon the practice of his profession. In January, 1855, he removed to Fredericktown, where he has, without interruption, continued his practice up to the present, a period of about thirty-eight years. In July, 1854, Dr. Villars married Miss Julia Gregory, a native of Fredericktown, born in 1836, and the daughter of Felix G. Gregory. To this marriage were born two children: Augustas D. and Louis F. In 1860 Dr. Villars established a drugstore in connection with his practice, which he has carried on ever since. The same year he had the misfortune to lose his wife. In June, 1873, he married Miss Bell Gregory, sister of his first wife, and one child has blessed this union, named Claud Joseph. The Doctor is a member of the Southeast Missouri Medical Association, and is a member of the Masonic lodge. He is a K. of H., a Democrat in politics, and his wife is a member of the Catholic Church.

Judge John Vinson was born in Madison County, Mo., February 13, 1839. He is a son of Thomas and Hannah (Oden) Vinson. The father was born in Tennessee, in 1805, and throughout life followed the occupation of farming. He immigrated to Missouri about 1828, and located in Madison County. His family consisted of nine children—seven daughters and two sons. Judge Vinson is their seventh child. He resided on the old home place, and assisted his father at farming until twenty-three years of age. He was a soldier in the Confederate army during the war, and was in numerous sharp skirmishes. He was a prisoner at Rock Island, Ill., when peace was declared. After his release he returned to his farm, and in the spring of 1867 was united in marriage to Miss Eliza Jane Hovis, who was of German and Irish descent, born in Madison County in 1850. Judge Vinson has filled the duties of his office with ability and credit to himself, and will be a candidate for re-election when his term expires, with everything in his favor for success. He is a Democrat in his political views, and is, perhaps, one of the most influential advocates of his party in the county. He and family are members of the Missionary Baptist Church, and he belongs to the Masonic fraternity.

N. B. Watts, county court clerk of Madison County, Mo., and a native of the county, was born in 1848, being the son of Reuben and Nancy (Sitzen) Watts. The father was also a native of Madison County, born in 1822, and followed the calling of a farmer and local Methodist minister. His father was born in Virginia in 1791. He was a captain in the War of 1812, and participated in the battle of Horse-shoe Bend. He enlisted in the war while living in Maury County, Tenn. In 1814 he moved to Madison County, Mo., where he died in 1845. Reuben Watts grew to manhood on a farm and was married in 1844. When about twenty-four years of age he entered the ministry, also continuing his work on his farm of 360 acres. In 1874 he organized the Congregational Methodist Church, which was the first church of the kind organized in the State of Missouri. He died in 1879. His wife was born in Madison County, Mo., in 1826. She is a daughter of John and Naomi Sitzes, who were North Carolinians by birth, and immigrants to Missouri in 1815. Mrs. Watts became the mother of nine children, three of whom are living: N. B., Mary J. (wife of B. F. Whitener) and Missouri C. (wife of M. D. Bess). The son, N. B., was educated in the common schools, and in 1870 married L. I. Whitener, daughter of John Q. A. Whitener. Mrs. Watts was born in Madison County in 1854, and is the mother of two children: Duty Sylvester and Minnie Bell. In 1870 Mr. Watts began merchandising in Marquand, continuing three years. He then farmed until November 1892, when he was elected county court clerk, and in 1886 was re-elected with no opposition. He is a Democrat, and a member of the Congregational Methodist Church, and his wife belongs to the Baptist Church.

Mr. Julius Webb, one of the principal land owners and farmers of Madison County, was born October 16, 1822, and is the son of Byars and Rebecca (Williams) Webb. The father was born in South Carolina in 1801, and died in 1863. He was by occupation a farmer and miller. At the age of four he moved with his parents from South Carolina on Broad River to Tennessee, and here passed his last days. He married Miss Williams, who bore him sixteen children, five now living. Julius Webb, the subject of this sketch, moved to Missouri in 1857 and has been in Madison County ever since. He first purchased eighty acres of land, sold that, and then purchased 320 in Polk Township. He was fortunate in finding on his last estate an almost inexhaustible amount of granite. The richness of the quarry attracted the attention of the public, and an Eastern Company purchased twenty-three acres of his farm, and are now quarrying granite on it. This is the largest granite quarry in Madison County, and one of the richest in Southeastern Missouri. On other portions of Mr. Webb's farm the granite resources are fully as great as in the quarry. In 1843, just after attaining his majority, Mr. Webb married Miss Amanda J. Martin, a native of Warren County, Tenn., born February 16, 1824. The result of this union was the birth of seven children—four sons and three daughters. The daughters only are now living: Alzena (now Mrs. Isham Teeters), Mary Elizabeth (now Mrs. H. J. Carr) and Margaret R. (now Mrs. Christ. Whetstone). During the late war Mr. Webb's sympathies were with the Southern cause, and true to his convictions he risked life for his principle. In 1861 he joined the Southern forces at Fredericktown, and took part in the Big River Bridge fight. He participated in the battle of Fredericktown, battle of New Madrid, Mo., Columbus, Ky., and was at the downfall of Little Rock. He was also in many minor skirmishes, and at the time of the final surrender was in Arkansas, and instead of going to surrender returned home to see his family.

Thomas F. White, farmer, of Fredericktown, Mo., was born in Hardin County, Tenn., in 1838, and is the son of James and Ruth (Snow) White. The father was born in Tennessee in 1809. In 1842 he immigrated to St. Francois County, Mo., settled five miles southeast of Farmington, on 160 acres of land, and there he now lives. His wife was born in Tennessee in 1815 and died in 1876. She was the mother of eleven children, nine now living. Thomas F., the fifth child, was but four years old when he came to Missouri. He was reared and grew to manhood on the farm. In 1865 he married Miss Mary Pool, a native of New Madrid County, Mo., born in 1849 and the daughter of C. Augustus Pool. C. A. Pool was born in Petersburg, Va., and immigrated to New Madrid in his twenty-fourth year. He married Amanda Herbert in 1846. She was the mother of nine children, of whom four are now living. Three children (one of whom died in 1872, named Emma) were the result of this union, two living: Lizzie (wife of J. W. Buchanan) and Amanda Snow. Mr. White resided in St. Francois County until 1865, when he moved to Mine La Motte and began working in the lead mines. This business he followed for thirteen years. In 1877 he bought sixty acres of land adjoining the town of Fredericktown, where he settled in 1878, and where he has since resided. Mr. White is a hard-working industrious man, and a highly respected citizen. He is a Democrat in politics, and he and wife and children are members of the Christian Church.

Daniel Whitener was born August 1, 1813, his parents being Henry and Elizabeth (Bollinger) Whitener, who were born in North Carolina, and were early immigrants to Missouri. There were no white settlers here at that time (1804), and the territory was inhabited by the Delaware and other tribes of Indians. Bollinger County, Mo., was named after Mrs. Whitener's family. By Mr. Bollinger she became the mother of twelve children, six of whom are now living. Daniel Whitener was married at the age of twenty-two years to Miss Margaret Bess, who was born in 1815. Six of her children are now living: Purney, Lydia, Martha, Hannah, Catherine and Lawson M. Mr. Whitener is the owner of 270 acres of land four miles east of Marquand. One hundred acres are in a good state of cultivation. He is a member of the Missionary Baptist Church, and his wife is a member of the Christian Church. They are highly esteemed citizens of the county, and besides their large farm, own considerable property in Marquand.

Henry Whitener, farmer and stock raiser of Madison County, Mo., was born in October, 1814, and is the son of Henry and Elizabeth (Bollinger) Whitener. The father was born in North Carolina, and was by occupation a farmer and miller. He moved to Missouri at an early day and settled in what is now Madison County. He was married to Miss Bollinger, and to them were born eleven children, six of whom are now living. Henry Whitener, Jr., was married to Miss Adaline Sites, and to their union were born fourteen children—seven sons and seven daughters—all but one living. These are: Sarah C., Mary Caroline, Barbara A., Elijah, Francis, John Henry, Pinkney G., James J., Elizabeth, Cassie Ann, Martha E., Raleigh and Susan Ellen. An unusual circumstance happened in this family in 1866, when three of the children were married the same day. Mr. Whitener has lived on his present farm for fifty years, and is the owner of 600 acres of land in Southeast Missouri. He and wife have been worthy and consistent members of the Missionary Baptist Church for over forty years, and are known throughout the county, as honest, enterprising citizens.

Noah T. Whitener, druggist at Marquand, Madison Co., Mo., was born October 5, 1852, and is the son of J. Q. A. Whitener and Mary (Bess) Whitener. The father was born in Madison County, Mo., in 1830, and is a farmer by occupation. His father was born in North Carolina, and immigrated to Missouri in 1802, where he afterward died. J. Q. A. Whitener was elected county judge in 1882. He owns a fine farm of 200 acres, and he and wife became the parents of two children: Noah T. and Leurina I. (wife of N. B. Watts). Noah T. Whitener engaged in the mercantile business in Marquand in 1872, but after a time discontinued that business and returned to farm life. After his return to Marquand he had charge of the postoffice, and at the same time studied pharmacy. In 1884 he resigned the office of postmaster to attend the St. Louis College of Pharmacy, and in the fall of that year engaged in the drug business in Marquand, at which he still continues. October 31, 1877, he was united in marriage to Mattie E. Gordon, and by her became the father of five children, four of whom survive: Stella, Flora, Myrtle and Gordon. Mr. Whitener is one of the popular business men of the county, and a gentleman of culture and refinement.

John B. Wilson, a farmer of Madison County, Mo., was born in Tennessee in 1832, and is the son of Jacob and Jemima Wilson. The father was a farmer by occupation. He came to Missouri and located in Reynold County, where he was killed at the beginning of the late war by robbers, it was supposed for what money he had in his possession. John B. Wilson came to Missouri with his father, and his boyhood days were spent on his father's farm. November 16, 1855, he united his fortunes with that of Miss Emeline Copeland, who was born in Tennessee in 1833. She became the mother of nine children, eight of whom are living: George M., Mary A. (wife of A. C. Holder), Jennie G. (wife of J. T. Sharp), Belle T. (wife of Edward A. Howell), Katie C. (wife of Lewis Burch), Sarah J., Eva and Ida. Mr. Wilson is the owner of 240 acres of land, and in his political views he advocates the principles of the Democratic party. His son, George M., was married in 1877 to Miss Parazida Richmond, and is the father of the following family: Effie, Maude, Sidney, Elsie and Homer E. Mary A. (wife of A. C. Holder) is the mother of two children: John M. and Hurburt M.

NEW MADRID COUNTY.

Judge Benton Akin was born in New Madrid County, Mo., May 29, 1831. He is a son of John Akin, a native of Ireland, who, when a child, came to America with his parents and located in North Carolina, where he grew to manhood and married Sarah Walker, a native of North Carolina. John Akin and wife removed to Missouri in 1808 and located in Cape Girardeau County, where they resided for twenty years. In 1828 they came to New Madrid County and settled on a farm near New Madrid, where they resided until the death of the husband on December 18, 1841. Mrs. Akin survived until September 20, 1865. John Akin held no office except that of justice of the peace while a resident of Cape Girardeau County. Judge Benton Akin is the youngest and only survivor of ten children—five sons and five daughters; but five grew to maturity—three sons and two daughters. He was reared on his father's farm and received a good education in the common schools, with one year at Arcadia High School. Soon after attaining his majority he purchased a farm adjoining his father's, which he still owns and cultivates. It consists of 435 acres of land under a good state of cultivation. In 1882 he formed a partnership with Mr. Parks and engaged in the hardware and general blacksmithing business. They carry a large stock of goods, and are also engaged extensively in manufacturing steel plows, for which there is a great demand. Mr. Akin served as presiding judge of the county court from 1878 to 1882, and proved himself to be a very efficient officer. In politics he has always been a staunch Democrat. In 1850 Judge Akin married Catherine Emory, a native of the county, and a daughter of Charles W. Emory. She died in 1858, and he afterward married Louisa Lee, also a native of New Madrid County. This wife died in 1864. In 1865 the Judge was united in marriage with Elizabeth Emory, a sister of his first wife. Two daughters have been born to this union: Ola R. and Amanda M. The Judge and wife are consistent members of the Methodist Church. He is a Master Mason.

John Alley, a substantial farmer of New Madrid County, Mo., was born in Howell County, Mo., on December 8, 1852. He is a son of Erasmus and Tennessee (Hensen) Alley, both of whom were born and reared in Tennessee. About 1843 Erasmus Alley settled in Howell County, Mo., and remained until after the war, when he removed his family to Arkansas, where he resided until 1886, when he came to New Madrid County, Mo. John Alley grew to manhood in Arkansas and came to New Madrid County when a young man, in 1877. Here in July, 1878, he married Leah Tyson, a native of Dunklin County, Mo., and a daughter of James Tyson, a native of Tennessee (now deceased). The latter's widow is living and resides in New Madrid County, Mo. When John Alley was married, he had no property except a team, but he rented land for several years and engaged in agriculture. In 1883 he purchased a farm adjoining the one on which he now resides, removing to his present farm in 1886. His farm contains 280 acres, of which 140 acres are under cultivation, with good, comfortable houses. To him and wife have been born four children: E. J., Emma C., Gertrude and John. Mrs. Alley is a member of the Southern Methodist Church. Mr. Alley is a Master Mason and also a member of the Agricultural Wheel.

John W. Arbuckle was born in Gibson County, Tenn., on September 15, 1881, and is a son of James Arbuckle, a native of Accomack County, Va. At the age of thirteen, James Arbuckle became a sailor, and remained on the ocean until he was thirty-one years of age, when he married Sally Henderson, also a native of Virginia. Soon after his marriage he removed to Kentucky, and remained there five years engaged in teaching school. He then removed to Tennessee, and, locating on a farm, resided there until his death in 1849. His wife died some time previously, in 1833. John W. grew to manhood on his father's farm, and on October 18, 1852, was united in marriage with Mary Smith, who was also born and reared in Gibson County, Tenn. In December of the next year he came with his wife to Missouri, and made a location in Ste. Genevieve County, on 320 acres of land, which he entered. He improved his farm and made it his home until 1878, when he brought his family to New Madrid County, and settled on his present farm in Lesieur Township. Mr. Arbuckle and wife have reared six children: Lucy Catherine (now the wife of William Richardson), Eleanor V. (wife of William Gilbow), Mary H. (wife of Jefferson Adams), Nancy A., Dr. Allen and John W. Mrs. Arbuckle died soon after coming to New Madrid County, October 21, 1876. Mr. Arbuckle is a Mason, an Odd Fellow and a member of the Agricultural Wheel.

George H. Baker was born in New Madrid County, Mo., on August 15, 1832, and is a son of Henry and Bezy (Adkinson) Baker. When George A. was a small child his father died, and his mother died when he was but eight years of age. He was then taken by Emanuel Summers, who gave him a home and provided for him until he was nineteen years of age, when he went to work for himself as a farm hand, receiving monthly wages. In June, 1862, he enlisted in the Confederate army, joining Company K, of Col. Bowen's regiment of infantry. He was in the service two years and two months, and participated in the battles of Shiloh, Baker's Creek Bridge, and all the engagements during the siege and surrender of Vicksburg. He was paroled soon after the surrender at the latter place and returned home. The following April (in 1864) he was married in Pemiscot County to Susan Ross, a native of New Madrid County and a daughter of Stephen Ross (deceased). After his marriage Mr. Baker rented land in Pemiscot County, on which he made one crop, then removed to New Madrid County and rented land until he purchased the farm on which he now resides, consisting of 240 acres with good improvements in Lesieur Township. His first wife died on October 17, 1877, leaving three children, viz.: Elizabeth (wife of Williams Akers), S. R., and Susie (wife of William Folks). On October 1, 1880, Mr. Baker married Mary Alvy, who was born and reared in Indiana. Four children have blessed this union: Thomas E., Bruce, Georgia and Mamy.

Seth S. Barnes, one among the enterprising and substantial business men of New Madrid, is a native of Ripley County, Ind., born on July 12, 1845. He is a son of Seth S. Barnes, Sr., a native of New York, who married Elizabeth Love, a native of Kentucky. After his marriage Seth S. Barnes, Sr., located on a farm in Ripley County, Ind., where he was afterward engaged in agricultural pursuits and stock dealing. He died in the spring of 1847. His wife died subsequently in Portsmouth, Ohio. When a lad of ten years, Seth S. Barnes, Jr., came to New Madrid County, Mo., and remained until 1859. On December 25, 1862, he enlisted in the United States navy under Commander James P. Foster of the steamer "Chillicothe," an iron-clad gunboat on the Mississippi River. Mr. Barnes served on this vessel until the close of the war. He participated in all of its engagements in the work of opening up the Mississippi. Out of 130 men that enlisted he was one of twenty-five who were mustered out of service, the others having been killed, wounded or discharged for disability. He was discharged at Mound City, Ill., in June, 1865, after which he located in Henderson County, that State. In September, 1866, he was united in marriage with Miss Laura Marston, a native of Henderson County, Ill., and a daughter of Nathaniel Marston. Mr. Barnes was engaged in farming in that county till the spring of 1872, when he returned to New Madrid County, Mo., and located on a farm in New Madrid Township, which he had purchased in 1869. In 1881 he removed to New Madrid and engaged in the mercantile business, and was also appointed postmaster, which office he resigned on account of poor health after serving two years. He sold a one-half interest in his store and, leaving the business to his partner, returned to his farm in 1883 and remained until 1886, when he returned to the city and again took charge of his store. On January 15, 1888, his store, merchandise and household goods, were entirely destroyed by fire, a loss of $8,000; but soon after he built one of the best business houses in the town, and now carries an extensive stock of groceries and implements. Mr. and Mrs. Barnes have four children: William, Charles, Mabel and Cora. Mrs. Barnes and three of the children are members of the Presbyterian Church. In politics Mr. Barnes has always supported the principles and measures of the Republican party.

Pleasant Bishop was born near Cape Girardeau, Mo., on February 18, 1820, and is a son of Henry Bishop, who was born and reared in South Carolina. The latter and four of his brothers served under Gen. Jackson in the war against the Creek Indians. After this war Henry Bishop went to Nashville, and from thence came to Missouri and located in Cape Girardeau County about 1815. Here he married Martha Mayo, a native of North Carolina, who came with her father, Samuel Mayo, to Missouri at the same time the Bishop family came. After his marriage Henry Bishop resided in Cape Girardeau County a few years and removed to Tennessee, settling near Meriwether's Landing, in Lake County, about 1823. In 1825 he removed his family to Scott County, Mo., and remained until 1834, when he came to New Madrid County and located on the Mississippi, where he resided until his death, in 1841. His wife survived until 1859. Pleasant is the eldest of a family of five sons and three daughters, who grew to maturity, and one of two who are now living. The other, Henry G., was born in 1822. Pleasant came with his parents to New Madrid County, and grew to manhood within five miles of Point Pleasant, his present home. In 1841 he married Mary E. Wright, a native of the county, born of English parents. She died in 1851, leaving one child, John H. (who married Miss Amelia A. Hunter, of New Madrid), now an attorney in New Madrid. After his marriage Pleasant Bishop settled on a farm, which he managed three years. He was then engaged successively in merchandising at Point Pleasant, merchandising on the river, overseeing a farm, merchandising in New Madrid, farming one year, merchandising at Point Pleasant, and farming until 1885, when, in January, he commenced his present business as proprietor of a general grocery store and private boarding house, which equals the average hotel. In 1856 he married Eliza Wright, a sister of his first wife. She died in 1860, leaving two children, Mary E. (widow of J. D. Timerman), and Ella (wife of E. S. Farmer, of Howell County, Mo.). Mr. Bishop married his present wife, Altha E. Harper, on June 19, 1862. She is a native of Kentucky, and a daughter of Henry H. Harper, also a native of Kentucky. To this union has been born one son, Edwin. Mr. and Mrs. Bishop are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Mr. Bishop is a Master Mason, having been a member of the Masonic lodge since 1847.

Daniels located in Tennessee, and remained there until the breaking out of the Civil War, when he removed his family to Illinois, and resided in DuQuoin until the spring of 1866. He then came to New Madrid County, Mo., and engaged in farming. At first he rented land, but in 1878 purchased the farm on which the subject of this sketch now resides. Mr. Daniels died here in the winter of 1885. His widow still survives. They reared to maturity a family of three sons and four daughters, of whom two sons and the daughters are living, all married except one daughter. James P. grew up on his father's farm, assisting in the work and attending school. He was married in November, 1880 to Miss Minerva Shy, a native of New Madrid County, Mo., and a daughter of Joseph Shy (deceased). After his marriage he still remained with his father, and since the latter's death has managed the farm in a very successful manner. He has 160 acres with about 100 under cultivation. To him and wife have been born two sons: Edgar R. and Louis J. Mr. and Mrs. Daniels are active members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

John A. Davis, a member of the firm of Mott, Davis & Co., at Point Pleasant, Mo., was born in Clermont County, Ohio, on April 16, 1835, and is a son of Enoch J. and Anna (Huling) Davis, natives of Indiana and Kentucky, respectively. Enoch J. Davis was in the produce and grocery business at Memphis, Tenn., previous to the birth of the subject of this sketch, and afterward located there with his family. In 1853 he removed back to Ohio, and was engaged in the dry goods business at New Richmond until the next year, when he went to Brandenburg, Ky., and remained two years, after which he returned to Memphis. He remained in the last named city engaged in business until his death in 1873. His wife died some time previously, about 1860. John A. Davis grew to manhood chiefly in Memphis, and spent his youth at school and in the store with his father, where he received a practical business education. While living with his parents in Kentucky, he cast his first vote for President Fillmore. In April, 1857, he located in New Madrid County, and was clerk and bookkeeper for the company that built the plank road between Point Pleasant and Clarkton. In 1861 he enlisted in the State Guards, and was assigned to the commissary department. In June, 1863, he was captured and taken to St. Louis, where he was confined in the military prison eleven months, when he was sent to Alton, Ill., and remained in prison there until the close of the war, when he was paroled. After the war he located at Point Pleasant, Mo., and clerked for Col. Ward on a wharf-boat about two years, when he and his father-in-law purchased the wharf-boat, and was engaged in merchandising about two years. In 1871 he established his present business, but sold only groceries until 1874, when he put in a general stock of merchandise. Mr. Davis' marriage with Helen Wood was celebrated on June 7, 1868. She is a daughter of J. M. Wood, of New Madrid County. To their union have been born five children: Will E., Elgie, Susie, Effie and John Medley. Mr. Davis is a Mason. In politics he is a Democrat, and was elected county judge in 1882 and re-elected in 1884. He has served as a member of the school board for ten years.

Hon. William Dawson, one of the most prominent citizens of New Madrid, Mo., was born in New Madrid County on March 17, 1848. His grandfather, Dr.

Robert D. Dawson, was among the prominent men who early settled in Missouri. He was a native of Maryland, where he grew to mature years and studied medicine. Having come to New Madrid about 1800 he was one of the pioneer physicians of the district, in which he practiced his profession until his death. Dr. Dawson was a member of the convention that drafted the first constitution of the State of Missouri. His son, Thomas H. Dawson, was born and reared in New Madrid County, and married Miss A. H. Laforge, a native of the county and a daughter of Peter A. Laforge. Peter A. Laforge was of French birth and parentage, and was an early settler of New Madrid. [A sketch of the Laforge family is given in another portion of this work.] After his marriage Thomas H. Dawson located on a farm in his native county, where he reared his family and still resides. For a short time he served in the Confederate army as lieutenant. William Dawson grew to manhood on his father's farm and in school. He is a graduate of the Christian Brothers' College, of St. Louis. During his last year of study in that institution he taught some, and after completing the course remained one year as a teacher, and in the meantime commenced reading law. Returning home, he was elected sheriff and collector of the county in the fall of 1870, and was re-elected in 1872. At the general election in 1878 Mr. Dawson was elected to represent New Madrid County in the Legislature, and was re-elected in 1880 and 1882. After serving three terms in the Legislature he was admitted to the bar in New Madrid, and engaged in practicing his profession. In 1884 he again entered the political field, and was nominated and elected to represent the Fourteenth Congressional District of Missouri in Congress. He made this race against one of the strongest and most prominent Republicans of the district, and was elected by a large majority, and afterward filled the position with credit to himself and satisfaction to his constituents. In New Madrid, on December 24, 1874, he was united in marriage with Miss Ella Hunter, a native of the county, and a daughter of William W. Hunter, one of the pioneer merchants of New Madrid. Mrs. Dawson was educated at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo. To them were born four children: Nellie, Thomas H. (who died in infancy), William and Birdie May. Mr. Dawson is a member of the New Madrid Masonic Lodge and is a Master Mason.

George Dawson, M. D., a physician and surgeon of New Madrid, Mo., was born in New Madrid County, on March 12, 1852, and is a son of Thomas H. Dawson [see sketch of Hon. William Dawson]. Dr. George Dawson grew to manhood in his native county, and secured a good education at the Christian Brothers' College, St. Louis. He did not, however, complete the course in that institution, but returned home and began studying medicine under Dr. Waters, now deceased, one of the leading physicians of Southeast Missouri. After reading one year he entered the Louisville Medical College in the fall of 1873, and graduated from that institution in the spring of 1876. After completing the course, he returned to New Madrid, and commenced the practice of his profession, which he has continued, and now has a large and increasing practice. He is a young man, of good habits and character, and keeps himself well-informed in the advanced ideas of his profession by reading carefully the medical journals and literature of the day. Dr. Dawson married, in New Madrid, in the spring of 1883, Mary D. Howard, a native of the county and a daughter of Judge Howard [see sketch]. Mrs. Dawson is a member of the Catholic Church. He is a member of the A. O. U. W., and is one of the examining physicians of his lodge. To the Doctor and Mrs. Dawson have been born three children: Agate, Thomas H. and J. Dooyne.

Edward De Lisle, a member of the firm of enterprising merchants, De Lisle Bros., with stores at Portageville, Point Pleasant and Gayoso, Mo., is a native of New Madrid County, born in October, 1850. He is a son of Eustice De Lisle, a retired farmer of Portageville, who is also a native of the county, born on April 12, 1822. The latter is a son of Eustice De Lisle, a native of France, who came to America when a young man, and married, in New Madrid County, Philine Pikey, also a native of France. Eustice De Lisle, Jr., grew to manhood in the county, and was married on March 4, 1844, to Clamans Meatt, also a native of New Madrid County. After his marriage he located on a farm in Portage Township, which he managed until 1880, when he rented the land and located in Portageville. His wife died on September 26, 1887. They reared a family of nine children to be men and women. They are Susanna (widow of Robert Warren), Edward, Louise (wife of James Fields), Alphonso (a merchant), Olieave (a merchant at Point Pleasant), Columbus (a farmer), Paralee (wife of Jack Lafont), and Ellen, a young lady at home. Edward spent his youth on his father's farm, and began business at Portageville about 1873, as successor of D. W. Harvey, in a general store. He commenced with small capital, but, having been very successful, has added to the capital stock from time to time. In 1878, his brother, Alphonso, became a partner in the business, and later another brother, Oliveave, also became a partner. They have three business houses, as stated above, and are doing a business of about $100,000 per year, and carry a good stock of merchandise at each point. In 1871 Edward De Lisle was united in marriage with Mary De Lisle, by whom he has three children: Jonah, Charles and Hattie. Mr. De Lisle is a Master Mason.

Thomas H. Digges, proprietor of the New Madrid, Mo., warehouse, is a native of Culpeper County, Va., born on June 13, 1841. He is a son of C. W. Digges, a native of Fauquier County, Va., who grew to manhood in his native county, and married Elizabeth McClannagan, a New York lady, after which he located in Culpeper County, Va. Later he returned to his native county, and resided until his death, at Warrenton, about 1870. He held the office of sheriff of his county one or more terms. Thomas H. remained with his parents until he attained his majority, and received a good education in the high schools. In 1867 he came to New Madrid, Mo., and, locating at New Madrid, was engaged as clerk on a wharf-boat for five years. In the spring of 1872 he was united in marriage with Lizzie Laforge, a native of the county, and a daughter of A. A. Laforge, one of the pioneers of Southeast Missouri. After his marriage Mr. Digges removed to Moberly, Mo., and engaged in the grocery business, which he continued until 1875, when he returned to New Madrid and engaged in his present business in the warehouse. He also owns a two-third interest in the New Madrid Milling Company. In politics he supports the principles of the Democratic party. In 1861 he enlisted in the Confederate army, and was assigned to the Fourth Virginia Cavalry, under Gen. Stewart, and was a member of the company known as the Black Horse Cavalry. For about eighteen months he was on detached duty as general's courier. He was in the following engagements: First and second battles at Manassas; Chancellorsville; Seven Days fight and Stewart's raid around McClellan's army. At the close of the war his colonel surrendered with Lee's army. Mr. and Mrs. Digges have three children: William L., Agnes and Lemuel. Mr. Digges is a member of the A. O. U. W. Mrs. Digges is a zealous member of the Catholic Church.

John Edmondson, one of the most prominent and substantial citizens of New Madrid County, is a native of the county, born on January 21, 1839. He is a son of James and Jane (Beavere) Edmondson, natives of Kentucky and Georgia respectively. James Edmondson was born about 1805. His father died when he was a boy, and his mother brought her three children to Southeast Missouri and located in New Madrid County. Here he resided until his death on June 13, 1858. At the time of his death he owned a good farm and several negroes. He was never an office seeker, and therefore, not an office holder. He and wife were both worthy members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Jane (Beavere) Edmondson was born about five years later than her husband and died on May 4, 1868. When a girl she came with her parents to Southeast Missouri, and was married on March 5, 1832. She became the mother of nine children, of whom four are living. John was the second child, and remained with his parents until their deaths. His boyhood days were spent in attending school and working on his father's farm. What education he received in youth, has been greatly improved by much general reading, close observation and contact with business, until he is truly a well informed man. When twenty years of age he began farming for himself, the first year on rented land; but the next year he purchased 300 acres of the 1,200 which he now owns. One-half of this land is under a high state of cultivation, the other is very valuable for its fine timber. Mr. Edmondson's success as a farmer is due to industry, economy and superior business ability. During the late war he spent a large part of his time in the Confederate army trading stock. On September 1, 1861, he married Nancy Ellis, a native of Scott County, Mo. She died having borne three children: James and Louey, and Catherine (who died when less than a year old). On the 29th of September, 1868, he married Clara Davis, a daughter of Joseph B. and Eliza (Bartlett) Davis, natives of Virginia and Georgia, respectively. When a boy, Joseph B. Davis came to New Madrid County from Virginia with his parents. Mrs. Davis located in New Madrid County when she was three years of age. Clara Davis was born in Stoddard County, Mo., on January 7, 1845. To her and Mr. Edmondson have been born six children, four of whom are living: Eddie, Ellic, Samuel and Jennie. Those dead are Emma and Albert. Mrs. Edmondson is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and, although Mr. Edmondson is not a member of any church, he is a Christian and a believer in the teachings of the Bible. He is a staunch Democrat, and is an active, enterprising, public-spirited citizen.

Joseph D. England was born in West Tennessee on the 8th of February, 1846, and is the son of William and Emily Ann (Powell) England. William England was born in East Tennessee on March 1, 1819. When young he followed the plow and after his marriage engaged at the trade of miller for five years. He then abandoned the mill and followed the trade of brickmason and farming together. Emily A. Powell was born in Virginia on March 2, 1818, and was married in East Tennessee, after which she went with her husband to West Tennessee, where she died in Gibson County in 1854. She was the mother of eight children—five boys and three girls—the subject of this sketch being the only survivor. Soon after her death William England moved to New Madrid County, Mo., and later married Abbie Wimp, who survives. One son was born to this union; he is still living, a farmer, near the subject of this sketch. William England died in 1858, after which Joseph D. remained with his stepmother about one year, when he went to live with an uncle, John Cole, and remained four years. He then returned to his stepmother's and remained about three years. During his stay with her he joined the State militia under the command of Col. Deal, in Company A, and served until the end of the war, when he returned to his stepmother's home. His marriage with Anna Colson was celebrated on December 16, 1866. She is a daughter of Charles and Lucinda (Winter) Colson. Her father served about eight months in the late war, when he was taken prisoner and remained in Alton prison eighteen months. After his release he returned to his farm in New Madrid County, where he died on the 1st day of November, 1879, his wife having died on November 9, 1869. Abram Powell, the grandfather of Joseph D., was a soldier under Jackson in the War of 1812. Annie Colson was born February 1, 1852. Her union with Mr. England has been blessed by the birth of nine children: Charles W., Amanda E., Daniel R., John T., Eliza L., Nora Ethel, Mattie Noble and James Isaac (twins) and Ollie May. James Isaac died July 30, 1886. After his marriage Mr. England rented land six years, then bought a farm and lived on it seven years. He then sold out and removed his family to Kansas, but became dissatisfied and returned to Missouri, where he bought a farm of 120 acres in New Madrid County, Mo., where he still lives. In his political views Mr. England is very liberal, and votes for the candidate he thinks will give the best service.

Dr. William E. Evans, a prosperous physician of Point Pleasant, Mo., was born in Fredricktown, Mo., on July 1, 1836, and is a son of Judge Edward Evans, a native of Kentucky, who came to Missouri when a young man, and was married in Madison County to Cordelia E. Collier, a member of a prominent family of that county. Judge Evans became a very prominent man in the county, and served as clerk and recorder of the circuit court for eighteen years, and also as probate judge for some time. His wife died in 1856, and later he removed to Point Pleasant, New Madrid County, and resided there until his death in 1873. Dr. William E. Evans grew to manhood in his native county, and spent his youth on the farm and in school. He attended a high school in Kentucky, and first studied medicine under the direction of Dr. D. P. Stark, a prominent physician of Mason County, Ky. In the winter of 1858-59 he took his first course of lectures at St. Louis Medical College, and graduated in the spring of 1860 from Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia. After completing the course he located at Point Pleasant, and has since very successfully practiced his profession. Dr. Evans first married Miss Cinda Woodard, a native of New Madrid County, and a daughter of John Woodard (deceased), one of the early settlers of the county from Vermont. This wife died in 1885, and the Doctor afterward married Miss Mattie Watson, of Jefferson City, Mo. Their nuptials were celebrated in September, 1886. To them has been born one son, William Watson, born on March 18, 1888. Dr. Evans is a Master Mason.

Mason H. Foley was born in Lyon County, Ky., on February 6, 1839. He is the son of Mason and Virginia Foley, both of whom were born, lived and died in Lyon County, Ky. Mason Foley was a soldier in the War of 1812, and was discharged on account of feeble health. He was a successful farmer and accumulated considerable property. His death occurred in 1856, when about sixty five years of age. His wife died about 1844, aged about forty years. She was a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Nine children were born to their marriage, of whom the subject of this sketch is the youngest and only survivor. His educational advantages were meager, but he has greatly improved the education received in youth by much general reading since reaching mature years. He remained at home until his father's death, after which he worked for wages for about three years, when he was engaged in farming for himself in his native county until 1861, at which time he came to Missouri and located in Pemiscot County on land that he purchased. Two years later he sold his property and returned to Kentucky, where he again worked as a farm hand until 1865. Returning to Missouri he located in Mississippi County, where for six years he was very successfully engaged in the timber business, running the timber down the Mississippi River to Memphis and New Orleans. Abandoning that business he came to New Madrid County and cultivated rented land for six years, when he purchased 120 acres of his present farm in St. John Township, on which he has made valuable improvements. On the 29th of September, 1861, he married Caroline Wilson, a native of Pennsylvania. She died in Lyon County, Ky., in 1864, when about twenty-three years of age, leaving one daughter, who died a little later. Mr. Foley married again on August 10, 1865, choosing for his wife Eliza Poe, who was born in Alabama, August 16, 1842. She is a daughter of Harvey and Nancy Poe, and was visiting in Kentucky at the time of her marriage. To their union have been born four children: Maud, Ella, Eura A., an infant (unnamed) and Ollie, all dead except Eura A. Mrs. Foley is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He is a member of the Wheel, and in politics is a very liberal Democrat.

Fielding K. Gullion was born in Graves County, Ky., on January 22, 1840. He is the son of William and Sarah Ann (Colter) Gullion, both natives of Kentucky. William Gullion was a very successful farmer, who removed from his native State to Missouri a short time before his death in 1844, in Mississippi County. He was about forty-five years of age at the time of his death. His wife also died in Mississippi County, Mo., in 1851, aged about thirty-five years. They were the parents of seven children, only three of whom are now living. Fielding K. was but eleven years of age when his mother died, and, his father having died previously, he lived with Wesley Brancomb two years, after which he resided with Benjamin Wimps about eight years. On the 14th of September, 1862, he was united in marriage with Sarah White, a daughter of John W. and Abbie (Bratcher) White. Mrs. Gullion was born in Mississippi County, Mo., on May 10, 1846. After his marriage Mr. Gullion located on his parents' old home farm, but in 1869 he removed to a farm on the river. Remaining at the latter about one year, he removed back to the old home and remained two years longer, when he again went to the river farm and stayed four years, when he leased a farm. Three years later he removed his family to the river farm and remained two years when he purchased his present farm of 200 acres in St. John Township, New Madrid County. To him and wife have been born eight children who are living: Sarah Matilda, James R., Charles F., John W., Jerry, Minnie C., Altha and Edwin; and four who are dead: George Franklin, Isaac, Oscar and an infant unnamed. Politically Mr. Gullion endorses and supports the principles of the Democratic party.

John E. Hart was born in New Madrid County, Mo., on September 11, 1844, and is a son of Pierce C. and Cecelia Hart, who early settled in the county, and died when the subject of this sketch was a child. John E. Hart and his sister are the only survivors of the family. The former grew to manhood in his native county, and was married in 1867 to Eliza Ford. After his marriage Mr. Hart rented land and engaged in agricultural pursuits until 1874, when he purchased a farm near Judge Riley's, which he still owns. In 1882 he bought the farm on which he now resides three and one-half miles north of New Madrid. The latter farm consists of 288 acres, with 188 under cultivation, with good buildings. Although Mr. Hart commenced with nothing, by working with untiring energy, practicing strict economy and using good management, he has acquired that financial success he so well deserves. His first wife died in 1870, and in October, 1874, he was united in marriage with Josephine Bassett, a native of New Madrid County. To them have been born five children: Ida, James, John, Lizzie and Josie. Mrs. Hart is a member of the Methodist Church. Mr. Hart is a member of the A. O. U. W. lodge of New Madrid.

Milton G. Hatcher, M. D., a druggist and physician of New Madrid, Mo., was born in Todd County, Ky., on October 14, 1840, and is a son of C. H. and Ann W. (Gill) Hatcher, both natives of Todd County, Ky. In 1856 the family removed to Illinois, and located in Madison County, where C. H. Hatcher died. Mrs. Hatcher is now residing in Kentucky. Milton G. grew to manhood in Illinois, and received a liberal literary education at Shurtleff College. He commenced the study of medicine in 1859 under the direction of Dr. Howe, one of the leading physicians of Bunker Hill, Ill. In 1860 he entered the Michigan University at Ann Arbor, and graduated in the medical department in 1863. After completing his course he commenced practicing his profession at Edwardsville, Ill., continuing until 1870. In the winter of 1870 he removed to Missouri and located at New Madrid, where he continued practicing medicine. Three years later he engaged in the drug business, and in 1874 abandoned his practice so far as riding was required, but continues to give prescriptions. He has a neat store, carries a full stock of everything in the drug line, including paints, oils, books, etc., and has a good business. The Doctor was married at Marine, Ill., on October 1, 1863, to Mamie Ferguson, a native of Illinois and a daughter of Col. John L. Ferguson (deceased). Her mother is still living. Dr. Hatcher is a member of the A. O. U. W. In politics he is a Democrat, and has served one term as mayor of New Madrid.

William S. Hollingsworth was born in New Madrid, Mo., in March, 1850, and is a son of Charles and Henrietta (Ehlin) Hollingsworth. Charles Hollingsworth is a native of Mahoning County, Ohio, from whence he came to New Madrid County, Mo., when he was twenty-four years of age, and remained until 1862. Returning to his native county, he remained three years, after which he resided in various places in Pennsylvania, Illinois, Kansas, Missouri and Kentucky; he is now residing near Water Valley in the last named State. He was married to his first wife in New Madrid County, Mo. She died when the subject of this sketch was six months old, having borne five children, four now living. About three years after her death, Charles Hollingsworth married Henrietta Minner, a native of Perry County, Ind. William S. had no advantages of schooling until he was thirteen years of age, when he was sent to school at Youngstown, Ohio. He studied diligently and secured a liberal education, having been promoted four times in one year. When about eighteen years of age he came to New Madrid County and located in Big Prairie Township, but previously he had learned the carpenter's trade under the direction of his father who was a carpenter, and for the next three years he worked at his trade in connection with some farm work. The five subsequent years were spent in traveling in Texas, Arkansas, Illinois, Indian Territory, Kansas, Missouri and Kentucky, working at his trade. Returning to New Madrid County he, for the next six years, was engaged in farming on rented land, when he purchased his present farm which he has greatly improved and made more valuable. He was married on August 14, 1878, to Emily E. DeWitt, a daughter of Jacob and Sallie Ann DeWitt. She was born in Illinois on February 13, 1856. They are the parents of three sons and two daughters: Cora Ann, Ira Jacob, Charles, William Edward and Sadie Emily. Mr. and Mrs. Hollingsworth are members of the Missionary Baptist Church. He is a Wheeler, and a supporter of the Democratic party. Mr. Hollingsworth has enterprise, and is making farming a success.

Judge James H. Howard, one of the most prominent citizens and business men of New Madrid, Mo., was born in Hardinsburg, Ky., September 11, 1824. His father, William Howard, was a native of Kentucky, where he grew to manhood and married Rhoda Atkinson, also a native of that State. Both parents died in Kentucky when James H. was a child. The latter located in New Madrid, Mo., in 1845, and worked at his trade, that of gunsmith, for nine years. During that time he had gained the confidence and esteem of the citizens of the county, who, in 1856, elected him sheriff and collector, and re-elected him at the expiration of his first term. Since that time Judge Howard has held many official positions of trust and honor, all of which he has filled with credit to himself and satisfaction to his constituents. He was county treasurer for several terms, and presiding judge of the county court for four years. In 1863 he engaged in the mercantile business, and built the block now owned and occupied by his firm. On the organization of the Agricultural Wheel in New Madrid County, this firm was selected to manage the Wheeler store, since which time they have built up a large trade and have an enviable reputation for fair dealing. Judge Howard has been three times married. He was first married in 1848, and his wife died a few months later. In October, 1850, in New Madrid County, he was married to Elizabeth Byrne, a native of the county. She died in May, 1865, leaving six children, all of whom are living. Judge Howard married his present wife, Mrs. Mary E. Phillips, on June 6, 1876. Mrs. Howard is an earnest member of the Catholic Church.

Luke B. Howard was born in New Madrid County, Mo., October 6, 1851, and is a son of Judge J. H. Howard [see sketch]. Luke B. Howard was reared at his father's home, and received a good education, which was begun in the common schools and finished at St. Vincent's College, Cape Girardeau, and the Christian Brothers' College, St. Louis. He spent about two years in the store with his father, and in 1872 located on his present farm, one mile north of New Madrid. He owns 290 acres, and an interest in 400 acres besides, most all of which he is cultivating. The farm is beautifully situated, and has upon it a good residence and one of the best barns in the county. November 23, 1874, Mr. Howard was united in marriage with Lena A. Dawson, a native of New Madrid County, Mo., and a daughter of G. W. Dawson, deceased. To them have been born six children, viz.: Anna, Lena, Mary T., Jennie, Dixie and Ruth. Mr. Howard is a member of the A. O. U. W. of New Madrid. His wife is a member of the Catholic Church.

Edward J. Hudson, proprietor of Hudson Hotel, New Madrid, Mo., is a native of Maury County, Tenn., born November 30, 1832. He is a son of Greenup and Mary (Dortch) Hudson, natives of North Carolina and Virginia, respectively. The parents removed with their family to Southern Illinois in 1839, and located on a farm in Massac County, where they remained until their deaths. Edward J. grew to manhood in Illinois, and learned the cooper's trade, at which he worked until the beginning of the Civil War. However, he had removed to Missouri in 1857. On June 22, 1861, he enlisted in the Confederate army as second sergeant in the First Missouri Infantry, under Col. John S. Bowen, with which he served until he was paroled, on May 22, 1865. He served on detached duty several times, and participated in the following engagements: Shiloh, Grand Gulf, Port Gibson, Nashville, Champion's Hill, siege and surrender of Vicksburg, Corinth, and all the engagements of the Georgia campaign with Hood and Johnson. He was wounded at the battle of Peach Tree Creek, in front of Atlanta, and was confined in hospital about six weeks, after which he returned to his company and was in the battle of Franklin and Fort Blakely, where the entire army was captured. Mr. Hudson made his escape by swimming to a Confederate gunboat one and one-quarter miles away. Returning home in August, 1865, he went to Fayette County, Tenn., and remained two years, engaged in merchandising. In 1868 he went to Pope County, Ill., where he followed his trade until 1873, when he came to New Madrid. Since then he has been engaged in merchandising and various other branches of business. In 1885 he purchased the house he now occupies and engaged in the hotel business. The house stands on the bank of the river, and is said to be the oldest one in the county. It is known as the Powell homestead, and stands on its original site. It has been repaired and received additions, but the old part, built of hewn cypress logs, is as sound as when first erected. Mr. Hudson was married on March 4, 1883, to Mrs. Anse Dell Hall, a native of Kentucky, who was reared and educated in New Madrid. Mr. Hudson is an ancient member of the I. O. O. F.

Judge Joseph Hunter, one of the most prominent citizens of New Madrid County, Mo., was born in Scott County, Mo., on March 10, 1823. He is a son of Hon. Abraham and Sarah (Ogden) Hunter. [A full account of the early history of the Hunter family is given in another part of this work.] Joseph Hunter, Jr., grew to manhood in his native county and came to New Madrid County in 1843, where he located, and in 1845 married Mary Dunklin. His wife died in 1846, soon after which he went to Louisiana and located on a sugar plantation, which he managed for nine years. Returning to Southeast Missouri in 1855, he was married in April, 1856, to Elizabeth Russell, of Cape Girardeau County. She was a daughter of one of the pioneer settlers of that county. She died in 1881, leaving two children: Sally (now the wife of Abraham R. Byrd of Jackson, Mo.), and Abraham (a young man at home). Upon his return from Louisiana Mr. Hunter located on a farm in Scott County, and was there engaged in agricultural pursuits until the breaking out of the Civil War. In 1862 he enlisted in the Confederate army, joining the Second Missouri Cavalry under Col. Robert McCullough, with which he served through the entire war. He participated in the battles of Middleburg and Farmington, Miss., Corinth, Fort Pillow and a great many lesser engagements, some twenty in all. During his service he was neither wounded nor taken prisoner. After the war was over he returned to New Madrid County, and married Emeline (Dunklin) Sherwood in August, 1865, a sister of his first wife and a daughter of William Dunklin, a native of Virginia and an early settler of New Madrid County. Mrs. Hunter was born and reared in the county. By his last marriage Judge Hunter has three children: Robert Lee, Emma and Jennie. He and wife are members of the Presbyterian Church.

L. Ferguson Hunter was born in New Madrid County on the farm where he now resides on August 2, 1851. He is a son of Samuel Hunter, also a native of New Madrid County, born in February, 1828. The latter's father, David Hunter, was one of the pioneers of the county. Samuel married Mary Ann Lewis, a daughter of Lilbourn Lewis, also one of the early settlers of the county. After his marriage Samuel Hunter settled on the farm where the subject of this sketch now resides. Here he reared his family and resided until his death on February 12, 1864. His widow still survives. Although there were but sixty acres of improved land on the farm when he located upon it, at the time of his death there were 600 acres under cultivation. He owned in all about 1,000 acres. He and wife reared to maturity a family of five sons and one daughter, all living and residing in New Madrid County. L. Ferguson grew to manhood on his father's farm, of which he has had charge since attaining his majority. He received a good education at Caledonia College, Washington County, Mo., which was supplemented by a commercial course at Christian Brothers' College at St. Louis. Upon leaving school he came home, and has since been engaged in agricultural pursuits. He owns about 500 acres of land, with 400 under cultivation. On November 22, 1876, he was united in marriage with Miss Eva Pack, a native of the county and a daughter of Dr. John Pack, now deceased. Their union has been blessed by the birth of three children: Shapley R., Samuel and Mary Ann. Mrs. Hunter is a consistent member of the Catholic Church.

Franklin D. Kimes was born in Giles County, Tenn., December 15, 1847, and is a son of George W. and Nancy (Lee) Kimes, both natives of Tennessee, the latter of Lincoln County. After their marriage they resided in their native State until 1850, when they removed to Missouri. They, however, soon returned to Tennessee and located in Weakley County, where they remained until the fall of 1859. Coming again to Missouri they located in Pemiscot County, where Mr. Kimes died on February 11, 1861. Mrs. Kimes remained in Pemiscot County until the fall of 1863, when she removed to Scott County, where she died in 1865. Directly after his mother's death Franklin D. came to New Madrid County, in which county and Pemiscot County he has since made his home. He was married in the latter county on February 23, 1870, to Sarah Wright, a native of Missouri, and a daughter of William Wright, who was born of English parents. After his marriage Mr. Kimes was engaged in farming in Pemiscot County for two years, when he removed to New Madrid County, and was farming alternately in the two counties, until 1879, when he located on his present farm in Lesieur Township, New Madrid County. He and wife have had six children: Ella, William F., David C., John P. (who died when three years of age), Edward E. and Jesse W. Mr. and Mrs. Kimes are consistent members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a Master Mason, and also a member of the Agricultural Wheel, being president of his lodge and one of the executive committee of the State lodge.

Capt. Michael Koch was born in Germany on the 20th of September, 1833, and when a young child came to the United States with his parents, Kilean and Catherine (Kemmer) Koch, both also natives of Germany. Upon coming to America they located at Canal Dover, in Northwest Ohio, on a farm, where the parents resided until their deaths, the father's in 1856 and the mother's in 1864. They were old at the time of their decease and were devout members of the Catholic Church. To them were born seven sons and two daughters, only four of whom are living. Michael Koch secured a good education mostly by studying at home. At the early age of fourteen years he left home and went to Cincinnati, and was employed as bell boy in the Gibson and Burnett Hotels for three years, after which he began steamboating as a cabin-boy, but was successively promoted to second and first steward, and for ten years ran on the different rivers in the United States. In 1861 he enlisted in the Federal army as a private, joining Company A, Twenty-third Indiana Regiment, and was in the service four years, three months and twenty-seven days. After the battle of Vicksburg he re-enlisted as a veteran, and was commissioned captain in July, 1863, in which capacity he afterward served. He participated in many battles, among which are Fort Henry, Fort Donelson, Shiloh, Jackson, Baker Hill, Champion's Hill, the siege of Vicksburg, the Georgia campaign and those of the celebrated march to the sea. At Champion's Hill he received a slight wound, and at Kenesaw Mountain was very seriously wounded in the back by the accidental firing of a shell in the Federal battery. After the war he went to New Albany, Ind., where he married on the 12th of August, 1865, Frances Ermann, a daughter of Frank and Elenora Ermann, natives of Germany. Mrs. Ermann died in her native land, after which Mr. Ermann came to the United States and settled at Haubstadt, Gibson Co., Ind., where he died. After his death, Frances went to New Albany, and lived with relatives until her marriage. Soon after they located in St. Louis, where Capt. Koch was engaged two years in the grocery business, but being unfortunate in business he came to New Madrid and was engaged in the hotel business for three years. He then rented land and engaged in farming, later buying the farm on which he now resides, it being some of New Madrid County's best land. In politics he supports the principles of the Republican party. He is an enterprising and highly respected citizen, and he and wife are devout members of the Catholic Church.

William La Plant, a prominent farmer and stock dealer, of New Madrid County, Mo., is a native of the county, born about 1833. He is the son of John B. and Esther (Branum) La Plant. John B. La Plant's parents were French people, who settled in New Madrid County, Mo., before the earthquake of 1811-12. John B. La Plant was a very successful farmer and a member of the Catholic Church. To him and wife were born five children, two of whom are living. William was the second child. His opportunity for securing an education was the same as all the old settlers of New Madrid County enjoyed, very limited, but what he did receive has been improved since arriving at mature years by desultory reading. He remained with his father until the latter's death on November 6, 1856, at the age of fifty-five years. William then began farming for himself, owning at the time forty acres of land of the tract which he now owns and which comprises 514 acres. He has worked hard to improve his farm, and has made a good home for himself and family. In the Civil War, during Price's raid through Missouri, he was a member of the Enrolled Militia. On the 11th of September, 1860, he married Elizabeth McHunot, a daughter of Machen McHunot. She was born in New Madrid County on November 15, 1843. The McHunot family were also early settlers of New Madrid County. To Mr. and Mrs. La Plant have been born eight children, of whom Thomas J., Robert L., John W., Richard and George W., are living. Those dead are Prude, Laura, and Elizabeth. Mr. La Plant is an energetic, enterprising citizen, and in politics supports the Democratic party.

Henry C. Latham, treasurer of New Madrid County, Mo., is a native of Montgomery County, Tenn., born on November 14, 1831. He is a son of Bryan Latham, who was born and reared in North Carolina, and married Mary J. Smith, also a native of the Old North State. Bryan Latham removed to Tennessee about 1824, and located in Montgomery County, where he resided until his death in 1864. His widow survived him several years, and died in 1882. Henry C. grew to manhood in his native county and came to Missouri in 1858. Locating at Point Pleasant he engaged as clerk in a drug store, in which he learned the drug business. He remained at Point Pleasant for six years, and in the meantime studied medicine under Dr. D. S. Newell. In 1864 he came to New Madrid and entered a drug store as prescription clerk, but the next year engaged in the business in partnership with Dr. Waters, with whom he remained several years. In 1874 Mr. Latham formed a partnership with Mr. Lewis, and engaged in the drug business, at which they have been very successful. They have a neat store and do a large business. Politically Dr. Latham is a Democrat, and was elected county treasurer in 1884, and re-elected in 1886. In 1861 he was united in marriage with Christine Lesieur, a descendant of one of the oldest families of New Madrid County. To them have been born three children, daughters, all of whom are at home. In religious faith the family are earnest Catholics.

Joseph Lafayette Leake was born near Jackson, Madison Co., Tenn., on March 13, 1836, and is the son of Josiah L. and Mary (Lee) Leake, both natives of Halifax, Halifax Co., N. C., who removed to Madison County, Tenn., soon after their marriage, and resided there until their deaths. They were members of the Baptist Church, and reared their ten children in a Christian home. Of the children only four are living: Frank (living near the old homestead in Madison County, Tenn.), Lucinda (widow of Robert Wilson, deceased, and a resident of Carroll County, Tenn.), Boliver (a farmer of Graves County, Ky.) and Joseph L. Joseph L. was the ninth child. He received a fair education in his native State, which has been improved since arriving at mature years by reading and business experience. In 1861 he left the home of his parents and came to New Madrid County, Mo., locating near his present home. He was the second man to enter land in this neighborhood, and the first to make his home here. Game was very plentiful, and the ground was covered with a thick growth of underbrush, so that he had to cut a road before he could get his horses to his home. He entered eighty acres of land, which he cultivated, when that was more profitable than hunting. He has been very robust, and is now one of the healthiest men in the county. On August 29, 1863, he married Mary T. Cash, a daughter of John and Emily (Jennings) Cash. She was born in New Madrid County, Mo., on March 12, 1840. Eleven children have been born to their union, five of whom are living; Mary Elizabeth (born December 29, 1867, now the wife of John Manning, of New Madrid County), Amanda Missouri (born February 4, 1870, now the wife of George Wilson, also a farmer of the county), John W. (born March 7, 1873), Ada Belle (born January 9, 1877) and Joseph T. (born October 13, 1883). Those dead are Elvira (born February 14, 1866), James B. (born July 29, 1864), Robert J., Jasper and Belle (triplets, born August 7, 1875) and Preston (born October 4, 1883). Mr. Leake, his wife and two eldest children are members of the Mississippi Baptist Church. In politics he is a Democrat. During the war he was a Union man, though all his relatives were in sympathy with the South, a number of them in the Confederate army. Early in life Mr. Leake formed a dislike for slavery, and ever advocated slave liberation.

Albert Lee was born in New Madrid County, Mo., August 16, 1840, and is a son of James Lee, who was born and reared in Kentucky, and married Jane Jackson, also a native of Kentucky. The young couple removed from their native State to New Madrid County, Mo., and located on a farm, which was their home until their deaths, the husband's on March 14, 1860, and the wife's on October 27, 1844. They reared a family of four sons and four daughters, all of whom grew to maturity. Four sons and two daughters still live, and all, except one daughter, reside in New Madrid County. Albert Lee grew up on the farm, and in June, 1861, enlisted in the Confederate army, joining the First Missouri Infantry as a private, with which he served until the war was over. He participated in the following engagements: Shiloh, Corinth, Grand Gulf, Champion's Hill, and all the battles of the siege and surrender of Vicksburg. Having been taken prisoner at the last named place, he was exchanged, and was with his regiment in the Georgia campaign. In June, 1864, he received a flesh wound through the left thigh in the battle of Kennesaw Mountain, which disabled him until October of that year. Joining his command at the beginning of the Tennessee campaign, he was in the battle of Franklin, where the regiment was so badly butchered that it was put on detached service and sent to Mobile. They were taken prisoners at Fort Blakely, in April, 1865, and were held two weeks at Ship Island, after which they were sent to Vicksburg, and exchanged. Soon after they were paroled at Jackson, Miss., when Mr. Lee returned home and engaged in farming. He located first six miles north of New Madrid, but in 1877 removed to his present farm, two miles from New Madrid, on the river. Retaining his other farm, he now has both under cultivation. On October 1, 1868, he wedded Rachel R. Emory, a native of the county and a daughter of Charles W. Emory, who died in 1867. To them have been born five children: James, Martha, Eugenia, Rutherford E. and Adaline. Mr. and Mrs. Lee are Methodists. Mr. Lee's sister, who resides with them, is also a member of that Church.

Conrad Leissler was born in Hesse-Darmstadt, Germany, in February, 1833, and is a son of George and Catherine Leissler, natives of Germany. George Leissler was a butcher, and died in 1842, aged fifty-six years. His widow died in 1849, at the same age. They were zealous members of the Lutheran Church. When young, Conrad Leissler learned the shoemaker's trade. In 1853 he left his home in Germany and came to the United States. He first located in Peoria, Ill., and began working at his trade, which he soon abandoned, and began working in a grocery store. He afterward lived in Cincinnati, Memphis and Cairo, engaged in stores as clerk. He finally located in Mississippi County, Mo., and for some time was engaged in farming on railroad land and working for wages. During the late war he served in the Confederate army as a member of Jeff. Thompson's State Guards, and was in the battle of Fredericktown. In the spring of 1866 he went from Mississippi County to New Madrid County, and cultivated the Stallcup farm for ten years, when he removed to his present farm in Big Prairie Township. His farm contains 240 acres, which was covered with thick timber at the time of his purchase. He has cleared it and made valuable improvements. In November, 1887, he was appointed justice of the peace of the township by the county court. In the winter of 1858 he married Mary Evans, a native of Mississippi County, Mo. She lived but a short time after her marriage, and in 1865 Mr. Leissler married Catherine Cooper, a native of Tennessee, who was brought when a child to Mississippi County, Mo. She died August 21, 1887, at the age of forty-seven years. Seven children were born to this union, six of whom are living: John C., Mollie C. (Mrs. Lafayette Riley), Louisa Cornelia, Albert, Florence and Luther. Benjamin died in his nineteenth year. On February 2, 1888, Mr. Leissler married Nancy E. Brown, widow of Marshall Brown, deceased. She was born in Marietta, Ga., January 25, 1844, and when young came with her parents to Stoddard County, Mo. She is a member of the Baptist Church. Mr. Leissler is a Mason, and a staunch Democrat.

Freman Lesieur, a retired farmer of Point Pleasant, Mo., was born in New Madrid County October 27, 1821. His father, Raphael Lesieur, was born in Canada in 1777, of French parentage. He was reared in Canada, and came to Missouri in 1798, locating in what is now Pemiscot County. Here he married Frances Gilbow, a native of Indiana, who was chiefly reared in Missouri. After his marriage Raphael Lesieur lived in Pemiscot County, but during the earthquake of 1811-12 the farm on which he resided sank and became part of a lake. He then removed to New Madrid County, and settled on a farm in the neighborhood of Point Pleasant, where he resided until his death, December 27, 1855. His wife died previously, in August, 1843. They reared to mature years four sons and two daughters, only two of whom are living: Raphael (of New Madrid County) and the subject of this sketch. The latter grew to manhood on his father's farm, and was married, March 12, 1843, to Permelia Barr, a native of the county and a daughter of Green Barr, deceased. After his marriage Mr. Lesieur purchased some land and opened a farm in Lesieur Township, New Madrid County. His wife died in June, 1861, and in October, 1862, he married Emma Till, a daughter of Judge John Till, deceased. She is a native of New Madrid County, Mo. Mr. Lesieur remained on the farm until 1873, when he removed to Point Pleasant, where he has since made a nice home for himself and family. He owns four farms, all comprising 565 acres, which he rents. He served as constable for thirty-two consecutive years, eight of which he was deputy constable. He has also served as deputy sheriff and assessor of the county. To him and second wife have been born two daughters: Emma (now the wife of Jesse Delisle) and Frances (a young lady at home), and one son, John (who is now attending the Southeast Missouri Normal School at Cape Girardeau). Mr. Lesieur is a member of the A. F. & A. M., and also of the I. O. O. F.

Lilbourn A. Lewis, a prosperous merchant of New Madrid, Mo., is a native of the county, born on October 4, 1843. He is a son of Lilbourn Lewis, a native of Albemarle County, Va., who went to Kentucky in 1813. He came to Missouri about 1830 and located in New Madrid County, on Lewis Prairie. After coming to Missouri he married Hannah R. Hayden, a native of Cape Girardeau County. He resided on his farm, engaged in agricultural pursuits until his death in 1876. Lilbourn A. Lewis grew to manhood on his father's farm, and has secured most of his education since arriving at mature years by reading and private study. In 1861 he enlisted in the Confederate army, joining Col. Bowen's regiment, First Missouri Infantry, with which he served until the fall of Vicksburg in 1863. During the most of the time he served as the colonel's orderly. After the fall of Vicksburg he joined Forrest's cavalry and remained with them until the fall of 1864, when he was captured in Lake County, Tenn., and held prisoner at St. Louis until almost the close of the war. Upon his release he returned home and was engaged in farming in New Madrid County.

until 1875, when he formed a partnership with H. C. Latham and engaged in the drug business, which he has continued. He also engaged in the hardware business in 1880, it being the first general hardware store in New Madrid; to this he added, the first of January, 1888, a stock of groceries. He carries a large and complete stock of goods and controls a good trade. He was married in Lake County, Tenn., on January 3, 1866, to Miss S. C. Merriwether, a daughter of A. G. Merriwether, a brother of Gov. Merriwether. She died in March, 1874, leaving two sons, L. G. and Winston. Mr. Lewis was married in January, 1878, to Miss Emma Laforge, a native of the county, and a daughter of A. A. Laforge. Two children have been born to them, Lottie and Freddie. Mrs. Lewis is a member of the Catholic Church. Mr. Lewis is a member of the A. O. U. W.

Thomas Martin, a substantial farmer of East Township, New Madrid Co., Mo., was born in County Down, Ireland, and is a son of Patrick and Mary (McDonald) Martin, both of whom were natives of County Down, Ireland. Mrs. Martin died on her native isle when the subject of this sketch was five years of age. She was the mother of four children, two of whom are living. Patrick Martin was a farmer, and immigrated to the United States in 1853. Locating in Oregon County, Mo., he remained until 1860, when he removed to Charleston, Mississippi County, and resided until his death, about 1875, aged eighty-five years. Early in life Thomas Martin began business life for himself as a farmer. In 1855 he left Ireland and came to America. Landing at New York City, he came west as far as Peoria, Ill., and remained four years, when he came to Missouri and again turned his attention to farming on land in Oregon County. After a short time he located in Charleston, Mo., and was engaged during the war in carrying the mail between that place and Cairo, Ill., making three trips per week. He then rented land and engaged in agricultural pursuits, and eleven years later purchased the farm on which he now resides, consisting of 160 acres, which he has since cleared and improved. On May 3, 1863, he married Johanna (Sullivan) Long, who was born near Cork, Ireland. When fourteen years of age she came with relatives to the United States. She resided in Rochester, N. Y., for several years. There she married John Long, a railroad workman, who, after residing in several places, removed to Charleston, Mo. To Mr. and Mrs. Martin have been born two sons, William Patrick and Thomas Cornelius, who died at the ages of five and eleven, respectively. Mr. Martin and wife are members of the Catholic Church. He is a staunch Democrat and a member of the Wheel.

Arthur G. Mathewson, an enterprising and prosperous merchant of the firm of Mathewson & Co., New Madrid, Mo., was born in Providence, R. I., on March 16, 1851. He is a son of Charles E. A. and Eliza (Gilbert) Mathewson, natives of Rhode Island and New York, respectively. Charles E. A. Mathewson served through the late war as orderly sergeant in the Fifth Rhode Island Infantry, and participated in all the engagements of his regiment. Both he and his wife died in Rhode Island. Arthur G. remained in his native city until he was sixteen years of age, and had the advantages of its schools. In 1867 he went to Ohio, and spent about three years on a farm in Warren and Greene Counties. In the fall of 1869 he went via St. Louis to Arkansas, where he spent the winter of 1869-70. In the spring of 1870 he came to New Madrid, and was engaged on a farm and as clerk in a store until 1873, when he was appointed deputy postmaster, which position he held until 1874, when he went to Jackson, Mo., and remained three years clerking in a store. Returning to New Madrid in 1877, he was married on February 14 of the next year to Lizzie Roth, a native of the county, and a daughter of Jacob Roth, deceased. Upon his return he took his old position as assistant postmaster, and also established the Southeast Chronicle, which paper he published about three years, serving in the postoffice until September 15, 1884. He then, in partnership with Joseph Hunter, purchased his present business, in which he carries a large stock of furniture, lumber, shingles, brick, and also conducts an undertaking business. Mr. Mathewson united with the Presbyterian Church in 1874, and has since been elected one of the ruling elders of the church. His wife is a member of the same church. He is a member of the A. O. U. W., and has twice represented his lodge in the Grand Lodge of Missouri. To him and wife have been born four children: Truman (who died when one year and fifty weeks old), Mabel, Harriet Pearl and Gilbert Roth. Politically Mr. Mathewson is a Democrat, and was elected school commissioner in 1887.

Olieave Meatt, a prosperous farmer and stock raiser of Lesieur Township,

New Madrid Co., Mo., is a native of the county, born on March 15, 1846. He is a son of Edward Meatt, also a native of New Madrid County. The latter's father, Job Meatt, was born in France, and when a young man immigrated to the United States, settling in New Madrid County previous to 1815. Edward Meatt grew to manhood in his native county, and married Modis Mizerviel, a native of the county. After his marriage he located on a farm in Lesieur Township on which he resided until his death in July, 1887. He and wife had four children who became men and women—two sons and two daughters—of whom one daughter is dead. Olieave Meatt was reared at the home of his parents, and on July 15, 1862, married Mary Pikey, a native of New Madrid County. After his marriage he located on a farm, but removed to his present farm in 1879. He has 520 acres, which comprise three farms, each of which has fair improvements. Mr. Meatt lost his wife in December, 1883. She left three children: Peter, Maggie and Arlie.

Charles L. Mitchell, a young man of sterling worth and character, was born at Fort Adams, Wilkerson Co., Miss., August 9, 1858. His father, Alex. B. Mitchell, was born at Chillicothe, Ohio, where he grew to manhood. After reaching maturity he engaged in merchandising on the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers, having run as many as sixteen merchant boats. In New Madrid County, Mo., he married Carrie Lavallee, a native of the county, and a daughter of Charles A. Lavallee, an early pioneer of New Madrid District. The latter's father, Don Juan Lavallee, had command of the post of New Madrid under the Spanish Government, for a short time. After his marriage Mr. Mitchell located at Fort Adams, Miss., where he was in business until his death in 1860, whereupon Mrs. Mitchell returned to her father, who was an extensive planter in New Madrid County. She, later, married F. W. Maulsby, who was serving as clerk of New Madrid County at the time of his death in July, 1881. Charles L. Mitchell's youth was spent on the farm and in school. He clerked in a dry goods house about five years, and at the age of twenty years his step-father made him his deputy, which position he held until the death of the latter. In 1882 Mr. Mitchell himself received the nomination for county clerk, and was elected without opposition, being re-elected in 1886, and is now serving his second term in a most satisfactory manner. On November 9, 1886, he was united in marriage with Miss Jennie Watson, a native of Litchfield, Ill., where she was reared and educated. She is a daughter of H. C. Watson (deceased), formerly a resident of New Madrid County, who removed to Illinois in 1860, and came back to New Madrid County, Mo., in the fall of 1885, and remained until his death in the spring of 1886. His father, Judge Robert G. Watson, was one of the earliest pioneers of this section. Mr. Mitchell is a member of the A. O. U. W.

John A. Mott, clerk and recorder of the circuit court of New Madrid County, Mo., was born in Nicholasville, Jessamine Co., Ky., on September 5, 1826. He is a son of James Mott, a native of Virginia, who went to Jessamine County, Ky., when a young man, in 1815. There he married Hettie Withers, a native of the county. He was a farmer and merchant, and in 1828 removed to Hickman, Ky., and remained there engaged in the mercantile business until his death in 1847. John A. grew to manhood in Hickman and spent his youth in school and in his father's store. In 1850 he went to California, via New Orleans, Panama and Aspinwall; and, after spending two years in the mines, returned home by the same route. He came to New Madrid in October, 1852, and remained one year, when he went to Illinois and was appointed route agent for the American Express Company, with headquarters at Chicago. He resigned the position in 1856, and came back to New Madrid, and was married in November of that year to H. J. Waggener, a native of the county, and a daughter of Robert G. and Zella Waggener, who were among the early settlers of the county from Virginia. After his marriage Mr. Mott resided one year in New York City in the mercantile business, and in 1857 returned to Chicago in the employ of the American Express Company; but, after one year longer, came back to New Madrid. He engaged in farming until he was appointed by Gov. Gamble clerk and recorder of the circuit court. He was next appointed by Gov. Fletcher, and was elected at the first general election, and has been re-elected at each consecutive election with a nice majority each time but one, when he had but sixteen more than his opponent. He has held the office twenty-five consecutive years in a manner most satisfactory to all. He has also held several offices in the city. In 1875 he was licensed as an attorney at law, but has never practiced. To him and wife have been born six children; Clara, Laura, Louis W., May, Richard J. and Robert. Mr. Mott is a member of the Masonic order.

Richard S. Mott, a member of the firm of Mott, Davis & Co., general merchants at Point Pleasant, Mo., was born in Mississippi County, Mo., on July 10, 1842, and is a son of James and Hettie (Withers) Mott [see sketch of John A. Mott]. Richard S. Mott grew to manhood on his father's farm in Kentucky, and in June, 1861, enlisted in the Confederate army, joining the Twelfth Kentucky Cavalry, with which he served until the close of the war. He enlisted as a private, but was promoted to the rank of lieutenant, and participated in the battles at Brice's Cross Roads, Collierville, Franklin and Nashville, and all the other engagements of his regiment. After the war he located in Dunklin County, Mo., and in January, 1871, located where he now resides. On April 2, 1873, he was married to Miss Ida Fay, a native of the county, and a daughter of Louis P. Fay. To Mr. and Mrs. Mott have been born six children. Mr. Mott is a Mason, and was appointed notary public in 1886.

Albert T. Neill, sheriff and collector of New Madrid County, Mo., was born in Hardin County, Ky., on December 16, 1842. He is a son of Lewis Neill, a native of Virginia, who removed to Kentucky when a child. He grew to manhood in the latter State and married Latecia Torrence, a native of Kentucky, who was born and reared in Hardin County. The county was named in honor of her grandfather, Ben. Hardin. In 1853 Lewis Neill removed to a farm in New Madrid County, Mo., on which he resided until his death in 1882. Albert T. Neill was reared on this farm, and received his education in Hardin County, Ky., to which county his mother took her children in 1855, for the purpose of sending them to school. She died there in 1856. Albert T. remained in school until the next year, 1857, but since arriving at mature years his education has been greatly improved by much reading and business experience. In 1861 he married Nancy McClain, a native of Kentucky. She died about 1871, leaving two children: Ida and Eddie. In 1873 he was united in marriage with Anna Graham, a native of New Madrid County, Mo. She died in 1883, leaving three children, Lulu, Nora and Gertrude. After his first marriage Mr. Neill located on a farm in New Madrid County and was engaged in agricultural pursuits until 1881, when he removed to New Madrid. He served as city marshal three years, and in 1884 was elected sheriff and collector, and was re-elected in 1886. He has filled the office in a very creditable manner, giving satisfaction to all. In May, 1885, he married in Hickman, Ky., Sarah Carlisle, who was born in Kentucky. One child has been born to this union, Grover Cleveland. Mr. Neill is a Master Mason, and a member of the A. O. U. W. He and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Louis Newbauer was born in Gasconade County, Mo., on March 23, 1852, and is a son of Julius Newbauer, a native of Germany, who, when a young man, came to the United States, and was married in Gasconade County, Mo., to Mary Leboube, a native of France. After his marriage, Mr. Newbauer located in Gasconade County, and remained a few years as proprietor of a jewelry store. He, being a jeweler, also worked at his trade. From thence he removed to Kansas City, but after a short time went to Vicksburg, Miss., and was engaged in the jewelry business until the yellow fever drove him North. He then located in New Madrid and engaged in the same business, which he continued until the Civil War. After the war he located on a farm in New Madrid County, and remained until his death. His widow survived him several years. They reared a family of two sons and two daughters. Both of the sons now reside in New Madrid Township, New Madrid County. Louis was reared at the home of his parents, and received a good education in the high schools, Washington University at St. Louis, and Christian Brothers' College, St. Louis. On January 30, 1884, he wedded Barbara Raidt, a native of the county, and a daughter of Judge Raidt. Mr. Newbauer has resided on his present farm of 277 acres for several years, and has it under a fine state of cultivation, with good improvements. To him and wife have been born one child, Anna. Mrs. Newbauer is a member of the Catholic Church.

Thomas Newman, an old and respected citizen of New Madrid County, Mo., was born near New Madrid in 1830, and is one of two children born to Michael and Sallie (Brannum) Newman. Michael Newman was born in Pennsylvania, and when a young man ran away from home and came to New Madrid County, Mo. He had previously learned the comb-maker's trade, but, after coming to Missouri, turned his attention to farming, at which he was very successful.

Sallie Brannum, it is supposed, was born in New Madrid County. She died when the subject of this sketch was nine months old, leaving one other child, a daughter (now deceased). Michael Newman afterward married Peggy McKinney, who survived her husband and married again. Mr. Newman died about 1839. By his second marriage he was the father of five children. Thomas Newman lived with his father until he was twelve years of age, after which he resided with his sister (Mrs. John Harris, of New Madrid County) for six years. He then worked as a farm laborer until he was twenty-five years of age, when he leased land and engaged in agricultural pursuits for himself. He leased and rented land till 1871, when he purchased 120 acres of land in West Township, New Madrid County, which he later sold and resided successively in Sikeston, Richwoods and Big Prairie, engaged in farming all the time. He then purchased his present farm, where he has a good home. In 1855 he married Sarah Ann McCloud, a daughter of Abner McCloud. She was born in New Madrid County in 1839, and died soon after her marriage, leaving two children, who soon died. On March 11, 1860, Mr. Newman wedded Tolitha Fry, who was born near Cooks-ville, Tenn., on December 30, 1840. She died on November 3, 1875, having borne eight children, two of whom, William Henry and Leroy, are living. Those dead are: Sarah E., two that died in infancy, Betsy Ann, Katey and Luther. Mr. Newman married again on the 12th of July, 1876, choosing for his wife Johan Clark, a daughter of Bolden Clark. She was born near Nashville, Tenn., on September 15, 1860, and has six children: Cynthia Ann, Ella I. (deceased), Louisa, Mollie A., Benjamin F. and Thomas M. Mr. Newman is a member of the Methodist Congregational Church, is a Mason, a Wheeler, and a staunch Democrat.

Charles Peck was born in St. Louis in 1843. Both of his parents died when he was an infant. When four years of age he was brought to New Madrid County by his adopted father, William S. Mosley, with whom he remained eight years, after which he resided with Mr. A. C. Laforge until the breaking out of the Civil War. He enlisted in the Confederate army in April, 1864, joining the First Missouri Regiment as a recruit. He entered the regiment at Montevallo, Ala., and remained with it until the close of the war. He participated in the Georgia campaign, doing duty every day, the Tennessee campaign, and was present at the battle of Franklin, and marched with his regiment from Tennessee to Mobile, Ala., where they went into winter quarters. In 1865 he was captured in defense of Mobile with his regiment, and was sent to Ship Island as a prisoner of war, and later to Vicksburg, where he was exchanged. With his regiment he was paroled on May 13, at Jackson, Miss., and returned home about June 1, 1865. For fifteen months afterward he traveled through Missouri, Tennessee, Kentucky and Illinois. In 1867 he engaged to work as a farm-hand, and continued until 1870. He was married in New Madrid County, on February 3, 1870, to Sarah O. Gray, a native of the county, and a daughter of William Gray (deceased). After his marriage he located on a farm, and has since been engaged in agricultural pursuits. He removed to his present farm in 1875. He and wife have one son, William Henry, a young man of eighteen years. In religious faith, the family are Catholics. Mr. Peck is a member of the New Madrid Lodge of A. O. U. W.

William M. Pharris, one of the successful farmers of New Madrid County, Mo., was born in Stoddard County, Mo., March 26, 1850, and is the son of Sydney R. and Jane (Lindsey) Pharris. Sydney R. Pharris was born in Tennessee, and when a child came with his parents to Stoddard County, Mo., where he lived until 1863, when he removed to Scott County, Mo., and resided until his death in 1878. He was a very successful farmer, but like so many of his neighbors was financially ruined by the war. For three years he served as sergeant in the Confederate army, and participated in different battles. His wife was born in Tennessee in 1820, and is now residing with the subject of this sketch. They were the parents of six children, four of whom are now living. When William M. left his mother's home he took her to his own, and has continued to be her main support. In 1873 he rented twenty-three acres of land of C. D. Matthews, and began farming for himself, and for seven years he cultivated rented land. He then purchased a farm consisting of 120 acres adjoining the one he now owns, having sold the former when he purchased the latter, comprising 240 acres of as good land as there is in New Madrid County. He has been very successful, which is the result of hard work and good management, for he had nothing of his own but one mule when he first began farming on rented land. On August 10, 1873, he was united in marriage with Frances Driver, who was born in Jackson County, Ark., in 1857. Their union has been blessed by the birth of seven children, six living, viz.: James, Ida May, Ader, Carrie, Oscar, and an infant daughter. Mary Jane died when five years of age. Mr. Pharris is a Democrat, but has never aspired to hold office.

James H. Pharris was born in Stoddard County, Mo., on January 6, 1853, and is a son of Sydney and Jane (Lindsey) Pharris [for history of parents see sketch of William M. Pharris]. Besides the subject of this sketch and his brother, William M., there are two others of the family of children living: Nancy (the wife of Washington Powers) and Martha (the widow of William Hays). James H. received the rudiments of a common school education at the homeschool, which has been greatly improved since arriving at maturity by much general reading and business experience. He remained at home working for his parents until he was eighteen years of age, when he hired to James B. Emery for twelve months to do all kinds of work, but principally driving teams. The following year, he and his brother, William M., formed a partnership and rented land, 100 acres on Big Prairie, which they cultivated one year, and dissolved partnership. James P. then rented land from C. D. Matthews, and in 1838 removed to West Township and continued renting land for a few years, when he purchased a part of the farm on which William M. Pharris now resides. The former lived there four years, when he purchased 295 acres of Joseph Hunter and Edward Keith. Since then he has bought and sold and now has 220 acres of as good land as is to be found in West Township, New Madrid County. In partnership with his brother he was engaged in the sawmill business in 1886, at which he was very successful. May 29, 1875, he married Martha Driver, a native of Jackson County, Ark., born on May 11, 1854. Their union has been blessed by the birth of six children, five of whom are living, viz.: Ame A., Minnie, John W., Mintie and a baby. The one dead is Hattie, aged sixteen months. Mr. Pharris is a member of the A. O. U. W. and the Agricultural Wheel. In politics he supports the principles of the Democratic party.

Murray Phillips, a prominent citizen of Southeast Missouri, residing near New Madrid, was born near that city on January 19, 1847, and is a son of Shapley R. and Sallie (Graves) Phillips. Shapley R. Phillips was born at Louisville, Ky., on September 22, 1802, and when a young man came to New Madrid County, Mo., where he afterward resided. At the time of his location in the county, he possessed scanty means, but by energy and superior business ability he became one of the most wealthy and substantial men of Southeast Missouri. He seemed to be successful in all his undertakings, owning at one time over 300 slaves, and between 7,000 and 10,000 acres of land. His attention was given entirely to farming, which he prosecuted on an extensive scale. He died on Lewis' Prairie on January 29, 1863. His wife was born in East Tennessee, and died when the subject of this sketch was a young boy. There were eight children, of whom Murray is the youngest and only survivor. He received a fine education, first attending Christian Brothers' College of St. Louis, and later Washington University of Virginia, which was then under the management of Gen. Robert E. Lee. He graduated from the latter college in French and mathematics. After his father's death he lived with his elder brother, Amos R., a prominent citizen of New Madrid County, who was a representative at the time of his death in 1873. Amos R. was never married. Sallie D., a sister, was the wife of Leroy Kline. She died in 1865, leaving one son, Amos R., who has since had his name changed to Amos R. Phillips. In 1869 Murray Phillips took charge of his father's estate, in connection with which he now has charge of his brother, Amos R.'s and Leroy Klein's estates. The Phillips estate comprises 15,000 acres of some of the best land in Southeast Missouri. On August 10, 1876, Mr. Phillips was united in marriage with Anna M. Howard, a daughter of J. H. Howard, of New Madrid. Their union has been blessed by the birth of one son, Murray.

Lee C. Phillips was born in Jefferson County, near Louisville, Ky., on December 29, 1859, and is a son of Capt. Thomas Phillips, who was born and reared in Kentucky. The latter came to Missouri when a young man about 1855, and was married in New Madrid County to Anna H. Maulsby, a native of the county. Thomas J. Phillips enlisted in the Confederate army, and was made captain of his company, with which he served until 1864. Upon his return from the war, he removed to Kentucky and located in Jefferson County. He engaged in agricultural pursuits, but after two years returned to New Madrid County, Mo., and in February, 1866, located on the farm on which his family now resides. He remained here engaged in farming until his death, on June 17, 1872. After returning to New Madrid County he was county surveyor for a number of years, and was serving in this capacity at the time of his death. He left a family of four children—two sons and two daughters—three of whom are living: Lee C., Dr. Murray W. (a dentist in New Madrid) and Mamie. Lee C. was reared on his father's farm, and received an ordinary education in the common schools. Since reaching manhood he has managed the home farm, containing 280 acres, which is somewhat below the average fertility of land in New Madrid County. Two hundred and sixty acres are in cultivation. He owns one-fourth share of the farm, which is moderately improved. On January 5, 1887, he was united in marriage to Miss Neelie Waters, daughter of Louis A. Waters, Sr., and Virginia Waters (both deceased). Mr. Phillips is a member of the A. O. U. W. His wife is a devoted member of the Catholic Church. Her mother was also a devout member of the same church. Mr. and Mrs. Phillips are the parents of one son, Edwin.

Samuel Pikey, an enterprising farmer and stock raiser of Lesieur Township, New Madrid County, was born on the farm on which he now resides, September 24, 1857. He is a son of Peter Pikey, also a native of that county, who married Margaret Wiltshire, a native of New Jersey, who was reared in New Madrid County, Mo. About 1855 Peter Pikey located on the farm where the subject of this sketch now resides. He purchased raw land which he improved, and made his home on until his death in 1864, aged thirty-eight years, ten months and four days. Samuel Pikey grew to manhood at his parents' home, and, after the death of his father, remained with his mother until she married again and left the home place. She died March 3, 1885. Samuel took charge of the farm after his mother left, and has since bought the interest of the other heirs. He has his farm under a good state of cultivation, with a good residence and out-buildings. On September 2, 1883, he was united in marriage with Mrs. Ettie (Nelson) Babb, the widow of Thomas Babb. She was born and reared in New Madrid County, and is a daughter of Frank Nelson. Mr. Pikey is a member of Point Pleasant Masonic Lodge, and is a Master Mason. He is also a member of the Agricultural Wheel.

George T. Price was born in Obion County, Tenn., November 27, 1846, and is a son of Williamson E. and Francis (Napier) Price, both of whom were born and reared in Virginia. They were married in their native State, and removed from thence to Tennessee, locating on a farm in Obion County. The county was afterward divided, and Williamson Price's farm was in Lake County. He resided there until his death August 17, 1882. George T. grew to manhood at the home of his parents, coming to New Madrid County, Mo., in 1866. He was married in the latter county November 21, 1866, to Mary Emma Riddle, after which he located on a farm in Lesieur Township, where he remained until 1880, when he removed to Point Pleasant, and engaged in merchandising. After two years in the latter business, he sold his stock of goods, and in 1884 located where he now resides. His farm consists of 235 acres, on which he has a good dwelling and other buildings. His first wife died in 1879, leaving two children: Lena and George T. In 1880 Mr. Price married Sallie Broughton, a native of the county, and a daughter of Jefferson M. Broughton [see sketch]. Their union has been blessed by the birth of two children: Junie and Richard Mott. Mr. Price is a Master Mason, and a member of the Agricultural Wheel.

John Rader is a native of Germany, born on June 17, 1832. When an infant his parents started to the United States, but his father died while crossing the ocean. Mrs. Rader came to Missouri and made a location in New Madrid County, where she died a few years later, the subject of this sketch being but seven years of age. He was taken by Martin Toney, who reared him to manhood and gave him a good education in the common schools. Martin Toney resided on the same farm in Lesieur Township, New Madrid County, which is John Rader's present one. Upon attaining his majority, the latter located on a farm in the same neighborhood, but in 1864 he purchased his present farm, to which he removed three years later. It consists of 355 acres of fine land, 300 of which are under cultivation. On November 28, 1860, Mr. Rader was united in marriage with Elizabeth Freeman, who died in 1869, leaving three daughters, all of whom are living: Eliza (now the wife of George E. Hess), Hattie (wife of Davis B. Riley) and Lelia (wife of W. F. Harbolt). Mr. Rader was married on October 14, 1869, to Frances Vivian, the widow of Henry Vivian. She is of English birth and parentage and a daughter of William E. Jones, deceased.

She was reared and married in Wisconsin, in which State her former husband died.

Judge Philip Raidt was born in Beal, on the Necker, in Wurtemberg, Germany, April 4, 1825, and is a son of Remegious and Antonia (Hanely) Raidt, who were also born in Germany, where they were reared and married. They immigrated to America in February, 1833 (the father resigning his office of burgomaster of Beal), and landed in New Orleans some time in May of that year. Then the father embarked for St. Louis on the steamer "Mohegan," but on account of the severity of the cholera was forced to abandon the boat, owing to slow speed and time occupied in burying people. Mr. Raidt, Sr., stopped, as he thought, temporarily at New Madrid, but it proved to be a permanent step. Two of his daughters died on the boat and were buried between New Orleans and New Madrid, and one died soon after landing. After living in town until the next spring he purchased some land and moved on a farm, where he died in a short time. This farm was about two and a half miles from New Madrid at that time but is now about one and a half miles distant, by reason of the wash and caving-in of the banks of the Mississippi River. Philip Raidt grew to manhood on the farm, and was married in 1848 to Rosine Thomas, a native of Germany, who came to America in the same vessel with the Raidt family. After his marriage the Judge remained on the farm until 1866, when he removed to New Madrid to give his children the advantages of the school of that city. He has three children: Barbara (wife of Louis Newbeaur, whose sketch appears in this work), Elizabeth (a young lady at home) and Philip A. (who now has charge of his father's farm). Since removing to New Madrid Mr. Raidt has served as school director two or three terms, and helped to organize the first free school in this county. He has also served as alderman on the city board for a few terms. In April, 1884, he was elected mayor of the city of New Madrid without any solicitation on his part, but did not serve, as his services were otherwise required in attending to duties about his farm. In the fall of 1884 he became a candidate for judge of the county court, from the first district of New Madrid County, and was elected in November, 1884, and was re-elected in November, 1886, which office he now holds.

George A. Reaves, an industrious and thrifty farmer of New Madrid County, Mo., is a native of the county, born on February 2, 1852. He is a son of F. G. Reaves, a native of Tennessee, who came to Missouri when a young man and located in New Madrid County. He there married Paralee Carmack, also a native of Tennessee. After his marriage F. G. Reaves settled on a farm in the neighborhood of George A. Reaves' present home, which is now also the former's home, his wife having died in 1882. George A. remained with his parents until he attained his majority, and was married on September 30, 1875, to Mary C. Carson, a native of Dunklin County, Mo., who was reared in New Madrid County. After his marriage Mr. Reaves rented the farm on which he now resides, having purchased it later. He has made some valuable improvements and has about one-half of his land under cultivation. His wife died on April 1, 1879, leaving one son—William A. Mr. Reaves was married again on December 5, 1883, choosing for his wife Bettie Nolin, who was born and reared in Pemiscot County, and is a daughter of George N. Nolin (deceased). To this union have been born three children: George A., Ernest B. and an infant son unnamed. Mr. Reaves is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is also a Master Mason and a member of the Agricultural Wheel.

Judge Amos Riley, one of the prominent citizens of New Madrid County, Mo., was born in Jefferson County, Ky., on June 10, 1810. He is a son of Amos Riley, Sr., a native of Montgomery County, Md. The latter when a young man left his native State and went to Jefferson County, Ky., where he married Susan Phillips, a native of Virginia. Some years after their marriage they removed to Daviess County, Ky., where they spent the remainder of their lives. Amos Riley, Jr., grew to manhood in Daviess County, Ky., and was married in Louisville on December 23, 1833, to Lucy Ann Hamilton, a daughter of Charles Hamilton, of Claiborne County, Miss., in which county Mrs. Riley was born. After his marriage Mr. Riley located in Kentucky, but in 1837 came to Southeast Missouri and purchased 300 acres of land, where he now resides. He brought his family to this farm in 1844. Since then he has purchased more land (all timbered), which he has improved, and, after giving liberally to his children, still has about 600 acres. He has served as judge of the county court, and is one of the substantial men of the county. He and wife have reared a family of six sons and two daughters, viz.: Charles H., Amos C. (who was killed in the Confederate army at Atlanta, Ga.), William, Ellen (wife of Amos R. Hathaway), Henry C., E. T. Chilion (now in New Mexico), Lucy (wife of J. D. Harrel, of Jackson, Mo.) and D. B. (who is now managing the home farm). Judge Riley is a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and his wife of the Presbyterian Church.

William Riley was born in Jefferson County, Ky., December 20, 1840, and, when four years of age, came to Missouri with his father, Amos Riley, who settled in New Madrid County [see sketch of latter]. William grew up on his father's farm, and secured a good education at the Military Institute, near Frankfort, Ky., and the State University at Columbia, Mo. He enlisted in the Confederate army in 1861 at the beginning of the war, joining the First Missouri Infantry as a private, but was soon after promoted to the rank of first lieutenant. He served one year in that regiment, and re-enlisted in 1862 in the Eighth Missouri Cavalry, with which he served until the close of the war. He enlisted the second time as a private and was again promoted to first lieutenant. He participated in all the engagements of his regiment, not being away from his command more than a month from the beginning to the end of the war. The most prominent battles were Shiloh, Helena, and Pilot Knob. When peace was restored he returned home, and has since been engaged in farming. He was married in October, 1867, to Orra Toney, a native of New Madrid County, and a daughter of Pinkney Toney, deceased. He located on the farm where he now resides, three and one-half miles north of New Madrid, in 1871. The farm consists of 210 acres of fine land, nearly all fenced and under cultivation. To him and wife have been born eight children: Lydia C., Amos C., Nannie D., Charles V., Mabel O., William, Chilion and John M. Mr. Riley is a member of the A. O. U. W. lodge at New Madrid.

Henry C. Riley, prosecuting attorney of New Madrid County, Mo., is a native of the county, born on December 18, 1850, and is a son of Judge Amos Riley [see sketch]. Henry C. Riley spent his youth on his father's farm and at school. He received his literary education in a five years' course at the Kentucky Military Institute, near Frankfort, Ky., graduating from the institution in June, 1871. He then entered the St. Louis Law School, from which he received a diploma in 1873. After finishing his professional education he commenced practicing at New Madrid, and has become one of the leading lawyers of the county. He served as county school commissioner for a few years. In 1884 he was elected prosecuting attorney for the county, and was re-elected in 1886. He was united in marriage in May, 1877, with Miss Jennie Howard, a native of the county, and a daughter of Judge J. H. Howard [see sketch]. She was reared in New Madrid County and educated at St. Vincent Female Seminary at Cape Girardeau. Mr. and Mrs. Riley's union has been blessed by the birth of three children, viz.: Edwin H., Harry C. and Dixie. Mr. Riley is a member of the Masonic order, and also of the A. O. U. W. Mrs. Riley is a devoted member of the Catholic Church.

A. A. Rittenhouse, a native of Ohio, was born in Cincinnati, O., July 12, 1817, and came to New Madrid County, State of Missouri, August 14, 1832. He returned to Cincinnati, June 10, 1835, and served an apprenticeship at chair and ornamental painting, then returning to Point Pleasant, New Madrid Co., Mo., in 1840, where he was given steady employment by Mr. John Woodard, as clerk in his store. March 27, 1843, he was united in marriage with Miss Elizabeth Nicholas, daughter of W. B. Nicholas, and then engaged in farming, until the close of the war, when he entered into the mercantile business. Mrs. Rittenhouse departed this life December 21, 1860, and he was again united in marriage with his present wife, Mrs. Nancy C. Nicholas, on June 18, 1862.

James M. Robbins was born in New Madrid County, on March 25, 1846, and is a son of J. K. Robbins, a native of New York, who came to Missouri when a young man, and settled in New Madrid County, where he taught school for several years. He married Susan Lazell, a native of the county, whose ancestors settled in the northern part of the county previous to the earthquake of 1811-12. For a time J. K. Robbins was engaged in running a flat trading boat down the Mississippi River. In this way he accumulated means to start a store at Point Pleasant, where he sold goods for several years. Later he purchased a wharf-boat, and located at New Madrid, where he was engaged in the forwarding and commission business until 1862, when he removed to St. Louis. He then became an invalid, after which he loaned money and did considerable business in that line until his death on July 6, 1888. His wife died in January, 1873. They reared two children: James M. and Nancy M., who died in 1881. James M. Robbins received a good education in the St. Louis University, being in the senior class when he left school on account of the war. For five years following he traveled over the United States and Canada, visiting home several times in the meantime. On April 2, 1873, he was united in marriage with Emma I. Lesieur, a daughter of Adolphus Lesieur, deceased. She was born, reared and educated in New Madrid County. Directly after his marriage Mr. Robbins located on the farm on which he now resides, about seven miles southwest of New Madrid. The farm consists of about 1,600 acres, upon which is a fine residence, barns and other improvements. Mr. Robbins owns altogether about 6,000 acres of land. Besides his farming interest he does considerable business in loaning money and buying notes. He is a member of the A. O. U. W. lodge at New Madrid. To him and wife have been born four children: James K., Susie A., Myrd B. and Felix Monroe.

Andrew Jackson Scimmones, a prominent farmer and stock dealer of Big Prairie Township, New Madrid Co., Mo., was born in Graves County, Ky., on December 25, 1850. He is the son of Thomas and Mary Ann (Mackvoy) Scimmones, natives of Tennessee and Kentucky, respectively. Thomas Scimmones, when a young man, went from Tennessee to Kentucky, where he resided until his death in 1863, aged about forty-five years. He was a farmer by vocation. His widow is now living with a daughter in Weakley County, Tenn. She is a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and the mother of four sons and four daughters, of whom Andrew Jackson and two daughters are the only ones living. The others died when young, except John, who was killed while in the Confederate service at the battle of Shiloh. He belonged to Capt. Joseph Emerson's company of the Third Kentucky Infantry. Andrew Jackson remained with his mother until 1873, when he began working for himself as a bridge-builder, and the next few months contracted for and built four bridges. He then engaged for a few months in selling lightning rods through Kentucky and Tennessee, after which he went to Arkansas, but returned home in a short time. After spending a short time in the stove business at Columbus, Ky., he came to New Madrid County, Mo., and hired to James B. Emery. He then traded his watch and position for a growing crop of cotton and corn, and until the harvest remained with James Jordon and attended school. On October 27, 1875 he married Elizabeth Ingram, a daughter of Elias and Winsey Elwiney (Williams) Ingram, natives of Mississippi, who removed to Hickman County, Ky., where they both died, he in 1861, and she three years later. After the deaths of her parents, Elizabeth lived with her uncles, Sebastian Ingram and James B. Emery, until her marriage. After his marriage Mr. Scimmones rented land and traded until he was able to purchase his present splendidly located and well-improved farm. Since a boy of fifteen he has had a passion for trading, at which he has been very successful. To him and wife have been born five children: Mary Ella, John Curtis, Annie Jane, Jenna and William T. Mr. and Mrs. Scimmones are members of the Baptist Church. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., the A. O. U. W. and the Wheel. In politics he is a Democrat.

Charles T. Scott was born in Bedford County, Va., on February 4, 1829, and is a son of John W. and Elizabeth (Irvin) Scott, both natives of Virginia. John W. Scott was born in Halifax County. He was married in his native State and resided there for a time afterward, when he removed his family to Mississippi, and from thence to West Virginia. In 1846 he came to Missouri and made a location on timbered land in New Madrid County, it being the same farm on which the subject of this sketch now resides. Here John W. Scott died in 1849. His wife died in Virginia. When a boy, Charles T. Scott went with his father to Mississippi, and four years later returned to West Virginia. In 1848 he came to Missouri and settled with his father on the farm which is now his home. He has cleared the land and has 160 of the 360 acres under cultivation, on which are comfortable buildings. He, however, only cultivates a small portion of the land himself, but has tenement houses on the place, and rents the most of it.

Jackson Shields was born in Scott County, Mo., on June 2, 1840, and is a son of Joseph Shields, a native of New Madrid County, Mo., born on May 3, 1816. The latter is a son of Joseph Shields, Sr., who came to Missouri about 1808, when he was a young man, and married Martha Davis, who had come to the State with her parents about 1807 or 1808. After their marriage they settled on a farm and resided there until their deaths. Joseph Shields, Jr., grew to manhood on his father's farm, and in 1837 married Isabella Liggett, a native of the county and a daughter of Envel Liggett. After his marriage he removed to Scott County and remained a few years, when he removed back to New Madrid county, where he still resides. His first wife died in 1880, and he is now living with his second wife. Jackson Shields grew to manhood in New Madrid County, and in June, 1861, enlisted in the Confederate army, joining the First Missouri Regiment under Col. John S. Bowen, with which he served until the close of the war, and participated in the battles of Corinth, Fort Gibson, Iuka, Black River, all of the engagements of the siege of Vicksburg, and also witnessed the surrender of Vicksburg, at which time he was taken prisoner and held at Camp Morton, Ind., until almost the close of the war. After peace was restored he returned home and engaged in farming. On December 1, 1868, he was united in marriage with Mary Watson, who was born and reared in Fulton County, Ky. After his marriage Mr. Shields settled on Brush Prairie, New Madrid County, and engaged in farming. In 1884 he removed to the farm on which he now resides, situated about seven miles from New Madrid on the river. To Mr. and Mrs. Shields have been born eight children: Albert, Louey, Luther, Maud, Julia, Mollie, Jackson and Lawrence. Mrs. Shields is an earnest member of the Methodist Church. Mr. Shields is a member of the A. O. U. W.

William P. Smith, an enterprising and progressive farmer of New Madrid County, Mo., was born on November 11, 1848, in Stoddard County, Mo. His parents were Sterling and Temperance (Singleton) Smith [see sketch of James Dixon Smith]. William P. was the eldest of eight children, and on account of the early death of his parents received a very limited education. Soon after the death of his father and mother he began to "batch," in which manner he lived twelve years, engaged in farming. In the meantime he formed a partnership with his younger brothers, James D. and Theodore C., and gave them a start in life. In 1876 he came with them to New Madrid County, Mo., where for a time they were engaged in agricultural pursuits on rented land. In 1882 they purchased eighty acres of land, to which they have since added the balance of 440 acres of the best land in the county, and which under their care has been highly improved. On December 26, 1879, William P. Smith was united in marriage with Etta Leagon, a daughter of Mark and Emma (Andrews) Leagon. She is a native of Smith County, Tenn., born on May 10, 1863. Three children are the fruits of this happy union, all of whom are living: Laura, Ernest and Louey. Politically Mr. Smith is a staunch Democrat. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. and of the Agricultural Wheel.

James Dixon Smith, a young farmer of New Madrid County, Mo., was born in Stoddard County, Mo., on January 1, 1854. He is a son of Sterling and Temperance (Singleton) Smith, both of whom were natives of Carroll County, Tenn., and died in Alexander County, Ill., he in 1863, aged fifty-six years, and she in the spring of the next year, at the age of forty-eight. In his young days, Sterling Smith was engaged in rafting logs from the Upper Tennessee River to New Orleans. After residing in various places in Tennessee, Missouri and Illinois, he finally located in Alexander County, and turned his attention to farming and trading, at times shipping a great deal of live-stock to New Orleans. He was very successful in business, but during the late war was financially broken. He was a Democrat in politics, and both he and wife were members of the Baptist Church. They had eight children, only two of whom are now living: James Dixon and William P. Theodore died in 1881, at the age of twenty-two years. The others died when very young. At the death of his parents James Dixon went to live with John Clutte, a German, with whom he remained the next seven years, working on the farm in the summer-time, and attending school in winter. Upon leaving this place, he and his brother formed a partnership and removed to the river bottoms, where, for the next three years, they engaged in farming on rented land. James D. afterward worked a short time in Tennessee, and, returning to New Madrid County, Mo., again engaged in agricultural pursuits. He rented land for the next ten years, when he purchased 240 acres, which he has since been improving and clearing. On September 4, 1881, he married Alice Lee Gossett, a daughter of John Gossett. She was born in New Madrid County, Mo., April 4, 1854. To their union have been born four children: Lillie Cordella, Mollie D., James A. and Hettie Ethel. Mr. and Mrs. Smith are members of the Baptist Church. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., and of the Wheel, and in politics is an earnest Democrat.

George W. Steel, surveyor of New Madrid County, Mo., was born where he now lives, on March 10, 1852, and is the son of Caswell and Mary E. (Harness) Steel, natives of Kentucky and Virginia, respectively. Caswell Steel was born in 1812, and when eighteen years of age he came with his mother to New Madrid County, Mo. While yet a young man he served as overseer for Shapley R. Phillips and Amos Riley, among the largest slave holders of Southeast Missouri. He then engaged in farming, and being a very industrious man, was very successful, owning a nice farm at the time of his death. He died at Hat Springs, Ark., while being treated for dropsy. His wife was born in 1829, and died in 1866. When quite young her parents, George W. and Tabitha (Bukey) Harness, came to New Madrid County, Mo. George W. Harness' parents were from Pennsylvania, and belonged to what is known as the Pennsylvania Dutch. They removed to Virginia, where they died. The Bukey family were natives of Virginia, and are a branch of the same family that Hezekiah Bukey, the celebrated Indian fighter and hunter, belongs to. Caswell and Mary E. Steel had three children, two of whom are living: George W. and Druzilla, the wife of Oreas Pugh, a farmer, living near Chattanooga, Tenn. After their parents' death these two children went to West Virginia, and resided with an aunt, Elizabeth Bukey, at Williamstown, and attended school. Upon leaving his aunts, George W. entered Marietta College, at Marietta, Ohio, which he left the year before his graduation. Entering Duff's Commercial College at Pittsburgh, he graduated at bookkeeping, railroading and commercial law. In October, 1873, he returned to New Madrid County, and for five years camped out and hunted during the winter seasons, and taught school during the spring and summer. He had for his companion Grant Huella, of Portsmouth, Ohio, who also taught during the spring and summer. After this he engaged in farming, which he has continued, owning now 720 acres of fine land under a good state of cultivation. In 1878 he was elected surveyor of New Madrid County, a position which he is eminently qualified to fill. On December 25, 1876, he wedded Mary Moore, a daughter of Francis L. and Jane (McMullen) Moore, prominent citizens of New Madrid County. Mrs. Steel was born in the county in 1854, and received a fine education at St. Vincent's Female Seminary, at Cape Girardeau. To Mr. and Mrs. Steel's union have been born three children: Amy, Francis and Howard. Mr. Steel is a member of the A. O. U. W., and is a staunch Democrat.

Madison Jackson Tickell, a prominent citizen of New Madrid County, was born in White County, Tenn., on July 16, 1826. He is the sixth of eleven children born to William and Lavinia (Stallcup) Tickell, natives of Rockingham County, N. C., and of Scotch-Irish and German lineage, respectively. Probably soon after their marriage, they removed to White County, Tenn., and in 1836 to Obion County, that State, where they remained several years, and went to Hickman County and resided till their deaths. William Tickell was a successful farmer, but lost much money by going security for his friends. He had no political aspirations, and he and wife were for many years zealous members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, always taking an active part in church affairs. Of their eleven children, nine lived to be grown and four are living at this writing: Madison Jackson, Elizabeth C. (the widow of Daniel Mozier, deceased), Sallie Louisa (who is married and resides in Arkansas), Martha Caroline (widow of Mr. Pierce, deceased). Madison J. received a limited education in Tennessee, as opportunity for schooling was meager at the time. Since coming to New Madrid County, Mo., he has attended school three months, and by much reading and close observation has gained a good practical education. At the age of sixteen years, he began driving a team for his father from Hickman, Ky., into the interior of the State about 100 miles, hauling goods from the Mississippi River, and in return bringing cotton and tobacco. He continued this for three years, and a few months before he was twenty-one years of age left home, paying his father $20 for his liberty. He took a trip on the Mississippi River to New Orleans, and across Lake Pontchartrain to Mobile, Ala. In May, 1847, he returned to New Madrid, and began learning the carpenter's trade, at which he afterward worked for fifteen years, and continued twenty-five years more in connection with house-moving. Being very successful at his trade he then began dealing in stock, the most of which he shipped to New Orleans, and the rest to St. Louis. He is still engaged in this business, and has been farming extensively for many years, owning at present 3,000 acres of fine land. Immediately after the war he cultivated 100 acres on the site of the present town of New Madrid, for which land he paid $6 per acre rent. In 1847 he married Mrs.

Anise (Audibert) Roy, a native of France, who came with her parents to the United States when small, and first located near New Albany, Ind., but later came to New Madrid County, Mo. To Mr. and Mrs. Tickell have been born four children, three living; Mary Eliza (wife of Henry Clay Hunter), Louis Alfred (who is engaged very successfully at house-moving), William Adolph (who is merchandising at Laforge). The other one, Laura, died when three years of age. Mrs. Tickell is a member of the Catholic Church. Mr. Tickell is a very active, public-spirited citizen, and at all times supports the cause of education, and he and family are highly respected by all who know them.

Jerome Warth was born in Jackson County, W. Va., April 25, 1833. His father, Robert Warth, was born in New York, from which State he went to Ohio, where he married Mary Johnson, a native of Massachusetts. Her father removed from her native State to Ohio when she was twelve years of age. The father afterward died in Cincinnati. After his marriage Robert Warth located in West Virginia, and is still a resident of Jackson County, of that State. His wife died in March, 1880. Jerome Warth remained with his parents in West Virginia until March, 1855, when he came west and located in New Madrid County, Mo., where he was engaged in carpentering for several years. His marriage with Melinda Adams was celebrated in New Madrid County on May 1, 1856. She was a native of the county, and a daughter of James Adams. Soon after his marriage Mr. Warth settled on a piece of new land, with only three acres cleared. He resides on the same farm yet, but he has cleared the land and made many valuable improvements. His wife died September 1, 1884, having borne eleven children, six of whom are living: Charles, Morgan, Laura A., John, Harriet and Amelia. Those deceased were: Mary, James, George, Louisa and Celia. On July 26, 1885, Mr. Warth married his present wife, a widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Strawn, a daughter of William Ingould. This union has been blessed by the birth of two children: Ira and Susie.

John Jay Williams, M. D., a physician and druggist of Point Pleasant, Mo., was born at Snyder's Bluffs, near Vicksburg, Miss., on March 17, 1853. He is a son of C. C. Williams, a native of Kentucky, who removed with his parents when a mere lad, to St. Charles, Mo. The latter's father, Olly Williams, was a native of Virginia, and a cousin of two presidents, Zachary Taylor and James Buchanan. He served through the War of 1812, after which he married in Kentucky, and located in St. Louis, where he died at the age of eighty-five years. C. C. Williams spent his youth in a store and machine shops, in the latter of which he became a practical mechanic. He was engaged as a clerk on a boat in the Mississippi for a number of years, after which, with a partner, he purchased a boat, which they ran on the Yazoo River. He married, in Mississippi, Charlotte Welch, a native of the State, and a daughter of Samuel Welch. About three years after his marriage Mr. Williams located in St. Louis, from whence he removed to Point Pleasant in 1853, and was engaged in farming for several years, about a mile from the river, after which he removed to the river, and engaged in the warehouse, forwarding and merchandise business, also in the milling business, continuing both until his death on May 16, 1879. His widow still survives. They reared to maturity five sons and two daughters, all living, and, with the exception of one daughter in Scott County, residing in New Madrid County. John Jay secured his education at the Christian Brothers' College, St. Louis, with a commercial course at Keokuk, Iowa. He entered the Keokuk College of Physicians and Surgeons in the winter of 1877, and graduated from that institution on June 18, 1878. After completing the course, he located at Point Pleasant, and has practiced his profession very successfully since. At the first he put in a stock of drugs, in which business his brother, Thomas B. is a partner. The Doctor was appointed postmaster in 1882, under Arthur's administration, and still holds the position. On February 22, 1888, he was united in marriage with Hattie E. Bristol, a finely educated lady from New York, who was formerly a teacher in the Point Pleasant schools. The Doctor is a member of the A. O. U. W.

Joseph Simmonds Wimp (deceased) was a prominent citizen of New Madrid County, Mo., and was born in Louisville, Ky., on August 26, 1828. He died at his home in New Madrid County, on April 7, 1881. His parents (William and Mariah Wimp) were also natives of Louisville, Ky. When the subject of this sketch was a child they started to Texas, but stopped in New Madrid County, Mo., where they remained until their deaths. After the death of his father, Joseph S. managed the home farm, taking care of his mother and the rest of the family until his marriage in 1854, with Sarah A. Barnes, a daughter of Cullen and Eliza (Blair) Barnes. Cullen Barnes and his wife were early settlers of New Madrid County, Mo., the first to locate on Barnes' Ridge, from whom it derives its name. Mr. Barnes improved the land but could not enter it. After his death, however, the family entered a large tract of land on the ridge. Joseph Wimp and Sarah Barnes' marriage was blessed by the birth of nine children, only three of whom are living, viz.: Georgiana (now the wife of Thomas A. Ward), Alphonse (who is married and resides on the old Barnes homestead) and Edward Arch (who is at home managing the farm). Those dead are Virginia Belle, Alice Rose, Napoleon B., Joseph Forest, Dora Lee and John. Joseph S. Wimp was a quiet, enterprising business man, and an exemplary husband. He began business life without means, and, although an invalid, was a good manager, and with the assistance of his wife, a sensible, practical woman, accumulated considerable property. He—as his wife also is—was a believer in the Christian religion and the teachings of the Bible, but was not a member of any church. The family have the respect and esteem of a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

Edward A. Wright, editor and publisher of the Weekly Record, of New Madrid, Mo., was born in St. Louis, on December 2, 1856. His father, Erie Wright, was a native of Massachusetts, and was an architect, contractor and builder in St. Louis, for a number of years. He was married in that city to Louisa Cruchon, a native of France, who was reared and educated in St. Louis. Erie Wright continued his business in St. Louis till his death at Camp Jackson during the war. After the death of her husband Mrs. Wright removed to Jackson, Cape Girardeau County, where she has since resided. Edward A. Wright grew to manhood at Jackson and Cape Girardeau. When a lad of sixteen years he commenced learning the printer's trade in the office of the Cash Book, at Jackson. He continued there until he became a practical printer, and afterward worked at his trade in other offices of that county until he became a skillful job printer. In 1881 he came to New Madrid and took charge of the Weekly Record, as editor and publisher. The paper at that time was a small sheet, a five-column patent outside, with a very limited circulation. Mr. Wright has succeeded in making it a six-column quarto, which has a good patronage in its advertising columns, and a large circulation. The paper is now a credit to its editor and to New Madrid County. Mr. Wright was married in this city in October, 1884, to Miss Cora Grover, who was born, reared and educated in Adams County, Ill. She is a daughter of Benjamin F. Grover, of that county. One son has blessed this union: Grover. Mr. and Mrs. Wright are zealous members of the Presbyterian Church. He is a member of the A. O. U. W., and is recorder of his lodge, and is, also, clerk of the city council.

SCOTT COUNTY.

Julius Albrecht, a prominent farmer of Kelso Township, Scott Co., Mo., was born in Hesse-Cassel, Germany, in 1843. His parents, George and Mary (Mogge) Albrecht, were born and reared in a village near the birth-place of Julius. The father was born in 1803 and the mother in 1807. George Albrecht was a baker by trade, which he followed until 1850, when he with his family came to the United States. On June 1 they landed in Baltimore, from whence they went to Greene County, Ohio, where they remained four years engaged in agricultural pursuits, after which they went to Iowa. Soon after they came down the Mississippi River to Southeast Missouri, and located in Scott County. There George Albrecht purchased a farm lying near the river. This was in the spring of 1855, and he remained there until his death in 1866. His widow survived until 1877. They had five children—four boys and one girl—all dead but the subject of this sketch. Louisa was married, and died leaving three children, two of whom are living. Soon after the death of his parents Julius began work for himself. During the Civil War he served in the State Militia, and after the war was over resumed work on the farm. He first married Catherine Roth, a native of Germany. She died, having borne an infant that died soon after its birth. On September 5, 1872, Mr. Albrecht was united in marriage with Eva B. Eifert, a native of Germany, who came with her parents to America in 1854, when she was but three years of age. By this union Mr. Albrecht has seven children: Anna, Julia, Eliza, John, Mary, Amelia and Lewis. In religious faith the family are Lutherans, of which church Mr. Albrecht has been a member since a child, has been treasurer and trustee for two years, and has also served as elder for two years. He is a self-made man, and has a liberal education, being well informed on all general topics.

Rev. James M. Allen was born in New Madrid County, Mo., January 16, 1851, and is a son of David C. and Angeline (Strong) Allen, the former a native of Louisiana and the latter of Tennessee. The parents came to Missouri at an early day, and entered land in Scott County, which, after a few years, they sold, and removed to New Madrid County, locating near Sikeston. They resided there until Mr. Allen's death, in 1856. He was the father of five children: James M., Samuel M., Martha (Mrs. J. B. Burton), Cyrus J. (deceased) and Benjamin (deceased). Mrs. Allen was married three times, and had children by each husband. She died in August, 1885. Rev. James M. Allen has always been engaged in farming, but in 1887 he engaged in the mercantile business, which he still manages in connection with farming. In 1882 he began studying for the ministry, and was ordained a minister in the Missionary Baptist Church in 1885. He has since been preaching the gospel at different points, and has been instrumental in building several churches in Southeast Missouri. Although he has been preaching but a short time he has done much good for the cause of religion. In 1870 he was united in marriage with Sarah E. Holmes, by whom he had four children, one of whom is living: William D. His wife died in 1878, and he was again married, in 1879, choosing for his second wife Maggie Martin. This union has been blessed by two children (twins), one of whom, George M., is living. The one deceased is Samuel. Mrs. Martin had five children by a former marriage: Katie (deceased), Lila, Bettie, Alvan and Thomas. Mr. Allen is a member of the I. O. O. F., and of the Agricultural Wheel.

James B. Ancell, a substantial farmer residing on a fine hill-farm of 240 acres, near Kelso, Mo., was born in Kentucky, in 1813. He is the son of Henry and Nancy (Beesley) Ancell, who were born and reared in Virginia. Several years after his marriage Henry Ancell removed his family in wagons to Kentucky, where he resided, working at the brickmason's trade, until his death, which occurred when the subject of this sketch was a small boy. Besides the latter, there were six children: Washington, Thornton, Pascal E., John, Henry and Harriet, all of whom are dead. James B. came to Southeast Missouri in 1830, from Todd County, Ky., and located on land which he entered from the Government, near his present home. He afterward entered the farm on which he now resides. Here his mother died in 1856. In 1859 he married Frances Adaline Clark, a native of Cape Girardeau County, born in 1825, and a daughter of John and Sarah Clark, natives of Kentucky, who came to Missouri before their marriage and located in Cape Girardeau County. After their marriage they still remained in Cape Girardeau County, and reared a large family, consisting of ten girls and one boy. The girls all lived to maturity and married. Mr. and Mrs. Ancell are the parents of five children: Emma (wife of Walter Goddard), Sarah M. (wife of S. McFerron), Mary J. (at home), James P. and Mattie J. (both also at home). Mr. Ancell, his wife and two children are devoted members of the Baptist Church. Emma belongs to the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

John Harvey Ancell, a farmer of Kelso Township, Scott Co., Mo., was born where he now resides in 1835, and is a son of Thornton W. and Elvira (Wright) Ancell, natives of Virginia. They were married in Kentucky, where they resided until about 1830, when they came to Missouri and located in Cape Girardeau County. Remaining there one year they removed to Scott County and located on a farm near the Rock Church, in Kelso Township, where they died, the father in April, 1887, aged eighty-two years, and the mother some time previously. To them were born eight children—four boys and four girls—of whom four are living: Thornton A., Parthenia (wife of James Powell), Mildred (wife of John McKinley, residing on a part of the Ancell homestead) and James Harvey. Those dead are: Leander, John, Georgia Ann and Nancy. Georgia Ann was the wife of Edward Joyce, of Cape Girardeau. Thornton W. Ancell first married a Miss Williams, who died previous to his second marriage. James H. Ancell remained with his parents until 1868, when he was united in marriage with Mrs. Emeline (Baldwin) Wiley, the widow of Wilson Wiley, by whom she has two children: Edward and Albert, living near Commerce and Sikeston, respectively. Mrs. Ancell was born in July, 1835. Her first husband died in 1862. Mr. and Mrs. Ancell are the parents of four children: Mary E. (who lives with her step-brother near Commerce), Naomi, Ada and Alice. Mr. Ancell is a successful farmer, and also a member of the Wheel.

William S. Babb, an intelligent and energetic young farmer of Scott County, was born in West Tennessee, January 24, 1852. He is a son of Thomas and Emily (Davis) Babb, both of whom were natives of Tennessee. The family immigrated to Kentucky at an early day, and located at Hickman, where the father died. The mother still lives in Kentucky. They were the parents of nine children, six of whom, James L., William S., Martha, Henry, Charles and Mary, are living. William S. was reared to farm life, and received a liberal education in his own district. He remained with his parents in Kentucky, until 1881, when he came to Missouri. After remaining in Mississippi County one year, he went back to Kentucky. In 1884 he made a permanent settlement in Scott County, Mo. He then purchased the farm he now owns and occupies. He has chosen farming as a life vocation, and bids fair to become one of the first farmers in the county. In 1886 he was united in marriage with Ida Holmes, by whom he has one child, Clarence. Mr. Babb is a member of the I. O. O. F.

James W. Baker, a farmer, was born in West Tennessee on February 20, 1853, and is a son of Lewis and Elizabeth (Dudley) Baker, both natives of North Carolina. When young Lewis Baker immigrated to Tennessee with his parents. In 1857 he removed to New Madrid County, Mo., but soon after went to Scott County. He stopped on Little River, where he purchased a farm, upon which he lived for two years. He then rented and moved his family to the farm upon which James W. now lives. He remained there until his death, in 1873. His wife died in 1865. They were the parents of eight children, four of whom are living: William H., Thomas F., Sarah E. and James W. Those deceased are Martha F., John H. L., Charles N. and Benjamin F. The subject of this sketch was but four years of age when he came with his father to Missouri. He remained with his parents until their deaths. In 1875 he was united in marriage with Eunice J. Green, a daughter of J. D. Green. To them have been born six children: Lewis D., Jennie, Nora E., James W., Jr., Susie J. and Grover O. Mr. Baker cultivates 550 acres of land. He is a member of the Masonic lodge and I. O. O. F. He and wife are church members.

William Ballentine, a prominent citizen of Scott County, Mo., was born in Scotland, in 1826. He is a son of James and Elizabeth (Stoddard) Ballentine, both of whom lived and died in Scotland. His mother dying when he was a child, William was reared by his grandfather until he was ten years of age, after which he lived on sheep-farms with Mrs. Carson and others, until he was fifteen years of age. He then served as an apprentice in a blacksmith shop for five years, after which he worked at his trade until he had saved money enough to pay his way to America. In 1847 he set sail for New York, and upon his arrival went to Middleton, Conn., where he remained two years working at his trade. It was about this time that the news of the excitement over the discovery of gold in California reached him, and he accordingly started west. Reaching Winnebago County, Ill., he worked at his trade until the next March (1850), when he with ten other men started across the plains with teams for the gold fields. They lost their wagon-load of supplies in Weber River, near Salt Lake, but were provided by other emigrants with crackers to eat until they reached Salt Lake City. Arriving in California, in August, Mr. Ballentine worked at his trade and in the mines until the fall of 1851, when he came to Commerce, Mo., via New Orleans. Locating in Commerce he worked at his trade five years. In 1853, on the 4th day of April, he was married to Nancy Pierre, a native of Humphreys County, Tenn., and resided in Commerce until the beginning of the Civil War, when he removed his family to Santa Fe, Ill. He returned to Missouri, and in 1862, under Gov. Gamble, was appointed clerk of Scott County Court, and served until January 1, 1867. In the same year, under Gov. Fletcher, he was appointed judge of the common pleas court. Soon after this court was abolished. Meantime Mr. Ballentine had read law and was admitted to the bar. In 1866 he entered the land on which he now resides. Since entering the land he has cleared and improved over 500 acres, nearly all swamp lands.

Mrs. Ballentine died in 1884, leaving one child, Charles. She left four children, now dead, viz.: Elizabeth, William, Nancy and Lucy. Lucy lived to be grown and was postmistress in Commerce at the time of her death. Mr. Ballentine served as postmaster of Commerce for several years. He married the second time, choosing for his wife Mrs. Emily (Brooks) Sewell. Mrs. Ballentine had three sons and five daughters by her first marriage, viz.: Alice, Jane and Florence at the home of our subject; Josephine and Dora, married, and Frank, living near Commerce. Of the other two boys, one is dead.

William R. Batts, an enterprising farmer and stock grower of Scott County, Mo., was born in Cheatham County, Tenn., August 13, 1851. The parents, Benjamin F. and Sarah Ann (Gupton) Batts, were born in Tennessee, the former on January 5, 1828, and the latter on February 1, 1832. They were reared and married in their native State, after which they engaged in farming. In 1866 they came to Southeast Missouri, but after four and one-half years returned to Tennessee. However, they came back to Southeast Missouri in 1876, and located on land which they purchased near the farm of William R. Batts, on which they have since resided. To them were born thirteen children. Those living are: William R., Sarah (Mrs. H. H. Daugherty), Martha (Mrs. D. A. Potter), Nicholas C., John T. and Caledonia. Those dead are Mary F. (wife of I. E. Wilson), Robert (aged seven years), James (aged two years), Calvin and Allan, Cullie (aged one and one-half years) and Juda (aged ten years). William R. remained with his parents until he reached his majority, when he engaged in farming for himself, first in Stoddard County, and then in Tennessee, but in 1871 he came back to Missouri, and, after working eighteen months in Dunklin County, returned to Tennessee. In 1875 he returned to Scott County, and located on his present farm in Morley Township. He was elected justice of the peace of the township, on November 15, 1886, and is clerk of his school district. He has been married twice; first, February 7, 1878, to Julia A. Finley, who was born January 2, 1842, and died December 20, 1883. To them were born two children: Benjamin R. (born March 24, 1879) and John A. (born March 24, 1882). He next married Emma E. Jones, on January 15, 1885. She was a native of Kentucky, born March 5, 1869, and is a daughter of George W. L. and Sophronia I. (Potter) Jones. Her father died in July, 1879, after which her mother and family came to Southeast Missouri, in 1880, and located on a farm in Scott County. She is the mother of nine children: Lewis A., Marion A., Alice D., Ada A., Emma E., Ella M., Henry A. (deceased), Robert J. (deceased) and Charles H. (deceased). By this union Mr. Batts has two children: Industry (born October 15, 1885) and Marion (born April 2, 1887, died when three days old). Mrs. Batts is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He belongs to the I. O. O. F.

Jesse R. Berry, a substantial farmer of Scott County, is a native of that county, born on November 27, 1823. He is a son of Thomas and Sarah (Frend) Berry, natives of Kentucky and Scott County, Missouri, respectively. The paternal great-grandfather was born in Ireland, and married a French lady, after which he removed to France, but had to leave that country in order to hold his slaves. He and family soon after immigrated to the United States. The grandfather of our subject, Joseph Berry, died in Hopkins County, Ky. The Frend family emigrated from Switzerland to the United States to fight for Gen. Washington. After independence had been gained and peace restored, they removed west and landed at Cairo on June 4, 1801. They crossed the river and entered a Spanish claim, one mile square, now known as the Watkins farm. Here two or three generations lived and died. They were farmers and successful business men. Thomas Berry, the father of Jesse R., with his three brothers, Joseph, William and Reuben, served under Gen. Jackson in the War of 1812, and were in the battle of New Orleans. Thomas immigrated to Scott County, Mo., about 1815, and entered 120 acres of land near the Watkins farm. After erecting a little log house in the timber, he began clearing the land which he afterward converted into a good farm, upon which he lived until his death, about 1835. His wife died in 1858. They had six children, of whom Louisa, Jesse R. and Maria are living. Thomas J., Elmira and Richard are dead. Jesse R. has been a resident of Scott County during his life, and has witnessed its growth from a wilderness to its present high state of cultivation. He has made farming his chief occupation, and now cultivates about 200 acres of land. He has been married twice, the first time in 1856 to Hannah Andrews, who died in 1861. In 1874 he married Julia A. Snyder, by whom he has five children:

William M., Charles J., Virginia J., Sarah A. and Lysander. Mr. Berry is a Mason and a member of the Wheeler Society.

Eliphalet L. Brown, one of the prominent citizens of Scott County, Mo., was born in Mississippi County, April 10, 1845. He is a son of Francis M. and Julia A. (Seaton) Brown [see sketch]. The subject of this sketch was reared on his father's farm in Mississippi County, and was mostly educated in the common schools. He attended one session at Christian Brothers' College, St. Louis. In 1872 he was married to Cleo P. Lane, by whom he has one child, E. Lindsay. Mrs. Brown died in 1877, and he was again married on June 17, 1878, choosing for his second wife S. Alice, a daughter of Amalphus and Mary A. (Hacker) Simonds. The former was a native of New York. Mrs. Simonds was born in Union County, Ill., and is a daughter of Capt. John S. Hacker, who settled in Union County, Ill., about 1810, and figured prominently in Southern Illinois during the remainder of his life. He spent thirty years in Jonesboro, where he erected the Pioneer Hotel. At the head of a company of ninety-six men he served through the Mexican War, after which he made an overland trip to California. His wife, Eliza Miliken, whose father gave the name of Miliken Bend to a curve in the Mississippi River, died in 1853. Capt. Hacker then removed to Cairo, and died at Anna, Ill., in 1878, in his eighty-ninth year. Mr. and Mrs. Brown have one child, Amalphus S. On December 9, 1884, Mr. Brown removed to his present farm in Scott County. He owns 1,800 acres of land, 1,000 acres of which are under cultivation, with good improvements. He also owns what is known as Price's Landing, one of the oldest steamboat landings in Southeast Missouri. Mrs. Brown is a member of the Episcopal Church.

Elisha F. Bryant resides on a fine farm of 600 acres, with about 200 acres under cultivation, in Morley Township, Scott County, Mo. He is a native of the county, born in 1855, and is a son of Joseph and Manthesous (Merritt) Bryant, natives of Tennessee and Kentucky, respectively. When a boy Joseph Bryant came from his native State to Southeast Missouri with his parents, Elisha and Margaret (Penn) Bryant. The family located on Little River and engaged in farming, where the parents died at a ripe old age. They had nine children, all of whom are now dead. Joseph Bryant was reared on his father's farm, and about 1846 settled on the farm where the subject of this sketch now resides. The former lived near until his death in 1861. His widow, who afterward became the wife of R. B. Steele, of Kentucky, is residing near the home place. To Joseph Bryant and wife were born six children: Mary F. (Mrs. J. H. Groer), Elisha F. and John J. (twins, deceased), Wilson (deceased), Margaret (Mrs. George A. Mathews) and Josephine Ann (Mrs. W. F. Miller). By her marriage with Mr. Steele, the mother has two children, Wilson B. and Donno Inis, both of whom are at home. After he reached fifteen years of age Elisha F. assisted his mother on the farm, and about 1878 purchased the farm and has since resided there, with the exception of fourteen months in Morley. He was married in 1878 to Alice Owens, a native of the county, born in 1839, and a daughter of John and Lucretia (Hamilton) Owens, natives of Southeast Missouri and Indiana, respectively. They came to Scott County at an early day, and had seven children, of whom Alice is the only one living. Those deceased are Edward T., William M., Elvira, Lucretia, Mary A., and an infant unnamed. The parents both died in 1875, the father on October 28, aged forty-two years, and the mother on November 28, aged forty-six years. Mr. and Mrs. Bryant have three children, Gueda A., Cora C. and John F. Mr. Bryant is now serving as constable of Morley.

William H. Bugg, a prominent farmer of Scott County, Mo., was born in Tennessee in 1847, and was reared in Kentucky. His parents, Jesse and Eliza (Atchison) Bugg, were natives of Tennessee and were reared and married in their native State. In 1848 they removed to Kentucky and located on a farm in Hickman County, where they remained until 1867, when they came to Southeast Missouri and settled on a farm in Morley Township, Scott County, where the subject of this sketch now lives. Mr. Bugg died in 1870, aged sixty years. Mrs. Bugg died about 1860, aged thirty-eight years. They had seven children, four of whom are dead, viz.: Martha E., Ann M., Mary S. and Jesse H. Those living are William H., John A. and James R. After the death of Mrs. Bugg, Mr. Bugg married Mrs. Mary E. Sanders, by whom he had one child, Eliza C., the wife of O. M. Wilson. William H. remained on his father's farm until the death of the latter, and in 1872 was united in marriage with Miss Janie Wilson, who bore him two children, Thomas L. and William E., deceased. She died in April, 1876, aged twenty-two years. Mr. Bugg was married again January 24, 1878, choosing for his wife Lucy W. Townes, a daughter of William M. and Mary C. (Dodson) Townes, natives of Virginia and North Carolina, respectively. The family removed to Tennessee in 1854 and resided until their deaths, the father's in 1863, and the mother's in 1873, aged forty-one and forty years, respectively. They had six children, Stephen A., Eddie E. (Mrs. James Trainer, of Arkansas), L. A. (deceased), Lucy W., William M. (of Texas), and Nathaniel F. By a previous marriage with Eliza Thomas, Mr. Townes had four children, of whom one, James M., is living. Those dead are Thomas J., Monroe C. and Mary L., wife of Dr. C. C. Harris, of Benton, Mo. Mrs. Bugg came to Southeast Missouri in 1874 and resided with Mrs. Harris until the former's marriage. Mr. Bugg has a fine farm of 160 acres, with 100 acres under cultivation. He and wife have two children, Minnie I. and Otto.

Capt. William W. Campbell, a prominent stock farmer of Scott County, Mo., was born in Kentucky in December, 1826, and is a son of William J. and Priscilla (Asbell) Campbell, natives of North Carolina, where they were reared, being married in Kentucky, to which they removed about the time of the Jackson purchase. In the winter of 1833 they came to Southeast Missouri, and located near Charleston, where they both died, the father in 1848, aged forty-six years, and the mother on November 5, 1855, aged forty-eight years. They had nine children: Eson C. (deceased), William W., Joseph M. (deceased), Malissa C., Granderson M., Aaron D. (deceased), Martha I. (deceased), and Polly Ann (deceased). Granderson M. is in Texas engaged in farming. Malissa C. lives with the subject of this sketch. William W. came to Missouri with his parents, and remained at home until 1848, when he went to North Missouri, but was taken sick soon after and returned home and engaged in the grocery business in Charleston. After continuing about two years he sold out, and in the spring of 1850 went to California. Four years later he left the latter State and went by ship to Key West, thence to Virginia, where he left the ship and proceeded to Baltimore, Philadelphia, and from there on to Southeast Missouri. After one year's merchandising at what is known as Lane's Landing, on the Mississippi River, he purchased 260 acres of land near his present farm and engaged in agricultural pursuits. The next year (1856) he sold that and purchased the farm on which he now resides. In 1864 he was mustered into the Federal army as captain of Company D, Fiftieth Missouri Volunteer Infantry, and was discharged in St. Louis in July, 1865. At the close of the war he returned home and resumed farming, but his house had been burned by guerrillas. In 1854 he was married to Molly Daniel, a native of Mississippi County, Mo. She died in 1859, leaving one daughter, Louisa, who afterwards became the wife of Martin L. Terrell, and died in 1877. On August 18, 1859, Mr. Campbell married Emily J. Hinton, who was born in Scott County, Mo., on April 12, 1838, and died October 8, 1879. To this union six children were born, as follows: Alexander, Joseph (born on December 19, 1862, died on September 1, 1864), Alice (born on February 15, 1866, died on August 19, 1871), Murray (born April 1, 1875), Thomas (born April 2, 1876), and George A. (born February 15, 1879). Mr. Campbell is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. His wife was also a member of the same church. Mr. Campbell is enterprising and progressive, and has done much to promote the educational facilities of his district.

William L. Carroll, a successful farmer of Scott County, was born in Indianapolis, Ind., July 4, 1856, and is a son of Matthew and Anna (Burns) Carroll, both natives of County Wexford, Ireland. They were married in their native country and immigrated to America. Locating at Indianapolis, Ind., they resided there until 1859, when they immigrated to New Madrid County, Mo., and located a few miles south of Sikeston. Mr. Carroll was a farmer, and in 1861 he removed his family to Stoddard County, Mo., where he purchased, at a good price, a great deal of swampland, which afterward proved to be worthless. He, in partnership with Sterling Smith, built what is known as the Levee Road. Although possessing considerable wealth, he was broken up during the war, and died on August 5, 1870. His wife died in 1862. They had five children, only two of whom are living: Patrick (who resides in New York) and William L. Those deceased are Mary A., Hannah and Nicholas E. The subject of this sketch was but an infant when his parents removed to Southeast Missouri. He remained with his father until the latter's death, and received his education at Bloomfield and Cape Girardeau. In 1873 he came to Scott County, and worked for others until he was married, January 15, 1879, to Susan M. Marshall, when he began working for himself. He now owns 320 acres of valuable land. His home farm contains 160 acres, mostly under cultivation, with good improvements. He and wife have had five children: Franklin M., William N., Mary A., Oscar E. and Parthena F. (deceased). Mr. Carroll is a member of the A. F. & A. M., I. O. O. F. and Wheeler Society.

Charles Chaney, a farmer and stock raiser of Scott County, Mo., was born in the county in 1840, and is a son of Levi D. and Mary E. (Neely) Chaney, both natives of Kentucky. Levi D. Chaney came with his mother to Southeast Missouri about 1828 or 1830, and located in Perry County. He afterward removed to Cape Girardeau County, from whence he came to Scott County, and located near Sikeston, where he died in 1862, aged fifty-two years. His widow died in 1863, age forty-six years. They were the parents of eleven children, five of whom are living, viz.: Charles, Sarah E. (Mrs. Jasper Wilson), Jason (of Dunklin County, Mo.), Benjamin F. (of Sikeston), and Susan (wife of Dr. Kendall, of Sikeston). Charles remained at home until he was twenty-two years of age, and assisted his parents on the farm. Some time during the Civil War, he enlisted in the State Guards under Jeff. Thompson, and served four months, when he returned home, and was married. He located on a farm in Richwoods, and remained two years, when he sold out and removed to Sikeston, and engaged in merchandising, but after nine months he abandoned the mercantile business, and removed to a farm again. About 1880 he removed to his present location. He has been married three times, first to Frances Moore, who was born and reared in Scott County. She died in 1877, having borne six children: Charles, Mary C., Francis B., John L. (deceased), Cassie (deceased) and Cora (deceased). He afterward married Mrs. Mary E. (Bugg) Timmons, a native of Kentucky. She had two children by her first marriage, Charles and Bruce. She died about one year and nine months after her marriage with Mr. Chaney. In 1879 he married his present wife, Mrs. Evaline (Reeves) Allen, who had four children by her first marriage: Benjamin F., Louisa, John, and an infant (deceased). By this union, Mr. Chaney has four children: Thomas, Alonzo, Sarah and Jamesette. Mr. Chaney is a member of the A. O. U. W. He and wife are active member of the Baptist Church.

Benjamin F. Chaney, druggist at Sikeston, Scott Co., Mo., was born in that county on May 1, 1855. He is a son of Levi D. and Mary E. (Neeley) Chaney, both natives of Kentucky. Levi D. Chaney immigrated to Missouri about 1815 and settled three miles north of Sikeston, being one of the first settlers of this section of the county. He pre-empted 160 acres of land, upon which he erected a rude log cabin, in which he lived to make his pre-emption good. He afterward improved the place, and resided there until his death, at which time he owned about 500 acres of land. He died in 1864, and his wife died in 1866. They were the parents of eleven children, five of whom are living: Charles, Sarah (Mrs. W. J. Wilson), Jason, Benjamin F., and Susan (wife of Dr. O. E. Kendall). The subject of this sketch being quite small when his father died was cared for by his eldest brother, for whom he worked until he was about fourteen years of age. He, two years later, on September, 1871, entered Bellevue Institute at Caledonia, Mo., and remained two and one-half years, after which he took a course in Eastman's Commercial College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Upon leaving school he visited various cities in the United States, and attended the Centennial at Philadelphia. Soon after his return to Sikeston, he was appointed deputy county collector, which office he held but a short time, when he engaged in the drug business for Dr. Kendall, and remained with him about four months. He and N. Sikes then purchased the stock of drugs, and carried on business eighteen months, under the firm name of Sikes & Chaney, when Mr. Chaney purchased Mr. Sikes interest, and has since been engaged in the business alone. In 1885 he was appointed postmaster, which office he still fills. He owns 220 acres of good land with 200 acres under cultivation. He was married in 1880, to Kate Brown, a native of New Madrid County. Their union has been blessed by three children: Lydia, Benjamin F., Jr., and Audrey. Mr. Chaney is a Mason. Mrs. Chaney is a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

George W. Chrismon, a promising young farmer of Scott County, was born in Henry County, Tenn., on February 21, 1853. His parents, James H. and Mary (Liggett) Chrismon, were natives of Williamson County, Tenn. Grandfather Chrismon came from England, and settled first in Pennsylvania, but afterward immigrated to Tennessee, where he was killed by a horse kicking him. The Liggett family immigrated to the United States from Ireland, and settled in Tennessee. James H. Chrismon was reared in his native State. His early life was passed in the mercantile business, but his later years were spent on the farm. He removed to Missouri in 1872, making the entire journey in wagons. He located in Mississippi County, but after one year he immigrated to Crawford County, Kas. Not being satisfied with that climate, he returned to Missouri after one year, and settled in Scott County, where he died in October, 1875. His wife died in April, 1877. They were the parents of eight children, three of whom, Lizzie (Mrs. Matt Simon), Thomas J. and George W., are living. The subject of this sketch was reared on his parents' farm, and received a liberal education in the common schools. He remained with his parents until their deaths, since which time he has worked for himself and has been very successful in business. He has purchased 120 acres of forest land, which he is now clearing and turning into a valuable farm. Mr. Chrismon is a member of the Wheeler Society.

John W. Clemson, station agent and notary public of Oran, Mo., was born in Dresden, Weakley Co., Tenn., July 12, 1848. He is a son of Jonathan S. and Lumega (Fowler) Clemson. Jonathan S. Clemson was born in North Carolina in 1818, and removed to Tennessee in 1844. Lumega (Fowler) Clemson was born in Granville County, N. C., in 1821, and is a daughter of John and Nancy (Henrick) Fowler, natives of North Carolina and Virginia, respectively. When seven years of age, Lumega Fowler, with her parents, left her native State and located on a farm near Dresden, Tenn., where the parents died—John Fowler in 1855, aged eighty-seven years; and his wife in 1835, aged forty-six years. To them were born seven children. Those living are Sarah H. (aged seventy-three years), Charles E. (of Texas), John T. (of Fulton, Ky., with whom Sarah H. resides) and Mrs. Clemson (now living in Commerce, Mo.). Lumega (Fowler) Clemson remained with her parents until she was married in 1846. She and her husband remained in Tennessee until 1856, when they came to Missouri and located in Ripley County, but the next year removed to Commerce, where Mr. Clemson died on March 28, 1868. They were the parents of five children: Magarie A. M. (wife of ex-county judge S. R. Jones, of Commerce), Nancy L. (widow of Virgil Porterfield), John W., Georgiana (wife of Raymond Dodge, of Kansas City) and Charles E. (deceased). John W. remained with his parents until about twenty years of age, after which he was employed at various occupations until 1874, when he was elected constable of Sylvania Township and served four years. In March, 1879, he entered the railroad office at Oran, Mo., as agent, and remained till 1880, when he went to Commerce and worked in a mill until May 21, 1881, when he came back to Oran and took his present position in the railroad office. He first married Louisa Pugh, of Commerce, who died November 9, 1876. On July 4, 1877, he wedded Jennie Friend, who died on January 7, 1885, leaving two children: Georgia R. and Jennie W. She lost two children in infancy: Thomas F. and John S. Mr. Clemson married his present wife, Ella J. Harris, on February 24, 1886. She is a member of the Baptist Church. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., and of the A. O. U. W.

John R. Coffman, M. D., a prominent physician of Commerce, Mo., was born in Ste. Genevieve County, Mo., in 1846. His grandfather, Joseph Coffman, was born in Pennsylvania of German parents, and, although he spoke English well, was much more thoroughly versed in German. He located in Virginia. The family residence was within fourteen miles of Monticello—the abode of Thomas Jefferson. In 1832 Joseph Coffman left Virginia, with his family, and came to Ste. Genevieve County, Mo., where he resolved to settle. Learning that there was good land for sale twenty miles south of Ste. Genevieve, he proceeded in that direction and purchased the estate on which his family has since resided. This estate contained 1,200 arpents of land, which he afterward cultivated, and which formed the foundation of his fortune, and that of his son, John, who inherited the estate. Joseph Coffman died in 1856, and John Coffman, the father of the subject of this sketch, took possession of the property, and managed it with rare skill, until his death. The emancipation of 116 slaves diminished the value of the property $75,000. In 1840 John Coffman and Jane L. Smith were united in marriage. She was the daughter of Judge Smith (judge of the court of quarter-sessions at Ste. Genevieve). John Coffman died October 25, 1887, with chronic pleurisy. His wife died previously, in 1880. They were the parents of ten children, viz.: James W., Charles, Frank, John, Jesse, Lucinda (now Mrs. Bull), Ida (now Mrs. Tillman), Joseph, Jennie (Mrs.

Crowder) and Menard. Charles and Menard are deceased. John R. Coffman remained with his parents in Ste. Genevieve County until he was sixteen years of age, when he entered the Washington University of St. Louis, and remained four years, after which he entered the St. Louis Medical College, from which institution he graduated in 1869. In 1870 he took a diploma from the College of Physicians and Surgeons of New York. Returning home, he soon after went to Hood County, Tex., and remained there four years, practicing his profession. He then located at Commerce. He is a member of the Southeast Missouri Medical Association, and has taken special courses on the eye. He was married in 1871 to Anna P. Saunders, a native of Arkansas, born in 1850. She is a daughter of John and Martha Saunders, natives of Alabama. Besides his profession, Dr. Coffman has large farming interests. He and his wife are the parents of five children: Frederic, Harry, Normante, Yancy and Marie. Normante is dead. Dr. Coffman is a member of the A. F. & A. M. and of the A. O. U. W. Both he and Mrs. Coffman are earnest members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

James L. Crow, an enterprising farmer of Scott County, Mo., was born in West Tennessee on December 14, 1846, and is a son of Edward and Elizabeth (Hopkins) Crow. The paternal great-grandfather immigrated to the United States from Germany and settled in Crittenden County, Ky. The grandfather, Levi S. Crow, emigrated from Kentucky to Tennessee, and resided there until his death. Edward Crow's family, after his death, removed from Tennessee to Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in 1854, and remained there until 1861, when they removed to Union County, Ill. The mother of our subject died in 1879. She had one other child, Mary A. (deceased). James L. remained with his mother until the war broke out, when he enlisted in Company F, One Hundred-and-Forty-fifth Illinois Regiment (afterward consolidated with the Eighteenth Illinois), and served until the close of the war. While on the boat going from St. Louis, he received a fall which disabled him for some time. He served as corporal and also as sergeant. In September, 1864, at Muzelle Bridge, he received a gunshot wound in the right leg. After the war (in 1867) he removed to Scott County, Mo., and located where he now resides, and has lived ever since, with the exception of one year, in Stoddard County. He cultivates 335 acres of good land, and is a successful and intelligent business man. In 1864 he was united in marriage with Amanda A. Radden, a native of Illinois. They are the parents of eight children, three of whom are living: William, Charles A. and Edward D. His wife died in 1876, and in 1877 he married Paralee Radden, by whom he had one child, Robert G. She died in 1884. He was married to Mary A. Man, in 1885. To this union one child has been born—Ebert. Mr. Crow is a Mason, and a member of the I. O. O. F. and K. of P.

Benjamin S. Curd was born in Kentucky, in 1833, and is a son of Charles and Sarah (Martin) Curd, natives of Virginia and England, respectively. The Curd family immigrated to the United States from Ireland, and located in Virginia, from whence they removed to Kentucky, where the parents of our subject died. The latter came to Missouri in 1856, and located on Price's Landing, on the Mississippi River. He was engaged in shipping grain until the Civil War, and for a short time after the close of the war. He then removed to Point Pleasant, Mo., and engaged in the same business, but after a short stay there he removed to New Madrid County and remained until 1869, when he removed to Morley, Scott County, where he has since resided, engaged in merchandising. He was married in 1856 to Miss Kate Price, of Price's Landing, a daughter of Archie A. Price, a cousin of Gen. Price, and Mary Hunter, a daughter of Col. Abram Hunter. The Price family are all dead except Mrs. Curd and her sister, Mary Griffith, (now living at Morley). Three children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Curd: Lutie P. (who is married and resides in Morley), Mary, (deceased) and Lyman (also deceased). Mrs. Curd is a consistent member of the Baptist Church. Mr. Curd received his education in the seminary at Murray. He is quite fond of literature, and owns a very fine library. Mr. Curd's parents had a family of fifteen children, nine of whom grew to maturity, and seven of whom are living at present. Besides Benjamin S., are Dr. E. B. and James E., of Kentucky, Richard, Thomas, Elizabeth, Austin and Sarah Russell, of Texas.

Samuel F. M. Darby, farmer and a member of the firm of Stallcup & Co., grain merchants, was born in Scott County, Mo., on September 1, 1845. He is a son of William T. and Delpha C. (Kirkpatrick) Darby, the former a native of South Carolina and the latter of Tennessee. William T. Darby immigrated to Scott County about 1833, and stopped near Price's Landing, where he remained a short time, when he entered 120 acres of land at Sandywoods. He removed to the latter place, and remained there until his death, on December 23, 1883, aged sixty-five years six months and fourteen days. His widow still resides there. They were the parents of eight children, five of whom are living: William, Casper, James A., John W. and Martha Jane. Those deceased are Nancy E., Mary L. and Margaret Ann. Samuel remained on his father's farm until he was twenty-four years of age, when he was married to America Ballard, and located six miles north of Charleston. After three years he moved to Wayne County, Mo., and remained there until December, 1873, when he removed to his present home near Sikeston. Seven children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Darby: Grady C., Effie E., Charles M., Mary C. and Samuel E., living, and James William and Albert King, deceased. Mr. Darby is a member of the A. O. U. W. He and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

John W. Daugherty, a stock farmer and fruit grower, of Scott County, Mo., was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., February 28, 1835, and is the son of William and Pauline (Mansfield) Daugherty. William Daugherty was born in Cape Girardeau, in the same house in which the subject of this sketch was born. Pauline Mansfield was born in Kentucky, in 1806, and came to Missouri with her parents about 1809. The family located in New Madrid County, but after the earthquake of 1812, removed to Scott County. William Daugherty was a son of Elijah Daugherty, a native of Virginia, who removed to Missouri, and located near Jackson in the early settlement of Cape Girardeau County. He died in 1856, at about seventy-eight years of age. His wife, Patty Daugherty, died about 1840. Their children were William, John H., Jarvis, Joseph, Sarah, Betsy, Emily, Mary and Martha (all deceased). To William and Pauline Daugherty were born six children, viz.: Elijah (deceased), Agnes (also deceased), Mary (living in Illinois), John W., Joseph (of Scott County), and Jarvis (of New Madrid County). Their mother died on December 24, 1839, after which Mr. Daugherty married Jane Griffin, a native of Indiana, who died in 1859, leaving three children, Sarah, Matilda and Patty. William Daugherty died in April, 1873. John W. Daugherty commenced work for himself in 1857, but made his home with his father until his marriage in 1861, when he located on a farm in Scott County, but removed to his present improved farm in 1866. He was married February 28, 1861, in this county, by Rev. Rucker, to Elizabeth Price, who was born March 6, 1839, and reared in Scott County, Mo., but was educated at Hopkinsville, Ky. She is the daughter of Thomas H. and Mary (Baldwin) Price, early settlers in Scott County. Thomas Harrison Price was born March 2, 1808, in Alexander County, Md., near the Potomac River. His parents died when he was quite young, leaving a family of two girls and six or eight boys. Harriet and Ann were the daughters. One of them married a John Wood, the first settler of Woodville, Ky.; the other married John Wilcox. The sons were Richard, Robert, Joseph and William Elgin. William Price lived in Hopkinsville, Ky., about fifty years, and died there about 1869 or 1870. He was married to a Miss Margaret Coleman, of Hopkinsville. Thomas H. Price's first wife was from Kentucky—Miss Mildred Mansfield. They moved to Missouri about 1831 or 1832, and had two children: John Wesley and Mary. Mrs. Price died about 1834. Mary Baldwin, his second wife, was born August 8, 1813. They were married October 30, 1836, and had the following named children: Thomas William (deceased), born September 7, 1837; Elizabeth Winifred, March 6, 1839; Termelia Adaline, March 20, 1841; Ann Eliza, November 1, 1843; Edward Harrison, March 14, 1846; Washington Price (deceased), January 28, 1849; Charles Robert, April 7, 1851; Benjamin Franklin (deceased), May 25, 1854, and Richard Jefferson, February 1, 1856. Mr. Price died October 7, 1864. His widow lives in Texas with her youngest son. Her children are Elizabeth, Adaline, Anna, Edward, Robert and Jefferson. Mr. Daugherty is a member of the A., F. & A. M. and of the Agricultural Wheel. Mr. and Mrs. Daugherty have eight boys and two girls, one of whom is dead, Elijah M., born April 14, 1862, died September 28, 1863. Those living, with dates of birth, are as follows: Margaret Elvora, March 18, 1864; William Thomas, May 18, 1866; Pearl Edward, August 27, 1868; John Alexander, September 14, 1870; Mary Alberty, February 10, 1873; Benjamin Robert, April 13, 1875; Marshal Ernest, October 31, 1877; Holcombe May, December 12, 1879; Paul Batten, August 10, 1882.

H. H. Daugherty, sheriff of Scott County, Mo., was born in Dunklin County, in 1849, and is a son of John H. and Catherine (Summers) Daugherty, both natives of Southeast Missouri. John H. Daugherty was born in 1816, and died on December 14, 1887. He was a son of Elijah Daugherty, one of the first settlers of the Cape Girardeau District. The former went from Cape Girardeau County to Dunklin County in 1849, and served as sheriff of the county for two terms. Returning to Cape Girardeau County he remained until 1855 or 1856, when he removed to Scott County, but at the beginning of the Civil War he went to Illinois and remained until the war was over, when he returned to Scott County, and resided on what is known as Daugherty Landing, until eight years before his death, when he removed to Morley. He was a farmer by vocation. To him and wife were born twelve children, eight of whom are living, viz.: Columbia (Mrs. John T. Gaither, of Commerce), Alexander, Henry H., James A. (a resident of St. Louis), Elijah (a merchant of Morley), Ruth, Llewellyn (a druggist of Benton), and John. Those deceased are: Ashley (who died in March, 1886), Minnie, Martha (the wife of A. M. Massey), and an infant. Mrs. Daugherty is still residing in Morley. Henry H. remained with his parents until he was twenty-two years of age, when he married Luttice Singleton, a native of Marietta, Ohio. She died in 1875, having borne three children, all of whom died in infancy. Their names are: Fannie, Ella and Eva. Mr. Daugherty afterward married Sarah Batts, a native of Tennessee. To them have been born five children: Leda, Marvin, Willie and John (deceased) and one that died in infancy. In November, 1884, Mr. Daugherty was elected sheriff of Scott County, and was re-elected in 1886. From 1875 to 1883 he served as postmaster of Morley. Since 1873 he has resided in Morley. Besides his town property he has two farms near town, and a drug-store in Benton. Mr. and Mrs. Daugherty are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a member of the A. F. & A. M. and of the A. O. U. W.

Carter F. De Wint, a druggist of Commerce, Mo., was born in Kansas City, Mo., in 1852, and is the son of Dr. Frederick and Sarah De Wint. Frederick De Wint was a graduate of the St. Louis Medical College. He came to Commerce in 1866, and remained until his death. During the Civil War he served as surgeon in the Federal army. By his first wife, the mother of the subject of this sketch, he had three children: Carter F., John (who died in 1866), and Sarah A. (widow of Madison Petty), of Commerce. The second time, Dr. De Wint married Maggie Arnold, who was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County, Mo. To this union were born two children, Ada and Alma, now residing with Mrs. Petty, and attending school in Commerce. Their mother is dead. Carter F. De Wint engaged in business on his own account, in Commerce, in 1881. After the death of his father he continued the business at his father's old stand. In 1877 his marriage with Miss Maggie Billing was celebrated. She was born and reared in Commerce, and is a daughter of D. C. Billing, a ferryman on the Mississippi River. Their union has been blessed by the birth of three children, viz.: Harry C., Alta and Grace. Mr. and Mrs. De Wint are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Thomas B. Dodge, a substantial farmer of Scott County, was born in Jefferson County, Ky., on December 11, 1845. His parents, Martin B. and Lucinda E. (Bacon) Dodge, were natives of New York and Kentucky, respectively. The grandfather, Jerrod Dodge, emigrated from his native land, Scotland, to America, and settled in Erie County, N. Y., where he resided until his death. He was a soldier in the War of 1812. Martin B. Dodge was reared at his father's home near New York City, and when a young man, immigrated to Kentucky, where he married and reared a family. In 1860 he brought his family and goods in wagons to Mississippi County, Mo., and located about fifteen miles from Charleston. Several years later he purchased and removed to a farm near Charleston, where he resided until his death, September 4, 1874. His widow still resides there. They were the parents of four children: Thomas B., Emma (Mrs. Richard Harris), Melvina A. (Mrs. Frank Grayson) and Mabel Harper (deceased). The subject of this sketch left the home of his parents soon after coming to Missouri, and worked out until he was married, on December 27, 1868, to Mary, a daughter of John and Almira (Kirkpatrick) Martin, natives of Virginia. He then settled on a farm near Price's Landing, but, after one year, he removed to Charleston. In November, 1878, he purchased his present farm. At that time the land was in the forest, and it has required several years of hard labor to put it all under its present state of cultivation. Mr. and Mrs. Dodge have four children: Ida, John M., Thomas R. and David E. Mrs. Dodge is a consistent member of the Missionary Baptist Church. Mr. Dodge is a member of the Wheeler Society.

Joseph Dohogne, an enterprising farmer of Kelso Township, Scott County, Mo., was born in Belgium in 1848, and in 1854 came to the United States with his parents, John Joseph and Mary Ann Dohogne, both natives of Belgium. They engaged in agricultural pursuits on a farm near New Hamburg, Scott County, Mo., where the parents died in 1875, within four weeks of each other. To them were born seven children, five of whom are living: Josephine (now the wife of Philip Mueller, of Wisconsin), Angeline (wife of Philip Rassman, of Wisconsin), Constantine (residing in Kelso, Mo.), Joseph and Adolph (residing in New Hamburg). Those dead are John and Clementine. Joseph lived with his parents until their deaths. In December, 1873, he married Miss Victoria Heisserer, who was born and reared in Scott County. Their union has been blessed by the birth of five children, all boys, two of whom died in infancy. Those living are John, Louis and William. In 1881 Mr. Dohogne removed to his present farm, consisting of 100 acres. In religious belief the family are members of the Catholic Church. Mr. Dohogne served seven months in 1864, in the State Militia, under Capt. Samuel Tanner, now of Sikeston, Mo.

Nelson O. Ellis, a prosperous farmer of Commerce Township, Scott Co., Mo., was born June 1, 1838. He is a son of Edward Ellis, a native of Maryland, who married Harriet R. Nelson, in Virginia, of which State she was a native. After their union they removed to Kentucky, and located in Washington County, where they remained about four years, and then came to Southeast Missouri. Locating near the present town of Benton, they soon after removed to a place on the Mississippi River, now known as Gray's Point. There Mr. Ellis built a large frame grist and sawmill, the first one in Scott County. He afterward sold his mill, and removed back, near Benton, but later removed to the farm now occupied by Miss Emily Ellis. He and wife reared a large family of children. Those living are Emily, Susan (Mrs B. B. Gaither), Eliza (Mrs. Daniel H. Leedy) and Nelson O. Those dead are Jackson, Benjamin, Edward, William, Nancy, Sarah, Mary, Elizabeth and Harriet. Nelson O. lived at home until the death of his parents, which happened about the commencement of the Civil War. He then enlisted in the Confederate army, under Col. Alexander Waugh, and after the war came home, and engaged in dealing in horses and mules. On September 19, 1865, he married Martha Jane Ancell, a daughter of Pascal E. and Martha (Whitelaw) Ancell. Pascal E. Ancell was married three times, Martha Whitelaw being his first wife. The latter died when Martha Jane, her child, was three months old. Pascal E. Ancell died in 1883. Mrs. Ellis was reared by her grandmother, Nancy Ancell, who lived to be very old at the home of the former's father. Mr. and Mrs. Ellis' union has been blessed by the birth of five children: Fannie, Earlie P., Joseph F., Theodore F. and Eliza A. Mrs. Ellis is an earnest member of the Missionary Baptist Church. He has a nice farm of 360 acres, and resides in a brick house that was built about 1859 by Henry Ancell. On March 20, 1866, it was destroyed by a cyclone, and rebuilt in 1867.

James F. Evins, postmaster at Blodgett, Mo., and a member of the firm of Evins & Marshall, general merchants, was born in Lyon County, Ky., January 20, 1854, and is the only child of William S. and Elizabeth (Withrow) Evins, both natives of Kentucky, the latter of German descent. The grandfather, Louis Evins, was also a native of Kentucky. He died in Scott County, Mo., in March, 1884. William S. Evins was reared in his native State, and immigrated to Missouri in 1856. He purchased a farm from A. Hunter, about one and a half miles south of Blodgett, upon which he resided until his death in 1884. He served in the Civil War, and being a carpenter by trade, much of his time was devoted to building flat-boats for the service. However, he was in several skirmishes, and was twice wounded by gunshots. Upon the death of Mrs. Evins, in 1856, James F. was sent back to Kentucky, where he remained with his aunt, until 1869. He then returned to Missouri, and located on the old homestead, and remained until March, 1872, when he went to Dardanelle, Ark., and attended school about three years. Returning home he assisted his father on the farm two years, after which he went to Fort Smith, Ark., and served for a time as captain and pilot of a steam ferry boat. He was then successively engaged in running on a steamboat, clerking in a store and working in a chair-factory, etc. Returning home again he speculated for a time in stock and watermelons, after which he was employed as clerk in a government snag-boat, running between Wichita, Kas., and Little Rock, Ark. In 1884 he removed to Blodgett, and was engaged as clerk in A. J. Pigg's store until February, 1885, when he engaged in the mercantile business for himself, but in 1887 he sold out, and soon after built a grist-mill, which he still manages in connection with his mercantile business. On June 12, 1883, he was united in marriage with Elizabeth J. Pigg. They have had three children, two of whom are living. Mr. Evans is an intelligent and enterprising gentleman, and is possessed of good business qualifications.

John D. Foster, ex-judge of the Tenth Judicial Circuit Court of Missouri, and a prominent attorney of Commerce, was born in Clark County, Ky., in 1825. His grandfather, William Foster, was born and reared in Virginia, and enlisted in the Revolutionary War, as a private soldier under Gen. Washington, but was afterward promoted to brigadier-general, and served six and one-half years. The Colonial Government granted him a tract of land in Kentucky, to which he removed his family. He improved the land and made a home, at which he died at the age of eighty-two years. His son, Peyton Foster, father of the subject of this sketch, was born in Bourbon County, Ky., but was reared in Clark County. He was a captain in the War of 1812, and after the close of the war, engaged very extensively in stock-farming at which he was successful, being regarded as one of the most practical farmers of his section of the county. He married Mary Daniel, a native of Frankfort County, who was reared in Montgomery County, Ky. She was a niece of John Daniel, the first governor of Kentucky. To her and husband were born twelve children, of whom Jeannette, William H., George W., John D., Mary and Peyton lived to maturity. Jeannette, William H., John D. and Peyton, are still living. Peyton Foster, the father, died in 1872, aged eighty-one years, and his wife, in 1871, aged seventy-eight years. When but a boy, in 1846, John D. Foster went as first lieutenant to Mexico, to serve in the war against that Nation. Thirty-seven days after he started, his captain died, and he was promoted to that rank, and later was promoted to major. Remaining in the service until the close of the war, almost twenty-three months, he returned home, after which he began the study of law which, from his youth, had been his chosen profession. He read law in the office and under the direction of John L. Steward, of Springfield, Ill., and was first admitted to the bar in that city. In 1851 he removed to Missouri and located at Kirksville, Adair County, and resided until 1861, when he entered the Federal army as colonel of the Twenty-second Missouri Volunteer Infantry. After three and one-half years' service, he was mustered out at St. Louis. In 1865 he came to Commerce, Mo., where he has since practiced his profession. In 1880 he was elected circuit judge for six years on the Republican ticket with a majority of 534 in a circuit of 3,800 Democratic majority. From 1852 to 1856 Judge Foster represented Adair County in the Legislature, and from 1856 to 1860 was in the State Senate. He was also a member, from 1861 to 1864, of the State convention which formed the Provisional Government. He was first married in 1831 to Euncy Miller, and, after her death, married Losetta A. Knowles, a native of Mississippi County, Mo., born in 1848. Her parents were natives of Ohio and Kentucky. She died in 1875, aged twenty-seven, leaving one child, Addie Earl. Judge Foster afterward married Mary A. Williams, who was born in Mississippi County in 1853. Her parents were natives of Maryland and Kentucky. Her father died when she was seven years of age, and her mother now resides in Commerce. The Judge is a member of the A. F. & A. M., and of the A. O. U. W. He, his wife and daughter, Earle, are consistent members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Besides his other interests Judge Foster is one of the large land owners of Southeast Missouri.

Dr. Theo F. Frazer, a physician of Commerce, Mo., and present Representative of Scott County, was born in Warren County, Ky., in 1846, and is a son of Alexander and Zuriiah (Atchison) Frazer, natives of Kentucky. Soon after the Revolutionary War the paternal grandfather came from Scotland and located in what is now Warren County, Ky., where he lived to be a very old man, engaged in farming and speculating. He and wife had four sons and two daughters, all of whom grew to maturity, but are now deceased. Alexander Frazer was born in 1797, and died in 1859. He was reared in his native State and was also a farmer. His wife is of Irish descent and was also reared in her native State. Seven children were born to them, of whom Thomas, Samuel, Nancy H., Julia and Theo F. are living. George went to California in 1861 and has not been heard from. Sarah is dead. Mrs. Frazer is still living in Hopkins County, Ky., with her son Samuel. She was born April 4, 1803. The subject of this sketch was but thirteen years of age when his father died, after which he remained with his mother until he reached his majority, when he was employed as a clerk in a mercantile house. The next year (1866) he began the study of medicine under the direction of Dr. W. L. Johnson, of Charleston, Ky., and in the fall of the same year studied under T. A. Atchison, now of the Vanderbilt University. In 1868 he came to Scott County, Mo., and began practicing his profession in Benton, which he continued until 1873, when he removed to Commerce, his present location. He graduated from the University of Nashville in 1882, and in 1885 from the Vanderbilt University. He is a member of the Southeast Missouri Medical Association, of the A. F. & A. M. and of the A. O. U. W. In 1886 Dr. Frazer was elected to represent Scott County in the Legislature. His marriage with Miss Ida V. McPheters, a native of Illinois, was celebrated in 1879, and to their union were born two children, Roy and Nellie. Mrs. Frazer was a devoted member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. She died in 1885, aged twenty-nine years. Dr. Frazer served as mayor of Commerce from 1882 to 1887.

James Friend, the oldest native citizen of Scott County, was born on May 10, 1806, and is a son of John and Elizabeth (Robinson) Friend, natives of Bedford County, Va., and Ohio, respectively. When sixteen years of age, Elizabeth Robinson came to Southeast Missouri with her parents and located on land entered from the Spanish Government, near Morley, known as the Abram Hunter farm. The Robinson family are all dead, Elizabeth was born in 1786 and died on July 8, 1840. In 1796, John Friend came by water with his parents, Charles and Nancy (Gough) Friend, to Southeast Missouri. Locating near Bird's Point, they soon after removed to 640 acres of land near Benton obtained from the Spanish Government. Here Charles Friend died about 1814, aged ninety-six years. He had a family of eleven children. John, the father of the subject of this sketch, obtained from Spain a tract of land one mile square near Morley, on which he and wife reared their family. They had eleven children, five of whom grew to maturity, viz.: Andrew, James, Jacob (deceased), Margaret (deceased) and Catherine (the widow of Darius Mullen). John Friend was born on February 14, 1777, and after a very active and useful life, died in 1863. James Friend remained with his parents until 1832, when his father gave him the farm on which he now resides. He has been very energetic and industrious, and now has 220 of his 240 acres under cultivation with good improvements. In 1832 he married Catherine Cotterell, a native of the county. She died, and Mr. Friend, on July 7, 1884, was united in marriage with Malissa Ann (Wiley) Snyder, who was born in Kentucky and reared in Indiana. She came to Southeast Missouri in 1841, was the widow of Jacob Snyder and the mother of two children: James (who died in 1873, leaving one child, Charles Edward, living with the subject of this sketch) and Nancy (Mrs. John Friend). To James Friend and wife were born six children: Thomas B., Missouri (Mrs. James E. Harrison), Harden, Francis and William (twins), and Virginia (who died in infancy). Mrs. Friend died on January 17, 1884, in her sixty-seventh year. Francis lives on the home place with his father, and manages the farm. He married Amelia Rosenberg and has two children: Pearle and Presley. James Friend is a highly respected citizen of Scott County, and a zealous member of the Baptist Church.

John Friend, a highly respected citizen and retired farmer of Scott County, Mo., is a native of the county, born in 1830. His grandfather, John Friend, came to Southeast Missouri about 1796, and accumulated considerable property. He was a very active man, and died at the age of eighty-six years, in 1863. He and wife had five children, who grew to maturity: Andrew, James, Jacob, Margaret and Catherine. James and Catherine are still living, the former resides at Oran, and the latter in Scott County. Their mother was of German descent, a native of Pennsylvania, and died in 1840. Andrew Friend was the father of the subject of this sketch. He was born and reared in Southeast Missouri, and married Elizabeth Evans, also born and reared in the same district. He resided near his home place until 1854, when he removed his family to Ozark County, Mo., and remained until his death, in 1868. His wife died in 1854. Their children were John, Margaret, Elizabeth, James, Catherine, Israel, Emily, Mary, Jane and Martha. Martha, Emily and John are living. Catherine was killed during the war while trying to protect her husband, who was a Union soldier.

John lived with an older brother and grandfather, but worked for his parents until he reached his majority. In connection with farming he worked at the carpenter's trade until 1859, after which he turned his attention entirely to farming until 1861, when he enlisted in the army. After the war he was engaged in saw-milling, until 1867, when he began a contract with the Iron Mountain & Southern Railroad for building bridges and trestles, which, when he had completed, he acted as foreman of the track-laying force, until the road was completed, in 1869. He was then engaged in saw-milling for several years, since which he engaged in farming. His wife, Nancy Snyder, is a daughter of Jacob and Malissa (Wiley) Snyder, natives of Germany and Kentucky, respectively. James Snyder was a stonemason, who came to Southeast Missouri from Kentucky, and died soon after, leaving a wife and two children: James (now deceased) and Nancy. Mr. and Mrs. Friend have had three children: Virginia (deceased), James (deceased) and Nancy (the wife of Dr. W. E. Harris, of Oran). Virginia was the wife of J. W. Clemson, now agent of the railroad at Oran. She left two children. In religious belief all the members of the family are Baptists.

Benjamin B. Gaither, one of the most prominent citizens of Scott County, Mo., was born in Kentucky, in 1824. He is a son of John Gaither, of English descent, born near the District of Columbia, in Maryland. When young, the latter's parents came to Maryland, and resided there until their deaths. They had three children: Horace, Harriet (Pierce) and John. The last named removed to Kentucky, where he married Rebecca Bell, a native of Kentucky, of Welsh parentage. In March, 1833, they came to Cape Girardeau County, Mo., and purchased land on which they located, and afterward improved and made their home. John Gaither died in September, 1837, and his wife in September, 1836. They were the parents of eight children, viz.: Benjamin B., James W. (of Texas), John T. (a merchant of Commerce, Mo.), Harriet (wife of Jackson Ellis, residing near Commerce), Margaret, Mary, Harriet and Rebecca. The last four are dead. Margaret, Rebecca and Harriet were married, and reared families. Benjamin B. was thirteen years old when his father died. He went to Jackson, Mo., and learned the tanner's trade with James M. McGuire, by serving an apprenticeship of six and one-half years. In 1845 he went to Commerce and established a tan-yard, which he managed until 1856, after which he engaged in general merchandising at Benton, and continued two years, when he returned to Commerce and engaged in the grocery and milling business. During the war he dealt in grain, mostly corn, which he sold to the Government, and after the war engaged in merchandising and milling. He built the first store-house in Morley, and sold goods there until 1870. In 1872 he traded the store and goods at Morley to his brother, John T., for the farm on which he now resides. On January 26, 1847, he was united in marriage with Susan Ellis, a native of Scott County, born on what is now the county poor farm. She was born January 4, 1828, and is the daughter of Edward and Harriet (Nelson) Ellis, natives of Maryland and Virginia, respectively, who removed to Kentucky, and from thence to Southeast Missouri, in 1827. They had thirteen children, viz.: Emily, Eliza, Nelson, Susan, Elizabeth, Jackson, Benjamin, Nancy, Sarah, Mary, Harriet, William and Edward. The last nine are dead. Emily lives in Benton, Eliza is the wife of Daniel H. Loody, and Nelson lives in Scott County, engaged in farming. Mr. Ellis died in the spring of 1858, and his widow in 1859. In 1859 or 1860 Mr. Gaither was appointed justice of the county court, and in 1881 was elected to represent Scott County in the Legislature. Mr. Gaither is extensively engaged in stock-raising. He has about 1,200 acres of land under cultivation, most of which he rents. He is a member of the A. F. & A. M. His wife is an active member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. They have no children of their own, but have reared sixteen orphan children, only two of whom are with them now: Jefferson Tisdle and Lizzie Davis, a daughter of Samuel T. Davis, a prominent attorney of New Madrid County, who died in 1881. Mr. Gaither and wife are highly esteemed by all who know them, and are two of Scott County's best citizens.

John T. Gaither, a merchant of Commerce, Mo., was born in 1832, in Davidson County, Ky., and when one year old came with his parents, John and Rebecca (Bell) Gaither, to Southeast Missouri, and located in Cape Girardeau County. He remained with his parents until the death of his father, in 1840, when he was bound for three years to Mr. McGuire, of Jackson, Mo., to learn the tanner's trade. He then came to Scott County, and was engaged with his brother in the tanning business until 1849, after which he went to New Or leans and remained one year. Returning home, he entered school at Cape Girardeau, where he finished his education in 1852. In company with his brother, James W., and others, he then went overland, with ox-teams, to California, the trip requiring 110 days, during which he drove the team every third day. Upon reaching California he began prospecting for gold, and after remaining there two years engaged in mining and farming. He returned, in 1854, to Commerce. John T. Gaither, after his return home, purchased the tan-yard of his brother, B. B. Gaither, and managed the business until the commencement of the Civil War. During the war he was engaged in farming and dealing in wood on Big Island, in the Mississippi River. From 1866 until 1870 he was engaged in farming in Scott County, and from 1870 until 1875 in merchandising at Morley, at which time he removed to Commerce and engaged in his present general merchandising business. He was elected treasurer of Scott County in 1868, and served one term. For twenty-seven years he served as school director, and retired in 1887, refusing to serve longer. In 1858 he married Columbia Daugherty, a native of Dunklin County, Mo., born in 1839. They have had nine children, viz.: Hettie (wife of Herbert Ranney, of Cape Girardeau County), Emma (wife of James Ranney, of the same county as above), John W. (deceased), Anna, Arthur, Birtie, Belle, Benjamin B. and Edna. Mr. and Mrs. Gaither are active members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, he having been a member since 1869. He is also a member of the A. F. & A. M., and A. O. U. W.

Abner Greer was born in Hopkinsville, Ky., in 1834, and is one of ten children born to the union of Jonathan Greer and Mary Hopson. Nine of their children grew to maturity, and six are now living. Jonathan Greer was born in South Carolina, in 1804, and died in 1811. His wife was born in Virginia, in 1811, and is now residing in Hopkins County, Ky. In 1849, Abner Greer went to California by the overland route, which required about ten months. From California, he went on the plains with Kit Carson, and remained six months, after which he was engaged for two years with Capt. Evans, in hauling freight between California and Fort Leavenworth, Kas. Mr. Greer drove seven yoke of cattle for twenty-two months, without losing a day. Returning to his native State, he was engaged in trading in horses and mules, in Kentucky and Illinois, until 1857, when he engaged for one year in merchandising. In 1858 he went to Pike's Peak, and spent six months in mining, after which he went to Indiana and bought horses, which he sold in New Orleans. He was then engaged in the livery business in Louisiana until the beginning of the Civil War, when he enlisted in the Confederate army, and was commissioned captain of Company A, of the First Louisiana Regiment, under Col. Molton. At the close of the war he went to Memphis, Tenn., and the next year (1866), came to Charleston, Mo. In 1869 he removed from the latter place, to his present farm in Scott County, consisting of 390 acres with 200 under cultivation. His marriage with Mary Ancell was celebrated on February 2, 1869. She was born in June, 1848. To them have been born ten children: Delia E., Mary, Pascal, Joseph, Abner, Margaret (deceased), James C., Lucy (also deceased), Charles and George. Mrs. Greer is an active member of the Baptist Church. Mr. Greer is a member of the A. F. & A. M., of the A. O. U. W. and of the Wheel. He deals largely in stock, of which he prides himself on being a good judge.

John B. Greer, an industrious and enterprising young farmer near Sikeston, Mo., is a native of Scott County, born on July 14, 1860. He is a son of Calvin and Fannie (Turner) Greer, natives of Scott County, Mo., and East Tennessee, respectively. The subject of this sketch was reared on his father's farm, and has followed farming as a vocation the most of his life. He was appointed deputy circuit clerk in 1882, and held the office one year. In 1883 he served as deputy sheriff under Jasper Trotter. While filling those offices, he resided at Benton. He is a prosperous farmer, and is now cultivating 350 acres of fine land near Sikeston. On October 7, 1885, he was united in marriage with Lou, daughter of A. E. Mason, of Illinois. Their union has been blessed by the birth of two children: Bessie and Willene. Mr. Greer is a member of the Wheeler society.

David E. Grojean, an enterprising farmer residing near Sikeston, was born in Scott County, Mo., on November 24, 1857. He is a son of Celestine and Mary (Jeffords) Grojean, the former a native of France, and the latter of Scott County, Mo. Celestine Grojean came to America with his parents in 1834, and located in Massillon, Ohio, where they remained until 1850, when they came west and settled near Hamburg, Scott Co., Mo. After four years the parents went back to Ohio, where they died. Celestine Grojean married and lived near Hamburg several years, when he removed to a farm near Sikeston. In 1866 he went to Kansas and remained until 1873, when he returned to Scott County, where he is still living. His wife died in 1884. They were the parents of thirteen children, eight of whom are living: Sophia (wife of Frank Finley), Charles, John, Anna, James, Eugene and Maggie. Those deceased are Jane, Belle, Frank, Ella, and an infant daughter. David E. remained with his parents until he was twenty-two years of age, when he married Maggie Winchester, a daughter of Henderson and Rachel Winchester, of Missouri. After his marriage, he located where he now resides. He has 152 acres of land with 130 acres under cultivation, with good improvements. Mr. and Mrs. Grojean are consistent members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. They have had four children, three of whom are living: Edward W., Mary E. and Elizabeth. The one deceased is Jasper C. Politically Mr. Grojean is a Democrat.

Rev. Henry F. Grupe, pastor of Eisleben Evangelical Lutheran Church, Kelso Township, Scott Co., Mo., was born in Hanover, Germany, in 1848, and is a son of Frederick Grupe and Georgiene (Wiebrok) Grupe, both natives of Hanover. In 1854 Frederick Grupe set sail for America. Landing in New York he went to Crete, Will Co., Ill., and located. He was born on April 19, 1808, and when young learned the carpenter's trade. His wife died in 1879, aged sixty-nine years. They were the parents of five children: Frederick (on the home place in Illinois, engaged in farming), Friederick (Mrs. Christopher Rust, of Illinois), Caroline (Mrs. Philipp Mueller, of Illinois), Henry F., and George H. (who died June 18, 1887, at Oak Park, Ill., aged thirty-eight years.) The father is still living at Crete, engaged in agricultural pursuits. Henry F. began his education at Crete and took a private commercial course while clerking in a store. His education was finished in the Concordia Seminary, of St. Louis, Mo., from which he graduated in the theological department in 1871. In August of the same year, he came to Southeast Missouri, and was ordained pastor of his present church on August 6, 1871. The church was organized about 1850 by D. Bohnbardt, Daniel Ruebel and others. It now has a voting membership of forty-nine, and has a school of seventy-nine pupils. In October, 1871, Rev. Grupe was married to Miss E. D. Schweer, who was born in Germany, on February 2, 1850, and came to Crete, Ill., in 1865. Four children were born to this union, as follows: Gustavus, January 12, 1873, died in October, 1875; Paul, August 5, 1875; Otto, December 3, 1876, died in August, 1877, and Emilie, July 25, 1879. A few hours after the birth of this child Mrs. Grupe died. On the 30th of May, 1880, Rev. Grupe married Miss Katharina Hoffmann, born in St. Louis, Mo., September 7, 1850. Two children have been born to this union: Arthur, April 23, 1881, and Henry, January 2, 1886. Rev. Grupe is an earnest Christian, who devotes his whole time to his church, and is beloved by his members.

Dr. Abner J. Gupton, a physician of Morley, Mo., was born in Montgomery County, Tenn., in 1841, and is a son of Robert T. Gupton, a native of Tennessee. The latter's father, Abner Gupton, was a native of North Carolina, and removed to Tennessee about 1800. He served as magistrate of Montgomery County, Tenn., for forty-eight years, from 1802 to 1850. He was a soldier in the war for independence, and was wounded at the battle of Guilford Court House. After a very active life, he died in 1858, aged one hundred and four years. He had never been sick a day in his life. Robert T. was one of a large family of children. He also led a very active life, and served as magistrate in the same county as his father from 1836 until the beginning of the Civil War. After the war he filled the same office until his death in 1866, aged fifty-six years. His wife, Henrietta Power, was a native of North Carolina, who, when an infant, came to Tennessee with her parents, and located in Montgomery County on a farm, where the parents remained until their deaths. Robert T. Gupton and wife had eight children, five of whom lived to be grown. Martha was married to Andrew J. Harrison, a native of Virginia. They are both dead, and their children: Henrietta, Robert, Allen, Virgin and John, are living with the subject of this sketch. The other four are Abner J., Cave J. (who died in 1872), John J. (holding the office of magistrate of Cheatham County, Tenn.) and Henrietta (Mrs. John M. Duke, who died in 1886). The mother of these children died in 1863, aged forty-two years. Abner J. chose medicine as his profession. In 1861 he enlisted as a private in the Forty-second Tennessee Infantry, Col. (afterward Brig.-Gen.) W. A. Quarles, C. S. A., commanding, and was promoted to the position of assistant-surgeon on the battlefield, at Fort Donelson, by his colonel. He was examined by the medical board in 1863, who, in passing him, recommended his commission to date from February 13, 1862. He was in every engagement with his command, and was never absent from duty but once during the war - when on a two weeks' furlough in April, 1865. At the close of the war he returned home and began practicing his profession. In November, 1866, he removed to New Providence, Tenn., and resumed his practice. In 1875 he located in Morley, Mo., and is now the oldest practicing physician in the town. In July, 1866, he wedded Mary F. Crow, a native of Alabama, born in 1845, and a daughter of Isaac F. Crow, a native of South Carolina. The Doctor and wife have had four children: Fannie B., Mary P., Harry (deceased) and Ernest (deceased). They have a nice home, and all are consistent members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. The Doctor is an active church worker, and is now one of the trustees, and Sunday-school superintendent.

James L. Hale, a merchant of Oran, Mo., was born and reared in Stoddard County, Mo., and is a son of William M. and Emeline (Nation) Hale, natives of Tennessee. William M. Hale was the son of Nicholas Hale, a native of Tennessee, who came to Missouri about 1848, and located in Stoddard County, where he died at the age of ninety years. His wife also died in Stoddard County, when about seventy-five or eighty years of age. They had nine children, all deceased, except one. John, who may be living in California, he having gone there about 1849. William M. Hale was born in Jackson County, Tenn., on June 6, 1817. He was twice married, and died on August 15, 1850. His first marriage occurred October 12, 1837, in Jackson County, Tenn., to Nancy Stamps, who died there in 1845. They had two children: Mary Ann Mariler, born March 24, 1840, died May 23, 1863, and Sarah Elizabeth, born April 23, 1843, also deceased. His second wife, the mother of the subject of this sketch, died in Stoddard County, Mo., on August 11, 1882, leaving two children: Nancy J. and James L. Nancy J. was born on January 3, 1851, married James Altman and removed to Illinois, where she died in 1875, leaving two children. James L. was born on April 3, 1849, and, after the death of his parents, lived with his grandfather, until he was fourteen years of age, after which he resided with his uncle, Giles F. Draper, until about 1865. He was then attending school, teaching school and engaged in business in Stoddard County until 1879, when he came to Oran and engaged in the mercantile business. On September 1, 1870, he was married in his native county to Sarah C. Aust, also a native of Stoddard County, born December 13, 1853. Mr. and Mrs. Hale's children were born as follows: Ida I., September 26, 1871, died December 23, 1874; Lillie May, August 5, 1875; Arthur O., January 11, 1878; Florence Ethel, July 20, 1880; and Effie M., October 23, 1882. They are rearing George Hale's daughter, Laura Belle, born on February 20, 1873. Mr. Hale is a member of the A. F. & A. M., and of the A. O. U. W. He was commissioned notary public by Gov. Crittenden, March 23, 1882, and re-commissioned by Gov. Marmaduke, March 23, 1886. On December 14, 1885, he was appointed by the Governor judge of the county court, Second District of Scott County, to fill a vacancy, and was elected to the same office in 1886. The same year he was also elected justice of the peace for Sylva Township. He is a licensed pharmacist, and is the author of a book to keep the civil docket court records.

David H. Harper was born in Henry County, Tenn., on July 23, 1851. His parents, Robert and Nancy (Williams) Harper, were natives of Smith County, Tenn. The Harper family immigrated to the United States from England, and settled in Virginia, near Harper's Ferry, from whence it derived its name. Robert Harper was reared in Tennessee, and Harper's Ferry, Tenn., was named in honor of him. He removed his family to Mississippi County, Mo., in 1874, and located on a farm. In March, 1878, he and his wife died within a week of each other. They were the parents of thirteen children, ten of whom grew to maturity: Elizabeth (Mrs. William Love), Maria, (widow of Caleb Mackens, of Tennessee), John B., Joseph, Thomas, David, William, Green, James (who died in Camp Douglas prison, at Chicago), and Robert, (who was murdered in Carroll County, Tenn., during the war). The other three died in infancy. David H. was reared in Benton County, Tenn., remaining with his parents until coming to Missouri in 1873. Locating in Mississippi County, one mile south of Bertrand, he resided there until 1876, when he removed to his present farm in Scott County. It consists of 200 acres of land, all of which is under cultivation. Mr. Harper usually cultivates fifty acres of watermelons on his farm. In 1876 he was united in marriage with Mabel Dodge, by whom he had four children, three of whom, Alvis R., Thomas H. and Otis W., are living. His wife died in 1882, and he was married again in 1884, choosing for his second wife, Lucinda E. Dodge. Mr. Harper is a member of the I. O. O. F., and of the Agricultural Wheel.

Christopher C. Harris, M. D., a physician of Benton, Mo., was born in Stewart County, Tenn., in 1835, and is a son of Howell and Priscilla (Shelton) Harris, natives of North Carolina and Virginia, respectively. Howell Harris, when a young man, came to Tennessee with his parents. Priscilla Shelton, when a child, removed with her parents from the Old Dominion to Tennessee, and was married in the latter State, in Davidson County. To Mr. and Mrs. Harris were born nine children: George W., James M., Jesse L., Howell, Sarah N., Christopher C., Martin V., William B. and Priscilla S., all supposed to be dead, except the subject of this sketch and Martin V., a merchant at Morley, Mo. Mr. Harris died in 1889, after which his widow married Thomas Kemp, by whom she had one son, Henry, who was killed in Mississippi during the Civil War. The mother died in 1846. Christopher C. remained with his parents until he was eleven years of age, after which he attended school until he was twenty years old. In 1860 he commenced studying medicine in Humphreys County, Tenn., and in 1871 entered the Cincinnati Eclectic Medical Institute, from which institution he graduated in 1872. After finishing his professional education he located at Morley, and engaged in the practice of his profession, and remained five years, when he removed to his present location, and has since had a good practice, both in town and the surrounding country. He has been twice married; first in 1865, to Mary I. Townes, who was born in Virginia and reared in Tennessee. She was one of ten children born of the two marriages of William Townes. She was the mother of seven children, and died on February 26, 1886. She was a member of the Baptist Church. Her children are: Nannie E., Kate B., Howell T. (deceased), Edwin S. (deceased), Virginia H., Myrtle and Mattie B. (deceased). The second time Dr. Harris married Anna Pullian, a native of Braddock County, Ark., and a daughter of William and Mary Ann Pullian. Mrs. Harris is a member of the Baptist Church. She has a half-brother and half-sister living in Sikeston: Mary E. (Rodgers) and Daniel E. Jenkins. By this union Dr. Harris has one child—Tonie Lee.

John T. Harris was born in Cape Girardeau City, Mo., in 1850, and is a son of John and Winifred (Baldwin) Harris. John Harris was born in Wales in 1807, and when about fourteen years of age entered a blacksmith and machine shop as an apprentice, and remained seven years. Soon after finishing his trade, he sailed for America, and, landing at New York City, remained there two or three years. He first married Ann Owens, of Welsh descent, by whom he had three children, one of whom died in childhood. The other two, Sarah E. and Anna, grew to maturity, married and reared families, but are now dead. From New York he removed to Ohio and located, but after a short time came to Missouri, and located in Dunklin County, and engaged in farming. He was one of the commissioners appointed to locate the seat of justice of Dunklin County. About six years later his wife died, and he removed to Cape Girardeau City in 1847, and remained until 1849, working at his trade. In 1849 he married Winifred Baldwin, who was born in Scott County, Mo., in 1818. Her parents were John and Rachel Baldwin. The former was born in Virginia in 1771, and the latter in Georgia in 1778. They married in Georgia, and lived there for some time. In 1803 they came to Scott County, Mo., and settled on a farm on the Mississippi River, five miles above Commerce, where they reared a large family, and remained there until their deaths. About the time of his second marriage, Mr. Harris, in partnership with Mr. Baldwin, built a ferry-boat, which they ran until it sank four years later. Previously, Jesse Criddle had purchased Mr. Baldwin's interest, and he and Mr. Harris built a new boat, which they ran until June, 1859. The latter then worked at his trade, and engaged in farming on his land, near the present site of the Southeast Missouri Normal School building. In 1866 he removed to a farm four miles north of Cape Girardeau, where he resided until his death in 1876. His wife died in 1866. By this union he had eight children: John T., Mary S., William E., Emma A. and Francis C. (twins), Benjamin F., Ella J. and Eugene W. Francis C. and Benjamin F. died in childhood. In 1869 Mr. Harris married Margaret Hempstead. She died in 1877. John T. Harris remained with his parents until 1872, when he went to Dunklin County, and remained two years teaching school. He then attended the Southeast Missouri Normal for eighteen months, after which he came to Scott County, and taught school five consecutive terms, in what is known as the Ranney schoolhouse. In 1877 he located on the place on which he now resides in Kelso Township, Scott County, but in 1882 he removed to a farm near the river, and resided four years, when he returned to his present home. His marriage to Miss Sue Hinman was celebrated in 1877. She was born in Cape Girardeau County on December 3, 1854, and is the daughter of William M. and Emily Hinman, the father born in Indiana in October, 1820, and the mother in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in October, 1826. They reside four miles north of Cape Girardeau, and are the parents of six children: Jane, Effie and Ida (twins), Sue, Cora C. and Emma. Ida died when thirty-two years of age. Mr. Harris is a prosperous farmer, and is a member of the A. O. U. W. He and wife have had five children: I. Gertrude, U. Ethel (deceased), Amelia Irene, Irl H. and Marvin J.

William E. Harris, M. D., a physician of Oran, Mo., was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in 1854. He is a son of John and Winifred (Baldwin) Harris. John Harris was born in England, and when about twenty-one years of age, came to New York. From New York he went to Ohio, and remained until about 1839, when he came to Southeast Missouri and located in Dunklin County, and in 1844 removed to Cape Girardeau County. He was a millwright by trade, and, before the war, owned a steamboat on the Mississippi River. He was energetic and active, and died at the age of sixty-five years. Winifred Baldwin was born in Scott County, Mo., at what was known as Baldwin's Landing (now Manning's Landing), where her father owned a large tract of land. The latter was born in Virginia, and came to Southeast Missouri in its early settlement. He and wife reared a family of children, of whom Winifred was the youngest. All of the family are dead except one daughter—Mrs. Mary Price, of Texas. The parents lived and died at Baldwin's Landing. John Harris and wife had eight children, viz.: John Thomas, Mary S. (Williams), William E., Emma A. and Francis C. (twins), Benjamin, Ella (Mrs. J. W. Clemson) and Eugenia (wife of Dr. T. E. Tomlinson). Francis and Benjamin are dead. Emma is the wife of Lewis Rockwell, of Arkansas. Upon reaching his maturity, William E. went to Illinois and began work on his father's farm, but returned home in a short time, and remained in Cape Girardeau County two years, engaged on a farm. Choosing the profession of medicine, he read one year at Kelso, after which he went to Nashville and entered a medical college, from which he graduated in 1882. He then located at Oran, where he has since had a good practice. In 1884 he married Nannie Friend, a daughter of John Friend. They are the parents of two children: Willie P. (born in 1885, and died in April, 1886) and Johnnie E. (born in 1887, and died when seven weeks old). The Doctor and Mrs. Harris are earnest members of the Missionary Baptist Church. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. and of the A. O. U. W.

Charles R. Hatcher, one of the prominent citizens of Scott County, Mo., was born near his present home on February 24, 1824, and is a son of Samuel and Margaret (Dillinger) Hatcher, the former a native of Virginia, and the latter of North Carolina. The Hatcher family are of English descent, and the Dillinger family of Dutch lineage. Samuel Hatcher immigrated to Ohio, where he was married and had two children, both now dead. From Ohio he came to Missouri in 1804, but did not remain. In 1820 he returned and made a settlement on Sandy Prairie, entering what was then known as seminary land (a quarter section among the first entries made in Richwoods). For several years he resided in a rude log cabin which he erected, and there being plenty of wild game in the forest, his table was always supplied with wild meats. He served in the War of 1812—a part of the time as an officer. In politics he was a Democrat, but never was an aspirant for office, neither would he own slaves. He paid strict attention to farming, and was highly respected by all who knew him. He died about 1847. His wife died in 1863. They had thirteen children, two of whom (Charles R. and Thomas) are living. Charles R. has always resided in Scott County, not more than ten miles from his birthplace. When a boy he was not allowed to leave the house without a rifle. He is a good marksman and has killed many wild animals, among others as many as three panthers in a day. He relates many incidents connected with the hardships of pioneer life, and possesses some relics peculiar to those days, among them a pair of spoon moulders made of the best brass, with which they moulded their own spoons.

For forks they often used forked sticks. Mr. Hatcher was married first in 1847, to Rosanna Myers, by whom he had four children, one (Ellen) living. His wife died in 1855, and in 1857 he married Christiana (Baldwin) Owen. They have one child living, Charles H. Mr. Hatcher now owns 120 acres of land, fairly improved. He is an enthusiastic Odd Fellow, was one of the charter members of Blodgett Lodge, and has been instrumental in organizing lodges at Sikeston and Morley. He has served as justice of the peace of his township for twenty-eight years, and has been a consistent member of the Baptist Church for thirty-three years.

William A. Hill, a farmer residing near Morley, Mo., was born in Mississippi in 1840. His parents, James A. and Nancy (Lawson) Hill, were natives of Kentucky, who removed to Tennessee in 1840, and from thence in the same year to Mississippi. Remaining in the latter State until 1848, they returned to Kentucky and remained until 1855, when they came to Southeast Missouri, and located in Benton, where they lived until the death of Mrs. Hill, on March 14, 1866. Mr. Hill then resided, successively, in Mississippi, Arkansas and Texas. He died in Poplar Bluff, Mo., July 28, 1886. They had twelve children, six of whom are living, viz.: Jane (Mrs. William P. Dent), Elijah B., William A., Haughel, Samuel H. and Henry Clay. All of the above named boys are carpenters by trade. Those deceased are Elizabeth (Hamilton), James D., Nancy, Polly Ann (who was killed by a wagon running over her when the family were on their way to Mississippi in 1840), and two that died in infancy. William A. remained with his parents until he was twenty-two years of age, when he began working for himself, at the carpenter's trade and farming. In 1880 he abandoned his trade, since which he has been giving his whole attention to farming. He married Margaret D. Launies (of German descent). She was born in North Carolina, but came to Southeast Missouri when quite young with her parents. She died March 20, 1876, having borne four children: Katy and Luther F., and two that died in infancy. In September, 1877, Mr. Hill married Priscilla Mills, who was born in Pulaski County, Ark., in 1855, and is a daughter of Daniel A. (of Virginia) and Fannie (Brown) Mills. Her father died in the army, and her mother in New Madrid County, Mo. They were the parents of four children, of whom three are living: Priscilla Mollie (Andrews), William A. and Granville A. After Mr. Mills' death, Mrs. Mills married Caleb W. Booth, a native of Tennessee, by whom she had four children: Ada and Ida (twins), Charles W. and John T. The family now live in Little Rock, Ark. To Mr. and Mrs. Hill have been born two children: William Pearl and an infant (deceased). Mr. Hill is a member of the A. O. U. W.

William Howell, a stock farmer of Sylvania Township, Scott Co., Mo., was born in Howell County, Mo., in 1854, and is a son of Thomas H. Howell, a native of Tennessee, who came to Missouri with his parents when a young man. The family first located in Scott County, but soon after removed to Howell County, and remained until the fall of 1865, when they returned to Scott County. Thomas H. Howell married Nancy Thomas, who died on August 12, 1862, having borne eight children. Those living are Martha (Woodside), of Salem, Mo.; Mollie (Robertson), of Scott County, Mo.; Jane (Jenkins), also of Scott County, and William, the subject of this sketch. Those dead are Sally Ann (McMullen), George W., Millie C. (Congleton), and Nancy. After the death of his first wife, Mr. Howell married Eliza Hall, and both are now living near Blodgett, Mo. William remained with his parents until 1875, when he began farming for himself near Blodgett, and continued one year. He then removed to a farm two miles north of Oran and remained until 1887, when he removed to his present location. In 1875 he was united in marriage with Martha M. Montgomery, a native of Scott County, born in 1857. She is the daughter of L. D. and Elizabeth Montgomery, natives of Tennessee and North Carolina respectively. They removed to Missouri at an early date. Their children who are living are Martha M., Isaac, Columbus and Susan E., widow of Henry Murphy. Mr. and Mrs. Howell have four children of their own: Minnie B., Maud M., George W. and Willie R. Mr. Howell and wife are devoted members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He is a member of the A. O. U. W.

Joseph L. Hughes, a prosperous young farmer and stock raiser, of Sylvania Township, Scott Co., Mo., was born and reared on the farm on which he now resides. He was born in 1860, and is a son of Nathaniel and Jane (Timmons) Hughes. Nathaniel Hughes was born in Missouri. His wife was born in Middle Tennessee. After she had reached maturity, she came to Southwest Missouri with some of her relatives and was afterward married. Her husband entered government land and improved a farm, on which he lived until his death in 1881, aged fifty-six years. They were the parents of seven children, of whom four are living: Alice, Mary (the wife of B. Myers), Andrew, and Joseph L. Those dead are Margaret, who died after reaching maturity, and two that died in infancy. Joseph L. has always resided on the place of his birth. He is now managing the farm in a successful manner and has 110 acres under cultivation, mostly in wheat and corn. Mrs. Hughes, the mother of Joseph L., was born in 1825. She and her daughter Alice now reside on the home place and keep house for him.

Hon. Isaac Hunter, one of the oldest native citizens of Scott County, Mo., was born on May 27, 1821, and is a son of Abram and Sarah (Ogden) Hunter, natives of Kentucky and Pennsylvania, respectively. The Ogden family are of German-Irish descent, and the Hunter family of Scotch-Irish. [The early history of the latter family is given in detail in another part of this work.] Abram Hunter was born in 1794, and was for many years a political leader in Scott County. He served twenty years in the State Legislature, eight years in the Senate and twelve in the House of Representatives, and took a very prominent part. He was an anti-bank man, and took an active part in securing the swamp land for the counties, and in defeating Thomas H. Benton for United States Senator. However, he was a strong Democrat, and served as sheriff of the county. As early as 1820 he served as county judge. He died on October 25, 1869. By his first marriage he was the father of eleven children, and by his second marriage three children. Only seven children of all grew to maturity, viz.: Mary (deceased), Isaac, Joseph, Milford (deceased), Catherine (deceased), Benjamin F., and Amanda (deceased). The three who are living reside in South-east Missouri. Hon. Isaac Hunter remained with his parents until he was twenty-one years of age, and secured his education, which was limited, in the subscription schools. Upon attaining his majority, he went to Pemiscot County, Mo., and remained until 1850, when he came back to his native county and located on a farm. Soon after he was elected county surveyor and commissioner of the swamp land. In 1856 he went to New Madrid County and remained until 1869, when he again returned to Scott County. In the fall of 1870 he was elected probate judge, re-elected in 1874, and in 1878 elected county judge. In 1882 and 1884 he represented his county in the Legislature, and in 1886 was re-elected county judge, which position he still holds. Being one of the most prominent men of the county, his service to the taxpayer has been invaluable. He was instrumental in defeating a tax of $100,000 to build a railroad through the county. In 1844 he was united in marriage with Susan Hill, who bore him one child, Altha, who afterward became the wife of Stephen Bird. Mrs. Hunter died in 1847, and in 1850 Mr. Hunter was married to Ellen Maulsby, of New Madrid County. To this union have been born six children: Molly (Mrs. R. A. Pierce, of Tennessee), Amanda (Mrs. Stephen Bird, of Bird's Point), Anna (Mrs. James McPheters, of Benton), John J., Dick, and Lewis. Mr. Hunter resides within five miles of his birthplace. His residence is situated on a nice elevation of ground near Morley. His farm, which consists of 4,500 acres, has 1,500 acres under cultivation. He is a member of the A. F. & A. M. and of the I. O. O. F.

Benjamin F. Hunter, a wealthy and influential citizen of Scott County, Mo., is a native of that county, born on October 17, 1831. He is a son of Abraham and Sarah (Ogden) Hunter, natives of Virginia and Pennsylvania, respectively. Abraham Hunter was of Scotch-Irish descent. His grandfather came to the United States in its early settlement, and located in Virginia, where Joseph Hunter, the father of Abraham, was born. Joseph Hunter immigrated to Missouri about 1791, and made his permanent location near the present town of Sikeston. In 1812 he was appointed, by President Madison, a member of the First Territorial Council of Missouri. He was a farmer by vocation, and was well versed in history and general literature, being a great reader. Abraham Hunter came to Scott County with his parents. He was also a farmer and stock raiser. He made several trips from New Madrid to New Orleans on a flat-boat loaded with grain, and returned pulling the empty boat by a rope. He was the second sheriff in the Territory of Missouri, and was a member of the Missouri Legislature, serving five sessions in the Lower House and two sessions in the Senate. He served as probate judge of Scott County from 1825 to 1828. At the time of his death in 1870, he owned between 3,000 and 4,000 acres of land. His first wife died on December 29, 1839, having borne a large family of children, only three of whom are now living: Isaac, Joseph and Benjamin. By a second marriage, he had three children, all of whom are dead. The subject of this sketch remained with his father until he reached his majority, when he removed to a little log cabin on the place where he now lives. He soon after built a nice log house. In 1860 he was united in marriage with Mary E. Bird, by whom he had one child (deceased). His wife died in 1862, and in 1866 he married Nancy E. Bird, a sister of his first wife. Five children have blessed this union: Mary B., Clara C., Stephen B., Lucy N. and Sarah I. Mr. Hunter was elected county judge in 1861, but held the office but a few months. By industry and economy he has become one of the largest land owners in Southeast Missouri, and has one of the best farms in Scott County, upon which he has an elegant residence. Mr. Hunter is a member of the Masonic fraternity. Mrs. Hunter is a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

William Hunter, senator from the Twenty-third Senatorial District of Missouri, was born in Mississippi County, Mo., on September 11, 1848, and is a son of Thomas Hunter, a native of Southeast Missouri. He was born in New Madrid County, May 17, 1808, and was a son of Joseph Hunter. [The early history of the Hunter family is given in detail in another part of this work]. In December, 1830, Thomas Hunter married Eliza Myers, who was born March 13, 1813, at Benton, Mo., and died in Belmont, September 13, 1861. She was a daughter of William Myers, who settled on the present site of Benton and reared a large family of children. The Myers family removed from North Carolina to Tennessee, and from the latter State to Southeast Missouri about 1796. Thomas Hunter's home was on the Mississippi River, in Mississippi County. He died in Claiborne County, Miss., on July 1, 1863. To him and wife were born seven children, as follows: Hannah, September 19, 1831, died in infancy; Sarah, December 13, 1832, died in infancy; Margaret E., November 1, 1835, died on December 8, 1853; Nancy C., September 3, 1838, married to Thomas Brown on November 30, 1856, and died in Kentucky on February 16, 1868, leaving a husband and four children; Lavina, January 5, 1845, died in infancy; William, September 11, 1848, and Mary Eliza, January 8, 1856, died at the Female Seminary of Georgetown, Ky., on June 5, 1873. William Hunter was reared on his father's farm. In 1861 he went with his father to Claiborne County, Miss. He was a student in Jefferson College, Louisiana, in 1866-67; taught school in Hickman County, Ky., in 1868, and entered Georgetown College, Kentucky, in 1869, graduating from that institution in 1872. He then entered the Harvard Law School, graduating there in June, 1874. During vacation in the summer of 1873 Mr. Hunter traveled in Europe. He was first admitted to the bar in Cambridge, Mass., December 8, 1873, and the next year was admitted to the bar in Illinois. In January, 1875, he became a member of the bar at Commerce, Mo., moved to Benton in 1880, where he now lives and is engaged in the practice of law. In 1876 he was elected prosecuting attorney for Scott County, and twice re-elected. In 1883 he was nominated by the Democratic Convention and elected to represent the Twenty-third District, composed of the counties of Scott, Mississippi, New Madrid, Stoddard, Dunklin and Pemiscot, in the State Senate, and was appointed by Gov. Marmaduke chairman of the committee to settle with State officers. In the last session he served as chairman of Committee on Ways and Means, and was a member of Committees on Criminal Jurisprudence; Railroads and Corporations; University, Public and Normal Schools, and several other committees. On December 31, 1876, Mr. Hunter was united in marriage with Ella Walker, a native of New Madrid, born on December 6, 1853. Their union has been blessed by the birth of five children, three of whom are living. The children are Linn, Mabel, Thomas (deceased), Mary Amanda (deceased) and William P.

O. E. Kendall, M. D., of Sikeston, Mo., is a son of Wilson Kendall, a native of North Carolina, of French descent. The latter's father, William Kendall, also resided in North Carolina at the time of his death. When about sixteen years of age, Wilson Kendall immigrated to Tennessee, where he afterward married Eliza Copeland, a native of that State, of English descent. Mr. Kendall remained in Tennessee, engaged in farming, until 1882, when he removed to Sikeston, Scott Co., Mo., where he now resides, retired from business. His wife died in 1886. To them were born three children: Dr. O. E., Florence (Mrs. Rufus B. Oline) and Commodore D. (deceased). Dr. O. E. Kendall was born in West Tennessee on January 3, 1846, and was reared to farm life. In 1861 he enlisted in Company G, Ninth Tennessee Cavalry. He participated in the battles of Harrisburg, Miss., Brice's Cross Roads, and a number of hard skirmishes. In April, 1865, he was mustered out of service, and returned to Tennessee, where he engaged in the drug business, also in reading medicine. In the fall of 1866 and 1867 he attended medical school at Nashville Medical College, soon after which he immigrated to Southeast Missouri, and engaged in the practice of his profession at Ogden, where he remained until July 6, 1872, when he came to Sikeston, since which he has built up a large and lucrative practice. He graduated from the Vanderbilt Medical School at Nashville, in 1883. Dr. Kendall has been twice married. On August 13, 1867, he was united with Lucada Moore, by whom he had three children: Luther (now in college at St. Louis), Lula (deceased) and Willie (deceased). The mother of these children died in 1876, and he was married in 1877 to Susie Chaney. This union has been blessed with four children: Porter, Leah, O. E., Jr., and Mary (deceased). Dr. Kendall is a member of the firm of Stallcup & Co., dealers in grain, farming implements, etc. The Doctor and Mrs. Kendall are consistent members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity.

John Kirkpatrick, postmaster at Diehlstadt, was born in Jackson County, Tenn., on September 21, 1829, and is a son of Francis and Elizabeth (Proctor) Kirkpatrick, also natives of Jackson County, Tenn. The great-great-grandparents came from Ireland. The paternal grandfather, Samuel Kirkpatrick, was born in South Carolina, from which State he immigrated to Tennessee. He died in Wayne County, Mo., while on a visit to his son, James, having come to Scott County several years after his son came. His wife died in Scott County. Francis Kirkpatrick came to Missouri in 1837, bringing his family, household goods and stock down the river to Cairo on a flat-boat. He first settled in Wayne County, but after a short time removed to Scott County, where he entered 200 acres of heavily timbered land. After several years of hard labor and privations he had a good part of his land under cultivation. He died on his farm in 1874. His first wife died in Wayne County, having borne seven children, four of whom, Jane, Delphi, John and Samuel, are living. He had two children by his second marriage, one of whom, James A., is living. Coming to Missouri with his parents when he was about eight years old, John Kirkpatrick remained with them until he was married, and located where he now lives. Besides his farm of 300 acres, all under cultivation, he owns considerable property in Diehlstadt. In 1854 he was united in marriage with Nancy J. Absher, by whom he had seven children, five of whom are dead. Those living are John W. and Charles E. Mr. and Mrs. Kirkpatrick are members of the Missionary Baptist Church. Mr. Kirkpatrick is one of Scott County's old and most prominent citizens. He has served as postmaster at Diehlstadt since 1873.

Rev. Frederick A. J. Klein, of St. Augustine Church, Kelso, Mo., was born in Germany, in 1853. His parents came to America in 1858, and located near Alton, Madison Co., Ill., where the father died. The mother still survives, and is residing with a daughter in St. Louis. Rev. Frederick Klein commenced his education under the direction of Father Francis Ostrop, of Alton, and finished his classical course at the Sacred Heart College in Roma, Randolph County, Ill., graduating from the institution in 1873. He finished his philosophical and theological education in St. Francis Seminary, four miles from Milwaukee, Wis., and was ordained in 1879, by Bishop Heiss, now Archbishop, successor of Archbishop Hennle (deceased). He joined the Archdiocese of St. Louis, and was sent by Archbishop P. R. Kenrick to Charleston, Mo., his first charge, and remained with that and surrounding missions until 1892, when he was sent by the Archbishop to Kelso, his present charge. He has a church membership of about ninety-five families, and a school containing over seventy-five pupils. Preparations are being made for a new brick church. The congregation is in a prosperous condition. It was organized in 1878, by Rev. S. Kleiser, being set off from the New Hamburg Congregation.

A. P. Lane was born in Mississippi County, Mo., July 31, 1838, and is a son of Robert and Ruth (Gaty) Lane, both natives of Missouri. The grandparents settled in Missouri when it was a Territory. The paternal grandmother, Bridget Lane, used to tell the children of her picking up her rifle and bringing down a bear at a shot. She was in her eightieth year at the time of her death. The Lanes settled in what is known as Price's Landing, when there were but few other settlers there. They reared a family of four children, all of whom are now dead. Robert Lane was born in 1809, and was a resident of Southeast Missouri, during his life. He was a farmer and merchant, and died in 1852. His wife died in 1846. They had four children, of whom A. P. Lane is the only survivor. Those deceased are Mary M. (died in 1846, aged six years), Eliza (died on March 6, 1848, aged four years), and James Y. W. (died on March 19, 1856, aged twenty-one years). The subject of this sketch was reared in his native county, remaining with his parents until their deaths, after which he remained on the homestead for several years. At the age of sixteen years, by an act of the Legislature, he took charge of the farm and slaves that his father had owned. In 1874 he removed to St. Francois County, Mo., and remained until January, 1888, when he removed to his present farm in Scott County. It consists of 560 acres of land, with 275 acres under cultivation. In 1861 he enlisted in Price's Company (Confederate), one of the first to leave Southeast Missouri. He served in the cavalry under Jeff. Thompson, and participated in several hard skirmishes. He was captured on Long Prairie, and was sent by way of St. Louis to Alton Prison, where he was confined four months, during which time he fared very roughly. Here he took the oath of allegiance, and returned home. While in the service he was commissioned as second lieutenant, in which capacity he served for some time. On January 8, 1863, he wedded Margaret, a daughter of John Swank. They have had eight children. Those living were born as follows: Robert, November 5, 1863; Albert P., November 29, 1866; Maud, May 18, 1869; Ettie, March 7, 1872; and Clarence, October 14, 1875. Those deceased are Claude (who died on August 21, 1876), and two who died in infancy. Mrs. Lane died September 22, 1881. She was a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, as is also Mr. Lane.

Marquis M. Lawrence, a blacksmith, wagon-maker and dealer in farm implements, at Morley, Mo., was born in Barren County, Ky., on March 16, 1847, and is a son of Thomas G. Lawrence, a native of England, who came to America in 1843, and located in Kentucky, where he followed cabinet making, having learned the trade in England. He married Candanza Fitzgerald, a native of Kentucky, and resided there until his death, in 1864, aged forty-five years. His wife died in 1861, aged forty years. They had seven children: Marquis M., Thomas L., Elizabeth, Elvira, Susan J., Appellonia and Bellezora, living. William G. went to the Black Hills in 1879, and has not been heard from since. In 1863 Marquis M. enlisted in Company H, Eleventh Kentucky Cavalry, and served until mustered out at Louisville, Ky., in 1865. After the war he went to Edmonson County, Ky., and located on a farm near the Mammoth Cave, and was engaged in agricultural pursuits for one year, after which he followed engineering for four years. He then served an apprenticeship in a blacksmith shop in Munfordsville, Ky., after which he was engaged in blacksmithing, in Kentucky, until 1875, when he removed to Southeast Missouri, and located at Morley. He and his brother, Thomas, began the blacksmith business together, and continued until 1881, when they dissolved partnership, Marquis M. continuing the business. Thomas went to Arkansas and engaged in the same business. Mr. Lawrence married Martha A. Lee, who was born and reared in Kentucky. They have five children: Luella, Louis, Marquis, Lolla and Appellonia. Mr. Lawrence is a member of the I. O. O. F. and of the K. of P.

J. Francis Legrand was born in Belgium in 1828, on the 28th of January, and is a son of Henry J. and Mary Ann Legrand, natives of Belgium, who were married in their native country. In 1846 Henry J. Legrand, with his family, set sail for the United States. Landing in New York City, they went to Massillon, Ohio, and remained three years, when they came to Southeast Missouri and located in Scott County, one and one-half miles from New Hamburg. Henry J. Legrand was a carpenter by trade. He died in 1858, aged sixty-two years, and his wife in 1868, aged seventy-five years. J. Francis Legrand remained with his parents until he was twenty-three years of age, when he was married and began work for himself. In 1852 he came to his present farm in Moreland Township, Scott County, which at that time was heavily timbered. He now has 120 acres under a good state of cultivation, and fifty acres of fine timbered land. In 1878 he was elected judge of the county court in the Second District, and was re-elected in 1880. He has also served as school director fifteen years. In 1850 his marriage with Mary Charlier was celebrated the 26th of November. She was born in Belgium, and came with her parents to the United States in 1846. The parents first located in Ohio, but later came to Cape Girardeau County, Mo., where she was married. To Mr. and Mrs. Legrand have been born eight children. Joseph died at the age of eighteen; Anna died when six months old; Louis married Mary Hakes, and they have two children; Nicholas married Regina Westrich, and they have one child; Mary (wife of Adam Dionberger) is the mother of two daughters; John B. shot himself accidentally at the age of sixteen; Leo and Felix are at home. Mrs. Legrand died February 13, 1886. Mr. Legrand is an earnest member of the Catholic Church at New Hamburg.

Rev. William M. Lusk, now a farmer of Commerce Township, Scott County, was born in Hardin County, Ky., on March 21, 1818. His grandfather, Hugh Lusk, a native of Ireland, with a brother came to America in search of a home about the beginning of the Revolutionary War, and located in Kentucky near the old "Crab Orchard." They both served in the war for independence, and the brother was killed in battle. Hugh carried a ball in his ankle, which he received on the battlefield, to his grave. The latter's wife was Elizabeth McMurtry, also a native of Ireland. They lived to be very old, he coming to his death by a stick hitting him in the temple, while breaking kindling. Their son, Samuel Lusk, was the father of the subject of this sketch. He married Elizabeth Lane, of English descent. Samuel Lusk was drafted in the War of 1812, and was in the battle of Tippecanoe. In 1853 he removed his family to Arkansas, and soon after came to Mississippi County, Mo., to visit some of his children, when he was taken sick and died, aged seventy-one years. He was born in 1785. To him and wife were born nine children: James H., John A., William M., Nancy, Warren C., Elizabeth, Mary, Martha and Thomas. Mary (Mrs. Page) resides near Price's Landing. Warren lives in Texas, and Thomas in Illinois. The last three, with William M., are the only ones living. William M. came to Southeast Missouri in March, 1847, and engaged in farming in Scott County. He purchased land covered with heavy timber, which he improved and made his home until 1883, when he sold and removed to his present farm. He was first married in 1842 to Mahala Carlton, a native of Hardin County, Ky. She died in 1844, leaving one child, Rachel Ann, now the wife of J. Crenshaw, of Charleston. On December 6, 1845, he married Sarah Ann Carlton, a sister of his first wife, who died several years after removing to Scott County, having borne seven children, three of whom are living: William H. (a physician), Henry W. (who is managing the home farm) and Elizabeth L. (Mrs. Charles Stone.) Mr. Lusk married his present wife, Maria H. (Goddard) Freeman, widow of H. Freeman, on August 1, 1880. She has two children by her first marriage: Nettie and Charles. Mr. Lusk has been an ordained deacon in the Methodist Episcopal Church South for over thirty years. He is also a member of the A. F. & A. M.

William J. McCord, a farmer and stock raiser of Sylvania Township, Scott Co., Mo., was born in Ripley County, Mo., on January 17, 1850. He is a son of Thomas and Danna (Bradley) McCord, natives of Tennessee, who came to Missouri about 1840, and located in Ripley County. From thence they came to Scott County, and located near Kelso, but later removed to a farm in Sylvania Township, where they resided until their deaths. To them were born ten children as follows: Cynthia (widow of R. Spradling, of Scott County), Louvisia (deceased), Sarah (deceased), James D. (deceased), John D., Jefferson B. (deceased), William J., Simeon (deceased), Elizabeth (deceased) and Polly (deceased). William J. remained on his parents' farm, until the death of his mother, when he engaged in farming for himself. He located where he now resides in April, 1887, and is improving his farm with the intention of making it his future home. He married Miss Ider Dillingham, a native of Kentucky, who was reared in Hopkins County, that State. She is the daughter of Louis O. and Eliza J. (Bessy) Dillingham, natives of Kentucky, who removed with their family to Southeast Missouri in 1879. They were the parents of eight children, five of whom are living, viz.: Lenora, Ider J., Walter B., Oliver L. and Mista. Those dead are Michael, Minnie and Irene T. Mrs. Dillingham is dead, and Mr. Dillingham and youngest daughter, Mista, reside with the subject of this sketch. By a previous marriage Mr. Dillingham had six children: David (deceased), Demarus C. (deceased), Theodore, Orville C., Louis B. and Mary Ann. Mr. and Mrs. McCord have had four children: Louis L. (deceased), Elnora, Willie O. and Lou Ina. In religious belief the family belong to the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Abner J. McFerron, farmer and manufacturer of sorghum molasses, was born in Scott County, Mo., near his present home, in 1846. He is the son of Columbus and Niecey (Kinnison) McFerron, both born and reared in Cape Girardeau County, Mo. They were married in 1843, came to Scott County in 1845, and located near Kelso. Columbus McFerron was a farmer, was born in September, 1816, and died in January, 1865. His wife was born in January, 1820, and now resides with her son, Simeon. To them were born seven children: Erina L. (now the wife of Carrol Welch, of Stoddard County), Abner J., Effie J. (the wife of William Jeffords, of Scott County), Simeon J. (residing on the old home place), Maggie M. (wife of William D. Jones), Columbia E. (Mrs. Chesley D. McAllister, now deceased) and Martha A. (wife of Marion Rhodes, of Stoddard County). Columbia E. left one child, Columbus G., who resides with his father in Cape Girardeau County. Upon his father's death Abner J. took charge of the old home place, and managed the farm until the latter's marriage in October, 1869. He married Maria J. Foster, a native of Scott County, Mo., and a daughter of Asa and Eliza Foster, both now deceased. Mrs. McFerron had one half-brother, who died in the Confederate army in Arkansas. The former died on March 6, 1881, leaving a family of five children: Edgar F., Gertrude (deceased), Arthur, Asa Columbus (deceased) and Clara A. On June 7, 1885, Mr. McFerron married Rosella Williams, a daughter of Francis M. Williams, of Cape Girardeau County, Mo. Mr. McFerron is a member of the Missionary Baptist Church, and of the Agricultural Wheel. He is a deacon of Pleasant Hill Baptist Church.

Ignatius McKinley, a prosperous farmer of Kelso Township, Scott Co., Mo., was born in Cape Girardeau County, in 1848, and is a son of John and Martha (Story) McKinley, natives of Virginia and Illinois, respectively. John McKinley was born in 1800, and when a young man went with his parents, on pack-horses, to Kentucky. The parents lived to be very old, the father dying in Kentucky, and the mother in Missouri. Although but twelve years of age, John McKinley served in the War of 1812. He was a shoemaker by trade, and went to Illinois where he was married, and resided until about 1830, when he came to Southeast Missouri, and located in Cape Girardeau County, where he remained until the fall of 1860. He then removed to the farm on which the subject of this sketch now resides, and remained until his death on October 5, 1893. His wife, who was born in 1811, died in March, 1884. They were the parents of eight children, viz.: Jane (widow of James Stoley, who resides in St. Louis), William (who died in his forty-sixth year), Benjamin (a merchant of Commerce), Sarah (wife of M. Randol, of St. Louis), John (residing in Scott County), Mary (deceased), Ignatius and Thomas (who died when twenty-nine years of age). Upon the death of his father, Ignatius took charge of the home place and the family then at home. He took care of his mother until her death. John served in the Confederate army. Mr. McKinley cultivates about 130 acres of land and is a successful farmer. He is a member of the A. F. & A. M.

Rev. Samuel A. Mason, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and editor and publisher of the Agricultural Wheel, of Commerce, Mo., was born in Madison County, Tenn., in 1842. He is a son of William B. and Aquilla Ann (Brown) Mason, natives of Robinson County, Tenn., born in 1805 and 1819, respectively. Both the Mason and Brown families immigrated from England to the United States. The former settled in Pennsylvania, and the latter in Virginia, and descendants from each family were among the early settlers of Tennessee. William B. Mason was a minister in the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He died in 1850, after which his widow married Dr. Franklin Richard Dallam, of Mayfield, Ky., who died in 1868. She died in 1871. To her and William B. Mason were born four children: Samuel A., John B. (now deceased), James O., of Arkansas, and Laura B., of Tennessee. After the death of his father, Samuel A. was reared by his mother, and received a good education, having spent four or five years in Graves College. During the war he served as lieutenant in Company B, Sixth Tennessee Infantry (Confederate), and when peace was restored returned to his mother's home and remained two years. He joined the Memphis Conference of Tennessee, but in 1872 was transferred to the St. Louis Conference, since which time he has been stationed as pastor at Caledonia, Mount Olivet, Belmont, Bertrand, Licking, Rolla, Labadie, Manchester and Commerce. In 1885 he took charge of the Scott County Agricultural Wheel, established by and devoted to the interest of that organization. There are now over 1,200 names on its subscription list. In 1873 Rev. Mason was united in marriage with Mary A. Carr, of Caledonia, Mo. To them have been born six children: Munson (deceased), Anna Belle (deceased), Ella Moore, Katie May, Susan A. and Cecil E. Rev. Mason is an earnest minister, a Royal Arch Mason, a member of the A. O. U. W. and of the I. O. O. F.

John E. Marshall was born in Scott County, Mo., on March 21, 1854, and is a son of Samuel Marshall, a native of Kentucky. Samuel Marshall's father, James Marshall, was born in Kentucky, and immigrated to Scott County, Mo., about 1830. He entered land near Sikeston, upon which he located and resided until his death. Samuel Marshall came to Missouri with his parents, since which time he has been a resident of Scott County. He is a good citizen and a successful business man. He has been three times married. His first wife, Martha Turner, was a native of East Tennessee. Her family came to Scott County a little later than the Marshall family. The parents lived to be quite aged, and reared a large family of children, all of whom grew to maturity. Martha died on May 17, 1874. She was the mother of eight children, five of whom: John E., James, Charles, William and Benjamin F., are living. Those deceased are Mary J., Sarah F. and an infant unnamed. By his second marriage Mr. Marshall had three children: Isaac, Sterling and an infant (deceased). He also has three children by his third marriage: George W., Joseph and Cyrus. John E. Marshall remained on his father's farm until 1878, when he was married to Mary, a daughter of James and Aspiza (Vaughn) McMullen. He then located on his present beautiful farm near Sikeston. He owns 1,040 acres of land in Scott County, of which 600 acres are under cultivation, with good improvements. He has a fine residence, built in 1887. To Mr. Marshall and wife have been born seven children, five of whom: Lena S., Minnie J., Edward L., Mamie and Stella, are living. Samuel A. and Robert are dead. Mr. Marshall is a member of the Masonic fraternity.

Louis Martin, an enterprising farmer of Scott County, was born in Davis County, Ky., December 21, 1828. He is a son of John and Elizabeth (Atkins) Martin, both of whom were natives of Virginia. The paternal grandparents immigrated from Virginia to Kentucky, where Grandfather Martin died. Abner Atkins, the maternal grandfather, immigrated to Mississippi County, Mo., about 1838, and remained there the rest of his life. John Martin immigrated to Southeast Missouri at the same time, and settled near Charleston, where he entered 160 acres of Government land. He built a little log cabin, in which he lived while he got the land ready for cultivation, which required much hard labor. It required four horses to a plow to break the ground at first. After several years he sold this farm, and removed to the farm upon which the Harris brothers now live, and remained there until his death. He was the father of ten children, of whom Barbara, John and Louis are living. The last named was quite small when his parents brought him to Missouri and he remained with them until they died, after which he went to work for himself, making his home with his sister (Mrs. Harris) until he was married, January 29, 1854, when he located on Big Lake. In the spring of 1850 he went overland to California, and during his stay of two years suffered some severe hardships, but returned home with $2,000 in gold. In 1869 he purchased the place where he now lives, but did not remove thither until 1870. The farm, which consists of 400 acres, with 200 under cultivation, had but twenty acres improved at the time of his purchase. It has required the labor of many years to get the farm under its present state of high cultivation. Mr. Martin has been married twice, the first time in 1854 to Alice Norris, by whom he had three children: Martha, Barbara and Jesse S. Mrs. Martin died February 8, 1863, and on October 20, 1863, Mr. Martin was united in marriage with Elizabeth (Davis) Huff. She was the eldest daughter of Tandy and Susan Davis, and was born in Bullitt County, Ky., December 8, 1839, moving to Mississippi County with her parents in 1846. This union has been blessed by seven children, of whom only two are living: Addie (Mrs. Edgar Swank) and Charles. Those deceased are: Lethia, Alice, Louis, Julia and an infant unnamed. By her first marriage Mrs. Martin had one child, Tandy. She is a member of the Missionary Baptist Church. Mrs. Martin was married to William D. Huff May 10, 1857, and was left a widow November 23, 1860, with one son, two years old.

Dr. George S. Martin, a physician of Oran, Scott Co., Mo. was born in Lima, Allen Co., Ohio, in 1840, and is a son of J. A. and Elizabeth (Scoville) Martin, natives of Ireland and Wales, respectively. J. A. Martin came with his parents to America in 1830, and located in Ohio. He was married in Putnam County, after which he removed to Allen County and resided until the beginning of the Civil War, when he removed back to Putnam County, where he and his two sons, D. W. and George S., enlisted in Company B, Fifty-seventh Ohio Volunteer Infantry. The father served as surgeon three years, and D. W. was regiment chaplain about the same length of time, during which time he was fourteen months in Libby prison. George S. served as steward of his regiment for three years, after which he was second assistant-surgeon for over one year. He was mustered out at Nashville, and discharged at Columbus, Ohio. The family contained five children besides the Doctor, viz.: D. W., Sarah A. (Mrs. I. N. Numguester, of Indiana), Lucy, Martha and Mary. Mrs. Martin died in 1842, after which J. A. Martin married Amanda Wallace, who bore him two children: Elijah and Jane, both living in McLean County, Ill. J. A. Martin is seventy-four years of age, is in good health, and is practicing medicine and surgery in Bloomington, Ill. Dr. George S. first attended medical lectures at Cincinnati, and from 1867 to 1874 practiced in Northeast Missouri. In 1874 he graduated from Rush Medical College, of Chicago, after which he was successively in Colorado, St. Louis, Colorado and California. In 1886 he located in Scott County, where he has since had a good practice. In 1887 he married Miss Sally Key, who was born in Madisonville, Ky., in 1870. She is a daughter of B. B. Key, now a resident of Scott County, having removed thither in 1880. Dr. Martin is a member of the I. O. O. F., of the K. of P. and G. A. R.

William R. Matthews was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in 1823, and is the son of William and Charity Jane (English) Matthews. William Matthews was born of Irish parents, who came to America and located in North Carolina. Charity J. English was born in North Carolina. Her father, Thomas English, came to Missouri about the same time that she and her husband came, and lived to a ripe old age. William Matthews settled seven miles from Cape Girardeau about 1800. He accumulated considerable property, but lost the greater part of it before his death, at about seventy years of age. His wife lived to be about eighty years old. They were the parents of thirteen children, ten of whom grew to maturity. Two, including William R., are now living. The other, Louisa (widow of William Allen), lives in Cape Girardeau County, Mo. William R. was about ten years of age when his father died, after which he lived with his uncle until he was grown. About 1840 he came to Scott County, Mo., and located near where Chaney's Station is now situated, and remained five years, when he removed to a farm near Benton. About five years later he removed to a farm near Commerce, his present home. The farm consists of 700 acres of land, with 200 under cultivation. During the Civil War he served in the Home Guards. He first married Elizabeth Montgomery, who died about one year after her marriage. He afterward married Eliza A. Harday, a native of Tennessee, who came with her parents to Scott County, Mo., when a child. She has a sister, Delilah Adams, living in Pemiscot County, Mo. Mr. and Mrs. Matthews are the parents of four children: Thomas A. (who is engaged in farming near his father), Grandville G. (postmaster and merchant of Commerce), Missouri A. (deceased), Mary Jane (also deceased). Mr. Matthews and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

J. F. Mitchim, editor and proprietor of the Benton Record, was born in Mount Vernon, Ill., in 1865, and is a son of Lawson S. and Catherine J. (Fronberger) Mitchim, natives of North Carolina and Pennsylvania, respectively. After their marriage the parents located in Mount Vernon, Ill., from whence they came to Southeast Missouri in 1865 and located in Jackson. In 1878 they removed to Ripley County, Mo., in which county the subject of this sketch learned the printer's trade in the Current River News office. The father died on his farm near Doniphan, Mo., on January 24, 1879, aged forty-six years. To him and wife were born eight children, viz.: William (editor of the Sikeston Star), Charles (of Benton, Mo.), J. F., Connie (wife of W. C. Hancock, of Ripley County), Ollie, Alice (deceased), Bennie (deceased), and an infant unnamed, also deceased. The mother, an active, energetic lady, is keeping house for the subject of this sketch. She is a devoted member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. When sixteen years of age, J. F. Mitchim established the Doniphan Daily, a monthly society sheet which he published for one year, and in 1884 he established the Sikeston Star, in Sikeston, Scott County, and in 1886 he bought the Express-Record, and changed the name to the Benton Record, and a few months later in the same year he purchased the Benton Free Press and closed its doors. He established a paper at Jacksonport, Ark., called Jacksonport Democrat, which he afterward sold to J. H. Page, one of his employees. He established the Doniphan Bee in December, 1887, soon selling the same to the "Bee Publishing Company" of that place. Mr. Mitchim was instrumental in founding the Bonne Terre Critic, of Bonne Terre, Mo., with John LaChance, editor. He purchased the Puxico Express in May, 1888, and in June, 1888, he purchased a half interest in the Cape Girardeau News, with L. R. Johnson, and changed the name to the New Democratic Era, making it a Fourteenth Congressional Democratic District organ. Mr. Mitchim is now proprietor of four weekly Democratic journals in Southeast Missouri. On the 17th of June, 1888, Mr. Mitchim completed a fourteen-mile telephone line between Commerce, on the Mississippi River, and Oran, on the Iron Mountain Railroad, by the way of Benton, the county seat of Scott County, thereby connecting these towns with the outside world by wire. Although Mr. Mitchim began early in life with no means, by industry, perseverance and close application of the business tact which he possessed, he has been very successful in life thus far, and is to-day one of the brightest and most promising young men of Southeast Missouri.

Joseph H. Moore, a prominent attorney of Commerce, and one of the most extensive stock farmers of Southeast Missouri, was born in Bullitt County, Ky., June 12, 1836. His great-grandfather, William Moore, was born in England August 6, 1712, and he and his brother Ralph, with a large number of others, were driven from England, in 1733, because of their resisting religious and political oppressions. They came to America, where William married Rachel Fletcher, born in 1716, a native of Somerset County, Md. Ralph became a sea captain, and died a bachelor at the age of fifty-five. William located in Maryland, and reared three sons. He died December 15, 1788, after having served as colonel in the Revolutionary War. One son settled in Delaware, another located in Ohio, and has descendants now living in Illinois, and the other, James, who was born May 1, 1742, settled in Maryland, and married Mary Rider, born in 1745. She died September 18, 1812. James Moore was a major in the Revolutionary War, and died February 27, 1798. They reared a large family, consisting of four sons and two daughters, viz.: Joseph, Elizabeth, Benjamin, Charles, Anna and James. Joseph removed to Kentucky, and from thence, in 1833, to Southeast Missouri. Elizabeth was twice married, and one of her daughters was married to Noah Handy, ex-judge of Mississippi County, Mo., whose daughter, Ella, married Joseph C. Moore, an able attorney of Mississippi County, Mo., and now of Nashville, Tenn. Benjamin, Anna and James died in Maryland, each leaving children. One of Benjamin's grandsons, George M. Moore, is now superintendent of the schools of Scott County. Charles, the father of the subject of this sketch, was born April 28, 1788, in Maryland. He immigrated to Kentucky in 1818, and in 1821 married Elizabeth Chalfant, daughter of Abner and Jane (Cox) Chalfant. They became parents of seven children, named in the order of their ages, as follows: Eliza J. (widow of A. P. Goddard), Benjamin J. (a physician of Mississippi County, and once member of the Legislature, deceased), Elizabeth (wife of James Smith, of Mississippi County), Nancy M. (widow of B. Parrott, of Charleston, Mo.), Charles C. (deceased), Susan A. (widow of Abram Swank, of Price's Landing, Mo.) and Joseph H. Charles Moore was an intelligent and enterprising man, and accumulated considerable property. His wife died October 11, 1837. Very soon after her death he moved to Scott County, Mo., and in 1839 married an excellent lady, Mrs. Martha (Strong) Broom, whom he survived only a few days, his death occurring August 16, 1857. Joseph H. Moore attended such subscription schools as were taught in his neighborhood, and in 1851 he entered Arcadia College, at Arcadia, Mo. In 1852, though only sixteen years of age, he taught a large subscription school, and soon afterward returned to college, where in 1855 he graduated in the A. B. course. He was employed as professor for the ensuing year at his alma mater, but Prof. B. S. Newland, a relative, having purchased an interest in the college property, with a view to teaching, took the professorship, and Mr. Moore returning home began the study of law, and having graduated at the Cumberland Law University of Tennessee, opened an office in Benton, Scott Co., Mo., in 1857, where to the present time he has attended every term of the courts of record of his county. He commands a good business, and has the only set of abstracts of land titles in the county. In the last ten years he has cleared over 1,200 acres of land, and now has 2,000 acres under cultivation, besides 3,000 acres of timbered land adjoining his farms. On December 8, 1857, he was united in marriage with Anna E. Hunter, daughter of Joseph Hunter. She died June 13, 1874, having borne seven children, viz.: Lizzie H. (wife of Charles I. Anderson, of Commerce), Charles A. (a graduate of Missouri Medical College, who died December 11, 1884), Susie M. (a graduate of the Wesleyan Institute, of Stanton, Va.), Joseph L. (now a student of the State University, at Columbia, Mo.), Anna E., Bertie N. and Bennie H., the last named deceased. On May 24, 1876, Mr. Moore was married to Mrs. Emma (Prince) Ross, who died January 31, 1879, leaving one child, Brumfield C. Moore, born January 10, 1879. With reference to the late war, Mr. Moore was with the Southern people, whom he admires for their hospitality, independence, and determination to stand up for their legal rights, and believes none were disunionists per se. And while he is a high tariff Democrat, he does not see how any Southern man can be a Republican. Mr. Moore has, with his family, traveled extensively in the United States and Canada, and says of all places visited by him, Southeast Missouri, for the beginner, presents the best opportunities to industry, promptness and practical sense.

William H. Myers, an enterprising young farmer of Scott County, Mo., was born and reared in the county. He is a son of William H. Myers, who was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo. The latter's parents came to Southeast Missouri in its early settlement. The father of our subject came to Scott County and opened up a large farm near Oran. He married Louisa Evans, a native of Scott County, and reared a family of nine children, five of whom are living: John B., William H., Christopher C., Wilson B. and Thomas N. William H. was born in 1855, and when about eighteen years of age, began farming for himself. He now has a farm of 300 acres, with 150 acres under cultivation, with good improvements, and has considerable town property in Oran. He is industrious and is one of the best farmers of the township. In 1877 he married Louisa Mathews, a native of Scott County, born in 1857, and a daughter of Charles Mathews, also born and reared in Scott County. He had a large family of children, three only being alive: Reuben, James and Louisa. Those dead are Charles, John, Caleb and Mollie. Mr. and Mrs. Myers are the parents of two children, Ivah and Hal. Mr. Myers is a member of the Agricultural Wheel.

John D. Peal was born in Pitt County, N. C., November 10, 1851. His parents, Craven and Hannah (Woullard) Peal, were both natives of North Carolina. The Peals are of English origin and were early settlers of the Old North State. Dennis Peal, the grandfather of our subject, has resided there most all of his life. He is a farmer, and is now quite aged. The maternal grandfather, John Woullard, died in North Carolina in his ninety-fourth year. Craven Peal was reared in his native State, and was a farmer by vocation; however, he taught school in his youth. He owned a fine farm and pine orchard, from which he manufactured tar and turpentine, which he shipped to Washington, N. C., on a flatboat, sometimes using a steamer. In 1861 he volunteered in the State service, and taking sick, died at Winders Hospital, at Richmond. He was the father of nine children, seven of whom are living: Marina, Martha, James E., Church, Mary, Margaret and John D. His widow married again, and still resides in North Carolina. John was reared to farm life and received but a limited education, as the facilities for a good education were poor, the schools being entirely suspended during the war. At the age of sixteen years, he left home and worked for himself in his own State three years, attending school but twenty four days in that time. However, he saved a few dollars, with which he, in company with his cousin, Stephen Peal, went to Tennessee. Landing at Friendship, they remained three weeks and went to Humboldt. John D. remained there two years engaged on a farm and as clerk in a store. In January, 1873, he came to Blodgett, Mo., and engaged in the mercantile business with Stephen, who had arrived about one year previous. The firm known as S. Peal & Co. continued for two years, when John D. returned to Humboldt, Tenn., and was engaged in farming until January, 1879. Coming back to Blodgett he was engaged in the mercantile business until 1887, and in the meantime served two years as agent for the Iron Mountain Railroad. He now owns 520 acres of land near Blodgett, 230 acres under cultivation, but he makes his home in the village. In 1875 he was united in marriage with Amelia Crafton, a native of Humboldt, Tenn. To them have been born four children, three living: Lessie, Pearl and Elmer. Mrs. Peal is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Peal is a Mason, and an enthusiastic member of the I. O. O. F.

Thomas J. Pool was born in Mississippi, in 1844. His parents, Langdon C. and Mary E. Pool, were natives of South Carolina, who, after their marriage, removed to Mississippi. From there they removed to Hardin County, Tenn., when the subject of this sketch was about eighteen months old. There the father purchased a saw and grist-mill, which he operated about four years, and removed to Obion County, Tenn. In 1852 they came to Scott County, Mo., where the father died on January 18, 1861, on the same place that is now Thomas J. Pool's home. The mother was born in 1820, and is still living with her children and grandchildren. They reared a large family, of whom John W. (who lives near Thomas J.), James W. (of Arkansas), Thomas J., Nancy E. (of Kentucky), Willis B. (in Scott County), Emma E. (of Arkansas) and Elijah M. (of Stoddard County), are living. Those dead are George W., Caroline and Martha J. After the death of his father, Thomas J. took charge of the former's business and supported the family. James W. and George W. served in the Southern army, and Thomas J. in Capt. Campbell's Company of the Fiftieth Regiment of Missouri Infantry. The last named was out about eleven months, having been discharged in July, 1865. His marriage with Catherine Jones was celebrated on January 24, 1864. She was born in Randolph County, Ark., in 1827, and is one of fourteen children born to Benjamin and Polly (Russell) Jones. When a small child, Catherine's parents died, and she was reared by her brother, Green R. Jones. Mr. and Mrs. Pool are the parents of two children: Willie G. (who died in infancy) and Cirenna J. (who married Andy Calbert, and died on August 31, 1885, aged eighteen years). Mr. Pool and wife are consistent members of the Missionary Baptist Church. Their daughter was also a member of the same church. Mr. Pool is a Mason.

John D. Porterfield, M. D., a prominent physician and farmer of Commerce, Mo., was born in Venango County, Penn., in 1843. His grandparents, William L. and Nancy (Lowrie) Porterfield, were natives of Ireland and Scotland, respectively. The Lowrie family came to America from Scotland as Presbyterian missionaries. William and Nancy Porterfield had eight children, viz.: Robert L. (the father of our subject), Matthew (a physician, now deceased), Pliney (now living on the old homestead in Pennsylvania), Walter (a physician), Mary (deceased), Amelia (deceased), Lucy (deceased) and Catherine (wife of Kennedy Thompson, postmaster of Portsmouth, Ohio). William Porterfield died at the age of seventy-five years, and his wife at the age of seventy-one years. Robert L. Porterfield was born in Pennsylvania, where he received a good literary education and graduated as a physician and surgeon. He married Anna M. Donaldson, a native of Pennsylvania, and a descendant of the Child's family, who came to America as Presbyterian missionaries. Robert L. Porterfield engaged extensively in farming, also owned land in the oil regions of Pennsylvania, and accumulated considerable property. In 1853 he removed with his family to Illinois, and located near Danville, where he purchased a large tract of land and engaged in stock farming. He was also a leading physician of the county, and practiced his profession until his death, in 1881, at the age of sixty-four years. His wife died in 1876, aged sixty-one years. To them were born six children, one of whom died in infancy. The others are Isabella (Mrs. John P. DeVol, of Marietta, Ohio), William (who enlisted in the Seventy-seventh Ohio Regiment, and was killed at the battle of Shiloh), Nancy J. (Mrs. William Armstrong, of Ohio), John D. and Virgil R. (a graduate of the Ohio Medical College, who located at Commerce and died in 1881). When young, John D. assisted on his father's farm and attended school, graduating from the Marietta High School when he was twenty years of age. He had previously begun studying medicine under Dr. George Hildreth, one of the pioneer settlers of Ohio. In the winter of 1862-63 he took his first course of lectures at Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, and in the fall of 1864 came to Cape Girardeau, Mo. Soon after he removed to Commerce, but later to Thebes, Ill. In 1865 he returned to Commerce, where he has since resided. In 1884 he graduated from the Missouri Medical College at St. Louis, and is a member of the Southeast Missouri Medical Association. He was first married, in 1866, to Sarah A. Hall, who was born and reared in Ohio. She died in 1873, having borne two children: Ida and Daisy, both also deceased. In January, 1874, he married Fannie V. Cullum, a native of Mobile, Ala., born in 1851. She is a daughter of George W. and Davidella (Conover) Cullum, natives of Alabama and Kentucky. George Cullum was an extensive sugar and cotton grower, and died in Frankfort, Ky., in 1868. His wife died with yellow fever in New Orleans, in 1856. They had three children who grew to maturity: Fannie V., Ada W. (Mrs. C. W. Davis, now deceased) and Cecile G. (Mrs. W. S. Patton, of Ohio). Mrs. Porterfield was educated at a Catholic school near Mobile, and is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and the W. C. T. U. The Doctor is a member of the A. F. & A. M. and of the A. O. U. W. Their children are Elmo P., John D., Beulah and William Lowrie.

Eugene C. Randolph, real estate and insurance agent of Oran, was born in Henderson County, Ky., in 1856. His parents, Malachi F. and Mary (Slaton) Randolph, were both born and reared in Henderson County, Ky., the former born in 1828, and the latter, in 1838. The paternal grandfather was a native of Delaware, and was a direct descendant from Pocahontas. Malachi F. Randolph and wife are still living in their native county, engaged in farming. They are highly respected people, and own one of the finest farms in that section of the country. To them were born six children: William N. (a resident of Charleston, Mo.), Eugene C., Clifton, Lucy, Henry (deceased), and John (deceased). Clifton and Lucy are both in Henderson County, Ky. In February of 1880, Eugene C. came to Southeast Missouri, and, locating at Charleston, remained until the spring of 1882, when he came to Oran. In the same year of his removal to Oran, he was united in marriage with Althea M. Swank, a native of Mississippi County, Mo., born in 1861. She is a daughter of Abram and Susan (Moore) Swank, natives of Indiana and Kentucky, respectively. Abram Swank is the son of William Swank, now living in Texas in his eighty-sixth year. The former died in 1872, aged forty-one years. His wife is living at Price's Landing, Scott Co., Mo. She is the mother of nine children: Julia, Ella, Althea, Edgar, Joseph, Benjamin, Lillie, Charles and Vernon. Mr. and Mrs. Randolph's union has been blessed by the birth of four children, two of whom, Susie May and Clyde, are living. Those dead are Claude and Sally. Clyde and Claude were twins. Mr. Randolph and wife are active members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. and of the A. O. U. W. He served as city marshal and deputy sheriff of Oran for three years, and was the first mayor of the city.

Gotleib Charles Rose, a prominent farmer of Scott County, Mo., was born in Germany, on May 13, 1832. He is a son of Henry and Louisa Rose. Henry Rose was a large farmer, and died in the fall of 1886, aged ninety-seven years. His wife died previously, in 1854. They reared a family of five boys and five girls. Those living are Henry, Gotleib C., Frederica, Wilhelmina, Augusta, Mary and Caroline. The parents were both devoted members of the Lutheran Church. The father was a prominent member of the A. F. & A. M., and was highly esteemed by all who knew him. In 1858 Gotleib C. left his native land and relatives and came to America; but previously he had received a good education in the common and high schools of Germany, and spent two years in an agricultural school, from which he graduated in 1853. He was then hired as second inspector on a large farm, and after the first year, was given charge of the farm, which he managed very successfully. Upon his arrival in New York, he went to Chicago, and, in the fall of 1859, from thence to St. Louis. Later he went to New Orleans, but returned to St. Louis at the beginning of the Civil War, and enlisted in the Second Missouri Infantry for three months. After being mustered out, he organized a battalion, and joined the First Western Cavalry, afterward the Second Missouri Cavalry, under Freeman. Mr. Rose was promoted to second lieutenant and served until the close of the war, being discharged in the fall of 1865. After the war he was engaged in farming in Southern Illinois for three years, when he sold his land and came to Scott County, Mo., in 1869. For one year he lived near Benton, and removed to his present location in 1871, purchasing at first 120 acres, which he cleared and improved, and now has a farm of 325 acres, with 240 under cultivation. In 1865 he married Anna Furgurson, a native of Missouri. They have no children, but have reared three, Edward Garvey (who is married and lives near the home place), James Williams and Jennie Williams. Mr. and Mrs. Rose are members of the Missionary Baptist Church, of which he is deacon. He is a member of the A. F. & A. M., of the A. O. U. W. and the Pilgrim Knights.

Rev. Martin Scherer, of New Hamburg, Scott Co., Mo., was born in Bavaria, Germany, in 1830. He was reared and educated in his native State, and in 1854 came to America as a Catholic missionary. He was first located at La Porte, Ind., and remained nine years, when he came to New Hamburg, Mo. His church membership at the latter place now numbers 200 or more. He also has charge of the schools of his district, two at New Hamburg containing about one hundred pupils, one in Scherer's settlement, and Cheney's school. The last two contain about twenty or thirty pupils each. Both the church and the schools are in a prosperous condition. The church building was destroyed by fire in 1863, but in 1866 and 1867 was replaced by a magnificent stone structure, costing about $40,000. Father Scherer is an earnest, active Christian worker, and his services to the people of New Hamburg and vicinity are invaluable.

John L. Shumate, M. D., was born in Manchester, Mo., September 3, 1832, and is a son of Rev. Walker D. and Sarah (Williams) Shumate, both natives of Virginia. The paternal grandfather came from Wales, and settled in Virginia, where he resided until his death, at the age of ninety-eight years. The maternal grandfather immigrated to the United States from England. Rev. Walker D. Shumate came to Missouri in 1830, and located in St. Louis County, where he afterward resided. He was one of the most popular Methodist ministers in this section of the country. He died in 1872. His wife died in 1837. They were the parents of eight children. Those living are Dr. John L., Mrs. Susan Butler, Charles (of Troy, Mo.), Mrs. Mollie Chapman (of St. Louis) and James. The subject of this sketch remained with his father, attending school, until he was twenty-one years of age. However, he began the study of medicine when but nineteen years of age, and in the winter of 1855 graduated in the medical department of the St. Louis University. The next fall he came to Sikeston, and began practicing his profession, and is now the oldest resident physician of this section of Missouri. He has borne well with the changeable climate and swamps, being yet a well preserved man. At the time of his location at Sikeston, Dr. Brown, who afterward became lieutenant-governor of Missouri, was the only physician near there. As the country became more thickly settled, Dr. Shumate's practice increased, and soon extended many miles around Sikeston. In 1866 he was united in marriage with Lucinda Magee, a native of Missouri. To them were born five children: Sallie, Mollie, Henrietta, Gracie A. and Walker A. The Doctor is a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. His wife, who died in 1876, was also a devoted member of the same church. Dr. Shumate has never been an aspirant for office, but has attended strictly to his profession, and by so doing has won many warm friends, and has accumulated enough property to spend his last days in ease and comfort.

Needham Sikes, a prominent merchant of Sikeston, was born there on June 22, 1851, and is a son of John and Catherine (Stallcup) Sikes. John Sikes made an early settlement in New Madrid County, where he remained a short time and removed to the present site of Sikeston, the town receiving its name in honor of him. He was a prominent merchant and a good citizen, devoted to his family and business, but taking no interest in political affairs. At the time of his death he owned considerable real estate; he was permitted to spend the last part of his life in ease and comfort. He was killed in 1867 by a man by the name of Maulsby, and lived but a few days after he was shot. His widow, who is a native of Scott County, is still living in Sikeston. Their union was blessed with four children, only one of whom, Needham, survives; those deceased are James, Mary A., and an infant unnamed. The subject of this sketch has always resided in his native town, his education, which was begun there, being finished at Caledonia and Arcadia Colleges. Upon leaving school he turned his attention to farming, which occupation he very successfully followed until 1881, when he engaged in his present business, at which he has also been successful. He carries a large assortment of hardware, groceries, saddlery, queensware and tinware, also machinery of all kinds. Besides his property in Sikeston he owns some valuable farming land in Scott County. Mr. Sikes was married in October, 1879, to Miss Sallie P. Wyatt, of Kentucky, by whom he has had one child, Ethel B. Sikes. Mr. and Mrs. Sikes are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is also a member of the Masonic fraternity.

Capt. Ward L. Smith, a prominent citizen of Scott County, Mo., was born in Syracuse, N. Y., in 1820. He is a son of Noah and Catheline (Vrooman) Smith, natives of the Mohawk Valley. Catheline Vrooman's ancestors came to America from Holland in the seventeenth century. Noah Smith's father, Oziel Smith, settled at Syracuse, N. Y., when the place was called Salt Point, and remained there until his death. Several of his sons were in the War of 1812, and two of them, George and Oziel, were colonels. The latter was captured by the Indian from whom he escaped, and afterward located at Buffalo, where he died. George died in Rochester, N. Y., in which city two of his sons are now practicing law. Noah, the father of the subject of this sketch, was a politician and traveled extensively. He died in Phoenix, near Syracuse. His wife died in Oran, at the home of her son, Ward L. He had been married previous to his marriage with Catheline Vrooman, and by both wives reared twelve children—six girls and six boys—of whom two are living, Ward L. and Edwin R., now living in Syracuse, N. Y. One son, Oziel H., was in the Rebellion under McClellan. He died in Diehlstadt, Scott County, Mo., in 1879. His widow now resides in Michigan. When twelve years of age Ward L. ran away from home and went to sea. He spent his thirteenth birthday on the bark "Tuscaloosa," a whaling vessel, just off the coast of Cape Horn. Soon after the crew was cast away at the peninsula of St. Joseph, Patagonia, where they were captured by the Patagonia Indians and held nineteen months, when they were rescued by the Spanish and taken to Rio Negro. There the Captain got a boat and took the crew to Rio Janeiro, where they were sent by the council to their respective homes. Mr. Smith landed at Mobile, and went to sea again, first as sailor, then as boatswain, second mate, chief mate, and in 1848 he became captain, after which he helped to build two vessels in Mobile, Ala., and as captain of the last one built, the "Sarah E. Meagler," crossed the Atlantic Ocean in the latter part of 1854 to Chesburgh, France. During the Crimean War, Capt. Smith took service as a transport in the French Government service, and was sent to Algiers, Africa, and from there to Constantinople and the Black Sea; was in the French service from late in 1854 to 1856, the most of the time in the Black Sea at Sebastopol, Karnish, Balaklava, Sulina, etc. After his discharge from the French Government, he went up the river Danube and his was the first American vessel that ever entered that river. He hoisted the first American flag that was ever seen at Galatz and Ibrail. Capt. Smith chartered his vessel to load with wheat at Galatz for Marseilles, France, to which place he took his cargo, and, owing to some difficulty with the French Government, his vessel was seized and he was kept at Marseilles until 1858, when he returned to Mobile and went to sea again until 1861. Being ordered to leave the Confederacy he did so and came up the river to Memphis, Tenn., where he was put in prison. On being released he went to Cairo, Ill., where he worked for the Government as a master mechanic. In 1868 he removed his family to a farm in Mississippi County, Mo., but the next year came to Scott County and located at Sylvania, now Oran. The next year he purchased a saw mill at Caney Creek, which he has since operated very successfully. He owns about 1,000 acres of land, 200 of which are cleared, the rest being covered with fine timber. In 1860 he was united in marriage with Miss Ann W. Williams, a native of Clay, N. Y. She has a brother in St. Louis and two brothers who are editors of prominent papers in New York. She died on September 11, 1887, aged fifty-four years. They had no children, but reared an adopted boy, William W., who died in 1889. Mr. Smith's niece, Carrie Murray, resides with him. Mr. Smith is a Universalist. He and his wife were both members of prominent Universalist families. Mrs. Smith was instrumental in organizing the Universalist Church at Morley, in which a memorial window is dedicated to her. Mr. Smith contributed the material of which the church is built. He has been a member of the A. F. & A. M. since 1848.

Dr. J. S. Sparks, of Blodgett, Mo., was born in Jefferson County, Tenn., October 10, 1834. He is a son of William G. and Nazey (Duffron) Sparks, natives of North Carolina and Tennessee, respectively. William G. Sparks emigrated from the "Old North State" to Tennessee, thence to Georgia, where he lived until his death in 1857. He was a minister in the Methodist Episcopal Church. His wife died in 1897. They had ten children, four living: Dr. J. S., Susan J., William G. and Joseph. The subject of this sketch was reared to farm life, chiefly in Georgia. He made farming his sole occupation until 1855, when he began studying medicine. He began the practice of his profession in Georgia, but removed to Scott County, Mo., in 1857. Locating at Richwoods, he practiced medicine about three years, when he purchased a farm about three miles below Blodgett, and engaged in farming in connection with his practice. When the war broke out he removed to Santa Fe, Ill., and resumed the practice of his profession, but three years later removed back to Scott County. In 1882 he graduated from the Medical University of Tennessee at Nashville, soon after which he located at Blodgett. He has been married four times; first, on March 6, 1859, to Sarah C. Bennetfield, by whom he has three children: Dr. Richard A., Henrietta and Louisa C. He was married the second time on October 18, 1868, and the third time on October 6, 1876. On August 6, 1884, he was united in marriage with Bettie Goode, by whom he has one child, Frederick D. The Doctor is a Mason, and a member of the I. O. O. F.

David Spradlin, a farmer and fruit grower of Scott County, Mo., was born in Smith County, Tenn., and is a son of Obadiah and Elizabeth (Driver) Spradlin. The Spradlin and Driver families were originally from North and South Carolina, respectively. Obadiah Spradlin died in Smithland in July, 1838, leaving four children: David, Redrick, Mary and Samuel, all now deceased except David, the eldest. The last named was born in 1828, and was but ten years old when his father died, after which he lived with his mother until he reached his majority, when she resided with him until her death. She died at his present home in 1874, aged sixty-nine years. David Spradlin came to Missouri in 1850, and located in Reynolds County, but the same year removed to Scott County and resided until 1859, when he returned to Reynolds County. He served in the Federal army, first as a member of the State Militia, but in March of 1864 enlisted in the Fiftieth Regiment of Missouri Infantry, and served until he was discharged at St. Louis on July 5, 1865. Upon his return home he located in Scott County and engaged in farming, and three years later located on the land on which he now resides. In 1857 he was united in marriage with Miriam A., a daughter of Richmond and Mary (Rasberry) Sanders, natives of Tennessee, who came to Missouri about 1844. Mr. Sanders died in Scott County in 1882, and his widow is now residing with her children. She is the mother of nine children, seven of whom are living, viz.: Miriam A., Church, Martin, Willie S., Allen, John, Filmore, Mary R. (Mrs. Gibbs). Polk died in the Union army, at Cape Girardeau, in August, 1861. Miriam A. was born in Tennessee, in 1837. To Mr. and Mrs. Spradlin have been born the following children: Susan I., (now the wife of G. Miller), Mary E. (wife of Andy C. Miller), William G. (married December 14, 1884, the daughter of R. G. Parks, and lives on the home place and is the father of one child), Obadiah R. (who died in 1862), Jesse M. (at home), Anna, David, Eliza, Isonia, Addie, Clara, Harrison K. and Julia. Mark H. Stallcup, of the firm of Stallcup & Co., grain merchants, of Sikeston, Mo., was born in New Madrid County, Mo., January 27, 1854, and is a son of James and Catherine (Sikes) Stallcup, natives of Scott and New Madrid Counties, Mo., respectively. James Stallcup was the son of Mark H. Stallcup, Sr., a pioneer of Southeast Missouri, who settled on the line between Scott and New Madrid Counties. He owned considerable real estate and was engaged in the merchandise business for a number of years. James Stallcup engaged in farming during his life. He owned several thousand acres of land and a great many slaves. He was one of New Madrid County's best and most energetic citizens. His death occurred in 1861 and his wife's in 1883. They were the parents of four children: Mollie (Mrs. J. H. Long), Mark H., Adelia and Emma. The subject of this sketch was reared on his father's farm, and his education, which was begun in the schools of Sikeston, was finished in a three-years' course at Arcadia College. The company of which he is now a member is extensively engaged in selling grain and farm implements, and has a warehouse that holds between 15,000 and 20,000 bushels of grain. Mr. Stallcup is also engaged in farming and raising stock. He owns about 3,000 acres of land, with about 1,800 acres under cultivation. In March, 1876, he was united in marriage with Sue A. Gregory, a native of Tennessee, by whom he has two children: James A. and Mark L. Mrs. Stallcup is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity.

Parham Stone, a well-to-do farmer of Kelso Township, Scott Co., Mo., was born in Hickman County, Ky., in 1828. He is the son of Gray and Jemima (Kendall) Stone, natives of North Carolina, who were reared and married in their native State. They immigrated to Henry County, Tenn., and remained until January, 1828, when they removed to Hickman County, Ky., where they afterward resided and reared a large family of children, as follows: Arrixa, Nancy, John A., Isaac, Amon, Arrenia, Sarah, Elizabeth, Parham, William, James G., and Mary J. Only three of the family are living. The first one that died was the father. He died in 1850, aged sixty-four years, and his wife in January, 1860, aged sixty-two years. Nancy is the wife of William H. Ramer, and resides in Kentucky. James G. lives in Texas. Parham remained with his parents until he was twenty-one years of age, when he began work for himself. At the death of his father, he returned home and took care of his mother and younger sisters until the death of the mother. In February, 1860, he married Elizabeth Walker, a native of Warren County, Ky., born in 1837. She is a daughter of Robert and Nancy (Allen) Walker, natives of Kentucky, born about 1809 and 1818, respectively. They came to Missouri in 1843 and located in Scott County. Ten years later Mr. Walker died on the Platte River while on his way to California. His widow resides near the subject of this sketch, with one of her daughters. She is the mother of four children: James Walker, living in Benton; Elizabeth, Susan, widow of Abner Barnes, who died July 26, 1887, and Mary, deceased. Parham Stone located in Mississippi County, Mo., in 1854, and removed to Scott County in 1862 and located near Benton. He removed to his present farm in 1874. He has served as justice of the peace and constable of his township. In religious belief, he and his wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. They have had seven children: Nancy E. (Mrs. Richard Finley), Mary F. (deceased), Robert G., James William, Susan A., Parham A., and George A. Mr. Stone is a member of the Masonic fraternity and the Wheel.

William H. Stubblefield, a substantial farmer of Scott County, Mo., was born in Johnson County, Ill., March 9, 1840. He is a son of Beverly and Isabella (Henson) Stubblefield, natives of Tennessee and Virginia, respectively. The paternal grandparents, Beverly Stubblefield and wife, were natives of Virginia, who immigrated to Tennessee, and from thence to Kentucky, where they died. Beverly Stubblefield, the father of our subject, emigrated from Kentucky to Illinois, but remained only a few years and returned to Kentucky. In 1854 he brought his family to Scott County, Mo., making the trip with wagons and ox-teams, and made a settlement near Price's Landing. His death occurred in 1855. His widow is now living in Kentucky. They had nine children, six of whom are living: John, Ben., Clay, Mary (Mrs. Richard Stone), Hulda (Mrs. Thomas Gilles), and William H. Being but fifteen years of age when his father died, William H. remained with his mother two years longer, when he began work for himself as a farm laborer. When he was twenty years of age, he rented a farm, which he cultivated until he was married, in 1862, to Mary Matthews, when he removed to a farm belonging to the latter near Commerce, Mo. In March, 1868, he removed his family to Richland Township, Scott County. After renting land for three years, he purchased the farm on which he now resides. It consists of 520 acres of land, mostly under cultivation, with good improvements. To him and wife have been born two children: William and John B. Mr. Stubblefield is a member of the I. O. O. F. and of the A. O. U. W. Politically, he is a Democrat.

Dr. Thomas E. Tomlinson, of Morley, Mo., was born in Dover, Tenn., in 1857, and is a son of Uriah D. Tomlinson, also a native of Stewart County, Tenn. The latter was reared in his native county, and married Mattie S. Outlaw, a native of Montgomery County, Tenn. They removed to Montgomery County in 1863, where Mr. Tomlinson is still living, engaged in merchandising. At present he holds the office of county assessor. His wife died in 1874, aged thirty-four years. They were the parents of ten children, four of whom are living, viz.: Hugh D., Alexander O., Eunice (Mrs. Charles Hoffman, of Montgomery County, Tenn.), and Thomas E. Marcus M. came to his death at Charleston, Mo., where he was employed as telegraph operator, by falling off a moving engine. The others died in infancy. Dr. Thomas E., in 1874, engaged in farming in his native county, but the next year commenced studying medicine under the direction of Dr. John F. Outlaw, of Palmyra, Tenn. He next entered a medical college at Nashville, Tenn., and graduated in 1878, after which he began practicing his profession at Union Point, Ill., but the next year (1879) he came to Southeast Missouri, and located at Morley, where he has gained the confidence of the people, and has a large and increasing practice. In September, 1881, he was united in marriage with Ella D. Curd, a native of Mayfield, Ky., and a daughter of E. G. Curd. She died in August, 1883, having borne one child that died in infancy. Dr. Tomlinson afterward married Eugenia Harris, who was born and reared in Cape Girardeau County. One child has been born to this union—Ella. Mrs. Tomlinson is a devoted member of the Baptist Church. The Doctor is a member of the I. O. O. F., and of the K. of P.

William W. Ward, surveyor of Scott County, and dealer in real estate, was born in Underhill, Vt., in May, 1837. He is a son of Dexter and Cecelia (Woods) Ward, both natives of Vermont. The family removed to Wisconsin in 1842, when it was but a territory, and the subject of this sketch but five years old, and located in Grant County, in which county Dexter Ward afterward served as sheriff. He was a carpenter by trade, at which he worked in connection with farming. He died at his home in Lancaster on September 20, 1881. His widow still owns the home property, but makes her home with the subject of this sketch. To her and husband were born five children: William W., Henry (engaged in farming and lumbering in Oregon since 1864), Eleanor M. (Mrs. Michael Woodard), Sarah A. (who died at the home of her brother, William W., in 1888), and Mary A. (Mrs. Charles Angus), residing near Lancaster, Wis. William W. was reared at his parents', and received his education in the schools of Lancaster and at Mount Morris, Ill. In 1854 he made a surveying tour with G. R. Stuntz, city engineer of Duluth, and others. In 1860 he went overland to California on a prospecting and mining tour, and remained until 1866, when he returned to Wisconsin via Panama and New York, after which he was engaged in the livery business until 1869. He then sold his interest in that business, and was engaged in government surveying in Minnesota and Dakota until 1874, at which time he came to Southeast Missouri. Locating in Scott County, he has since taken an active interest in everything that tended to promote the welfare of its citizens. For the past twelve years he has served as county surveyor, and is also engaged in the real-estate business, having charge of about 42,000 acres of land for Charles P. Chouteau, of St. Louis. In August, 1874, Mr. Ward wedded Mrs. Laura M. Watson, a daughter of Isaac L. and Valencia L. (Lane) Benham, natives of Vermont, who removed to Wisconsin in 1852. Mrs. Ward finished her education in 1860-61, and went to Louisiana to teach school. While there she was married to James Watson, a native of Mississippi. Soon after their marriage they visited the wife's parents in Wisconsin, and in 1867 came to Southeast Missouri and located. Mr. Watson died in December, 1872, aged forty-two years. He left two boys: William E. and George W. Mrs. Ward's mother died in 1869, aged fifty-seven years, and her father, in 1873, aged sixty-one years.

Irvin A. Wilson was born in 1844, and is a son of James and Parmelia (Vincen) Wilson. James Wilson was born on the way from Ireland to America, and his wife was born in Mississippi. They came to Southeast Missouri about 1834, and located on a farm among the hills of Scott County, where the father died in 1845, aged forty-five years. The mother died in 1868, aged fifty-two years. They are the parents of three children living, and three dead. The former are: Jasper, Jane (Mrs. William Boutwell) and Irvin A. The latter are: Amanda, Sarah and Matilda. Upon attaining his majority, Irvin A. began work for himself on a farm in Richwoods, near Sikeston. He afterward resided about two years in Sikeston, and in 1882 came to his present location in Morley Township, on the east bank of Little River. His farm consists of 185 acres, 150 of which are under cultivation, with good improvements. He first married Mary Vaughn, by whom he had six children, viz: Jasper (deceased), Aspisia, James (deceased), Laura (deceased), Charles and Edwin. After the death of this wife, Mr. Wilson married Frances Batts, who bore him four children: Benjamin (deceased), Emma, Ettie and an infant (unnamed). The mother of these children died in 1884, after which Mr. Wilson was united in marriage with Anna (Riggs) Matin (the widow of Albert Matin). She had one child by her first marriage, who is now at home. To her and Mr. Wilson have been born two children: an infant (deceased) and Gertrude. Mr. Wilson is a member of Lodge No. 358, I. O. O. F., of Sikeston.

Hansford T. Wray, a farmer of Scott County, Mo., was born in Middle Tennessee, in 1817, and is a son of Archibald and Nellie (Thompson) Wray. Archibald Wray was born in Knox County, Tenn., in 1793, and Nellie Thompson was born in Pennsylvania in the same year. They were married near Lebanon, Tenn., in 1816. Mr. Wray was a farmer and carpenter, and died in Hickman County, of his native State, in 1863. His wife died in 1866. Their union was blessed by the birth of nine children, all of whom grew to maturity: Hansford T., Harmon, Hiram, John A., Edward H., Lucinda J., Dorothy E., Louisa C. and Richard D. Harmon, Hiram, John and Edward were in the Mexican War, and Edward and Richard were in the Rebellion. Those living are the subject of this sketch, Hiram (residing near Nashville, Tenn.) and Richard (in Dixon County, Tenn.). Hansford T. remained with his parents until his marriage in 1842 with Adaline Erwin, a native of South Carolina, who was reared in Tennessee. He then came to Missouri and engaged in farming near Cape Girardeau, but in 1859 removed to Scott County and located in Kelso Township, where he remained until 1877, when he removed to his present farm in Commerce Township. To Mr. Wray and wife were born: Lucy, Charlotte E., Amanda A., Archie, Theodrick, William and Samuel. Those living are: Charlotte, Amanda, Theodrick, William and Samuel. Amanda is the wife of Lindsay DeLashmunt; the others are at home with their father, their mother having died on April 23, 1883. Mr. Wray is a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. His wife was also a devoted member of the same church. Theodrick is a member of the A. F. & A. M. and of the Wheel. Mr. Wray has charge of the government lamps on his place at Grand Chain, on the Mississippi River.

Alexander Wright, a farmer and stock raiser of Scott County, was born in New Madrid County, Mo., February 24, 1835, and is a son of John and Drusilla (Hannab) Wright. The grandparents were from Pennsylvania, and were among the early settlers of Cape Girardeau County, Mo. John Wright went to New Madrid County about 1820. He and wife had a family of ten children, but were not permitted to live to see them reach maturity. The father died when Alexander was but two years of age, after which the latter lived with his mother until her death, he being at that time about thirteen years old. Remaining in New Madrid County until he attained his majority, he went to Scott County and located in the Richwood country, four miles north of Sikeston, and remained until 1858, when he removed to a farm two miles west of Morley, and resided until the breaking out of the Civil War. He then enlisted for six months in the Missouri State Guards (Confederate), and in the fall of 1862 enlisted in Col. Jeffrey's regiment, and was commissioned captain of a company of men mostly from Scott County. In 1863 he resigned his commission, and returned home on account of failing health. Soon after he went to New Madrid County, and remained until the close of the war, when he returned home and resumed farming. He purchased his present farm in 1875, and removed to it in 1879. In 1881 Mr. Wright engaged in merchandising at Oran, Mo., but after three years returned to his farm. In 1874 he was elected sheriff and collector of Scott County and served two terms. He was married in 1857 to Margaret Wright, who died on January 1, 1858, leaving one child, Benjamin L., now married and residing on the home farm. Afterward, Mr. Wright married Elizabeth Nealey. She died on March 7, 1861, having borne one child, Christopher L. (also deceased). On March 13, 1862, he was united in marriage with Elizabeth Hinton, a native of Scott County, born December 7, 1835, and is a daughter of John and Penthia (Payne) Hinton, natives of North Carolina and Kentucky. To this union have been born six children: Eliza E., Robert J., James A. (deceased), Una (deceased), Charles (deceased), and Joseph S. The family are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Wright has a fine farm of 320 acres, of which 250 are under cultivation. He is a member of the Agricultural Wheel.

Dr. B. F. Wyatt, an intelligent and enterprising young physician of Sikeston, Mo., was born in Johnson County, that State, in November, 1859. He is a son of Benjamin B. and Sarah A. (Mansfield) Wyatt, both of whom were natives of Caldwell County, Ky. Benjamin B. Wyatt was a farmer and slave-trader, and spent the most of his life in his native State. He removed to Johnson County, Mo., and resided several years. He died in 1873, and his wife in 1867. The subject of this sketch being young when his parents died, was cared for by John B. Bowman, ex-mayor of East St. Louis, who was assassinated in November, 1885. Mayor Bowman gave Dr. Wyatt all the advantages of a good education. He graduated at the St. Louis University when he was seventeen years of age, after which he began the study of medicine, and graduated from the medical department of the University of Louisville, Ky., in 1881. He immediately came to Sikeston, where he has since been located in the practice of his profession. His practice is now large and lucrative and is increasing each year. In September, 1884, he was united in marriage with India Carpenter, a native of Ripley, Tenn.

Silvanus B. Wylie, a farmer of Sylvania Township, Scott County, was born in South Carolina, on June 25, 1841, and is a son of James and Rosanna (Hopper) Wylie, natives of South Carolina and North Carolina, respectively. James Wylie's parents were both born in Ireland, and came to America when children. The Hopper family came from England. James Wylie died in his native State in 1847, leaving a widow and six children, all now deceased, except the subject of this sketch and a brother, William P., who lives on a farm near the old homestead in South Carolina. The mother died in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., at the home of her son, Silvanus B., in 1862, aged fifty-four years. Sil vanus B. remained in his native State until November, 1859, when he, with his mother's family, removed to a farm near Moscow, Ky., but, in the fall of 1860, came to Southeast Missouri, and located in Cape Girardeau County, and resided until 1863. He then, with a younger brother, who was left to his charge, came to Scott County, where he has since resided, engaged in farming. His marriage with Miss Jane Byrne was celebrated in 1869. She was born and reared in Scott County, and is the daughter of William and Serena (Calhoun) Byrne, natives of Cape Girardeau County, Mo., and Kentucky, respectively. Mrs. Byrne was born in 1820, and is now living with Mr. Byrne, her only living son, her husband having died when Mrs. Wylie was a small child. He left seven children, only two of whom are living: Mrs. Wylie and William Byrne, residing in Scott County. To Mr. and Mrs. Wylie have been born seven children, one of whom died in infancy. Those living are: Cora A., Roxia May, Loretta, James Claude, Thomas Arthur and Myrtie. Mr. Wylie and wife are active members of the Missionary Baptist Church, of which he has been a member since 1856. He is a deacon in the church, has served as clerk for several years, and also clerk of the Charleston Baptist Association eight years.

Joel B. Yates, an enterprising farmer and stock raiser of Scott County, Mo., was born and reared in Stoddard County, Mo., and is a son of John W. and Zurilda (Cradick) Yates, both of whom were born and reared in Kentucky. They were married in their native State, and came to Southeast Missouri about 1849. Locating in Stoddard County, they remained about two years, and returned to Kentucky, but after five years' residence there, they came back to Stoddard County, where Mrs. Yates still resides. Mr. Yates lives in Howell County. They are the parents of fifteen children, nine of whom lived to be grown. The others died in infancy. Those who reached maturity are: William H., Joel B., Elizabeth C. (now deceased), Mary Ellen, George, Nancy (now deceased), Sarah (also deceased), Johnnie (deceased), Willis and John F. Joel B. was born in December, 1851, and remained with his parents until he reached his majority, after which he was engaged in farming in Arkansas and Missouri, until 1879. He then located on Bird's Island, Scott County, and remained until the spring of 1881, when he removed to his present location. He has a fine farm, which he is improving in a creditable manner. On March 9, 1879, he was united in marriage with Sarah Ann Patterson, a native of Cape Girardeau County. She was reared on Bird's Island, Scott Co., Mo., by her father, her mother having died when she was an infant. She was an only child. Her father died in 1871. Mr. and Mrs. Yates' union has been blessed by the birth of one child, Amanda Jane.

MISSISSIPPI COUNTY.

Scott Alexander is a son of J. J. and Mary (Tandy) Alexander, both natives of Kentucky. The father is still living and is engaged in farming in that State. The mother died in 1872. They were the parents of five children: Wayland (deceased), Louis P., Robert L. (cashier of Hickman Bank), Scott, and Ella, (wife of Wallace Bond, of New Liberty, Ky.). Scott Alexander was born in New Liberty, Ky., on January 17, 1863. His education, which was begun in his native town, and supplemented by a four-years' course at Georgetown, Ky., was finished at the Commercial College at Lexington, Ky., he having graduated from that institution in December, 1883. He was then engaged in the mercantile business at New Liberty for about three years, after which he went to Hickman and assisted his brother in business. In October, 1887, he removed to Charleston, since which time he has been cashier of the Charleston Bank, which he was instrumental in organizing. This bank was chartered by the State on October 28, 1887, and now has a capital of $15,000, and a continual increase of deposits. Mr. Alexander is highly educated, and well fitted for his position. He is a member of the Baptist Church.

L. H. Allstun was born in Hardin County, Ky., September 29, 1837. He is a son of John and Loucretia (Brumfield) Allstun, both of German descent, and natives of Kentucky. Jeremiah Allstun, the grandfather, immigrated, at an early day, from Virginia to Kentucky and was one of the pioneers of Hardin County. He served in the War of 1812, and was in the battle of New Orleans. He died in Kentucky. The maternal grandfather (Brumfield) also died in that State. John Allstun was a farmer and lived in Hardin County, Ky., most of his life. He, however, died in Jefferson County, Ky., in 1871. His wife lived until 1886. They reared a family of nine children, eight of whom are living: Susan (Mrs. A. A. Harrison), Loyde H., Nancy, Artemus A., Olivie, Frances, Hiram B. and Kitty A., Alexander being deceased. Loyde H. was reared to farm life, and remained with his parents until he was married, in 1857, to Frances Boyard, when he began farming for himself, in his native county. His wife died May 23, 1863, leaving three children: W. R. Allstun, John H. Allstun and Susan H. Allstun (deceased). Next married to Rhoda Cook, January 6, 1869, by whom he has one child, Walter T. Allstun. He remained there until February, 1872, when he brought his family to Missouri, and located near where he now lives. He rented land for three years, after which he purchased 120 acres, all of which he now has under cultivation, and upon which he now resides.

George W. Armer, a prominent farmer of Mississippi County, was born in Benton County, Tenn., August 28, 1849. He is a son of William Armer, who located in Long Prairie Township, Mississippi County, on January 2, 1855. The latter was born in Tennessee, in 1818, and is a son of Oliver and Nancy (Martin) Armer, who settled in Tennessee at a very early day. The former died in 1851, at fifty-nine years of age, and the latter died about 1864. Her father, George Martin, lived to be one hundred and twelve years old. They (Oliver and Nancy Armer) had eight children, all deceased, except William and George W., who live in Tennessee. William lived with his father until he was about twenty-one years of age, and on March 9, 1845, was united in marriage with Sarah A. Rushing, born on July 18, 1827, and is a daughter of William R. and Elizabeth (Ward) Rushing, natives of North Carolina, in which State they were reared and married. In 1827 they went with teams to Tennessee, and settled in Benton County. Mr. Rushing died in 1848 and his wife in 1854. They had six children: Louisa (deceased), Drusilla (deceased), Davis C. (deceased), Sarah A., Jemima and Catherine. Ten children were born to William Armer and wife: James B. (deceased), Nancy J. (deceased), George W., Perry D. (deceased), Thomas J. (deceased), Noah W., Daniel B. (deceased), Marinda (deceased), Louisa B. (deceased) and William T. (deceased). William Armer is a highly respected citizen, and has been a very successful farmer. His wife is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. George W. remained with his parents, assisting them on the farm, until he was twenty-five years old. In 1874 he wedded Nancy Vowels, born in Kentucky, on October 7, 1852. She is a daughter of Henry and Eliza (Ice) Vowels, natives of Kentucky. The fall after his marriage, Mr. Armer located on the farm upon which he now resides, consisting of 180 acres of land, with 150 acres under a good state of cultivation, upon which he has a nice residence and barn. He and wife have had eight children: Mary A. (deceased), Daniel D., William H., Elbert S., Robert B., Thomas J., Nellie J. and one infant unnamed (deceased). Both Mr. and Mrs. Armer are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He is a member of the A. F. & A. M.

Noah W. Armer was born on his father's farm, in Mississippi County, near where he now resides, in 1857. He is a son of William and Sarah (Rushing) Armer [see sketch of George W. Armer]. Noah W. remained with his parents until the fall of 1886, when he removed to the farm, upon which he now resides. On March 21, 1886, he was united in marriage with Katy Frawley, a native of Grenada, Miss., born in December, 1869. She is a daughter of Edward and Sarah (Buckner) Frawley, the former a native of Dublin, Ireland, and the latter of Scott County, Mo. Mr. Frawley came from New York to Missouri, in which State he was married. He afterward removed to Mississippi, where he resided until his death, in 1881. Mrs. Armer remained with her father until she was about thirteen years of age, when she was sent to the Female Seminary at Woodville, Miss. Upon leaving that institution, she entered the Natchez Institute, and remained nearly three years, after which she came to Mississippi County, Mo. Mr. and Mrs. Armer are intelligent and enterprising, and have a bright future before them. They enjoy the comforts of a good home, and have one child, Eloise, born August 21, 1887. They are both members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

David Baker, one of Mississippi County's prominent men and successful citizens, was born in Charlotte, N. C., but was mostly reared in Lincoln County, of that State. He was born on May 24, 1829, and is a son of Jacob and Elmina (Pelt) Baker, both of whom were also natives of North Carolina. The great-grandfather Baker came from England, and settled in North Carolina. Both great-grandparents, on the mother's side, came from Ireland, and they also settled in that State. The grandparents on both sides lived and died in the "Old North State." Jacob Baker was reared to farm life, and, when young, immigrated to Rome, Ga., where he remained about three years, and removed to Carroll County, Tenn. Residing there until 1854, he immigrated, with his family, to Mississippi County, Mo., making the journey, which required several weeks, in wagons, by the way of Nashville. He stopped at Wolf Island and remained about one year, when he removed to within four miles of Charleston, where he purchased a farm in the woods, upon which he resided until his death, on October 1, 1886. His wife died in 1879, having borne twelve children, seven of whom are living: David, Abraham, Margaret (Mrs. James Sheppard), Caroline (Mrs. A. Coleman), Josephine (Mrs. Wade Shelby), Frank and William. Those deceased are: Rachel, George, John, Mary and Larcissa. David remained on the farm, with his parents, until he was married, on November 20, 1851, to Margaret, a daughter of John and Sarah (Ancell) Davis, who were natives of North Carolina. After his marriage, Mr. Baker began for himself, and made three crops in Tennessee, when he removed with his father's family to Mississippi County, Mo. He remained for three years at Wolf Island when he removed to the Concord settlement, where he had purchased eighty acres of heavily timbered land, which required several years of industry and economy to clear and prepare for cultivation. At that time he hauled his produce to Price's Landing. Since 1879 he has been a resident of Charleston, in which he owns several town lots and a nice residence. He now has 800 acres of land, of which 600 are under a fine state of cultivation. Mr. and Mrs. Baker have had three children, one of whom is living (Mrs. Dr. A. A. Bondurant). Those deceased are George S. and an infant. Mrs. Baker is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Baker is a Royal Arch Mason. He has never held office, except that of public administrator and city councilman.

Frank Baker was born in North Carolina, October 2, 1844, and is a son of Jacob and Hannah E. (Pelt) Baker, who were also natives of North Carolina. The paternal grandfather was born in South Carolina. Jacob Baker was a farmer, and removed from his native State to Tennessee, and from thence, in 1856, to Mississippi County, Mo., making the entire journey in wagons. He located in the timber, in the Concord settlement, where he erected a rude log cabin with puncheon floor, and clapboard roof and doors, in which he and his family lived for several years. He worked for awhile almost night and day, to get some land cleared, that he might raise a crop. He improved his land and made a good home, where he lived until his death in 1886. His wife died two years previously. They had twelve children: Rachel (deceased), David, John, Abraham, Margaret (Mrs. James W. Sheppard), Mary (deceased), George (deceased), Caroline (Mrs. A. D. Coleman), Frank, William, Narcissus (deceased) and Josephine (Mrs. Wade Shelby). They also reared two children of their daughter's: Thomas and Lucinda (Mrs. George McGhee). Frank Baker was about eight years of age when his parents brought him to Mississippi County. He remained on the farm with his father until he was married, in 1870, to Mary Elizabeth Small, a daughter of Napoleon and Mary Small. Soon after, he located on a farm in the Concord settlement, and in 1875 moved to the farm on which he now resides, having made all the improvements on the place. He and wife have two children: John G. and Iva May. Mrs. Baker is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., and in politics is a Democrat.

Thomas Beckwith was born in Mississippi County, Mo., on January 24, 1940. His father, Quiros Beckwith, was a native of Fairfax Court House, Va., and was the son of Newman Beckwith, who was also born in the "Old Dominion," and remained there until the year of 1812, when he immigrated to Missouri. He came all the way from Wheeling, Va., in a flatboat, bringing his family with him. He settled at Norfolk, Mississippi County, where he remained three years, and removed to what is known as the O'Brien farm, where he resided until his death. While a resident of Virginia he possessed considerable wealth, but he lost it by going security. Quiros Beckwith was but eleven years of age, when he came with his parents to Mississippi County. He remained on his father's farm until he reached manhood, when he was married to Susan Johnston, who was born near Nashville, Tenn. After his marriage Mr. Beckwith engaged in tilling the soil, which he continued the most of his life, together with dealing in live-stock. At the time of his death he owned about 100 slaves, some of whom he had bought at considerable cost. He turned his attention entirely to business interests, and took no part whatever in politics. He died in 1862. His wife died on August 17, 1849. They were the parents of five children, four of whom are dead, viz.: Quiros, Ellen W., Margaret A. and Matthew J. Thomas, the only living member of the family, was reared on his father's farm, which consisted of about 1,100 acres of land, besides a large wood-yard. He labored on the farm and about the wood-yard and saw-mill until he became of age. In 1862 the overflow of the Mississippi River swept away one of the best farms. In 1861 he enlisted in Price's company, which was organized under the old system. He served about three months, with the rank of third lieutenant, when he was taken down with the measles and resigned. In February, 1862, he was captured at Long Prairie, and was confined in prison about five months, during which time he suffered many hardships, as the prison was dirty and filthy, and the chances of life were few, where the prisoners were confined for any length of time. After his release he returned home and resumed farming. On March 11, 1863, he was united in marriage with Laura, daughter of John and Sallie (Lee) Swank, who immigrated to Mississippi County in 1854. Mr. and Mrs. Beckwith have three daughters: Lillie M., Minnie L. and Ollie L. All the members of the family belong to the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Mr. Beckwith is one of the substantial men of Southeast Missouri. He owns over 3,000 acres of land in his own title, and a half interest in 4,000 more. He deals some in stock, horses, etc., and makes loans. He now has his farms rented, and spends his spare time in exploring the mounds left by the Mound Builders in Southeast Missouri, and has one of the finest collections of stones and pottery in this portion of the State.

Capt. James B. Bibb, a substantial farmer of Mississippi County, Mo., was born in Hickman County, Tenn., March 19, 1842. His parents, John M. and Caroline (Johnston) Bibb, were natives of Dixon County, Tenn. The family emigrated from Virginia to Tennessee in the early settlement of the latter State. John M. Bibb was a farmer and miller. In 1852 he came down the Ohio River on a flat-boat to Norfolk, and settled on what is known as the Badger Mill place. He was employed as foreman of Felix G. Badger's saw-mill for a number of years. He removed to Arkansas in 1859, but returned to Mississippi County, Mo., in 1872, and died in Dixon County, Tenn., that fall. His wife died in Randolph County, Ark., in 1862. They had seven children, three of whom are living: Capt. James B., Robert S. and Sarah I. (Mrs. Andrew Miller), of Arkansas. James B. was about ten years of age when his parents removed to Mississippi County, and he remained with them until 1861, when he enlisted in the Confederate army, joining Company A, Seventh Arkansas Regiment, under Gen. Hardee, serving until the close of the war. He participated in the battles of Shiloh, Pittsburg Landing, Murfreesboro, Perryville, and various skirmishes. He was slightly wounded at both Resaca and Kenesaw Mountain, by gun shots. At the close of the war he returned to his home in Arkansas, and remained a short time. In July, 1865, he removed to Mississippi County, and kept the ferry at Greenfield's Landing, Mo., until 1879, being captain of the ferry. In 1872 he purchased the farm that he now owns, to which he removed in 1882. The farm is all under cultivation, with good improvements. In January, 1873, he was married to Amanda M. Haines, a daughter of Minor B. and Rachel J. (Brooks) Haines, of Hickman County, Tenn. Mr. and Mrs. Bibb have two children: Callie A. and John O. Mr. and Mrs. Bibb are members of the Christian Church.

Thompson Bird, an enterprising pioneer citizen of Mississippi County, Mo., was born in that county December 26, 1828. He is a descendant of one of the oldest and most prominent families of Southeast Missouri. His parents, John and Ingiebo (Byrd) Bird, were natives of Virginia and Cape Girardeau County, Mo., respectively, and were of English and German descent. Both of his grandparents were born in America, and both immigrated to Cape Girardeau County. The paternal grandfather, Abraham Bird, came from Virginia, and located in Cape Girardeau County about 1798. By purchasing from the government and making entries in both Cape Girardeau County and near Bird's Point, he came into possession of large bodies of land. He removed to Bird's Point about 1805, and erected a little log cabin, in which he lived for several years. Becoming disgusted with the country, on account of the overflow of the Mississippi River in 1814-15, he took a boat and went down the river to Baton Rouge, La., where he located, and remained until his death. His land became the property of his sons, whom he had left in Southeast Missouri. The maternal grandfather, Abraham Byrd, came from North Carolina, and, stopping at Cairo a short time, went from thence to Cape Girardeau County, making one of the first settlements in that region. He lived to be quite aged, and died in that county. John Bird was Abraham Bird's youngest son. After his marriage he located at Bird's Point, which he made his home until his death, on September 20, 1868. Besides his land there he also had a large sugar plantation near Baton Rouge, which he managed, making in all about 3,000 acres. His wife died in 1864. They were the parents of ten children, five of whom are living: Thompson, Stephen, Nancy, Clara and Andrew. Thompson has always lived on the old homestead, following the vocation of a farmer. He now owns about 1,000 acres of land, a large part of which is under cultivation. He was first married, in 1863, to Nancy Emory, who died in 1865, leaving him one child, Julia, deceased. In 1865 he married Martha Emory, by whom he had three children: Rachel, Rosa and Clarissa. His wife died on March 11, 1885, and in October of that year he married Lucy Powell. Mrs. Bird is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Mr. Bird is an intelligent man, and one of the successful citizens of Mississippi County.

Stephen Bird, one of the most prominent farmers and millers of Mississippi County, Mo., was born near Baton Rouge, La., January 27, 1836. He is a son of John and Ingiebo (Byrd) Bird. [See sketch of Thompson Bird.] The subject of this sketch was quite young when he went to Mississippi County, of which he has since been a resident, and is now one of its most successful business men. He was reared at the home of his parents, remaining with them until their deaths. In 1865 he engaged in the milling business, which he has continued, now operating both grist and saw mills. He manufactures lumber of all kinds, which he ships to all parts of the world. His farming interests, also, are great, having in his possession over 2,000 acres of land. In 1867 he was united in marriage with Alice Hunter, by whom he had three children, one of whom is living, Abraham T. The second time he married Amanda Hunter. To this union one child has been born, Hunter.

John A. Bird, one of the most active and prosperous farmers of Mississippi County, Mo., was born in that county on January 23, 1866, and is a son of William and Lucy (Millar) Bird, both of whom were natives of Mississippi County. When the subject of this sketch was about six years old, his father died, and his mother was afterward married to Rev. Powell, who died soon after. John A. lived at Cairo, Ill., and at Charleston, Mo., until he was about sixteen years of age, when he entered school at Caledonia, Mo., and remained twenty months. He then returned to St. James Township, Mississippi County, and lived with John Millar and others until the spring of 1887. On September 28, 1887, he was united in marriage with Miss Iva E. Donnell, who was born June 20, 1868 in Jefferson County, Mo., and is a daughter of Thomas L. and Harriet E. (Byrd) Donnell, both of whom were born and reared in Missouri. Thomas L. Donnell was born on May 19, 1818, and is a son of William Donnell, one of the old and respected settlers of Jefferson County, Mo., having gone there from South Carolina when a young man. Harriet E. Byrd was born on June 7, 1833, and died on June 27, 1878. Thomas L. Donnell is a wealthy and influential citizen of Jefferson County. To Mr. Donnell and first wife, Mary (McCormick) Donnell, were born six children, four of whom are living: Sarah, Amanda, Ella and Florence. He had four children by his second marriage: Mildred, Iva E., Edna and Thomas. Mrs. Bird was also educated at the Collegiate Institute of Caledonia. After his marriage Mr. Bird removed to his present farm, consisting of 220 acres, with about 200 acres under cultivation, upon which he has an elegant residence.

A. C. Bogard was born on January 15, 1837, in Bullitt County, Ky., and is a son of Clifton and Eliza (Webb) Bogard, both of whom were natives of Bullitt County, Ky., and of German descent. Their ancestors emigrated from Germany several generations back. The paternal grandfather, C. reclus Bogard, immigrated to Bullitt County, Ky., passing through Louisville, when there were but few houses in that city. The maternal grandfather Webb was a Revolutionary soldier, and fought in the battle of New Orleans. The grandparents on both sides died in Bullitt County, Ky. Clifton Bogard was also born and reared in that county and was a farmer. After his marriage he removed to Hardin County, Ky., where he purchased a farm and remained until his death in May, 1884. His widow is still living on the old homestead. They had eleven children, seven of whom are living, viz.: Lafayette, John C., Leroy, Alexander C., Cynthia J., Frances C. and Edna R. Those deceased are Clinton, Clinton, Levisa and Loucretia. Alexander C. was about four years of age when his parents removed to Hardin County, in which he received his education in the common schools. He remained with his parents until his marriage with Mary Pearman, on September 17, 1857. She is a daughter of William C. and Sallie (Trent) Pearman, natives of Hardin County, Ky. After his marriage Mr. Bogard cultivated a farm in Hardin County a few years, when he removed to Bullitt County and resided until 1870. He then removed to Mississippi County, Mo., and rented land for two years, after which he bought 400 acres, which is now well improved and under cultivation. He has four acres in the city of Charleston, upon which he has his residence. Mr. and Mrs. Bogard have two children: William C. and Sarah E. (the wife of William H. Garwood), a native of Kentucky. In politics, Mr. Bogard is a Democrat. He and wife have been members of the Methodist Episcopal Church for over thirty years.

Dr. A. A. Bondurant, one of the most prominent physicians and surgeons of Charleston, was born in Fulton County, Ky., December 9, 1850. He is a son of John S. and Julia D. (Edmiston) Bondurant. His paternal great-grandfather came from France and settled in Tennessee or Kentucky. His grandfather, Robert Bondurant, was a farmer, and a resident of Kentucky at the time of his death. John S. Bondurant is also a farmer, and still resides in Fulton County, Ky. He and wife are the parents of ten children, six of whom are living, viz.: Alpheus A., Robert A., John C., Custis B., Ella and Susan A. Dr. Alpheus A. was reared on the old homestead in Kentucky, and attended the high school of Fulton until he was twenty-one years of age, when he began the study of medicine under the direction of Dr. C. W. Miles, of Jordan. In 1873 he entered the Louisville Medical University, and afterward attended the Bellevue Hospital Medical College of New York City, graduating from the latter institution in 1875. Soon after his graduation he went to Charleston, Mo., where he has since resided and practiced his profession; meanwhile he has taken one term of lectures in the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary. The Doctor is widely known as a skillful and practical physician and surgeon, and controls a large practice in and around Charleston. He is a member of the Southeast Missouri and of the American Medical Associations. In 1875 he was united in marriage with Mary J. Baker, of Charleston. Their union has been blessed by the birth of six children, viz.: Levie, Eunice, Earl, Flint, Vela, and a son, Afer, deceased. Dr. Bondurant is a Mason and a member of Charleston Blue Lodge, No. 129.

Elijah F. Bradley was born on July 24, 1842, and is a son of Jefferson K. Bradley, a native of Kentucky, who was the only child of Elijah Bradley, also a native of Tennessee, in which State he remained until after his marriage, when he removed to Kentucky and remained until his death. Elijah was the son of George P. Bradley, who was born and married in Middle Tennessee, where he reared a large family. Jefferson K. Bradley first married Louisa Smith, a native of Kentucky. She was the mother of the subject of this sketch. Her death occurred in 1843, after which Mr. Bradley married Parlee Combs. Her death occurred in 1845, after which Mr. Bradley married Mary Walton. To this union two children were born: James and Robert. Her death occurred in 1852, after which Mr. Bradley married Rachel Brown, of Kentucky. Subsequently he moved to the State of Arkansas. To this last union there was one child born—Amanda, who after the death of Mr. Bradley, on January 4, 1854, went with her mother to Illinois, where they are supposed to be living at present. Elijah F. remained at home until he was fourteen years of age, when he entered the Argus (now Courier) office, at Hickman, Ky., and served an apprenticeship at the printer's trade, after which he went to live with his great-uncle, Theophilus Bradley. He lived with him as one of his family for three years, and assisted with the work on the farm. At the commencement of the war he enlisted in the Confederate army, and served until the close, when he went to South Arkansas, where he spent about ten years raising cotton. He subsequently spent four years in Western Texas, after which he returned to Southeast Missouri, having attended school there in 1859. He located in St. James Francis M. Brown.

MISSISSIPPI CO.

Township, Mississippi County, where he still resides. In 1864 he married Molly Cruce, a native of Kentucky. After his first wife's death, he married a Miss Mudding, of Missouri, and after her death, Mr. Bradley married Correna Cranford, a native of North Carolina. Three children were born to this union, viz.: Louisa W., Henry A. and Georgia L. This wife died, and June 4, 1884, he married Mrs. Laura M. Hayden, who was born in Kentucky in 1853, and came to Southeast Missouri in 1871. By two previous marriages she has five children, three by her first marriage with Mr. McClellan, viz.: Charles T., Robert J. and Ernest S.; by her second marriage, Rachel M. and Florence Hayden. Two children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Bradley—Samuel W. and Walter E. (deceased). Mr. Bradley and wife are members of the Christian Church.

Nelson D. Brewer (deceased) was born in Mississippi County, near Charleston, in 1839, and was a son of Howell Brewer, who was born June 25, 1805, in Kentucky, and removed to Southeast Missouri in 1830. He married Jane West, also a native of Kentucky, born in 1803. After their removal to Missouri, they made that State their home, until their deaths. They had six children, viz.: Benjamin F., Rachel, Mandelbert J., Nathan L., Nelson D. and Lucy A., all of whom are deceased. Nelson D. remained with his parents until he reached maturity, and his mother lived with him, on the place where his family now resides, when he was married in 1863. He married Mary E. Vowels, a native of Kentucky, born in 1844. She is a daughter of Henry and Eliza (Ice) Vowels, who came to Southeast Missouri in 1860, and settled near Bird's Point. They afterward removed to Rush's Ridge, and remained until their deaths. The mother died in 1865, and the father in 1879. To them were born twelve children, viz.: Robert, Mary, Jane, George, Thomas, James, Nancy, William (deceased), Alexander, and three that died in infancy. Mr. Vowels had two children by a second marriage—Lulu and Richard. All of his children reside in Mississippi County. Mr. and Mrs. Brewer's union has been blessed by six children, viz.: Robert F., Jennie (deceased at two years of age), Lorenzo P. (deceased at four years of age), James H. (deceased at thirteen years of age), Thomas Benjamin and George D. The last two are attending school, and Robert F. is managing the home farm. Mr. Brewer died February 16, 1872. His family lost a kind father and husband, and the community a good citizen. He was a faithful member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. His widow is also a member of that church. She and her boys reside on the farm, and enjoy the comforts of a good country home.

George H. Bridges, a prominent farmer and stock raiser, residing at Charleston, was born in Mississippi County, on September 15, 1850, and is a son of James H. and Letitia (Simms) Bridges, of whom the former was born near Louisville, Ky., and the latter in Indiana. James H. Bridges was a farmer by vocation, and removed to Mississippi County about 1830, and settled in Wolf Island Township, where he purchased a tract of land, which he cultivated until 1858. He then removed to Charleston, and resided until his death. His wife is still living. They reared three children: James H. (deceased), George H. and Julia (wife of J. H. Bethune, of St. Louis). George H. remained on his father's farm until he was sixteen years of age, when he entered Christian Brothers' Academy, of St. Louis, where he remained three years. In politics he is a Democrat, and is at present secretary of the central committee. He has filled various official positions. He held the position of deputy county and circuit clerk for six years. In 1876 he was elected mayor of the city of Charleston, which office he held three terms. He also filled the position of the first clerk of the city. He has been a member of the city council for two terms, and in 1887 was elected assessor. In 1878 he was united in marriage with Dora, daughter of Judge James R. and Elizabeth Patterson, citizens of Charleston. One son, James, has blessed their union. Mr. and Mrs. Bridges are members of the Baptist Church. He is a member of the A. O. U. W.

Francis M. Brown was born in Philadelphia, December 25, 1811, and is a son of Francis M., Sr., and Ellen H. Brown. The former was a native of Philadelphia, and the latter was born near Cork, Ireland. Her parents immigrating to America, settled in Philadelphia, where they both died when she was an infant. She was reared by a Mr. Butcher, a dealer in morocco leather. The grandfather, Francis Brown, came from France, coming from the island of St. Domingo with Stephen Girard and Francis Mazaree. He settled in Philadelphia, where he resided until his death. The paternal grandmother was of German parentage, and, after the death of her husband, she married another Frenchman.

Francis M. Brown, Sr., was a merchant in Philadelphia for several years. About 1811 he went to Cincinnati, and was afterward occupied in running a barge from that city to New Orleans, buying up bacon, etc. He was with the first steamer run from the mouth of the Ohio River to St. Louis, under Capt. Henry M. Shreeves. In 1839 he visited his mother at Camden, N. J., where he died. He was the father of three children, only one living, Francis M. He remained in his native city until he reached his ninth year, when he went to New Orleans with Capt. Hardin on a sailing vessel, "Ship Blaze." Remaining in the latter city about seven months, his father put him in school at Natchez, where he remained until 1826, when he went to St. Louis with his father, and remained there for some time, serving as clerk for Collier J. Powell. His father afterward bound him out to Jacob Kepper, of Louisville, Ky., to learn the pattern maker's trade. Remaining with him two years, he went to Cincinnati and bound himself out to learn the iron-moulder's trade. After serving an apprenticeship of four years, he worked at the trade eighteen months at New Orleans. In 1832 he went to Mississippi County, Mo., and made a permanent settlement, his father having settled there in 1826. The family's first house was a little log hut, rudely built, in which they lived for several years. From 1850 to 1853 he kept a store and boarding-house in Charleston, after which he removed to his present home. He now owns 700 acres of land, with about 600 under cultivation. Mr. Brown is one of the oldest living residents of Mississippi County, and has witnessed its development from a dense forest to its present wealthy state. He has been four times married; first, on January 1, 1835, to Julia Sweeten, by whom he had six children, two of whom are living: E. L. and Mary E. (Mrs. Jacob Davy, of Cincinnati.) The second time he married Mary Sheppard. He next married Eliza Smith, and his last wife was Emily White, daughter of Thomas White, of Tennessee. Mr. Brown is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Politically he is a Democrat, and cast his first vote for Gen. Jackson.

Judge James M. Brown, a prominent citizen of Mississippi County, was born in Switzerland County, Ind., on August 10, 1834, and is one of seven surviving children of ten born to the union of James Brown and Deborah Hatch. The paternal grandfather came from Ireland and the grandmother from Scotland. They immigrated to Belmont County, Ohio, at an early day, and remained there a few years. In 1820 they removed to Switzerland County, Ind., where they died, the grandfather at the age of sixty, and his wife at the age of eighty-five years. James Brown, the father of our subject, was born in Ohio in 1803, and was brought by his parents to Indiana, where he was reared to farm life in Switzerland County, where he spent the remainder of his life. He was a successful farmer, and owned considerable property at the time of his death, which occurred in 1876. His wife, who is a native of New York, is still living on the old homestead. She has three sons and four daughters living, viz.: Cyrus A., Morrison N., James M., Margaret (widow of Joseph Rutherford, deceased), Mary (Mrs. Boyles), Jennie and Emma. Judge James M. was reared on his father's farm, and received a good education in the common schools. In 1855 he went to Charleston, Mo., and learned the mechanic's trade, which he followed about three years. In 1858 he was employed in the clerk's office, where he remained until 1866, when he was elected assessor of Mississippi County, which office he held four years. Prior to his election as assessor, he was commissioned by Andrew Johnson, as assistant United States assessor. In 1870 he was elected probate judge, which office he held for sixteen consecutive years, being president, ex-officio, of the county court eight years of this time. He was admitted to the bar in 1872, and is now engaged in the practice of law, and is a real estate, collecting and insurance agent. He is also a notary public. He has been successful in business, and now owns 1,000 acres of good land, a part of which is well improved, and some nice city property in Charleston. In 1860 he was united in marriage with Laura A., a daughter of Maj. William and Amy Sagres, who early moved from Kentucky to Mississippi County. Mr. and Mrs. Brown have two children, Anna L. and Henry Morton. Mrs. Brown is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Mr. Brown is a Royal Arch Mason.

Morgan W. Bryant was born in Christian County, Ky., in 1827. His parents, Lawrence and Mary J. (Morris) Bryant, were born in Virginia, being members of prominent families of that State. Lawrence Bryant served under Gen. St. Clair and Wayne, in the wars against the Indians in the Northwest Territory. He was married in his native State, and removed his family to Christian County, Ky., about 1813, soon after which he was drafted into Gen. Jackson's army. He was born in 1779, and when a child was bound out, and volunteered in the United States army when sixteen years of age, to get out of bondage. His parents were of English and Irish descent, his mother having been born and reared in Dublin. Mary J. Morris was the daughter of Leonard Morris, who dug the first salt wells in Virginia. The grandmother Morris bought a piece of land ten miles square, including these salt wells, and now includes Brownstown, for a rifle gun and a linen hunting shirt. Leonard Morris built Morris Fort, in Virginia, to protect himself and family from the assaults of the Indians. To Lawrence Bryant and wife were born twelve children, two of whom are living: Morgan W. and Nancy S. (wife of Jacob H. Messamore, of Fort Worth, Tex.). Those dead are Sarah, Margaret, Elizabeth, Joshua, Crockett, Mary, Lawrence, Catherine, Martha M. and William. Morgan W. remained with his parents until he was twenty-three years of age, when he went to Graves County, Ky., and was married to Mary E. Jones, a native of that county. Remaining there until March, 1873, he and family came to Southeast Missouri, and located in James Bayou Township, Mississippi County, removing to his present farm in 1882. His farm consists of 495 acres, of which 275 are under cultivation, upon which he raises 10,000 bushels of grain annually. Mrs. Bryant is the only child born to the union of Henry Jones and Emeline Elliot, natives of Kentucky and Tennessee, respectively. The father died in 1839 or 1840, after which his widow was married to A. Sutton, and to them were born five children, three of whom, Richard, Margaret and Charles, are living. Mrs. Sutton died in August, 1855. Mr. and Mrs. Bryant have the following children: Henry L., John R., Joelah, Richard, Katie and Culin.

George A. Bryant, an enterprising farmer of Mississippi County, was born in Marshall County, Ala., April 14, 1846. He is a son of Thomas and Irene (Parker) Bryant, both of whom are of English descent and natives of Tennessee. Their forefathers settled in Alabama. Jesse Bryant, the grandfather, lived and died in Tennessee. Thomas Bryant was married in his native State, after which he removed to Alabama, and remained a short time, when he removed to Kentucky. In 1851 he immigrated with his family to Scott County, Mo., coming down the Ohio River to Bird's Point in a flat-boat. He remained in Scott County until about 1854, when he removed to Mississippi County, and settled near Charleston, where he resided until his death in 1864. His widow died about three weeks later. They had five children, only one of whom survives, George A. Those dead are Frank M., Polly A., Almata and Albert. George A. was but an infant when his parents left Alabama, and about six years of age when they immigrated to Missouri. He was reared on his father's farm, and has been a resident of Mississippi County since 1854. Farming has been his chief vocation, at which he has been very successful. On August 22, 1875, he was united in marriage with Mary Alice Smith, a daughter of Abner and Margaret (Cook) Smith, the latter of whom was brought to America from Germany when an infant, her parents locating in Mississippi County. Mr. and Mrs. Bryant are the parents of five children, born as follows: Andrew J., April 1, 1878, died February 3, 1881; Gertie, July 5, 1880; William J., February 27, 1882; Albert F., April 4, 1884, and George R., January 8, 1887. Mr. Bryant is a member of the I. O. O. F. In politics he is a Democrat.

George C. Burns, a successful farmer of Mississippi County, Mo., was born in St. Lawrence County, N. Y., November 15, 1845. He is a son of Owen and Catherine (Covey) Burns, both natives of County Galway, Ireland. They were married and had one child, who is now deceased, born in their native country. In 1820 they immigrated to America and settled in St. Lawrence County, N. Y. Mr. Burns purchased a farm and resided there until 1848, when he removed to Waukesha County, Wis., where he purchased 160 acres of land for $400, which is now worth $100 per acre. He died in 1850, and his wife died in 1881. They reared nine children, seven of whom are living, viz.: Margaret M. (Mrs. Norman Breed), Ann (Mrs. John Reynolds), Jane J. (Mrs. Francis Smith), Catherine (Mrs. William Riley), Thomas M., John J. and George C. The last named remained with his parents in Wisconsin until he was sixteen years of age, receiving his education mostly in the common schools. He attended a high-school one session. In 1861 he went South, and for seven or eight years was engaged in railroad, being employed at different times by the Nashville & Tennessee, Memphis & Charleston and Mississippi Central. In 1869 he came to Missouri, and clerked in a store at Price's Landing for three years, after which he engaged in the mercantile business for himself, at that place, continuing for four years. In 1876 he engaged in farming, renting land until 1880, when he purchased ninety acres of land, to which he removed, and upon which he has since resided. He has cleared more than half of the land since his purchase and now has about seventy acres under cultivation, with good improvements. On February 24, 1876, he wedded Mary E. Mushold, a native of Cincinnati, Ohio. She died on May 22, 1885, leaving four children: William A., Frances E., Clara E. and Edward J. Mr. Burns was again married on October 4, 1887, choosing for his wife Mabel Massey, a native of Tennessee. Mr. Burns is a member of the Catholic Church. He has served as school director for six years, and has done a great deal to advance the cause of district schools, taking a deep interest in educational matters generally. Prior to the organization of public schools in this section, he taught private school. In politics he is a strong advocate of Democracy.

James L. Bush, a farmer of Mississippi County, Mo., was born on July 11, 1847. His parents, William B. and Ann Maria (Russell) Bush, were natives of Kentucky and Maryland, respectively. The former was born March 29, 1806, and the latter on June 12, 1817. William B. Bush was one of the most prominent pioneer settlers of Southeast Missouri, to which he came in 1813, locating first in Washington County, where he remained a few years, and removed to Mississippi County, residing there the rest of his life. In politics he was a Democrat, and served for several years as judge of the county court. He also served as justice of the peace. His wife, Mrs. Ann Maria (Russell) Humphrey's, family removed to Southeast Missouri in 1836. To Judge Bush and the mother of our subject were born nine children, as follows: Palemon C., August 1, 1841, now a resident of Cairo, Ill.; John Logan, February 15, 1843, deceased; Richard B., August 14, 1845, deceased; James L., July 11, 1847; Galena Ann (Mrs. Joshua Bumpass), October 27, 1848, deceased; Joseph R., September 10, 1851, now a resident of Charleston, Mo.; Mary Ellen, September 2, 1853, deceased; Price L., April 8, 1856, and one that died in infancy. Mrs. Bush died July 6, 1885. By three previous marriages Judge Bush had five children, born as follows: George W., May 30, 1822; William H., September 1, 1826; Polly W., June 1, 1829; Robert L., November 14, 1834, and John H., June 14, 1820. Judge William B. Bush died on July 23, 1859. James L. Bush lived with his mother until her death, but began working for himself at the age of twenty-three years. In 1876 he located on his present farm of eighty acres, a part of which is under cultivation. This farm has since been his home, but he has rented the land and has been at liberty to go where he desired.

Willis M. Chapman, a substantial farmer and stock raiser of Mississippi County, Mo., was born in Ohio County, Ky., in 1822, and is a son of Willis and Nancy (Rendler) Chapman, natives of South Carolina and Virginia, respectively. The parents were married in Ohio County, Ky., having removed there when young people. Mr. Chapman was a very active and industrious man, and after his marriage engaged in farming. In March, 1849, he removed with his family to Southeast Missouri, and located near the Concord settlement in Mississippi County. His wife died there in 1853, aged seventy-three years, and he died in 1859, at the age of eighty-four years. They were very active members and two of the principal supporters of the Baptist Church. Their children were born as follows: Robert, in 1807, died in 1845; Sarah (widow of Wm. B. Smith), in 1808, now living in Indiana; Judith, in 1810 (widow of E. Dalton); Joshua, deceased in his tenth year; Ezekiel, in 1814, died in 1861; Eliza (Mrs. Randal D. Heck), in 1816, died in Texas in 1840; Mary (widow of William L. Chapman, of Indiana), in 1819; Willis M., in 1822; Elijah W., in 1824, died in Southeast Missouri in 1870. The father of the above was married the first time in his native State to Elizabeth Dunlap, who died after their removal to Kentucky. To them were born four children, all deceased: Lavinia, Ellis, Solomon and Nancy. Willis M. Chapman remained at the home of his parents, assisting on the farm, until he was about thirty-two years of age. In 1856 he wedded Ann Mary Martin, a daughter of Andrew J. Martin, a native of Kentucky, who removed to Mississippi County, Mo., in 1855, and located on a farm in Tywappity Township, where he and wife both died. Mrs. Chapman was born in 1834, and died in 1866, having borne four children, as follows: Andrew W., January 28, 1857; Noah W., September, 1858, died December 10, 1885; Francis G., October 2, 1861, died November 1, 1861; Sarah L., October 26, 1863, died on April 27, 1866. Mr. Chapman lives on his home farm, which is well improved. His sister Judith resides with him and takes care of his house. He is a member of the Baptist Church at Concord, and a member of the Masonic lodge at Charleston. His son, Dr. Andrew W., while attending school at Charleston, formed the idea of studying medicine, and as soon as his education would admit, in the fall of 1879, he commenced under the direction of Dr. Bondurant, of that place. After about one year he entered a medical college at Louisville, Ky., graduating from the institution on March 1, 1882. Returning to Charleston he formed a partnership with his preceptor, which continued until 1885, when he went to St. Louis and took another course of lectures. In 1886 he located at East Prairie, where he has continued to practice his profession. He is a young man of good moral habits, and is highly respected. He has a good office and applies himself closely to his profession, and is considered one of the leading physicians of the county.

Solomon S. Clayton, a substantial farmer of Mississippi County, was born in Person County, N. C., in 1844. When about one year of age he was taken by his parents to Macon County, N. C., in which they resided about nine years, when they removed to Benton County, Tenn. The subject of this sketch remained there until 1874, when he came to Southeast Missouri, where he has since resided. He is a son of William B. and Mary P. (Heggie) Clayton, natives of North Carolina. The former died in Tennessee, and his widow is still living in Benton County, that State. She is eighty years of age, and is in remarkably good health. To them were born five children: Solomon S., Francis (deceased), William T., Mary (Mrs. Ingram Hargis) and Emily C. (Mrs. Charles E. Dickerson). All the children reside in Tennessee, except Solomon S. The parents were highly respected people. The father was a member of the Baptist Church, and the mother is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1881 Solomon S. was united in marriage with Susan Combs, a native of Benton County, Tenn., born in 1848. She is a daughter of Orison G. and Missouri (Broaden) Combs, natives of North Carolina, who removed to Tennessee in 1847, and reared six children: William (deceased), James H., Francis, Eliza J., Susan and Artie M. They lost three children in infancy. The father died in 1870, and his widow is still living in Tennessee. They were members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. and Mrs. Clayton are also members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a member of the A. F. & A. M., Lodge No. 330.

James Clarkson was born in Daviess County, Ky., August 22, 1828. He is one of six children born to the union of Jabez Clarkson and Cynthia A. Small, the former a native of Mercer County, and the latter of Daviess County, Ky. His paternal grandfather, William Clarkson, came from England and settled in Virginia, but afterward immigrated to Mercer County, Ky., where he died. Jabez Clarkson was a farmer, and in 1823 he immigrated, with his family, to Mississippi County, Mo., coming to Bird's Point on a flat-boat. He located on the prairie near where Charleston now stands, taking up government land. He afterward bought more land, and at the time of his death owned about 1,200 acres. He died in 1858. His first wife died in 1840. Their children are John, James, Mary (deceased), Frances (deceased), Warner (deceased), and Jabez (deceased). Jabez Clarkson was married the second time to Manica Shepherd, of Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in 1842. She died in 1856. The children of this union were Margaret, Henry (deceased), Taylor, Jessie (deceased), Manica (deceased). James was in his fifth year when he was brought by his parents to Mississippi County. He was brought up to farm life, which occupation he has always followed. He is one of the pioneers of his county, and has done a great deal for its improvement. In 1863 he was united in marriage with Fannie, daughter of Hunsford and Martha (Randolph) Rouse, of Henderson County, Ky. Mr. and Mrs. Clarkson are the parents of three children in life and six dead. Those living are Georgia R., Nora M. and Lota M.

Isaac T. Clarkson, clerk of the circuit court of Mississippi County, Mo., was born in that county November 12, 1848, and is a son of Jabez and Minica (Sheppard) Clarkson. He lived on a farm until he was fifteen years of age, and attended the common schools. He then went to Cairo, Ill., and remained there with a sister four or five years, attending the city schools the most of the time. He thus secured a common education. For some time he served as clerk in the wholesale grocery store of Stratton & Bird, in Cairo, after which he removed to Charleston, and was engaged in the mercantile business for a few years. In 1886 he was elected to his present office. He has served as city clerk for one term, and as city councilman for several terms. Politically he is a Democrat, and is a prominent young citizen of Charleston. On August 27, 1877, he was united in marriage with Jennie Rouse, by whom he has four children, two sons and two daughters, viz.: Jabez, Frank, Pearl and Wella. Mr. Clarkson is an Odd Fellow and a member of the Encampment, and also a member of the K. of P. and Masons.

Dr. Thomas J. Coleman was born in February, 1834, in Kentucky, and is a son of Archibald Coleman, who was born in North Carolina in 1790. The latter married Elizabeth Moorman, a native of Virginia, born in 1797. Her people removed to Kentucky about 1813 or 1814, and located in Hopkins and adjoining counties. She died in 1838, and her husband died in 1860. Their children were John M., Charles H. (deceased), Jane M., Beverly C. (deceased), Archibald C. (deceased), Francis D. (deceased), Andrew J., Dr. George W. (deceased), Thomas J., Benjamin F. (deceased), Mary V. (deceased), and Lewis (deceased). Dr. Thomas J. remained at home until he was fourteen years of age, at which time his father married his second wife. He then attended school and traded until he was seventeen years old, when he entered college at Greenville, Ky., graduating in 1856. Two years later he entered the Medical University at Nashville, Tenn., graduating from that institution in 1859, after which he practiced his profession for six months in Logan County, Ky. During the war he served as a Government agent for the Confederate States, and in 1863 returned to Hopkins County, Ky., and resumed practicing his profession. In the spring of 1867 he came to Southeast Missouri and located in Mississippi County, and continued to practice medicine until 1880, since which time he has only devoted a part of his time to it, and has been engaged in farming. He was first married in September, 1867, to Mildred A. Harper, a native of Kentucky. She died in November, 1874, having borne five children: Mildred (deceased), Ann E., Inah J., Albert H. and Marion V. (deceased). Dr. Coleman was married in February, 1875, to Naney Davis, also a native of Kentucky. She died that year, and he was married in November to Mary M. Horn, a native of Benton County, Tenn. To this union were born four children: Andrew B. (deceased), Archibald T. (deceased), John V. and George G. Mrs. Coleman died on January 27, 1888. Dr. Coleman was a member of the Baptist Church before coming to Missouri. He is a member of the A. F. & A. M., and of the Southeast Missouri Medical Society.

Archibald D. Coleman, a substantial farmer of Mississippi County, was born on October 28, 1845, in Hopkins County, Ky., and is a son of Charles H. and Marcella (Pennington) Coleman, both of Irish descent, and natives of Kentucky. The grandfather, Archibald Coleman, was a resident of Kentucky. Charles H. Coleman was a farmer and blacksmith, and in 1851 he immigrated to Mississippi County, Mo., making the journey in wagons. He located about one mile east of where his son, Archibald D., now resides, on which farm he removed a few years later, and resided there until his death in 1867. His wife died in 1866. They had six children: Charles H. (deceased), Archibald D., Unissa (deceased), Elizabeth, George W. and Andrew J. The mother of our subject was married twice. By her first husband, P. E. Clark, she had five children: Jonathan C., Polly (Mrs. Jacob Hainley), Alonzo, Franklin and F. (deceased), of whom the last three are deceased. She came to Mississippi County in 1840, but after the death of her husband she went back to Kentucky (in 1844). She was there married to Charles H. Coleman, and when Archibald D. was about six years of age, they removed to Mississippi County. The subject of this sketch has since resided in that county, with the exception of one year that he lived in Illinois. He now owns 100 acres of good land, with modern improvements. In August, 1870, he was united in marriage with Caroline Baker, a native of North Carolina, by whom he has six children: Lenora, James Walter (deceased), Archie, Adella, Girtrude and Ethel. Mr. and Mrs. Coleman are members of the Baptist Church. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., and of the Wheeler Society. In politics he is a Democrat.

William Collier was born in Jackson County, Ill., in 1835, and is a son of Samuel Collier, born in North Carolina in 1808. The latter was the son of William and Nancy Collier, both natives of North Carolina. They were the parents of seven children, and died when Samuel was a small child. The latter remained in his native State until he was sixteen years of age, when he worked his way to Illinois, after which he worked as a laborer on a farm till he saved money enough to buy some land, when he engaged in farming for himself. He proved to be a very successful farmer, owning at one time 400 acres of land. In 1830 he was united in marriage with Sarah Hooker, a native of Tennessee. To this union were born Drusilla (widow of Henry Fraley), William, Eliza (widow of Daniel Reeder), John, Jane (deceased at the age of fourteen), Daniel (deceased at the age of seven years), James (scalded to death at the age of five years), Anna (deceased at the age of two years), and Sarah (Mrs. C. Tucker, died in 1865, leaving an infant son). The parents were very active members of the Free Will Baptist Church. The mother died in September, 1854, and the father married Mrs. Sarah Davis. He died in May, 1861. William remained at his father's home until he was about twenty years of age, when he began farming for himself. In 1873 he removed to Southeast Missouri, and located on a farm of 200 acres, one mile from Bertrand, upon which he now resides. On September 7, 1856, he wedded Sarah Ann Stacy, born in Tennessee in 1837. She is a daughter of Selatiah and Harriet (Fowler) Stacy, natives of Tennessee, who removed to Illinois when Mrs. Collier was about ten years old. Mr. Stacy died in 1854, and Mrs. Stacy married Moses Forby, who died, and she is now living, a widow, in Southeast Missouri. She had eleven children, ten by her first husband, viz.: Isaac (deceased), Rebecca (widow of George Peterson), Sarah A., Margaret (Mrs. Lycurgus Slavens, deceased), Hiram (deceased), Mary M. (Mrs. William Forby, deceased), John (deceased), Francis M., Jane (Mrs. Jonathan Rose, deceased), and William (deceased). The other, Hannah Forby, died in infancy. Mr. and Mrs. Stacy were members of the Mormon Church. Politically, Mr. Collier is a Republican. In August, 1862, he enlisted in the Federal army, joining the Eighty-First Illinois Volunteer Infantry. After the siege of Vicksburg, he went home on furlough, and while on his way took the sore eyes, which caused him to be transferred in 1864 to the Twentieth Veteran Reserve Corps, after which he was sent to Maryland to guard a prison. In the spring of 1865 he was discharged. In 1861 he was with a company that was guarding a bridge on the Illinois Central Railroad at which place he was taken with the measles, from which he has never fully recovered. He and wife have had two children, Drusilla (who died when thirteen months of age), and John Henry (who was born on November 21, 1859). He is now living on the home place engaged in farming. On January 18, 1881, he was united in marriage with Candies Shelby, a native of Mississippi County. Three children have blessed their union: Mary A., Julia Agnes and Lulu May. Mrs. Collier is the daughter of Wiley and Ann Shelby, both of whom died when she was a child. They were the parents of nine children: Ivan (deceased), May (deceased), Josephine, Julia, Thomas, Robert, Wiley, Ann and Mrs. Collier. The last named lived with Joseph Russell until his death, after which she lived with Judge Brown, of Charleston, till her marriage.

Joseph Crenshaw, miller at Charleston, was born in Bullitt County, Ky., March 15, 1830. He is a son of Richard Crenshaw, who was born in Kentucky in 1804. The paternal grandfather, Cosby Crenshaw, was a Virginian, and immigrated to Kentucky at an early day, where he resided, engaged in farming, until his death. Richard Crenshaw was reared to farm life in his native State, where he married Mary J. Moore, a native of Maryland, born in 1803. In the fall of 1832, he removed his family and goods on a steamboat down the river to Norfolk, from whence they came to Mathews' Prairie. He entered 400 acres of land and erected a rude log cabin, in which he lived for some years. He soon had his land under cultivation and improved. He died in February, 1886. His widow died in March, 1859. They were the parents of four children: Margaret S. (deceased), Catherine E. (deceased), Richard S. (deceased) and Joseph C. The last named, the only survivor of the family, was about two years of age when he came with his parents to Mississippi County. He remained with them until he was grown, when he bought a farm, which he cultivated, and kept bachelor's hall for about two years. In September, 1852, he wedded Martha A. Bridwell, a daughter of Coleman and Elizabeth (Gratehouse) Bridwell. After his marriage he lived on his farm, and has made farming his chief vocation through life. However, since 1869, he has run the flouring-mill in Charleston, which mill he equipped with the roller process in 1884. He owns 575 acres of land, 300 of which are adjacent to the town of Charleston. His wife died in 1876, having borne him eight children, six of whom are living: James C., Isaac A., Mary E. (Mrs. E. P. Deal), Henry M., Marvin B. and Joseph M. Mr. Crenshaw was married in February, 1879, to Rachel A. (Lusk) Marbury, by which union he has one child, William C. Mr. and Mrs. Crenshaw are consistent members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He is a Mason.

I. Albert Crenshaw, a very successful farmer and miller of Mississippi County, Mo., is a native of that county, born on December 11, 1858, and is a son of Joseph C. and Martha A. (Bridwell) Crenshaw, whose sketch appears elsewhere in this volume. Albert was reared on a farm, and his education, which was begun in the common schools, was supplemented by a high school course, after which he attended Fayette College, Howard County, Mo., for one term. He afterward entered the State University, but remained but a short time, on account of sickness. In 1885 he purchased a half interest in the flouring-mill from his father. He is now very successfully managing the mill, and cultivating 400 acres of land, upon which he raises annually an average of 3,000 bushels of corn and 2,500 bushels of wheat. Besides that, he owns fifty-four acres of fine land all under cultivation, with good improvements, upon which he has a nice residence. He also deals in horses, hogs, cattle, etc. On April 26, 1881, he was united in marriage with Ella Oliver, a native of Callaway County, Mo. Two children have blessed this union, Joseph C. and Archie E. Mr. Crenshaw has been a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church since he was eleven years of age. His wife is also a member of that church. He is a Wheeler.

Francis M. Crosswhaiter, a farmer and stock raiser of Mississippi County, was born in Adams County, Ohio, in 1858. His parents were George W. and Deborah (Cooper) Crosswhaiter, natives of Bourbon County, Ky., and Adams County, Ohio, respectively. The former went to Ohio about 1850, and to Adams County in 1856, where he was married the next year. He was a stone mason, bricklayer and plasterer, which trade he learned in Cincinnati, soon after moving to Ohio. In 1865 he removed his family to Northwest Missouri, where he lived for three years, working at his trade. In the fall of 1869 he came to Southeast Missouri, and located on Shelley's Ridge, in Mississippi County, but in 1874 he bought a farm, and located on what is known as Hoe-Cake Ridge. He improved this farm and lived there until his death on July 20, 1880. His wife died on February 8, 1879. Their children were: Francis M., Cassius, George W. (deceased), Ida May (deceased), Anna (deceased), Olive (deceased), John (deceased), William (now in Adams County, Ohio, attending school) and Robert M. (deceased). Francis M. lived with his parents until 1876, and then from 1878 until their deaths, spending the time between those dates in Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. In 1880 he was united in marriage with Josephine Jones, who was born in Mississippi County in 1864, and is a daughter of Thomas and Parthena (Calhoun) Jones, natives of Kentucky, who came to Southeast Missouri in 1861, and located on a farm near that of our subject's. Mrs. Jones still resides there, her husband having died in 1874. To them were born six children: Laura, Adair, William, Josephine, Frank (deceased) and one that died in infancy. Mr. and Mrs. Crosswhaiter have had four children: Anna (deceased), Bertie, Eva and Estella. Besides Mr. Crosswhaiter's farming interests, he is also engaged in rafting logs during high water.

Mrs. Frances M. Daley was born in Mississippi County, Mo., in 1849, and is a daughter of Benjamin and Sarah (Holman) Hall, natives of Union County, Ky. They were reared and married in their native county, and in 1843 came to Southeast Missouri, and located in Mississippi County, where they afterward resided. Mr. Hall died on November 15, 1868, and Mrs. Hall February 8, 1872. He was a Mason. The last named was first married to Albert Caldwell, by whom she had four children: Julia A., of Texas; Maria, of Tennessee; Amanda, of Mississippi County, Mo., and Jane, deceased, aged thirty-eight years. To Mr. and Mrs. Hall's marriage were born six children: Elizabeth (deceased), Frances M., William G., Benjamin C. (deceased) and two (twins) that died in infancy. Frances M. remained with her parents until her marriage on July 23, 1867, with Andrew Ramsey. Three children were born to their marriage: William A., born on November 15, 1868; Minnie, born on October 19, 1872, and an infant, deceased. Mr. Ramsey died on March 10, 1872. The subject of this sketch afterward married Marshal Daley, who was born in Virginia, but removed with his parents to Kentucky when a child. When fifteen years of age, he came to Southeast Missouri, which was afterward his home. He was a member of the Baptist Church, and of the Masonic order. He died, respected by all who knew him, on June 4, 1877. He had two children by his first wife, and one by his last wife, Marshal, born on February 4, 1877. Some time after Mr. Daley's death, his widow married, May 29, 1881, M. M. Word. One child was born of this union, Richard, born February 13, 1882. Mr. Daley's first wife was Martha Ramsey, a sister of Mrs. Daley's first husband. Martha died on December 14, 1872, having borne three children, one of whom is living, Francis, of Columbus, Ky. Those deceased are Cornelia Ann (Hall), who died at the age of twenty-six years, and Martin L., who died in childhood. Mrs. Daley is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. She and her family own 400 acres of good land, with 365 under cultivation, of which 240 acres are cultivated by her and her children.

Thomas J. Dalton was born in Mississippi County, Mo., on May 6, 1843. He is a son of John and Louisiana (Mathews) Dalton. The former was born in Henry County, Tenn., in 1809. He was a farmer, and removed to Mississippi County, and located on the farm now owned by Frank M. Howlett, adjoining Thomas J. Dalton's farm. The most of his life was spent on that farm, and he died there in 1850. The mother was born on October 7, 1812, on 'Mathews' Prairie," Mississippi Co., Mo. She was a daughter of Edward Mathews, who settled on Mathews' Prairie about 1803. Two years later, in 1805, he was united in marriage with Elizabeth Smith. He received a concession of 640 acres of land, embracing the present site of Charleston. This land was nearly all timbered, and wild animals of every description were plentiful. His was the only settlement in that region, with the exception of a few Indians, with whom he had to deal for a few years. He erected a little log cabin with the usual punchceon floor and clapboard door and roof, in which he lived for several years, but by industry and economy, he had at the time of his death a comfortable home and was in good circumstances. His death occurred on August 16, 1832. His wife died on February 2, 1891. They were the parents of six children, all of whom are dead: Charles, Louisiana, Jackson, Edward, Caleb and Patsy. Edward Mathews was a very prominent man in his day. The mother of our subject, Louisiana, died in 1873. She and her husband were the parents of six children, one of whom survives, Thomas J. The ones deceased are James H., William S., John, Elizabeth and Enos. Thomas J. was born and reared within a few hundred yards of where he now lives. He remained with his step-father until he was twenty-two years of age, when he was united in marriage, in 1866, with Laura J. Grigsby, and settled on the F. M. Howlett farm, on which he resided for several years. In 1872 he purchased the farm where he now resides. His wife died in January, 1869, leaving two children: Laura (living) and Lieuro (deceased). On November 4, 1869, he wedded Mary J., a daughter of Ezekiel and Kitty A. (Mason) Chapman, both of whom are dead. Mr. and Mrs. Dalton have had six children: Edward N., Guy R., Thomas O., Walter, Elbert and an infant. The last three are deceased. Mr. Dalton is a Mason and a member of the I. O. O. F. He and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

L. W. Danforth was born in Henderson, Ky., on June 10, 1837, and is a son of Leander F. and Jane W. (Jones) Danforth, the former a native of Long Island, N. Y., and the latter of Virginia. The Danforth ancestors came from England. The grandfather was born in the Eastern States, and immigrated to Warrick County, Ind., where he died. Leander F. was reared in his native State, but removed with his parents to Indiana at an early day. He removed from thence to Kentucky, where he was married. He was engaged in the marble business at Henderson, Ky., and was a prominent citizen. Remaining there until 1859, he removed to Missouri, and located on a farm in Mississippi County, where he resided until his death in 1876. His widow is still living. They were the parents of seven children, viz.: L. W., A. H., L. V., Eliza, C. W., R. C. and Mollie. L. W. Danforth was reared in his native town, and received a liberal education in the common schools. He was connected with his father in the marble business until the latter came West. In 1862 our subject removed to Mississippi County, Mo., and was engaged in the mercantile business at Charleston, in partnership with his brother, A. H. Danforth, until 1885, since which time he has been alone in business. In 1882 he was elected to the General Assembly, and re-elected in 1884. He has held the offices of collector of the county, deputy sheriff and coroner, and has served in the city council several terms. He has been school director for nine or ten years, and regent of the Southeast Missouri Normal at Cape Girardeau for twelve years. In 1860 he wedded Mary J. Yates, of St. Louis, by whom he has seven children living, viz.: Nettie B., George W. (a student in the Naval School at Annapolis, since 1883, and formerly a page in the House of Representatives, at Jefferson City), Gracie D., Augusta N., Henry A. (a page in the House of Representatives, at Washington), Emma and Florence. Mrs. Danforth is a member of the Baptist Church. Mr. Danforth owns quite a number of residences and store buildings in Charleston, and is one of the prominent citizens of the town, and of Southeast Missouri. He is a Mason, a member of the Blue Lodge, Chapter and Council. In politics he is a Democrat.

A. H. Danforth was born in Henderson County, Ky., on September 12, 1842, and is a son of L. F. and Jane W. (Jones) Danforth [see sketch of L. W. Danforth]. The subject of this sketch was reared in his native State, and his education, which was begun there, was finished at Notre Dame College, Indiana, he having attended that institution during 1863 and 1864, taking a classical course. He had, however, removed with his parents to Mississippi County, Mo., when he was eighteen years of age, and after finishing his education, entered into the mercantile business at Bertrand. Remaining there eighteen months, he removed to Charleston, and began merchandising in partnership with his brother, L. W. Danforth, continuing until 1885, when they were burned out, the whole block being consumed in the flames. Mr. Danforth has since rebuilt the block, with large brick buildings, but since his loss by fire, has turned his attention to the grain business, and has a large warehouse on the Iron Mountain Railroad. He is also president of the Charleston Bank, which was established in November, 1887. In 1869 he was united in marriage with Rebecca H. Lynn, a native of Kentucky. They have had five children, three of whom died in infancy. Those living are William H. and Albert L. Mr. Danforth is a prominent citizen of Charleston, and has held several of the city offices. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, United Workmen, K. of P., and of the St. Louis Commandery. He was Master of the Masonic lodge of Charleston for a number of years. Politically he is a Democrat.

Robert N. Davis, an intelligent and enterprising farmer of Mississippi County, is a son of Tandy J. and Susan (Froman) Davis, of Welsh descent. Mr. Davis' forefathers immigrated to America from Wales, and one of his great grandfathers was killed in the wilderness of Virginia, by the Indians. Thomas Davis, the grandfather, was one of the pioneer settlers of Lincoln County, Ky., and fought against the Indians with Daniel Boone. He reared a family of eight children, and after they were grown, he removed to Hardin County, Ky., where he died. The maternal grandfather, Isaac Froman, was born in Bullitt County, Ky., in which he lived and died. He raised twelve children—seven daughters and five sons. Tandy J. Davis was born in Lincoln County, Ky., March 22, 1789, and was reared to farm life. He enlisted in the War of 1812, but was not received on account of disability. His wife was born in Bullitt County, on August 31, 1812. In March, 1846, he had a flat-boat built at his wood-yard, and launched it on Salt River, and brought his family, stock and goods down the Ohio River to Cairo, where he sold his boat, after unloading on the Missouri side of the river. He had, in 1845, purchased 160 acres of government land in Mississippi County, to which he brought his family; however, he lived with William Goodin, until his first crop was laid by, when he built him a little log cabin. He then commenced clearing the dense forest on his land, which required many years of hard labor to accomplish, but at the time of his death, his farm of 440 acres was nearly all under cultivation. He died in September, 1869, from the effects of a fall, and his wife died in 1855, of consumption. They had twelve children, two of whom are living; Elizabeth (Mrs. Lewis Martin) and Robert N. Those dead are Thomas F., Jane, John C., Eliza, Eugene, Tandy, Naomi and three infants. Four children died of wounds received, one of meningitis, and two of pneumonia. Both parents were members of the Baptist Church. Robert N. was born in Bullitt County, Ky., May 3, 1845, and was therefore about one year old, when his parents removed to Mississippi County. He remained with them until their deaths, when he bought the homestead, upon which he resided until 1881, when he removed to his present farm of 240 acres, having built his residence in 1880. In 1871 he married Melissa Slack, who died in 1882, having borne him five children, two of whom are living, Laura and Frederick. Those dead are Arminta V., Arthur and Luvella. In 1884 Mr. Davis married Eunice Golden English, a daughter of Robert S. and Mary (Eugen) English. They have had one child, deceased. Mr. Davis is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mrs. Davis is a Presbyterian.

John T. Davis, farmer and stock raiser of Mississippi County, Mo., was born in 1852, on the ridge where he has since lived, and is the son of Caleb and Sarah E. (Utley) Davis, both of whom were born and reared in Hopkins County, Ky., coming to Southeast Missouri soon after their marriage, about 1840. They located in Wolf Island Township, Mississippi County, where Mr. Davis died in 1885. Mrs. Davis lived until January, 1887. All the children born to them died while young, except the subject of this sketch. After Mr. Davis' death, Mrs. Davis married J. L. Summers, a native of Bullitt County, Ky., who died about 1885. To this union was born Susan, now the wife of George Calhoun, who resides near John T. Davis. The last named was married on February 20, 1876, to Sarah E. Barnhill, a native of Kentucky, who came to Southeast Missouri when young with her parents, James H. and Lovinia (Redden) Barnhill, both deceased. Mr. Davis cultivates about eighty acres of his farm, consisting of 160 acres, and also deals largely in buying and selling stock. To him and wife were born three children: William, Clinton and LeRoy. William was born June 11, 1879, and died December 30, 1879. Mrs. Davis has one brother and one sister living: B. F. Barnhill (of Arkansas) and Mollie (Mrs. Charles Virgin, of Mississippi County). She also has four half-sisters: Rosa (Mrs. Charles C. Calhoun), Alice (Mrs. James Adams), Lizzie and Lucy Barnhill, of whom the last two reside with Mr. and Mrs. Davis.

John T. Dawson, miller, blacksmith and wagon-maker, on the Mississippi River, seven miles below Belmont, Mississippi Co., Mo., was born in Bullitt County, Ky., November 7, 1848, and is a son of Thomas Dawson, a native of Kentucky. Thomas Dawson was a farmer, and married Elizabeth Cook, also a native of Kentucky, of Irish descent. To them were born eleven children, eight of whom are living, viz.: George W., Leander, Charles C., Sylvester, Benjamin H., John T., Melcenia and Alice. Mr. Dawson died in Kentucky at the age of sixty-seven years (in 1874). His wife died in 1865, aged fifty-five years. John T. left his parents' home when he was sixteen years of age. In beginning his life work, he learned his trade by serving an apprenticeship under Samuel Romines, of German descent. In 1880 he came to Southeast Missouri, and located where he now resides. He has a good home, which is nicely situated, a wagon and blacksmith shop, and a mill for grinding corn. He manufactures the Dawson wagon, well known throughout Southeast Missouri, and deals in agricultural implements, steel and iron. In fact everything to be found in a hardware establishment is in the house of Mr. Dawson; iron and steel nails, bolts, pipes, pumps, hubs, spokes, fellos, etc., besides other things too numerous to mention. He is also agent for the Cairo Pump Company. Any one in need of even the smallest article in this line can be accommodated in this store, and thus saved much annoyance, which follows purchasing away from home. In 1875 he was united in marriage with Rebecca Munfort, who was also born and reared in Bullitt County, Ky. Four children have blessed their union: Sophronia, Shirley, William B. and John W.

Robert W. Duncan, a prosperous young citizen of Bertrand, Mississippi County, was born in Pike County, Mo., in 1856. He is a son of Robert W., Sr., and Elizabeth Duncan, natives of Tennessee and Kentucky, respectively. The former is the son of Thomas Duncan, a native of Scotland, who came to America when about eighteen years of age, and settled in Pennsylvania. He was married there to a German lady, and reared a family. Robert W., removed to Kentucky about 1846, where he resided until 1852, when he went with an ox-team to California. Remaining there about one year, he returned to Kentucky, and in 1854 or 1855 came to Missouri, and settled in Pike County, in which he now resides, aged seventy-five years. His wife died in 1870, having borne him eleven children: Mary Ann (deceased), Sarah (deceased), Margaret (deceased), Thomas (deceased), Susan, Lizzie B., Robert W., Emeline, John W., Benjamin and William (deceased). The subject of this sketch came to Southeast Missouri in 1884, and located in Bertrand. He is now engaged in blacksmithing, milling and farming. In 1878 he was united in marriage with Lovinia Tabor, who was born in St. Francois County, Mo., in 1856. She is the daughter of John and Sarah Tabor, natives of Tennessee and Kentucky, respectively. They are both dead, and were the parents of ten children: John (who died in infancy), Margaret (deceased), Lizzie, Lovinia, Angeline, Ella, Fannie, John, William H., and Emma (deceased). Mr. and Mrs. Duncan are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. They have three children: Maude, John W. and Elsie. Mr. Duncan is a member of the I. O. O. F., Lodge No. 114, and the A. O. U. W., Lodge No. 144. Politically he is a Republican.

Col. H. J. Deal, one of the pioneers and prominent citizens of Mississippi County, was born in Oxford, Adams Co., Penn., December 1, 1829, and is a son of Peter and Mary (Smyser) Deal, both of whom were of German descent, and natives of York County, Penn. The grandparents came from Buchelbaugh, Germany, and settled in York County, Penn., in the days of William Penn. There they lived and died. The grandfather, Daniel Deal, was born in York County, Penn., as was also Jacob Smyser. Peter Deal was raised to the tanner's trade in his native county, in which he was married, after which he removed to Oxford, Adams County, where he lived until his death in May, 1887, aged eighty-seven years. His widow is still living at the age of eighty-six years. They were the parents of eleven children, who grew to maturity, and three that died in infancy: Martin, Israel, Jeremiah, Henry J., Andrew, Edwin, Charles, Sarah (wife of Emanuel Hull), Louisa (wife of Amos Louck), Anna M. (wife of David Peters) and Elvira (wife of Henry Snell), all of whom are living except Israel, who was a minister under Lincoln, to Batavia. He married Mrs. Anna Randall, the great elocutionist. The subject of this sketch was reared to the tanner's trade, which he learned under the direction of his father, remaining with him until he was nineteen years of age, when he (in 1849) came west. Stopping at Farmington, Iowa, he was employed as clerk in a grocery store about six months, when he went to St. Louis, where he worked at his trade about two years, as foreman for Mayor John Howe, for whom he also worked during 1853 and 1854 at Paducah, Ky., where he met his wife, whom he married on March 4, 1854. She is the daughter of Hardin B. and Mary R. (Locke) Walters. In 1856 they removed to Charleston, which they have since made their home. He had purchased land at the land sale in 1854 in Mississippi County. He came to Charleston as a levee and ditch contractor, but in 1857 he took the contract for building the Cairo & Fulton, now the Iron Mountain Railroad, which was the fourth contract let for building railroads west of the Mississippi River, viz.: Hannibal, St. Joe, Missouri Pacific and Iron Mountain. He had completed twenty-seven miles of the road, and had trains running upon it, when the war broke out, and he was elected from his district to fill the vacancy of Hon. R. A. Hatcher, who, with the Governor of the State, seceded and went south. He served in this capacity one year, after which (in 1862) he was elected to the Senate from this district, and served until 1868, after which he represented Mississippi County in the Legislature for two terms. In 1862 he was appointed, by the Governor, colonel of the Enrolled Militia of seven counties, viz.: Scott, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Dunklin, Stoddard and Bollinger. He served in that capacity until the close of the war. In 1866 he took the contract for building fifty miles of the St. Louis and Iron Mountain Railroad, which he completed in 1867. In 1867 he finished the old contract on the Cairo & Fulton Railroad to Poplar Bluff. In 1881 he took the contract for building 110 miles of the St. Louis, Arkansas & Texas Railroad, which he completed in 1882. The last few years he has turned his attention entirely to farming and stock raising, in which he has been quite successful. He has now in cultivation sixty acres of osier willow, used for basket making, from which the first basket was made February 4, 1888, and two hundred acres of catalpa trees, for posts. He has under cultivation about 2,500 acres of good land, which he mostly rents, and also has about 10,000 acres of land in forest. He was brought up in the Lutheran faith, and joined that church in 1847. Mrs. Deal is a member of the Baptist Church, and he is now also a member of the same church. They are the parents of six sons, two of whom are living. They were born as follows: Edwin P. in 1859 and John D. in 1870. The latter is now at the State University at Columbia. Col. Deal's life has been one of considerable note, and many incidents and anecdotes of his early life are often related by him, which to the growing generation are amusing, as well as startling. He has done as much as any one man in the way of improvements, both privately and publicly, and his liberality to public affairs is well known. He has been a valuable citizen of Mississippi County. Col. Deal has made several county roads, using his own means to pay the expense, receiving from the county as part pay some swamp lands. He has also made several canals through this section of Missouri, and a great many ditches have been put through under his supervision. May he live long as one of Mississippi County's most honored citizens.

Edwin P. Deal, of the firm of H. J. Deal & Son, dealers in fine stock and real estate, was born in Charleston, Mo., on April 19, 1859. He is a son of H. J. and Melvina (Walters) Deal [see sketch]. Edwin P. was reared in his native city, receiving a good education in the common schools. In 1874 he entered the Pennsylvania College at Gettysburg, remaining one year. In 1876 he received the appointment of cadet midshipman of the Naval School at Annapolis, which position he held about three years, when his eyesight began to fail him, and he came home on sick-leave, after which he resigned. Since 1880 he has been engaged in farming, and has dealt extensively in fine stock and real estate. He owns now about 1,800 acres of good land. In September, 1879 he was united in marriage with Mary Crenshaw, a daughter of Joseph and Martha (Bridwell) Crenshaw. Three children have been born to them: Henry, Nellie and Alma. Mr. Deal has held the office of city councilman for two years. He is an energetic, active young man, possessing such qualities as predict for him a successful future. Politically he is a Democrat.

Edwin J. Deal was born in Adams County, Penn., January 24, 1863. He is one of nine children born to the marriage of Jeremiah Diehl and Isabel Albright, the former a native of Adams County, and the latter of York County, Penn. Both parents are of German descent, but their ancestors immigrated to Pennsylvania at an early day. The parents are still residing on a beautiful farm in Adams County, Penn., about two miles west from Gettysburg. Their children are Worthington (deceased), William A., M. S., (a resident of Charleston, Mo.), Ida (Mrs. James Ross), Anna M., Edwin J., May S. (Mrs. Frank Blocher), Laura and Amber. Edwin J. remained on the old homestead until he reached his twenty-first year, and received his education at Pennsylvania College at Gettysburg. In March, 1884, he went to Charleston, Mo., and read law under Joseph J. Russell, and soon after entered the law department of the Missouri State University, graduating from that institution in 1886. He was admitted to the bar the same year, and has since practiced his profession at Charleston, and is now, in connection with his practice, preparing an abstract of land titles of Mississippi County. In July, 1886, he was appointed city attorney to fill the vacancy of Harry J. Cantwell, and was re-appointed in March, 1887. He was appointed notary public by the Governor in February, 1887. Mr. Deal is a bright, energetic young man, and is well suited to the duties of his profession.

John P. Dever was born in Lincoln County, Tenn., January 9, 1833, and is a son of Amos and Mary (Dillender) Dever, of French descent. The grandfather Dever was a Kentuckian, and the maternal grandparents were old Virginians. Amos Dever was a farmer by vocation, and lived and died in Lincoln County, Tenn.; however, he was born in Kentucky, in which State he remained until after his marriage. He and wife were the parents of seven children: Nathan, Joseph, Elijah, Henry, Mary, Abijah and John L. The last named was reared on a farm in his native State, and partially learned his trade there. His father died when he was but seven years of age, and at the age of seventeen years he went to Adams County, Ill., where he worked on a farm for four years, after which he went to Hopkins County, Ky., and remained several years, engaged in various occupations, working on a farm, at his trade and saw-milling. In 1876 he removed to Batesville, Ark., in which place he was engaged in blacksmithing and wagon work until April, 1884, when he came to Charleston. Since removing to the latter city he has been engaged in blacksmithing and wagon manufacturing under the firm name of J. P. Dever & Sons. The two sons who are his partners are John L. and Linn M. In 1887 Mr. Dever erected a planing mill, which he has since successfully conducted. In 1857 he wedded Charlotte W. Parent, a native of Kentucky, by whom he had nine children, three of whom are living: John L., Linn M. and May E. This wife died in 1875, and in 1876 he married Louisa Wright, a native of Arkansas. One child has been born to this union, Roy L. Mrs. Dever is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a Mason.

John C. Farris, a farmer of Wolf Island Township, Mississippi Co., was born in Obion County, Tenn., in 1830, and is a son of Benjamin S. and Bettie (Crockett) Farris, natives of South Carolina, who removed to Middle Tennessee about 1820. They removed later to Obion County, Tenn., and remained there ten years, when they came to Mississippi County, Mo., where they resided until their deaths. Mr. Farris was a farmer by vocation, and died in the fall of 1860. His wife died in 1863. They were both consistent members of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. To them were born six children: Agnes S., Isaiah A., Adaline, John C., James W. and Margaret C. Isaiah and James reside in Pemiscot County, Mo. John C. remained with his parents until he was twenty-three years old, and commenced farming in James Bayou Township, Mississippi County. He removed to Wolf Island Township in 1863, and to his present location in 1880. He was married in 1853 to Miss Martha E. Kerr, a native of Hickman County, Ky., and a daughter of Nicholas M. and Ann E. (Ednington) Kerr, natives of Virginia and Kentucky respectively. Mr. Kerr died in 1876, and his wife died in 1892. To them were born nine children: Lucy C. (deceased)

Martha E., Cecelia N., Elizabeth, Price (deceased), Emma J., Nicholas (deceased), Mariah B. and Nannie. After Mr. Kerr's first wife died he married Adaline Burgess, by whom he had one daughter, Edna V., who is living with her mother near the subject of this sketch. Mr. and Mrs. Farris have eight children: Benjamin P., Bettie A. (Mrs. James B. Ringoe, of Kentucky), Katie (Mrs. Oscar Tinsley, of Pemisnot County, Mo.), James N., John C. Jr., David W., Isaiah A. and Henry H. They are also rearing a niece, whose parents are dead, Emma P. Mr. Farris is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and his wife is a member of the Baptist Church. Mr. Farris has a good farm, of which he and boys cultivate about 250 acres of land. He served as deputy sheriff under Jackson, and as deputy collector under Louis Danforth.

Thomas B. Forbs was born in Rutherford County, Middle Tenn., on June 23, 1836, and is a son of Robert C. and Frances E. (Spinks) Forbs, the former a native of North Carolina and the latter of Middle Tennessee. The grandfather, Benjamin Forbs, was a native of North Carolina, who immigrated to Tennessee. The other grandfather, John B. Spinks, was a resident of Tennessee. He served during the War of 1812, and participated in the last battle, in which he was wounded by a gun-shot which disabled him for life. He died in Tennessee. Robert C. Forbs was born in 1808, and was brought to Tennessee when but seven years of age, and has since made that State his home. He is a farmer by vocation. During the late war he served under Gen. Sherman as a member of the Eighty-ninth Indiana Artillery. He was in the service three years, and was wounded while at home by a shot from a gun in the hands of a Federal, who had taken him for a Confederate soldier. The ball passed into the shoulder blade and lodged, remaining there still. He is the father of eight children, two of whom are living, Thomas B. and Francis M. Those dead are George W., Seneca C., John B., William H., Mary V. and an infant. The mother died on October 5, 1881. Thomas B. was taken to Fayette County, Tenn., when an infant by his parents, and remained with them until he was sixteen years of age, when he went to Crittenden County, Ark., where he lived for eleven years engaged in farming. He then removed to Memphis, Tenn., and remained till the fall of 1863, when he came up the Mississippi River to Wolf Island. Ten years later he purchased the farm on which he now resides. At the time of the purchase the land was covered with timber, but he located on it the next year (in 1874), and by untiring energy and industry has it now all under cultivation, with fair improvements. He has been four times married; first, to Eliza J. Butler, by whom he had two children, both deceased. She died in 1863, and he was married in 1864 to Virginia Robinson, who died in 1881. On January 5, 1882, he was united in marriage with Rebecca Broomfield, who died on July 2, 1887. On December 25, 1887, he wedded Mary J. Choate. Mr. Forbs is a member of the Wheeler society.

James G. Forgey, an industrious farmer and enterprising citizen of Mississippi County, Mo., was born in that county, August 9, 1858. His parents, Robert B. and Comfort (Eleazer) Forgey, were natives of Middle Tennessee. His paternal grandparents immigrated from Ireland, and settled in Tennessee, where they spent the rest of their lives. Robert B. Forgey was a farmer. In 1846 he, with his family, came down the Ohio River to Norfolk, Mo., on a flat-boat. He purchased a farm and located below Norfolk, and also started a wood-yard, which he managed for several years, when he sold out and bought a farm near Bird's Point, to which he removed, and upon which he resided for several years. In 1859 he sold out and went to Randolph County, Ark. Purchasing a farm there he cultivated it until 1861, when he sold it and returned to Mississippi County, Mo., purchasing 160 acres of land, upon which his widow now lives. He died in 1883. They had three children: James G., George W. and Robert L. James G. was reared to farm life, remaining at home until he was eighteen years of age, when he began working for himself. He has been a resident of Mississippi County all his life, with the exception of a few years spent in Arkansas. He now owns 110 acres of land, with good improvements, and a substantial residence which he built himself. On March 17, 1881, he wedded Susie Bougard, a native of Kentucky. Two children have blessed their marriage, Comfort and Lizzie. Mrs. Forgey is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Politically Mr. Forgey is a Democrat.

Andrew J. French, a farmer of Mississippi County, was born in Floyd County, Ind., February 15, 1830. He is a son of Henry and Eleanor (Smith) French, of German and French descent, respectively, the former a native of Tennessee and the latter of Pennsylvania. Henry French immigrated to Indiana at an early day, and remained until his death, about 1834. His wife lived until 1878. They were the parents of five children, two of whom are living, Eleanor J. and Andrew J. The last named received his education in the common schools of his native county, and, when about eighteen years of age, he went to Louisville, Ky., to learn the shipwright's trade, at which he worked three years, when he went to Arkansas, and located at Sterling. He remained there twelve years, engaged in the wood yard business and farming. In 1863 he immigrated to Mississippi County, and located where he now lives. He had previously purchased 380 acres of land, the most of which was in the woods. He is energetic, and has been a very successful farmer, owning at present about 1,000 acres of land, which is well improved. In 1864 he was united in marriage with Katie Campbell, a native of Maryland. They have two children in life, Ella and Charles, and two dead, Andrew J. and Thomas M. Mrs. French is a member of the Catholic Church.

James Fugate, a substantial farmer of Mississippi County, was born on New River, W. Va., in 1831. His parents, Randolph and Elizabeth (Odle) Fugate, were natives of the same State, where they lived until 1844 or 1845, when they removed to Kentucky. Remaining there until 1855, they came to Southeast Missouri, and located on Sandy Ridge. Mr. Fugate was a farmer, and cultivated between eighty and 100 acres of land. He died in his seventy-eighth year, and his wife in her seventy-sixth year. To them were born twelve children: Crockett (deceased), Harmon (deceased), Emily (deceased), Bird (deceased), John (a resident of Dallas County, Tex.), James, Reuben (a resident of St. Francois County, Mo.), William (a resident of Van Zandt County, Tex.), Mary (deceased), Rachel (Mrs. W. T. Morgan, living on the old home place at Sandy Ridge) and Harrison (of Colorado). James remained with his parents until he was eighteen years of age, after which he served an apprenticeship at buggy and wagon manufacturing in Calloway County, Ky. On July 7, 1853, he married Susan Washam, of Graves County, Ky. After his marriage he ran a factory for twelve years. At the commencement of the Civil War he enlisted and served four years, after which he bought machinery and was engaged in sawing lumber, until July, 1887. His first wife died in 1861, having borne four children: Elizabeth, Nancy, Randolph and Rachel, all of whom are deceased. On January 22, 1865, Mr. Fugate married Virginia Conyers. To this union have been born nine children: John C., Endora, Minnie, James, Theodore, Elbert, two not named (deceased) and Narcissus (deceased). Mr. Fugate owns 1,000 or more acres of land. He has a policy of $5,000 on his life in the Hartford Insurance Company.

Jacob S. Goodin, presiding judge of the Mississippi County Court, was born in Hardin County, Ky., March 23, 1828. His parents, Girard and Lettie (Swank) Goodin, were both natives of Hardin County, Ky., of German descent. The great-grandparents on both sides came from Germany, and located in Hardin County, where they died. The grandfather Goodin was killed by the Indians in Kentucky. The grandfather Swank removed to Mississippi County, Mo., in 1837, and settled near Charleston, on the place now owned by Robert Langsdale, it being a wild, dense forest at that time, abounding in wild animals and game of all kinds found in the Mississippi Valley. Deer went in droves of from twenty-five to seventy head. He died in Charleston, having built the first brick house in that vicinity. The place is now owned by James Smith. Girard Goodin immigrated with his family to Mississippi County in 1835, coming down the Ohio River on a flatboat. They landed at Bird's Point, from whence they went to some land near Charleston, upon which they made a settlement, it being the same farm upon which William T. Roberts now lives. A hewed log house had been erected previous to Mr. Goodin's purchase. He lived there until his death in 1849. His widow lived until 1852. To them were born nine children, three of whom are living: Jacob S., Louisa and Oliver M. The subject of this sketch has been a resident of Mississippi County nearly all his life, he being but eight years of age when his parents removed thither. He remained with them until their deaths, when he went to work for himself, choosing farming as his vocation. In 1887 he removed to his present farm, consisting of 160 acres of good land. In 1880 he was elected county judge, taking his seat the next year. He is now serving his fourth term in that office. He is a successful business man, and is one of the prominent citizens of his county. On September 22, 1857, he married Eliza E. Swank, a daughter of John Swank. They have two children living, Arthur S. and William O. Mr. and Mrs. Goodin are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a Mason, and a member of the Agricultural Wheel.

Franklin S. Goodin was born in Hardin County, Ky., September 8, 1829. He is a son of John and Catherine A. (Swank) Goodin, both of whom were natives of Hardin County, Ky., and were of Scotch and German descent, respectively. The grandfather, Samuel Goodin, was a native of Virginia, and immigrated to Kentucky at a very early day, in which State he and wife both died. The maternal great-grandparents came from Germany and located in Hardin County, Ky. They had several serious encounters with the Indians. At one time they were riding horseback when both their horses were shot from under them. Mr. Swank ran to a cave, but was followed by the Indians and shot. His wife ran to a mill near by, where she was protected and saved. Their son, Jacob Swank, the grandfather of the subject of this sketch, was born in Kentucky, and was in the Indian War in that State. He afterward removed his family to Mississippi County, Mo. (in the spring of 1836), at which time that county was very wild and unimproved. He entered a large tract of land, which he added to by purchase, and at the time of his death was a large land owner. He and wife both died in Mississippi County. The father, John Goodin, was born on March 9, 1803. He was a farmer, and in 1836 he built a flatboat and brought his family and all his goods and stock down the Ohio River to Cairo, when that place had but one hotel and a few old buildings. He removed his family to Big Lake, Tywappity Township, where he made a settlement, there being but three others in that section. The country was very wild and full of game. He owned about 600 acres of land, upon which he built a log cabin, with clapboard doors and roof. He afterward purchased a farm in Mathews' Prairie, where he resided a few years, and went back to his old place. By many days of hard labor he made a valuable farm, upon which he spent the remainder of his life. His death occurred in 1850, and his wife's in 1868. They had six sons, two of whom are living: Franklin S. and Albert V., a resident of Nashville, Tenn. The ones deceased are Jacob V., Samuel G., John W. and William W. Franklin S. was but nine years of age when his parents came to Mississippi County. He remained on the farm with his father until he was nineteen years of age, when he entered the Arcadia (Mo.) High School, and was just beginning the second session, when he was called away by the death of his father, after which he remained with his mother, helping to educate his younger brothers, until he was married in February, 1857, to Sallie Harned, when he began farming for himself. His wife died in 1860, having borne him one child, who is now deceased. He was married again in 1865, choosing for his second wife Jennie E., daughter of Euclid and Catherine A. (Logan) Haw, the former being one of the first Methodist ministers in this section of country. Mr. and Mrs. Goodin have had six children: Mary (deceased), John H., Frank S., Jr., Alice S., Lindsay V. and Alfred W. (deceased). In 1871 Mr. Goodin removed to Charleston, where he still resides. Mr. Goodin is one of the pioneers of Mississippi County, and has witnessed its development from a wild wilderness to a wealthy, thickly settled country. He and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Oliver M. Goodin, a successful farmer and enterprising citizen of Mississippi County, was born in that county on January 6, 1838, and is a son of Girard and Lettie (Swank) Goodin, both natives of Kentucky. Thomas Goodin, the grandfather, immigrated to Kentucky from Virginia, dying in the former State. Jacob Swank, the maternal grandfather, was a Pennsylvanian, who immigrated to Mississippi County in 1836, and located near Charleston where he died. Girard Goodin was reared and married in his native State, and was a farmer by vocation. In 1836 he, with his wife and nine children, came on a flat-boat down the Ohio River to Bird's Point, where they unloaded, and taking their teams and wagons went to near Charleston and located. Mr. Goodin lived there until his death in 1840. He and wife had ten children, three of whom are living: Jacob, Louisa and Oliver M. Those deceased are William, Ellen, John, Nathaniel, and three that died in infancy. Oliver M. was reared on a farm. He was but two years of age when his father died, and after the death of his mother in 1850, he lived with his older brother, William, until he was of age, when he began working for himself. In 1878 he purchased 160 acres of land, which is now under cultivation with good improvements. In 1868 he was united in marriage with Ruth Fowkles. She died in September, 1874, having borne him three children, two of whom are living, Lizzie and Ollie. The one deceased is Ruth.

James O. Gray, proprietor of Gray's Mill, located in Wolf Island Township, Mississippi County, Mo., was born in Marshall County, Ky., October 9, 1837. He is the only one living of five children, born to Harrison and Mary Gray, natives of Kentucky. In the fall of 1859 the family emigrated from their native State to Southeast Missouri, and located in Wolf Island Township, Mississippi County. Harrison Gray was a miller, and followed his trade until his death in 1864. His wife died at the home of J. O. Gray, in 1879. Their children who are dead are James B., William H., Bedford and Mary. James O. came with his parents to Southeast Missouri, and engaged in the milling business with George Keiser, of Mississippi County. After a year, he began working with his father in the same business at the mouth of James Bayou and continued for six or seven years. In the meantime his father died, and he returned to Wolf Island and purchased his present mill, which he has since managed. He is also engaged in farming. Mr. Gray was first married to Emily Harvell, who died about eleven months after. He next married Anna Eligood, by whom he had four children: William, Mary (the wife of Walter Parker), Naomi (wife of Lewis Husk) and Laura. The mother of these children died in 1869. Mr. Gray afterward married Miss Sidney Roach. Two children have blessed this union, Bettie and Maud.

James S. Green, station-agent at Charleston, for the St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railroad, was born in Benton, Scott County, Mo., on February 7, 1860. He is a son of Levi S. and Jennie E. (Myers) Green, the former a native of New York State and the latter of Sikeston, Scott Co., Mo., her parents settling in that county at an early day. James was reared in his native village, where his education was begun, and afterward attended Cape Girardeau College. At the age of eighteen years he began the study of telegraphy, which he mastered about 1878. His first appointment as station-agent and operator was at Corning, Ark., where he remained about six months. He was then successively at Poplar Bluffs, Allenville, Jefferson Barracks, Cabot, Ark., Charleston for three years, Helena, Ark., and thence back to Charleston in the latter part of 1885, in which place he has since been a resident. In September, 1884 he was united in marriage with Miss Bettie Calendar, a native of Louisville, Ky., and a daughter of Moses and Nellie Calendar. Their union has been blessed by two bright little daughters, Florence L. and Mildred J.

James A. Greer, a prominent farmer residing near Bertrand, Mississippi County, was born in 1835, in Henry County, Tenn., and is a son of Hezekiah and Mary (Wyatt) Greer, natives of Tennessee and North Carolina, respectively. The latter, when but eleven years of age, came with her parents from South Carolina to Tennessee. Her parents located in Central Tennessee, but after the Jackson purchase went to Benton County, where they died and were buried. Hezekiah Greer lived with his parents until he was married, when he engaged in farming in Henry County, Tenn. Remaining there several years, he removed to Carroll County and remained four or five years, when he went to Humphrey County. When that county was divided in 1836 he was placed in Benton County, in which he lived until his death in 1862, being about fifty-five years of age. His wife was born in 1805 and died in 1864. Both parents' deaths were caused by the war. They had eleven children, four of whom died in infancy: James A., William H. (deceased), John Riley (deceased), Rebecca Ann (Mrs. Harvey Madden), Greenbury, Cynthia J. (Mrs. Dr. J. B. Florence) and Francis Marlon. At the time of the father's death, he owned 1,137 acres of land, which was divided equally among the seven children. James A. remained with his parents until he was married in August, 1847, to Jemima Rushing, daughter of William Rushing, a native of North Carolina, of English descent. After his marriage Mr. Greer went to work for himself, clearing the woods to make a home for himself and family. He afterward traded farms with his brother, residing on the latter place from the fall of 1859 until 1871, when he sold the farm and removed to Mississippi County, locating where he now resides on December 16, 1871. He now has 240 acres under good cultivation, upon which he has a nice residence. He and wife have had ten children, five of whom died in infancy. Mary Catherine (Mrs. J. T. Childress) died on May 24, 1887, leaving five children. Those living are Sally Ann (Mrs. W. W. Gaty), Martin L., Cynthia E. (Mrs. Thomas Strickland) and Hezekiah D. Mr. and Mrs. Greer have been active members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South since 1842. He is a Mason, to which order his father also belonged.

Martin Luther Greer, a substantial farmer residing near Bertrand, was born in Benton County, Tenn., on December 9, 1858. He is a son of James A. and Jemima (Rushing) Greer, both of whom are natives of Tennessee, who immigrated to Mississippi County, Mo., in 1871. Martin L. lived at home with his parents until he was twenty-three years of age, assisting on the farm and attending school during the winters, securing most of his education after removing to Missouri. On December 20, 1881, he was united in marriage with Emma J. Jordon, who was born in North Carolina, and is a daughter of Henry Jordon. Her mother died when she was but a child, and her father went to the war, and was never heard from again. It is supposed that he was killed. She was educated by J. C. Yarbrough, of Camden, Tenn., with whom she lived until her marriage. After his marriage Mr. Greer located on the farm upon which he now resides. Three children have blessed their union: Stella, Walker and Jemima. Mr. and Mrs. Greer are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He is a member of the A. F. & A. M., Lodge No. 330. Although Mr. Greer is a young man he takes considerable interest in everything that tends to promote the welfare of his community. In politics he is a Democrat.

John L. Greer, a farmer of Mississippi County, residing near East Prairie, was born in Ohio County, Ky. He is a son of William and Sarah P. (Cox) Greer, also natives of Ohio County, Ky. They reared their family in their native county, and in the spring of 1859 came to Southeast Missouri, and located upon the land where the subject of this sketch now lives. They spent the remainder of their lives on this farm, Mr. Greer dying in 1865, and Mrs. Greer in the fall of 1887. To them were born six children, three of whom are living: James L., William L. and John L. The two gentlemen last named reside together on the old homestead, and James L. resides on a farm near them. Mr. John L. Greer has 120 acres of land, which has been greatly improved since the spring of 1869. Politically he is a Democrat.

Nathan M. Griggs, of Mississippi County, Mo., was born in Meade County, Ky., in February, 1842. He is one of three surviving children of a family of nine, born to the union of David Griggs and Martha J. Staples. The father was born in New York, and immigrated to Kentucky when young. His wife was a native of Virginia, and they were both of English lineage. Mr. Griggs was a physician, and practiced his profession in Kentucky until his death in 1855. His wife died three years later, in 1858. Their three living children are Nathan M., Clarence E. and Levantha J. (Mrs. Stephen Smith, of New York). Although Mr. Griggs was a physician, his family was reared on a farm. Nathan M. received a good education in the common schools, and remained with his parents until their deaths, when he began working for himself. He followed boating for several years on the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers, running from Concordia, Ky., to New Orleans. In 1875 he removed to Mississippi County, Mo., locating where he now resides. The farm consists of 160 acres, nearly all of which is under cultivation, with good improvements. He was married in March, 1875, to Lydia A., a daughter of John and Jane (Peak) Smith. Mr. Griggs and wife are members of the Baptist Church. They have three children: John D., Alonzo E. and Martha J. Mr. Griggs takes considerable interest in educational matters, and has served as school director. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and of the Agricultural Wheel.

Dr. W. F. Grinstead, a prominent physician and surgeon of Charleston, was born near that place on October 8, 1853. He is a son of Andrew J. and Rachel A. (Brewer) Grinstead, the former born in Scott County, Mo., and the latter in Christian County, Ky. The grandfather, Edward Grinstead, emigrated from Warren County, Ky., to Southeast Missouri in the thirties, and settled in Scott County. Edward's father was David Grinstead, who was raised in Virginia. Edward's grandfather was John G., who was raised in England, and emigrated thence with his family to Virginia. John had a son Richard, who was a general in Washington's army at the close of the Revolutionary War. He was a farmer by occupation, which he followed until his death in 1848. The father was also a farmer and trader in live stock, in which business he was engaged the most of his life. He removed to Mississippi County about 1850, and remained there until his death in 1861. His wife died in 1875. They were the parents of four children, two of whom are living. Those dead are George D. and Lorenzo M. The two in life are Thomas M. and Dr. William F. The latter was reared on his father's farm until he was nineteen years of age, when He entered the Charleston Academy, remaining for two years. In 1876 he began the study of medicine under Dr. J. L. Haw, then of Charleston, but now of Farmington, Mo. In the fall of 1876 he entered the Missouri Medical College at St. Louis, and after remaining there one term, he entered the Vanderbilt Medical College at Nashville, Tenn., graduating in the summer of 1877. During the winter of 1880-81 he held the position of internus or house surgeon in the City Hospital of Nashville, and in the meantime took lectures in the University of Nashville, medical department, receiving his second diploma in 1881. He immediately began the practice of his profession at Charleston, which he has successfully continued. Upon locating in Charleston he was appointed local surgeon for the Missouri Pacific Railroad, which position he still holds. He also held the office of county physician for three years. He was elected president of the Southeast Missouri Medical Association in 1885, and held the office one term. He had previously served as vice president of the association for two terms. He has written a number of essays which have been published in the St. Louis Medical Courier, viz.: "Abscess of the Liver," read in May, 1882; "Mother's Marks," read in November of that year, and "A Bad Cold," read in May, 1884. The Doctor is a man of enterprise and public spirit, who seeks to promote the welfare of his people and community.

Rev. Henry Hainesworth, presiding elder of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, was born in Hull, England, November 18, 1847. He is the youngest of six children born to the union of Henry Hainesworth and Anna Tomlinson, both of whom were natives of England. The father was a wholesale and retail merchant, which business he followed until his death in 1861. The mother died in 1873. Four of their children are living: Anna, Richmond, Thomas and Rev. Henry. The last was reared at his father's home, and was engaged in the mercantile business until he was twenty three years of age. The early part of his education was received at the Army-Naval Academy, of Portsmouth, England, and was completed at the grammar school of Dudley, England. When twenty-three years of age he began to study for the ministry, and was licensed to preach the gospel at Newbury, England. In June, 1871, he took passage at Liverpool, on the steamer "Moravian," and landed at Norfolk, Va., after a fourteen-day's voyage. He then proceeded to Nashville, Tenn., where he remained about two months, administering the gospel, after which he was sent by the Bishop to Fayetteville, Tenn., where he joined the Tennessee Conference, and was transferred to St. James, Mo. He was ordained at Charleston, in November, 1872, since which time he has been preaching the gospel in Southeast Missouri. He has been presiding elder for eleven years. In the fall of 1895 he removed to Charleston, where he has since resided, presiding over the Charleston District. He was married in August, 1873, to Mary J. Scott, a daughter of Hon. J. T. Scott. His wife died in 1883, having borne him five children, of whom three are living: Anna M., Harry R. and Mary L. He was again married on March 30, 1886, choosing for his second wife, Bula E. Staats, a native of Mobile, Ala.

Jacob Hainley, a prominent farmer and highly respected citizen of Mississippi County, was born on January 2, 1822, in Logan County, Ky. He is a son of Jacob and Bethia (Jenkins) Hainley, both of German descent, and natives of North Carolina. The paternal great-grandfather came from Germany and settled in North Carolina, where he died. The grandfather, Jacob Hainley, was a farmer by vocation. He also died in the Old North State. Jacob Hainley, the father, immigrated from his native State to Tennessee, thence to Calloway County, Ky., where he purchased a farm, upon which he resided until the fall of 1838, when he, with his family, removed in wagons to Missouri. He started with the intention of going to the Ozark Mountains, but settled on the edge of Mathews' Prairie, where he entered forty acres of land, and purchased forty acres. On this he built a log cabin, with puncheon floor and clapboard roof and door, in which cabin they lived for several years. He afterward made a good home for himself and family, where he resided until his death in 1842. His wife died in 1863. They had eleven children, of whom three are living: George (now in his eighty-fourth year, and a resident of Kentucky), Jeannette and Jacob. Those dead are Thomas, Henderson, Amberine, Ellen, Elizabeth, Eliza and two that died in infancy. Jacob was sixteen years old when he came with his parents to Mississippi County, and he remained with his father, helping to improve the farm until the death of the latter, when he purchased a farm, upon which he resided until 1859. He then bought the farm on which he now lives, and has since built his large dwelling, and made all the other improvements. He now owns 900 acres of good land, which is well improved. In 1865 he was united in marriage with Polly A. Clark, a native of Missouri, and daughter of Nathaniel and Marselle (Pennington) Clark. Mr. and Mrs. Hainley have had seven children; Jacob and Charles are the only ones living. The ones deceased are Masieth, Bettie, Orrie, George and Willie. Mrs. Hainley is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Mr. Hainley is a member of the I. O. O. F. Politically he is a Democrat, but he has never sought or held a political office. He has preferred the life of an independent farmer, in which he has been very successful. Nathaniel Clark (deceased), Mrs. Hainley's father, was born in Christian County, Ky., on May 4, 1804, being a son of Jonathan and Jane (Rogers) Clark, the former a native of Ireland, and the latter of Scotland. They immigrated to America just before the Revolutionary War, and settled in North Carolina, where they remained a few years. Mr. Clark being a soldier in the Revolutionary War. He died in 1850, in Christian County, Ky., whither he had immigrated several years previous. Nathaniel was married in that county, and had five children—four sons and one daughter: Alonzo, Franklin, Jonathan, Phine (deceased) and Polly A. Alonzo and Franklin both died in the Confederate army. Mr. and Mrs. Clark landed in Mississippi County on March 12, 1832, and located in the southern part of Tywappity Township, where he entered about 400 acres of government land. He died in 1839. Mrs. Clark died on July 29, 1866. She was a consistent member of the Baptist Church.

Alfred L. Hall was born in Virginia in 1841, and is the youngest of eight children born to Andrew and Permella Hall, natives of Tennessee and Virginia, respectively. Andrew Hall went to Virginia in his youthful days, and was afterward married there. After the birth of all his children he, with his family, removed to Illinois, the subject of this sketch being then but two years of age. They located in Massac County, which was the parents' home until their deaths. Alfred L. is the only surviving member of the family. He came to Scott County, Mo., where he resided until 1864, when he removed to Mississippi County, and located on his present farm in James Bayou Township. In 1865 he married Harriet Waters, a native of Scott County, Mo. She died in 1870, leaving three children: Hannibal C., Calvin M. and Alfred W. (twins). She was also the mother of one child that died in infancy. Mr. Hall afterward married Sarah Burgess, who was born in Pike County, Ohio, and is the daughter of Nathaniel and Mary Burgess, natives of Virginia, who went to Ohio with their respective parents when young. They were married in Ohio, and became the parents of four children, Mrs. Hall being the only one living. Mr. and Mrs. Hall enjoy the comforts of a good home, and have six children: Alice Elmer, John W., Nancy S., Ella E., Della F. and Guy L. Mr. Hall manifests considerable interest in educational matters, and has served as president of the school board for fifteen years. Mrs. Hall is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

James W. Harper, a successful farmer of Mississippi County, Mo., was born in Caldwell County, Ky., in 1852, and is a son of Henry H. and Cynthia A. (Castlebury) Harper, both of whom were born and reared in Kentucky. They were married in their native State, and about 1860 removed to Southeast Missouri, and located in Mississippi County, on the farm upon which the subject of this sketch now lives (in St. James Township). The father died there in 1874, and his widow is now living with her son, James W. She is sixty-eight years of age, and enjoys fair health. She is the eldest of a family of twelve children, viz.: Martha C. (Hunter), James and Washington (twins), Noah, William (deceased), Nathan, Althea, John, Pernessa, Benjamin and Mary. To Henry H. and Cynthia A. Harper were born twelve children: Hellen L. (Mrs. W. M. Wilson, of Kentucky), Althea E. (Mrs. P. Bishop, of Point Pleasant, Mo.), Martha J. (deceased), William W. (deceased), Mildred Ann (deceased), Louisa K. (deceased), James W., Cynthia S. (deceased), John D. (deceased), Mary P. (Mrs. Marshall Clark), and two that died in infancy. James W. engaged in farming for himself on his present place in 1874. His farm consists of 295 acres, with about 100 acres under cultivation with good improvements.

William L. Harper, a prominent farmer and stock raiser of Mississippi County, Mo., was born in Henry County, Tenn., in 1853, and is a son of Robert and Nancy (Smith) Harper, both natives of Middle Tennessee. The former was born in 1805, and is of English descent, his ancestors having settled first in the United States near Harper's Ferry, Va. Some of the family emigrated from thence to Middle Tennessee. In 1851 Robert Harper removed, with his family, to Western Tennessee, where he was engaged in farming until 1873, when he removed to Mississippi County, Mo., and settled on the place where the subject of this sketch now lives. Both parents died at their home in 1881. The mother was born in 1812. They were universally respected, and were the parents of thirteen children, three of whom died in infancy. James Harper was taken prisoner at the battle of Atlanta, and died soon after, leaving a wife and two children: John H. and James B., both residents of Benton County, Tenn. Robert Harper was killed in Tennessee during the Rebellion, and was buried in his father's orchard in Benton County. He also left a wife and two children: William F. and Robert H. Those living are Sarah E. (Mrs. William Love), Maria F. (Mrs. Samuel Walters), John B., Josiah, Thomas J., David H., William L. and Greene H. William L. lived with his parents until their deaths, when he purchased the home farm of the heirs. In 1888 he sold that farm, and purchased 800 acres of good land one mile north of Bertrand, with about 350 acres under cultivation, upon which is a good residence called Wood Lawn. Mr. Harper married Fannie Ostner, daughter of Ferdinand and Elizabeth (Espinasse) Ostner, natives of Germany and France, respectively. Mrs. Ostner is the daughter of a French army officer, and niece of Gen. Espinasse, who fell at Sebastopol, in October, 1854. Mr. Ostner removed to St. Louis in 1850, and in 1868 or 1869 to Scott County, Mo., where he owns about 2,000 acres of land, and is now extensively engaged in farming and stock raising. He and wife are the parents of four children: Fannie (Mrs. Harper), Katie (Mrs. Welch), Clara (Mrs. Daniel) and Max. Mr. and Mrs. Harper have two children: Robert Ferdinand and Eunice Blanch.

William M. Harris, of the firm of W. M. & A. C. Harris, farmers and dealers in stock, was born in Mississippi County, Mo., February 8, 1845. He is a son of Alfred E. and Barbara (Martin) Harris, of whom the former was a native of Charleston, S. C. He immigrated to Daviess County, Ky., at an early day, and remained until 1835, when in November of that year he, with his family, immigrated to Mississippi County, Mo., coming down the Ohio River in a flat-boat. Unloading his goods at Bird's Point, he went to Long Prairie, and made a settlement on what is now known as the Sherman farm. He purchased 600 acres of unimproved land, the most of which was heavy timbered, consequently it required several years of hard labor to make his start in life. Neighbors were scarce, and the wild animals were frequent callers at his cabin door. He made that his home till 1855, when he purchased and located upon 600 acres of land near Greenfield's Landing. Remaining there till 1860, he purchased and removed to the farm upon which the Harris brothers now reside. He remained there until his death in 1866. His widow still survives, in her seventy-fifth year, and makes her home with her sons, W. M. and A. C. She and husband were the parents of ten children, six of whom are living: Mary Edens, Martha V. (Mrs. William Rodney), Phoebe C. (Mrs. Frederick Duvall), Richard B., William M. and Alvin C. The two gentlemen last named have never married. They are indeed wide-awake and successful business men, and own one of the finest farms in Southeast Missouri. They have 2,000 acres of fine land, mostly used for corn, wheat and watermelons. It is all, with the exception of 160 acres, under cultivation; 800 acres are in one tract, of which 600 are sown in wheat this season. They are extensive dealers in stock of all kinds, handling annually between $40,000 and $50,000 worth, and feed from 200 to 300 head of cattle each year. They also keep a great many hogs. In 1885 they had 600 acres of watermelons under cultivation, and each year they pay considerable attention to raising melons, having about 200 acres for that purpose. They ship an average of 150 car-loads annually. Their homestead is beautifully situated about a mile northwest of Charleston.

John T. Heggie was born in Caswell County, N. C., September 24, 1837, and is a son of Archibald and Nancy (Love) Heggie. The paternal great-grandparents came from Scotland and settled in Virginia, and removed from thence to North Carolina. The grandfather, James Heggie, was a tailor by trade, which he followed during his life. The maternal great-grandparents came from Ireland, and located in North Carolina. The grandfather, John Love, was born about 1792, and was a farmer by vocation. He died in 1840. The maternal grandmother, Love, was a relative of Gen. Robert E. Lee. Archibald Heggie was born on April 23, 1811, in Person County, N. C., and was reared on a farm. Along with the rising generation of those early times, he received but a limited education. In 1846 he removed his family to Benton County, Tenn., and a journey which required five weeks and three days was made in wagons. After arriving there, he purchased a farm, upon which he resided until 1874, when he immigrated to Mississippi County, Mo., whither his son, John T., had previously removed. He located near Bertrand, where he resided until his death on December 25, 1887. He was a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and his widow, who is still living, is also a member of that church. She was born in Caswell County, N. C., on October 19, 1820. They are the parents of three children: John T., Martha A. (now the wife of Robert W. Ayers, of Benton County, Tenn.) and James (who died in 1836). John T. being but nine years of age when his parents removed to Benton County, Tenn., his education was secured there. He remained with his father on the farm until he was twenty-three years of age, when he was united in marriage (on May 31, 1860), with Mary T. Rushing, a daughter of Richard and Mahala (Ashcroft) Rushing, both natives of Tennessee, now deceased. In 1861 he enlisted in the Confederate army, joining Capt. R. W. Ayers' company, and was assigned to post duty at Danville, Tenn., guarding a railroad bridge. After remaining there some time he was ordered to Henderson Station, Tenn., to guard the railroad, where they remained until after the battle of Corinth, when their command was cut off, and they received orders to mount themselves and go to Tullahoma, when they were again put on guard for a short time, when the company was sent to Linden on detached service. After the first year's service the company reorganized, and Mr. Heggie was elected second lieutenant. He was taken prisoner at Linden, Tenn., and sent to Alton, Ill., where he was held one month and exchanged, after which he was sent east, but, arriving at Pittsburgh, he was ordered to Johnston's Island, where he was held prisoner until February 20, 1865, when he was sent on exchange, and joined his old command at Murion, Ala., but before thirty days the army had surrendered. In 1866 he rented a farm in Henderson County, Tenn., and raised one crop, when he removed to Haywood County. From there he removed to Benton County, and remained until 1873, when he immigrated to Mississippi County, Mo. He purchased 240 acres of land, which he cultivated until 1879, when he sold it and purchased property in Bertrand, in which town he built a grist-mill and cotton-gin, which he managed for several years. He was also railroad agent in Bertrand for seven years, and was meanwhile engaged in the mercantile business. He moved to his present home in Charleston in December, 1886. He still owns considerable property in and around Bertrand. On November 7, 1886, he was elected clerk of Mississippi County, receiving the greatest number of votes of any candidate for any office. He and wife are consistent members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He is a Mason and a member of the A. O. U. W. Mr. and Mrs. Heggie are the parents of twelve children, viz.: Susan L., Mattie E., Richard A., Robert E. L., Lillian M., Fannie M., Mary E., John P., Bessie F., Eula B., Arthur W. (deceased) and an infant (deceased).

Ferdinand J. Hess, an enterprising farmer and stock raiser, located on Black Bayou, Mississippi Co., Mo., was born in Gibson County, Tenn., and is a son of Dr. Nelson I. and Catherine H. (Hill) Hess, natives of Kentucky and Tennessee, respectively [see sketch of Dr. J. H. Hess]. The subject of this sketch was reared at the home of his parents, and after the death of his father, much of the care of the family devolved upon him. He received a good education at Andrew College, which is a Methodist Episcopal school at Trenton, Tenn. In 1875 he came to Southeast Missouri and located in Wolf Island Township. He purchased his land on Black Bayou in 1885, and he is adding every year to its many improvements. His farm consists of 900 acres of the best land on the bayou, with 400 acres under cultivation. He raises an average of 8,000 bushels of grain annually, which he ships to different markets. He also deals largely in stock, and always has on his farm a great many head of cattle, mules, and such other animals necessary to run the farm. He is a judge of the county court, representing the Second District of Mississippi County. In politics he is a Democrat.

John L. Howlett, a prominent farmer of Mississippi County, was born in Bullitt County, Ky., on October 26, 1836, and is the son of Luke and Eliza (Lee) Howlett, of Scotch-Irish descent, and natives of Virginia and Kentucky, respectively. The grandfather, John Howlett, was also born in Virginia, and was in the War of 1812, participating in the battle of New Orleans under Gen. Jackson. He emigrated from his native State to Kentucky at an early period. Luke Howlett was an infant when he went with his parents to Bullitt County, Ky. He was there reared to farm life, and remained until his death in 1883.

His widow is still living in Kentucky, at the age of seventy-three years. They were the parents of nine children, seven of whom are living: John L., William, Franklin, Miles, Bettie, Alice and Selenia. Those deceased are Drusilla and i Aura. John L. remained in his native county until he was twenty-two years of age, when he came to Missouri. He came on a steamer from Louisville to Price's Landing, walking from the latter place to Charleston. In 1858 he bought 120 acres of land, upon which he has since resided. The land was timbered, and required the labor of several years to get it under cultivation. He has since purchased more land, and now has 760 acres, with 500 under cultivation, with good improvements. In 1859 he was united in marriage with Elizabeth, a daughter of William T. Lee. She died on March 2, 1885, leaving three children: Sterling P., Luke and John L., Jr. Mr. Howlett is a Mason. He has served as constable two terms, and as deputy one term. He was second lieutenant of Col. Deal's militia. On February 22, 1887, he wedded Rilda, a daughter of Thomas Lee. He and wife are members of the Baptist Church.

Charles J. Hubbard, an influential stock dealer, merchant and farmer of East Prairie, Mississippi County, Mo., was born in New Madrid County in 1851, and is a son of William B. Hubbard, a native of Kentucky, who came to Southeast Missouri when about sixteen years of age, and married Malinda J. Barnes, a native of Southeast Missouri. Mr. Hubbard located in New Madrid County, near the mouth of James Bayou, where he and wife are still living, engaged in farming, in which business he has been very successful. To them were born six children: George W., Charles J., Martha B. (wife of Isaac De Leon, who lives on the home place), John S., Robert N. (deceased) and C. Thomas (deceased). Charles J. remained at his father's home, and assisted on the farm until he was twenty-four years of age, when he removed to East Prairie, and commenced farming. He has now a good farm of 320 acres with about 200 under cultivation. He owns several buildings in East Prairie, including a good hotel. He handles annually about 35,000 or 40,000 bushels of corn, 1,000 head of hogs and 500 head of cattle. He has been twice married, the first time to Eudora Fugate who was born and reared in Southeast Missouri, and was the daughter of Bird Fugate. To this union were born four children: Paulina, Arluna, Bird and Jesse. The mother of these children died on August 6, 1886. Mr. Hubbard married the second time Mrs. Mattie Long, a native of Kentucky. She has two children by her first marriage: Minnie and Lena. Mr. Hubbard is one of Mississippi County's enterprising citizens, in the progress of which he takes great interest.

Benjamin Huff, sheriff of Mississippi County, was born in that county on August 19, 1843, and is a son of William D. Huff, a native of Breckenridge County, Ky. The latter is a son of Benjamin Huff, who came from Germany to Breckenridge County, Ky., at a very early day, and was a settler with Daniel Boone, with whom he used to hunt. He was the first sheriff of Breckenridge County, and was one among the first to represent the county in the Legislature. He was in the Indian War, and was captured at one time on the Ohio River, at the mouth of Salt River by red men. They put him on a raft and tied him with a buckskin thong, but he loosened it, pushed one of the guards off into the river, and shot the other. He owned considerable land which he had taken up from the government. The paternal grandmother was a sister of Ben. Hardin, who built Hardinsburg Fort, a German settlement. William D. Huff was reared to farm life in his native State, in which he married Elizabeth Walls, also a native of Breckenridge County, Ky. In 1843 he went down the Ohio River on a flat-boat, which he had built for that purpose, to Bird's Point, Mississippi County, Mo. From thence he went to what is known as Mathews' Prairie. During the big flood in the spring of 1844, he removed to Fish Lake, and bought a pre-emption, with about ten or twelve acres improved, from a Mr. Bill George. Here he made a home and resided until his death in December, 1860. His wife is also dead. They had four children, two of whom are living: Benjamin and Elizabeth, widow of Edwin Quinn. The subject of this sketch remained with his father until the latter's death. About this time, troops were called, and in June, 1861, he enlisted in the Confederate army, joining Company A. Fortieth Tennessee, provisional army. He participated in the battles of Corinth, Coffeeville and the siege of Island No. 10, of which he saw the surrender. He was taken prisoner by Gen. Grant and sent to Camp Douglas, Chicago, where he was kept six months, when he was exchanged and assigned to the Eighth Kentucky Regiment. Being captured again at Coffee-ville in November, 1862, he was taken to Oxford, Miss., where he was imprisoned two weeks, when he was paroled. Returning home he engaged in farming, which he has since continued. He has been a resident of Charleston since December 8, 1884. On January 1, 1863, he was united in marriage with Martha Hargan, a native of Hardin County, Ky., by whom he has one child, Martha B., who married James T. Brown, September 22, 1878. They have three children: Benjamine, Effie Maud and Thomas, all of whom live at Huff's Landing, Mississippi County. Mr. and Mrs. Huff are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and of the I. O. O. F. In 1884 he was elected sheriff and collector, and was re-elected sheriff in 1886. He is public-spirited, and is one of the prominent men of Mississippi County.

William W. Humphreys, a prominent farmer of Mississippi County, was born on December 10, 1827, two miles northeast of Charleston. He is a son of Washington and Ann M. (Russell) Humphreys, both of English descent, and natives of Maryland. The family came west in 1836, in company with the Russell and Moore families, making the journey to Wheeling, Va., in wagons, and from thence by water to West Philadelphia, now called Price's Landing. Mr. Humphreys was a shoe-maker by vocation, and died two years after his arrival in Southeast Missouri. Mrs. Humphreys was married, in 1840, to W. B. Bush, who removed to Southeast Missouri in 1813, and was one of Mississippi County's most prominent men, having served as judge of the court for a number of years. He died on July 23, 1859. His widow lived until July 7, 1885. There were two children born to the first marriage: James W. (who was born in 1836, and died in August, 1845) and William W. The children by the second marriage are Paleman C., John L. (killed by a train in 1869), Richard B. (died August 23, 1865), James L., Joseph R., Galena A. (died in 1873), Mary E. (died September 22, 1862) and Price L. William W. Humphreys lived at his mother's home until he was twenty-one years of age, taking charge of the farm after the death of his father. When twenty-two years of age he was married to Emma Noyes, a native of Mississippi County. Her parents were natives of New Hampshire, and immigrated to Louisville, Ky., in 1818, and in 1831 to Southeast Missouri, removing to Mississippi County in 1840. Her father died in 1845, and his widow was married to Francis Kirkpatrick in 1853. She died on October 5, 1875, and was the mother of four children, all of whom are dead. After his marriage Mr. Humphreys located in Long Prairie Township, where he has since resided, engaged in farming, with the exception of seven months in 1871. He sold out and removed to Newton County, but did not like the country, so returned to his native county, and settled where he now resides. He has taken a prominent part in politics, in which he is a Democrat. In 1882 he aspired for the judgeship of the county, but was defeated on account of the negro vote going solidly for his opponent. He was a member of the Democratic central committee for six years. His wife died on February 22, 1877, having borne him seven children, viz.: Walter (deceased), Elizabeth (deceased), Mary G. (deceased), William M. (deceased), Julia, Flora, and John M. (deceased). On June 2, 1877, Mr. Humphreys was married to Harriet Robinson. Six children have been born to this union: Emma F., Albert H., Minnie L., Gertrude, Cora M. and James A. Mr. Humphreys has been a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church for thirty-three years. His wife is also a member. He is a Mason. He joined the I. O. G. T. in May, 1855, and he declares that he has never violated the obligation taken at that time. He has also been a member of the A. O. U. W., but surrendered his policy because he was not able to support his family and keep his assessments paid up. Mr. Humphreys has followed teaching school and other vocations, such as railroad agent, shipping agent, clerking in dry-goods stores, weighing corn, etc. He is hale and hearty, and enjoys the esteem and confidence of a large circle of friends and acquaintances, and seems to be good for many years of active life. His average weight is about 185 pounds.

Charles F. Hurst, foreman of Bird's Mill, Mississippi County, Mo., was born in the Kingdom of Saxony, Germany, in November, 1842. His father, John Hurst, is also a native of Germany, who immigrated to America in 1854, and located in Knoxville, Tenn. His mother died soon after reaching America, in 1854. John Hurst engaged in farming as his chief vocation while in his native land, but also worked at the milling business some. He was also a mechanic. He still resides in Knoxville, but has retired from business. He and wife had six children, all of whom were born in Germany. Four of them are living: Charles F., Jane, Minnie and Augusta. Charles F., being about twelve years of age when his parents removed to America, had received a fair education in Germany. He remained with his father until 1861, when he enlisted in the Confederate army, joining the Third Missouri Cavalry, under Gen. Price, at Springfield, Mo. He participated in the battles of Pea Ridge, Iuka, Corinth, Champion's Hill, Big Black River, and other minor engagements, being captured by Grant's army at the last named place. He was taken to Camp Morton prison, thence to Fort Delaware, and afterward to Point Lookout. After being held as a prisoner for ten months, he was paroled, after which he went to St. Louis, where he engaged in steamboating on the Mississippi River for three years, making St. Louis his home. January 1, 1868, he located in Mississippi County, where he has since resided. He now owns about 500 acres of land, with 200 acres under cultivation. In 1869 he wedded Anna Wells, a native of Tennessee. They have five sons: John C., Charles J., William A., Harry L. and Arthur B. Mr. Hurst is a Mason. He has been in Stephen Bird's employ for twenty years, as foreman of both grist mill and saw and planing mills. He is a notary public, and is serving his second term as justice of the peace.

Joseph H. Jenkinson, deceased, was born in Worcestershire, England, January 23, 1835, and was the son of Samuel and Catherine Jenkinson, both of whom were natives of England. Joseph grew to manhood in Worcestershire, and on March 10, 1863, was married to Elizabeth Law, who was born in 1839, and is a daughter of Joseph and Sarah Law, natives of Shropshire, England, now deceased. Mrs. Jenkinson was young when her parents died, and she afterward resided, until her marriage, with her half-sister in Staffordshire. Mr. Jenkinson was a cabinet-maker, and followed his trade as long as he remained in his native country. On July 31, 1863, he with his family set sail for America, landing at New York City on the 10th of August of the same year. On account of Mrs. Jenkinson's illness they remained in that city two weeks, when they went by rail to Chicago, when they were again detained two weeks for the same reason. From that city they went to Cairo, Ill., where they remained three years. Mr. Jenkinson being engaged in carpentering. He then went to Whistler, near Mobile, Ala., where he was employed in the car shops, finishing passenger cars, for about five years. In the fall of 1869 he came to Southeast Missouri and located on East Prairie, in Mississippi County, where he improved the farm upon which his family now resides. They have a good farm, upon which is a fine residence. Mr. Jenkinson was a very active member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, to which his family also belong. He died September 7, 1884. To Mr. and Mrs. Jenkinson were born six children: Agnes L. (deceased), Katie L., Harry L., and three who died in infancy.

Frank A. Jordan, an enterprising farmer and stock raiser of Wolf Island Township, Mississippi County, was born in Hickman County, Ky., in 1839. His parents, William S. and Julia A. (Caldwell) Jordan, were born and reared in Woodford County, Ky. His maternal great-grandparents were born and reared in Ireland. His grandfather, George Jordan, came to America from England several years before the Revolutionary War, in which he afterward participated. He had a brother on the other side, who was with Cornwallis' army at the time of its surrender. After the war George Jordan located in Culpeper County, Va., having married in that State. About 1791 he removed with his family to Woodford County, Ky. He and wife had three boys and two girls: Thomas G., John J., William S., Martha and Rachel. William S. was married in his native county in 1826, and after residing there two years longer removed to Hickman County, which was afterward his home. However, he died in Anderson County at the age of seventy-six years. He served as high sheriff of Hickman County for four years, and as judge of the court for sixteen years. He was also one of the county commissioners, and a very prominent Royal Arch Mason. His children are George A., Thomas G., William H., John V., Frank A., Eugene B., Edwin, Ophelia C., Mary R. (Mrs. John C. Gray), Martha A., Lenora A. (Mrs. James W. Farris of Pemiscot County, Mo.) and Virginia E. Frank A. came to Southeast Missouri in 1859 to live with his sister, Mrs. Gray, who had come here in 1856. He has since made Mississippi County his home. On April 15, 1861, he enlisted in the army, joining a Kentucky regiment, but was discharged in November of that year, when he enlisted in the Enrolled Missouri Militia and served one year under Capt. Pritchett. After the war he resumed work on the farm, and was married in 1865 to Ann B. Cooley, who was born in Mississippi County, Mo., in 1844. She died in 1877, leaving three children, Frank C., Florence A. and Thomas Q. Mr. Jordan afterward married Nannie R. Young, born on Wolf Island, Ky. She came with her parents, Rev. William K. and Rebecca Young, to Southeast Missouri, when about six weeks old. The family returned to Kentucky in 1854, and remained until 1861, when they came back to Southeast Missouri, where Rev. Young died, April 18, 1863, being the father of but one child—Nannie R. Mrs. Young, however, had been married twice previously. She died in Marion County, Mo., on April 30, 1875, whither she had moved in April, 1865. Mr. Jordan has two children by his last wife: Eugenia T. and Ophelia E. In 1880 Mr. Jordan was elected judge of Mississippi County Court, and held the office four years. He served as deputy sheriff two years, and has been justice of the peace since 1874.

George W. Kenrick, a prominent citizen of Southeast Missouri and an enterprising merchant of Charleston, was born in County Wexford, Ireland, on June 17, 1818. He is one of two children born to the union of William Kenrick and Fannie White, both of whom were natives of the "Emerald Isle." The former was a merchant and farmer in Enniscorthy, Ireland, which business he followed during his life. His first wife (the mother of George W. and Kate) died several years previous to his death, and he had several children by a second marriage. George W. was reared in his native country and learned the carpenter's trade. In 1842 he was united in marriage with Emily Walker, and in the summer of that year took passage at Liverpool for America. After several weeks of ocean voyage he and wife landed at New York, and went from there to Alleghany County, Penn., where he worked at his trade a few months, then engaged in farming, which he continued about two years. He then went to Cincinnati, where he remained a short time and removed to St. Louis, remaining there about one year. In 1844 he removed to what is now Bird's Point, Mississippi Co., Mo., where he resided about one year and went to Pittsburgh, Penn. Soon after he bought a trading boat and engaged in merchandising on the Ohio River, going down the Mississippi below Memphis. He made two trips which took him as many years, after which he located his boat at Cairo, Ill., and was engaged in merchandising along the river three years longer. He then returned to Bird's Point, where he engaged in merchandising and hotel keeping. He also served as postmaster. In 1862 he removed to Charleston, where he has since been in the merchandise business. He has served as postmaster of Charleston, justice of the peace, lieutenant of State militia, city alderman and mayor of the city several terms. He owns the Kenrick Hotel, which was erected in 1877, and which is one of the finest and most commodious in Southeast Missouri. He also owns five brick business buildings and ten frame buildings in Charleston. No man has done more than Mr. Kenrick to build up the city of Charleston, with the interest of which city he has been identified for a number of years. His first wife died in 1850, having reared two children, one of whom (William) is living. In 1851 Mr. Kenrick married Mary Rodney, by whom he has had five children, four of whom are living, viz.: George, Albert, Emma and Annie. Besides Mr. Kenrick's property in Charleston, he owns $8,000 worth in Cairo, Ill., also four large farms. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity and of the I. O. O. F. His son George is the manager of the store at Charleston, and is an intelligent young man of good business qualifications. From 1847 to 1851 Mr. Kenrick was in the merchandise business at Cairo. He owns about $2,500 worth of real estate in Scott County, Mo.

Robert Langsdale was born in Somerset County, Md., January 7, 1842, and is a son of Robert and Eleanor (Behsworth) Langsdale, both natives of Maryland, and of English descent. The grandfather Behsworth served four years in the army in England, after which he came to America, and fought three years in the Revolutionary War. He then immigrated to Maryland, in which State he died. Robert Langsdale was born in 1812, and was reared near Quantico, Md. He owned considerable land, which his slaves cultivated. He also owned three sailing vessels, which ran from Baltimore to Washington, Philadelphia and Charleston, S. C. He followed boating in early life, but after he became owner of those vessels, he had them run by hired help. He was very successful in business, being at the time of his death worth about $30,000. His death occurred in 1857. He and wife were the parents of eight children, viz.: Mary A., Estella, John L., Margaret, Thaddeus, Robert, William T. (deceased) and Laura E. (deceased). Robert was reared on his father's farm, upon which he remained until the beginning of the war, when he enlisted in the Confederate army, joining Company C, Twenty-third Regiment of Maryland, with which he participated in a few skirmishes. Upon returning to his regiment, after a visit home on furlough, he was captured April 4, 1864, and was taken to Baltimore prison, where he was kept two months before he had his trial. Three charges were brought against him: first, as being a rebel spy; second as being a rebel soldier, and in the Federal lines; and third, for running the blockades. He was sentenced to one year's hard labor, at Fort Jefferson, on the coast of Florida. After serving his time at the prison, in which he fared very poorly, he returned home, and engaged to work on a sailing vessel. He afterward bought a third interest in a vessel, and became its master, remaining with it on the sea until 1869, when he, with his wife and two children, removed to Mississippi County, Mo., where he has since resided, engaged in farming. In 1866 he wedded Roxana Brown, a native of Maryland, who died in 1881, having borne four children, viz.: Willie V., George W., Alberta (deceased) and Laura (deceased). Mr. Langsdale afterward married Sallie Black, by whom he had one child (deceased). This wife died in 1888. On August 26, 1886, he was united in marriage with Lu Ella Alexander, a daughter of John and Frances E. (Trice) Alexander. The father was born in Virginia, August 30, 1816, and is a son of William and Elizabeth (Powers) Alexander, of German and English descent, respectively. John Alexander was reared in Christian County, Ky., and is a farmer. In 1845 he removed to Ballard County, where he has since resided, until the last few years. He has been a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church since 1835. He and wife were married on April 15, 1849, and are the parents of eight children, five of whom are living: Sarah A., Lucy F., Mercie E., Ella and William R. His wife died in November, 1865. Mr. and Mrs. Langsdale have one child, Nellie, deceased. He and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a member of the A. O. U. W.

James A. Lee, an enterprising farmer of Mississippi County, was born in Bullitt County, Ky., on March 31, 1839. He is a son of William T. and Dorothea (Lee) Lee, both natives of Bullitt County, Ky. Both the grandfathers, John Lee and Henry Lee, emigrated from Maryland to Kentucky, and settled in Bullitt County, where the former died. The latter remained there several years, and in 1848 removed to Mississippi County, Mo., and settled on a farm in Mathews' Prairie, joining the farm on which James A. now resides, and on which he lived until his death on March 31, 1864. William T. Lee was a farmer, and came with his parents to Mississippi County, when he purchased the old McElmurry farm, on which our subject now resides. He soon had the place under cultivation, with good improvements, and resided there until his death on January 2, 1862. His wife died in October, 1878. They were the parents of eleven children, of whom three are living: Nancy (Mrs. W. H. Snellin), James A. and Rebecca (Mrs. Frank Howell). Those deceased are Margaret, John H., Elizabeth, Susan, Phillip, and an infant unnamed. James A. was but nine years of age when he came with his parents to Mississippi County. In 1861 he enlisted in Capt. Price's Company, First Missouri Cavalry, under Gen. Jeff. Thompson (Confederate). On December 28, 1861, he was captured at his home, by the Second Illinois Cavalry, and was taken to Bird's Point, where he was kept in prison for two months. He was then sent (via St. Louis, where he was kept one week) to Alton, Ill., where he remained two months. After enduring many hardships, and being reduced much in flesh, he was released from prison on parole May 20, 1862, and returned home and resumed farming, assisting his mother in taking care of his younger brothers and sisters, as his father had died while he was in prison. He has been twice married, the first time to Belle Hudson, who died in 1873. He was married the second time, in 1883, to Elizabeth Smith, a native of Mississippi County. Mr. Lee is a member of the Masonic fraternity and L. O. O. F., and is also a Wheeler.

John Lett a substantial farmer near Bertrand, Mississippi County, was born in McNairy County, Tenn., in 1843. He is a son of Ambrose Lett, a native of East Tennessee, born in 1815. The latter was married to Nettie Jane Clayton, who was born in North Carolina, on July 3, 1821, and when a young girl was taken by her parents to Tennessee. They made the journey with teams, and settled in McNairy County. Mr. Ambrose Lett was a very successful farmer, and he brought his wife and children to Southeast Missouri about 1844, and located east of Charleston, where he resided about one year. He then resided at Springfield and Cape Girardeau each one year, when he returned to Mississippi County and located near Bertrand, where he died in 1893, universally beloved and respected. After his death his widow married Henry Fletcher, a native of Henry County, Tenn., who had spent the most of his life in Texas, engaged in farming. Five years after his marriage he went away and has never been heard from since. His wife now resides with the subject of this sketch. She has been a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church for more than thirty years. She and Mr. Lett were the parents of eight children: Mary Jane (deceased), John, Mary Catherine, William, Louisa (widow of Marion Francis), Lucinda (deceased) and Matthew Hubbard. John lived at his father's until 1867, when he married Mary J. Hainely, who was born in Dunklin County, Mo., in 1843. She is the daughter of Thomas Hainely, of German descent. He removed from Dunklin County when Mrs. Lett was about two years of age, and located near Hot Springs, Ark. After residing there one year, he moved back to Dunklin County, and remained about six years, when he removed to Mississippi County. He died at the age of thirty-seven years (in 1857) and his wife when thirty-five years of age (in 1853). Their children are George P., Mary J., Thomas G., Samuel and Elizabeth, all deceased, except Mary J. After his marriage Mr. Lett engaged in farming on the place upon which he now resides. He was engaged in the mercantile business at Sikeston for twenty-six months, but in 1884 he returned to his farm, upon which he has a fine residence, built in that year. He and wife have had nine children, three of whom are living: Thomas L., Albert E. and John R. Those deceased are Mary L., Robert J., Altha J. and Albert J. (twins), Leonard F. and Laura May. Politically Mr. Lett is a Democrat. He is also a Mason and a member of the A. O. U. W.

J. W. Lindsay, dealer in general merchandise at Charleston, was born in St. Louis, March 13, 1842, and is a son of Joseph and Ann (Walker) Lindsay, both of whom were natives of County Kildare, Ireland. The former was a farmer by vocation. In 1840 he left his native country for America, taking passage at Liverpool. After several weeks ocean voyage he landed at New Orleans, from whence he went up the Mississippi River to St. Louis, where he was engaged in business until his death by cholera in 1849. His widow died in St. Louis, in 1875. They had nine children. Those living are Horatio, Eliza J., Emily, Charlotte, Harriet and John W. Those dead are Frederick, Arthur and Joseph. John W. was about seven years of age when his father died. His widowed mother, left with the care of a large family, gave him such education in his native city as she could afford. In 1853 he went to Charleston, Mo., and entered the store of George W. Kenrick, as clerk. Remaining with him until 1862, he enlisted in the famous Camp Jackson Confederate organization. He was taken prisoner at the camp, but was paroled, and in 1863-64 he attended Notre Dame College, at South Bend, Ind., taking a business course. He was then employed as clerk by Mr. Kenrick until 1870, when he engaged in his present business. He now owns the store-building, of which he occupies two rooms, and also owns the two adjoining buildings, a room for agricultural implements, in which he deals extensively, and also in wagons and buggies, etc. He was married in 1872 to Sonora Taylor, of Cape Girardeau, by whom he has four children: John W., Sonora, Thomas and Lucilla. Mrs. Lindsay is a member of the Catholic Church. Mr. Lindsay is a member of the Episcopal Church. He is a Mason and a member of the Blue Lodge and Royal Arch Chapter.

William Love, an enterprising merchant of Bertrand, Mississippi Co., Mo., was born in Caswell County, N. C., on the 22d day of November, 1830. He is a son of John and Martha Love, of Scotch-English descent. The former died in North Carolina, when forty-four years of age, and soon after (in 1846) his widow and children immigrated to Tennessee. The journey being overland required seven weeks. The family resided in Tennessee until the death of their mother, at the age of sixty-seven years. The parents were very prominent and popular people, being consistent members and strong supporters of the Methodist Episcopal Church. They were the parents of thirteen children, ten of whom died in infancy. Nancy (who was the wife of A. Heggie, of Bertrand) was married in North Carolina, quite young. They afterward moved to Tennessee, where they resided until 1873, when they moved to Bertrand. They resided there until his death, which occurred December 25, 1887, at the mature age of seventy-seven years. Nancy raised two children, John and Martha. John lives in Charleston, and Martha lives near Camden, Benton Co., Tenn. Ira died during the Rebellion, leaving a widow and four children. William Love being the youngest of the three, lived with his mother until 1861, when he was drafted into the army. His occupation up to this time was that of an agriculturist. In 1872 he married M. E. Rushing, a daughter of Richard Rushing. He was at this time engaged in general merchandising. The next year he moved to Bertrand, and continued in the same business there. In 1875 his wife died, leaving one child (a boy), Charley. In 1881 he was again married to Mrs. S. E. Williams, a native of Tennessee, with whom he now lives, and has two more children, Ella and Spencer. Soon after his arrival at Bertrand he bought 75 acres of land and now owns about 1,000 acres. Mr. and Mrs. Love are active and prominent citizens of Bertrand, and take an active part in the Methodist Episcopal Church at that place, he being class-leader and superintendent of the Sunday-school.

John F. Lynn, a prominent farmer of Mississippi County, was born in Mascoutah County, Ill., on January 23, 1846, and is a son of Cheatham and Angeline (Linn) Lynn, natives of Tennessee and Kentucky, respectively. The grandparents on both sides were from North Carolina. Cheatham Lynn was born on March 29, 1810, and was the fourth child of a family of fourteen children, of whom Joseph, Benjamin, Bartlett, Andrew J., Samuel H. and Martha are living. Those dead are Young, Craven, Cheatham, John G., Cornelius, Nathaniel, Pitts and Patten. Cheatham Lynn was married in Kentucky, soon after which he removed to Illinois, and was there engaged in farming until 1869, when he removed to Southeast Missouri, and located in the Concord settlement, in Mississippi County, having purchased land there about 1859. Mr. Lynn took an active part in politics and other local matters, being a man of energy, talent and ability. He died on July 16, 1885. His wife was born on January 1, 1822, and died on March 4, 1874. To them were born William P., John F., George D., James M., Jerome, Lusetta B. and a boy and girl, who died in infancy. The first six are now residents of Mississippi County. John F. came to Mississippi County in 1866. Two years previously, March 4, 1864, he married Lusetta Somersett, a native of Tennessee. She died on March 2, 1883. Their children are Stephen D., born on June 22, 1865; Adda A. (Mrs. R. E. Stanley), born January 22, 1867; Mary R., born January 13, 1869; John F., born on April 13, 1871, died on October 29, 1887; Corah A., born on November 20, 1873, died in August, 1878; Cheatham, born on May 9, 1877; Napoleon B., born on December 8, 1878; Emma F., born on January 30, 1880, died in July, 1880; and Lula, born on July 18, 1882, died on March 4, 1893. Mr. Lynn was married the second time to Mrs. Luvisa A. (Warford) Small, who was born on June 5, 1853, and is a daughter of John S. and Emily J. Warford, both of whom are now living in Clinton, Ky. Luvisa A. was married on October 5, 1876, to William E. Small, who died on March 10, 1880, leaving two children: Edith L., born on July 29, 1877, and Edmund W., born on October 22, 1879. To Mr. and Mrs. Lynn have been born Honor, born on April 7, 1885, and Jefferson, born on November 30, 1887. They are also rearing three orphans, children of William T. and Eliza (Lynn) Clari-day. They are Ida B., born on June 23, 1870; Lillie M., born on April 6, 1874; and Edward R., born on February 11, 1880. Mr. Lynn has been justice of the peace since 1874, and has taken an active part in school matters since 1870. Politically he is a Democrat, and is an active member of the Christian Church. Mrs. Lynn is a member of the Missionary Baptist Church. Mr. Lynn is a member of the Knights of the Golden Rule, of the Wheel, and has been a member of the Patrons of Husbandry.

Judge Thomas S. McElmurry, the oldest man living who was born in the territory now embraced in Mississippi County, was born in Mathews' Prairie, two miles from the town of Charleston, on December 27, 1815. He is one of the only two surviving children out of a family of twelve, born to the marriage of Absalom McElmurry and Elizabeth (Gray) McElmurry, both natives of Kentucky, and of Scotch descent. Absalom McElmurry came from his native State in 1806, and became one of the first settlers in Southeast Missouri, this State being then a part of the Territory of Louisiana. He was married, and lived there a few years, when he removed to Little Rock, Ark., but returned to Mississippi County about 1813, and took up some government land. He followed farming all his life, and first lived in a little log cabin with a puncheon floor and clapboard roof and doors. He was the first judge of Mississippi County, being appointed in 1843. He held the office for some time, and died in 1846. His wife died about 1843. Their surviving children are Judge Thomas S. and Absalom. Those deceased are Ellen, Sallie, John, Benjamin, Charles, David, Mary, Elizabeth, Harriet and Andrew. Judge Thomas S. was reared on his father's farm, and, along with the rising generation of those early times, received only the rudiments of a plain English education. He studied at home during his leisure hours, but worked hard to clear the land and render it fit for cultivation. He still owns the farm, upon which he was born and reared. He made farming his principal occupation, until his eighteen slaves were freed during the late war. He has always been a Democrat in politics, and has filled various official positions. He served as county treasurer one term, deputy sheriff for four years, justice of the peace for four years, coroner two years. In 1858 he was elected judge of the county court, which office he held for two terms, and in 1866 he was elected probate judge, and held the office until 1870. He was then engaged in the mercantile business until 1880, since which time he has been practically retired, with the exception of looking after his farming interest. He has been twice married; the first time in 1842, to Hester Harrison, who died in 1844, leaving him one child, Elizabeth, deceased. The second time he was married in 1848, to Nancy J. Kennedy, a resident of Charleston. Five children have been born to this union, viz.: Mary (deceased), Thomas S. (deceased), Margaret (Mrs. William A. Bush), Sallie (Mrs. Joseph Hart), and William (deceased). Judge McElmurry is a Mason, and is one of the most prominent men of Southeast Missouri. He has witnessed its development from a territory to its present wealthy condition, and he has made a host of friends, many of whom have passed away. The Judge has lived in a Territory, Federal government, Confederate government, slave State, free State and three counties, and has lived all the time on the same farm. He is now past seventy-two years of age, and is living in the midst of the comforts provided by his own honorable labor.

Absalom McElmurry, a prominent merchant of Charleston, was born in what is now Mississippi County, Mo., on August 24, 1826. He is the twelfth child of Absalom and Elizabeth (Gray) McElmurry [see sketch of Judge Thomas S. McElmurry]. The subject of this sketch was reared at his father's home, until he was sixteen years of age, when his father died. He was then, for two years, overseer of sixty slaves for Mrs. Harriet Moulisby, of New Madrid, after which he went to Lake Providence, La., where he had charge of about eighty slaves for Mr. James E. Old. Remaining at the latter place about two years, he crossed the lake, and was employed in the same business by John Chambles, who owned 300 negroes. He remained with him a couple of years, during which time he was also engaged in trading horses. Returning to Mississippi County, he was married on August 24, 1853, to Sarah F. Kennedy, also a native of Mississippi County. Since his marriage he has been a resident of Charleston. In 1865 he engaged in the mercantile business, which he continued until 1868, when he sold out and resumed farming, in which he is still engaged, in connection with merchandising, in which business he again entered in 1880. He now carries a full line of general merchandise. He and wife have one child, Henry Scott. Mr. McElmurry has served as city marshal for three years. He is a Mason, and has been a representative in the Grand Lodge a couple of times. He and wife are members of the Baptist Church.

William T. Marshall, ex-judge of Mississippi County Court, was born in La Rue County, Ky., January 14, 1847, and is a son of Thomas and Jane (Rogers) Marshall, both natives of Nelson County, Ky., and of Scotch-Irish descent. The great-grandfather Marshall was born in Ireland, and immigrated to Kentucky at an early day. The grandparents on both sides were born and spent their lives in Kentucky. Thomas Marshall was born in August, 1818, and was married in his native county. In 1850 he immigrated to La Rue County, where he purchased a farm, on which he resided until his death in December, 1886. His first wife, the mother of our subject, died in 1856, having borne him five children: Joseph M., William T., John T., Mary J. (Mrs. A. L. Hawkins) and Elizabeth A. (deceased). He was married the second time to Lavena (Jones) Thurman, by whom he had seven children: Grace E., Robert L., Wesley A., Benjamin W., Hettie F., Rosa and James (deceased). William T. remained with his parents in his native country until about sixteen years of age, and attended the public schools. During the winter of 1862-63, he served in the Confederate army with Gen. Bragg's division, remaining out about three months. He participated in the battle of Perryville. He then went to Putnam County, Ind., and remained with S. F. Gilmore, of Greencastle, for two years, and spent three months near Mattoon, Ill. After an absence of three years, he went back to Hardin County, Ky., and attended two terms of school at Shiloh Academy (known as Wolf's Springs). He spent two years at Sanora Academy, of which time he was assistant under Prof. Charles Matthews, for fifteen months. In 1869 he went to Buchanan County, Mo., where he taught a private school for three months, after which he went to Kansas City, and after waiting three days for a boat, he got aboard, not knowing where he was going. When the boat arrived at Lucas Bend, he landed and remained all night with a man at the Bend. It was June and the mosquitos were very troublesome. He, however, had never heard of this insect before, and when he was shown to his bed, equipped with mosquito bar, he did not put it over him, and the next morning his face looked as though he had the small pox. He was very angry, and that morning walked eighteen miles to Charleston, and having no money, he walked the next morning out to Big Lake, where a relative resided. He remained there three years, having an interest in what is known as the King farm. In 1873 he purchased 160 acres of land, upon which he now resides. The land was timbered and required several years of hard labor to get a clearing. He now owns 1,770 acres of land, of which about 750 acres are under cultivation, with good improvements. In the fall of 1878 he was elected county judge, which office he held two consecutive terms. Prior to his judgeship he served as county school commissioner for three years. He is a Mason, and a member of the I. O. O. F. In 1874 he was united in marriage with Alice Huff, who died in 1879, leaving three children, viz.: William T., Lillie M. and Alvus T. In September, 1881, Judge Marshall was married again, this time to Mrs. Amma Walker, by whom he has three children, Martha P., Herbert and LaRue.

Dr. S. P. Martin, merchant and grain dealer of St. James Township, Mississippi County, was born in Madison County, Ill., in 1837, and is a son of David Martin, a native of Virginia, who immigrated to Kentucky in 1880. He there married Martha Goodwin, a native of Kentucky, and in 1882 removed his family to Madison County, Ill. The Goodwin family immigrated to Kentucky from South Carolina. David Martin was a farmer, and made the trip from Kentucky to Illinois with teams. He resided in the latter State until his death, in 1848, aged fifty-two years. His wife died in her fiftieth year, in 1849. They had eight children: Ann (deceased), John (living in Alhambra, Ill.), Mary (deceased), Martha (Mrs. Dr. Binney, of Staunton, Ill.), Thomas (deceased), Jane (deceased), Dr. Samuel P., and Susan (Mrs. Bell, near Staunton, Ill.). The parents died when Dr. Samuel was twelve years old, after which he lived with his brother, John, for three years, when he went to work for himself. He labored on a farm for $7 a month in gold, some eight years, and later entered school at Wallonia, Trigg Co., Ky., where he remained until enlisting in the Confederate army, in June, 1861. He was wounded October 7, 1863, by a shot through both thighs. After the close of the war he returned to Trigg County, Ky., and there read medicine under Dr. Nat. Gaither, of Cerulian Springs, following merchandising also during this time. Later he moved to Caldwell County, Ky., and lived there four years. Moving to Mississippi County, Mo., he located in St. James Township, and began the practice of medicine. Dr. Martin wedded Mary L. Long, of Marshall County, Tenn., who was born in 1841. To them have been born Lula T. (Mrs. William Hamilton, of East Prairie), Martha J., Albert S. J., Mary G., Luther (deceased), Samuel P., Jr., Josie and Hattie (deceased). Dr. Martin is now engaged in merchandising in East Prairie, and handles $10,000 worth of merchandise, and $20,000 or $30,000 worth of grain per year. He has served as postmaster since 1879. The Doctor and family are members of the Christian Church.

Joseph F. Martin, a prosperous farmer and grain dealer, located at Charleston, Mississippi Co., Mo., was born in Kentucky in 1846. His parents, Andrew L. and Frances (Rice) Martin, were natives of Virginia, who removed to Kentucky while they were young. They came to Southeast Missouri in 1855, and located south of Charleston, in the Concord settlement, where they spent the remainder of their lives. Mr. Martin died in 1856, and Mrs. Martin in 1860. They reared a large family of ten children: Gustave (deceased), Ezekiel H. (deceased), John M. (engaged in saw-milling in Parker County, Tex.), Andrew J. (engaged in merchandising and farming in Jones County, Tex.), Joseph F., Ann A. (deceased), Ellen (deceased), Salenia J. (deceased), Susan V. (Mrs. Miles L. Howlett, of St. Francois County, Mo.) and Louisa V. (deceased). Joseph F. was about nine years of age when his parents came to Southeast Missouri, which has since been his home. Since arriving at mature years he has been engaged in farming, and buying and selling grain. In 1873 he purchased 440 acres of land on Rush's Ridge, Mississippi County, of which land he now has 275 acres, well improved. He was married in 1873 to Florence L. Rush, a daughter of Alfred and Lucinda (Brewer) Rush. Their union has been blessed by two children: Pearle A. and Ivy J., who are now at home, attending school. Mr. and Mrs. Martin are members of the Baptist Church. Mr. Martin takes a deep interest in anything that tends to benefit his county, and especially in the temperance movement.

George W. Martin, the accommodating postmaster of Charleston, and editor of the Enterprise, was born in that city, November 2, 1859. He is a son of William F. and Mary A. (Baynon) Martin, both of whom are natives of London, England. The mother removed to Mississippi County with her parents in 1847, she being but ten years of age. They located in Charleston, and her father was the first justice of the peace in that city, it being but a village of about half a dozen houses at that time. William F. Martin came to Missouri direct from London in 1848. He also settled in Charleston, which city he ever after made his home. He was a printer, and in 1858 took charge of the Charleston Courier, which he ran during the war, and after, being the owner and publisher of the paper at the time of his death in 1873. His widow is still living. They were the parents of six children: George W., Lena A. (wife of F. C. Miller), Robert E. L., John F., Richard V. and Harry. The subject of this sketch was reared at the home of his parents in his native city, and secured a good education in the common schools and by private study at home. He began the printer's trade under the direction of his father, but before a year had passed his father died, and he, being the eldest child, it was left to him to take the father's place. The family was dependent upon him for a living, and by industry and economy he managed to support them, and, taking charge of his younger brothers, he gave them such education as he could afford. Having served an apprenticeship at his trade, in 1875 he established the Charleston Enterprise, and during the years following he has enlarged the paper four times. Mr. Martin was for five years the youngest and most successful editor in the State of Missouri. He can be called a self made man, as he has had but little help in any project he has undertaken. His paper is newsy and spicy, and has a good circulation. In 1886 he was appointed postmaster of Charleston, and re-commissioned on January 16, 1888. Southeast Missouri has but three presidential postoffices, and Mr. Martin holds the first Democratic commissioned office. In 1881 he was married to Anna D., a daughter of Judge N. J. Ogilvie. To them have been born three children: Mona H., Lora E. and Mary Edna. Mr. and Mrs. Martin are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. Mr. Martin is an intelligent, enterprising and a valuable citizen of Charleston. He has held the office of city clerk one term.

Mrs. Fannie M. Millar, widow of Adam Millar, was born in Frederick County, Va., on December 4, 1830, and is the daughter of John and Lucinda (Headley) Kendrick, also natives of Frederick County. John Kendrick was born January 9, 1791, and was the son of Benjamin and Ann Kendrick, natives of the "Old Dominion." He removed to Kentucky in 1833, and there his wife joined him three years later. They resided in Caldwell County until the death of Mrs. Kendrick, which occurred on July 11, 1854. Mr. Kendrick then removed to Tennessee, where he died January 8, 1876. They were married on December 28, 1815, and became the parents of the following children: Sarah A., born on October 21, 1816, and was married January 21, 1843, to Abram Millar, who died January 25, 1888; Mary C., born February 22, 1818; Rebecca E. (who was married May 1, 1860, to Dr. A. E. Mardick), was born September 30, 1821, now living in Charleston; Lucinda H., born on November 7, 1824, and died on August 11, 1845, married J. S. Stevenson, April 21, 1843; Frances S., born on August 5, 1827, and died on September 30, 1829; Fannie M.; and Susan N. S., born on September 19, 1833, was married April 24, 1855, to Franklin S. Millar, who died July 16, 1869. Lucinda Headley was the daughter of William and Sarah (Northern) Headley; the mother (daughter of William and Abigail Northern), was born on July 25, 1753, and died on March 31, 1835, and the father (son of Andrew and Winifred Headley) was born on December 8, 1746, and died on December 26, 1836. They were married December 8, 1776. To them were born the following children: Abigail, born April 18, 1779, married July 13, 1798, and died on November 30, 1834; Sarah, born May 18, 1780, married January 12, 1799; Mary, born on June 2, 1782, married September 23, 1803, and died March 26, 1839; William, born June 10, 1784, married September 11, 1808, and died March 26, 1839; Winifred, born February 16, 1786, married September 21, 1806, and died in 1848; James, born March 30, 1788, married in February, 1809, and died May 5, 1833; Elizabeth, born on October 10, 1792, married September 25, 1807; Rebecca, born on March 10, 1794, married December 5, 1816, and died in 1852; Lucinda, born November 1, 1795, married December 26, 1815, and died on July 11, 1854; Newton, born on January 24, 1798, married June 10, 1823, and died in 1853. The subject of this sketch came to Southeast Missouri in 1858, and was married on November 8, 1879, to Adam Millar, who died on September 2, 1883. He was the son of Abram and Rebecca Millar. Abram was born on June 2, 1770, and was married August 14, 1804. Mrs. Millar was born on February 3, 1784, and died on January 20, 1867. To them were born the following children: Elizabeth, born on September 7, 1805; Isaac, born on March 7, 1807; William, born on April 7, 1809; Adam, born on November 9, 1811; Reynolds, born on June 27, 1814; Abraham, born on November 25, 1816; John, born on March 21, 1819; Rebecca, born May 11, 1822; Michael, born on May 18, 1825, and Franklin, born on January 3, 1830.

John A. Millar, an enterprising farmer and influential citizen of St. James Township, Mississippi Co., Mo., was born near where he now resides, February 12, 1851. He is a son of Abram and Sarah A. (Kendrick) Millar, the former of whom was born in Scioto County, Ohio, in November, 1816, and was the son of Abram Millar, who was born in Virginia, but removed to Ohio when it was a Territory. He reared his family in Ohio. In 1842 he went to Mississippi County, Mo., prospecting for land, which he bought and returned to Ohio. In 1847 he removed his family to Mississippi County, but after residing there a while, he returned to Ohio, in which State he died. His wife was Rebecca Millar, who was born in Virginia. To them were born nine children: Elizabeth, Isaac, William, Adam, Reynolds, Abram, John, Rebecca and Franklin, all deceased except Reynolds, who resides in Muscatine, Iowa, and Rebecca (Mrs. Charles Millar, of Williamsville, Ill.). Abram, the father of the subject of this sketch, remained in his native State until 1843, when he went to Kentucky, where he was married on February 21, of that year. His wife was born in Virginia, October 21, 1816, and is the daughter of John and Lucy (Headley) Kendrick, also natives of Virginia. They removed, in 1836, to Princeton, Ky., where they resided until Mrs. Kendrick's death, after which he removed to Tennessee. They had seven children: Sarah, Catherine (deceased), Rebecca (Mrs. Dr. A. E. Mardick, of Charleston, Mo.); Lucy (deceased), Francis (deceased), Fannie M. (widow of Adam Millar, of St. James' Township) and Susan (widow of Franklin Millar, also of St. James' Township, Mississippi Co., Mo.). Mrs. Sarah Millar resides with her son, John A., and enjoys fair health, having had remarkably good health during her life. After his marriage, Abram Millar came to Mississippi County, where he lived upon a farm until his death, January 25, 1888. To him and wife were born three children: Rebecca (deceased), Lucy (Mrs. Thompson Bird) and John A. The last named remained at his parents' until he was twenty-two years of age, assisting in the work of the farm. On April 15, 1873, he was united in marriage with Anna Kalfus, who was born December 11, 1857, in Charleston, Mo. She is the daughter of Columbus C. and Elizabeth (Forman) Kalfus, both of whom were natives of Kentucky. Mrs. Kalfus was a graduate of the Female Academy, of Bardstown, Ky. In 1854 they came to Southeast Missouri, and, locating in Charleston, they remained there until their deaths. Seven children were born to them: Henry H. (deceased), Anna, Columbus C. (of Clay County, Ark.), Lottie (Mrs. P. Holbrook, of Wichita, Kas.), Robert (deceased), Benjamin (deceased) and Jennie (deceased). Mr. and Mrs. Millar's union has been blessed by the birth of six children, viz.: Gertrude, Lucy, Anna, John Clay, Mabel (deceased) and Albert. Mr. and Mrs. Millar are members of the Christian Church. Mr. Millar is a prosperous man, and has a good farm upon which he has a nice residence, built in 1897. Politically he is a Democrat.

John N. Mitchener was born in Lexington, Tenn., on February 11, 1833. He is the son of Edmund E. Mitchener. The latter was born in Sumner County, East Tenn., in 1804. He removed to Carroll County, and about 1824 married Nancy Nealy, a native of North Carolina, born in 1807. Later he removed to Lexington, Tenn., where he reared his family. He was a Cumberland Presbyterian minister, and a very successful teacher. About 1855 he united with the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and was subsequently engaged in selling Masonic regalia and delivering lectures, in which occupation he died, about 1864. His children were Mary E., Martha A., William B., John N., Wilson L., Cincinnatus C., Marcus E. S. V., James K. Polk, Elizabeth C., Amanda J. and Georgia A. Marcus and James were killed in the Federal army at Fort Pillow. Wilson was killed by some soldiers, and Cincinnatus died in 1881. John remained at home until attaining his majority, when, in January, 1855, he came to Mississippi County, and located in East Prairie. In 1858 he attended school in Kentucky, after which he was engaged in teaching for two or three years. He has since followed agricultural pursuits, and is the owner of 160 acres of good land. He has been twice married. His first wife was Nancy B., a daughter of Isaac and Maria (McDonald) Miller. She died on July 22, 1876, and he was married the second time to Jennie Metheny, a native of Benton County, Tenn., born October 18, 1855. She is the daughter of J. N. and Louisa (Pierce) Metheny, natives of North Carolina and Tennessee, respectively. Both Mr. and Mrs. Mitchener are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He has been superintendent of a Sunday-school for nine years, and during that time, has not failed to attend as many as nine Sundays. He is also a member of the Masonic fraternity.

Elijah W. Ogilvie, a prominent citizen of Charleston, and the present treasurer of Mississippi County, was born in McCracken County, Ky., on May 6, 1831. He is a son of Lemuel and Martha (Winstead) Ogilvie, the former of whom was born on July 29, 1797, in Bedford County, Tenn., and the latter on July 23, 1803, in Williamson County, that State. The grandfather, Kimber T. Ogilvie, was born in Scotland in 1763, and was brought by his parents to North Carolina when he was quite small. He remained in the Old North State until after he was married, when he removed to Bedford County, Tenn., and remained several years, after which he removed to McCracken County, Ky., where he died on November 20, 1842. He was in the Revolutionary War, and participated in the battle of Guilford Courthouse. His wife was born in 1764, and died in December, 1842. They had five children—two sons and three daughters—who grew to maturity. Lemuel Ogilvie immigrated to McCracken County, Ky., in 1831, and purchased a farm. He was a resident of Paducah, Ky., at the time of his death, on March 12, 1857. His wife died November 15, 1863. They were the parents of eleven children: Benjamin F., Elizabeth (deceased), James B., John W., Martha H., Samuel, Andrew J., Maria L., Napoleon J., William H. and Elijah W. The last named was reared in Paducah, Ky., in which city his education was chiefly secured. In 1864 he engaged in agricultural pursuits, and continued until 1874, when he went to Charleston, and began merchandising, which he followed for four years, under the firm name of Ogilvie & Bro. He was then city marshal for four years, after which he was engaged in the mercantile business again, until 1884, as a member of the firm of Ogilvie & Co. After the dissolution of that firm, he continued business alone, until 1886, since which time he has turned his attention to trading, and looking after his stock farms. In 1886 he was appointed to his present office by the Governor. He has held the office of deputy collector from 1874 to 1887, with the exception of three years. He was city councilman for six terms. He has been twice married; the first time in August, 1876, to Emma Overstreet, of Shelbyville, Ky., by whom he had two children. His wife and one of his children, a daughter, died in August, 1879. The other child, Elmer F., is living. He was married the second time in 1880, to Eliza Ford, of Hartford, Ky. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., and is a Democrat. He and wife are members of the Baptist Church.

Rev. James J. Presson was born in Anderson County, N. C., on January 31, 1829, and is a son of Samuel and Anna (Presson) Presson, both of whom were born and reared in North Carolina. The former was born in 1803, and was the son of William Presson, a native of North Carolina, who was the son of Robert Presson, also a native of the Old North State. The last named was a farmer, and had a limited education. He was the father of four boys and two girls, all of whom died in North Carolina, except William, who removed with his family to Tennessee about 1831. He was a very prominent farmer, and was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He died in 1850, aged seventy years. He and his wife had nine children: John, James, Matthew, Samuel, Freeman, Thomas, Susan, Mary and Patsy, all deceased. Patsy died at the home of J. J. Presson. Matthew Presson came to Southeast Missouri in the fall of 1874, and was engaged in farming until his death at the age of seventy-seven years. Samuel removed with his parents to Tennessee, and settled in what is now Benton County, in which he lived, engaged in farming, until his death in 1885. He had been an active member of the Methodist Episcopal Church for sixty years, in which he was a class-leader and steward. To him and wife were born twelve children: Riley A. (deceased), Sarah (deceased), Lydia Ann (deceased), George W. (deceased), Calvin (deceased), Samuel (deceased), Lorenzo (deceased), Neidem W., Rev. James J., Rev. Thomas H., Rev. William M. and Marinda (Mrs. Charles T. Craig). Rev. James J. remained with his father until he reached his majority, and resided in Tennessee until 1873, when he removed to Mississippi County and rented land near Bertrand. In 1875 he removed to the farm on which he now resides, two and three-fourths miles south of Bertrand. On July 23, 1853, he embraced religion, and has since been devoted to the work of saving souls. He was licensed to preach in 1862, and in 1866 was ordained deacon in the Methodist Episcopal Church South, by Bishop Payne, at Jackson, Tenn. He remained in active service in that church until August, 1887, when he united with the Congregational Methodist Church, and has an organization of seventy members near his home. He was united in marriage with Louisa J. Greer, daughter of Benjamin and Susan Greer. To them have been born eleven children, eight of whom are living: Susan A. (Mrs. Robert H. Craig), Needham W., Lousian B., John B., Samuel A. L., Sarah L. (Mrs. J. C. McDoo), Mary J. and Emma Belle. Those deceased are William H., Pritchett and Telitha C. Mrs. Presson is a consistent member of the same church as her husband.

Hiram Price, a well-to-do farmer of Ohio Township, Mississippi Co., Mo., was born near Cincinnati, Ohio, July 23, 1830, and is a son of William and Sarah (Johnson) Price, natives of Virginia and New Jersey, respectively. William Price immigrated to Ohio when young, and located in Hamilton County, near Cincinnati, where he lived for several years. He then removed to Indiana, and died in Spencer County, of that State in 1855. He lost his wife ten years previously (in 1845). They were the parents of a large family of children, of whom the subject of this sketch is the only living member. He was but five years of age when his parents removed to Indiana, and he was there reared to farm life, remaining with his parents until the death of his mother. In 1852 he married Mary Watts, and located in Spencer County, Ind., where he remained until 1867, when he removed to Evansville, Ind., remaining there a couple of years. In 1869 he removed to Kentucky, and resided until 1874, when he went to Mississippi County, Mo., in which he has since resided. He now owns a fine farm of 270 acres, which is well improved. His wife died in 1867, leaving three children: Joseph W., Clara (Mrs. James T. Grant), and Anna (Mrs. D. G. Hartner). In 1868 Mr. Price married Mary E. Price, who died the same year, and in 1869 he married Melissa A. Chamberlain, by whom he has two children, Dolly and Della. Mr. Price is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and also of the I. O. O. F. lodge of Cairo, Ill.

Basil M. Raidt, a well-to-do farmer and stock raiser of Mississippi County, was born in New Madrid County, Mo., in 1858, and is a son of Mathias and Maria Ann (Crow) Raidt. The former was born in Germany, and when about fifteen years of age, came to America with his parents, and located in New Madrid County, Mo., where the parents died. The mother of our subject was born in Kentucky, but was brought by her parents to Monroe County, Mo., in which county she grew to womanhood, after which she removed with her parents to New Madrid County. She still resides in the latter county, at the age of sixty-one years (February 14, 1898). To her and husband were born five children, three of whom are living: Basil M., Lena A. Zilafro and Daniel W., who lives at home with his mother. Those dead are Remigus and Henry C., the latter a twin brother to Daniel W. The father was married twice before this union, and has one child living by each wife, Joseph and Thomas G. Mathias Raidt died when he was forty years of age. Basil M. Raidt remained at the home of his parents until he was twenty-three years of age, that being one year after he married Alice Hancock. She is a daughter of John D. and Mary E. Hancock, both deceased. Her father was killed during the war, and her mother died shortly afterward leaving her and her sister orphans quite young, to be reared by her grandfather Pryor. Mrs. Raidt was born in 1865, and reared near the farm upon which she and her husband now reside, by her grandfather, Blanton Pryor. Her parents had two children, the other one, Aslee, being deceased. To Mr. and Mrs. Raidt four children have been born: Mattie (deceased), Armenia G. (deceased), Correnia A. and Daniel W. (deceased). They also have under their care and protection two orphan children—cousins—G. Harvey Loomis, a boy sixteen years of age, and Lusinda Scott, a girl twelve years of age. Correnia was born in July, 1885. Mr. Raidt and wife are adherents of the Catholic Church.

William N. Randolph, a promising young attorney of Charleston, was born on January 1, 1853, in Henderson County, Ky. He is a son of Malachi F. and Mary (Slaton) Randolph, both natives of Henderson County, Ky. Their parents were from Virginia, and were connected with the old stock of Randolphs and Slatons in the Old Dominion. The paternal grandfather, Nathaniel Randolph, was a pioneer settler of Kentucky, in which State he died. At one time he carried the mail from Louisville west. Malachi Randolph is a farmer by vocation, and is still living in Henderson County, Ky. He and wife have four children living: William N., Slaton, Eugene and Lula (Mrs. George Robertson, of Kentucky). William N. was reared on his father's farm, and had the advantages of a good common-school education. He studied civil engineering and surveying under the civil engineer at Henderson, Ky., about one year, after which he was engaged in farming until the spring of 1878, when he went to Charleston and taught school for two years. He then began the study of law under Col. Messer Ward, now deceased. In 1880 he was admitted to the bar, since which time he has practiced his profession. He is also agent for several insurance companies. On April 14, 1885, he was united in marriage with Effie, daughter of Dr. A. E. Simpson. They have one child, Minnie. Mr. and Mrs. Randolph are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. Politically he is a Democrat, and has held the office of city attorney for one term, justice of the peace for six years, and notary public for eight years.

William H. Reeves, a successful farmer of Ohio Township, Mississippi Co., Mo., was born in Ballard County, Ky., on October 28, 1844. He is a son of Curtis and Eliza (Bryant) Reeves, both of whom were natives of Kentucky. The family were originally from Virginia, but immigrated to Kentucky at an early day. Curtis Reeves was a farmer by vocation, and removed to Mississippi County, Mo., about 1844, and owing to the overflow of that year, became disgusted with the country, and returned to his native State. He died in Wayne County, Mo., in 1845. His widow is still living. They were the parents of two children: Benjamin F. (deceased) and William H. The latter removed to Mississippi County with his mother in 1850, and located at Bird's Point, where they resided for several years. He is a farmer by vocation, and has been a resident of Mississippi County most of his life. He is a member of the I. O. O. F.

Frank B. Rice, a prosperous young merchant of Charleston, Mo., was born in that city, December 15, 1862, and is a son of William A. and Elizabeth (Lusk) Rice, natives of Hannibal and Elizabethtown, Ky., respectively. The great-grandparents on the father's side, came from England and settled in Virginia, where the early generations passed away. The grandfather, William Rice, removed to Kentucky, and lived there at the time of his death. William A. Rice was a physician, and a graduate of the old Louisville Medical College. Removing to Mississippi County, Mo., about 1832, he began practicing his profession in Charleston. Remaining there a few years, he went to Texas, and on account of failing health, was compelled to give up his profession. He taught school the remainder of his life, dying on March 17, 1873. His wife died in 1864. They had eight children, three of whom are living: James W. (a resident of Texas), Lulu (Mrs. L. LaMontague) and Frank B. Those deceased are Edward, Mary, Margaret, William and Lizzie. The subject of this sketch was reared in his native city, in the schools of which he received a good education. His mother dying when he was about eighteen months old, he was left to the care of an aunt (Margaret Myrick), who is still a resident of Charleston. At an early age he engaged as clerk for D. Black, with whom he remained nine years. He then entered into the mercantile business for himself, which he has continued. He also owns the livery stable formerly the property of Bridges & Wilkinson. Mr. Rice is considered a successful business man and an enterprising citizen. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., and of the Encampment; also a member of the Baptist Church.

William T. Roberts, one of the substantial farmers of Mississippi County, was born on the eastern shore of Maryland, in Wicomico County, January 28, 1832. He is a son of Joshua T. and Mary E. (Goddard) Roberts, both of whom were natives of Maryland. The family immigrated to Mississippi County, Mo., in 1868, and settled on a farm one-half mile west of Charleston, upon which the family has since resided. The father died in 1871, but the mother is still living, and resides in Charleston. The were the parents of six children, four of whom are living: Ella, Roxie, Anna and William T. The last named was reared to farm life in his native State, and has made farming his life vocation. He was but sixteen years of age when his parents located in Mississippi County, since which he has been one of its residents. He now owns 360 acres of land, which is handsomely improved. In 1874 he was united in marriage with Mary, a daughter of B. Harris. Seven children have been born to them, six of whom are living: Georgie, Mamie, Emma, William N., Mabel and Herschel. Mr. and Mrs. Roberts are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

William Rodney, one of the pioneer citizens of Mississippi County, was born in Lawrence County, Ark., October 7, 1825, and is a son of John and Rachel (Ramsey) Rodney, of German and French-Irish descent, and natives of Bourbon and Henderson Counties, Ky., respectively. The grandfather, Martin Rodney, emigrated from Germany, and settled in Cape Girardeau County about 1798. He was a farmer by vocation, and entered in that county, 160 acres of government land, upon which he lived a number of years, when he removed to Arkansas, where he was killed in his eighty-fourth year, by a tree falling on him. Andrew Ramsey, the maternal grandfather, was born in England, of Irish parentage. He immigrated to Missouri about 1797, and settled on the Mississippi River at a place now known as Norfolk. He received a grant for 640 arpents, or about 500 acres of land, from the Spanish Government. Mississippi County, at that time, was a dense forest, there being no roads, except Indian paths. He served in the War of 1812, and was wounded in a battle with the Indians, from the effects of which he died in his sixty-sixth year. He had two sons, Andrew and Allen, killed in the same fight. John Rodney immigrated to Mississippi County from Kentucky with his father, about 1811, after which he was a resident of Southeast Missouri until his death, with the exception of five years that he lived in Arkansas. Surveying was his chief vocation, and he served as both State and county surveyor. He divided New Madrid, Scott and Mississippi Counties, after the bill was passed authorizing the formation of Mississippi County. He owned fifty slaves at the time of his death in 1853. His wife died in 1843. They were parents of seven children, Lucielle, Eveline (deceased), Thomas (deceased), William, Mary (deceased), Martin V. and Michael (deceased). William was but four years of age when he removed with his parents to Cape Girardeau County. After remaining there two years, they removed to Scott County. He remained with his parents until he was fourteen years of age, when he began working for himself. He traded in stock, etc., until 1850, when he went to California, and remained about two and one-half years, engaged in mining and trading on pack mules. Returning to Southeast Missouri in 1853, he located on a cane brake in Mississippi County, and began improving the farm upon which he now resides. It has required many years of hard labor to get the place in its present fine condition. He owns 447 acres, of which 200 acres are under cultivation. In 1855 he wedded Martha V. Harris, a native of Missouri, by whom he has three children, Walter F., Ella and Althea, (Mrs. W. A. Horton). Mr. Rodney was reared in the Catholic Church, and is still an adherent of that religion. Politically he was an ardent Democrat. He has held the office of magistrate for six years. The name of Rodney has been famous in Southeast Missouri for three quarters of a century.

George Rolwing, a prosperous young farmer of Mississippi County, Mo., was born in that county on February 18, 1862. He is the son of Henry and Cenia Rolwing, both of whom were natives of Germany. They immigrated to the United States in early life, and settled in Mississippi County, Mo., where they resided until their deaths. To them were born five children, of whom the subject of this sketch is the only survivor. He was reared to farm life, and since arriving at maturity has followed farming as a vocation. With the exception of a few years, he has always resided in his native county. In August, 1885, he was united in marriage with Fannie Brinkman, a daughter of Joseph Brinkman. Mr. Rolwing owns a good farm of 380 acres, a large portion of which is under cultivation, with good improvements. To him and wife have been born one child, an infant. Mr. and Mrs. Rolwing are members of the Catholic Church.

Dr. John M. Rowe was born in Carroll County, Tenn., October 18, 1841, and is a son of Elisha and Narcissus (Rogers) Rowe, the former a native of North Carolina, and the latter of Wilson County, Tenn. The paternal great-grandfather came from England and settled in North Carolina. The great-grandmother Rowe came from France. The paternal grandfather, John Rowe, was born in North Carolina, and was a farmer by vocation. He immigrated to Tennessee at an early day, where he died. Elisha Rowe was also a farmer, and resided in Tennessee until 1888, when he removed to Charleston, Mo., where he died in 1886. His wife died in Tennessee in 1864. They were the parents of ten children, two of whom died in infancy. The others are John M., Mary S., Caroline, George P., Sallie, Fannie, Hilliard J. and Amanda. Dr. John M. remained on the farm in Tennessee until 1862, when he enlisted in the army, joining Company B, Seventh Tennessee Cavalry, under Col. I. R. Hawkins. He was captured at the battle of Union City, and made his escape the first night after, without either hat or shoes, his whereabouts being concealed by his friends. He afterward went to Columbus, Ky., dressed in rebel uniform. In the second year of his service, he began reading medicine, and was mustered out in 1865 as brevet assistant surgeon. Returning home he attended school one year, after which he read medicine one year. He then entered the Jefferson Medical College at Philadelphia, and remained there one session, after which he practiced his profession a short time. In 1868 he entered the medical department of the University of Nashville, graduating in the spring of 1869. He was then engaged in practicing his profession in his native county until 1874, when he located in Charleston, Mo., and resumed his practice, which he has very successfully continued. He is a member of the American Medical Society, to which he was a delegate in 1886. He is also a member of the tri-State, and the Southeast Missouri Medical Societies, and an honorable member of the Western Kentucky Medical Society. He is a Mason, and a member of the Chapter and Council. He was married in October, 1868, to Josephine Jordan, by whom he has three children: Edgar M., Stella M. and Walter S. His wife died in 1875, and he was again married in 1878, choosing for his second wife Julia Russell. Five children have been born to this union, viz.: Lela B., Lura D. (deceased), Carl R., Herbert H. and John M., Jr. The Doctor and Mrs. Rowe are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. In politics he is a Republican.

John Rushing, a highly respected farmer, residing near Bertrand, Mississippi Co., Mo., was born in Camden, Benton Co., Tenn., in 1833, and is a son of R. D. and Olley (McGill) Rushing, both natives of the above-named county. The paternal grandfather was born in North Carolina, and settled near Camden, Tenn., at a very early date. He reared his family there, and died when about seventy years of age. R. D. Rushing died in 1837, leaving a widow and two children, the subject of this sketch, who was then but four years of age, and a younger brother. His widow married James K. Nance, but died soon after, being twenty-five years of age. John and Thomas were then taken by their maternal grandparents, at whose home they grew to maturity. However, the grandfather died when John was but eleven years of age, and the support of his grandmother and younger brother devolved upon him. He worked upon his grandmother's farm until he was eighteen years of age, when he worked for himself in summers, and attended school in winters, until he secured sufficient education to teach school. He was then engaged in teaching for several winters, working during the summers. Later he was elected justice of the peace for his district, and, in 1867, was elected clerk of Benton County. In 1870 he assisted in taking the census, and was then appointed assistant assessor of internal revenue of the Seventh District of Tennessee. After that office and collector of internal revenue were consolidated, he was appointed deputy collector, under Dr. C. W. Hawkins. In February, 1874, he removed to Mississippi County, Mo., and located where he now resides. Mr. Rushing is an ardent Republican, and is very active in politics. In 1878 he was again elected justice of the peace, and in 1880 took the census of Long Prairie Township. He was united in marriage with Marinda Harris, of Arkansas, who was born in 1839. They have had seven children, two of whom are living: Thomas J. and Inez. Louisa Belle died at the age of seventeen. The other four died in infancy. Thomas J. graduated in the St. Louis common schools in 1886, and is now with the United States army at Fort Leavenworth, Kas. Mr. Rushing and family are active members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Alfred J. Rushing, a prominent farmer and stock raiser of Long Prairie Township, Mississippi Co., Mo., was born in Benton County, Tenn., on July 28, 1854, and is a son of Richard and Mehala (Ashcroft) Rushing, natives of Tennessee and North Carolina, respectively. The former was born in 1812, and while young removed with his parents to Benton County, Tenn., they being among the first settlers of that county. The grandfather, Willis Rushing, died there.

Richard Rushing and wife were prominent members in the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, in which he was an elder. He was an enterprising farmer and a highly respected citizen of Benton County, in which he died in 1881. His wife died in 1883, while visiting in Mississippi County, Mo. To them were born nine children, six of whom are living: Thomas, Alfred J., Green H., Mary T. (Mrs. John T. Heggie), Melvina (Mrs. Dr. W. Z. Heggie) and Sophronia (Mrs. John W. Butta). Those deceased are Willis, Richard and Ellen (Mrs. William Love). Alfred J. lived with his parents until he was twenty-four years of age, assisting on the farm and attending school. In November, 1878, he went to Mississippi County, Mo., and was engaged with William Love in the mercantile business for two years, after which he was with H. L. Finley for three years. In the fall of 1883, he removed to the farm on which he now resides. On October 25, 1882, he was united in marriage with Minnie Lee Langston, who was born (in 1863) and reared on the farm that is now her home. She is the daughter of Leonard and Minerva (Barnes) Langston, natives of North Carolina and Tennessee, respectively. The former came to Southeast Missouri when about seventeen years of age, and the latter, with her parents, when two years of age. Leonard Langston died at the age of fifty-six years (in 1880), and his widow now lives with her daughter, Mrs. Rushing. They were the parents of five children, three of whom died in childhood. Charles married Mary E. Grayson, and to them were born three children: Willie, Arthur and Birdie. Charles died on September 1, 1881, and his widow and children now live on his farm. Mr. and Mrs. Rushing have been members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South for seven years, in which he is a steward. He was formerly a member of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, in which he was a ruling elder for seven years. He is also a member of the A. O. U. W. He and wife have two children, Albert and Willie.

David Rusk, a jeweler at Charleston, was born in Ayrshire, Scotland, in 1848, and is a son of John and Johanna (Jones) Rusk, natives of Scotland. The former was a cabinet-maker, which trade he followed the most of his life. His wife died in Scotland, and he afterward immigrated to America in 1851. He located in Maryland, and remained a few years, when he removed to Sparta, Ill., where he died. He was the father of six children. David was but three years of age when his mother died, and he was left with his relatives in Scotland, when his father came to America. He received a liberal education in Ayrshire, and in 1864 took passage on a steamer at Liverpool, for New York, where he landed after a seven days' voyage. He went from there to St. Louis, and from thence to Sparta, Ill., where he finished learning the watchmaker's trade, which he had previously undertaken. He remained in Sparta until 1875, when he came to Charleston and engaged in business on his own account. Although he began on a small scale, he has built up a good trade, and now has a large stock of jewelry, etc. In 1874 he was united in marriage with Nora Knox, a native of Illinois, of German descent. Four children have been born to them: Eddie, Minnie, Maggie and an infant daughter. Mr. and Mrs. Rusk are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. and of the K. of P. In politics he is a Democrat, and has served as city councilman two terms.

Joseph G. Russell (deceased) was born on April 20, 1842, in Scott County, Mo., and was a son of William Russell, a native of Maryland, who removed to Southeast Missouri, and settled in Scott County, where the subject of this sketch was born, and where he (William Russell) died on May 7, 1861. Joseph G. remained in his native county until 1870, when he brought his family to Mississippi County, and located near Bertrand. In 1882 he purchased the farm upon which his family now reside. On February 18, 1866, he was united in marriage with Hannah M. Mansfield, born on November 8, 1845, in Scott County, Mo. She is the daughter of William A. and Martha J. (Joyce) Mansfield, natives of Kentucky and Louisiana, respectively. The former came to Southeast Missouri when he was a small boy. The latter removed with her mother to Cape Girardeau County, when she was six years old, her father having died in Louisiana. They were the parents of eleven children, five of whom are living: William A., Simeon T., Hannah M., Sarah (Mrs. James Donover), and Louisa E. (widow of B. Gilledley, who resides with her mother in Bertrand). Those dead are Thomas, Robert E., Teresa J., John H., William T. and an infant unnamed. Mrs. Mansfield resides on the home place in Bertrand, her husband having died in 1883. To Mr. and Mrs. Russell were born eleven children, viz.: Robert P. (died on November 30, 1884), William C., Joseph T. (died on August 8, 1884), John G., Franklin F., Thomas T., Marvin W. (died on May 18, 1880) Albert G., Oliver G. (deceased) and Claudus and Cora, both of whom died in February, 1884. Mr. Russell died on November 4, 1885. He was a member of the A. F. & A. M., and of the A. O. U. W. He was also a member of the Farmers' and Mechanics' Mutual Aid Association, and he and wife were members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. In politics he was a Democrat. His widow and children reside on the home farm, south of Bertrand, and enjoy the comforts of a good home, which he secured by industry and enterprise. Mr. Russell was a highly respected citizen, and left a host of friends to mourn his death.

James W. Russell, real estate agent and stock dealer, was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., on July 7, 1851, and is a son of Joseph W. and Mary (Frizzell) Russell, the former a native of Georgetown, Ky., and the latter of Cape Girardeau County, Mo. The subject of this sketch was reared in Jackson, Mo., where he secured a good education. He afterward lived in St. Louis several years, and practiced medicine, having previously graduated at the Missouri Medical College. He, however, was not satisfied with the profession he had chosen, and sought other business. Being a man of strong physical ability, he decided to try farming, abandoning his profession entirely. In 1882 he removed to his present farm in Mississippi County, where he has since been engaged in the real estate and stock business. His large farming interests in Mississippi County and vicinity require a great deal of his attention. He deals extensively in stock, buying and selling, and at times making large shipments. In 1879 he was united in marriage with Anna Edwards, which union has been blessed by the birth of two children, Lizzie and Anna. Mr. Russell is a member of the Masonic fraternity. He is an enterprising citizen and one of the most successful business men of Mississippi County.

Hon. Joseph J. Russell, attorney-at-law, was born near Charleston, Mo., on August 23, 1854, and is one of eleven children born to the marriage of Joseph T. Russell and Patience A. Langford. His paternal grandfather, James A. Russell, came to Mississippi County from Maryland about 1836 and died in the county about 1852 or 1853. Joseph T. Russell left his native State in 1853 in company with Judge Noah Handy, and came to Missouri, making the entire journey by wagon. He first located in West Philadelphia, a little town then recently laid out on the banks of the Mississippi River, in Scott County, where, unaware of the treacherous character of the river, he invested all his money in town property. A year or two later his lots were destroyed by the encroachments of the river, and he removed to Mathews' Prairie, where he entered 160 acres of land, and made a home for himself and family. He was a carpenter, and up to 1856 worked at his trade in Charleston and the surrounding country. His last contract was for the building of the court house, which, with many other buildings erected by him, is still standing. In 1856 he retired to his farm, where he spent the remainder of his life in ease and comfort. He died on December 27, 1874. He was twice married, his first wife having died on April 14, 1869. Of his children by the first marriage five are living; Eliza, Abraham O., Joseph J., Julia (Mrs. Dr. John M. Rowe) and John C. Those dead are Ellen, Martha, Laura, Hettie, Sarah and George D. Joseph J. Russell was reared on his father's farm, receiving such education as the district school afforded. At the age of nineteen he exchanged his position as pupil for that of teacher of the home school, but between terms attended the Charleston Academy. In 1875 he entered the law office of Moore & Hatcher, at Charleston, and the following year was admitted to the bar. Subsequently he entered the law department of the State University, and in 1880 graduated from that institution as the valedictorian of his class. Since his admission to the bar, with the exception of the time spent in college, he has been engaged in the practice of his profession at Charleston. Close attention to business, a thorough knowledge of law, and native shrewdness have secured for him a large and lucrative practice, and, although a young man, he is generally recognized as one of the ablest and most successful lawyers of Southeast Missouri. He has also attained considerable prominence in politics, and has filled several official positions. He was school commissioner of Mississippi County for two years, and prosecuting attorney for four years, 1880-84. In 1884 he was a presidential elector on the Democratic ticket, and made an able canvass of his district. In 1886 he was elected to represent Mississippi County in the Legislature, and was unanimously nominated Speaker pro tem by the Democratic caucus, and, of course, elected. Mr. Russell was married at the Southern Hotel, at St. Louis, on July 26, 1884.

Sincerely Yours
J. J. Russell

to Belle Groath, of Cape Girardeau. He owns one of the finest residences in Charleston, and is a director in the Charleston Bank, which he was largely instrumental in organizing.

Joseph R. Shelley, a farmer and stock raiser of Shelley's Ridge, Mississippi Co., Mo., was born in Gibson County, Tenn., in 1837. His parents, Joseph and Susan (Graham) Shelley, were both natives of Middle Tennessee, born in 1801 and 1804 respectively. The settlement of the Graham family in Tennessee dates back to the Revolutionary War, when the great-grandfather removed from New York to that State. Joseph Shelley's parents were from North Carolina. In early life Joseph was engaged in hat manufacturing, but afterward followed farming as a vocation. When of middle age he was a minister in the Baptist Church. In 1851 he removed with his family to Mississippi County, Mo., locating on Shelley's Ridge, where he remained one year, and started with his family to Texas, but upon reaching Alexander, on Red River, he was taken sick. Turning his course back to Mississippi County, he died before he reached home (in 1853). To him and wife were born twelve children, five of whom are living: Isaac D., Thomas C., Martha, Arbelle and Joseph R. Those dead are Maran, Sarah, Ellen, Nancy, John, James and Ellen (named for her older sister who died before her). The mother died in 1878 in Arkansas, while living with her youngest daughter, Arbelle. Joseph R. remained at home, assisting on the farm, until he was twenty-eight years old. His mother went to Arkansas in 1860, and he served in the Confederate army about one year. In 1865 he removed to his present location, and in 1866 married Elizabeth Childers, who was born on September 1, 1846. She is a daughter of Jackson and Martha (Reesor) Childers, natives of Tennessee and Kentucky, respectively. When a young man Mr. Childers went with his parents to Indiana, in which State he grew to manhood, removing from thence to Kentucky. He was married April 15, 1839, and remained in Kentucky about ten years. In 1854 he removed to Southeast Missouri, where he died on February 15, 1877. Mrs. Childers is still living. To them were born Elizabeth, George, Thomas (deceased), Frances (Mrs. Haas Moss), Wilson (deceased), Drucilla (deceased), Reedie (Mrs. Frank Childers) and Parnelia (deceased). Mr. and Mrs. Shelley have no children, but they are rearing three orphans, Eliza, Adar and Thomas, children of Thomas and Rebecca (Thurman) Childers, who died on November 3, 1883, and January 16, 1884, respectively. Mr. and Mrs. Shelley have been members of the Christian Church for fourteen years. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. and of the Agricultural Wheel.

William Sherman was born in Jefferson County, Ky., on March 15, 1826, and is the only survivor of nine children born to the marriage of Charles R. Sherman and Julia A. Porter, both of whom were natives of Maryland. The grandfather, Charles Sherman, was a Methodist minister, and lived in Jefferson County, Ky., at the time of his death. Charles R. Sherman was a turnpike contractor in early life, and built several of the pikes leading out of the city of Louisville, in which city he was a resident for several years. In 1840 he, with his family, took the steamer "Atlanta," but her shaft breaking, they were transferred to the "Georgia," and came up the river to Price's Landing. Arriving on February 29, 1840, he removed his family to Mathews' Prairie, where he located, having previously purchased 300 acres of unimproved land, upon which he had built a good two-story frame house, considered one of the best in this portion of Missouri at that day. He soon had the farm under cultivation. Although the prairie was the most thickly settled portion of this part of the State, the inhabitants were few. Mr. Sherman resided on his farm until his death in the fall of 1843. His widow died in 1866. Four of their children died in Louisville, and four in Mississippi County; one besides William lived to be married—Susan—who was married to Dr. Jesse S. Bledsoe. William was fourteen years of age when his parents removed to Mississippi County, previous to which he had lived in Louisville. After the death of his father, he remained on the farm with his mother until his marriage in 1851, with Sallie, daughter of James Smith, a pioneer of Mississippi County. Upon the death of his wife, in 1860, he removed back with his mother, and remained until her death. He and wife had four children, of whom but one is living: Henry E. Those deceased are Dr. James S., Julia and Susie. From February, 1874, to 1877, he was a resident of Columbia, to which place he removed to educate his children. His two sons graduated at the State University there. Mr. Sherman has made farming and stock raising his life vocation, at which he has been very successful. He is now retired from business, and for several years has been a resident of Charleston. Since 1840 he has been a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Henry E. Sherman was born in Mississippi County, Mo., on June 1, 1853. He graduated from the State University at Columbia in 1877, after which he was engaged in farming on his father's farm, about one mile north of Charleston, for two or three years. On June 12, 1877, he was united in marriage with Lillie V. Runyan, a native of Columbia, Mo. They had one child: William O. (deceased). His wife died in September, 1880. After the death of his wife he was not engaged in any business for about one year, and in 1881 he resumed farming, which he has very successfully continued. He owns 580 acres of good land, and has a nice residence in the city of Charleston, which was erected in 1876. On December 20, 1881, he was united in marriage with Mary F. Ward, a native of Mississippi County, by whom he has three children: Henry E., Jr., Virginia E. and Susie. Mr. and Mrs. Sherman are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. In politics he is a Democrat.

Dr. A. E. Simpson, the oldest practitioner in Mississippi County, was born at Berry's Lick, Butler Co., Ky., on April 27, 1829. His grandfather, Hugh Simpson, was born near Fairfax Court House, Va., in 1760, and was of Scotch descent, his parents having come to America from Scotland. He was with Gen. Francis Marion in the Revolutionary War, at the close of which he was in South Carolina, and was married there to Mary Long. After his marriage he removed to Tennessee, locating near Nashville, where he remained a few years and immigrated to Warren County, Ky., where he died in 1832. He was a prominent man in his time, and was a Whig politically. Isaac Simpson, the father of the subject of this sketch, was a farmer, which occupation he followed during his life. He was born in Kentucky, and was married there to Rachel B. Tygart, also a native of Kentucky. The husband died at his home in that State in 1846, and his widow remained there until 1860, when she removed to Plattsburg, Mo., where she died in 1875. Isaac Simpson was elected a delegate to the General Assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, which met at Lebanon, Iowa, in 1845. They were the parents of nine children, viz.: Julia A. (deceased), Rilda J. (deceased), Dr. Absalom E., John J., Albert W. (killed at the battle of Pea Ridge), Angeline E. (deceased), Emma H. (deceased), Isaac Monroe and Hettie F. (deceased). Dr. A. E. Simpson remained on the farm until he was twenty years of age, attending the country schools of the neighborhood during the fall and winter. Following this, he spent two years at high school under the teaching of one John C. Duke, in Warren County, Ky., and then engaged in teaching school, which occupation he followed a few years, reading medicine in the meantime. In 1853 he entered the office of Dr. J. R. Curd, of Russellville, Ky., and the next year entered the medical department of the University of Louisville, graduating in 1856. He immediately after began practicing his profession at Hartford, Ky., and remained there until the spring of 1858, when he came to Charleston, and continued the practice of medicine. In 1863 he was elected county judge, and served until he was elected to the Legislature the next year. In politics he is a Democrat (was originally a Whig), and at the time of his service in the Legislature there were but thirteen Democratic representatives. He has served as city councilman, and was a school director for sixteen years, and was elected to the position of public administrator of Mississippi County four terms, holding the office sixteen years. In 1869, on account of failing health, he engaged in the mercantile business, which he continued till 1877, when he resumed the practice of his profession. In 1859 he wedded Arabella Lee, who died in 1860, leaving one child: William L. He was married again in 1861, choosing for his second wife Mrs. Rebecca J. (Swank) McFarland, by whom he has six children, viz.: John L., Effie M., Henry L., Anna L., Cora B. and Bertie D. The Doctor is a Mason, and a member of the American Medical Association, also of the Southeast Missouri Medical Association, of which he has served as president.

Charles M. Slack, dealer in furniture, Charleston, was born in Mason County, Va., October 9, 1836. He is a son of Cornelius and Mary (McQuire) Slack, both natives of Virginia, the former of German, and the latter of Irish descent. The Slacks were an old Virginian family. Cornelius was a mechanic by trade, which he followed all his life in connection with farming. In 1838 he, with his family, immigrated to Cape Girardeau County, Mo., coming down the Ohio River on a flat-boat. He died in 1867, and his widow in 1879. They were the parents of eight children, viz.: Susan (deceased), Mary, Charles M., Leander, Jeremiah, Franklin and John. The eldest child died in infancy. Charles M. being but two years of age when his parents emigrated from his native State, was reared in Cape Girardeau County. At the age of eighteen years he began learning the carpenter's and cabinet-maker's trades, which he mastered under the instructions of his father. He was engaged in contracting and building at Cape Girardeau until about 1873, when he engaged in the furniture business, which he continued there until 1882, when he removed to Charleston, and engaged in his present business, at which he has been very successful. In 1860 he was united in marriage with Fidelia Lee, a native of Cape Girardeau. Three children have blessed their union: Everett L., Lillie H. and Arthur. In politics Mr. Slack is a Democrat, to which party his father also belonged. He is a member of the A. O. U. W., and he and wife are members of the Baptist Church.

William R. Slack was born in Hardin County, Ky., June 15, 1853, and is a son of Silas and Victoria (Cole) Slack, both of whom were natives of Hardin County, Ky. The two grandfathers, Randy Slack and William Cole, were Virginians, who settled in Kentucky at an early day, and resided there until their deaths. Silas Slack was reared in his native State. In 1857 he loaded his family and all his effects on a flat-boat, and came down the Ohio River to Missouri, landing at Wolf Island in March. He purchased land and made a settlement in Wolf Island Township, Mississippi County, where he resided until February, 1863, when the overflow of the Mississippi destroyed his property, and he removed to the farm upon which William R. now lives. A few years later he purchased the farm, and resided there until his death on February 27, 1877. His wife died on February 15, 1880. They were the parents of seven children, three of whom are living: Cora (Mrs. John Hobbs, of Kentucky), William R. and Loyd F. The ones deceased are Silas, John, Emma and Melissa. William R. was but three years of age when his parents removed to Missouri. He has been engaged in farming all his life, and remained with his parents until their deaths. He now owns 352 acres of land, all of which is under cultivation. On March 17, 1885, he was united in marriage with Hannah, a daughter of Lowry and Mary A. (Stout) Hay. Mr. and Mrs. Slack have two children: Amy and Arthur, the later of whom is deceased. Mr. Slack is an enterprising and intelligent young man, and so far has been very successful in business.

Loyd F. Slack, a prosperous young farmer of Mississippi County, Mo., was born in that county on January 20, 1862. He is a son of Silas and Victoria (Cole) Slack [see William R. Slack's sketch]. Loyd F. was reared on his father's farm, and has always followed farming as a vocation. In 1881 he purchased the farm upon which he now resides, consisting of 120 acres of good land. He located on the farm the next year after his purchase. In 1885 he was united in marriage with Mollie Hendricks, a native of Kentucky. Two children have blessed their union: George O. and Willie. Mrs. Slack is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

James Smith, one of the pioneers and prominent citizens of Mississippi County, was born on April 2, 1808, in Hardin County, Ky., and is a son of Washington and Hannah (McWilliams) Smith, both natives of Virginia. The Smith family came from England, and made a settlement in Virginia. The grandfather, James Smith, was a farmer and immigrated to Kentucky. He died in Hardin County, that State. The maternal grandparents came from Scotland, and also settled in Virginia. Washington Smith and his wife both died in Hardin County. They had five children, three of whom are living: James, David and George. Two daughters are deceased. James was reared on the farm in Kentucky, remaining with his parents until 1836, when he immigrated to Mississippi County, coming down the Ohio River in a flat-boat, on which he brought his stock, wagons, etc. Landing at Norfolk, December 28, 1836, he went to Mathews' Prairie, where he entered 240 acres of land, upon which he erected a hewed log cabin with a wood and mud chimney, and a clapboard roof, in which he lived for several years, until he could make better improvements. He has been a resident of this section for fifty-one years, and has witnessed its development from a wild wilderness to its present wealthy state. He has been a resident of Charleston since 1883. Farming has been his life vocation, and he now owns 540 acres of land, but he has been retired, since moving to Charleston. Although in his eightieth year, he is bright and active, and possesses a wonderful memory. In 1832 he married Elizabeth Swank, a native of Kentucky, by whom he had six children, three living: Silas S., James W. and Elizabeth A. (Mrs. Dr. Bridwell). His wife died in 1845, and he was united in marriage in 1849 with Elizabeth A. Moore, a native of Scott County. Mr. Smith has been a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South since 1833.

Isaac N. Smith was born on May 21, 1837, in Meade County, Ky., and is a son of John and Jane (Peak) Smith, both of whom were natives of Kentucky, and were of English and Irish descent, respectively. The paternal grandfather, Robert Smith, was a Virginian by birth, but immigrated to Kentucky at an early day, and from thence to Spencer County, Ind., where he resided until his death, about 1810. John Smith was born in 1806, and was about eighteen years of age when his parents removed to Spencer County, Ind. He remained with his parents until his marriage, when he removed to Meade County, Ky. Remaining there until 1855, he immigrated to Missouri, and in 1858 located in Mississippi County, where he had previously purchased a farm. He remained there until his death in February, 1866. His wife died in 1879. They reared two children, Isaac N., and Lydia (Mrs. N. M. Griggs). Isaac N., being eighteen years of age when his parents removed to Missouri, was reared in his native county, and received a good common school education. He remained with his parents until the Civil War broke out and troops were called, when he enlisted in Company E, Sixth Missouri Cavalry, Confederate States army, with which he participated in all the campaigns west of the Mississippi River. He was wounded at Jackson's Run during Price's last raid, receiving four pistol shots, which took effect in the right leg, breaking the bone. He was left at Fredericktown, at the residence of Alex. Nilong, and there fell into the enemy's hands, but he was so badly wounded and bleeding, that they left him for dead in November, 1864. He was afterward paroled, and returned home and resumed farming. In 1875 he removed to Cairo and engaged in the grain and commission business, and continued under the firm name of Cunningham & Smith, until 1881, when he engaged in railroad contracting. He finished a $10,000 contract on the St. Louis & Cairo Narrow Gauge Road, and a large contract on the Kansas City, Springfield & Memphis Railroad, the first under the firm name of I. N. Smith & Co., the last, of Bethune & Smith. In 1883 he resumed the grain business, in which he is still engaged, having removed to Charleston, Mo., in 1887. He also deals extensively in fine stock, and manages his farming interest. He owns about 1,500 acres of land in Mississippi County. In April, 1865 he was united in marriage with Louisa E. Rush, a native of Mississippi County. Seven children have been born to their marriage, viz.: John A. (deceased), Emma B., Edmund K., Effie W., Isaac N., Jr., Claude M. and Mary A. Mr. and Mrs. Smith are members of the Baptist Church. He is a member of the K. of H., and in politics is a Democrat.

John W. Smith, a merchant at Bird's Point, was born in Paducah, Ky., on May 23, 1848, and is a son of William A. and Mary R. (Smith) Smith, the former a native of Lincoln County, Tenn., and the latter of Prince William County, Va. William A. Smith removed to McCracken County, Ky., in 1831, and remained a few years, until November, 1853, when he removed to Massac County, Ill., and located on a farm, after which he engaged in farming and timber contracting. The subject of this sketch remained on the farm with his parents until he was twenty-seven years of age, when he married, and was engaged in farming in Massac County, Ill., until 1879. He then removed to Kentucky, and remained until 1881. He removed to East Prairie, Mo., and remained there till 1883, then moved to Bird's Point, where he engaged in the saloon business until February, 1888. He was employed on the Texas, Arkansas & St. Louis Railroad for some time, but is now engaged in the mercantile business, carrying a large stock of groceries and drugs. On October 11, 1876, he married Mary J. Stratton, who died on September 14, 1878, leaving one child, William F. He married again in 1885, choosing for his wife Martha N. Strader, by whom he has two children: Mary E. (deceased) and Jennie C. Mr. Smith is a member of the I. O. O. F.

James B. Smith, a member of the firm of Smith & Beckwith, general merchants at Bird's Point, Mississippi Co., Mo., was born in Massac County, Ill., March 4, 1837. He is a son of William A. and Mary R. (Smith) Smith, the former of whom was a native of Tennessee, and the latter of Virginia. They immigrated to Illinois about November, 1853, and made a settlement in Massac County. Mr. Smith purchased a farm near Pellonia, upon which he resided until his death. His wife died in 1879. To them were born five children, three of whom are living: John W., Miranda C. (Mrs. W. G. Swinney) and James B. The last named remained with his parents until he was twenty-one years of age, assisting them on the farm. He then worked for himself as a farm laborer for a couple of years. In 1879 he went to East Prairie, Mo., and worked as a farm hand a part of two years, with John A. Miller, and then entered a store as clerk at Bird's Point. In December, 1883, he engaged in the mercantile business at Bird's Point, with Underwood Beckwith, with whom he has since continued in business. They were in the grocery business until February, 1888, when they sold their stock, and now carry a general line of dry-goods, boots and shoes and general notions. On December 31, 1882, he was united in marriage with Laura Wyndland, by whom he has one child deceased, and one living. In the fall of 1883 Mr. Smith was commissioned postmaster at Bird's Point, which position he still holds.

Dr. Hartwell Stratton, justice of the peace, Charleston, Mo., was born in Cumberland County, Va., February 16, 1825. His parents, Robert and Mary (Adams) Stratton, were natives of Virginia. Robert Stratton's parents removed from England to Virginia in early life, and remained there until their deaths. Robert was a farmer and planter by vocation, and lived and died in Cumberland County, Va. He served as an officer in the War of 1812. His death occurred in 1859. His wife died in 1838, having borne him three children, one of whom, Hartwell, is living. Those deceased are William (a member of the firm of Stratton & Bird, wholesale grocers of Cairo, Ill.), and Pamela M. Jackson, the mother of the Messrs. Jackson Bros., commission merchants, Cairo, Ill.). Mrs. Jackson died in 1876. William died in January, 1888. The subject of this sketch was reared on a farm and remained with his father until he was twenty-one years of age, spending most of his time in school. He attended the Richmond College, also Emory and Henry College. In 1847 he went to Middle Tennessee and engaged in the mercantile business, which he continued for several years, when he began reading medicine, attending two courses of lectures at the Nashville University. In 1860 he entered the Missouri Medical College at St. Louis, graduating in the spring of 1861. Soon after he removed to Norfolk, Mississippi Co., Mo., and remained a short time practicing his profession, after which he removed to Charleston, and engaged in the mercantile business, in partnership with J. H. Bethune and William F. Rodney, of Cape Girardeau. They remained in business several years, when Dr. Stratton sold his interest, and engaged in the drug business in Charleston, in partnership with Dr. T. L. Petrie, and, subsequently, with Thomas Byrd of Charleston. After remaining in the drug business a few years, Dr. Stratton sold out, purchased a farm near Charleston, and engaged in agricultural pursuits, which he continued until a few months ago (1887), when he sold his farm and is now practically retired from business. He was elected to his present office in 1886. He was first married in 1849 to M. A. Kinby, of Tennessee, by whom he had six children, two of whom, only, are living: Mary (Mrs. E. W. Thompson) and William T. G., both of Mississippi County. She died in 1859. He was married again in 1865 to Eliza M. Randal, a native of Cape Girardeau County, by whom he had three children, two of whom, Aura L. and Lindsay M., are living, and the other, Frank M., died at the age of eighteen years; their mother died in 1876. Dr. Stratton is a prominent citizen of Charleston and is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Newton T. Strickland, an enterprising farmer of Mississippi County, was born in Benton County, Tenn., in 1852, and is a son of Noah and Jane (Cowell) Strickland, both of whom were born and reared in Tennessee. Noah Strickland was born in 1816, and was a farmer, owning 500 acres of land. He was a highly respected citizen, and a member of the A. F. & A. M. His wife was born in 1819, and died in 1860. They had twelve children, of whom Joseph E., Charles H. and Susan G. (Mrs. John Allen) are deceased. Those living are Sarah (Mrs. W. C. Jernigan, of Carroll County, Tenn.), Nancy J. (Mrs. Ashley Bivens, of Benton County, Tenn.), William (of Wilson County, Tenn.), John C. (of Bertrand, Mo.), Cora G. (Mrs. Jacob Sullivan, of Williston, Tenn.), Thomas, Martha A., Louisa M. (widow of Richard Thompson) and Newton T. After the death of our subject's mother, Mr. Strickland married Elizabeth Davidson, who now lives in Long Prairie Township, with two of her daughters, her husband having died in 1879. Newton T. remained at his father's until he was twenty-five years of age. In November, 1877, he was united in marriage with Sophronia I. Thompson, a native of Benton County, Tenn., born on August 17, 1855,

She is a daughter of Albert and Amanda (Jarrell) Thompson, natives of Tennessee and North Carolina, respectively, who were married on August 17, 1854. The former was a son of William and Peninah (Holland) Thompson, natives of North Carolina, who early immigrated to Tennessee. They had twelve children, five of whom are living: Willis, David, Mary Ann, Rhoda (Beasley) and Jerry. Those dead are Benjamin, Lemuel, William, Charles, Albert, Dollie (Higden) and Eliza (Gossett). The father of these children died in 1848, and his widow was married to John Horn, a Baptist minister, who died about eleven months after his marriage. Mrs. Horn is now living in Benton County, Tenn., and is ninety years of age. She enjoys good health, except that she is now almost blind. She has been very active and energetic, and has ever been a good, kind mother, and a devoted Christian, beloved by all who knew her. She is a member of the Primitive Baptist Church. Amanda Jarrell was the daughter of Richard and Elizabeth (Stires) Jarrell, also natives of North Carolina, who came to Tennessee at an early day. Richard was a highly respected man, and an accomplished school-teacher. He died about 1843, and his widow followed about 1861. They had eleven children, of whom nine are deceased: Lucinda, Missouri, Calvin, Franklin, Amanda, Nancy Ann, Queene, Thomas and Susan. Those living are Daniel and Lafayette, both of whom live in Texas. Mr. and Mrs. Strickland came to Southeast Missouri in January, 1881, and located on their present farm. They are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He is a member of the A. F. & A. M. and of the A. O. U. W. To them three children have been born as follows: Albert N., November 13, 1878; Emma E., April 12, 1881; and Eulah G., August 9, 1884.

William B. Swank, a prosperous farmer of Mississippi County, was born on the farm upon which he now resides, February 18, 1853, and is a son of Silas and Frances (Thompson) Swank, the former a native of Hardin County, Ky., and the latter of Cape Girardeau County, Mo. The paternal great-grandparents came to America from Germany. Jacob Swank, the grandfather, served in the War of 1812. In 1835 he immigrated to Mississippi County, and made a settlement on Mathews' Prairie, where he remained until his death. Silas Swank was but fifteen years of age when he came with his parents to Mississippi County. In 1843 he removed to the farm upon which William B. now resides, and was making his second crop, when the overflow of 1844 swept everything away. He resided on that farm until his death in August, 1886. His wife died in 1857. They had four children: James S., Mary, William B. and Elizabeth. William B. has spent his life on his present farm, which consists of 320 acres of well improved land, which is mostly under cultivation. In 1879 he was united in marriage with Frances Remmek, a native of Alexander County, Ill. Three children have blessed their union: Willie M., Silas, and Mary (deceased). Mr. and Mrs. Swank are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

S. G. Tetwiler, the editor and publisher of The Democrat, Charleston, Mo., was born April 29, 1861, in Ironton, Iron Co., Mo., in the beautiful Arcadia Valley. He is a descendant from an old and honorable German family, his forefathers, three generations ago, having settled in Bedford County, Penn., from which his parents immigrated to Missouri some forty years ago. The subject of this sketch received a very limited education in the public schools of Ironton. His inclinations were all toward the printing business, but another brother of the same bent of mind preceding him in Ironton's one printing office, that of the Iron County Register, owned by an uncle, Eli B. Ake, S. G. Tetwiler accepted a situation as drug clerk, and for the greater part of six years, or until he was of age, followed that profession, holding as a result a certificate of registration, under the State laws, entitling him to follow pharmacy as a profession. In 1881 he was married to Miss Lutie C. Mills, a young lady whose parents died in her infancy. Following this event Mr. Tetwiler left his old home for Colorado, but the climate not proving agreeable to the health of his wife, within a short period he found himself in the "Future Great" of "Poor Old Missouri," where for several months he improved his opportunities for becoming initiated in the mysteries of the "art preservative." His first newspaper venture was the Bonne Terre Reporter, and its success was of such questionable nature that the outfit was disposed of as soon as a purchaser for it could be found. Three years later he assumed duty as local editor of the Poplar Bluff Enquirer, but after this venture had succumbed to the inevitable, he transferred himself to his present location, where he first assumed duty as editor and manager, and afterward purchased The Democrat, a newspaper which has been accorded probably more praise for ability and neatness than any other journal of its age in the State.

William K. Thompson was born in Salem County, N. J., in 1846, and is one of three children born to William and Lydia Thompson, also natives of New Jersey. The father was a plasterer by trade, and he and wife resided in their native State until their deaths, both of which occurred during the Civil War. Their other children are George and Amy, both of whom now reside in New Jersey. William K. was reared at his father's home, which he left in the fall of 1864 to enlist in the United States army. He joined the Thirty-eighth New Jersey Volunteer Infantry, and was mustered out of service in July, 1865. He soon after went to Philadelphia, and engaged in boating and trading. He coasted on a steamer to Boston and Providence, after which he made a trip from Baltimore to New Orleans. At the latter city he obtained work on the levee. He went from thence to Mount Pleasant, Tex., and was for awhile engaged in carpentering. After visiting other towns in Texas, he returned to New Orleans, and resumed work on the government levee. In 1872 he came to Southeast Missouri, and located in Wolf Island Township, Mississippi County, where he has since been engaged in farming. In November, 1874, he was united in marriage with Mrs. Catherine Bratcher, who was born in Mississippi County, Mo., in 1850. She is one of two daughters born to Amos M. and Eveline Bratcher, natives of Kentucky, who, when they were young, came to Southeast Missouri with their parents, soon after the Beckwith family located there. Their other daughter is Mary A. (Mrs. John Gossett), of Scott County, Mo. Mr. Bratcher died on December 4, 1867, aged about sixty-eight years. Mrs. Bratcher died in her fifty-first year (in 1870). Mrs. Thompson first married a cousin, Mark L. Bratcher, who died on March 27, 1872, leaving three children: Amos M., Margaret E. and Sarah M. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson's marriage has been blessed by the birth of one child, Minnie E.

Elbert W. Thompson, an intelligent and enterprising farmer of Mississippi County, Mo., was born in that county in what is known as Texas Bend, October 2, 1849. He is a son of Harrison S. and Hannah A. (Sheppard) Thompson, natives of Cape Girardeau County and Charleston, Mo., respectively. The grandfather, John Thompson, was a native of Kentucky, and early settled in Cape Girardeau County, where he died. Harrison S. Thompson was born November 13, 1813. In 1837 he immigrated to Mississippi County, and located where Elbert W. now resides. He entered a large tract of land, which he added to from time to time, and at the time of his death owned over 5,000 acres. He was one of the first settlers of what is known as Thompson's Bend, which at that time was heavily timbered. He lived a bachelor about two years. On February 28, 1840, he married Elizabeth S. Goode, who resided near Charleston, Mo. To them were born two children, John W. and Elizabeth S. His wife died August 8, 1843. Elizabeth S. (an infant) died August 17, 1843. John W. died February 9, 1861. On July 16, 1846, H. S. Thompson was married to Hannah A. Sheppard, who resided at Charleston, Mo., and was born at that place March 12, 1827. To them were born nine children, three of whom are living: Elbert W., Martha A. (Mrs. Alex B. Rouse) and Laura W. D. Those deceased are Mary J., who was born February 11, 1848, and died September 4, 1851; Cyrus N., born March 25, 1851, and died October 12, 1868; James H., born November 17, 1853, died September 6, 1856; Americus J., born January 21, 1856, and died October 15, 1861; Mary J. (second), born August 1, 1858, and died December 1, 1860; Elizabeth H., born October 4, 1862, and died December 27, 1864; Martha A., born February 19, 1864; Laura W. D., born September 16, 1866. Harrison S. Thompson, at the beginning of the war, had about 600 acres of land in cultivation, with good improvements, and forty-five slaves. He lost a considerable amount of property by both armies. He died November 4, 1867. On November 5, 1869, his wife, Hannah A., married John Harness. She died March 10, 1886. Elbert W. was reared to farm life, and remained with his father until the latter's death. On April 16, 1874, he married Mary J., daughter of Dr. Hartwell and Mary A. Stratton, of Jackson County, Tenn. Mrs. Stratton died in January, 1862. Dr. H. Stratton afterward moved to Charleston, Mo., where he now lives. To Elbert W. and Mary J. Thompson were born eight children: Bertie E. was born July 13, 1875; Lena P. was born September 16, 1877, died December 30, 1877; Hartwell S. was born January 19, 1879, died February 5, 1884; William C. was born September 22, 1880, died October 3, 1880; Frank M. was born August 30, 1883; Claude E. was born August 27, 1884; Hannah M. was born September 23, 1886; infant, unnamed, born April 25, 1888. Elbert W. has always made Thompson's Bend his home, and now has about 2,000 acres of land, with about 800 in cultivation, and good improvements.

John B. Thurman, a farmer of St. James Township, Mississippi County, was born in that county in 1861. His parents, Hiram and Elizabeth (Reed) Thurman, were natives of Kentucky, the former born on March 29, 1832, and the latter on April 4, 1837. They were married April 13, 1853, after which they removed to Southeast Missouri, where they were engaged in farming until their deaths. The wife died December 26, 1880, having borne four children: Dennie (who died in childhood), Catherine (Mrs. Anthony Geltz, of Tywappity Township, Mississippi County), John B. and Georgia Alice. Mr. Thurman was married again, choosing for his second wife Nancy Rhodes, by whom he had one child, Elmore, who now lives with his sister, Mrs. Geltz. His mother died in December, 1885. Mr. Thurman died on September 8, 1885. John B. remained with his parents until he was twenty-two years of age, after which he was engaged in farming with his sister. In 1884 he was united in marriage with Sarah Hargan, who was born in Hardin County, Ky., and is a daughter of Franklin and Easter (Childers) Hargan, both also natives of Hardin County, Ky. They removed to Southeast Missouri in 1882, and located in Texas Bend, where they still reside. Their children are Ida R., Joseph, Mary, Sarah, William, Stephen, Rosa B. (deceased), Benjamin J., Laura F. (deceased) and Thomas M. In the year of his marriage Mr. Thurman located upon his present farm, consisting of eighty acres, which he has since improved very much. To him and wife have been born two daughters: Lottie and Lillie. Mr. and Mrs. Thurman are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. His parents were also members of the same church.

Dr. Jackson L. Travis (deceased) was born in North Carolina, November 6, 1824, and at the age of five years removed with his parents to Tennessee, where he grew to manhood, and studied medicine under the direction of an uncle. In 1853 he came to Southeast Missouri, and located in Lucas Bend. Dr. Travis, with a single exception, was the oldest practitioner in Mississippi County. He was a good and useful neighbor, and a kind friend. He died at his home, near Bratcher's Lake, on Tuesday, January 18, 1881. He was first married on October 19, 1858, to Martha J. Hicks, who was born on June 9, 1835. By this union were born four children: Jackson (who died on January 4, 1879, aged twenty-two years, two months and four days); Leulla (born December 11, 1858, died on February 9, 1875); the other two, Mary J. and Martha I., died in infancy. Their mother died on February 19, 1866. Dr. Travis was married, on November 19, 1866, to Lucy H. Beckwith, born on April 17, 1843. She is the daughter of Marmaduke and Susan (Griffitt) Beckwith, both now deceased. Mr. Beckwith came to Southeast Missouri in 1812, and was one of the prominent men of his day. He had two children by his marriage with Susan Griffitt: Underwood and Lucy H. Mrs. Beckwith died when the latter was three weeks old. Mr. Beckwith afterward married Mrs. Catherine Price, a daughter of Abram Hunter, one of the pioneer settlers of Southeast Missouri. By this marriage were born Amanda (Medley) of Arcadia, Mo., Anna (Mrs. Henry Pease, of St. Francois County, Mo., and four who are dead: Richard, Newman, Thomas and Yancy. Mr. Beckwith died in March, 1881. Dr. Travis had six children by his marriage with Lucy H. Beckwith: Lucien (born September 10, 1867); Lucy (born on June 23, 1869); Luella (born on September 13, 1871); Ada (born on January 1, 1875); Anna (died in infancy) and Jackson L. Robert W. Turley, a farmer of James Bayou Township, Mississippi Co., Mo., was born in Ste. Genevieve County, Mo., and is a son of William H. Turley, who was born and reared in Washington County, Mo. The latter married Martha Miller, a native of Indiana, whose parents came to Missouri when she was a child. They located in St. Francois County. Mrs. Turley has one brother, W. S. Miller, now living in Farmington, St. Francois County, engaged in carpentering. Mr. Turley was a farmer. He died in Missouri in 1879, his wife having died two years previously, in 1877. They were the parents of thirteen children: Oliver C. (of Ste. Genevieve County, Mo.), Elbridge C. (of Tate County, Miss.), Robert W., James R. (of Tate County, Miss.), Nathan (of Ste. Genevieve County, Mo.), Mary A. (Mrs. John Ellett, of Tate County, Miss.), Louis G. (of Tate County, Miss.), George S. (also of that county), Luther M. (deceased), Margaret A. (deceased), Didamia (deceased) and two that died in infancy. Robert W. remained on the home farm, assisting with the work, until he was twenty-eight years of age. He received a liberal education in the common schools. He came to Mississippi County in October, 1882, and located near where he now resides, purchasing his present farm of 130 acres, in 1886. In 1881 he was united in marriage with Eliza Burgess, a native of Saline County, Ohio. She died in 1884, leaving one child, Carroll B. Mr. Turley afterward married Mahala Cunningham, a native of St. Francois County, Mo. She is a daughter of Burl and Mary Cunningham. By this union he has one child, Alma Alice. Mr. and Mrs. Turley belong to the Missionary Baptist Church. He is a member of the K. of H.

Frederick A. Vogley, proprietor of the Vogley Saw Mills, located on the St. Louis, Arkansas & Texas Railroad, two and one-half miles from Hibbard, Mo., was born in Switzerland in 1851. He is one of seven children born to the union of Christian Vogley and Susannah Von Neiderhausen. The parents removed to America when the subject of this sketch was about three years of age. Landing at New Orleans Mr. Vogley removed his family to Louisville, Ky. He was a tailor, and worked at his trade in that city until about 1859, when he removed to New Philadelphia, Ohio, remaining until the spring of 1892, when he came to Southeast Missouri. He located in St. James Township, Mississippi County, where he died in June after his arrival. To them were born Frederick A., Alice E., Christian, Samuel, Caroline (Mrs. Lee Grim, of New Philadelphia, Ohio), William A. and Sophia M. (Mrs. George W. Foust). Sophia's husband resides near Mr. Vogley's mill, and she is his bookkeeper. William A. is a graduate of the National Normal University at Lebanon, Ohio, and is now principal of the school of Dadeville, Ala. After Mr. Vogley's death Mrs. Vogley moved back to Ohio, and was married to William Weal, of Welsh descent. Frederick A. came to Southeast Missouri in 1879, and engaged in farming in St. James Township. In 1886 he erected the mills before mentioned, in which he employs fifteen men. He owns about 800 acres of land, with 100 acres under cultivation. He married Malinda Harney, who was born at Blake's Mills, Ohio. Her parents were born in Switzerland. Mr. and Mrs. Vogley have two children: Naoma (born on January 26, 1872) and Viola May (born on September 21, 1886). They are rearing a boy, Peter Moran, whose father died in the hospital at Memphis, Tenn. Mr. and Mrs. Vogley are members of the German Baptist Church.

Robert Vowels, a farmer of Mississippi County, was born in Nelson County, Ky., November 24, 1841. His parents, Henry and Elizabeth J. (Ice) Vowels, were both natives of Kentucky, and of the hardy Scotch-Irish lineage. The forefathers were among the early settlers of Kentucky. Henry Vowels was reared in his native State, where he remained until 1860, when he, with his family, immigrated to Mississippi County, Mo., coming down the Ohio River on a steamer. Landing at Bird's Point, he located in the neighborhood of Robert Vowel's present home, and resided there till his death, which occurred in 1880. His wife, by whom he had eleven children, died in 1865. Eight of their children are living: Robert, Mary E. (Mrs. Nelson B. Brewer), Elizabeth (Mrs. Joseph A. Barker), Thomas, George, James, Alexander and Nancy (Mrs. George Armer). The subject of this sketch spent his youth on his father's farm in Kentucky, being about nineteen years of age when he removed with his parents to Mississippi County, Mo. He remained with them until 1862, when he began work for himself, since which time he has been engaged in agricultural pursuits. In 1870 he purchased 100 acres of land, it being the same upon which he now resides, of which about 100 acres are under cultivation. He was married in 1866 to Mary E. Hutchinson, a native of Tennessee, and to them eight children have been born, viz.: Thomas, Cora, Jessie, Andrew, Netty, Charles, Florence, and an infant unnamed (deceased). Mr. Vowel is a member of the Agricultural Wheel. Politically he is a Democrat.

Col. Robert Waide, one of the oldest attorneys of Southeast Missouri, was born in Augusta County, Va., on June 16, 1821. He is a son of John and Elizabeth (Beard) Waide, both of whom were natives of Virginia, and of English and German descent, respectively. They were the parents of ten children, five of whom are living. Robert was reared on his father's farm in Virginia until he was twenty years of age, after which he taught school. In 1847 he began the study of law, and two years later immigrated west, locating at Charleston.

Mississippi Co., Mo., where he taught school for a short time. In 1852 he was admitted to the bar, and has since been in constant practice. He has been a notary public for sixteen years, and has held the office of county attorney for two terms. In 1866 he was elected to represent Mississippi County in the Legislature, and was re-elected in 1868. Mr. Waide was married first in 1855 to Catherine Minnie Firebaugh. She died in 1856, leaving one child, Catherine Elizabeth. He was married again in 1862; his second wife being Mrs. Mary A. Gerdon, by whom he has two children living, viz.: Hampton and Robert P. His wife died in 1886. In politics Mr. Waide is a Republican.

Joseph F. Watkins, a prominent farmer and stock dealer of Scott County, was born in Stoddard County, Mo., on February 6, 1849. He is a son of Joseph and Louisa (Northcutt) Watkins. The former was born in Benton County, Tenn., and was killed in Cape Girardeau County by a horse throwing him against a tree, in January, 1849. About two years after his death his widow and children removed to Scott County, and settled near Diehlstadt, where she was married to Samuel Hennon, a native of Missouri. She was a member of the Baptist Church, and died in February, 1855. She had four children by her first husband and two by the last, viz.: Thomas (deceased), Sarah (deceased), Benjamin (deceased), and Joseph Watkins, Marcella H. Hennon (Mrs. Cury Nations) and a daughter who died when one year old. Joseph F. lived with his uncle until he was twenty-two years of age. The uncle, Francis Kirkpatrick, was a native of Tennessee, but removed to Scott County at an early day. When Joseph left his uncle's home, he began farming for himself, and when twenty-four years of age he wedded Paralee Holms, born on February 29, 1854, in Benton County, Tenn. She came with her parents to Mississippi County when she was four or five years of age. She died on October 18, 1876, having borne two children, Benjamin and Ida May, both deceased. Mr. Watkins was afterward married to Laura Holmes, also a native of Benton County, Tenn., born October 11, 1858. She was married on January 10, 1878, having removed to Mississippi County in November, 1877. They have four children: Effie F. Elbert (deceased), Mary A. and Clara. Jesse K. White (deceased) was born in Hickman County, Tenn., on September 18, 1836, and was a son of Jehu and Nancy (Harman) White, the former born in North Carolina in 1801, and the latter in 1802. Jehu's father, Jesse White, was also born in North Carolina, and removed with his family to Middle Tennessee in 1812. His children were Polly, Malinda, Lucinda, Roana, Neal, Eli, Huron, Jehu and Margaret, all deceased. Jehu lived in Tennessee until the spring of 1839, when he brought his family by water to Missouri, and settled near where Bertrand is now situated. He was married in 1821, and he and wife were active Christians, loving parents and good neighbors. He died on January 31, 1849, and she on January 11, 1850. Their children were born as follows: Harriet, 1824; Elizabeth, 1825; James B., 1828; Mary D., 1830; Francis S., 1832; Altuntic O., 1834; Jesse K., 1836; Cornelius D., 1838; Fountia E. P., 1840, and William J., 1842. All are dead except Elizabeth, the widow of John Gaty, who was killed by a tree falling on him on February 17, 1863. She enjoys good health, and resides with her son, Robert P. Gaty, who lives on the old White homestead near Bertrand. She has two other children living: William W. and Lawrence C., and has five dead: John, James, Nancy, Henry and Littleton. Jesse K. White came with his parents to Mississippi County, and remained with them until their deaths, after which he lived with his sisters until he was sixteen years of age, when he went to Leavenworth, Ind. Returning to Mississippi County in 1857, he was engaged in farming with his brother for two years, when he went to Charleston, and attended school one year, after which he bought land south of Bertrand, upon which he resided until the spring of 1870, when he removed to the farm upon which his family now resides. On September 4, 1862, he was united in marriage with Margaret A. Barry, born on December 23, 1843. She is the daughter of William and Elizabeth (Calaway) Barry, the former born on July 7, 1814, in South Carolina, the latter, born January 18, 1822, in Florida. They were married in the latter State on December 22, 1840, after which they removed to southern Texas, and from thence in 1857 to Mississippi County, and located near Bird's Point. The father died on February 22, 1868, and the mother died in the same month. To them were born Margaret A., Joseph, William T., John A., James S., Mary F., Martha L., Robert A., Rose E. and Mark A. Three died as follows: Martha L., October 1, 1857; William T., February 15, 1868, and Mark A., October 2, 1869. Margaret A. White is the mother of nine children: Fountin P., William A. (died July 16, 1877), Cornelius C., Fannie E., Claud E., Ida E. (died August 14, 1877), Effie J. (died September 12, 1879), Jesse E. and Robert C. Mrs. White lives on the home farm, and takes great interest in the education of her children. She has been a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church since 1861, before which time she was a Missionary Baptist.

Benjamin C. White, a farmer of James Bayou Township, Mississippi County, Mo., was born in the State of Mississippi, in 1840, and is a son of Wiley and Pernina (Clibourne) White, of English and French descent, respectively. They were both born in Charleston, S. C., and were married in their native State, from which they removed to Mississippi, in 1833, living in the latter State until their deaths. Mr. White died on March 14, 1850, and Mrs. White in February, 1845. Their children were William (deceased), Martha Ann (deceased), Louis (deceased), Thomas L. (engaged in farming in Coffman County, Tex.), James W. (farming in Pickens County, Ala.), Louisa J. (deceased), Benjamin C. and Penina Ellen (wife of S. W. Nunn, a farmer of James Bayou Township, Mississippi County). Benjamin C. lived with an elder brother until he was sixteen years of age, when he came to Mississippi County, Mo. He stopped near his present home, but being without capital, he rented land, and worked out by the month, until he had accumulated enough to buy him a home, which was in 1871. He then purchased 131 acres of the farm which now consists of 263 acres, with 215 under cultivation. In 1860 he was united in marriage with Mrs. Sophronia Arnold, born in Hickman County, Ky., in 1839. She is the daughter of David H. Kelley, who came to Southeast Missouri, in 1843, and located in Mississippi County. Mrs. White was first married to James Arnold, by whom she had one son, Martin Arnold. Mr. Arnold died in 1858. To Mr. and Mrs. White have been born six children: Pernina Ellen (deceased), Georgia Ann (Mrs. R. S. Fleming, of Indiana), Mary J., Benjamin, C. Jr. (who is now attending school at Clinton, Ky.), Minnie Dixon and Thomas Lee. Mr. White has given each of his children a good education. He is also rearing a niece, whose parents are dead. Her name is Eliza Kelley. Mr. White is a member of the I. O. O. F. lodge of Charleston.

James W. Whitsell, a competent blacksmith and wagon-maker, of East Prairie, Mississippi County, was born in Kentucky, in 1855, and is a son of James P. and Sarah Ann (Thompkins) Whitsell, both of whom were born in Hopkins County, Ky. Their grandparents came from Georgia in a very early day, and located in Webster County, Ky. James P. Whitsell was reared as a farmer, in which occupation he was afterward extensively engaged; later in life, however, he was engaged in blacksmithing. His first wife died in 1860, leaving two children, John J. and James W. Mr. Whitsell afterward married Virginia Crineham, who was born and reared in Kentucky. To this union were born Dr. Edgar, J. Cloud and William, all of whom are living. J. J. Cloud resides with the subject of this sketch. James P. Bradley died in 1875 or 1876, and his widow is now living in Kentucky. James W. learned his trade under the direction of his father, in Hopkins County, Ky., and in 1879 he worked with an uncle in Kentucky. In 1880 he came to Mississippi County and located at Bertrand, removing to his present location in the summer of 1887, at which place he has a good home, and a lucrative business. In 1887 he was united in marriage with Miss Nancy A. Diviney. She was born in Tennessee, and came to Bertrand with her parents in 1874 or 1875. Two children have blessed the union of Mr. and Mrs. Whitsell: James C. and Nora W. Mrs. Whitsell is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a member of the A. O. U. W.

Dr. George W. Wilson, a physician of Wolf Island Township, Mississippi County, was born in Richmond, Ind., in 1839, and is a son of William D. and Mary (McMinn) Wilson, natives of Virginia and Delaware, respectively. William D. Wilson removed his family to Indiana, in 1826, and established a foundry and machine manufactory, one of the first in that section of the country. He remained in Richmond until 1858, when he removed to Greencastle, Ind., and resumed the manufacturing business. He was a very prominent man in his day, taking an active part in politics and other matters, being a strong prohibitionist, and was a great temperance worker. He died in Greencastle, at the age of seventy-three years, and his widow is still residing there, with one of her sons, John T. Wilson, who is now in the manufacturing business. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson were the parents of eight children, four of whom are living: John T., David L., Emma (Mrs. Harvey Fleming, of California), and Dr. George W. Those deceased are Virginia, Eliza, William and Elizabeth. Dr. George W. graduated from the high school of Richmond, Ind., in 1857 or 1858, after which he entered college at Oberlin, Ohio, and was only in the junior class when the war broke out. He left school, and went to Terre Haute, Ind., and enlisted in the Forty-third Indiana Regiment, and served for two years as hospital steward, and then as assistant-surgeon for a longer time. He enlisted in August, 1861, and was mustered out at St. Louis, in November, 1865. On returning home he entered a medical college at Cincinnati, graduating in 1867. He also attended a college at Philadelphia. After securing his professional education, he returned to Greencastle, and remained one year, when he went to Bates County, Mo., and remained there, engaged in the drug business, and the practice of his profession, until 1878, when he came to Southeast Missouri, and located in Mississippi County, where he has since resided, with the exception of two years in Florida. In 1869 Dr. Wilson married Mary Peck, daughter of Charles and Ursula Peck, both of whom were born and reared in New York. The Doctor is a member of the A. F. & A. M., and of the Knights Templar. He and wife have four children: Charles D., Douglas, McMinn and Amy L.

Haston Yates, a farmer of Sassafras Ridge, Mississippi County, was born in Marshall County, Ky., February 23, 1840. His parents, John and Laura T. (Butler) Yates, were natives of North Carolina. The former moved to Kentucky, when a small boy, with his father, Joel Yates. The Butler family removed to Kentucky several years later, about 1838. Joel Yates had four children: Sarah (who was married to a Dr. Jones), John, Harrison and Joel. The last two died in Marshall County, Ky. John died when the subject of this sketch was about six years old, leaving besides him a daughter, Harriet (Mrs. James Scillian). Both she and husband are now deceased. After Mr. Yates' death, his widow married James Brien, who was a soldier under Gen. Jackson at New Orleans, and one of the oldest and most prominent settlers of the "Jackson Purchase," Kentucky. He entered a large tract of land in Calloway County, and served several terms in both houses of the General Assembly of Kentucky. While at Frankfort he divided Calloway County, and formed Marshall County, which latter was his home until his death. He was an honorable, high-minded man, and after his second marriage, it is said, never a cross word passed between himself and wife. Mr. Yates remembers with sincere gratitude, the kindness shown him by his step-father, whose wisdom, advice and apt counsel have followed him during life. He died in 1875 or 1876, leaving two children: Catherine (Mrs. Robert Dew, of Trigg County, Ky.) and Volney P. (of Marshall County, Ky.) The mother died in 1866. Haston lived with his mother until he was twenty years of age, and when twenty-one years old was married to Rhoda Downing, who was born in 1842, and is a daughter of Joseph and Adaline Downing, both of whom were born and reared in Marshall County, Ky. Mr. Downing died, leaving two children: Mary E. (deceased) and Rhoda Ann. Mrs. Downing afterward married P. J. Heath, by whom she had ten children: William H. (deceased), Sarah J., James B., Telitha C., John H., Thomas M., Richard, Reuben, Celia A. and Robert N. The parents are still residing in Marshall County, Ky. After his marriage, Mr. Yates located on his part of the home place, where he resided about eight years, when he sold out and came to Southeast Missouri, but after one year he returned to his native State. Remaining there six years more, he again came to Missouri and located on his present farm. To him and wife have been born six children: Temperance Adaline, Mary J. (Mrs. Oliver Roach), Rufus, Julia Florence, John Albert (deceased) and an infant (deceased and unnamed). Mr. Yates is a member of the Baptist Church.

STODDARD COUNTY.

John M. Allen, president of the Stoddard County Agricultural Wheel, and a prominent citizen of the county, now residing in Castor Township, was born in Humphreys County, Tenn., in 1834, and is the son of James and Mary (Blessingim) Allen, natives of Virginia. The father moved to Tennessee, where he lived until his son, John M., was six years of age, when he moved to Livingston County, Ky., and from there to Shelby County, Tenn., or to the city of Memphis, and finally to Fulton County, Ky., where he died at the age of fifty. He was a farmer by occupation, and also followed the profession of school teaching. He was in the War of 1812, was in the battle of New Orleans, and shortly after this war was married. His wife was a member of the Baptist Church. She died in Stoddard County, Mo., in 1887, at the age of eighty-five. To their union were born seven daughters and five sons, three sons and three daughters now living. John M. Allen is the seventh of these children. He began for himself after the death of his father by working for wages. In 1855 he married Miss Malinda Ladd, a native of Stoddard County, Mo., born in 1840, and the daughter of Ransom Ladd. To this marriage were born six children: Mary Annie, William L., George W. and Robert P., living, and two deceased, named John N. and Samuel M. Shortly after the death of the father of our subject, the family moved to Stoddard County, and here John M. after his marriage began to farm. Afterward, in connection with farming, he was engaged in merchandising at Bloomfield. This was in 1861. In 1862 he enlisted in the State militia, Union army, and served, off and on, until the surrender. In 1864 he was elected assessor of the county, and served two years, but also filled the office of constable of Castor Township at the same time. In 1868 he sold goods at Kennett, Dunklin County, and at the same time served as postmaster, being the first postmaster after the war at that place. In 1869 he came to his present place of residence, and there he has resided ever since. He purchased forty acres in the first place, and to this has added the balance of 142. Mr. Allen is a member of the Masonic fraternity, also the I. O. O. F., and was elected president of the Wheel in the spring of 1887. He is a Republican in his political views, and has been district school clerk for sixteen years, and has also held many minor offices. Mrs. Allen is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Thomas A. Arnold, farmer, Essex Postoffice, was born in Middle Tennessee, in 1836, and is the son of Davis and Martha (Pucket) Arnold, who lived in Tennessee. The former carried on farming until he joined the army, after which he resumed farming until he died, leaving eight children, seven living: Marian, James, Harriet, Thomas A., Richard, Columbus and Martha, all married and living in Tennessee and Kentucky. Thomas A. left his home when about twenty years old and located in Henry County, Tenn., but in 1860 he came to Stoddard County, Mo., and settled about three miles southeast of Essex, until 1865. Returning to Tennessee, he only remained three years and again came to Stoddard County, locating about one mile from Essex, where he lived until purchasing his present home in 1876, a farm of about eighty acres of land, with some eighteen acres cleared and in cultivation. Mr. Arnold has been twice married; first, in 1858, to Catherine Langford and they had nine children, five of whom are living: William T., Annie E. (married to William Gregory), Nancy E. (married to J. A. Barker), Effie J. and James. Mrs. Arnold dying in 1876, he married, in 1877, Nancy Devine, and they have had five children, three living, viz.: Benjamin F., Clara B. and Albert. Mr. Arnold is a member of the Masonic and Wheeler's lodges. Mrs. Arnold belongs to the Baptist Church.

Columbus D. Bailey, of Dexter, Mo., was born February 2, 1844. His parents, William and Julia A. (Denny) Bailey, were married in 1843, in Wayne County, Missouri. The paternal grandfather, A. B. Bailey, was in Lawrence County, Tenn., when his son William was born in 1819, and after a life of farming there until 1829, the parents and son embarked on a flat-boat on the Tennessee River, following to its mouth, thence down the Ohio to Cairo, and on reaching the Mississippi River embarked on a steamboat. They went north to Cape Girardeau, where they landed and came directly to Stoddard County. They located near the crossing of the Bloomfield and Cape Girardeau road on Castor River, where the grandfather traded in stock and merchandise, besides his agricultural duties. He made two trips to the Indian nations and traded them large supplies of goods for Indian ponies. Soon after he entered the land where Bloomfield now stands, and donated fifty acres for the county seat, and built the first courthouse. He also represented the county in the Legislature. He died in 1846 at New Orleans, where he had gone to dispose of stock. The father of the subject of our sketch then moved to Vicksburg in 1845, to attend to financial affairs, but returned the following year to Stoddard County, where he spent the rest of his life and died on April 1, 1885. His children are Columbus D., Columbia A., Harriet R., Rosanah, Absalom B., Sarah E., Thomas J., William E. and John M., all of whom, except William, are married. The subject of this sketch left home at the age of twenty-two, when he was married to Hannah J. Lewis, on March 15, 1866. Agriculture has been his chief pursuit, although he often taught school. Since 1883 he has been engaged with the Singer Manufacturing Company. Mr. Bailey served in the late war, entering in 1862 the regiment of Col. Jeffrey, in the Confederate States Army, and in 1863, after the siege of Vicksburg, in which he received a severe leg wound, he returned home and joined Company D, Sixth Missouri Cavalry. He was discharged September 12, 1865. Mr. and Mrs. Bailey have been members of the General Baptist Church for about eight years. Their children are Arminta O. (now Mrs. R. L. Hardy), Rebecca J. (now Mrs. Dr. J. L. Slayden), Stephen P. and James L. (who is in his sixth year).

C. H. Barham, circuit clerk of Stoddard County, is a native of Gibson County, Tenn., and was born May 11, 1841, being the son of James and Catherine (Launius) Barham, both of whom were natives of North Carolina. The Barhams were of English descent, and the Launius family of German origin. The grandfather, Charles Barham, was also a native of North Carolina, the family having immigrated there at a very early day, and the name has been familiar there for many years. The great-grandfather, James Barham, was a soldier in the Revolutionary War and immigrated to Springfield, Mo., when it was all a forest. He died there in 1860, in his one hundred and fifteenth year. The grandfather came to Stoddard County, Mo., in 1858, and died in 1861. James Barham, father of our subject, located near Bloomfield in 1858, and rented land for a few years. In 1865 he removed to Crittenden County, Ark., where he died the same year. The mother is still living and resides with her son, Charles H. She is now in her seventy-fourth year. They were the parents of seven children, five now living: Charles H., Jonathan R., Mary A. (wife of H. T. Estis), Phoebe J. (wife of Hugh McGee) and Elizabeth. Those deceased are George F. and William L. Charles H. was reared in Tennessee, and remained there until seventeen years of age, when he came with his parents to Stoddard County, and remained with them, engaged in farming, until the breaking out of hostilities between the North and South. He then enlisted in Company C of Col. Phelan's regiment, State Guards, and served in this command for six months. He then enlisted in Willford's company, Tenth Regiment of Missouri Cavalry, and was accidentally wounded at Malden. He was carrying a dispatch on horseback, and had with him a double-barreled shotgun, which, by some means, was discharged, the contents entering Mr. Barham's leg just above the ankle. About two hours later the leg was amputated at the ankle. He was cared for by friends for three weeks, and was then brought home, where he remained until able to get around. During this time he was engaged in studying, and became sufficiently educated to transact business. He raised two or three crops, crippled as he was, and kept a ferry on Castor River for some time. He then taught school for four or five terms. In 1874 he was elected assessor and held the office for four years. In 1878 he was elected circuit clerk and recorder, which office he still occupies, having been re-elected twice since, and has filled this position to the satisfaction of all. July 30, 1868, he married Miss Elizabeth McGee, a native of Tennessee. To this union were born seven children, of whom five are living: Delaney C., William J., George M., Zela and John L. James H. and Walter are dead. Mr. Barham is a member of the Baptist Church and also a member of the I. O. O. F.

Joseph J. Barnes, a Stoddard County farmer, is a North Carolinian, born February 4, 1804. He is the son of Rhodum and Temperance (Dickins) Barnes, the former a Virginian, born in 1765, and the latter a native of Halifax County, N. C., born March 8, 1777. They died in 1847. They had seven children born to them, all but one of whom are living: George W., Joseph J., Mary A., James H., William H. and Anna B. The subject of this sketch lived at home after he was of age up to his thirty-fifth year, in order to care for his father and mother in their old age. He was married on September 26, 1858, to Lucinda Jernigan, but had no children. It was about 1839 that Mr. Barnes started for the West, traveling on horseback to Tennessee, where he located in McNairy County, and engaged in school teaching. There he spent about thirteen years, and then settled in Stoddard County, Mo., having made the trip overland in wagons in 1852. Here he entered 120 acres, 40 acres of which are cultivated, and he has since purchased 120 acres of fine timber land. Mrs. Barnes is a member of the Baptist Church. Her father, Nathan Henson, was the first white man to hunt in the swamps of Stoddard County, and was the first white man to see the waters of Henson Lake. He spent his life chiefly in forests and swamps in hunting, for which he had considerable local renown, having come from his North Carolina home in 1834.

Oliver C. Barrett, a farmer of Stoddard County, Mo., was born in Suffolk County, Mass., December 13, 1851. He is a son of William Barrett, who was born in Ireland and was brought to the United States when a child of eight years. His people settled in Massachusetts and there he grew to manhood and married Mary Ann Tryon, who was born near Cincinnati, Ohio. After their marriage they resided in Massachusetts for a few years and in 1867 removed to Illinois, and located in Shelby County, where the father died in 1876. The mother died some time previous to this. Oliver C. came to Missouri in 1883 and located in Stoddard County, where he purchased his present farm of 120 acres. One hundred acres are cleared and under cultivation. June 13, 1885, he was married to Mrs. Jane Davis, a daughter of Rev. Joe Coghill, a Christian minister of Illinois. Mrs. Barrett became the mother of seven children and is a member of the Christian Church. Mr. Barrett received an excellent education in the schools of his native county and after moving to Illinois taught several terms of school.

Maj. Henry H. Bedford, attorney at law at Bloomfield, was born in Jackson County, Tenn., November 27, 1823, and is the son of J. M. and Elizabeth (Hale) Bedford, natives of Rutherford County, N. C., and Jackson County, Tenn., respectively. The father was born in January, 1799. He was reared in Jackson County, Tenn., and at an early age began the study of law and was admitted to the bar when quite young, but never made a general practice of law. He engaged in merchandising at Troy, Obion Co., Tenn., and there remained many years. He went to Mississippi County, Mo., to live with his son H. H., and there died in 1850. The mother died about ten years afterward. They were the parents of eleven children, only one now living. The paternal grandfather, Jonas Bedford, was born in North Carolina, and served fourteen years in Rutherford County district in the Senate. He immigrated to Tennessee at an early day and located in Jackson County, and upon the organization of Obion County, Tenn., he was elected circuit clerk, which position he was holding at the time of his death, which occurred in 1830. He was a very prominent man in his day, and was well known throughout his district. Maj. Henry H. Bedford was the second child born to his parents. He was three years of age when his parents moved to Obion County, where he grew to manhood, receiving a liberal common school education. He had studied with a view of becoming a lawyer and in 1841 he immigrated to Mississippi County, Mo., and entered the office of Judge Harrison Hoff, where he studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1846. He immediately came to Bloomfield, began the practice of his profession and has there made his home ever since. He was the first regular attorney to locate at that place. In 1852 he married Mrs. Minerva Handy, who bore him eight children, five now living: Orlando, Ida V., Ethel (wife of John W. Harrison), Arthur C. and May. In 1861 Mr. Bedford enlisted in Capt. Hale's company of cavalry, and when the regiment was organized at Belmont he was elected major of the cavalry in which capacity he served for about one year, when he was taken down with pneumonia; his regiment left him and he never again assumed his command. He participated in several hard skirmishes during his service and was a brave and gallant soldier. In 1857 and 1858 he represented his county in the Legislature. He attended the first circuit court in Dunklin County, Mo., in company with Judge John D. Cook, who was then judge of this district and has attended every one since, except the January term of last year. He is a large land holder both in Stoddard and Dunklin Counties. He has about 12,000 acres under cultivation this season, 800 acres in Dunklin County, and over 400 in cultivation in Stoddard County. He is one of the pioneer attorneys of this county, and has been prominently identified with the citizens for nearly half a century. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity.

C. H. Bess is a son of Andrew and Teney (Taylor) Bess, who were both natives of Stoddard County, Mo. Christian Bess, the father of Andrew J., was born in North Carolina, and his was said to be about the seventh white family to settle in Stoddard County, Mo. Abraham Taylor, father of Mrs. Bess, was also born in North Carolina, and came to Missouri a year or so after the Bess family came. At that time Bloomfield was an Indian town. Andrew Bess was a farmer and miller, and followed these occupations the greater portion of his life. He lived on the farm now owned by his widow. He died in 1861. Of his seven children only five are now living: Christy E., Benjamin M., Nancy C., James V. and Isabel. C. H. Bess, son of Andrew Bess, was born in Stoddard County, September 10, 1850, and was reared on a farm. He remained at home until twenty-three years of age, when he married, and located on his present farm of 120 acres. It then consisted of eighty acres. He was married in 1874 to Emma Curd, who died, leaving three children: Jackson (born July 19, 1875), Tilden (born November 10, 1876) and Freeman (born December 15, 1878). Mr. Bess took for his second wife Mary Bolin, who bore him one child, who died. His present wife was Eliza Sparks. Their family consists of two children: John W. (born March 8, 1885) and Frances (born December 27, 1886). Mr. Bess is a member of the Agricultural Wheel.

William Joseph Bess, one of the enterprising citizens of the county, was born near the town of Ste. Genevieve, Ste. Genevieve Co., Mo., September 6, 1854, and is the son of Christopher and Lucinda (Cunningham) Bess. The father was born in Sullivan County, Mo., in 1825, and died in Salt Lake City, Utah, in 1868. He learned the carpenter and cabinet-maker's trade when young, and worked at the same until his death. He moved from Sullivan County to Ste. Genevieve County, and lived there until going to Salt Lake City. His wife was born in St. Francois County, near Farmington, in 1824. She is still living, and is now a resident of Stoddard County. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Five children were born to this marriage, William J. Bess being the second, and all are living, viz.: Sarah Mahala (widow of Ben Ragsdale), William Joseph, Martin L., Cynthia C. (wife of J. W. Stanfield) and Elisha D. William J. Bess, on the 20th of July, 1873, married Miss Rebecca A. Cabe, a native of Henry County, Tenn., born March 31, 1854. To this marriage were born six children—five sons and one daughter: John H., Thomas T., William Grant, Lewis A., Joseph O. and Isa I. Mr. Bess remained with his mother and provided for her, as he still continues to do, until he started out for himself. He had limited means with which to make a start, but he is now the owner of a well improved farm. He is a Republican in politics, and he and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Felix H. Bilbrey, M. D., was born in Overton County, Tenn., August 10, 1841, and is a son of Bynon and Ann (O'Neal) Bilbrey, who were born in the same county and State as Felix H. They lived in their native county for a number of years, and then moved to Putnam County, where they resided until their respective deaths. Felix H. grew to manhood in Putnam County, and, after reaching man's estate, began the study of medicine under Dr. Hood, and remained with him about one year. He then practiced one year, but owing to ill health, was compelled to give up his profession for the following three years. He moved to Metropolis, Ill., in 1868, and clerked in a drug store two years, and then resumed the study of medicine. After locating at Unionville, Ill., he practiced for three years, and then went to Nashville, Tenn., and during the winters of 1878 and 1879, took lectures, graduating there in the spring of the latter year. He then returned to Unionville, Ill., where he resided until 1881, then moved to Missouri and located in Stoddard County, where he has continued the practice of his profession up to the present time. He was married in Tennessee, in 1866, to Mary Ann Guley, a daughter of Alfred Guley. They have six children: Rufus L., Lenora, Franklin G., Joseph, Jennie and Burton. Mrs. Bilbrey is a member of the Christian Church.

John C. Blacksher (deceased) was born in Middle Tennessee on June 29, 1832, and is the son of Jacob and Mary (Berry) Blacksher. John C. Blacksher was reared in Tennessee, where he remained until coming to Missouri. He was a farmer, and had followed this occupation all his life. In 1859 he married Miss Nancy A. Maloney, a native of East Tennessee, and the daughter of William and Lydia (Cooper) Maloney. Her father was a native of Tennessee, and her mother a native of Virginia. They immigrated to West Tennessee, where they both died. They were the parents of eight children, five now living:

William, James, John, Elizabeth and Nancy. In 1871 Mr. Blacksher arrived in Stoddard County, coming through in wagons, and located where his widow now lives, having traded his farm in Tennessee for that property. The farm contains 160 acres, all located under the bluff, and eighty-five are under cultivation. To his marriage were born three children: Emma, John and Luther. Mr. Blacksher died on February 15, 1890. He was a substantial farmer, and a good citizen. His two sons carry on the farm, and both are intelligent, enterprising young men.

David A. Bollinger, the present public administrator, and one of Stoddard County's most prominent citizens, was born where he now lives, on September 8, 1845, and is the son of Jefferson and Sarah (Adams) Bollinger. The Bollinger family came from North Carolina to Southeast Missouri at the earliest settling of the country, and located in Bollinger County, which took its name from this family. Jefferson Bollinger was a native of Southeast Missouri, a farmer by occupation, and died of cholera in 1848. He was the son of Daniel E. Bollinger. The Bollinger family is of German descent. The Adams family was also among the very early settlers of Southeast Missouri. Sarah (Adams) Bollinger was born in Georgia, and was the daughter of Rev. Henry Adams, a Missionary Baptist minister. She died where the town of Advance now stands, February 15, 1862, and was forty-nine years of age. She was the mother of seven children, viz.: Mary Elizabeth, William H., Nancy, John, Martha, David A. and Sarah C., all now dead but David A., and Sarah C., who is the wife of Andrew Proffer, a prominent farmer of Stoddard County. Mrs. Sarah Bollinger lived on the farm left her by her husband, for five years, and then married Joshua Mayberry. David A. lived five years with his step-father, then one and one-half years with his brother-in-law, then began life for himself, and spent most of his time in Fulton City, Ill. His earliest ambition was to secure a good education, and it was by the hardest kind of work and under many disadvantages that he finally secured his education. While attending school he was doing all kinds of work that was honorable, in order to pay his way. January 2, 1873, he married Miss Susan C. Sitz, who was born in Stoddard County, Mo., October 17, 1855, and is the daughter of Jonas W. and Caldonia Sitz. To Mr. and Mrs. Bollinger were born five children, four now living: Albert Dell, Jennette Bell, Caddie Beatrice and Denie May. Nellie Anzenettie died August 31, 1878, at the age of four years. About that time, and for several years after his marriage, Mr. Bollinger taught school in Stoddard County, Mo. He has taught many terms, and as an instructor, as well as in all other enterprises he undertakes, is a decided success. On starting for himself as a farmer he had seventy-one acres of land left him by his father, and then came very near losing it by a scheme to swindle him out of it. Since that time Mr. Bollinger has added 329, making in all 400 acres, and has a splendid farm. He is an enterprising man, and everything around him goes to prove that he is a first-class farmer. In all public enterprises he is at the front, and Pike Township can boast of some of the best schools in the county, which is mainly due to his arduous labor. In 1884 he was elected justice of the peace, and held that office two years, when he was elected public administrator, and has since filled that position. He is a member of the Masonic order, also of the Wheel, and in politics his sympathies are with the Democratic party, but he votes for the best man regardless of party.

James E. Boyd, merchant, was born in Maury County, Tenn., February 2, 1842, and is the son of William L. and Nancy N. (Erwin) Boyd, natives of South Carolina and Alabama, respectively. The father was a farmer by occupation and first immigrated to Alabama, from there to Mississippi and finally to Maury County, Tenn., where he was married, and where he lived until 1851, when he immigrated to Cape Girardeau County, Mo. Here he remained until 1855, when he moved to Stoddard County, Mo., and settled in Liberty Township, on a farm where he has since resided. He has always followed agricultural pursuits and is now in his seventy-sixth year. He is the father of four children, three of whom are living: James E., Theodorie W., Robert A., and Laura (deceased). James E. Boyd was about five years old when his parents came to Missouri. He remained and assisted on the farm until twenty-one years of age, attended the common schools, and in the fall of 1864 he enlisted with Price's command on the Confederate side and was with him in his raid through Missouri. He was in several severe skirmishes, but was taken sick while passing through Arkansas, was unable to go on, and was left at a farm house, where he was taken care of for three months. The war being now nearly at a close he went to Southwest

Missouri, where he remained until the fall of 1865, when he came home and resumed farming. In the fall of 1867 he taught school, and in the fall of the next year he was employed as salesman for Miller & Buck, and remained in that capacity for five years. He then associated himself with John L. Buck, his present partner in the mercantile business, and has continued in the firm name of James E. Boyd & Co. Mr. Boyd was married in 1874, to Miss Sarah Brooke, a native of Illinois, and to them were born two children: Frank and William Lewis. Mr. Boyd is a member of the Masonic fraternity, also the I. O. O. F., and he is a leading and public-spirited citizen. Mrs. Boyd is a member of the Baptist Church.

Theodorice W. Boyd was born in Maury County, Tenn., September 17, 1847, and is a son of William L. Boyd, who was born in South Carolina. He became a resident of Tennessee after reaching man's estate, and there married Nancy Erwin. They moved to Missouri about 1852, and in 1854 located on their present farm in Stoddard County. Here the mother died in 1881. Theodorice W. Boyd was reared on a farm and has obtained his education by attending the common schools and by self application. March 3, 1870, he was married to Rebecca Howell, who has borne him four children: William Lewis, Mary, Nellie, and Robert. Mr. Boyd has a good farm of 160 acres near Dexter, on which he has resided since his marriage. He has 80 acres cleared and under cultivation, and on the same are erected his residence and out-buildings. Mr. Boyd has acquired his property through his own exertions, and is an intelligent and thrifty farmer of Stoddard County.

G. N. Broughton, attorney-at-law at Dexter, was born in Oswego County, N. Y., November 30, 1841. His parents, Alanson and Hannah (Squares) Broughton, are natives of New York, and of French and German origin, respectively. Rev. Alanson Broughton was a Baptist clergyman from his youth to his death, in 1880. Mrs. Broughton survives her husband, and lives near Chicago. Her children are Mary (now Mrs. P. R. Brooks), Joseph S., George N., Ellen A. (now Mrs. A. N. Wicks) and Gertrude (now Mrs. I. S. Black-wilder, general manager of the Niagara Insurance Company at Chicago). The subject of this sketch was reared in New York, whither his parents had removed during his infancy, and here he studied law, and was about ready to enter Union College, when the war opened. In 1861 he enlisted in Company D, Seventy-Eighth New York Infantry, and served at Cedar Mountain, Second Bull Run, Antietam, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Lookout Mountain and Nashville. At Antietam, a shell-wound in the foot caused his capture and incarceration in Libby prison for four months. He was afterward exchanged, and at Lookout Mountain a gunshot wound disabled him. After the war, he was for some time in the quartermaster's department, at Nashville. After a year spent in Kansas, he came to Scott County in 1868, and engaged in civil engineering from about that time until 1875, on the construction of the Iron Mountain Railway. For about a year thereafter he was land surveyor in Butler County, and in 1876 came to Dexter to act as land agent for the Iron Mountain Railway, in Southeast Missouri. Since 1879, however, he has been engaged in the practice of his profession, with excellent results. He is prominent in political circles, and has served as mayor of Dexter for four terms: first in 1877, and the remaining terms since 1885. Mr. Broughton's possessions include 600 acres of good land in Stoddard County, besides considerable town property. Two fraternities claim his membership, the K. of H. and A. O. U. W. He was married, in 1876, to Callie Greer, a native of Kentucky. Their children are Maude and Georgia.

John L. Buck, merchant of Bloomfield, Mo., was born in Pitt County, N. C., in October, 1830, and is the son of Beyant F. and Selina (Moore) Buck, both of whom were born in North Carolina. They immigrated to Western Tennessee in 1832, settling in Lauderdale County, and here the mother died in 1836. In 1843 Mr. Buck sold his farm and moved to Illinois, but remained there only a short time until he moved to Scott County, Mo., and there died, in the autumn of 1844. They were the parents of five children, only one, John L., now living. Those deceased were Abigail, Nancy, Allen and Amanda. The father was twice married, and by his second wife had three children, all deceased. John L. was two years old when he went with his parents to Tennessee. He here remained until thirteen years of age, when he went with his father to Scott County. In 1848 he came to Stoddard County and located in Bloomfield, where he has since resided. After coming to Bloomfield, he worked at the saddler's trade for two years.

under Joel B. Kesner. He was then employed (1851) as clerk in a dry goods store at this place, with Daniel B. Miller, with whom he remained until 1856. He then engaged with his father-in-law, Henry Miller, in the mercantile business at Spring Hill, where they continued for three years, or until 1859, when he moved back to Bloomfield and bought a stock of goods. At the breaking out of the war he was compelled to abandon his business, and did not resume it until the close of the war. He was assistant commissary for a short time under Thompson's State militia. At the close of the war, he resumed the mercantile business, under the firm name of Miller & Buck. This continued until 1873, when Mr. Miller died, and Mr. Buck purchased his interest and continued the business under his own name for several years, when James E. Boyd became a partner. The firm is now known as James E. Boyd & Co. They have a good two-story brick house, 24x60 feet, with a frame structure in the rear, 24x24 feet, also a side room 14x84 feet. They carry a full line of general merchandise, and are successful in all their enterprises. Mr. Buck has been three times married, his first wife being Miss Frances Miller, by whom he had six children, two now living, Dolly and Alice, both of whom are married. He was married the second time to Miss Laura Boyd, who bore him six children, four now living: Ada, Laura, Charles and James. His third marriage was to Miss Lizzie Miller, by whom he has one son, John. Mr. Buck has served as county treasurer for twelve years in succession. He has been a member of the town council and school board, and is one of the most prominent men of Stoddard County.

Milton Capps, an enterprising and successful farmer of Stoddard County, Mo., was born in Guilford County, N. C., June 27, 1827, his father, Bennett, and his mother, Elizabeth (Knoblin) Capps, both being natives of Guilford County, N. C. They remained in this county until about 1839, and then removed to West Tennessee, where they passed the remainder of their days. The father, when a young man, had learned the wagon-maker's trade, but in his latter years followed farming in connection with his trade. Of the six children born to their marriage, four are living. Milton Capps was the second child born to the union of his parents. He was married June 1, 1845, to Martha Turner, who was born in North Carolina, November 12, 1828, and who was the daughter of John and Polly Turner, natives of North Carolina, who came to West Tennessee when Mrs. Capps was a young girl. To Mr. and Mrs. Capps were born nine children, seven now living: Bennett M., Mary E., Riley Smith, John Wesley, Martha Ann, Harriet P., William Henry, Almus G. and Samantha C. After their marriage Mr. Capps began farming in Tennessee, and continued this occupation until 1859, when he sold out and removed to Greene County, Ark., but started back to Tennessee, and on the way passed through Stoddard County, Mo., where he settled and where he has since remained. He is now the owner of 220 acres of land. Mr. Capps is a member of the Wheel, and politically votes for the best man. He was a Union man during the late war.

Joseph L. Casey, Sr., was born in Walton County, Ga., December 18, 1832, and is a son of Hiram and Faith (Thompson) Casey, natives of South Carolina and Georgia, respectively. The paternal grandfather was born in Virginia, and immigrated to South Carolina, where he was married. He then immigrated to Georgia and there died. The maternal grandfather was an old Revolutionary soldier. He also died in Georgia. The father of the subject of this sketch was a farmer, and immigrated to De Kalb County (now Fulton), Ga., about 1837. He died there about 1875. The mother died many years before. There were eleven children born to their marriage: Frances, John, Osborn, Charlotte, Elizabeth, Mary, David, Elisha, Joseph L., James and Frederick. Seven of these are supposed to be alive. The father was twice married and eighteen children were born to him. Joseph L. Casey was reared on the farm, and in 1854 married Amanda Lokey, a native of Georgia, who bore him ten children, eight now living: Mary E., William J., J. Walton, M. Emily, John H., Joseph L., Jr., E. L. and Frederick E. J. M. and S. F. are deceased. In 1863 Mr. Casey enlisted in the Fortieth Georgia Regiment, and served about two years. He was in several skirmishes and had to resign on account of bone erysipelas in his arm. Mr. Casey remained in Georgia until 1869, when he moved to Stoddard County, Mo., and there he has since resided. He now owns 102 acres of land, most of which is under cultivation. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, also of the Agricultural Wheel, and he and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Mrs. Casey's grandfather, Edward Landers, was a native of Virginia, moved to South Carolina and thence to Georgia, serving six months during the Revolutionary War. Her father was born in Maryland and followed sailing until thirty-five years old. He then returned to Georgia and married his first wife, Polly Landers subsequently becoming his second companion. They had two children. Mr. Landers died about 1836, his widow surviving until 1845.

Jacob Cassairt, a native of Darke County, Ohio, was born January 3, 1834, and is a son of Francis and Mary J. (Phillips) Cassairt, natives of Ohio and Pennsylvania, respectively. They were the parents of seven children, six now living: Jacob, Henry, Eliza, Sarah, James and George. Jacob Cassairt was reared in Illinois, and married Miss Hattie Alcom, a native of Indiana, who bore him eight children: Mary, Perry, William, Ephraim and Charles (twins), Dora, Albert and John. The same year of his marriage Mr. Cassairt went to Iowa, and from there to Kansas, and then came to Benton County, Mo., where he remained until after the war. In 1861 he enlisted in Gov. Phelps' company of 100 day men, Company I, Eighty-first Missouri, and served until the close of the war. He was in the battles of Wilson's Creek, Pea Ridge, Prairie Grove and Osage, where Gov. Marmaduke was captured. At Forsyth, Mo., his horse fell, and injured Mr. Cassairt's leg and hip so severely that he now draws a pension. After the war Mr. Cassairt moved to Indiana, where he remained eight years. In 1884 he came to Stoddard County, and bought 120 acres of land, eighty of which are under cultivation. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, of which he has been a member for twenty-five years, is also a member of the Agricultural Wheel, of which he is president, and he and wife are members of the General Baptist Church.

Stephen Chapman, at present secretary of the State Board of Equalization, Jefferson City, was born in Dubuque, Iowa, January 13, 1846, and is the son of William and Mary E. (Lindsay) Chapman. The father was a native of the town of Newmarket, Canada, and the mother a native of Huntsville, Ala. The paternal grandfather, Stephen Chapman, was born in West Chester, Chester Co., Penn., and emigrated to Canada before the War of 1812. He remained there until after the so-called Canadian Rebellion in 1837. He then immigrated to Ogle County, Ill., where he regained his citizenship. He was a master-builder or contractor, and was a practical mechanic. William Chapman was reared in Canada, and was about twenty-one years of age when he came to the United States. He served in the Canadian army, and after coming to this country settled at Mount Carroll, Ill., where he was married in 1843, and shortly afterward removed to Dubuque, Iowa. From that place he removed to Rockville, in the same State, where he resided until 1849, when he returned to Illinois, settling in Ogle County, residing there until 1857, when he removed to St. Louis, Mo., and from thence to Washington County, in the same State, where he remained until 1862, when he returned to St. Louis, and from there removed in the same year to Clinton County, Ill., where he remained until 1869, when he removed to Patoka, Ill., where he resided until his death, September 30, 1879. The mother died in Clinton County, Ill., in 1868. They were the parents of six children, three now living: Stephen, Julia A. (wife of W. A. Hall) and Douglass. The father was a millwright by trade, which occupation he followed in early life. He afterward studied medicine, and began to practice in 1860, and continued to do so until his death, in 1879. Stephen Chapman was about two years of age when he left Dubuque with his parents. He attended both public and private schools at Potosi and Caledonia, Mo., but the most of his education was picked up at leisure moments while at home, and he may be called a self-educated man. In his youth he learned the miller's trade, which occupation he followed for three years in his father's mill, near Caledonia, Mo. He then started to learn the trade of car-builder in the Ohio & Mississippi shops, but quit to enter the army. During the war he served in the Twenty-sixth Missouri Infantry Volunteers, United States army, and participated in all the principal battles in which his command was engaged, including the famous campaign against Atlanta, the march to the sea and through the Carolinas. He was mustered out in August, 1865, at Benton Barracks, St. Louis. He then went to his father's, in Clinton County, Ill., where he remained, and was engaged in farming until November, 1866, when he went south, and was engaged about a year in the States of Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas, putting up telegraph lines. Returning home he remained at his father's house until November, 1867, when he came to Stoddard County, Mo., where he has since resided. He was variously employed in saw-milling, farming and school-teaching. In 1870 he was elected a justice of the peace in Pike Township, and county superintendent of public schools, which latter position he held for four years. During this time he held, by appointment, the office of probate clerk, and filled the unexpired term of R. M. Fraker (who was removed), as county collector. He afterward engaged in the mercantile business for about three years at Bloomfield, where he has resided since 1871. Retiring from business in 1876 he was appointed deputy clerk of the county court, and in 1878 was elected to that office and re-elected in 1882, holding the office for eight successive years. On retiring from this office in 1887, he was a candidate before the Democratic caucus for chief clerk of the House of Representatives of Missouri, but withdrew on the second ballot. He was appointed by the chief clerk, foreman of the Smooth Journal force, on his staff. This position he held during the regular session of the Thirty-fourth General Assembly. On April 19, 1887, he was elected secretary of the State Board of Equalization, and re-elected February 29, 1888, which office he now fills. He has been town councilman nearly ever since he has lived in Bloomfield, and secretary of the school board for several years. He has also been town clerk. December 24, 1868, he married Miss Nancy J. Pirtle, of Stoddard County, and to them were born five children, four now living: Clarence L., Olive V., Donald R. and Nellie M. Mary Eva is deceased. Mr. and Mrs. Chapman are members of the Missionary Baptist Church, and he is also member of the four bodies of York Rite Masonry, Blue Lodge, Royal Arch Chapter, Council of Royal and Select Masters, and Commandery of Knights Templar. He is also a member of the subordinate lodge of I. O. O. F. He has passed all the chairs of this order, and has been representative in Grand Lodge, has passed all the chairs in the Masonic lodge, and been Master of Bloomfield Lodge for twelve years in succession. He has also served as Grand Junior Deacon in the Masonic Grand Lodge, and is now representative of the Grand Lodge, of Washington Territory, near the Grand Lodge of Missouri. He has served for many years as District Deputy Grand Master in both orders, and has taken great interest in their work.

James Christian, another successful citizen of New Lisbon Township, was born in Hawkins County, Tenn., January 17, 1838, and is the son of Lewis and Mary (Cavin) Christian, also natives of Hawkins County. The father died in that county when James Christian was a small boy. His wife died during the war or in 1862. She was a member of the Baptist Church. To their marriage were born seven children, five now living. James Christian was the sixth of the family. He remained at home until October 28, 1861, when he left home and joined Company D, of the Eleventh Iowa Infantry at Cape Girardeau. He was mustered out at Cartersville, Ga., October 28, 1864, and served with credit for three years. He participated in the battle of Charleston, Mo., and was here wounded by a musket-ball, which disabled him for a short time. He was also in the battle of Iuka, Miss., Corinth, Miss., and Champion's Hill, where he received two severe wounds, which disabled him from duty twenty days. He was at Missionary Ridge and all through the Georgia campaign, was in many skirmishes, and was at the siege and surrender of Vicksburg. After the war Mr. Christian returned to Stoddard County, where he has since resided. He engaged in agricultural pursuits, and was then the owner of fifty acres of land. He now has 190 acres of good land, all well improved. December 11, 1864, he married Miss Elizabeth Seism, a native of Hawkins County, Tenn., born in 1845, and died January 20, 1880. She was not a member of the church, but was an excellent woman, a believer in the teachings of the Bible, and was a true helpmeet. Her parents were John and Lucretia Seism. To Mr. and Mrs. Christian were born five children, four now living: John A., Ida M., Virginia E., George A., and Lucretia Ellen, who is deceased. Mr. Christian is a man well respected by all who know him. He is quartermaster in the G. A. R. post.

Martin V. Cline, farmer, was born in Stoddard County, Mo., in 1839, and is the son of Benjamin and Rillie (Bess) Cline. The father was born in North Carolina in 1812, and was a farmer by occupation. He moved to Stoddard County, Mo., in 1820, while yet quite young, and when this county was a wild wood, and before it had joined the Union. He located eight miles northeast of Bloomfield, and entered 1,000 acres. He died on February 20, 1864, leaving a family of seven children, five living, viz.: Jane Roby, Martha V., Nelson, Mary and Samuel. Martin V. lived with his parents on the old homestead until his marriage, helping his father carry on the work on his farm. He was married, first, in 1859, to Lizzie Stafford, and they had five children, three of whom are living: Isaac, Christa, and Rosena (married to Naman Curby). Mr. Cline's second wife was Sarah Tanksley, who he married in 1871, and they had three children: Samuel, Lydia and Jessie. His third wife was Parlie Sinks, whom he married in 1883. They have had two children, one living, Ned. Mr. and Mrs. Cline are members of the Baptist Church. Mr. Cline is a member of the Agricultural Wheel. He owns 120 acres of fine land, which he purchased in 1883, and has improved eighty acres, which are in cultivation, comprising one of the finest farms for its size in Stoddard County.

George W. Clodfelter was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., August 11, 1839, and is the son of Archie and Mary (Hinkle) Clodfelter, natives of North Carolina. The father was born in 1814, and died in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., with yellow fever, in 1848. He was a farmer. The mother was born in 1815, is now living, and is a resident of Stoddard County. After the death of Mr. Clodfelter she married Thomas Bacon, and moved to Stoddard County in 1848. She is a member of the Christian Church. By the first marriage she became the mother of three children, only one now living. The two deceased were a son and daughter. The latter died when a small child, and the former, Columbus G., died at Cape Girardeau. He was a soldier in the Confederate service. George W. remained with his mother until October 10, 1860, when he married Miss Margaret Barbee. She was born in Lincoln County, Tenn., and died in Stoddard County, Mo., March 15, 1863. To this union was born one daughter, Emma M., who is now the wife of Theodore P. Hughes, a farmer of Stoddard County. October 30, 1865, Mr. Clodfelter married Miss Margaret J. Bloys, a native of Carroll County, Tenn., born December 23, 1843. Six children were born to this union, all living: Alonzo G., Daniel L., William, Elizabeth, Maggie F., Archie B. and Jessie. Mr. Clodfelter has followed farming all his life, and is also interested in stock raising. He is a member of the A. O. U. W., and at one time was marshal in that institution. He is a Democrat politically, and he and wife are members of the Christian Church.

Quintileus P. Coffman, was born in Union County, Ill., December 12, 1841, and is the son of George W. Coffman, a native of Washington County, Tenn., born in 1812. He went to Cole County, Ill., and there married Miss Lucinda Bales, mother of the subject of this sketch. She was born in Washington County, Tenn., in 1824. Mr. Coffman died in 1868. He was a school teacher, but a few years before his death was engaged in merchandising, and he and his partner, Mr. Perkins, built the first business house in the now flourishing town of Charleston. In 1843 he moved to Gibson County, Tenn., and from there to Stoddard County, Mo., in 1858, where he engaged in farming. He was a Democrat until the war, and then became a Republican. Mrs. Coffman died in 1884. Quintileus was the sixth of ten children born to this marriage. His educational advantages were limited to a sister's instruction. In 1861 he left home and went to Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, and remained three years. Before leaving for Ohio he was forced into Thompson's militia, which he was obliged to do in order to save his life. At the end of three months he quit, joined the Union service, and served with the First Wisconsin Cavalry three months, under Capt. Hides. Then after going to Ohio he joined the One Hundred and Thirty-third Ohio Regiment, and participated in the battle of the Wilderness. He also participated in the battle of Bloomfield, Mo. After the war he taught school for several years, after which he turned his attention to farming, which he has since continued. He is now the owner of 160 acres of good land. September 17, 1867, he married Miss Lurinda S. Foster, who, it is thought, was born in New Orleans, May 8, 1845, and died in Stoddard County, Mo., in 1870. Two children, Ida Bell and Albert Clinton, were born to this union, both of whom are now deceased. Mrs. Coffman was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. July 4, 1881, Mr. Coffman married again, and took out the first license issued in the county. He married Mrs. Emma Welch, daughter of G. Hawks and the widow of James Welch. She was born in Monroe County, Tenn., December 11, 1844, and by her marriage to Mr. Coffman became the mother of one child, Ru Otto. Mrs. Coffman is a member of the Christian Church, while Mr. Coffman is a member of the G. A. R., the Wheel, and is a Republican in politics.

Delaware C. Colley, son of James and Henrietta (Maloney) Colley, was born in Charlotte County, Va., February 26, 1829. His paternal grandfather emigrated from England to the colony in Virginia with Lord Baltimore, was killed in the battle of Bunker Hill, and lies buried there. James Colley was a native of Prince Edward County, Va. He moved from there to North Carolina, where he died in Gilpin County, in 1873. He was a consistent member of the Old School Presbyterian Church. His wife was born in Amherst County, Va. Her parents emigrated from Scotland to that State at an early day. Her mother died in Charlotte County, Va., and the father in Rockingham County, N. C., and is buried at Spring Garden. He was buried by the Masonic fraternity, of which order he was a member, being a Royal Arch Mason. He was eighty-three years old at the time of his death, and his wife was eighty-two when she died. To Mr. and Mrs. James Colley were born six children, all living: Jerome F., James A., Delaware C., Luther R., Whitfield M. and Clemantine (wife of Calvin Whitworth). The subject of this sketch, Delaware C., immigrated, with his parents, to Rockingham County, N. C., in 1845 and remained there until 1850, when he moved back to Henry County, Va., and there acted as overseer of the slaves of Capt. William Auglin, for two years. He then went to Phillip T. Hayes' plantation, just across the line in North Carolina, and was overseer of the negroes for one year. From there he went to Surry County, N. C., and was overseer of the plantation of Col. Frank Armstrong, and was also postmaster at Tom's Creek for one year. He then went to Stokes County and taught school one year, then was with Dr. Wethers another year as overseer. He was an overseer of the slaves for about ten years. He moved to Salisbury, N. C., where he was overseer for the Widow Walker, daughter of ex-Gov. Morehead, and principal of the musical department at Edgeworth College, Greensboro. He remained with her two years, and at the breaking out of the war he was detailed for government duty, making shoes for the army, in the employment of John F. Forde and O. G. Forde, contractors for 160,000 pairs of shoes, another contract being for 50,000 pairs. He remained in this position until 1863, when he was detailed to work at home for the community, and in 1864 he was taken to the army in Early's division, Fifty seventh North Carolina Regiment, where he served nine months. He was in Hatcher's Run skirmish, and was at the taking of Petersburg, when he became sick on the night of the battle. He was taken to brigade hospital and was sent to Richmond, where he was captured at the taking of Richmond. He was paroled under the stipulations of Lee's surrender. He then returned home. Previous to all this, in 1850, he married Miss Virginia A. Ashby, a native of Virginia, by whom he had seven children, four now living: Mentora L. (wife of C. A. McCaw), Sarah E. (wife of C. N. Kidd), John W. and Laura B. In 1869 Mr. Colley immigrated to Stoddard County, Mo., and on November 6, of the same year, settled at Bloomfield, where he engaged in the boot and shoe business. This he followed for one year and then rented a farm and engaged in agricultural pursuits for four years. In 1876 he purchased his present property, but January 23, 1879, his house and its contents were destroyed by fire. He now has a good building and a good farm, and is out of debt. He was once a very strong man, but his constitution was broken down and for four years he was unable to swallow a mouthful of solid food, but was obliged to take his food in a liquid state, caused by fibroid tumor. Mr. Colley is an intelligent and enterprising citizen, and his wife is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

John J. Collins. North Carolina is the birthplace of the father of the subject of this sketch, Joseph A. Collins, but it was his home only in his earliest youth, for he left there when but a boy, and after four years in Kentucky, he went to Iuka, Miss., and remained until his twenty-third year. Arkansas, Kentucky, Alabama, Mississippi and Missouri became his successive homes for the rest of his life, his death occurring in the last mentioned State in 1885. It was in Alabama that he met and married Miss Mary A. Potts, who became the mother of his four children. Of these but two are living: Joe Shelby and John J. It was in 1860 in Monroe County, Ark., that the latter was born, and his early homes were, of course, as varied as those of his father. After the death of the latter young Collins married, and began farming on the place now owned by him. His wedding with Miss Jessie J. Webber occurred on April 29, 1883, and the union has been blessed with a son and daughter: John J. A. and Kittie J. E. Mr. Collins began with a small farm in the vicinity of Essex, and has since slowly added to it until his estate now embraces 320 acres in and around Essex, with 150 acres cleared and under cultivation and well improved, making altogether one of the finest farms in his section. Mr. and Mrs. Collins belong to the order of the Golden Rule, and in the Methodist Episcopal Church Mrs. Collins finds her religious home.

William F. Conyer was born in Wilson County, Tenn., January 23, 1844, and is the son of Thomas and Sarah Conyer, about whom nothing more is known. They died when William F. was a small boy. At the age of seven he went to live with his sister in Stoddard County, Mo., and remained there eight years, when he enlisted in Company C, of the Missouri State Militia, Confederate service, where he remained six months. In the fall of 1862 he entered the Enrolled Militia service (Union), served four months, and was at the battle of Bloomfield. He then came back to Stoddard County, and June 18, 1863, he married Miss Fannie Like, a native of Stoddard County, Mo., born June 9, 1846, who died in the same county August 4, 1881, leaving six children, five now living, viz.: Harriet Ann, born December 18, 1866; Sarah Ellen, born March 1, 1869; Drucilla Mary, born July 7, 1871; Susan Catherine, born December 15, 1875, and Nellie Adaline, born July 31, 1878. Martha Jane (married to T. R. Lewis) was born November 17, 1864, and died May 4, 1885; James I., born September 5, 1872, died September 4, 1873. When Mr. Conyer was first married he engaged in farming, and had eighty acres of land. He now owns 320 acres of good land. June 7, 1882, Mr. Conyer married Miss Rosalin Butler, who was born October 9, 1858. Three children were born to this union: Almata Elizabeth, born December 20, 1883, died December 30, 1883; Laura, born December 25, 1884, and William D., born April 8, 1887, both living. Mr. Conyer is a member of the Christian Church; is a member of the Masonic fraternity and of the Wheel, and is a Democrat politically. His wife is a member of the Missionary Baptist Church.

Andrew F. Cooper, of Cooper & Jorndt, proprietors of the elevator and steam flouring-mills at Dexter, was born in Stoddard County, February 1, 1849. The grandparents were living in Tennessee when their son, James A. Cooper, was born in January, 1827. He was still a young man in 1846 when he started for Missouri, and located on a farm about five miles from Dexter. He became an extensive dealer in stock, and for some time held the office of superintendent of public works. For several years he was also deputy sheriff, under James Dowdy, his wife's father. He was captain of a company under Col. Kitchen, and served throughout the war. He was captured at Bloomfield, and sent to Alton, but after his exchange he recruited a company and became its captain. During Price's raid he was wounded in the left arm by a gun-shot. He served gallantly in all the leading engagements west of the Mississippi River. He had been married to Martha Dowdy, a North Carolinian, of Dutch-English origin, and their marriage resulted in nine children, of whom seven are alive: Andrew F., Rachel (a widow), Elizabeth (a widow), Henry, Ambrose, Cordelia (now Mrs. Dr. Brinley) and Thomas. The father died in December, 1877, and the mother followed him in the following May. Andrew remained with his parents until twenty-three years of age, receiving his education in the country schools. He had learned milling when a youth, and a partnership in that business between him and his father lasted until the latter's death. He then managed the business alone until 1885, when he and his present partner erected their present extensive mills. The building is a large four-story frame, 36x50 feet, with a roller-process outfit able to turn out seventy barrels every twenty-four hours. The mill is the largest south of Jackson, Mo., and they ship to all points south. Mr. Cooper was married in 1870 to Elizabeth Temple, of this county, and their union has resulted in three children: Martha, Libbie and James. Mr. Cooper shows his fraternal spirit in attachment to three orders: A. F. & A. M., K. of H. and K. of P., and otherwise leads the life of a public spirited citizen.

Walter C. Crews, a prominent citizen of New Lisbon Township and the son of M. and Permelia (Cardwell) Crews, was born in Halifax County, Va., May 18, 1838. His parents were natives of Halifax County also. The father was born December 6, 1816, and died in Stoddard County, Mo., November 23, 1877. In his boyhood days Mr. Crews learned the cabinet maker's trade, and was a good mechanic. After a time he engaged in farming, and the last five years of his life he sold drugs at Leora, and made a decided success at that business. He had held pharmacy during his youth and understood the business. He was justice of the peace for some time, and was well liked by all who knew him. He was a member of the Baptist Church, and a deacon for many years. He was a Republican in politics. The mother was born in Halifax County, Va., September 24, 1818, and died in Stoddard County, Mo., October 23, 1889. She was also a member of the Baptist Church. Walter C. Crews was the eldest of nine children, five of whom are living. These are Walter C., Harriet F. (wife of William A. Tucker, deceased), Isaac H., Elizabeth A. (wife of Benton Strong, deceased) and Mary V. (wife of John Hopgood.) Walter C. received a liberal English education at the schools in Virginia, and was but seven years old when his parents moved to Charlotte County, of that State, and in 1859 from there to Carroll County, and finally from there to Stoddard County, Mo. He remained with his parents, and worked and managed the farm until twenty-five years of age. October 25, 1860, he married Miss Mary J. Pearman, a daughter of James Pearman, and a native of Halifax County, born in 1840. Nine children were born to this union, seven now living: Louisa F. (wife of W. B. Scott), Cyrus G., Susan D. (wife of James Jackson), Virginia (wife of Robert Jackson, deceased), Melissa J. (wife of Jonas Wilson), Adair A. and Luther R. Samuel S. died when eighteen months old, and William A. died when an infant. After marriage Mr. Crews purchased a farm south of Castor River, where he lived until 1870, when he sold out to go to Texas, but did not go. Instead he engaged in the drug and grocery business at Leora, where he continued two years. He then sold his stock of goods and purchased his present farm, which consists of 314 acres, 120 cultivated. He is a Republican in his political views, and was of the Baptist persuasion until that church went down. His wife is a member of the Christian Church.

G. H. Crosser, postmaster at Bloomfield, and the son of Wiley L. and Martha (Horton) Crosser, was born in Stoddard County, Mo., November 19, 1853. His parents were natives of Middle Tennessee, but were reared in Western Tennessee. The father was a farmer by occupation. He immigrated to Stoddard County, Mo., in 1853, and located seven miles west of Bloomfield, where he purchased land, and resided until his death in 1881. The mother is still living, and is residing with her son George H. Of the ten children born to their marriage, only five are now living: Theresa, George H., Lucetta, Orlena and Mary E. Henry Crosser, grandfather of our subject, was born in North Carolina and died in West Tennessee. George H. Crosser remained with his parents engaged in agricultural pursuits until twenty-one years of age, when he engaged in school teaching, and followed this occupation two terms. In the fall of 1874 he was employed as clerk in the drug store of W. P. Renners, and there remained until 1877, when he was taken in as a partner. They then moved to Dexter, where they continued the drug business until 1881. While there he was postmaster. He was married in 1880 to Mrs. Minnie Slaughter, of Kentucky, by whom he had three children: Candace M., M. B. and George. Mrs. Crosser had two children by her former marriages, Edna R. Hight and Fred H. Slaughter. The next year after his marriage Mr. Crosser moved to Bloomfield, and engaged in the drug business for himself. In 1883 he associated with P. G. Wilson, and the firm title is now Crosser & Co. He was appointed postmaster in 1885, and took charge of the office January 11, 1886. Mr. Crosser is an intelligent and enterprising young man, and is a member of the I. O. O. F., having passed all the chairs in his order.

John B. Davis, farmer, was born in New Madrid County, Mo., in October, 1831. In April, of the first year of this century, there was born in South Carolina Joseph B. Davis, who was but a child when his parents embarked in "the ship of the plains," and finally located in New Madrid, Mo. Here he spent his life as a farmer, and with his estimable wife, Eliza (Bartlett) Davis, reared a family of eight children, four of whom have survived. These are Lucinda (now Mrs. Willis), Maynor, Nancy J. (now Mrs. J. Jackson), Cloussy E. (now Mrs. John Emerson) and John B., the subject of this sketch. The father died in 1875. Young Davis lived at home until he reached the age of twenty-two years, and in April, 1853, was married to Lucinda Tankesley. The union has resulted in twelve children, only four of whom are now living, viz.: Joseph, Sarah E., Hop Ross, Eliza H. (now Mrs. Franklin Ott) and Emma. Mr. Davis' war record covers about four years. He entered the army under Gen. Watkins in 1861, and about two months later was transferred to Gen. Thompson's command, where he served until 1865. After his discharge he resumed rural life in Stoddard County, and afterward entered his present home of 164 acres of raw land, which he has subdivided partly so that he now cultivates about sixty acres. It is fine bottom land, and the adjacent acres are owned by his two sons-in-law. Mr. Davis is a member of the order of the Wheel, and his wife is a member of the Baptist Church.

Rev. Thomas J. Davis. In the war of the Revolution, under the immediate command of Washington, was a man named Wheatley, a Pennsylvanian, who also served under Gen. Marion in the famous Black Hawk War. It was his daughter, Eliza, who became the wife of George Davis, a Virginian, born in 1806 into an old family of the "Old Dominion." The young couple moved to Western Tennessee, where, in Weakley County, on January 23, 1840, was born to them the subject of this sketch. In 1847 they set out for the West in wagons, crossing the Mississippi River at what is now Hickman, then traveling by way of Cape Girardeau to Stoddard County. Five miles west of Bloomfield they entered eighty acres of land, but in 1854 removed to Dunklin County—the last of his homes on earth, for his death occurred there in 1868. But three of a large family of ten children have survived him: William A., Louisa J. (now Mrs. R. M. Hatley) and Thomas J. Rev. Davis lived at home after his marriage, and cared for his parents, but after the death of his father took his mother to his own home to cheer her declining years. It was on the 6th of October, 1862, that Miss Augustine Hodges became his wife, and to them have been born the following children: Caroline (now Mrs. J. W. Snyder), Louisa E. (now Mrs. J. B. Higginbotham), Minerva, Nancy J., Pleasant R., Dora A., Amanda and Thomas D. In September, 1868, he joined the General Baptist Church, and the following year was ordained a minister, by the Liberty Baptist Association. Although Rev. Davis purchased a farm of eighty acres near Dexter, and is active enough in its cultivation to have placed twenty acres under cultivation, he has labored extensively and with marked results in his pastorate. In twenty years of ministry he has baptized 811 persons, established eight churches, and traveled 3,700 miles in a single year to attend to such duties. At the present writing he has charge of three churches, Essex, Malden and Beechwell, the last of which has been under his charge for twenty years. In a single year he has had control of seven churches. His wife and two daughters are members also. Rev. Davis is a member of several fraternities: F. & A. M., I. O. O. F., A. O. U. W. and the Agricultural Wheel, of Essex, of which latter he is a charter member.

Leecil B. Day, whose birth occurred May 22, 1844, in Walker County, Ga., is the son of Lot and Deborah (Shew) Day, who were natives of Virginia. The father was born about 1798, and died November 3, 1854, in Cherokee County, Ala., where he was then living. They were married in Alabama, April 20, 1843. Mr. Day followed the occupation of a cooper in the winter and farming in the summer. He was justice of the peace for many years, and he and his father were in the War of 1812 and at the battle of New Orleans. His wife died in Arkansas, in 1877. They were members of the Baptist Church. The grandfather, Nicholas Day, who, with his son, was a soldier in the War of 1812, was also a Revolutionary soldier, and was at the battle of Bunker Hill and Brandywine, where he was slightly wounded. Leecil B. Day, at the age of twelve, moved with his mother to Missouri, where she married John Holland and moved to Arkansas. Leecil then began working for himself as a farmer, with very limited means. November 18, 1865, he married Miss Mary Jane Shook, who was the daughter of Hiram Shook. She was born in Stoddard County, Mo., March 15, 1846, and died November 20, 1868. By this union two children were born, Thomas M., and Martha, who died when an infant. March 18, 1869, Mr. Day married Orinda Rauls, a native of Madison County, Mo., born February 9, 1848, who died October 17, 1871. One child, Susannah, was born to this union, and died when an infant. October 30, 1873, Mr. Day married his third wife, Mary E. Wookey, a native of Stoddard County, Mo., born December 10, 1832, and died January 21, 1876. The result of this union was the birth of one child, Alexander, who is now living. Mrs. Day was the widow of Thomas C. Wookey, by whom she had three children: George H., Mary E. (deceased) and Andrew J. June 5, 1877, Mr. Day married L. A. Hammond, daughter of T. G. Hammond. She was born in Union County, Ill., February 28, 1857, and by her marriage became the mother of five children: O. M., N. J., D. A., O. C. and J. H., who died in infancy. Immediately after the war, Mr. Day began traveling and visited most of the States in the Union, and when first married had barely enough money to pay the preacher. He now owns 360 acres of good land. He is a member of the Masonic lodge, a member of the Wheel, and is a hearty supporter of the Democratic party. He and wife are members of the Baptist Church.

Risten DeFord, farmer, postoffice Bloomfield, was born in Talbot County, Md., in 1819, and is the son of Risten and Nancy (Davis) Ford. The father dying early left his wife with eight children, seven of whom she reared, all marrying and settling in different States. Risten DeFord, in 1875, immigrated west and settled in Monroe County, Ill., where he stayed two years farming and merchandising. At the end of that time he had concluded to go further west and came to Stoddard County, Mo., and located at Dudley, from there moving to Bloomfield, but finally he purchased the place he now owns and occupies. He married, in 1845, Eliza Jane Bannister, who bore two children, George Washington and Ida L. His wife dying, he married again, in 1875, Nancy Williams, now also deceased. His third marriage was in 1886, to a widow, Frances A. Watley. In 1862 Mr. DeFord joined the Union army and served under Col. E. G. Allen. He was lieutenant, and resigned in 1863 on account of having contracted rheumatism. Coming home, he followed engineering at the public works and saw mills until he purchased his present home and then settled down to farming. He owns forty acres of very valuable bottom land. Mr. DeFord is an ordained minister of the Christian Church, and has occupied that position three years. He belongs to the Agricultural Wheel.

James W. Denny, retired farmer, and one of the pioneer settlers of Stoddard County, Mo., was born in Pike County, of the same State, April 24, 1824, and is the son of John M. and Rosa (Walker) Denny. The father was a native of Kentucky, and the mother of Virginia, and both were of Irish descent. The paternal grandfather, William Denny, immigrated to Kentucky at a very early date, and was there during the War of 1812. John M. Denny immigrated from Pike County, Mo., with his family, in 1838, to Stoddard County, and stopped at Bloomfield, May 24, of the same year, when there were but few houses. He was a farmer by occupation and also a surveyor, making the first survey of the swamp lands donated to the county. He was county surveyor from 1846 up to the time of his death, which occurred September 21, 1881, at the age of fifty-four years. He located one mile north of Bloomfield, in 1841, and settled in the woods on government land. He was justice of the peace for a number of years, and was one of the very early settlers of the county. His wife died August 7, 1861. They were the parents of five children, two now living: James W. and Rhoda (wife of M. Walker). James W. was in his fifteenth year when he came to this county. He remained with his parents until 1845, when he married Miss Mary A. Reed, who bore him six children, four now living: John M., Elizabeth, Samuel A. and Nancy R. (wife of W. D. Scism). After marriage Mr. Denny settled close to Bloomfield, where he remained a short time. In 1854 he moved to the place he now owns, where he has since resided, with the exception of a few years during the war, which were spent in Cape Girardeau and New Madrid Counties. In 1862 he enlisted in the State Guards, or Militia, and served a few months, when he was dismissed. When the second call was made he enlisted, and served four months. He was in one skirmish at Bloomfield, and was captain of the entire militia of Stoddard County. In 1884 he was elected county judge of the First District, and served one term. He now has eighty acres of excellent land, and is one of the prominent men of Stoddard County. He had the misfortune to lose his wife September 1, 1887. She was a consistent member of the Missionary Baptist Church, as is Mr. Denny and all his children. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, Blue Lodge and Royal Arch, being a high Mason. He is now quite aged, but possesses a remarkable memory and talent in conversation. May his days yet number many.

John M. Denny, son of James W. and Mary A. (Reed) Denny, was born in Stoddard County, Mo., February 6, 1847. His parents were natives of Missouri and Tennessee, respectively. They were early settlers of Stoddard County, and settled near Bloomfield. The father is still living, but the mother died in 1887. They were the parents of six children, four now living: Sarah (wife of Robert Jenkins), John M., William (deceased), Charles (deceased), Samuel and Nancy (wife of W. D. Scism). John M. Denny was reared to farm life, and assisted his parents on the farm until he became of age. In 1865 he enlisted in Company C, Second Missouri Artillery, but afterward enlisted in the Seventy-ninth Missouri Cavalry, where he remained until the close of the war. He was married in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in 1869, to Miss Sarah C. Ferrell, a daughter of Levi and Sarah Ferrell. By this marriage Mr. Denny became the father of three children, only one now living, Leber F. In 1872 Mr. Denny located where he now lives, after living three years in Cape Girardeau and four years in New Madrid County. He has a good farm of 109 acres, sixty under cultivation. He also deals somewhat in stock. In 1876 Mrs. Denny died, and in 1871 he married Nancy Reed, by whom he had two children, one now living, Robert. Mrs. Denny died September 7, 1887. She was a member of the Missionary Baptist Church, of which Mr. Denny is also a member. Mr. Denny is a member of the Agricultural Wheel, of which he is president, and is one of the substantial farmers of Stoddard County.

James H. Dodson, M. D., a well known physician and surgeon of Bloomfield, Mo., was born in Ballard County, Ky., June 24, 1831, being the eldest of four children in the family of his parents, Dr. Jesse and Elisabeth R. (Hardin) Dodson. The former was born and reared in the Old Dominion, and subsequently located in Kentucky, where he devoted his life to his profession. When a young man he was commissioned surgeon in the War of 1812, but did not serve; his death occurred in 1840. Hardin County, Tenn., was named after his wife's father. James H. Dodson was brought up in his native State to the age of fifteen, his limited opportunities for acquiring an education being greatly improved by instruction received from his mother, a woman of rare domestic virtues and intellectual worth. In 1846 he came with her to Stoddard County, Mo., and resumed his studies with a determination and assiduity which soon enabled him to engage in teaching a country school. Later on he went to Bloomfield, and under the valued instruction of William G. Phelan, a highly accomplished scholar, he pursued a classic course for eighteen months, when Mr. Phelan turned his attention to the practice of law, in which he afterward achieved a wide reputation. Young Dodson again resumed teaching, having charge of a three-months' school, after which he entered Pleasant Hill Academy, became assistant teacher, and at the same time pursued three studies. Returning to Bloomfield he obtained about $100 per month by teaching three sessions of school, when, having determined to follow the profession of his honored father, he commenced the study of medicine under Dr. J. D. Smith, with whom he remained some time. Just before his majority he was appointed school commissioner of the county, at a time when numerous irregularities in the official conduct of this office made the position an unenviable one. But with rare wisdom and faithfulness he so conducted himself as to win universal commendation and favor, the support given him indicating the esteem in which he was held. In 1857 he entered the medical department of the University of Louisiana, at New Orleans, and in the spring of 1858 located in Jackson County, Ill., where he practiced medicine with Dr. E. H. Dodson until 1860. Then entering the St. Louis Medical College he was graduated from that institution, and subsequently returned to Illinois, taking up a location at Dongola, where he practiced until 1863. Feeling the necessity of still greater professional knowledge, Dr. Dodson went to New York City and attended Bellevue Hospital Medical College in 1863-64, taking private instruction under Profs. Austin Flint, Sr. and Jr., and under Prof. Stephen Smith. In the spring of 1864 he resumed his professional practice at Dongola, enjoying a most extensive and successful patronage, but at such loss to his health that he returned to his native county in Kentucky. In 1876 he attended a course of lectures at the Missouri Medical College. In 1868 he became permanently located at Bloomfield, where his subsequent professional career has been an enviable one. The Doctor is a man of liberal ideas in his profession, deeming it to be the physician's duty to avoid as well as to cure sickness. He is a great friend of the free school system of education, supports all worthy enterprises tending to the good of the community, and is ever found ready to lend his influence in behalf of measures honorable and beneficial. His wife was formerly Miss Allie Malaskey, of Dongola, Ill., an accomplished lady, who has proven to be to the Doctor what a great governor of Missouri said of wives—that they were good advisors and safe. Their family consists of Ellen E., Mary A., Allie, Elsie and Ida Bedford Dodson. Dr. Dodson has passed the various degrees of Masonry up to and including the Royal and Select Masters.

Thomas N. Doherty, merchant at Dexter, was born in Carroll County, Tenn., July 26, 1845. That same year his father, Thomas Doherty, died, leaving his wife, Mary (Peoples) Doherty and her children, of whom John P. and Thomas N. are the only survivors. The elder Doherty and his wife were both natives of Tennessee, where he was engaged in farming and dealing in merchandise, and where for several years he was a large slave-holder. Mrs. Doherty followed her husband to his last resting place in 1858, and left the subject of this sketch an orphan at an early age. Thomas N. lived with a relative until 1861, and attended school at Newburn Academy, Dyer County, Tenn. He then came to New Madrid County, Mo., and until 1865 was engaged in farming for J. T. Cannon, but returning to Tennessee he became a salesman at Gardner Station, and for a year followed his duties in a grocery store. For the next five years he was located at Union City, Tenn., as the clerk in the Metropolitan Hotel of that place. Since 1875, however, he has been settled in the mercantile life at Dexter, and with excellent results. For the time before 1878 he was a partner in the firm of Bracken & Son, general merchants, but at that date, purchased both partners' shares, and has since conducted the business alone. His stock is now valued at from $6,000 to $10,000, and occupies two large store-rooms. He is also merchant for the Agricultural Wheel order. December 9, 1880, he married Mary L. Roberts, of Missouri, and the family embraces three children: Alice, Evaline and William T. Both Mr. and Mrs. Doherty are members of the Christian Church, and two fraternities (the I. O. O. F. and K. of H.) claim Mr. Doherty as one of their number.

William P. Dowdy, farmer, was born in Stoddard County, Mo., in 1858, and is the son of Judge C. M. and Mary (Antony) Dowdy. The father was born in Middle Tennessee about the year 1808, and resided there and farmed until he moved to Kentucky, where he lived six or seven years. Subsequently he moved to this county and located about seven miles southeast of Bloomfield. He was justice of the peace in his district for a number of years, and in 1876 was elected judge of the county court, which office he held for two years. He died in 1881. He had eleven children, five living, viz.: James P., B. F., Frances, Albert J. and William P., all of whom are married except Albert J. and Frances. The subject of this sketch remained with his father until he was twenty-one years old, when he married, and shortly afterward commenced farming. He married Amanda Galloway in 1884, and they have had two children, little May being the only one living. Both Mr. and Mrs. Dowdy are members of the Baptist Church. Mr. Dowdy is a member of the Agricultural Wheel.

William Durham, farmer, was born in Obion County, Tenn., and is the son of Ezra and Nancy (Vincent) Durham, who were both born in Tennessee, and died when the subject of this sketch was quite young. After his parents' death, William was compelled to work out for a living, receiving no education and not even ordinary advantages for his chance through life. He came from Tennessee when quite small and located in Pemiscot County, Mo., where he remained about three years, following farming, after which he moved to Stoddard County, locating about one mile north of Essex. At first he farmed on several farms in the vicinity, and now lives two miles south of Essex, where he has made his home for five years. He has been married four times; first, to Nancy Smith, by whom he had three children, one living—Laura Elizabeth. His second wife was Sophia Hooks. Again losing his wife, he married the third time Mary J. Murphy, and had one child, William P. Eveline Johnson became his fourth wife, and they have had one child, James A. Mr. Durham is a member of the Agricultural Wheel and belongs to the Baptist Church. His wife is a Methodist.

Judge Stephen Elliott, another prominent citizen of New Lisbon Township, was born in Jackson County, Ala., January 28, 1840, his parents being Henry and Martha (Johnson) Elliott, who were natives of Franklin County, Tenn. The father was born August 19, 1812, and died September 8, 1876. He was married in Tennessee, and moved to Alabama soon after, where he lived until Stephen Elliott was about seven years of age. He then moved to Arkansas, where he lived until 1864, when he located in Perry County. He lived there one year, and one year in Cape Girardeau County, after which he moved to Stoddard County, and there passed the remainder of his days. He was a natural mechanic, was a good shoemaker or cooper, but farming has been his occupation through life. During the Seminole War, in 1835, he served through the war as a private, and was in all the principal battles. He was successful in all he undertook, and was quite wealthy, but broke up during the war. His wife died in 1832, and was about thirty-five years of age at the time of her death. He married twice after this, the first time Elizabeth Brandon, and after her death he married Mrs. Mary Ann Tuggle, who died a short time previous to his death. No children were born but to the first marriage, which resulted in the birth of eight children, only two now living, Judge Stephen Elliott and Eliza Ann (now the wife of J. J. Riden, and she is living in Lawrence County, Ark.). Stephen Elliott lived with his father until July, 1861, when he enlisted in Company H, of the Seventh Arkansas Infantry, and served twelve months, when he was discharged on account of disability. Previous to this, in 1860, he married Miss Isabel Jane Smith, who was a native of Arkansas, born January 27, 1841, and who died November 27, 1861. One child, William H., was born to this union.

He died two days before the death of his mother. In 1863 Mr. Elliott enlisted in Capt. Dye's cavalry, and served about seven months, when the company was disbanded. During the time in service he participated in the battle of Helena, Ark. In the latter part of 1864 he came with his father to Missouri, and after living in Perry and Cape Girardeau Counties until 1867, he came to Stoddard County, where he has since remained. He is now the owner of a well located and well improved farm. On February 5, 1866, he married Miss Caroline Askew, a native of Independence County, Ark., born October 14, 1848. She is the daughter of Caswell and Martha Askew. They moved to Stoddard County, where they passed their last days. To the Judge and his wife were born eight children, seven now living: Martha Ann, James A., Emma Bell, Missouri May, Charles N., Alice V. and Clara Edith. Annie J. died when eleven years of age. Mrs. Elliott is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Judge Elliott is a member of the I. O. O. F., also a member of the Wheel, and is a Democrat politically. In 1880 he was elected county judge from District No. 2, and re-elected two years later.

George W. Ellis was born in Saratoga County, N. Y., February 22, 1824, his parents being Freeman and Elizabeth (Wilson) Ellis, who were also natives of the same State. The grandparents came from Glasgow, Scotland, and settled in the Empire State, where they resided the remainder of their days. The grandfather served in the Revolutionary War. Freeman Ellis was a York State farmer, and died in 1882, his widow living three years later. Of their five children, only four are living: George W., Charles, Samuel and Amelia. George W. Ellis moved to Kansas in 1853, and there resided until 1861, when the depredations of the border ruffians grew so annoying that he was compelled to leave. In 1861 he enlisted in the Seventh Kansas Cavalry, and served until the close of the war, being mustered out in 1865. He participated in all the principal engagements west of the Mississippi River, and was taken prisoner at Guntown, Miss., and after some time was taken to Vicksburg, where he was exchanged. He was four months in prison. In 1865 he settled in Stoddard County, Mo., and there has since resided. He owns 208 acres of land, partially improved. In 1871 he was elected judge of Stoddard County, and served one term. He has held the office of road commissioner for four years, and has been justice of the peace one year. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., and is an intelligent and enterprising citizen.

James Y. Evans was born in Forsyth County, N. C., in December, 1847, the son of David and Mary (Whicker) Evans, who were also North Carolinians, both born in 1812. The grandfather, David Evans, was a Virginian, and was an early immigrant to North Carolina. He was a participant in many of the early wars of this country. His son David was a farmer, and in 1847 removed, with his family, to Carroll County, Tenn., where he purchased a farm and remained until 1857. At that time he came to Stoddard County, Mo., and about two weeks after his arrival purchased the farm where his son, James Y. Evans, now resides. Here he lived until his death, which occurred in March, 1880. His wife died in 1875. They were the parents of three children: Sarah J. (Mrs. S. W. McCarroll), James Y. and Mary S. (Mrs. John H. Harper). The farm purchased by Mr. Evans was timber land. This he cleared off, and the property is now one of the finest in the county. His son James received but little early education, but is a well posted man in the business affairs of life. He owns 140 acres of land, about 100 of which are under cultivation. He was married September 7, 1869, to Susan N., daughter of David Lewis, and by her became the father of ten children, eight of whom are living: Walter M., Laura V., Emily F., Margaret E., James D., Cora N., Marion W. and Rossey M. Those who are deceased are Sarah A. and Susanna D. Mr. Evans and wife are members of the Knights of the Golden Rule, and he of the Agricultural Wheel. She is a member of the Missionary Baptist Church.

David C. Fortner, farmer, was born in Tennessee on March 15, 1842, and is the son of Lem and Polly (Vaughn) Fortner. The father was born in North Carolina, and the mother in Tennessee. He moved from North Carolina to Tennessee when quite a boy, and, after becoming old enough, was married there, where he resided until his death. They had eleven children, nine of whom survive: John, Andy, Charley, Terry, Betty, Robert, Dicy, James and David. The latter, having lost his parents when but ten years old, was adopted by Mr. Terrell Gray, but, becoming dissatisfied, he left and went to his grandmother's, where he remained until he was grown. He then hired himself out at monthly labor until he married, in December, 1880, Nancy Ann Vaughn, by whom he has three children, all living, viz.: William R., Polly A. and Nora L. Mr. Fortner owns 120 acres of land, with about eighty acres in cultivation, a prominent feature of which is a pretty neat dwelling and good outhouses. Mr. Fortner, in connection with A. M. Brown, is running a grist mill at Penhook, and they intend to attach a saw mill and gin to it, which, when completed, will be an enterprise much needed, and, it is to be hoped, a remunerative one.

William S. Galloway, farmer, postoffice Essex, was born in Stoddard County, Mo., and is the son of Thomas and Frances (Pington) Galloway. The father was born in Middle Tennessee in or about 1838, and, while quite young, his parents moved to Stoddard County, Mo., carrying on farming as an occupation. They had a family of seven children, four of whom are living, viz.: Nancy (Mrs. John Smith), Mary (Mrs. Joseph Davis), Amanda (Mrs. W. P. Dowdy) and William S. Galloway. Thomas Galloway entered the army, and served during the entire time with the Southern forces. At the close of the strife he returned home and farmed on his place until he died, in 1878. William S. stayed with his parents until he was over age, and until his father's death, when he married and took his mother to care for and cherish in her declining years. He married, October 18, 1885, Ida Walker, and by her has had one child, now deceased. Mr. Galloway owns forty-six and one-half acres of land, which he bought in 1884 and has since improved. He is a member of the Agricultural Wheel.

Jesse L. Garner, farmer and stock dealer of Stoddard County, Mo., was born on the farm which he now owns on December 13, 1835, and is a son of Jordan and Sarah (Norman) Garner, both of whom were born in the Old North State. They located in Stoddard County, Mo., at an early day, and here the father died in January, 1878. His widow is still living. Jesse L. grew to manhood on this farm. In the spring of 1862 he enlisted in the Twelfth Missouri State militia, which was afterward consolidated with the Fifth Missouri State militia, and served until mustered out in February, 1865. He returned home, and engaged in tilling his present farm. He first purchased 100 acres of land, and afterward purchased eighty acres more. He now has about 180 acres. On September 23, 1861, he married Eliza Ray, of Stoddard County. She died December 25, 1879, leaving two children, Samuel and Albert (deceased). His present wife was Rhoda Singleton, whom he married in May, 1880. She was born in the county, and is the daughter of James Singleton (deceased). She has two children, Clerzy and Ida.

Judge Zachariah Goforth, one of New Lisbon's enterprising citizens, was born in Washington County, near Potosi, Mo., January 15, 1833, and is the son of Basil and Zilphia (Stout) Goforth, natives of Georgia and North Carolina, respectively. Basil Goforth moved from Georgia to East Tennessee, where he married. He then came to Washington County, Mo., where he remained several years, after which he came to Stoddard County, Mo., in 1835. Here the father died in 1865, and was seventy-six years of age at the time of his death. In his youth he joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, and later became a minister, serving as such over forty years. He was also a farmer. He was a soldier of the War of 1812, and a good citizen. His wife was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church for many years. She died in 1875 or 1876, and was about seventy-eight at the time of death. To their marriage were born nine children, only three now living. Judge Zachariah was the sixth child born to this union. He had limited educational advantages, but by his own efforts and by observation has become a well-informed man. In 1851 he began for himself as a farmer, and two years later he went to California, crossing the plains with ox teams, and was over four months making the trip. He remained there three years, mining the first year, and for the next two years ran pack trains. In the latter part of 1856 he returned to Stoddard County, by way of the Isthmus, and again engaged in farming. April 10, 1857, he married Miss Margaret Robinson, a daughter of John W. Robinson, a native of North Carolina, born in 1835 or 1836. She is the mother of eight children, five now living: Preston B., Clara, John, Robert D. and Benjamin. Those deceased are William Bell, Oscar and Samuel. In March, 1862, the Judge enlisted in Company B, First Indiana Cavalry, and served three years as first duty sergeant. He participated in many battles, the principal ones being Helena, Ark., Little Rock, Mark's Mill on Saline River, and was then on the Price raid, but was never wounded, taken prisoner, or in a hospital. In 1886 he was elected county judge from District No. 3 of Stoddard County. He and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South

He is a member of the Wheel, being president of Leora Wheel, No. 144. He is a Democrat in politics, and an excellent citizen.

William C. Gray, farmer, was born in East Tennessee, in 1843, and is the son of James and Lucinda (Woolphinbarger) Gray, both natives of Tennessee, where they farmed as an occupation. Thinking that they could improve their fortunes out west, they left that State and in 1860 located ten miles southeast of Bloomfield, on the ridge that bears their name, "Gray's Ridge," a beautiful strip of country about six miles long and half a mile wide. Mr. Gray died in 1872, having had by his wife nine children, three of whom are living: Joseph A., Tillman C. and William C., the subject of this sketch. The latter lived with his father until he entered the army in 1862, enlisting in Company G, Twenty-ninth Regiment Missouri Volunteer Infantry, commanded by Capt. McGarvey, of Cape Girardeau, in which company he remained until the close of the war in 1865. He was in the battles of Chattanooga, Lookout Mountain, Atlanta, Ga., at the siege of Vicksburg, Miss., Greensboro, N. C., and many other skirmishes and fightings, but fortune favored him in going through the entire war without any serious wound. He was mustered out on June 12, 1865, at Washington, D. C., and then returned home and resumed farming. Mr. Gray was married on the 26th of May, 1866, to Ruthie Long, and they had three children, of whom James W. survives. In 1874 he was unfortunate in losing his wife by death, and in 1875 he married Mary Byron, and has by her four children, two living, viz.: Thomas F. and Bessie E. This wife also dying, Mr. Gray married the third time in 1882, Laura Kincaid, who died in 1885, leaving one child, John T. Mr. Gray is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He owns forty acres of land, of which twenty acres are under cultivation.

Alexander Gregory is a native of Schuyler County, Ill., born January 17, 1843, and is the son of William H. and Malinda (Coons) Gregory. The father was born near Culpeper Courthouse and died in Schuyler County, Ill., in 1887, at the unusual age of ninety-five. When a young man he moved to Tennessee, and from there to where the city of Crawfordsville, Ind., now stands. After a time he moved to Schuyler County, Ill., where he lived. He was a farmer all his life and in his younger days drove a great deal of stock through to Georgia. While living in Tennessee he was captain of the militia. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church and a moral man all his life. His wife was a native of Tennessee, and was also a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. To this union were born thirteen children. Alexander Gregory remained at home and worked on his father's farm until in 1865, when he enlisted in Company G, of the Eleventh Illinois Cavalry, and served until the close of hostilities. In 1866, September 13, he married Miss Melissa Wolfe, who was born in the State of Iowa, in March, 1842. She is the daughter of John and Anna Wolfe. To this marriage have been born five children, four now living: William H., Minnie L., Daniel D. and Isa M. Annie E. is deceased. After marriage Mr. Gregory began farming, which he has ever since continued. In 1878 he moved to Iowa, passed one winter and then moved to DeKalb County, Mo., where he remained one summer. He then moved to Daviess County, Mo., and in 1886 he purchased his present farm. Mr. Gregory is a Republican in politics, is a member of the G. A. R., being S. V. C., and his wife is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Thomas A. Hale, a successful agriculturist, was born in Bath County, Ky., January 5, 1824, and is the son of Matthew and Mahala (Ledford) Hale, natives of Hampshire County, Va., and Bath County, Ky., respectively. The father was born in 1795, came with his parents to Kentucky, when he was quite small, and in this State he was reared, and remained until 1841, when he removed to Wabash County, Ind. He died in Huntington County, in 1876. The mother, who was born in 1804, died in Wabash County, Ind., in 1853. Of the twelve children born to their marriage, seven are now living: Thomas A., Evaline N., Caroline C., Van W., Emma E., Amanda A. and Mary F. Thomas A. was about eighteen years of age when he moved to Indiana with his parents. Here he made his home until 1881, and has followed farming all his life. At the last named date, he moved to Stoddard County, Mo., and located where he now lives. He purchased eighty acres of land, which is mostly under cultivation, and well improved. He was married in 1854, to Miss Ann Sims, a native of Rush County, Ind., who bore him four children, three now living: Marshall H., Sanford R. and James M. Mr. Hale is a member of the Agricultural Wheel, and his wife is a member of the Christian Church.

Joseph A. Hambleton. In the early settlement of North Carolina, there came a family from England named Hambleton, and one from Ireland, bearing the name of Campbell. A son in the former family, William H., and a daughter in the latter, Matilda, were born in that new country, and afterward became man and wife. The Hambleton family moved west to Henderson County, Tenn., but in 1850 boarded a flat-boat down the Tennessee, and at Paducah, Ky., took steamer for Cape Girardeau, where the early ships of the plain were to carry them to the site of Stoddard County, Mo. They located about twelve miles southeast of Bloomfield and settled on unsurveyed land, populous in wild animals and game, to such an extent that the domestic animals were in constant danger from wolves. In 1849 the death of Grandfather Hambleton occurred, and while Grandfather Campbell was visiting his daughter, in 1855, he also was taken away. It was in the spring of 1861, while the father was out showing the way to a tract of land sought by some strangers, that while the party was diverting themselves with hunting, the father was mistaken for a deer in a clump of brush, and was shot. He lived about twenty-four hours. Four of his eight children are now living: Joseph A., John P., Samuel A. and Daniel L. The subject of this sketch was born in Henderson County, Tenn., in July, 1840, and lived at home after his father's death, until he joined the Missouri State Guards, called out by Gov. Jackson. After six months with them, he joined the Confederate forces, under Col. W. L. Jeffrey, and served until the surrender, at Shreveport, La., in 1865. He was in the battles at Belmont, Pilot Knob, Helena (Ark.), Chalk Bluff and other places, receiving a flesh-wound in the leg, and also in the arm. After reporting to Maj. Montgomery, of the Union forces, he was allowed to remain at home, where he soon after lost his mother. In July, 1862, he married Mary C. Smith. Of their three children, two, Amanda (now Mrs. H. F. Dowdy) and Mary Alice (now Mrs. John Dennington), are living. He lived at his wife's home, near Essex, until 1874, and then, after a short time in Wayne County, returned and located in Bloomfield. At Piedmont, he served as city marshal, and spent about four years as deputy sheriff at Bloomfield. The next four years he and his brother were merchants at Essex, and in 1882 he settled on his present farm, embracing 200 acres, four miles from Dexter; 135 acres of this are finely improved. Mrs. Hambleton and the children are members of the General Baptist Church. Mr. Hambleton has been an Odd Fellow from his early years.

I. Himmelberger & Co., Buffington, Mo. This firm is composed of Isaac Himmelberger and his son, John H. The father was born in the State of Pennsylvania about the year 1840, and in 1866 moved to Indiana and embarked in the lumber business at Walton, and afterward at Logansport. After very successful operations at that point he sought a larger field in Missouri, and put up a saw mill at Buffington in the fall of 1881. Beginning with a mill of about thirty horse power and a force of from forty to fifty men, his business so increased that in 1886 he enlarged the mill to double its former capacity, but was still unable to meet the demand for lumber. He then built another with a capacity of fifty horse-power, which enabled him to employ sixty more men. They are now able to turn out 40,000 feet of lumber. They receive orders constantly from Northern Illinois and Iowa for plow material, also wagon stuff for Kentucky and Illinois. The gum which the firm handles finds a ready sale in the Chicago and New York markets. On the mill floors they employ about thirty men, about thirty more out in the yard, where they have about a mile of railroad, about thirteen men on the nine miles of railway into their timber land, on which an engine and twenty cars are run, and also a force of thirty men in the woods in charge of a foreman or contractor. Mr. Isaac Himmelberger was elected sheriff of his county in Indiana, and also served as councilman at Logansport, Ind. Catharine Hoak became his wife, and among the eight children born to them, four only are living: John H., Jennie (now Mrs. S. A. Fisher), Lillie and Nettie. Mr. Himmelberger lives at Logansport, where he owns considerable property, besides over 10,000 acres of land about the Buffington Mills. John H. was born in 1861, and has always lived with his father, whose partner he has now become. When the mills were first established, he came here as bookkeeper and manager, but in 1887 became a partner, and has since had charge of their Stoddard County business. The father was educated in Pennsylvania, and his son in Indiana. The father and mother are members of the Universalist and Reformed Churches, respectively.

John W. Harbin, farmer and stock raiser, is a native of the Hoosier State, born in Greene County, November 6, 1847. His father, James Harbin, was a North Carolinian, but after the death of his first wife located in Greene County, Ind., where he died in 1876. He reared six children by his first marriage, and by his last wife, Frances E. (Martin) Harbin, he had nine children, nearly all of the latter now being residents of Stoddard County. John W. grew to manhood in Greene County, and left home at the age of twenty-six years. In December, 1873, he came to Missouri, and bought forty acres, where he now resides. He returned to Indiana, however, and on February 15, of the following year, was married, in Sullivan County, to Angeline Enochs, a daughter of James Enochs, of that county. He then moved to his Missouri farm, and added to it from time to time until he now has 220 acres, with 180 acres cleared and cultivated. He is also engaged in breeding fine Holstein cattle, and a good stock of hogs. In his political faith Mr. Harbin is a strong Republican. He is a member of Bloomfield Lodge, I. O. O. F., having entered that order in Indiana. On February 21, 1886, Mr. Harbin lost his first wife, who left four children: Elbert E., Hallie E., Roscoe R. and Margaret A. His present wife was Miss Donna, a daughter of John Stewart (deceased). Mr. Harbin is a Methodist, while his wife holds the faith of the Missionary Baptist Church.

Thomas M. Harper is a Stoddard County Missourian, born May 4, 1854, and is the son of S. J. and Elizabeth (Jennings) Harper, who were both natives of East Tennessee, where they were married. They came to Stoddard about 1838, and located on the farm where our subject now resides. The land was heavily wooded and required the labor of many years to bring it to its present state of cultivation. They suffered many of the privations, and enjoyed many pleasures incident to pioneer life. Wild game of all kinds was abundant and their larder was plentifully supplied with fresh meat the year round. The father died in 1887 and the mother in 1856. Nine of their thirteen children are living: Lucy J., William A., John H., Minerva, Sarah A., Thomas M., Elizabeth, Louisa, and Andrew J. The son, Thomas M., is a successful farmer and is the owner of 100 acres of land, 80 acres of which are under cultivation. He was married in 1877 to Susan R. Patrick, by whom he is the father of three children: Lillie M., Minnie E., and Joseph A. Mrs. Harper is a member of the Baptist Church.

William C. Harty, merchant at Bloomfield, was born in Stoddard County, Mo., July 1, 1844, and is the son of Andrew I. and Elizabeth (McComb) Harty, the father a native of Bollinger County, Mo., and the mother of Belleville, Ill. The grandfather, Daniel Harty, immigrated to Bollinger County, Mo., at a very early day, and to Stoddard County over half a century ago. He was a soldier in the War of 1812, and died in this county in 1859. Andrew J. Harty was a native-born Missourian. He was reared to farm life on his father's place and came with him to Stoddard County, when he was yet a boy. Here he grew to manhood and spent the remainder of his days in this county. He died in 1876. The mother died in 1884. They were the parents of a large family, only five now surviving: William C., Amanda (wife of T. J. McDowell), Frank, Sarah (wife of Thomas Fortner) and Sophia (wife of Samuel Wammack). William C. Harty was reared to farm life and remained with his parents until he became of age. In 1863 he married Miss Susan Moore, who bore him eight children, five now living: Alfred, Dora, Elizabeth, Robert and Willie. After marriage Mr. Harty engaged in farming and continued this occupation until 1876, when he moved to Bloomfield, and there he has since resided. He was tax collector of Stoddard County for ten successive years, and was elected county treasurer in 1886, which position he still occupies. While living on the farm he was constable for two years and tax assessor for four years. Thus it is seen that the most of Mr. Harty's life has been spent in office. In February, 1864, he enlisted in Company A, State militia, and served until July 12, 1865. He is a prominent citizen of Stoddard County, is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and he and wife are members of the Missionary Baptist Church.

Marshall H. Henderson was born on the farm where he now resides, September 6, 1851, his parents being Stephen Francis and Marinda M. (Hollick) Henderson. The father was born in Virginia November 8, 1830, and died at Hot Springs, Ark., September 18, 1885, whither he had gone for his health, being afflicted with Bright's disease. He was a successful farmer and had accumulated considerable property, all the result of his own efforts. His success was largely due to natural business ability, as he started with nothing. He was a Southern sympathizer, but said little about politics. When voting it was for the man and not the party. He was liberal to the poor, in fact the poor man's friend. He loaned lots of money but never sued any one and was himself never sued. He was temperate in all his habits, was a member of the Masonic fraternity, and was a devoted member of the Baptist Church. His wife was born in Middle Tennessee, but the record of her birth was lost when she was young. She is thought to have been about four years older than her husband. She died March 25, 1887, and although not a member of any church, she was a true, Christian woman in every sense of the word. Of the eight children born to this union, five of whom are living, Marshal H. Henderson was the eldest. He received the rudiments of an education at the home schools, and February 9, 1873, he married Miss Margaret Josephine Underhill, a daughter of Rufus Underhill, and a native of Missouri, born January 24, 1853. She died at the residence of her husband February 20, 1878, leaving three children: Albert G., Julia and Clara. Mrs. Henderson was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. December 17, 1880, Mr. Henderson married Miss Laura J. Hall, a daughter of Judge James G. Hall. She was born in Stoddard County, Mo., January 9, 1864. To this last union were born six children, five now living: Clarence Arthur, Robert Edmond, Stephen Chester, James Cleveland and DeWitt Talmage (twins). The one deceased was named Altha May; she died in infancy. Soon after his first marriage Mr. Henderson began farming, which he has since continued. Three years before his failing health, he moved to the old homestead, and after the death of his father, bought out the other heirs. He is now the owner of 260 acres of as good land as is to be found in the county. He is a member of the Wheel, and he and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Henry M. Hendley, one of the prominent citizens of Stoddard County, Mo., was born in Cabarrus County, N. C., in 1833, being the son of James and Sarah (Flemming) Hendley. The father was born in Montgomery County, N. C., in 1799, is living and is a resident of Pike Township, Stoddard County, being about, if not quite, the oldest man in the county. In 1851 he moved to Carroll County, Tenn., where he resided until 1857, when he came to Stoddard County, and there he has since resided. He has followed the occupation of a farmer and miller all his life. His wife was a native of Cabarrus County, N. C., born about 1809 and died in Carroll County, Tenn., in 1855. Seven children were born to this union, all of whom lived to be grown. Henry M. Hendley was the sixth of these children. He remained with and assisted his father on the farm and in the mill until twenty-two years of age, when he began to work at the carpenter's trade and followed this occupation in Stoddard County until in the early part of 1861. He then enlisted in Company A, First Missouri Infantry, Confederate army, and was afterward in the cavalry. He served with much credit until in April, 1863, when he was taken prisoner and was confined for about twenty-two months, first in St. Louis, then at Baltimore, Fort Monroe, Fort Delaware and Johnson's Island. While in service he was in many skirmishes and when taken a prisoner was lieutenant of his company. Although he had received a fair education in the common schools, while in prison he took a complete course in mathematics, and while there also learned surveying. After the war he returned to Stoddard County and worked at his trade until in 1872, having in the meantime, in 1868, married Miss Lucretia Jane Harvey, a daughter of Samuel and Nancy Harvey. She was a native of Bloomfield, Stoddard County, Mo., born in 1839. Her father came from Tennessee at the early settling of Stoddard County, and is now a resident of that county. To Mr. and Mrs. Hendley was born one child, James L., who is now at home. In 1873 Mr. Hendley was elected county surveyor and served in that capacity twelve years; was also deputy two years, making in all fourteen years, but after that refused to be a candidate for that office again. The year before his marriage Mr. Hendley had purchased a farm in Pike Township, and here he followed farming for some time. At present he is engaged in the milling business. He has a farm of 400 acres, and is one of the leading men of the county. He is a Democrat in politics, and was formally a member of the I. O. O. F., and his wife is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

James Hibbs, of Stoddard County, Mo., was born in Graves County, Ky., in 1831, being the son of Isaac and Susan (McClennin) Hibbs, who were born and spent their lives in Kentucky. They were the parents of a large family, only two of whom are living. James Hibbs was only an infant when his mother died. He resided with his father until 1851, when he came to Stoddard County, Mo., covering the entire distance alone and on horseback. He worked for wages for about one year, and then was united in marriage to Amanda Wells, and located on the farm where he now resides. His farm of 192 acres was covered with timber, and he immediately set to work to clear it, which he accomplished after a few years of hard labor. He now has about 125 acres under cultivation. His present farm consists of 317 acres. His marriage with Miss Wells, who was a native of Middle Tennessee, resulted in the birth of seven children, five of whom are living: Cora, James S., John W., Babe and Jesse. Mr. and Mrs. Hibbs are members of the Baptist Church, and he is a member of the Agricultural Wheel and the Masonic fraternity.

Capt. Henry W. Hickman was born in Humphreys County, Tenn., on the 2d of December, 1832. His father, John Hickman, was born in South Carolina, and there married Edith Smith, also a native of that State. He moved to Tennessee in 1835, and died in Obion County in 1867. Henry W. was reared in Obion County, and came to Missouri in 1850, and spent about three years in Laclede County teaching school. He then returned to Tennessee, and was married in Obion County, March 8, 1855, to Mary L. Howard, a daughter of Allan Howard (deceased). August 3, 1861, he enlisted in the Confederate army, in the Thirty-third Tennessee Infantry, Company A, and served until the close of the war. He enlisted as first lieutenant, but was soon promoted to captain, and served in this capacity until the close of the war. He was at Corinth, Perryville, Chickamauga, Missionary Ridge, and a great many lesser engagements. While at home on recruiting service he was taken prisoner, and was not released until the final surrender, when he was paroled and returned home. Mr. Hickman is a Democrat in politics, and while in Tennessee held several county offices. He came to Missouri in October, 1879, and located in Stoddard County, where he had previously bought land. He is a member of the Agricultural Wheel of Rock Hill, Mo., and was elected as a delegate to the State Wheel. He is also a Royal Arch Mason, and is the present Master of his lodge.

John A. Hickman, Obion County, Tenn., has among the names of its earliest settlers that of John Hickman, who reared his family there, and finally passed to his long home April 7, 1867, leaving his children and a wife, who survived him until 1873. The child born to them on November 7, 1837, was Theophilus S. Hickman, who, when he reached mature years, was married to Miss Margaret, a daughter of Anderson Glover, of the same county. This occurred January 9, 1856. In January, 1873, the family moved to Stoddard County and settled on their present estate near Puxico. Theophilus S. was a Confederate soldier, having enlisted in October, 1861, in the Thirty-third Tennessee Infantry, of which he was elected lieutenant. He served at Shiloh, Perryville, Ky., the Atlanta campaign, with Hood in Tennessee, at Franklin and Nashville, and in the first two of these was wounded, in the latter being disabled for three months. He is now engaged in agriculture. While in Obion County a son was added to his family, April 25, 1858, to whom they gave the name John A., who has now become a prominent merchant of Puxico. Young Hickman received a good education and engaged in teaching, among his first occupations. On May 21, 1879, Miss Emily J. Norrid became his wife. She is a daughter of P. A. Norrid, deceased. Mr. Hickman farmed about four years immediately after his marriage, but, on the founding of Puxico, he located there as the first merchant, and has since built up the leading trade of the place, as he always carries a choice and carefully selected stock. He is a charter member of the Puxico A. O. U. W. lodge, of which he now serves as Recorder. Mr. and Mrs. Hickman have two children, Ollie L. and Hartland H.

A. D. Hill, M. D., at Dexter, was born in Havana, Schuyler Co., N. Y., August 24, 1836. His parents, Caleb and Eunice (Durfey) Hill, are both natives of Windham County, Conn., and of English origin. Caleb Hill went from Connecticut to Pennsylvania while a young man, and learned the trade of carpenter and joiner. He was married there and soon removed to Schuyler Co., N. Y., where he engaged in his trade until within a few years of his death, in December, 1882. His wife had preceded him to that "unknown country" on August 11 before. Five children were born to them, and those now living are Erastus W., Alonzo D. and David B., the present governor of the State of New York. The father of the subject of this sketch was a member of the I. O. O. F. and a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, to which his wife also belonged. Dr. Hill was reared in his native county and educated in the common schools and an academy. In 1859 he entered the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor, and in 1866, after his return from the war, graduated in the study of medicine in the Miami

Searing Marsh

ST. FRANCOIS COUNTY.

Medical College, Cincinnati, Ohio, a study which he began at his majority, but which was interrupted in 1861 by his war service. After a short time as a private, he was appointed assistant brigade surgeon. After six months' service he began practice at Bloomfield, and after some varied experiences, enlisted again in 1863, in the Ninth New York Heavy Artillery, serving the rest of the conflict. He was detached for hospital service and gave professional aid on both sides of the line. In 1866 he again returned to Bloomfield, where he practiced until 1872, and since that time Dexter has been the field of his professional duties which have grown about him until his practice is very extensive. Dr. Hill was married January 6, 1877, to Emily E. Montgomery, a native of Tennessee. They have had three children, of whom only Zoe E. is alive. Dr. and Mrs. Hill are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and the former shows his fraternal spirit in membership in the order of the Golden Rule and the Masonic fraternity.

J. M. Hobbs, miller and farmer of Bloomfield, Mo., is a native of Cape Girardeau County, Mo., and is the son of Green B. and Sarah F. (Penn) Miller, both natives of Tennessee. They immigrated to Cape Girardeau County about 1830, and settled near Cape Girardeau, where Mr. Hobbs purchased a farm, and there remained until his death, which occurred in 1871. The mother is still living and resides on the old homestead. They were the parents of six children, four now living: Martha J., James M., Joseph V. and John E. The subject of this sketch was reared to farm life, and remained with his parents until the breaking out of the late war, when in 1861 he enlisted in Capt. Gedding's company, and served until the close of the war. He was a corporal, and participated in all the principal engagements west of the Mississippi River. After cessation of hostilities he returned home, and there remained until 1866, when he came to Stoddard County and located at Bloomfield, where he has since resided. September 12, 1876, he purchased the flouring mill of Mrs. Nancy Sykes, of Bloomfield, and has operated the mill ever since. The mill is of the buhr process—two wheat and one corn buhr. The building is a two-story frame, and has a capacity of forty barrels in twenty-four hours. Mr. Hobbs also owns a large farming interest both in and out of Stoddard County. He owns altogether about 1,575 acres of land, and has about 270 acres under cultivation, well improved, etc. He was married in 1868 to Miss Sophia E. Miller, and the result of this union was the birth of two children: Nora J. and Charles O. Mrs. Hobbs is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

William T. Hopper, farmer and stock raiser of Stoddard County, Mo., is a son of P. W. and Nancy (Wier) Hopper, and was born in Lincoln County, Tenn., December 25, 1836. The father was born in Tennessee, and the mother in North Carolina. They were married in the former State, and there the mother died in 1837. The father died in Mississippi in 1883. He was a soldier in the Mexican War. William T. Hopper grew to manhood in Mississippi. In 1862 he enlisted in the United States army, Fourth Tennessee Mounted Infantry, and served until the close of the war. He was promoted to commissary sergeant, and was a participant in the battles of Franklin, Nashville, and numerous skirmishes. He was taken prisoner in Tennessee in 1863, and kept at Jackson, Miss., for six months, and was then paroled and returned to his regiment. After the war he located in Missouri, where he purchased eighty acres of land, which he has since increased to 320 acres, with 160 acres cleared and under cultivation. November 11, 1858, he was united in marriage to Martha D. Black, a daughter of P. M. Black. Mr. and Mrs. Hopper have two children: Finley Wilson and Piety. Mr. Hopper is a member of the Knights of Honor, the Knights of the Golden Rule and the Agricultural Wheel.

George Houck, attorney at law at Bloomfield, Mo., and son of Bartholomew and Annie (Sens) Houck, was born in Quincy, Ill., August 25, 1846. The father was a native of Prussia and emigrated to the United States in 1832, settling at St. Louis. He worked at the printer's trade at this place for some time, and then moved to Hermann, Mo., where he remained a few years. He was one of the first German printers in St. Louis, and worked on one of the first German newspapers, which was called Anzeiger. He was a resident of Quincy, Ill., for some time, and died in Belleville, Ill., in 1876. The mother was a native of Switzerland, and died in Cape Girardeau County, in 1885. They were the parents of five children—four sons and one daughter: Louis, Julius, Lomsia Brucher, John and George. The sons all learned the printer's trade. George Houck was reared principally in Belleville, where he learned the printer's trade and followed the same for seven years. He taught school and studied law at the same time, and was admitted to the bar in the latter part of 1867, at the supreme court at Mt. Vernon. In 1868 he located at Rolla, Mo., where he practiced his profession for a short time. He then assisted his brother in getting out the first fifteen volumes of the Missouri Reports. In 1872 he came to Bloomfield, where he has since been engaged in the practice of his profession, having built up a large and extensive practice. He served as prosecuting attorney of Stoddard County for the first eight years of his residence there, and was a candidate for circuit judge in 1880, but was defeated. He was married, in 1877, to Miss Mary A. Miller, and to them were born two sons, George and Rudolph S. Mr. Houck is a member of the Masonic fraternity, also the I. O. O. F., and is engaged largely in dealing in real estate. He is also engaged in mining, the mine having been recently opened, and coal has been found in abundance, with prospects of gold and silver.

Joseph Howell, county collector, was born in Hardin County, Tenn., November 1, 1837, and is the son of Levi and Lexey (Riddell) Howell, natives of Alabama and North Carolina, respectively, and both of English-Scotch descent. The paternal grandfather was born in England, and emigrated to Alabama at an early day, where he died. The maternal grandfather came from Scotland to North Carolina. Levi Howell emigrated from Alabama to Hardin County, Tenn., where he lived until 1844, when he emigrated to Stoddard County, and located near Dexter, where he purchased a farm in the woods, on which he lived until his death, which occurred in 1845. The mother died in 1862. They were the parents of seven children—four sons and three daughters—four of whom are now living: Joseph, Elizabeth (wife of James Gillis), Alexander and Martha (wife of W. W. Thrower). Joseph Howell was about eight years of age when he came to this county with his parents. He was reared to farm life, receiving what education the schools afforded at that day, and in 1859 married Miss Nancy Lee, who was born in Missouri. The fruits of this union were two children: Mary A. (wife of A. Conley) and John B. After marriage Mr. Howell located four miles from Dexter, where he followed agricultural pursuits until 1887. In the spring of 1861 he enlisted in Company A, Kitchen's regiment, and served in that capacity about eighteen months. He was captured near Chalk Bluff, Ark., and imprisoned at Wittsburg, Ark. He was paroled, came home, and was in the Fort Pillow skirmish, and was there when the place was vacated. He was also in Price's raid through Missouri. In the fall of 1886 he was elected to the office of county collector, which position he now occupies. During the years 1881 and 1882 he served as county assessor.

John M. Hunt, a native of West Tennessee, was born October 6, 1848, and is the son of Richard M. and Susan (Matthews) Hunt, both natives of Middle Tennessee. The paternal grandfather, Mathey Hunt, was a Virginian by birth, and immigrated to Tennessee at an early day, and there passed his last days. Richard M. Hunt was a farmer by occupation, and he and his wife are still living, and are residents of West Tennessee. They are the parents of twelve children, seven now living: Sarah, Nancy E., Emma, Jane, Lou, John M. and Isaac. John M. Hunt grew to manhood on the farm, and at the age of seventeen went to Mississippi near Memphis, and here worked on a farm for seven years. He then went back to Tennessee and there remained for two years. In March, 1870, he married Miss Rhoda Carrington, a native of Mississippi. To them were born seven children, five now living: Mary E., James M., Cora L., Eddey W. and Clyde. The two deceased were named Minnie C. and Albert. December 3, 1876, Mr. Hunt arrived in Stoddard County, locating where J. W. Covington now lives, and there rented land for one year. In 1879 he purchased the farm where he now lives, which consists of 174 acres of land, seventy-five of which are under cultivation. Mr. Hunt is a member of the Agricultural Wheel, of which organization he is the lecturer, and is also a member of the trade committee. He is an intelligent and enterprising citizen.

William J. Hux, merchant at Essex, was born in Halifax County, N. C., May 19, 1856, and is the son of Ben D. and Anna (Barnes) Hux, natives of the same county. The father had reached the age of seventy-nine when he died in 1886, and his widow still lives in her North Carolina home. The seven children born to them are all living, as follows: Francis M., Benjamin F., Thaddeus R., Edward J., Lewis F., William J. and Eliza C. E., all of whom are married, and, with the exception of William and Lewis, live in North Carolina. William was twenty-one years of age when he came to Missouri and located at Essex in 1877. Mr. Hux is now the owner of two houses and lots in Essex, and has a finely selected and extensive stock of general merchandise with which to supply a large trade, which has grown up under his management. He was married on March 2, 1884, to Miss Fanny B. Bradford, and their union has resulted in two children: Anna U. and Edna B. Mrs. Hux is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, while both also belong to the order of the Golden Rule. Mr. Hux has labored hard to be independent—always choosing truthfulness and honesty, by which he has made hosts of friends, who say he is good to the needy and never refuses an honest man. He stands second to none in promptness.

Rufus B. Jones, a farmer, is a native of Marshall County, Ky., where his birth occurred on October 10, 1847. He is the son of James L. and Sarah (Whitlock) Jones, who were engaged in farming for some time in Marshall County, but are now devoted to dealing in general merchandise at Fair Dealing, in that county. They have had four children born to them, but the subject of this sketch is the only one living. Mr. Jones left his Kentucky home when he reached the years of legal manhood and came to Missouri. He located in Essex and began opening up a large farm of timbered land. He had succeeded in placing about twenty acres under cultivation and had a residence and orchard, when in 1874 he concluded to turn his attention to dealing in general merchandise. He gave his time to that business from that time until the spring of 1884, when he returned to his farm, upon which he has since been occupied. Mr. Jones was married in 1865 to Miss Martha A. Greeley, by whom he had four children, one of whom is still living—Eliza. In 1884 he was married the second time. This lady was Miss Tennie Whitlock. Their only child is John W. Mr. Jones is a member of the Baptist Church.

Robert J. Jackson, M. D., a successful practitioner of Bloomfield, was born in County Cavan, Ireland, November 14, 1842, and is a son of James and Bettie (Walden) Jackson, natives of Scotland. The father was a merchant in the town of Cavan, which occupation he carried on the principal part of his lifetime. He died in 1861 and his wife one year previous. They were the parents of five children, four now living. Dr. Jackson was reared on the farm in County Cavan and remained on the same until about twenty years of age. At the age of nineteen he began the study of medicine in Cavan, where he remained until twenty-one, when he took two courses of lectures. In June, 1863, he took passage at Liverpool for America. He landed at New York City and enlisted in the Fifth Corps of New Jersey Volunteers, and was in service a short time when he was promoted surgeon in the hospital, which position he occupied for two years and four months. After the war he went to Northwest Missouri, where he continued the study of medicine and graduated from the Missouri Medical College, at St. Louis, in 1868. In 1870 he graduated at the medical college at Nashville, Tenn. In 1876 he began practicing in Bloomfield, where he has since resided and is doing well in his profession. He has built up a large and lucrative practice and is one of the prominent men of Stoddard County. He was married in 1876 to Miss Mollie Crytes, a native of Missouri. This union resulted in the birth of three children: Lizzie, Zelma and Myrtie. Dr. Jackson is an honorary member of the St. Louis Medical Society, being elected in June, 1877, and he and wife are members of the Baptist Church.

Ligon Jones, editor of the Bloomfield Indicator, was born in Montgomery County, Ala., August 14, 1861, and is the son of Benjamin F. Jones and Adenia (Ligon) Jones, both natives of the State of Alabama, where they died, the father in 1872, and the mother previous to this, in 1866. The father was a farmer, and owned a large plantation. Ligon Jones was left an orphan when quite young, and was obliged to look out for himself. After the death of his father he went to live with an aunt, moving to Wayne County, Mo., in 1871, where he engaged in agricultural pursuits for a few years. At the age of fifteen he began the printer's trade, at which he served an apprenticeship in Wayne County. In the fall of 1879 he went to Dexter, where he worked on the Enterprise Messenger. In the spring of 1880 he came to Bloomfield and worked for wages for two years. Two years later he purchased his present paper, and has since continued its publication. In January, 1887, he took C. A. Moseley as a partner, and the paper is now owned and run under the firm name of Jones & Moseley. They get up a spicy little paper, have a good circulation of about 900, and these gentlemen are well adapted to their calling.

Louis C. Jorndt was born in Pomern, Prussia, November 10, 1839, and is the son of John and Sophia (Caeston) Jorndt, both natives of Prussia. The father was a wagonmaker by trade, and served for some time in the Prussian War. He followed his trade in the old country, and also owned and ran a small farm there. In 1850 he and family took passage for America, and landed in New York City after a six weeks' voyage. They went direct to Chicago, where they resided until 1870, the father running a wagon-making shop while there. The mother died in this city, and the father in 1882 on the farm now owned by his son, Louis C., who was one of eight children, five now living, four of whom were born in Germany: Louis C., William (deceased), Bertha, Albert and Frederick, who is now in Chicago. Those born in America are John (a policeman in Chicago) and August (deceased). Louis C. was about twelve years old when his parents came to Chicago. He remained there until 1870, and while there learned the mechanic's trade in the Illinois Central Railroad shops. He ran an engine on the Illinois Central for some time. He then steamboated for ten years, off and on, on Lake Michigan and on the Mississippi River. He served in the late war, and was on the Red River at the breaking out of hostilities. October 3, 1868, he married Miss Helen Brumund, a native of Germany, who was about two years old when he came to America. To this union were born four children: Lizzie, Hattie, Ida and George. In 1870 Mr. Jorndt bought the farm where he now lives, which consists of 160 acres, and there he has since resided. He now owns 484 acres of land in one body, besides some swamp lands. He has about 400 acres under cultivation and well improved. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. Lodge No. 333, of Chicago, is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and he and wife are members of the Lutheran Church.

A. A. Jorndt, of the firm of Cooper & Jorndt, proprietors of the steam elevator flouring mills, Dexter, was born in Europe, near Berlin, August 11, 1849, and is a son of John and Sophia (Carson) Jorndt, both natives of Europe, who immigrated to America in 1851, and stopped in Chicago. The father was a wagon maker by trade, which occupation he followed while in Chicago. After the death of his wife, in 1874, he came to Stoddard County, Mo., where he died in 1882. They were the parents of eight children, five of whom are living. A. A. was about five years of age when he came to this country. He was reared in Chicago, following the manufacture of tobacco up to 1869, when he went to California to seek his fortune. While there he made considerable money, but in speculation subsequently lost it. He remained there for about two and a half years, being engaged a part of his time in mining. On returning he located in Chicago, and had charge of a tobacco shop for a little over one year. In 1873 he came to Stoddard County, Mo., and engaged in saw milling, but knowing nothing about the business, lost heavily at first. He has carried on saw milling and lumbering and farming ever since. In 1885 he, in connection with A. F. Cooper, erected the large elevator mills, which they now carry on quite successfully, with a seventy-five barrel capacity. On coming to Stoddard County, Mr. Jorndt had but $100 in cash, but he is now one of the substantial men of the county. He is also very extensively engaged in the stock trade, raising, buying, selling, and shipping stock. He owns 1,000 acres of land in Stoddard County, about 300 acres under cultivation, with good improvements. He was married in 1885 to Olivia A. Renner, a native of Missouri. They have one child, Carl. Mr. Jorndt is a member of the Masonic fraternity. He was brought up in the faith of the Lutheran Church.

Col. C. L. Keaton, attorney at law, at Bloomfield, was born in Carroll County, Tenn., July 12, 1833. Cornelius W. and Mary (Hays) Keaton, the parents of the subject of this sketch, were natives of Patrick County, Va., and DeKalb County, Tenn. The Keatons were of German and the Hays family of French origin. Cornelius W. Keaton was a teacher in his youth, and had natural talent in law, but devoted the most of his life to agriculture. Twelve children were born to the family, seven of whom are now living: Sarah A. (now Mrs. John Sullivan), Mary (a widow), William I., John H., Cornelius L., James A. and Aminta. The father died in March, 1870, and the mother in November, 1873. Col. Keaton was a teacher in his youth, in Tennessee, and continued for ten years in that work, meanwhile endeavoring to inform himself in law. Almost on the eve of his admission to the bar the war opened to frustrate his plans, and in May, 1861, he enlisted in Company H, Ninth Tennessee Infantry, and served precisely four years. He served at Perryville, Ky., and on October 8, 1862, was wounded in the thigh and hand, and taken to Harrodsburg, Ky. Here he was captured, and taken to Camp Douglass, but a few months later was removed to West Point, Va., where he was exchanged and quarantined, on account of small-pox. Afterward joining his command, he was wounded by a solid shot cannon ball while sitting behind a tree reading a newspaper, at Atlanta, Ga., the ball taking effect in his left foot. He was confined at the Columbus (Ga.) Hospital, and on May 24, 1865, was paroled and discharged. He then began teaching, near Lumpkin, Ga., and in 1866 was chosen president of the Lumpkin Masonic Female College. After two years there he was made principal of the Masonic Institute, at Trezevant, Tenn., remaining there until February, 1871. After a residence at Humboldt, Tenn., engaged in law practice, he removed to Bloomfield, Mo., in September, 1872, and became a partner with Maj. H. H. Bedford, in law. They dissolved partnership in August, 1874, but Col. Keaton added the duties of probate clerk to his practice. His present partnership with Geo. Houck, was formed April 1, 1885, and in January, 1888, they moved to Dexter. He also served as prosecuting attorney one term, in 1880. On May 3, 1866, he married Sallie Josephine Harris, of Lumpkin, Ga., who died six months later. Miss Sallie E. Fuqua, a native of Carroll County, Tenn., became his wife August 6, 1868, and their union has resulted in six children, of whom Willie C., Clarence L. and Charles L. are living. Col. Keaton and his wife are members of the church, and in the Masonic order he has passed advanced degrees. He is an able lawyer. He began studies under A. Hawkins, afterward judge of the supreme court and governor of Tennessee, and began practice under Judge Porter, afterward governor of the same State.

Frederick H. Kruse was born in Gibson County, Ind., April 14, 1841, and is a son of Henry and Charlotte (Backhouse) Kruse, both natives of Germany. They immigrated to America in 1836, and the father worked for wages on the old canal at Evansville, for about a year. He then went to Louisville, Ky., and after working there for about a year, came back and settled in Gibson County, Ind., where he purchased a farm, and there remained until his death, which occurred in 1874. The mother died in 1877. They were married after coming to this country, and had but three children: Henry, Frederick and Caroline. Frederick H. was reared to farm life, and remained with his parents until twenty-seven years of age. February 20, 1867, he married Miss Elizabeth Neiderhouse, a native of Germany, who was a year and a half old upon coming to America with her parents. Nine children were the result of this marriage: John H., George N., Fred H., Henry C., William, Nora, Marty, Benjamin and Edward. After marriage Mr. Kruse moved to Warrick County, Ind., where he purchased a farm, and where he lived for some time. In March, 1888, he moved to where he now lives, and purchased 490 acres of land, about 100 of which are under cultivation. Mr. and Mrs. Kruse are members of the Evangelical Church, and are good citizens.

Martin Larsen, a native of Denmark, was born in the city of Odensen, December 24, 1833, and is a son of Christian M. and Stena (Martenssteeter) Larsen, both natives of Denmark. The father was a farmer and followed this occupation in Denmark all his life. He died there several years ago. He was the father of five children—three sons and two daughters—four now living: Christian M. (who resides in Denmark), Martin, Anna M. and Caroline M. Christian (the one deceased) had followed the sea from the time he was eight years old, and was drowned at sea when about thirty years of age. Martin Larsen was reared to farm life in Denmark, and remained at home until fourteen years of age, when he was obliged to start out in life for himself. He worked for wages until 1859, when he took a notion to come to America. In June, of the last-named year, he bade home and friends farewell, took passage on a steamer at Liverpool, and sailed for New York. After reaching that city he came on through to Poplar Bluffs, where he worked for about six months, buying a little piece of government land which was heavily timbered, and not being used to the ax had to begin learning. He made some improvements on the place, and then, completely disgusted, gave it back to the government. He then went on up to Bloomfield, where he hired to Henry Miller, working for him seven long years by the month. By economy he had saved enough to buy him a farm of 100 acres, about two miles north of where he now lives, and there he resided for four years. He now has 600 acres of land, 400 under a good state of cultivation. He is one of Stoddard County's substantial farmers, and has made every dollar he owns by the sweat of his brow. He can now live in peace and enjoy the fruits of his labor. In 1868 Louisa Edwards became his wife. To them were born five children, four now living: Preston, Christian P., Alvestena and William. Mr. Larsen is a member of the Lutheran Church.

Elisha H. Launius, farmer at Bloomfield, was born in Stokes County, N. C., April 26, 1841, and is the son of Jonathan and Elvira (Jones) Launius, both natives of North Carolina. The paternal grandfather came from Germany and settled in North Carolina, where he died. Jonathan Launius immigrated to Gibson County, Tenn., in 1843, and there purchased a farm, where he remained until 1858, when he immigrated to Stoddard County, Mo., moving there in wagons. He located in Bloomfield, built a blacksmith shop, and there carried on his trade for four years. He then purchased a farm near Castorville, engaged in farming, and continued at this two years, when he removed to Scott County, and carried on blacksmithing again for two or three years. He then came back to his farm, where he remained until his death in 1868. The mother died in 1870. They were the parents of seven children, two now living. Elisha H. and Louisa (wife of Samuel Worley). Elisha H. was about seventeen years old when his parents came to Stoddard County. He remained with them until the breaking out of the late war, when he enlisted in Jeff. Thompson's State Guards, and served six months. He participated in Big River Bridge engagement and in several skirmishes. In November, 1862, he enlisted in Company I, Price's command, and was in the battle at Cape Girardeau. In July, 1863, he was captured by Davidson's command near Wittsburg, Ark., and was taken to Alton, Ill., where he was kept for eight months. He was taken from there to Fort Delaware, where he was kept for twelve months and then exchanged. He then heard of the surrender and came home, where he engaged in agricultural pursuits. July 9, 1865, he married Miss Sarah Barham, who bore him two children, James N. and Thomas H. Mrs. Launius died November 10, 1870, and he married a Miss Hannah Barham, in October, 1871, who bore him two children, one boy and one girl, John W. and Lizzie A. After marriage Mr. Launius located on his present farm where he has since lived. He owns 163 acres of land, about 100 of which are under cultivation and well improved. He is a member of the Agricultural Wheel, and he and wife are members of the Baptist Church.

Rev. David Lewis, minister of the Baptist Church, and a son of Micajah and Hannah (Blanton) Lewis, was born in Warren County, Tenn., October 2, 1813. His parents were natives of Virginia, and immigrated to Tennessee at quite an early day. In 1833 they loaded all their effects in wagons and started for Missouri, landing in what is now Stoddard County in December of the same year, and soon erected a log house near Castor River. Here they moved and began pioneer life, but sickness soon overtook Mr. Lewis, and he was called from his earthly cares, leaving his widow and eight children to mourn their loss. None of the children were grown, with the exception of David and his eldest sister. The former took care of the family and did the best he could until his marriage, which occurred February 25, 1836, to Miss Elizabeth Lawrence. He then located on the farm where he now lives in January, 1837, and has been a resident of this farm since that date. When he first settled on this farm, wild animals were in abundance, and the cabins of the settlers were always supplied with wild meats. Mr. Lewis now owns 140 acres of land, all well improved. He was brought up in the Baptist faith, and began to preach a few years after coming to this county. In 1846 he was ordained to preach the gospel, and this he has done ever since, doing much good in ministering to the spiritual wants of man. To his marriage were born ten children, only three of whom are now living: Susan (wife of J. Y. Evans), Eleanor (wife of John P. Barham) and Nancy R. (wife of George W. Babbitt). Mr. Lewis is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and is quite an aged man, but his memory is fresh and vivid. He can relate many incidents connected with his pioneer life, which are very interesting. His grandfather, David Lewis, moved to Madison County, Ky., where was killed by the Indians during the Indian War.

Joseph Guild Lewis, a citizen of Pike Township, Stoddard Co., Mo., and the son of Joseph Cooper and Elizabeth (Hitt) Lewis, was born near Cape Girardeau, Cape Girardeau Co., Mo., August 10, 1836. The father was born in New Madrid Co., Mo., September 9, 1806, and died in Cape Girardeau Co., Mo., December 8, 1853. When a young man, Mr. Lewis worked on a flatboat on the Mississippi River, and also carried on farming. He was a justice of the peace for many years. His parents came to New Madrid County at a very early date, and were among the first settlers of Missouri. They moved to Cape Girardeau County about 1812. Elizabeth (Hitt) Lewis, it is thought, was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., November 8, 1806, and died in the same county April 28, 1870. She was a member of the Missionary Baptist Church. Of their eight children, Joseph Guild Lewis was the fifth, and is the only one now living. He secured a good practical education, and remained at home until December 4, 1856, when he married Miss Nicey E. English, a native of Cape Girardeau County, Mo. This union resulted in the birth of nine children, seven of whom are now living: Simeon E., Thomas R., Joseph G., Margaret Elizabeth, Robert L., George L., John C., Louisa E. and Mina C. Those deceased are Margaret E. and Robert L. Mrs. Lewis was the daughter of Thomas and Louisa (Brooks) English, he born in Georgia and she in Missouri. After marriage, Mr. Lewis began farming for himself in Cape Girardeau County, continuing until May, 1861, when he enlisted in Capt. William Jeffrey's company of State militia, and served six months, when he went into Capt. John Cobb's company (B), Col. Jeffrey's regiment, Confederate army, and, after serving six months as a private, was made lieutenant, and served in that capacity until the close of the war. He was in all the principal battles west of the Mississippi River, and was never wounded or taken prisoner. One year later he sold his property in Cape Girardeau and moved to Stoddard County, where he purchased a farm of 440 acres. In 1878 he was elected sheriff of the county, and two years later was re-elected. Mr. Lewis is a Democrat in politics, is a member of the Masonic lodge, also a member of the Wheel, and he and wife and three sons are members of the Christian Church.

Maj. George J. Ligon was born in Virginia, in Buckingham County, July 22, 1833. Henry A. and Louisa (Bell) Ligon were his parents. The father was a Virginian, and in 1847 the family moved to Weakley County, Tenn., where the father died in 1856. The mother died in Virginia while George was a child. Young Ligon remained in Tennessee until, in 1852, he crossed the plains to seek the glittering fields of California. He returned, however, in 1854, by way of Panama, Havana and New Orleans, to Hickman County, Ky. Here in 1856 he married Mary E. Wilkerson, a native of Virginia. She died about five years later, and in 1863 he married Lucy A., a daughter of Judge Parker, of Hickman, Ky. After two years of farming in Kentucky he moved to Mississippi County, Mo., and after the death of his first wife he joined Company B, First Kentucky Regiment, under Gen. Forrest. He served in a number of engagements, and was severely wounded at Harrisburg, and disabled from duty. He was also a prisoner, but was recaptured. After the conflict ended he became a farmer in Kentucky, and after a six years' residence there moved to Stoddard County, Mo., in 1872, and located on the estate he now owns. His children are Matie P., Katie M. and Bettie E. (the deceased wife of Col. Malone.) Maj. Ligon was engaged more or less during eleven years as a brick-mason. The war found him as a man of some wealth, but left him destitute. His energy and pluck, however, have recovered much of it. He is a member of the Agricultural Wheel, and his wife belongs to the Methodist Episcopal Church.

William G. Lincoln, a citizen of Stoddard County, and president of Zion Wheel No. 214, was born in Bollinger County, Mo., but what was then Cape Girardeau County, July 22, 1833, and is the son of Absalom and Mary (Baker) Lincoln, who were natives of North Carolina, and who came to Southeast Missouri and located in what is now Bollinger County, at a very early date. They moved to Stoddard County in 1841, and there passed the remainder of their days. He died in 1868, and she in 1856. He was a farmer, but was also a house carpenter and mechanic. During the late war he served in Company B, of the Twelfth Missouri Cavalry, Federal service, for two years. He and wife are members of the Baptist Church, and he is a Democrat in his political views. Seven children were born to their marriage, three now living. William G. Lincoln was the eldest of these children. He remained at home until July 24, 1858, when he married Miss Mary Ann Boyd, who was born in Kentucky, in 1835. This union resulted in the birth of four children, three now living: Eliza B., Antony J. and William R. Martha E. was killed by a runaway horse. She was eleven years old. When first married, Mr. Lincoln entered 240 acres of government land. He now has 310 acres of as good land as is to be found in the county. In the fall of 1863 he enlisted in the State service, and was made lieutenant, serving a short time. He and wife are members of the Missionary Baptist Church, of which he has been deacon since 1867. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and is at present serving as Tyler, and is, as is stated above, president of the Zion Wheel. He is a Democrat politically. In 1865 at the close of the war, he was elected coroner, but would not accept the position. He at all times supports the cause of education and religion, as well as all public enterprises, and takes great interest in Sunday-schools, etc.

Judge Bedford B. Lockard was born in Breckinridge County, Ky., February 11, 1835, and is the son of Boyle D. and Rhoda B. (Trent) Lockard. Boyle D. Lockard was born in Bedford County, Va., March 11, 1808, and died in Breckinridge County, Ky., October 31, 1881. He came from Virginia to Kentucky, when a young man, and in that State passed the remainder of his days. He was a sign-writer and painter by trade, but after working at this a few years, gave it up and engaged in farming, but afterward gave this up and became a minister in the Methodist Episcopal Church. He administered to the spiritual wants of the people for about thirty years, and was a great and successful revivalist. His father, Philip Lockard, was a native of Scotland, and came to America before the Revolutionary War. He fought in that war on the American side. Rhoda B. (Trent) Lockard was born in Breckinridge County, Ky., October 21, 1812, and died on her birthday in 1842. Judge Bedford B. Lockard was the second of six children, four now living, born to his parents. He received the rudiments of an education in the common schools, and at the age of twenty served an apprenticeship as a painter, and worked at his trade for two years, when he became overseer for B. & R. M. Watton, in Breckinridge County, Ky., and remained with them two years, when, September 7, 1859, he married Miss Martha E. Maddox, a native of Breckinridge County, Ky., who was born May 20, 1843, and died in Stoddard County, Mo., November 13, 1862, leaving two sons, Louis N. and Charles H. August 12, 1863, Judge Lockard married Miss Sarah E. Cawthon, who was born in New Madrid County, Mo., July 1, 1842, and who bore him ten children, six now living: Ideler, Charlotte Margaret, Sarah B., Cora and Thomas Hendricks. Those deceased are, Jerusha Ann, Louisa, Jessa A., Rhoda and Louis N. When first married Judge Lockard turned his attention to farming, and this he has continued ever since. In 1860 he moved to Stoddard County, where he has since been living. In 1880 he was elected judge of Stoddard County, and held the office for two years. He is a member of the Christian Church, and is a Democrat politically.

John McMellan, farmer, was born April 9, 1813, in Canada, about sixty-five miles west of Montreal, and is the son of John and Mary McMellan, who were born in Scotland. They immigrated to Canada in the very early days, and when immigration to this country was in its infancy. After their arrival in Canada they purchased a place, and resumed their old occupation of farming, dying upon a farm, and leaving eleven children, viz.: Dougald, Allen, Duncan, Hugh, John, Mary, Margaret, Catherine Ewen, Llochlenn and Donald, all married. John, the subject of this sketch, was about eighteen years old when he left his home to earn his own living, and he commenced by clerking in a store at a small salary. About four years later he entered school, remained one session, and afterward taught school some eighteen months. Thinking that he could better his fortune in the United States, he left Canada, and located in Hardin County, Tenn., about 1838, where he taught school and did farm work for about three years. During this time he married, in 1840, Miss Rebecca J. Riddle, by whom he had nine children, three now living, viz.: Henrietta M. (married to George Sides), Henry C. and James M. (married to Mattie Robbins). In 1841, determined upon finding a better locality than the one in which he was then located, Mr. McMellan started in a wagon, accompanied by his wife's relations, and finally located in Stoddard County, Mo., about five miles south of Bloomfield, and from the time of his location until the war broke out, he followed school teaching, and during vacations, farming. He, in 1862, entered the army, enlisting in Company C, Twelfth Regiment Missouri State Militia, Cavalry Volunteers, in which he served fifteen months. He then returned home, and soon secured the appointment as provost-marshal for enrollment for Stoddard County, and shortly afterward received three other counties under his appointment. During his enlistment he was voted the position of lieutenant of his regiment, Company C, Twelfth Missouri Cavalry Volunteers, commanded by Col. Albert Jackson. In 1864, having lost his first wife, he married Miss Sarah Kenny, by whom he has had two children, both now deceased. In 1867 he was elected judge of the probate court, which position he held one term. In 1869 he was elected county judge, but the Legislature passed acts which compelled him to retire. He also held the position as supervisor of registration for one term. In 1865 Mr. McMellan purchased the place he now occupies, comprising a tract of land of about 160 acres, of which seventy-five acres are cleared, and in good cultivation, with good house and out-buildings. He has not been able to do any work since the war, having contracted rheumatism during his service. Mr. McMellian is a Mason, also a member of the G. A. R. and of the Union League. He and wife are members of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. He was elected justice of the peace of his district in 1873, which office he held for four years.

Dr. Stephen A. Mayfield, practicing physician of Advance, was born near Marble Hill, Bollinger Co., Mo., August 25, 1856, and is the son of George W. and Sarah P. (Cheek) Mayfield, natives of Cape Girardeau County, Mo. Both are now living, and are residents of Bollinger County. The father was born in 1818 and is a successful farmer of Bollinger County. He started in very poor circumstances, but has accumulated considerable property in that county. The mother was born about 1820, and both parents are members of the Missionary Baptist Church. Mr. Mayfield is a Democrat in politics. Dr. Stephen A. Mayfield was the sixth of eleven children, eight now living. He received a liberal education at the Mayfield-Smith Academy, located at Marble Hill, Mo. He was engaged in farming until early in 1882, when he began the study of medicine under his brother, DeWitt Mayfield. The same year he began to attend the College of Physicians and Surgeons at St. Louis, and at the end of two years he graduated. He then began the practice of his profession in St. Louis. Previous to this, in August, 1876, he married Miss Mary E. Chandler, a daughter of A. G. Chandler, and a native of Bollinger County, where she was born July 23, 1858. Four children blessed this union: Minnie May, Stephen S., Arthur J. and Mamie C. In August, 1887, Dr. Mayfield came to Advance, and has since been actively engaged in the practice of his profession at that place. The same year he formed a partnership with W. C. Stewart in the drug business, and in 1888 he was appointed postmaster at Advance.

J. N. Miller, of the firm of Miller, Ladd & Co., merchants at Dexter, was born in Stoddard County, December 7, 1851. His grandfather Miller was a very early settler of this region, and his father, John C., spent the most of his life here. John C. Miller was engaged in farming, and also owned and ran the grist-mill a mile south of Dexter until his death in 1870. His wife, Mrs. Mahala (Hodge) Miller, survives her husband and makes her home in Texas. Four of the eight children born to them are now living: Sarah E. (now Mrs. R. Cumbertson), William, George and the subject of this sketch. John N. lived at home until his twenty-second year, and found his sphere in the mercantile life, which he began for himself in 1873, and until 1878 managed it alone. He then took in F. M. Ladd as a partner, and the firm was Miller & Ladd until in 1882 it became Miller, Ladd & Co., by the addition of Mr. A. H. Carter as partner, and has since kept up its well-deserved and successful trade. In 1874 Mr. Miller married Miss Mary Sitton, and their union has resulted in the following family of children: Dora, Anna, Minnie, Charles and Myrtie. Mrs. Miller is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and Mr. Miller belongs to the fraternity of the K. of H.

John Mitchell, a prominent citizen of Pike Township, Stoddard Co., Mo., is a native of Vermont, born July 23, 1827, his parents being Peter and Sophia Mitchell, who were of French extraction, but born near Montreal, Canada, the father in 1803. They came to the United States and located first in Vermont and afterward came to Williamson County, Ill. About 1848 or 1849 he went to California and that was the last ever heard of him. He was both a shoemaker and a carpenter, and worked as a mechanic up to the time when he went to California. The mother is still living and is a resident of Jackson County, Ill. She is a member of the Catholic Church, as was also her husband. Four children were born to their marriage: Mary, John, Louisa and Sarah Jane. John Mitchell's advantages for receiving an education were limited, but this has been improved by observation, general reading and contact with all kinds of business. He remained with his mother until twenty-three years of age, or, until 1848, when, on May 17, of that year, he married Miss Ataline Moore, a native of Tennessee, born August 16, 1832, and the daughter of Thomas and Nancy Moore, also natives of Tennessee. They moved to Illinois at an early date and passed the remainder of their days in Williamson County, of that State, where the father was engaged in farming. He died in 1868, and she in 1864. To Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell were born ten children, four living: Elizabeth Ann, Sarah M., John W. and Thomas A. Those deceased were named as follows: Nancy M., Mary J., Hannah J., Ataline F., Eliza J. and George W. After marriage Mr. Mitchell began as a farmer, in connection with which he operated a grist and saw mill. In 1869 he came to Stoddard County, where he has since resided. In August, 1862, he enlisted in Company D, Eighty-first Illinois Infantry, and served until the close of the war. He participated in the battles of Fort Gibson, Black River, Jackson, Miss., Vicksburg, Champion's Hill, Guntown, Brownville; was in the Red River expedition seventy days, and at Nashville, Tenn. At Guntown, his eyes were effected by the heat, and he is now totally blind. He is a Republican, but is not so radical but that he crosses the line for better men. He and wife are members of the Baptist Church, and three of their children are members of the same church.

William P. Moore, son of Richard and Elizabeth (Evans) Moore, was born in Person County, N. C., September 5, 1830. The parents were both natives of North Carolina, where they passed their lives. The father died in 1839, and the mother twelve years later. They were the parents of four children: David R., Thomas E., Sidney C. and William P. The mother was twice married, her second husband being Samuel H. Yarbrough. To this marriage were born two children: DeWitt C. and Elizabeth. William P. Moore was about nine years old when his father died. He remained with his mother for several years after, until her death, and in 1858 moved to Webster County, Ky., where he lived until 1880, when he came to Stoddard County and purchased fifty-eight acres of land. In 1852 he married Miss Martha Whitefield, a native of North Carolina, who bore him thirteen children, eight now living: Allen, Cosby, Yula, Buckner, Rozilla, Edna, Ada and Iney. In 1862 Mr. Moore enlisted in Adam R. Johnson's company and served about one year. He was in the battles of Red River Bridge, Fort Donelson, Clarksville, Uniontown, Ky., and was in several hard skirmishes. He was compelled to resign on account of hemorrhage of the lungs, and gave up his horse and arms. Mr. Moore was a Master Mason in Los Carlow Lodge No. 314 for a number of years, and he and wife are members of the Primitive Baptist Church.

James W. Morgan, farmer and stock raiser, was born in Henderson County, Tenn., July 9, 1835. The "Old Dominion" was the birthplace of his father, Daniel Morgan, who found the partner of his life in Tennessee, in the person of Miss Jane Parker. They lived in both Henderson and Hardin Counties, but the last year spent together were in Mississippi, where he died in 1847. Mrs. Morgan afterward married H. G. McCormick, of Hardin County, and about 1853 located in Butler County, Mo. The subject of this sketch located in Butler County about two years later, and when the war came on was conscripted into service in the Price raid. About 1864, however, he turned his attention to his present farm, where he has since lived, successfully engaged in the culture of grain and stock. He owns about 137 acres in two tracts with about sixty acres cleared land. An artificial pond eighty yards by fifty feet, furnishes him the facilities for the culture of German carp, with which he is successful. Mr. Morgan was married in 1861 to Mrs. Elizabeth Vandegriss (a widow) daughter of John Mentor (deceased). Their children are James, Alfred, Alexa and Azaline, the last two of whom are now married. Mrs. Morgan's daughter by her first marriage is deceased. Both he and his wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and in fraternity matters he is a Mason, member of the Dexter Lodge, with the Master degree.

Giles Jasper Nation, an enterprising citizen of Pike Township, Stoddard Co., Mo., was born in Jackson County, Tenn., January 2, 1841, and is the son of William and Mary Ann (Hale) Nation, natives of Jackson County, Tenn. The father was born in Ohio, in 1812, and was a farmer and blacksmith by occupation, being quite successful at each. He left Ohio when a young man, and came to Jackson County, Tenn., where he remained until 1849, when he came to Stoddard County, and here died in 1887. He was a good man, and at his death Stoddard County lost one of its best citizens. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church for many years, was a Union man during the war, and was a Republican politically. Grandfather Nation was a soldier in the War of 1812, and was at the battle of New Orleans. Mary Ann (Hale) Nation, was born in Jackson County, Tenn., October 29, 1819, and died in Stoddard County, Mo., December 25, 1856. She was also a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Of the eight children born to this union, only three are now living: the subject of this sketch, Nicholas G. and Laura Ader Foster (who is the wife of Simeon Foster, a farmer). Those deceased are named James W., John W., Matilda, Margaret Ann and Sarah. Giles Jasper received a limited education but by a life of study and attention to business is a well-informed man on all subjects. In December, 1861, he enlisted in Company F, Second Illinois Artillery, and lacked a few days of serving one year when he was discharged on account of ill health caused by exposure. Corinth was the only battle in which he participated. In 1863 he engaged in the grocery business at Santa Fe, Ill., and later was engaged in operating a saw mill for eight years. He then added a grist-mill, and has been in this business ever since, but in connection has carried on farming. He is the owner of 720 acres of excellent land and has a fine residence. He has two very large fish ponds, is raising German carp, and was the first man in the State to raise that kind of fish. In March, 1864, he married Miss Sarah Sitz, daughter of Noah Sitz, and a native of Stoddard County, Mo. She died about one year after marriage, without issue. In 1867 Mr. Nation married Mrs. Martha E. (Brantley) Ford, a native of Stoddard County, daughter of Joel Brantley and the widow of R. D. Ford, who died while in the Union army leaving one child, Rosa Bell, who has since died. To Mr. and Mrs. Nation were born one child; Giles Zadas. Looking at his farm one can readily see that Mr. Nation is a wide-awake enterprising citizen. Although starting with little means his success has been the result of energy and excellent business ability. He is a Republican in politics, and is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Nicholas G. Nation, another successful and enterprising citizen of Stoddard County, was born in Jackson County, Tenn., December 31, 1845, and is the son of William and Martha Ann (Hale) Nation. [For further particulars of parents see sketch of Giles J. Nation.] Nicholas G. Nation received meager educational advantages, and remained at home until 1861, when he enlisted in Company F, Second Illinois Artillery, and remained in service about two years. During that time he participated in the battles of Corinth and Shiloh. At the last-named battle he was dismounted, and has never recovered from the effects of this accident, being discharged on account of the same. March 20, 1870, he chose for his companion in life, Miss Margaret Caroline Keaton, who was born in Carroll County, Tenn., May 9, 1847, and who was the daughter of Nicholas Jackson Keaton, who was a farmer, who came from Tennessee to Missouri in 1861, and settled in Stoddard County, where he remained until his death, June 11, 1876. To Mr. and Mrs. Nation was born one son, William Jackson, who is now at home. After marriage Mr. Nation began life for himself as a farmer. He is now the owner of about 500 acres of as good land as is to be found in the county, all well improved. He is a Republican in his political views, and at all times supports the cause of education and religion, as well as all other laudable enterprises. He is a member of the Wheel, and is decidedly in favor of the liquor traffic. He and Mrs. Nation are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

John Newcomer, one of the substantial citizens of the county, and the son of Martin and Barbara (Wigner) Newcomer, was born in Gallia County, Ohio, July 1, 1833, and has been a resident of Pike Township since 1855. The parents were natives of Pennsylvania, and came to Stoddard County, Mo., in 1856. The father was a gun smith and blacksmith by trade, which he followed all his life. He died in Stoddard County, Mo., in 1876, when eighty-three. The mother is still living, is eighty-two years old, and now resides with her son, John, who is the only one living of a family of three children. He learned the blacksmith's trade, at which he has continued to work up to the present, but intends from now on to follow agricultural pursuits. He is not only a blacksmith, but is a carpenter, bricklayer, or general mechanic, and excels at anything he undertakes. In 1857 he married Nancy Catherine Stropp, a native of Stoddard County, Mo., born about 1838, and the daughter of Lawson Stropp. To this union were born twelve children, five living: Jenetta Alice, Sarah Elizabeth, Joseph F., Clara C. and Ida May. From 1872 to 1882 Mr. Newcomer served as justice of the peace, and proved himself as good an official as he was a mechanic. He is a Democrat in politics, is a member of the Wheel, and also a member of the Masonic fraternity. He and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

S. Albert Norrid was born May 5, 1853, in Mississippi County, Mo. His parents, P. A. and Adeline F. (Myers) Norrid, were born in Tennessee, and were married in Missouri. They came to Stoddard County in 1855, and located on a farm, where the father died April 20, 1886. S. Albert Norrid was reared on a farm and educated in the common schools. He also received nearly one year's schooling at Arcadia College. At the age of eighteen years he began teaching school, which occupation he followed for eleven years, teaching during the winter months and farming during the summer. January 12, 1882, he was united in marriage to Belle Hickman, a native of Obion County, Tennessee, and daughter of Capt. H. W. Hickman, whose sketch appears in this work. Mr. and Mrs. Norrid have two children: Birdie May and Daisey Ethel. Mr. Norrid purchased part of his present farm previous to his marriage and made some valuable improvements. He now owns about 260 acres of land, with 180 under cultivation. His wife is a member of the Baptist Church, and he is a Methodist, and a member of the Agricultural Wheel and the Knights of the Golden Rule. He is a Democrat in his political views, and since 1882 has held the office of county assessor, giving excellent satisfaction to all concerned.

R. P. Owen, ex-judge, probate judge, and attorney at law, is a native of Hopkins County, Ky., born near Madisonville, August 26, 1814, and is the son of Reuben and Patsy (Wells) Owen, and grandson of William Owen, who had two sons in the Revolutionary War. He died in Georgia, whither he had immigrated at an early date. The Owen family originally came from Wales, and was represented by three brothers, from whom sprang the Owen family in America. The Wells family were Carolinians. Reuben Owen was a native of Virginia and his wife a native of South Carolina. Her mother was a niece of Daniel Boone. Reuben was reared in Georgia, and in 1795 immigrated to Kentucky, and in company with one young man went down the river to New Orleans, when that territory was under the Spanish Government. He remained there a short time, and came back up the river on a barge commanded by a Spanish officer. They stopped at Memphis where they built a fort, and Mr. Owen cut the first stick of timber where Memphis now stands. He came up the river to Kaskaskia, Ill., stopped there a short time, and then went to Kentucky, where he was married in Henderson County. After moving around in different counties of Kentucky, he finally moved to Stoddard County, Mo., where he lived until October, 1843. His wife died about 1850. Of their eight children, five are now living: Adrian B., Reuben P., Given, Eliza B. and Martha E. Those deceased are William, Emily, and one who died in infancy. R. P., the subject of this sketch, was reared in Kentucky, where he remained until 1841, when he immigrated to Stoddard County, Mo., with his family—his wife and two children. In 1842 he located in Bloomfield, and was appointed deputy clerk. He was afterward appointed by Judge Cook to fill the vacancy, and at the next general election was chosen to fill that position. He was then elected three successive terms of six years each, and served in this capacity for nearly twenty years. During this time he studied law, and received his license in 1859. In 1863 he began practicing. During the war he ran a steam grist-mill, and had to feed both the Northern and Southern armies. In 1863 he began practicing his profession, and in 1870 he was elected judge of the Twenty-third Judicial Circuit, and re-elected in 1874, serving until 1880, when he was re-elected to the same office. He held this position about fourteen years, since which time he has been engaged in the practice of his profession. He has never been defeated in running for office, and has been in office the principal part of his life until he resigned his judgeship. In January, 1885, he went to Texas, where he was engaged in the mercantile business, which he carried on until May, 1886, when he came home. Many years previous to this (January 7, 1835), he married Miss Mary H. Lewis, a native of Tennessee. Nine children were born to this union, four now living: Martha M. (widow of Samuel Montgomery), Mary E. (widow of J. W. Leach), Catherine (wife of R. T. Seckel) and Minerva O. (wife of Dr. Tumbaugh). Those deceased are Laura, Lizzie A., Josephine, Adelia and Roxie A. Mrs. Owen died November 5, 1883. She was a member of the Baptist Church, as is also Mr. Owen. He is a member of the Masonic lodge, and is one of the prominent men of Southeast Missouri—an old pioneer and a useful citizen.

John N. M. Page, M. D., was born in Smith County, Tenn., March 15, 1842, and is a son of Judge Thomas W. and Fannie (Ledbetter) Page, who were natives of Tennessee. The father was a farmer, and died in Obion County in 1882. His wife died in 1880. Dr. John N. M. Page was educated in the schools of Obion County, and in August, 1861, enlisted in the Thirty-third Tennessee Infantry, and served until he was discharged for disability in 1863. He re-enlisted in the cavalry service in 1864, and served until the close of the war. He participated in the battles of Shiloh, Iuka, Chickamauga, Murfreesboro and numerous small skirmishes, and was taken prisoner, but succeeded in making his escape. After the close of the war he returned to Obion County, and soon began the study of medicine. He took his first course of lectures in 1868 in the Medical University of Louisville, Ky., and graduated from that institution in 1870, locating the same year in Mississippi County, Mo. Here he practiced two years but since that time has been a resident of Stoddard County, where he has been engaged in farming with the exception of the first five years spent here. Dr. Page is a Democrat in his political views, and is an enterprising and public-spirited man. He was married in 1876 to Laura Sheeks, a native of Mississippi County, and daughter of William Sheeks. Dr. Page and wife have four sons: Albert Sidney Johnson, John M., Rufus L. and Walter L. He is a member of the Knights of the Golden Rule, and the Agricultural Wheel, and his wife belongs to the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Henry A. Palmer, farmer of Stoddard County, and the son of William G. and Sarah Palmer, was born on the farm where he now lives, August 24, 1856. The father was born in Buncombe County, N. C., and died in Stoddard County, Mo., in February, 1867, at the age of sixty-five. He was a farmer by occupation, and a manufacturer of plug tobacco. He married Sarah M. Ellington, a native of Granville County, N. C., born March 26, 1816, and she is still living and residing on the old homestead. Mr. Palmer was a Republican, and he was also a member of the Baptist Church, as is also his wife. Twelve children were born to their marriage, ten now living: Margaret (widow of William A. Stewart), William J., Caroline (widow of Samuel Stewart), Nancy (deceased), Mary (wife of Samuel Scism), George W., Louisa (wife of William Steford), Thomas G., Elizabeth, Minerva (widow of John Quick), Henry A. and Peter (deceased). Henry A. Palmer was married in August, 1875, to Miss Jane Smith, daughter of William B. Smith, and a native of Tennessee. She died in Stoddard County four years later, leaving two children: Henry W. and Luther Eugene. December 3, 1882, Mr. Palmer married Miss Sarah Proffer, daughter of William Proffer. She was born in Stoddard County, Mo., in 1866, and by her marriage became the mother of two children: William Lawson and Cecil Clyde. Mr. Palmer is a member of the Baptist Church, and is a Republican in politics, as is also his brother, George W. This family has become noted for its liberality in donating to churches and schools.

John M. Paslay, merchant at Essex, Mo., was born in Morgan County, Ind., in 1841, and is the son of Andrew and Jane (Scott) Paslay. The father preached the gospel in Morgan County until 1847, when he became a minister in Stoddard County, Mo. Fourteen children were born to them, and of those Thomas and John M. are the only survivors. The mother died in 1867, and was followed to her long home by her husband in 1874. The subject of this sketch came from the Hoosier State with his parents, and in 1861 was married to Sarah Jane Benson. He followed agriculture until 1879, when he turned his attention to mercantile life at Essex, and has been so engaged ever since. His military record was in connection with Company K, Second Illinois Cavalry, with which he enlisted in August, 1862, and served four months. At the battle of Clarkson, Mo., he was crippled in the right arm and injured in his back by being thrown from a horse. Mr. Paslay served the county very efficiently, as constable, for about eight years. Mr. Paslay is a member of the Order of the Golden Rule, and also an organizer of the Wheel. He and his wife are members of the United Brethren Church. Of the three children born to them but one, John W., is living. It hardly seems possible that when he moved to Stoddard County the elk, wild cattle, and various other emblems of primitive days, should have been a common sight to his youthful eyes, but so it was.

George W. Patterson. Middle Tennessee is the home of many of the early settlers of Missouri, and it was there that Frank and Nancy J. (Davis) Patterson, the parents of the subject of this sketch, were born. That was the scene of their son's nativity, also, in 1848, and twenty years later the father located in Missouri, where he now resides on his farm, three miles southeast of Bloomfield. He lost his first wife in 1858, and in 1860 married her sister, Minerva A. Davis. Two of the five children of his first marriage are alive: George W. and William M. Those of his last marriage are Newton M., Emma (now Mrs. B. Capps), Minerva (now Mrs. J. Asline), Lee, Walter, Joe and Luther. George W., the subject of this sketch, left home in 1864, and joined the army under Capt. Gay, of Gen. Forrest's command. After about nine months' service the company disbanded, and he returned to his home in Gibson County, Tenn. In 1869, a year after the family had arrived in Stoddard County, he married Miss Ann Dennington, and their union has been blessed with seven children, five of whom are now living: Cora (now Mrs. J. Dowdy), Willie, Ollie, De Witt and Birdie. Mr. Patterson rented the farm he now occupies about five years ago. He is a member of the A. O. U. W., and is president of the Agricultural Wheel of Essex. Both Mr. and Mrs. Patterson are members of the General Baptist Church.

Manning S. Phelan, county clerk and native of Stoddard County, Mo., was born April 4, 1852, being the son of William G. and Martha I. (Randall) Phelan, the former a native of Dublin, Ireland, and the latter of Mississippi County, Mo. The father came to America in his twenty-second year (1847), and in 1850 located in Stoddard County, Mo., settling in Bloomfield, where he resided until his death, which occurred August 25, 1872. His widow is still living. They became the parents of seven children, five of whom are living: Manning S., Richard, Walter, Belle and Lura. The children deceased are Minnie and Mary. The father was a lawyer by profession, and while in his native country he studied for the priesthood. He was noted as being a fine criminal lawyer, and had an extensive practice. His son, Manning S. Phelan, was reared and received a portion of his education in Bloomfield. In 1869 he entered the St. Louis University at St. Louis, where he remained until June, 1872, when he came home for vacation. His father died, and he engaged in the printing business, and afterward edited the Enterprise Messenger, the Southeast Reporter and the Stoddard County Messenger. In 1878 he was appointed deputy circuit clerk, filling that office eight years. In November, 1886, he was elected to his present position, which he is filling to the satisfaction of all his constituents. March 1, 1874, he was united in marriage with Sophia V. Owen, and by her is the father of four children: Albert, Ella M., Thurmena B. and William R. Mr. Phelan is a member of the I. O. O. F., in which order he has passed all the chairs.

Simon Poe was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., November 16, 1827, and is a son of Terry, Sr., and Gensey M. (Brooks) Poe, natives of North Carolina. They immigrated to Kentucky at an early day, and remained there a few years. The father was born in 1786, and immigrated to Cape Girardeau, Mo., when he was yet a boy. He was here married, and here reared his family of eight children, only three now living: Wiley S., Simon and Clara (wife of William H. Story). The father came to Stoddard County in 1837, and located where St. Francisville now stands. He entered 160 acres of land as soon as it was in the market, and erected a little log house. He died in 1859. Simon Poe was reared on the farm, remaining with his parents until twenty-one years of age, when he began working for himself. He worked for wages until 1851, when he married Miss K. E. Goodwin, who bore him six children, four now living: Joseph H., James T., Ellen E. and America J. After marriage Mr. Poe settled near where he now resides. In 1862 he enlisted in Company C, Twelfth Missouri State Militia, and served three years. He was in several severe skirmishes and was accidentally wounded by his gun falling and shooting off the two fore fingers of his right hand. He was mustered out in 1864, and came home and engaged in agricultural pursuits, which occupation he has since followed. He is a good citizen and is respected by all who know him.

Lawson Proffer, one of the oldest and one of the most enterprising citizens of Pike Township, Stoddard Co., Mo., was born in that township and county February 15, 1833, and is the son of Peter and Elizabeth (Stropp) Proffer. The father was born in North Carolina about 1793, and died in Stoddard County, Mo., in 1858. He was among the very first settlers of Stoddard County, coming there in 1828. He was a farmer by occupation, and followed this occupation, together with blacksmithing, until his death. His wife died when her son, Lawson Proffer, was but a child. She was probably about thirty-eight years of age at that time. They were the parents of the following named children: Matilda (deceased), John, Andrew (deceased), Adaline, Lawson, Moses, Ephraim, George (deceased) and Balona (deceased). Lawson received a limited education, and remained with his parents until twenty-three years of age, when he began for himself as a farmer. He first purchased from the Government 200 acres of land, and has added to this 600 acres. He has given 120 acres to his children. During the late war Mr. Proffer served as lieutenant in the State militia. January 8, 1852, he married Miss Mary Ann Ravenscroft, a native of Cape Girardeau County, born on June 13, 1830. To this union were born seven children, six now living: William Hiram, Thomas B., Elizabeth, Catherine, John and Jennie C. Joseph was born December 15, 1859, and died May 8, 1864. Mr. Proffer is a member of the Wheel, also a member of the Masonic fraternity, and is a member of the Presbyterian Church. He was one of the men interested in building the Oak Ridge Christian Church, of which his wife is a member. Mr. Proffer is conservative in his political views, and casts his vote for the best man.

Hon. Moses Proffer, a thorough-going citizen and resident of Pike-ton, Pike Township, was born near where he now resides, in 1834, and is a son of Peter and Elizabeth (Stropp) Proffer. [For further particulars of parents see sketch of Lawson Proffer]. Moses was the youngest son living of a family of nine children. He received a limited education, but, through his own efforts, aided by travel, has educated himself, and is considered a well-informed man on all subjects. In 1852 he, in company with others from Stoddard County, crossed the plains to California, where for eight years he remained there, working in the mines in the winter time, and in summer was engaged in the saw-mill business, which proved a successful venture, as he brought back to Stoddard County $7,000. He invested this in land, and has since been engaged in farming. October 10, 1860, he married Miss Eliza Samantha Oaks, daughter of Jonas Oaks. She was also born in Stoddard County, Mo., about 1844. To them were born two children: Florence Victoria (wife of B. P. Walker, a prominent merchant of Poplar Bluff, Mo.), and Mary Alma (wife of William M. Ferguson, the oldest merchant at Poplar Bluffs). Mr. Proffer is a member of the Masonic fraternity, is also a member of the Agricultural Wheel, and is a Democrat politically. In 1868 he was one of the few eligible men to fill the office of representative, and was elected and served as such. In connection with his farm Mr. Proffer is engaged in rearing and dealing in stock. He is the owner of 1,600 acres of excellent land, 360 of which are located near Pikeville, and is considered one of the finest farms in the county. Most of his land is well improved. He has been an active and enterprising citizen, and at all times supports the cause of education.

P. P. Reed, another successful farmer, whose postoffice is at Bloomfield, was born in Warren County, Ky., March 27, 1827, and is the son of John and Ida (Lowe) Reed, natives of North Carolina and Kentucky, respectively. The father was of Scotch-Irish descent, and the mother of Welsh. The former immigrated to Kentucky when but a youth, married there and remained until 1837, when he immigrated to Stoddard County, Mo., coming through in wagons. They stopped about one mile east of Bloomfield, where the father built a little log cabin covered with clap-boards and weight poles, puncheon floors, etc. Here they continued to reside, suffering all the privations incident to pioneer life. In 1855 or 1856 Mr. Reed entered eighty acres of land, about one and a half miles northwest of where his son, P. P., now resides. He died in this county in 1880. The mother is still living, and resides with her daughter. They were the parents of eight children, five of whom are now living: Pryor P., Sarah (wife of George Pollock), Julia, Jane (also married) and Elizabeth. Those deceased are William, James and Nancy. Pryor P. Reed, the subject of this sketch, was about seven years of age when he came to Stoddard County with his parents. He remained at home until he became of age, and attended the little log schoolhouse, situated four or five miles from his home, in order to secure an education. As might be expected his education was rather limited, and a boy who could read and write in those days was considered a good scholar. In 1849 he married Miss Matilda Taylor, a daughter of Abraham Taylor, one of the first settlers of this county. To this union were born six children, four now living: William, Vadey, Nancy and Classinda. Those deceased were Anderson and Mary. Mrs. Reed died in 1866, and Mr. Reed then married Mary Oaks, by whom he had one child, Ida. After his first marriage Mr. Reed entered a farm at Castor River, where he lived for three years. In 1846 he removed to where he is now living, and entered 160 acres of land, nearly all heavily timbered, on which he erected a log cabin. He now owns about 156 acres of land, eighty under cultivation and well improved. When he first settled on his present property wild game was abundant, and Mr. Reed has seen as many as ten or fifteen deer feeding, while standing in his door. There were plenty of bears and elks, and the nights were rendered hideous by the howling of the wolves. All this is now changed, and Mr. Reed has been a witness to these changes. He and Mrs. Reed are members of the Baptist Church, to which he has belonged for thirty-five years.

W. P. Renner, druggist at Bloomfield, a native of the city of St. Louis, Mo., was born in October, 1844, and is the son of Daniel and Mary (Barrack) Renner.

both natives of Germany. They left their native country and came to America, first locating in St. Charles County, but afterward settled in St. Louis, where he remained several years. He then removed to Hancock County, Ill., where he was engaged in farming, which occupation he carried on until the high water drove him out, when he became disgusted, moved to Warsaw, Ill., and there died in January, 1884, at the age of seventy-six. The mother died a few months after his death. They were the parents of five children, who lived to be grown, and three of whom are now living: Elizabeth (wife of John A. Koch), William P. and Margaret (wife of John Kahler). William P. was reared in Warsaw, Ill., until thirteen years of age. He came to Bloomfield in 1858 and learned the saddler's trade under his brother Daniel. He served three years. In 1881 he went to Cape Girardeau and worked in the quartermaster's department at his trade during the whole service. At the close of the war he came back to Bloomfield and he and his brother started a harness shop, which they carried on until 1875, when his brother died. He was running a drug store, and at his death William P. took charge of the same and conducted both drug store and harness shop. When the town of Dexter first started up, he moved the drug business to that point and here built one of the first business houses in Dexter, where he carried on business for some time. He has been a resident of Bloomfield for thirty years and has been identified as one of its best citizens. He was elected county treasurer in 1882, and held the office two successive terms. He was married in 1875 to Elizabeth Smith, a native of Stoddard County. To them were born four children: Mary, Carrie, Daniel and Gertrude. Mr. Renner is a member of the Masonic Fraternity and I. O. O. F.

Pleasant M. Rhodes, son of George W. and Sarah (Kinder) Rhodes, was born in Bollinger County, Mo., May 20, 1830. George W. was born in North Carolina, December 10, 1808, and was but five years old when his parents moved from North Carolina to Southeast Missouri, locating near Marble Hill, Bollinger County. He was a farmer and also a merchant, and sold goods for several years. He was justice of the peace for some time, and was also judge of Stoddard County for four years. He helped lay off the town of Bloomfield, and was a prominent citizen. The last few years before his death he practiced medicine, meeting with success. He was also successful in his mercantile and agricultural pursuits. He stood by the people during the cholera plague, and nursed many when they were forsaken by others. He died in Stoddard County, Mo., April 29, 1858. His wife was born in Bollinger County, Mo., in 1810, and died in Stoddard County, Mo., December 10, 1864. He was a Democrat in his political views, and he and wife were members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Of the family of four sons and four daughters born to this marriage, only two are now living. Pleasant M. and Samuel W. Rhodes, both living in Stoddard County. Pleasant M.'s advantages for receiving an education were limited, but by hard work on his own part he acquired more knowledge than the average. He remained at home and assisted his father on the farm and in the store until August 10, 1854, when he married Miss Elizabeth Masters, who was born in Bollinger County, Mo., June 2, 1838, and who died in Stoddard County, July 7, 1864. To this union were born six children, two now living, Samuel W. and Marion J. January 15, 1865, Mr. Rhodes married Mrs. Columbia (McFerren) Welch, widow of William Welch, who died in a Federal prison at St. Louis, and daughter of Erin McFerren. She was born in 1835. Three children were born to this union: William M., Horatio Seymour and Murlice. The four children who died were named as follows: Ida May, Jennie, Lonnie and James. Mr. Rhodes started out for himself as a farmer, and this occupation he has since continued. Although Mr. Rhodes lost property during the war he is now the owner of 414 acres of good land. He is a good Democrat, a member of the Wheel, and he and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Dr. J. S. Richardson, representative of Stoddard County, Mo., was born in Lauderdale County, Tenn., July 7, 1840, and is the son of Dr. S. and Evaline (Hartwell) Richardson, natives of Virginia. They immigrated to Tennessee about 1830 and located in Rutherford County, where they lived for several years. They then removed to Lauderdale County, where they remained until July, 1849, at which date they removed to Dyersburg, Dyer Co., Tenn., and here the father died in 1873, at the age of seventy-six years. He was a physician all his life and was a graduate of the Pennsylvania Medical College of Philadelphia. He began reading medicine in his youth and became quite a noted physician and prominent citizen. He represented his district in the Tennessee Legislature in 1858, and was a member when the war broke out. The mother is still living and resides in Dyersburg. She is now in her eighty-eighth year. They were the parents of eleven children, three of whom are now living: Mrs. Mary A. McGaughey, Col. T. E. and Dr. J. S. There were four brothers killed in the Confederate army: H. H., colonel of the Ninth Tennessee Infantry, killed on Sunday April 6, 1862, at the battle of Shiloh; John, captain of Gen. Strahl's staff, killed at Franklin; Dr. Daniel M., who was assassinated in Dyer County, Tenn., by men belonging to the Third Illinois Cavalry, while on his way to see a patient; and James L., who was killed at the battle of Perryville. Dr. J. S. Richardson was reared in Dyer County, Tenn., until fifteen years of age, when he entered the Union University at Murfreesboro, and there remained two years. He then entered the medical department of the Nashville University and graduated from that institution in 1860. At the breaking out of the late war, he enlisted in the Fourth Tennessee Infantry, commanded by Col. R. P. Neeley, and participated in all the principal engagements during the service. He remained with the Fourth until after the evacuation of Corinth, when he went with the Fifteenth Tennessee Cavalry, and served in this capacity until the close of the war. While in service he was captured several times; once, December 4, 1862, he was captured by the Eleventh Illinois Cavalry, and was taken to Memphis, thence on a pass and transportation furnished by Col. Robert G. Ingersoll, to Cairo, and from there by transport was sent to Vicksburg. They anchored on the 27th of December at the mouth of the Yazoo just above Vicksburg, when the fight was raging between Gen. Sherman and Gen. Camerson at Vicksburg. The transports, consisting of about 1,200, were ordered back up the river. In January, 1863, they were taken to Alton prison, and here Dr. Richardson was kept prisoner until the middle of February, when he was sent to Camp Chase, Ohio, and was there kept until about the middle of April. He was then sent to City Point, Va., where he was exchanged and returned to his command. He here remained until the close of the war. January 4, 1864, he married Miss Mattie A. McDavid, by whom he had three children: John H., Eva H. and Mac S. In 1866 the Doctor removed to Gayoso, Pemiscot Co., Mo., where he practiced his profession for about three years. Then in 1869 he came to Stoddard County, and located at Bloomfield, where he has since been a resident, engaging in the active practice of his profession until 1884, when he retired from general practice. He was for several years a member of the town council and spent about ten years as president of the board of education of Bloomfield. In 1876 he was elected to the Legislature and re-elected in 1880. He was elected speaker pro tem. of the House, and in 1882 was re-elected. In 1886 he was re-elected to the Legislature and served through both regular and extra session of the present term. Dr. Richardson has been one of Stoddard County's most prominent citizens and a man who has taken a deep interest in the public welfare. Mrs. Richardson is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Daniel A. Richmond, M. D., a successful practitioner of Stoddard County, and the son of Alexander P. and Dovey (Gibson) Richmond, was born in Wilson County, Tenn., near Nashville, and near Gen. Jackson's hermitage, February 1, 1838. Alexander P. Richmond was at one time a physician, but gave up the profession to follow agricultural pursuits. He served as a soldier in the War of 1812, and was about sixty-three years of age at the time of his death. Daniel A. Richmond was but an infant when his mother died, and was only nine years of age when his father died. They were the parents of five children, three now living. Daniel A. was the youngest of this family. He received a liberal education at private schools, and after the death of his mother he went to live with his sister, where he remained until eighteen years of age. In 1855 he began to study medicine under a cousin, John B. Richmond, and in 1856 and 1857 he attended the medical department of the University of Nashville. He practiced medicine a short time in Wilson County, Tenn., after which he came to Kenton Station, Gibson Co., Tenn., and after practicing in that State until 1863, went to Graves County, Ky., where he remained until the close of the war, and then returned to his old home. December 6, 1860, he married Tennessee Penn, a native of Gibson County, Tenn. She died January 6, 1866, leaving one son, Charles C., who was born July 27, 1863, and died September 24, 1870. October 15, 1867, Dr. Richmond married Mrs. Martha A. Whicker, a native of Rutherford County, Tenn., born September 16, 1844. Seven children were the result of this union, four now living: Anna Bell, Minnie E., Nannie May and Virginia Ollie. Those deceased were named Ada, Lockey and Dovey. In 1871 Dr. Richmond came to Pike Township, Stoddard County, where he has since remained, and where he has an extensive practice. He is very conservative in his political views, and was a strong union man during the war and was very much opposed to that struggle. Mrs. Richmond is a member of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church.

Richard J. Rolston, another prominent citizen of New Lisbon Township, and owner of a well improved and equally as well located farm bounding on Castor River, was born in Jackson County, Ind., in 1851, being the son of John and Sarah (Hopkins) Rolston, who were natives of Westmoreland County, Penn., and Kentucky, respectively. The father was a farmer by occupation, and was a soldier in the War of 1812. He immigrated to Kentucky when a young man, married here, and then moved to Boone County, Ind., where he resided for some time. He then moved back to Trimble County, Ky., where he died in about 1876, at the age of seventy-six. The mother is still living, and is making her home with her son, Richard J., who was the youngest of twelve children, eight now living. In 1873 Richard J. Rolston married Miss Rose Ellen Lister, a daughter of John Lister, and a native of Boone County, Ind., born in 1858. To this union were born an interesting family of five children, three now living: Sophia E., Arra Ellen and Ethel. Those deceased are Maudie and Ollie. Mr. Rolston after marriage began farming, which he has since continued. In 1881 he started for Saline County, Mo., but stopped in Stoddard County, where he has since been living on the farm that he purchased at that time. He is a member of the Wheel, a Democrat in his political views, and he and wife are members of the Baptist Church.

Jesse S. Shands, farmer, contractor and builder, was born in South Carolina February 9, 1835, and is a son of Gideon and Mariah (Harris) Shands. The father was also born in South Carolina, and in 1845 removed to Mississippi where he resided until his death, which occurred about 1879. Jesse S. learned his trade of his father and older brother and remained in Mississippi until 1862, when he removed to Tennessee, and the following year enlisted in Company B, Sixth Tennessee Cavalry, United States army, and served two years. He then organized a company and was elected its captain, but the company was not called out and consequently was disbanded. He then went to Illinois and located in Johnson County in 1864, but in December, 1865, located in Stoddard County, Mo. Here he has since resided and farmed. He owns eighty acres of land, nearly all of which is improved. He was married in Mississippi January 17, 1861, to Mary E. Black, a native of Mississippi, and daughter of P. N. Black. They have four children: Sarah M. (widow of Joel Glover), Ansey L. (Mrs. James Greer), David T. and Mary C.

Samuel C. Scism, a successful farmer, whose postoffice address is Bloomfield, was born in Stoddard County, August 23, 1854, and is the son of William and Lucinda (McPheeters) Scism. The father is a pioneer of this county, and is now quite aged. His memory is quite clear, however, and he can relate many interesting anecdotes connected with his early life in Stoddard County. He commenced life a poor man, but by industry and economy has now a good home. He reared a large family, most of whom lived to be grown and were married. He owned at one time several hundred acres of land, but has divided it among his children, reserving for himself only a part. He has been a valuable citizen for Stoddard County. He has been a life-long Democrat in his political views. His son, Samuel C., was reared to farm life and remained at home until twenty-two years of age, when, in 1876, he married Miss Hattie M. Springfield, a native of Georgia. To this union were born six children, five now living: Eva J., Willie, Effie, Zilla and John. The one deceased was named Adelia. After marrying, Mr. Scism moved to his present farm, where he has resided ever since. He owns 445 acres of land, 250 under cultivation and well improved. The soil is rich and productive, and the farm is one of the finest in Stoddard County. Mr. Scism is a member of the Wheeler organization.

John D. Shoemate, merchant, is a Tennessean, born in Nashville, December 23, 1854. His father, whose initials are J. M., was a Virginian, but spent the period of his life after his tenth year in Tennessee. There he married Miss Mary E. Elliott, of that State, and from 1869 to the time of his death, in February, 1877, he lived in Obion County. Young Shoemate grew up amid the duties of farm life, and received a good education, part of which was gained in the State Normal at Cape Girardeau. This enabled him to teach for five years, and after that period he became a clerk in the store of J. A. Hickman, where he has since been employed. In August, 1887, Mr. Shoemate and his brother bought the Puxico drug store, which they are now conducting so successfully. He was appointed notary public January 26, 1888, and also served as alderman of the town of Puxico, and president of the school board. He was married, July 7, 1887, to Miss Mary E. Swallows, a native of Indiana, but whose life has been spent chiefly in Stoddard County.

David M. Simmons, M. D., physician at Lakeville, Stoddard Co., Mo., was born in Logan County, Ky., April 7, 1825, and is a son of John W. and Sarah (Galloway) Simmons, natives of Mecklenburg County, N. C. The father was a farmer and dealer in stock, and died in 1805 at the age of sixty one years. The mother died at the age of sixty. They left their native county and came to Logan County, Ky., where they passed their last days. Their family consisted of six children, four now living. David M. was the fourth child born to this marriage. He remained at home until after the death of his mother, when he married, went to Texas, and there remained about a year. He then returned to Kentucky, to Adairsville, Logan County, where he began the study of medicine, which he continued three years. In 1850 and 1851 he attended the Medical University at Nashville, Tenn., and graduated from that institution in 1851. In 1852 he began the practice of his profession at Highland, Marshall Co., Ky., where he remained until 1860, and then came to Piketon, Stoddard Co., Mo., and there remained four years. He removed from there to Bankston, Chocklaw Co., Miss., where he practiced medicine until 1871, at which date he returned to Marshall County, Ky., purchased land, and started the town of Dixie. In connection with his practice he engaged in the mercantile business, also farmed and sold tobacco. At the end of seven years he came to Lakeville, Stoddard County, and here he has since remained. He received a liberal education, by money earned by his own hard work. His marriage, which occurred in September, 1845, was to Miss Elizabeth Beaty, a daughter of Samuel Beaty. She was born in Logan County, Ky., in 1825, and died in that county in October, 1848. One son was born to them, November 12, 1847, and died March 27, 1885. He married Mattie E. Crow, of New Madrid County, and at the time of his death was practicing medicine at Brownwood. He had attended Vanderbilt University, at Nashville, and had an extensive practice. May 10, 1853, Dr. Simmons married Miss Cassandra F. Anderson, a daughter of John Anderson, of Marshall County, Ky., where she was born, March 29, 1836. This union resulted in the birth of one son and one daughter, Jephtha and Gertrude W. (wife of Hardin W. Watkins). February 27, 1887, Jephtha Simmons married Miss E. Alice McCray, a daughter of W. L. McCray, and to this union was born one son, Clay M. Dr. Simmons is a Democrat in his political views, and a member of the Masonic fraternity, and has taken the council degrees; he was a representative at the Grand Lodge of Mississippi. He and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and Mrs. Simmons has been a member of the same since 1853.

Thomas Simmemon, farmer, and manufacturer of pottery, located three and one-half miles north of Dexter, was born in Habersham County, Ga., February 25, 1827, being the son of Jacob and Lucinda (McCallom) Simmemon, the father a native of North Carolina and the mother of South Carolina. They immigrated to Georgia at an early day, and here the father died. The mother is still living, and is a resident of Georgia. The father was a farmer and a manufacturer of pottery, and carried on both occupations until his death. Of their eight children, five are now living: Thomas, David, James, Martha J. and Mary. Thomas Simmemon is the eldest of this family. He remained at home until about twenty years of age, when he went to Marietta, Ga., and there carried on his trade for about two years. He then went to Cherokee County, Ala., where he farmed for two years. He also stopped at East Point, Mo., for a short time. In 1852 he married Miss Mary Hill, a native of Cobb County, Ga., and to them were born ten children, seven now living: Lucinda, Lucy, Benton, Edward, Dora, Mary and Martha. Those deceased were Harrison, Robert and John. In 1868 Mr. Simmemon came to Stoddard County, where he has since resided. He started the first pottery shop in Southeast Missouri, or within hundreds of miles of where he is now living, and has carried on the business ever since very successfully, with the exception of about two years during the war, when he could not sell on account of the currency. He supplies the public with jugs, churns and pottery ware, and also ships his ware at times. He also owns a valuable farm of over one hundred acres, eighty of which are under cultivation, and carries on farming quite successfully. Mr. Simmemon is a member of the Agricultural Wheel, and has been identified with this county for over thirty years, being a valuable and successful citizen. Mrs. Simmemon is a member of the Christian Church.

Jonas Welborn Sitz, another old and respected citizen of Stoddard County, was born in Lincoln County, N. C., November 6, 1821, and is a son of Henry and Susan (Bradshaw) Sitz, natives also of Lincoln County, N. C. In the spring of 1827 they came to Washington County, Mo., where they lived for eleven years, and then moved to Stoddard County, where they passed the remainder of their days. The father was a collier by trade, but gave that up in late years and engaged in farming and trading in stock, at which he was very successful. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church, and died about 1857 at the unusual age of ninety-three, attending to his business up to the time of his death. The mother died about 1862, at the age of eighty-one. She was a life-long member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Ten children were born to their marriage, three of whom are living. Jonas W. Sitz received the rudiments of a common education, which he improved by general reading, observation, etc. He remained with his parents until his marriage, which occurred in 1843, to Miss Sarah Ward. She died about 1853, leaving a family of three children, two of whom are now living: Samantha Jane and Margaret Elizabeth. The one deceased, Marcus G., died in 1884 at the age of forty-three. November 5, 1856, Mr. Sitz married Miss Caldonia Harris, who was born in Fulton County, Ky., August 22, 1836, and who is the daughter of George and Almira Harris. Six children were the fruits of this union, five now living: George W., Susan Caroline, Sarah C., Altha Agnes and Alvin Alonzo. Aaron A., born December 29, 1858, died September 9, 1882. After his first marriage Mr. Sitz began farming and trading in stock, which he has since continued. He also had a general store at Piketon for five years, and was very successful as a merchant. He has a good farm of 540 acres, is a member of the Wheel, is a Mason, and he has been a life-long Democrat. He and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Mr. Sitz having donated the land upon which the church is built. He has just made arrangements to donate land for another church and cemetery.

James W. Smith, Maryland is the native State of Dr. William Smith, of Benton County, Mo., as well as of his son, the subject of this sketch. The mother and wife, Martha (Spencer) Smith, however, is a Virginian. Dr. Smith had a considerable reputation as a physician in his native State, but since 1858 has practiced his profession at his present home. His six children spent their early lives at home, and the first independent movement of James W. was in 1861 to enlist in Company D, Fiftieth Illinois Infantry, under Capt. Recker. As he was born in 1846 this would make him a soldier at the age of fifteen. He served until 1865, however, and was discharged at Springfield, Ill. He then returned home and resumed farming. When he came to Stoddard County he purchased the farm he now owns, which embraces about eighty acres of fine land on Gray's Ridge. There is upon this farm a historic Indian mound from which many specimens of ancient Indian art have been taken. Mr. Smith met his fate in 1882 in the person of Miss Fanny McMellon, who then became his wife. Their only child is Stella.

Mrs. Angeline Sparr was born in Stoddard County, Mo., in 1835, a daughter of James and Mary Wilson, both natives of Tennessee. The father was engaged in farming until he died in the year 1855. Mrs. Wilson died in 1842, after having become the mother of ten children. William, Polly and the subject of this sketch are the only members of this large family now living. Miss Angeline Wilson was first married to Jeremiah Webb, and to them were born three children, and after his death she became the wife of Edwin Long. Their life passed along until there were five children born to them, when Mr. Long was borne to his last resting place. Her last husband, Mr. Alfred Sparr, was a soldier in the Civil War in the Union army, and served in numerous severe engagements, the effect of which was to make him a cripple and cause the loss of hearing. Mrs. Sparr has but three children living: James, Malinda (now Mrs. H. Lawrence) and Mary (now Mrs. R. Blermis). From the estate of Mr. Long she now owns a good farm of eighty acres, which she has placed under fair cultivation.

Hiram M. Stacey, another successful farmer of New Lisbon Township, Stoddard Co., Mo., was born in Jackson County, Tenn., June 29, 1840, and is the son of Meshack and Elizabeth (Hawkins) Stacey, who were natives of Jackson County, Tenn. The father was born January 22, 1812, and died in Hardin County, Ill., January 24, 1869. In December, 1848, Mr. Stacey moved from Tennessee to Hardin County, Ill., where he passed the remainder of his days. He was a farmer by occupation. After his wife's death he married Elizabeth Flinn. Hiram M. Stacey was the second of a family of six children, all dead but two: Hiram M. and Britton Stacey (who is now a farmer and deputy sheriff of Hardin County, Ill.). Hiram M. remained at home until the late war, or in July, 1861, when he enlisted in Company A, Twenty-ninth Illinois Infantry, and served until December, 1865. In 1864, after serving out his time, he re-enlisted and served, in all, about four years and two months. During that time he participated in many battles, the principal ones being Fort Henry and Fort Donelson—receiving a flesh wound over the right eye in this battle. He was in the battle of Shiloh, and there received a flesh wound in the right thigh, and also participated in the siege of Vicksburg, Spanish Fort, Fort Blakley and many skirmishes. He was captured at Holly Springs, but was retained a prisoner but a short time. While on a furlough June 29, 1862, he married Serena Bynum, who was born in Gallatin County, Tenn., December 21, 1844, and died in Hardin County, Ill., in 1877, leaving three children: E. J., James B. and Nancy E. The same year Mr. Stacey married Miss Ida Ellen Braughard, a native of Hamilton County, Ky., born July 24, 1856, and the daughter of Jerry Braughard. To this union were born six children, four now living: Cora A., Chester A., Byron S. and Meshack. Emma May and Lillie May are deceased. Mr. Stacey has been a farmer all his life. He remained in Hardin County, Ill., until 1880, when he moved to Stoddard County and located in Duck Creek Township, where he lived until 1887, when he moved to his present farm. In connection with farming, he has also been engaged in the stock business. He is a Republican in politics, is a member of the G. A. R., also a member of the Wheel, and he and wife are members of the Christian Church. He has a fine farm well improved.

William Stiford, a successful farmer and stock raiser of Pike Township, was born in Obion County, Tenn., January 8, 1859, and is the son of Isaac and Nancy (Pipkins) Stiford, natives of Weakley County, Tenn. They both died in Stoddard County, Mo., in 1879, he at the age of fifty-three, and she at the age of forty. They were married in Weakley County, Tenn., and moved from there to Obion County when their son William was quite young. Mr. Stiford had learned the miller's trade and followed that business until he came to Missouri, when he turned his attention to farming. Both parents were members of the Presbyterian Church. To their marriage were born seven children, three now living. William Stiford was the third child born to this union. He remained with his parents until twenty-one years of age, when he began for himself as a farmer. December 5, 1881, he chose for his companion in life Mrs. Eliza Poplin, a daughter of Mr. Palmer and the widow of Joshua Poplin. This union resulted in the birth of two children: Dollie and Ollie. Mr. Stiford is a member of the Wheel, and is a Republican in his political views. Mrs. Stiford is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Henderson Story, another successful agriculturist, whose postoffice address is Bloomfield, was born in Middle Tennessee, January 7, 1845, and is a son of Lemm and Sarah (Watson) Story, both natives of Tennessee. They emigrated from Tennessee to Stoddard Co., Mo., in 1854, and here entered forty acres of land on Castor River. The father is still living there but the mother is deceased. Of the three children born to their marriage only one is now living, Henderson. He was about nine years of age when he came to Stoddard County, and remained with his parents until of age. In 1863 he enlisted in Company A, Second Missouri State Militia, Cavalry, and served until the close of the war. He was in the battles of Marmaduke's raid, Price's raid and also in several severe skirmishes. He was discharged in 1865, came home, and in 1868 was married to Miss Nancy M. Rea, by whom he has seven children, five now living: Mary A., Ettie C., Nora G., Joseph L. and Samuel J. Mr. Story now owns 160 acres of land, partly under cultivation, with good improvements. He is a member of the G. A. R., of which he was one of the organizers of Zion Encampment.

William H. Sutton. Among the enterprising merchants of Puxico is the subject of this sketch, who was born January 2, 1850, in Tennessee. His father and mother, John S. and Emily J. (Beard) Sutton, were natives of South Carolina, but lived in Tennessee and spent their later years in Henderson County, Ky., where they moved when William was a child. Young Sutton took to the smoke of battle at very tender years, entering the Confederate service in the One Hundred and Fifth Tennessee Infantry, at the age of twelve years, and continuing until mustered out at Charleston, after the final surrender. He served in the Gen. Beauregard campaign, and at Shiloh was wounded by a shell tearing away part of his leg, and at Chickamauga a shot wound in the back of the head—these two being the chief wounds he received. He located in Louisville, Ky., after the war, and remained there three years, and occupied the following eight years in traveling through the South and West. He located at Puxico, Mo., in October, 1884, and engaged in blacksmithing, but in 1886 undertook mercantile life at Arbor, in Cape County. He returned to Puxico in October, 1887, and bought a store and a stock of general merchandise which has since grown into a first-class establishment with a good trade. While in Arkansas Mr. Sutton married Miss Elizabeth, a daughter of James F. Shirls. They were married in 1879. She is a native of Illinois. Mr. Sutton is a Mason, and while at Louisville, Ky., was made a member of the L. O. O. F. fraternity.

Thomas M. Swindell, a thoroughgoing, enterprising farmer of New Lisbon Township, was born in Wilson County, Tenn., June 10, 1848. His father, Joseph Swindell, came to East Tennessee at an early date, and afterward, when still quite young, came to Wilson County, Tenn., where he married Miss Mary Jones, a native of that county, and the mother of Thomas M. Swindell, who was but a child when his parents moved to Mississippi. They remained there about one year when they went to Saline County, Ill., where the mother died. The father then moved to Hamilton County, of the same State, from there to Franklin County, also of the same State, and died in 1867, at the age of sixty. He was a blacksmith all his life and a first-class workman. He owned a good farm and this he cultivated (with his own force). He was a member of the Christian Church. Thomas M. Swindell was the seventh of ten children, seven now living. He received a fair education and remained with his parents until 1865, when he came to Stoddard County and worked for wages until 1872, when he engaged in agricultural pursuits for himself. He rented land for two years, when he purchased a farm and is successfully engaged in farming. In January, 1867, he married Miss Mary Catherine Proffer, daughter of Andrew Proffer, and a native of Stoddard County, Mo., born 1851. Nine children were born to this union, six sons living: William Leonadis, Della, Neley, Limon, Willis, Joseph Andrew, Ernest, Blaine, and an infant son unnamed. Della, Neley and Limon are deceased. Mr. Swindell is a Republican politically, is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and he and wife are members of the Christian Church.

John Teidrick, a successful and enterprising farmer of Stoddard County, Mo., was born in that county September 11, 1850, and is the son of Charles and Polly (Harty) Teidrick. The father was an early settler of Stoddard County, and came here when it was but a wilderness, locating in the woods, where J. B. Sutherland now lives. The land was entered from the government and transferred to Charles Teidrick, who worked at and improved his place until his death, which occurred in 1851. The mother died in 1853. Of their five children, all lived to be grown, and four are now living: Fannie (wife of Z. T. Wilcox), Daniel B., Mollie (wife of George Houck) and John. The one deceased was named George. He was killed in the war, while on Price's raid. John Teidrick was reared to farm life, his parents having died when he was a babe. He was taken by his aunt, Sarah Miller, and remained with her about twelve years, when he went to live with his uncle, and there remained until sixteen years of age, when he began working for himself. He rented land on shares, and by economy and industry soon accumulated sufficient means to enable him to buy out the heirs of the old homestead, where he lived for nine years. He then sold out and bought his present property, where he now lives, which consists of over 132 acres of good land, eighty acres under cultivation, with good improvements and good buildings. A portion of this he cleared himself, and it is now a very fine farm. He was married in 1879 to Miss Addie Hobbs, a daughter of Solomon Hobbs, and by her he has one child, Otto B. Mr. Teidrick is an intelligent and enterprising citizen, and he and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Thomas J. Toole, head miller of the Dexter Elevator Steam Roller Mills, was born in Madison, Jefferson Co., Ind., January 9, 1859, and is the son of Thomas and Bridget (Bryan) Toole, both natives of Ireland. They immigrated to America at an early day, and located at New Orleans, remaining a short time and going thence to Madison, Ind., when it was yet in the woods. Here he learned the miller's trade, which he carried on for nearly forty years. He is still occupied in milling in the firm of W. Trow & Co., of Madison, Ind. He is the father of eight children, seven living: John, Mary, Clara, Maggie, Thomas, Michael and Elizabeth. Thomas was reared in Madison, where he served a two years' apprenticeship at the milling trade, but started in when about twelve years of age. He went from there to Louisville, Ky., and was in the employ of Gripp, Jones & Co., for two and a half years, when the firm changed to Gripp & Son, and Mr. Toole remained three years longer for this firm. He then went to St. Louis and was engaged with Kehlor Bros., until March, 1885, when he came to Dexter, where he has since been the foreman of the Elevator Mills for Cooper & Jorndt. Mr. Toole is a practical miller, with many years' experience, and turns out the best flour in this part of the State, supplying all the home demand, besides shipping a great deal to Arkansas. He was married November 5, 1880, to Anna M. Bott, of Madison, Ind., by whom he has had three children, two of whom are living, Gertie and Frankie. Mr. and Mrs. Toole are members of the Catholic Church.

Martin Tropf was born in Bavaria, Germany, July 4, 1833, and is the son of Martin and Annie Mary Tropf, natives of Bavaria, Germany. They passed their entire lives in their native country. The father was a farmer and served as a soldier under Napoleon for eight years. He was in many battles, and was on the way to Waterloo but arrived there too late to participate in that battle. He was in the campaign to Moscow, Russia. He died when Martin, Jr., was ten years of age, and his widow when Martin was twelve years of age. Martin remained on the farm until eighteen years of age, when he immigrated to the United States, and lived in New Orleans about nine years. He then came to Stoddard County, Mo., where he has since resided. He bought a half interest in eighty acres of land and to this has since added 240 acres, which under his care has been well improved. In 1864 he enlisted in Company A of the Fifth Missouri Infantry, of the Federal army, and served one year. January 10, 1869, he married Miss Freiderica Doratha Magdaline Julia Gross, a daughter of August Gross. She was born in Germany, November 2, 1848, and died in Stoddard County, Mo., January 7, 1884. She came with her parents to Illinois, when a young girl. They afterward settled in Cape Girardeau and finally in Stoddard County. Her father was a farmer. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and died leaving six children: Martin William, Edward Arnold, August Randall, Jacob David, Emil Arthur and Clara Alma. Those deceased are Lillie R. and Charles. Mr. Tropf is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, a member of the Wheel, and is a Democrat in his political views.

Thomas J. Ulen, dealer in hardware, furniture and agricultural implements, at Dexter, was born in Alexander County, Ill., December 8, 1847, and is a son of Samuel and Margaret (Thompson) Ulen, both natives of Kentucky, and of Scotch-Dutch descent. The former early removed from Kentucky to Scotland County, Mo., where he remained about three years, then immigrating to Illinois, and dying in Pulaski County, in 1868. The mother died the same year. Samuel Ulen was a farmer by occupation, which he carried on nearly all his life. He had eleven children, five of whom are living: Hamilton, Frederick, Benjamin, Matthew and Thomas J., who was reared to farm life in Illinois. He was also engaged in saw-milling for some time. In 1864 he enlisted in Company B, One Hundred and Forty-third Illinois Infantry, and served until the close of the service. He was in Memphis at the time Forest made his raid there, but participated in no engagement. He also had five brothers who served in the late war: James was killed in the battle of Corinth. Hamilton, Samuel (deceased), was shot through the right shoulder with a musket ball at the battle of Corinth, Benjamin and Matthew. Thomas J., after being discharged, went back to Illinois, where he remained until 1874, then coming to Dexter, Mo., where he has since resided. He was engaged in the manufacture of lumber until 1878, when he embarked in the hardware trade, which he has since carried on. He occupies six buildings or nearly one half of a block. These buildings are all stocked with different kinds of goods for conducting the business in which he is extensively engaged. He has been very successful in his undertakings since coming here, and is one of the largest merchants in Stoddard County. Mr. Ulen married Miss Laura Fitzgerald, a native of Illinois, and they have two children, Thomas and Louis. Mr. Ulen is a member of the K. of H. and the Masonic fraternity.

W. J. Ward was born on the 7th of July, 1852, in White County, Tenn., his parents being Andrew J. and Mary A. (Cashdollar) Ward, who were both North Carolinians by birth and settlers of White County, Tenn., in 1851. The father died there on the 13th day of March, 1875. His widow is still living and resides with her son, W. J. Ward. Of their nine children, eight are living: James A., E. E. (Mrs. I. E. Gleason), N. E. (Mrs. M. P. Sorrell), William J., Andrew J., Mary J., F. A. (Mrs. W. P. Knowles) and Alice. The one deceased was Crocket A. Mr. Ward was born in 1815 and his wife in 1819, in Iredell County, N. C. He was of English descent, his grandfather having come from London, England, to America at an early day and settled in North Carolina. He was a Revolutionary soldier, and died from effects of disease contracted while in service. W. J. Ward remained on his father's farm until he was twenty years of age, when he went to Northern Missouri, where he remained about two years and then returned to his native State. Since that time he has been traveling in different sections of the country engaged in lumbering and school teaching. In February, 1886, he purchased 400 acres of land where he now resides, but has since disposed of forty acres. He has 230 acres under cultivation, and is doing well financially. December 16, 1885, he married Laura M. Roberts, a native Tennessean, and by her is the father of one child, Lena Maud. Mr. and Mrs. Ward are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

E. M. Weber, real estate agent of Bloomfield, was born in the Province of Westphalia, Prussia, February 14, 1832, and is the son of Bernhard and Sophia (Reinhard) Weber, both natives of Germany. The father was a line officer in the Prussian army for several years. He was under Napoleon, and was with him in Russia and at the celebrated retreat of Moscow. He was also in the Prussian army against Napoleon in 1813-15. He was the owner of the Iron Cross, and was appointed by the governor as mayor of the town of Camen, which position he held until his death. He was one of Prussia's prominent and active citizens and was known throughout the province. He was the father of six sons, only one now living, Emil M., who was born and reared in Prussia. He was reared to mercantile pursuits and pursued the same until coming to America. He received his education in his native country and completed his studies at an institution of education, a high school. In 1852 he started for America, taking passage at Antwerp on a sailing vessel, and landed at New York City after an ocean voyage of forty-nine days. He remained in that city seven years, being engaged in merchandising. He then went back to the old country, where he remained one year, then returned to America, locating in New York City for a short time, and then removed to New Orleans, but from there to St. Louis where he engaged in merchandising until the breaking out of the late war. He then enlisted in Buell's battery and was sworn in for three years service as quartermaster sergeant, but was afterward promoted to the rank of second lieutenant, by Gen. Prentiss. He was soon discharged for being in excess of the organization. He went back to St. Louis, but after remaining there a short time returned to the army and took a position as sutler of the Ninth Illinois Volunteer Infantry. He served in this capacity until the three years' service expired. Mr. Weber again returned to St. Louis and here he remained until 1867, when he came to Bloomfield and engaged with his brother in general merchandising, which they carried on until 1872, when they sold out. The same year Mr. Weber engaged in his present business, at which he was quite successful, and at which he has continued ever since. He was married in 1874 to Elizabeth Weber, nee Prack, a native of Germany. To this union were born four children: Franz, Carl, Anna and Emma. Mr. Weber has been school director several terms, and justice of the peace one term.

Edward Weber, merchant at Dexter, was born at Dortmund, in the Province of Westphalia, Germany, October 23, 1859. His parents, E. W. C. and Hennina (Duelen) Weber, embarked at Bremen for the United States in 1867, and, giving up allegiance to the fatherland, located in Missouri, at Bloomfield, where, with E. M. and R. W. Weber, he engaged in business for about two years. After spending about eighteen months in mercantile life at Castorville, he spent a year in farming and another year in business at Bloomfield. During the centennial year he became a resident of Dexter, where he died on October 18, 1885. While in Europe he was bookkeeper for a large coal mine, and for some years was an officer in the German army. For some time he was a civil engineer on the Iron Mountain Railway. Mr. Weber's widow is still living, and of her two children, the subject of this sketch is the only one living. Young Edward was a boy of eight years when they landed in America, and while his father lived was in business with him. Since the latter's death he has carried a large and well selected line of general merchandise, including dry goods, boots and shoes, groceries, etc., besides a supply of agricultural implements. His stock is now valued at about $10,000, and constitutes one of the leading trades of Dexter and its vicinity. Mr. Weber has served as city clerk ever since December 20, 1883. He is a member of the Knights of Honor.

Daniel E. Welch, a young and enterprising citizen of Pike Township, Stoddard Co., Mo., was born near his present place of residence September 2, 1857, and is the son of Carney H. and Nancy (Crews) Welch. The father was born in Rutherford County, Tenn., and died in Little Rock, Ark., in 1862, and was about thirty-five years old at the time of his death. When a boy he came with his parents from Tennessee, and settled in Stoddard County, where he resided until the war, when he moved to Arkansas, and afterward enlisted in the Confederate army. While on a furlough he was taken prisoner, and died while in prison. He was a farmer by occupation. The mother died when Daniel E. was but an infant. The latter was one of three children, two now living: Sarah Edna (who is the wife of Dr. James Lockhart, of Lakeville, Stoddard Co., Mo.), Henry G. (who died when twelve years of age) and Daniel E. After the death of his first wife Carney H. Welch married Susan Travelstadt, who bore him two children, one now living, named Carney H., a farmer in Scott County, Mo. Daniel E. received a limited education on account of being an orphan. After the death of his father he went to live with his grandmother, Temperance Newkirk, and he remained with her until fifteen years of age, after which he lived with his uncle, Jesse Crews, for three years. He then lived in various places, was in Scott County, Mo., Rutherford County, Tenn., Nashville, Murfreesboro and other places in Tennessee. March 10, 1878, he married Miss Sarah V. Lee, a native of Arkansas, born April 11, 1863, and the fruits of this union were three children: Arthur O., Minnie M. and Cora A. After marriage Mr. Welch began farming for himself, which occupation he has since continued. He is a member of the Wheel, and he and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. He is a Democrat in politics, but not so radical but that he crosses the line for better men.

Capt. William L. White, a prominent citizen of New Lisbon Township, Stoddard Co., Mo., was born near Nashville, Tenn., October 5, 1826, his parents being William H. and Mary C. (Williamson) White, who were natives of Halifax County, Va. The father was born May 20, 1788, and died in Bloomfield, Mo., August 23, 1873, at the age of eighty-six years. The mother was born December 13, 1790, and died September 29, 1879, at the age of eighty-nine years. They were married in Halifax County, Va., and moved to Davidson County, Tenn., where they resided until 1832, when they moved to Obion County, West Tennessee, and lived there until 1858. They then moved to Dunklin County, Mo., and from there, in 1867, to Stoddard County, where they passed the remainder of their days. Mr. White began as a farmer, and followed this occupation all his life, but also devoted his time for sixty-five years to his ministerial duties, being a minister in the Methodist Church. He was a great revivalist as long as he was able to carry on a meeting. The mother had also been a member of that church from early girlhood. They were the very best citizens, and were respected by all. Mr. White was a Whig before the war, and afterward a Republican. To their marriage were born ten children, six of whom are now living: Elgin C., John W., William L., Mary M. (wife of Leander Page), George S. and Archibald. William L. White was married March 2, 1848, to Miss Mary A. V. Price, a native of Pennsylvania County, Va., born in October, 1830, who is the daughter of Christopher Price. This union resulted in the birth of eight children, five of whom are now living: Sarah H., Margaret E. (wife of William W. Perry), Dona (wife of George Feverston), Ellis and Elwood. Those deceased are Laura Ann, who died September 22, 1858, at the age of five years; Fernando, who died September 9, 1858, at the age of three years, and Narcissa, who died November 14, 1860, at the age of one year. When Mr. White began for himself, it was as a farmer in Obion County. There he has since continued to reside, with the exception of five years. In 1871 he went to Bloomfield, and engaged in the hotel and livery business, which he continued four years. He then moved to Dexter, and operated the Farmer's Hotel, conducting the livery business in connection. In 1858 he left Tennessee for Dunklin County, Mo., and, after living there eight years, moved to Stoddard County. In 1872 and 1873 he was appointed United States Marshal for the Eastern District of Missouri. At the same time he served as postmaster at Bloomfield. In October, 1864, he enlisted in Company F, of the Fifth Missouri Mounted Infantry, Federal service, as a private, and in March, 1865, he organized the Stoddard County company. He was elected and commissioned by the governor of the State as captain of this company. When starting for himself he had limited means. Now he is the owner of a well located and improved farm in New Lisbon Township, and he and his wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a Republican politically, and is a member of the G. A. R.

James H. White, farmer, is a native of Lincoln County, Tenn., born May 21, 1831, and is a son of Uriah and Hannah (Gallian) White, both of whom were natives of Tennessee, and of Irish descent. Their ancestors emigrated from Ireland several generations back and all settled in Tennessee. The grandfather was a resident of Tennessee when he died. Uriah White was a mechanic by trade and also followed the carpenter's trade from his boyhood up to the time of his death. He owned a farm in Tennessee which he carried on in connection with his trade. January 28, 1848, he left Tennessee to go to Arkansas, but upon arriving in Stoddard County, Mo., concluded to stay there, and stopped right on the place where he now lives, in a little log house that was on the place. In this they lived until they could build another one. Wild animals of almost every kind abounded in the wood, and deer could be killed from the cabin door. Thus they commenced their life in the woods. It required many years to get his farm under a state of cultivation, but it is now one of the finest in the county. The father died in 1864, and the mother in 1878. Of the eleven children born to this union seven are now living: Peter, James H., Milton, Henry, Jane, Louisa and Elizabeth. James H. was but sixteen years of age when he came to Stoddard County. He remained with his parents until his marriage, receiving such educational advantages as were to be had at that day. In 1850 he married Miss E. Back, a native of Tennessee. To this union were born nine children, seven now living: William, Thomas, Peter, Robert, Jacob, Martha I. (wife of William McAmalla) and Missouri E. (wife of Wilson Anderson). After marriage Mr. White settled on the farm now owned by William Elmore, where he lived until 1866, when he bought the homestead and has resided there since. He owns 120 acres of land with about seventy-five acres under cultivation. He and Mrs. White are members of the Baptist Church, and are well respected.

George S. White, one of the prominent merchants of Stoddard County, Mo., who is doing business at Leora, was born in Davidson County, Tenn., near Nashville, April 27, 1832, and is the son of Rev. William H. and Mary C. (Williamson) White, natives of Halifax County, Va. The father was born May 29, 1788, and died in Bloomfield, Stoddard Co., Mo., August 23, 1873, at the age of eighty-five. He, when a young man, joined the Methodist Church, and at the time of his death had preached over sixty-three years. He was a good man in every sense of the word. He was never heard to wish any one harm, nor was he ever heard by his intimate friends to utter profane or vulgar language. Although a Southerner himself he was in favor of the freedom of the colored race. He was a farmer and in connection taught school, at which he was very successful. He was a Republican in politics. His wife was born December 13, 1790, and died in Stoddard County October 30, 1879, at the age of eighty-nine. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church for over sixty years. They were married at Sparta, White Co., Tenn., December 26, 1813, and spent sixty years together. Ten children were born to their marriage, six of whom are now living. They moved to Davidson County, Tenn., after marriage, from there to Dyer County, West Tenn. and in 1868 they came to Stoddard County. George S. White's advantages for receiving an education were limited. By reading, observation and experience he acquired a good practical education and is considered a well informed man on all subjects. He remained at home until twenty-five years of age, when he came to Dunklin County, Mo., and engaged in agricultural pursuits. September 3, 1857, he married Miss Margaret V. Frazor, a daughter of Thomas and Isabella (Kirkpatrick) Frazor, and a native of Sumner County, Tenn., born January 15, 1837. To this union were born nine children, seven now living: Mary A., John T., Laura I., Bettie, Nora B., Walter F. and Leora. Lula died when an infant and Robert died November 4, 1884, at the age of nineteen. Mr. White, his wife and three daughters are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and he is a Republican in politics. After farming for ten years Mr. White came to Stoddard County, Mo., located near Leora and continued to farm until November 1, 1882, when he sold his farm and moved to Leora. Here he engaged in merchandising, which he has since continued. He carries a general stock of goods valued at $2,000. January 1, 1883, he was appointed postmaster, which office he held until March, 1887. In November, 1876, he was elected justice of the peace, and has been magistrate at Leora since and will serve two years longer. During the war he served in the Fiftieth Missouri Militia, Union service, and was discharged on account of disability after a short time. In 1870 he kept the register's office.

Jacob L. Williamson, a farmer, was born in Roane County, East Tenn., in 1836, and is the son of John and Sarah (Anthony) Williamson. The father was an East Tennessean by birth, and a farmer by occupation. He moved to Stoddard County, Mo., in 1845, locating near Bloomfield, where he followed farming until, intending to make a trip to his native home, he arrived in Cairo on his way there, and was attacked with cholera, dying at Cairo in 1850. He had four children, three of whom survive: Joseph R., Mary C. and Jacob L., all married. Jacob L. came to this county with his parents in boyhood, and remained with them until he was married, in 1862, to Milly Smith. By her he had seven children, six now living, viz.: Marian J. (married to Maria Crosno), Augusta, Annie, Ida (married to Joseph Carlew), Ella, Albert and Emma. Mr. Williamson was a soldier in the late war, enlisting under Maj. Preston (Capt. Farmer), and serving about one year, when he was captured at Bloomfield and, upon being released, returned home to look after his farming interests. He owns 300 acres of valuable farming and timber land, and on the latter has two saw mills, which saw large quantities of lumber. For this he finds an easy market in St. Louis. He is a member of the Golden Rule. Mr. Williamson lost his wife in 1880.

Nicholas M. Willis was born in South Carolina, June 4, 1844, and is a son of Robert and Sarah (Stone) Willis, who were born in South Carolina. The family moved to Carroll County, Tenn., about 1847, where they remained for several years. The father died at Jackson, Miss., and the mother at Osceola, Ark. They became residents of Stoddard County, Mo., in 1860. The father, in 1862, was taken prisoner, although he told his captors that he was no soldier, and was kept at Alton for some time. He was then taken to Jackson, Miss., where he was exchanged, but died before he could get away. He was the father of eleven children, seven of whom are living: Nicholas M., Daniel, Samuel, George W., Robert A., Martha J. and Mary A. Nicholas M. Willis was only eighteen years old when he came to Stoddard County. In 1862 he enlisted in the army, and served until the close of the war. He was in the battle at Poison Springs, being sixty days in that campaign. He was with Price, on his raid through Missouri, and was captured and taken to St. Louis, thence to Alton, where he was kept four months, thence to Richmond, Va., where he was exchanged, and came home and resumed farming. He rented land for several years, but after his marriage purchased and located on a farm. He now owns seventy acres of good land. August 22, 1867, he married Elizabeth Barham, by whom he had five children, four now living: Sarah J., Hugh W., Jesse and Hannah. Mr. and Mrs. Willis are members of the Baptist Church.

William C. Wilson is a son of James and Mary (Keiger) Wilson, and was born in Perry County, Tenn., April 10, 1823. His parents were natives of the same State, and were farmers by occupation. After their removal to Missouri the father followed blacksmithing. They resided in various portions of the State, and finally located on the Castor River, where the father died in 1853. Of their ten children only three are now living: William C., Angeline and Polly. William C. was but five years of age when his parents moved to Stoddard County. At the age of seventeen he began working for himself, and after his marriage purchased a farm about a mile east of where he now resides. About a year and a half later he moved to his present farm of 400 acres, which he has finely improved. Mr. Wilson is one of the pioneers of Stoddard County, and tells many interesting tales of early times. His marriage to Hannah Tankersley occurred in 1848. Of nine children born to them six are living: John, Mary Emeline, James, Robert and Sarah.

Alexander Wilson, son of Jesse and Rebecca (Sitz) Wilson, natives of North Carolina, was born in Madison County, Mo., April 16, 1829. The father died in Stoddard County, Mo., about 1854, and was forty-nine years of age at that time. He was a brick-mason and a farmer by occupation, a Democrat in politics, and a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South for many years. The mother died about 1871 at the age of fifty-nine. She was also a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Of the ten children born to their marriage Alexander was the eldest. Six of these children are now living and are residents of Stoddard County. They are named as follows: Alexander, Henry, Noah W., D. F., Susannah (wife of E. Slaughter), Mary E. (wife of Charles Bradshaw). All are farmers or the wives of farmers. The father and mother of these children came to Missouri when young people, and before they were married. After marriage they moved to different counties, but finally settled in Stoddard County, when Alexander was a boy nine years old. He made his home with his parents until twenty-four years of age, when he married Margaret Jane Like, a daughter of Jacob and Drucilla Like. She was born in Stoddard County, Mo., September 5, 1837, and by her marriage became the mother of six children, three now living: Rebecca A. (wife of George A. Breden), John and Eli. Eli is unmarried, and is living at home. Alexander Wilson early in life began farming, which he has since continued, and is now the owner of 280 acres of land, which is well improved. He is a good citizen and is respected by all. During the war he served in the Enrolled Militia, Company C. He and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and he is a Democrat in politics as are also his sons, who are also members of the Wheel. Both John and Eli have taught several terms of school in their own neighborhood. Mr. Wilson's children, who are deceased, were named as follows: Green, Jacob and an infant.

P. G. Wilson, probate judge, was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., October 8, 1833. He is a son of Benjamin and Virginia (Bull) Wilson, natives of Virginia and North Carolina, respectively. The father moved to Southeast Missouri in 1810, and settled on the St. Francois River. He was nineteen years of age at that time, and came with his parents. He died in 1870, and his wife in 1852. They were the parents of two children: William B. and P. G. The parents were both married twice, the father having four children by his first marriage and the mother two. At the age of sixteen years P. G. Wilson left the paternal roof, and came to Bloomfield, Stoddard County, and was engaged in merchandising with his uncle for over a year. He then entered college at Arcadia, where he remained two sessions, and then began studying law with Greer W. Davis, of Jackson, Mo. Soon after his admission to the bar he was united in marriage, and gave up the practice of law and engaged in farming, which occupation he followed until the death of his wife. He then moved to Cape Girardeau and engaged in the book and drug business, continuing the same until 1865, at which time he came to Stoddard County. From that time until 1871 he was engaged in the mercantile business, and the following four years farmed near Bloomfield, and the succeeding four years was engaged in the milling business. Since 1880 he has been a resident of Bloomfield, and in November of the following year was elected probate judge, which office he has held to the satisfaction of all concerned. He held the office of county and probate judge for four years. He is the owner of 800 acres of good land, a portion of which joins the city of Bloomfield. He was married in 1855 to Mary A. E. Reeves, by whom he had one child, Oscar S. His wife died in 1857, and in 1871 he wedded Mary Q. Yeargain, eight children being born to them: Benjamin, Bettie, Willie Nannie, John and Maggie. Mr. Wilson is a Mason.

BUTLER COUNTY.

Dr. J. E. Adams is the son of David H. Adams, M. D., who was born in New York City in 1790, and graduated in the Jefferson Medical College at Philadelphia, and practiced in New York City until he moved to Illinois, where he married Miss Cynthia Dods, who bore him seven children—four sons and three daughters. Three of the boys studied professions, two were doctors, and one was a lawyer, and all were in the Union army, the youngest being thirteen years of age at the time of enlistment. The mother died in 1863, and the father in 1860. Both were active members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and the father was a Republican in politics. Their son, J. E. Adams, M. D., was born in Richland County, Ill., February 14, 1838, and received his education in the McKendrie College, Illinois. Having studied medicine under his father, he entered Georgetown Medical College, District of Columbia, and graduated from that institution in 1860. At the beginning of the war he was the first soldier to enlist from Richmond County, Ill., going out in Company D, of the Eighth Illinois Infantry, as private. In a few days he was transferred to hospital service, being assistant surgeon. In 1862 he married Miss Martha Snyder, a native of Richland County, Ill. Three children were born to this union—one son and two daughters. The son, George, is a partner of his father's, being a graduate of the Missouri Medical College. In 1867 Dr. Adams went to Southeast Kansas, where he was the leading spirit in organizing, temporarily, Montgomery County. He was elected representative in 1869, and effected its permanent organization. He held this position four years in succession, and assisted in laying off Independence and Cherryvale in that county. Moving to St. Louis, he graduated from the St. Louis Medical College, and returned to Illinois with the intention of practicing, but came to Poplar Bluff in 1880, and here has since remained, engaged in the practice of his profession. Since 1880 Dr. Adams has been local surgeon of the Iron Mountain Railroad, but failing health has almost driven him from practice. He is deeply interested in farming, and has done much for the county, in raising fine stock, especially Clydesdale horses. He is a Republican in politics, is a member of the Masonic fraternity and also a member of the K. of H.

William B. Adams, county court clerk, was born in Humphreys County, Tenn., May 7, 1854, and when about five years of age was brought to this county by his parents, James T. and Amanda (Hooper) Adams, both natives of the same county as their son. In 1859 they came to Butler County. When young the father took a course in the Nashville Medical College, from which institution he graduated. He then practiced for some time in Tennessee, but coming to Missouri, was the first surgeon to locate in this part of the State. Having practiced here until the breaking out of the late war, he then removed to Madison County, but returned after the trouble and turned his attention to farming. He represented Butler County in the Legislature two different times, and during his leisure hours studied law, being admitted to the bar a few years later. He was Democratic in his political views, was a Mason, and lived to be about fifty-two years of age. Mrs. A. died previous to this, in 1837. After the death of his wife Mr. Adams married again. By his first marriage he became the father of four children—three sons and one daughter—and by the second marriage, four children—two sons and two daughters. William B. Adams was the eldest of the children born to the first marriage. He was reared on the farm, and educated in the common schools. At the age of twenty one he began clerking in a general mercantile store in Arcadia, Iron County, and there remained three years, when he took a similar position in Poplar Bluff. For six years after this he was in the drug business at this place. In 1883 he was elected treasurer of Butler County, holding this position two terms. In 1886 he was elected to his present position. In 1881 he married Miss Carrie M. Leach, who bore him one son, Owen J. Mr. Adams is a director in the bank at Poplar Bluffs, is a staunch Democrat in politics, and his wife is a member of the Baptist Church.

Oscar R. Albro, a well-known citizen of Poplar Bluff, was born in Eaton County, Mich., August 3, 1852, and from a poor, uneducated boy of ten years he has carved out a career of excellent financial results. His parents, Sanford E. P. and Elizabeth (Rowlee) Albro, came from New York to Ohio, and in 1851 to Michigan. He was an adherent of the Adventist faith, while the mother was a Methodist. His life was occupied with the enterprises of a contractor and builder. He died in 1862, at the age of forty-five, and left a wife and three children. After his father's death young Oscar never had a day's experience in any school but that of active life, and after his twelfth year was wholly self-dependent, working as a farm hand, railway gravel-shoveler, or anything else that offered subsistence, until in 1868 he entered the service of a large lumber firm in Indiana. He was employed by them for about eleven years, and it was as their representative that he came to Butler County in 1875. After he left their employ he dealt in lumber some time for himself, but in 1881 he became associated with William and T. D. Ferguson in handling general merchandise, with which he was more or less occupied until 1886, when he withdrew, and has since turned his attention to managing his capital. Mr. Albro believes in the political doctrines of the Republican party, and fraternizes with two orders, the K. of H. and K. of P. His marriage occurred in 1873, when he married his first wife, Miranda Crady, a native of Kentucky. She died in 1886, having become the mother of five children, four of whom survive her. The following year he married Mrs. Emma D. May, nee Dills, a daughter of Col. Dills, and a native of Kentucky. Mrs. Albro is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Albro has built many fine buildings in the city of Poplar Bluff, among which is the excellent brick business block at the corner of Main and Vine Streets, which is one of the finest and most substantial business blocks in the city. He, with his family, occupy one of the finest residences in Poplar Bluff. He also built the brick business block adjoining the Morris House, also in 1885 erected the Powell House block in Dexter, Mo., the finest in the city. Probably no citizen has taken a more active interest in the growth of Poplar Bluff or done more toward her advancement than Mr. Albro. He and his family are universally respected and held in high esteem by all who know them.

Judge Andrew S. Armstrong, business manager of the Farmers' Alliance Business Co-operative Association, was born in Jersey County, Ill., August 4, 1833. His paternal grandfather, who lived to be eighty-eight years old, was a soldier of the Revolution, together with four brothers of his. Maurice Armstrong was born in 1800, in Kentucky, but at an early age was taken to the present State of Illinois, then a Territory, and there devoted his life to farming on an extensive scale. He also served as judge of Jersey County. His wife, Elizabeth (Sims) Armstrong, also a native of Kentucky, was born in 1805, and both lived to the age of seventy-five years. She was a member of the United Baptist Church. One of the twelve children born to them was Andrew S. He was educated in the old private schools, and spent his early life on the farm until 1861, when he went to Girard, Ill., with a brother, and engaged in dealing in general merchandise. After some seven years in this pursuit he returned to Jersey County, and began farming and running a country store. Since 1880 he has been in Butler County, devoted to agriculture, until in February, 1888, he was chosen to his present position by the directors of the company. From 1883 to 1885 he also served as county judge, and was also appointed to superintend the building of the jail of Butler County. Judge Armstrong is an ardent Democrat, and is one of the first fraternity men of his lodge, being a charter member of the Masonic Chapter to which he belongs. He was married in 1856 to Martha L. Everts, a native of Vermont, who came to Illinois when a young girl. The union has been blessed with six children.

James R. Arrendale, conductor on the Doniphan branch of the St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railroad, was born in Dahlonega, Ga., in 1848, and received a common country-school education. He was reared on a farm, and when about eighteen he began as a brakeman on the Memphis & Charleston Railroad. About eight months after this he was promoted to the position of conductor on the same road. He went from there to the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, and ten months later, from there to the Iron Mountain, from Little Rock, Ark., and Poplar Bluffs, Mo., as freight conductor for three years. He was then transferred to the Doniphan branch, where he has since been, with the exception of short intervals on other branches. As a railroad man, Mr. Arrendale has proven himself faithful, honest and efficient. He was in the employ of the Memphis & Charleston Railroad for nearly fifteen years as brakeman, quarter-master and freight conductor, and for his faithful and meritorious services, rendered during the yellow fever scourges of 1878 and 1879, running from Memphis, was awarded a gold medal by the Howard Association. In 1875 he married Miss Fannie Carr, a native of Vicksburg, Miss. Mr. Arrendale's parents, Rice and Sarah (McElroy) Arrendale, were natives of South Carolina and Georgia, respectively. The mother died in Georgia, where the father is still living. He is of Scotch-Irish descent, a farmer by occupation, and was at one time sheriff of Lempkin County, Ga. He also served two years in the Confederate army. His father, Thomas Arrendale, was a soldier in the Mexican War. James R. Arrendale is successfully engaged in agricultural pursuits and has a farm of 120 acres. He is a Democrat, politically, casting his first presidential vote for Horace Greeley in 1872. He is a member of the K. P., and of the A. R. C.

Arthur P. Asher, farmer, was born on Christmas day, 1838, in Wayne County, Mo. Martin and Rachel (Howard) Asher were both natives of Tennessee, and were young in years when they came to Missouri, and after their marriage settled in Wayne County. They soon moved to Stoddard County, and there spent the remainder of their lives on the farm. Both were members of the Baptist Church. The father was a conservative, although he was a supporter of the Republican party. He reached the age of sixty-four, and she lived to be but forty-two years old. Of the six children born to them, Arthur P. was their second child. Like many farmer youths of those days, his education was limited to barely six months of school. At his majority he became a farmer, but afterward engaged in the liquor trade. St. Francisville became his next home, and there he opened a line of merchandise and became such a leading spirit in the place that the name was changed in his honor to Asherville. After he left there he spent five years at the butcher business in Poplar Bluff, moving there in the centennial year. He is now, and has since been engaged in the lumber business in connection with farming, in all of which he has been skillful and successful. He served, during the late war, in the State militia. His political opinions are generally represented by the Republican platform. In 1860 he was united in marriage to Miss Elizabeth Stringer, a native of Kentucky. Five children have blessed their union, but only two are living.

George T. Bartlett, M. D. A career not without interest is that of Joseph S. Bartlett, the father of the subject of this sketch. Born in Plymouth, Mass., he went to South Carolina, and after a period as pedagogue in that State and North Carolina he went to Tennessee, where he continued in those duties. While in Williamson County he married a Miss Porter, the daughter of a wealthy farmer. About 1842 they removed to Arkansas, and three years later he taught the young Indian idea in the government schools of the Territory. Although four of his sons were in the Confederate army, he was a Unionist so well-known that his life was in danger in Washington County, Ark., and by taking George's advice to leave, he escaped a party who were intent on his life. In Dunklin County, however, he was so badly treated on account of his son's army services that he became chaplain in the Confederate army himself. After the war he located in Butler County, where his wife died in 1866. He afterward went to Kentucky, and there married again, and reached the advanced age of eighty years. Both he and his wife were members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, of which he was for many years a local preacher. Nine children were the result of the first marriage, and the mother had one child by a former marriage. Her deceased husband was named Zachary. While Rev. Bartlett lived at Smyrna, Tenn., his second son, George, was born September 9, 1830, and the boy was well trained and educated by him. When twelve years of age young George, with his brother, was placed under the care of an uncle to learn farming, but the uncle proved to be so severe a master that the boys rebelled, and started for their father in the Indian Territory; but the council there decided they could not attend the school, and our subject returned to Arkansas, and attended an academy, taught, and after a time as book-agent and drummer he entered Cane Hill College. For financial reasons he broke his course and taught and read medicine. In 1856 he entered and the following year graduated from Nashville Medical College, and immediately located at Springfield, Tenn. The same year he married Mary M. Glover, a young woman who had come there visiting, from St. Louis County, Mo. Eight children have blessed their union. In 1861 they moved to Dunklin County, Mo., and he enlisted in the First Missouri Confederate State Guards, and about three weeks later was promoted assistant surgeon, and soon after, surgeon, in charge of a hospital at New Madrid. In 1862 he was at Helena, Memphis, Fort Pillow, having charge of the hospital here, and then placed on the gun-boats. He was chief of the medical staff of the hospital. He was transferred to the department under Gen. Heintzmann, and soon disability caused him to return home. He was a prisoner at St. Louis, but was exchanged at Little Rock, and while at the Ironton Hospital was taken prisoner to Richmond, Va., and exchanged. He was active in the Price and Marmaduke raids. He served in the medical department again, and in 1865 began civil practice at Poplar Bluff, and his very large practice goes to confirm the fact that he is probably the most experienced and skillful surgeon in this part of the State. In 1883 he was appointed a member of the State board of health by Gov. Crittenden, and has served three times on the board of regents for Cape Girardeau Normal School. The Doctor has also engaged in merchandising with capital, but his own energies have been devoted to his profession.

George Begley, manufacturer of wagons, buggies and machinery, was born in Iron County, Mo., November 6, 1858. His parents, Anselm and Theresa (Spitzmiller) Begley, were both born in Germany, came to America, and located in Southeastern Missouri. After their marriage they settled at Ironton, their present home, where for a long time he was engaged in the manufacture of brick and building material, in which George Begley, although yet very young, took a very active part until 1874, when his father went into the livery and undertaking business, but now leads a retired life. He is a strong Democrat. George and his sister are their only children. Young Begley was educated in the public schools of Ironton, and at the age of fifteen became a blacksmith's apprentice, serving three years. After a short time as a journeyman he located in Poplar Bluff, and in 1878 began business in a little box of a shop, 14x14 feet. His skill and energy have steadily increased his patronage, and have lead to his present commodious quarters. His two-story brick block, 65x54 feet, is used as a shop and salesroom, while he also has a warehouse 65x28 feet. He supplies the home demand for vehicles of various kinds, of his own manufacture, and deals in all kinds of machinery. His present business was begun with not more than $250 worth of property, and has grown to its present proportions since his arrival at Poplar Bluff. Mr. Begley is a supporter of the Democratic party, and is identified with two secret orders, the A. F. & A. M. and K. of P. He was married in 1881 to Miss Mary Reynolds, a native of Madison County. To them have been born five children. Mrs. Begley is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

George H. Benton, attorney for the Missouri Pacific Railway, is the son of Rev. William A. Benton, who was born at Tolland, Conn., in 1817. Rev. Benton graduated from Yale College in 1843, and afterward took a theological course in a Congregational institution. In 1847 he determined upon the life of a missionary, and went to Syria for the American Board of the above mentioned church. He had married Miss Loanza Goulding, a native of Herbertson, Mass., who was born in 1822. They spent twenty-two years in Syria, and then returned to Massachusetts, where the father died in 1874, suddenly, while carrying on a conversation with some friends. The mother lives at present in Minnesota. Five of their seven children were born at Bhamdun, Syria, and of the five living, Charles W. is professor of French in the University of Minnesota, and all the sons graduated from Yale College. The parents were living on Mount Lebanon, Syria, when the subject of this sketch was born July 20, 1853, and on their return to America he entered Yale College, and graduated in 1875. He soon accepted a call to St. John's College, Ark., where he taught the ancient and modern languages. In connection with his duties here he read law with Judge Compton, and was admitted to the bar in 1877. He entered the service of the Missouri Pacific Railway, in a legal capacity, the following year, and in 1884 was placed in charge of their interests in Southeastern Missouri, and located at Poplar Bluff. Mr. Benton belongs to the Masonic fraternity, and is a believer in Democrat principles.

Harry H. Blackstone. Soon after the Revolution there came to America three brothers who settled in Massachusetts, Maryland and Virginia, respectively. The Massachusetts branch of the Blackstones is the one from which the subject of this sketch is descended. His parents, Jacob and Henrietta (Deavero) Blackstone, were born in Canada, and the latter was of Spanish ancestry. On January 11, 1833, was born to them a son—Harry H., on Lake Erie, in Canada. The father had been a wealthy business man, but died when our subject was four years old, and the mother brought the boy to Pittsburgh, Penn. He had no advantages of education, and soon became a newsboy and bootblack. He went on the river when about ten years of age, but six years later he concluded to learn the carpenter's trade. He apprenticed himself for three years, and then returned to the river again, serving thereafter on all the navigable tributaries of the Mississippi, in the various capacities of steward, cook, pilot, master, and for a time owner of a vessel. He embarked on the first Canadian "bottom" that ever took square timber across the Atlantic, and visited England and France, and returned by way of New Orleans. In 1861 he came to Southeastern Missouri, and during the war was commissioned lieutenant by Gen. Pike, to burn cotton. Since the war he has been engaged in dealing in merchandise, liquor, etc. In 1883 he began a three story building, 40x85 feet. It contains twenty-eight rooms and cost over $12,000, and is now the well known Riverside Hotel, which he is so successfully presiding over as "mine host." His first marriage occurred in 1852 in Canada. His wife, Miss Minerva Sperry, lived to become the mother of one child, a son, before her death. On February 29,

Harry, H., Blackstone

BUTLER COUNTY.

1876, Miss Alice Carroll became his wife. She was born in Missouri, and was of Irish origin. Of the seven children born to them four are living. Mr. Blackstone is a Democrat, and is a member of three fraternities: A. F. & A. M., K. of P. and I. O. O. F. He has shown great interest and skill in collecting relics of the ancient Mound-Builders, and he estimates his collection to have reached a value of about $10,000.

W. W. Boyt, general merchant, timber dealer and postmaster at Hillard, Mo., was born in Davidson County, Tenn., in 1838, being the son of Felix G. and Elizabeth (Simmons) Boyt, natives of Tennessee, born in 1809 and 1812 respectively. They lived in Davidson County until about 1838, when he removed to Williamson County, Ill., and afterward to Johnson County, where they both are now living, enjoying good health. They are both members of long standing in the Christian Church. William Boyt, father of Felix G., was born in North Carolina, served in one of the Indian wars, was in the War of 1812, and was at the battle of New Orleans under Gen. Jackson. He died prior to the Civil War. W. W. Boyt was the second of fourteen children, three now living. He was educated in the common subscription schools of Southern Illinois, and attended Ewing College, in Franklin County, Ill., for six months, when he began teaching, and followed this occupation for several years. In 1872 he was elected county clerk of Johnson County, Ill., and filled this office for four years. He had previously been deputy clerk for four years, and four years more after he was county clerk. He was married in 1861 to Mahala McGowen, who died about 1867, leaving one child. His second marriage was in 1872, to Miss Ann E. Stewart. In 1880 he removed to Butler County, where he and his wife taught school several terms. About 1883 they located at Hillard, where they have ever since resided, and where Mr. Boyt has been engaged in merchandising and dealing in timber. He has been postmaster since 1886, and has been justice of the peace also since that time. He is Democratic in his political views, and his first presidential vote was for S. A. Douglas, in 1860. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, also a member of the I. O. O. F., and is an excellent citizen. During the war he enlisted in the United States army, but was rejected on account of disability. Mrs. Boyt is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Robert A. Burket, farmer of Black River Township, was born in Wayne County, in 1847, and is the son of Edward and Harriet Burket, natives of Tennessee, where they were reared and married. In 1847 they removed to Wayne County, Mo., where Mr. Burket was engaged in agricultural pursuits, and where they both died when Robert A. was about ten or twelve years of age. The latter was one of twins, and one of four sons and one daughter born to his parents. He received a limited country school education, and, after the death of his parents, began for himself as a farm hand. When about sixteen years of age he enlisted in Company G, Forty-seventh Missouri Infantry for six months, but was in service about seven months in Southern Missouri and Tennessee. He was in the fight at Ironton, and was discharged at St. Louis. He chose for his companion through life, Miss Keziah C. Hedgepeth, of Butler County. She died in 1880, and the same year he married Mrs. Louisa Keener, nee Haynes. Shortly after his first marriage Mr. Burket settled in Cane Creek Township, but moved from there to Black River Township, near Keener, where he has 300 acres in two farms, all the result of his own hard work. He became the father of two children by each marriage, and all are living. He is conservative in his political views, and he and wife are members of the Baptist Church. He is a prominent farmer, and a much respected citizen.

John L. Clevelen, dealer in jewelry, organs, sewing-machines, books, stationery, etc., is a native of Iron County, Mo., the birthplace of his mother, Eliza W. (Miller) Clevelen. His father, Charles Clevelen, grew up in Albany, N. Y., his native place, until he reached the age of eighteen, when that desire to see the world, which often takes possession of a young man, led him to run away from home. He came west, and for several years was employed on the Mississippi River. He had married and was living at Ironton, Mo., at the birth of the subject of this sketch, April 2, 1858. He spent the most of his life in farming and mercantile pursuits. His decease occurred in 1875, but his widow still survives him. John L. was the fifth of eight children, and received school training in those "ruby founts of knowledge," called the district schools, and a short time in Poplar Bluff. In 1878 he became a salesman in the store of R. P. Liles, of Poplar Bluff, for $11 per month, and was employed there for three years. The next three years he served as postmaster of Poplar Bluff. His present business grew from an $85 investment in a news-stand, to which he added from time to time, until he now has an extensive trade in organs, sewing machines, books, stationery, and the best stock of jewelry in the city. Mr. Clevelen holds a prominent position in the K. of P. order as Deputy Grand Chancellor for his district. He is a Republican in politics.

George H. Crumb, attorney-at-law, and editor of The Republic, is a native of the Empire State. His father's ancestors were early settlers of Rhode Island, but the parents lived in New York, when the son, Judge C. B. Crumb, was born. The Judge graduated at Union College, New York, in the class of 1839. He practiced law in Syracuse, N. Y., where his son, George H., was born, August 14, 1845. He also practiced at Rochester of that State, until he removed to Illinois in 1856. About 1859 Stoddard County, Mo., became his home, and here he held various public offices of trust and honor, and lived to reach the ripe age of seventy-two years. His wife, Sarah J. Peck, also a native of New York, was of the old Puritan stock. She died at the age of sixty-eight years, an esteemed lady, and the revered mother of four children. The family had the best educational advantages, and the second child, George H., was graduated from Union College in the class of 1866. He carried on his legal studies under his father's direction, and was able to be admitted to the bar in 1867. He practiced his profession from that time until 1880. In 1870 he was elected circuit attorney of the Twenty-third Judicial Circuit, and rendered valuable service, especially in connection with the land interests of the various counties of the circuit. In 1875 his attention was turned to journalism somewhat, and he has been occupied in that line more or less ever since. He was appointed receiver of the United States land office at Ironton, Mo., in 1881, by President Garfield, and served until his advent at Poplar Bluff, in 1885. Here he founded The Republic, a journal which has sprung to a prominent place, under the influence of his facile pen and good management, and now has an extensive circulation in Southeast Missouri. He is a Republican. In 1878 Mr. Crumb married Miss Sallie A., a daughter of F. W. May, and native of St. Charles County, Mo. But one of their three children is living, Nellie. Mrs. Crumb is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

James L. Dalton, of the firm of Wright & Dalton, dealers in hardware, furniture and agricultural machinery, was born in Ripley County, December 28, 1866. His father, William Dalton, was a native of the same county, where his mother, Mary C. (Myatt) Dalton, was brought as a child from her native place in Tennessee. The father was a farmer by occupation, and served also in the Confederate army during the Rebellion. He died in 1872. The mother still lives, and is an esteemed member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Of her large family of ten children our subject was the fifth child. He was about eight years old when they went to Arkansas, and he received his education at the La Crosse Collegiate Institute. When he reached his sixteenth year, he went to Doniphan, Mo., and became a salesman in the hardware store of J. R. & E. W. Wright, who opened a store in Poplar Bluff, in 1886, and made Mr. Dalton their manager at that point. His mercantile ability soon led him to buy out the first mentioned partner, and the firm name at Poplar Bluff assumed its present form. Their large and select stock fills a two-story brick block, 36x110 feet, and is one of the leading business houses in the city. To this standing Mr. Dalton has arisen from the position of a clerk at $15 per month. In 1887 he married Miss Clara Wright, the sister of his former employer, J. R. Wright. She is also a native of Ripley County. Mr. and Mrs. Dalton are members of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. The K. of P. is the only fraternity with which he is identified, and in political opinions he finds congenial spirits in the Democratic party.

Dr. Hugh C. Davidson, a successful practitioner and farmer of Black River Township, was born in Hickman County, Tenn., in 1832, and is the son of Rev. David and Theresa (Green) Davidson. The father was probably born in Davidson County, Tenn., in 1802, and was married about 1823. He then settled in Hickman County, and in 1854 he removed to Butler County, Mo., Black River Township, where he made his home until his death, which occurred in 1866, in Iron County. He had a limited education, and from almost a young man was a minister of the Christian denomination. Notwithstanding his poor education Rev. Davidson was well informed in history and Scripture, and was an eloquent and fluent speaker. He owned a good farm, and was a good man. His father, Josiah Davidson, was, perhaps, born in Scotland. He was reared in North Carolina, but was one of the early settlers of Davidson County, Tenn., that county being named in his honor. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, and a staunch Jeffersonian Democrat to the last. He died in Hickman County, Tenn., at the age of one hundred and four. The mother of Hugh C. was born in Shawnee, Ohio, in 1806, and died in 1864, the result of grief brought on by war. She was a member of the Christian Church, and an excellent woman. Mr. Davidson's ministerial duties called him all over Southeast Missouri, and he was an earnest worker for the cause of religion, with but little compensation. Dr. Hugh C. Davidson was the fourth of nine children, eight of whom lived to be grown and were married. He received a fair education in the common schools, and at the age of seventeen spent five months at grammar school, and after leaving school, studied Latin and Greek privately. At the age of twenty-one he took up the study of medicine, and after reading five or six years began practicing in order to get means to send him to college. He then entered the medical college at Philadelphia, and graduated from that institution in 1866. In 1852 he married Miss Martha Ann Higgins, a native of Maury County, Tenn. She died in 1864, and of the four children born to this union, two are now living. Dr. Alexander W. resides at and is practicing his profession in Poplar Bluff, Mo., and Dr. Josephus M. is practicing at Polk's Station, Obion Co., Tenn. In 1867 Mr. Davidson married Miss Eliza S. Stewart, who died in 1893. Two children were born to this marriage, one now living, Abraham L. Mr. Davidson was married the third time in 1871 to Miss Sarah Epley, who died in 1878. Two children were also born to this union: Henry C. and Viola. In 1854, shortly after his first marriage, the Doctor went to Butler County, Mo. In 1862 he joined the secret service, and after about ten months he was appointed provost-marshal for the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Districts of Missouri, and held that position until June 1864, when he moved to Illinois, and there lived until 1867, during which time he attended college. He then returned to Butler County, where he has since resided two miles south of Hendrickson. He has a good farm of 533 acres, all the result of his own work, and is also engaged in the practice of his profession, which he has followed for thirty years with success. Twice his name has been placed on the Republican ticket for the General Assembly, but suffered defeat, with the rest of his party, as the county is strongly Democratic. In 1886 he was the choice of his party for Congress from the Fourteenth District, but owing again to the Democratic majority in the county suffered defeat. He was reared a Democrat, and his first presidential vote was for James Buchanan, in 1856. Since the war Mr. Davidson has been a staunch Republican. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, a member of the I. O. O. F., and is also a member of the G. A. R. His religion is "To do right because it is right," and "To do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

Isaac M. Davidson is an attorney-at-law, at Poplar Bluff. David Davidson was born in Tennessee in the county bearing his name, in 1802, and as he reached manhood was engaged in farming, and also preached the gospel for the Christian Church. In 1806 there was born in Butler County, Ohio, one who became Miss Firza A. Greene, a young lady who came to Davidson County, Tenn., with relatives, and soon became Mrs. David Davidson. They lived in Tennessee until 1834, when Butler County, Mo., became their home, where, but ten years later, the wife died, only to be followed by her husband a year later. They were devoted Christian people, and he was in politics a supporter of the Democracy. Among their nine children, two boys were physicians, and one—the one born in Hickman County, Tenn., February 25, 1835—became a member of the legal fraternity. It is needless to say this one was the subject of this sketch. Young Davidson received the advantages of rural Tennessee schools, and on coming to Butler County became a pedagogue, but the war interrupted this occupation, and in 1862 he enlisted and was commissioned first lieutenant of Company D, Thirty-first Missouri Infantry, United States army. After a time he resigned and became connected with the enrolling service. It was in 1867 that he returned to Butler County, and his previous legal studies enabled him to become a member of the bar, and since that time he has built up at Poplar Bluff, a large and lucrative clientage. From his assets of $100 in 1857, he has become one of the county's heaviest taxpayers. In 1872 he was elected school commissioner of the county, and from 1876 to 1880 served as its prosecuting attorney. He also deals in real estate. Mr. Davidson was married in 1857 to Lucinda Ross, a native of Kentucky, who died three years later, and in 1863 Mary I. Barfield became his wife. Two children—now deceased—were born to them, and in 1868 her death followed. His third marriage was with his present wife, Miss Mary McCullough, a native of Arkansas. Six children have been born to them. Mr. Davidson's family have always held the faith of the Christian Church. He is a Republican, and is identified with the G. A. R., K. of H. and K. of P.

Alex. W. Davidson, M. D. In Hickman County, Tenn., Hugh G. Davidson grew to manhood and learned with diligence what he could in the common schools, so that he was able to himself become a teacher. He also became a farmer and married Miss Martha A. Higgins, also a native of that county. In 1854 he moved to Mississippi County, Mo., and after one term of teaching came to Butler County, Mo. He united with the Christian Church and preached for several years. In 1862 he became a provost United States marshal, and for over a year acted as spy, but failing health caused him to resign. He settled in Jackson County, Ill., in 1864, and there lost his wife. The study of medicine next attracted his attention, and he graduated from the medical college of Philadelphia. In 1867 he returned to Butler County, where he practiced until age caused the venerable Doctor to retire to the farm. His present wife is his fourth one. To his first wife, while they lived in Hickman County, Tenn., there was born on September 26, 1853, a son who is the subject of this sketch, the eldest of eleven children. Alex. W. was a babe when they came to Butler County, and here attended school and studied medicine under his father. He then entered the American Medical College of St. Louis, and graduated in 1876, and at once located at Greeneville, Wayne County, where in 1878, he married Miss Lizzie C. Atkins, a native of that county. Four children have been born to them, two of whom are living. Mrs. Davidson is a Missionary Baptist. Since 1884 they have lived at Poplar Bluff, where the Doctor has built up a good practice. Although he is a young man, his experience covers about thirteen years. His political preferences are Republican, and in fraternal matters he supports the I. O. O. F. and K. of P.

Joseph T. Davison, prosecuting attorney for Butler County, is a son of William R. and Eliza J. (Walker) Davison, natives of Pennsylvania, where they were also married. Franklin County was the native place of the father. About 1843 he moved to Dayton, Ohio, and became a merchant. From that time he did business successively and successfully in Covington, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, and Bloomington, Ill., living at the latter place from 1853 until his death in 1867. His wife resides there still. Both held the faith of the Old School Presbyterian Church, of which he was an elder for many years. His political convictions were Whig and Republican. Eight children were born to them, and of the four living, Joseph T. is the eldest son. He was born in Dayton, Montgomery Co., Ohio, June 29, 1846, and, while they lived at Bloomington, he was educated in the public schools and the model department of the State Normal there. His school work was twice interrupted by the war. In 1862 he served three months in the Sixty-eighth Illinois Infantry Volunteers, and in 1863 entered the Third Illinois Cavalry Volunteers, serving in Company I and Company D until the close of the conflict. The most severe engagement of the many he was in was the second battle of Nashville. The Adams and American Express Companies made him their money-clerk at Cairo, Ill., for about six years, and he served as teller in the City National Bank of Cairo, for two years. He had been in Butler County ten years, when in 1884 he was admitted to the bar, and was elected to his present office two years later, on the Farmer's Union Ticket. His public life has been quite extensive, serving as mayor of Poplar Bluff one term, also as an alderman. Of the K. of H. and K. of P. he is a charter member and was presiding officer of both the first two terms. He is Post Commander of R. A. McCook Post No. 114, G. A. R., and secretary of the Poplar Bluff Building and Loan Association. In 1879 he married Lela, a daughter of Dr. James A. Greer, and to them have been born four children. Mrs. Davison was born in Kentucky in 1861, and has long been an esteemed member of the Presbyterian Church. Attorney Davison is a strong Republican.

Byrd Duncan, of the firm of B. Duncan & Co., is a native of Wilson County, Tenn., born July 20, 1846. His father, Richard M. Duncan, also a native of Tennessee, was of North Carolina ancestry, while his wife, Miss Alapher Brece, was a native of the same State, but of British stock. The father was a stone-sutter by trade, and about 1839 engaged in the business near Bowling Green, Ky. With the opening of the war he moved to Shawneetown, Ill., where the mother died in 1870 at the age of sixty-two years. He still lives near there at the advanced age of seventy-six years. Although he is now a Republican in politics his earlier views grew from Whig opinions. Both parents held to the Baptist faith. Byrd, the youngest of seven children, received a good common school education, and when about sixteen years of age began the brick-layer's trade, with which he was occupied for about seven years. He came to Wayne County, Mo., in 1873, and turned his attention to clerking until he came to Poplar Bluff in 1878. After a year as clerk he became a member of the firm of B. Duncan & Co. with Pat Harmon. His capital when he came to Southeastern Missouri was represented by the munificent sum of $85, but his ability and skill have made him one of the first hardware men of Poplar Bluff. Mr. Duncan's public life has been on the city council and the school board, and his clear-cut Republican convictions led to his being a delegate from the Fourteenth District to the National Republican Convention of 1884. He is a member of the Baptist Church. In 1879 he married Miss Mollie Spence, a native of Butler County. Two sons and two daughters have been born to them.

Dr. DeWitt F. Eskew, physician and surgeon, and present representative in the Legislature from Butler County, was born in Wilson County, Tenn., in 1849, and is the son of W. and M. (Van Hooser) Eskew, natives of Wilson County, Tenn., and the grandson of Benjamin Eskew, a native of England, who, when a young man, together with his brother, set sail for America. The vessel was wrecked, the brother was lost, and Benjamin was for eleven days without food, and suffered all the horrors of being shipwrecked. His son, the father of Dr. DeWitt, was born in 1815, and lived in Wilson County, Tenn., until 1868, when he removed to Caldwell County, Ky., and there died in 1884. He was a farmer by occupation. His wife was a daughter of Valentine Van Hooser, who is of Dutch origin. He was born in 1812, and was in the battle of New Orleans. He was a farmer and an early settler of Wilson County, Tenn. Dr. DeWitt F. was the fifth of nine children, eight of whom are now living, one having lost his life in the Confederate army. He was educated in the country schools, attained his growth on the farm, went with his parents to Kentucky, and in 1873 began the study of medicine. The same year he entered the medical department of the University of Tennessee, at Nashville, and graduated from the same in 1877. He began practicing at Shady Grove, Crittenden Co., Ky., but in 1879 he returned to Wilson County to assume the practice of his preceptor. In the fall of the same year he came to Butler County, and spent three years at Harviell, then came to Cane Creek, and settled ten miles northwest of Poplar Bluff, where he has a good farm of 165 acres. He was married in 1882 to Mrs. P. Rutherford, daughter of William W. and Elizabeth Sparkeman, a prominent family of the neighborhood. Both Mr. and Mrs. Sparkeman were born in Maury County, Tenn., and came to Butler County in 1860, and are now living on Cane Creek. The Doctor has had an extensive practice since his marriage, and is one of the leading physicians of Butler County. A Democrat in his political views, his first presidential vote was cast for Horace Greeley. In 1886 he was elected to represent Butler County in the State Legislature, and served the people faithfully and well. He is a member of the Farmers' Alliance and of the Christian Church. His property is the result of his own hard work, and his parents were unable to assist him. He paid his way through college by chopping wood and working as a farm hand. In 1888 he removed to Poplar Bluff, where he is now living. Mrs. Eskew is a member of the Baptist Church.

H. M. Estes was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in 1833, his parents being Asa and Minerva (Long) Estes, who removed from Kentucky to Cape Girardeau County, at an early day. About 1834 they removed from there to Wayne County, where they passed the remainder of their days. Mr. Estes was of German origin, and a farmer by occupation. H. M. Estes was the third of ten children. He grew to manhood on the farm and obtained little or no education. In 1855 he married Miss Elizabeth, daughter of Lewis Johnson, formerly of Illinois, where Mrs. Estes was born. Eleven children were the result of this union, five of whom are now living: Thomas (of Madison County), Cordella (wife of William Allard), Jesse E., Allen and Ida. After marriage Mr. Estes settled near Otter Creek, Wayne County, but moved from there to St. Francois River, where he lived for about fifteen years, then, about 1880, moving to Butler County and settling at Hendrickson. Here he has since been engaged in merchandising under the firm title of H. M. Estes & Son, until very recently, when Mr. Estes retired and now devotes his entire time to farming. He has 428 acres of fine land. He is a Republican in politics and a good citizen. His son

Jesse E. Estes, was born in Wayne County in 1864, and was raised on a farm, and educated in the country schools. He removed with his parents to Butler County, where, in 1885, he married Miss Laura, daughter of Joseph Campbell. She was born in Ohio, and died in May, 1887. In January, 1888, Jesse Estes married Miss Clara Smith, daughter of John N. Smith. Jesse farmed until 1885, when he bought his brother's interest in the store and has since been engaged in merchandising at Hendrickson. He carries a general assortment, and the annual sales are about $15,000. He, like his father, is a Republican in politics.

Thomas D. Ferguson, the subject of this sketch, is the son of James S. Ferguson, who was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., and moved to this county (then Wayne) with his father, Nimrod G. Ferguson, a native of Virginia, and one of the first settlers of this county. He was educated for a Catholic priest, but after arriving at manhood became a Baptist preacher, which profession, together with farming and hunting, he pursued the remainder of his life. James S. Ferguson was early in life married to Elizabeth Kittrell, of Wayne County, a daughter of Solomon Kittrell. They were blessed with eight children—six daughters and two sons—all of whom are now dead except the two youngest daughters: Bellzora Fleming and Lizzie B. Adams (wife of Dr. George Adams), and the subject of this article, who are living in Poplar Bluff, the county seat of Butler County. He was engaged in the business of farming and mercantile life prior to 1858, at which time he was elected to the office of county and circuit clerk and ex-officio recorder, which he held to the first year of the war, when the civil law was suspended in this part of the country, and he some two years later moved his family from the county and enlisted in the United States army, and served until the close of the war, when he moved back to the county and was elected and served, as judge of the probate court one term, president of the county court one term, and in 1870 was again elected clerk of the circuit court and ex-officio recorder, which office he was holding at his death in 1872. He was a charter member of Poplar Bluff Lodge No. 209, A. F. & A. M. and Poplar Bluff Lodge No. 179, I. O. O. F., which are among the leading lodges of the town to-day. He was a kind father and husband, and his house was always open to those about him. Elizabeth Ferguson, his wife, early in life became a member of the Baptist Church, and remained so to her death in 1871. She was a faithful and kind mother and wife, and none knew her except to admire her noble traits of character. Thomas D. Ferguson, the eldest and only surviving son, was reared on a farm, and educated in the common schools of the country. At the death of his father, in 1872, he was appointed to succeed him as clerk of the circuit court and ex-officio recorder, which office he has ever since held by election, and now has an unexpired term of two years. At his father's death he was left with his three youngest sisters to raise and support. It was a great burden and expense, but a duty which he did not shirk or evade, giving the two eldest a good common-school education, and the youngest he educated at the Cape Girardeau State Normal School. Mr. Ferguson has always been a Democrat, and while holding the office of clerk and recorder, as mentioned, has been mayor of Poplar Bluff, member of the County Democratic Committee, served one term on the Congressional Committee of his district (fourteenth), and one term (from 1884 to 1886) on the Democratic State Central Committee from his district, and was also assistant door keeper at the St. Louis National Democratic Convention in 1888. He is a member of Poplar Bluff Lodge No. 179, I. O. O. F., in which he holds the position of Lodge Deputy. He was married to Miss Annie Cook in 1878, and they have been blessed with one son and two daughters, all of whom are dead. The history of this family and county are inseparable. They have grown up together from the formation of the county from a part of Wayne in 1848, then almost an entire wilderness, with some twenty-five or thirty families, to its present population of some 10,000 or 12,000 inhabitants. The county seat, Poplar Bluff, at the end of the late war had but three families; to-day it has some 3,000 inhabitants, and is a busy growing town with a bright future.

William Ferguson, senior member of the firm of Ferguson & Wheeler, dealers in general merchandise and lumber, and son of Rev. Nimrod and Nancy (Johnson) Ferguson, was born in Butler County, Mo., August 21, 1854. His early education was almost wholly wanting, and when eighteen years of age, he began working on the Iron Mountain Railroad through this county. Having saved his money, he and his brother, Martin, went to a district school, "backing" in a log cabin, and sleeping on a bed of leaves. In 1873, while the epizootic raged in St. Louis, he was called there to drive a delivery wagon, drawn by oxen, for a large wholesale and commission house. Having remained with them for two years, he entered a commercial college and soon became acquainted with the rules that govern commercial transactions. Returning to Poplar Bluff, in 1877, he entered the store of W. F. Neal, as salesman. Two years later, he, T. D. and M. N. Ferguson opened a store, all having about $2,200 capital. The firm title was Ferguson & Co. until 1884, when it took its present name. They now operate one of the largest stores in town, and, besides, own and operate three saw-mills, handling about 4,000,000 feet of lumber, yearly. In 1880 Mr. Ferguson married Miss Missouri Harviell, who lived only about eight months. In 1885 he married Miss Alma Proffer, a native of Stoddard County. Mr. Ferguson is a charter member of both the K. of P. and K. of H. He is a Democrat, politically, and is a director of the Bank of Poplar Bluff. He is also a director in the Poplar Bluff Loan and Building Association. He began a poor boy, but is now one of the heaviest taxpayers in Butler County.

Martin Ferguson, treasurer of Butler County, Mo., is a son of Rev. Nimrod and Nancy (Johnson) Ferguson, who were born in Virginia and Butler County, Mo., respectively. When a young man, the father came to Butler County, where he met and married Miss Johnson. He was for many years a minister in the Baptist Church, though farming was his chief occupation. He died in 1856. Afterward the mother married Stephen Turner. She died in 1866. Their son, Martin, was born March 1, 1856, and his early education was very deficient. Upon reaching years of discretion, he and his brother, William, worked out for the money which they afterward employed in securing an education. When about eighteen years of age, Mr. Ferguson ran a delivery for a wholesale house and here remained several years. He then returned to his home and began merchandising, but three years later he turned his attention to saw-milling. He is also a dealer in real estate. In 1886 he was elected treasurer of the county. He is a Democrat in politics, and, as a business man, has been quite successful; commencing with comparatively nothing, he is now the owner of a fine property. In 1878 he married Miss Minnie Sparkman, a native of Butler County, Mo., and a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. To their union were born three children—one son and two daughters. Mr. Ferguson is a member of the K. P. and the K. of H.

James L. Garetson, one of the old merchants of Butler County, comes from a prominent pioneer family of Illinois. His grandfather Garetson was a member of the first Legislature of that State, and others of the family held prominent positions. His father, John Garetson, was born in Illinois, in 1800, and the Indians were not an uncommon sight to his boyish eyes. He grew up to be an enterprising farmer, and also conducted a cooper-shop, and ran a cotton-gin. At one time he served as colonel of the Fifth Illinois Militia. His wife, Catherine Lemen, who was seven years his junior, was also a native of Illinois, and bore him a son and daughter. After his death, in 1829, she married again. James L. was born in Monroe County, Ill., in March, 1826, and grew up with the meager educational advantages found in primitive Illinois, hearing that there was a thing called a pronoun, and, with a bundle on his back, conning what little he could gather from his geography. In his twelfth year he began living with an uncle, and when the Mexican War broke out he joined the Second Illinois Infantry, and served a year, acting as fourth corporal all of that time. His next venture was in shipping cord-wood to St. Louis, then engaging in milling and merchandising, which, at the end of seven years, proved so disastrous as to sink for him and others, $30,000. He next opened an unpretentious peanut stand, and finally prospered in farming and hotel-keeping, until he was able to cancel all his indebtedness. In 1862 he enlisted in Company G, Sixty-second Illinois Infantry, as captain, and after two and one-half years was honorably discharged at Little Rock. The peanut stand again served him a good turn after the war, and in this connection he was postmaster at Odin, Ill., for ten years. He soon changed peanuts for the news business. In 1868 he was elected assessor and treasurer of Marion County, Ill.—a Republican in a Democratic county. He served two years, and then, with assets and liabilities about equal, he came to Butler County, in 1870, and began farming, which he carried on, exclusively, three years. In 1873 he opened a store at Harviell, Butler County, where he was also station agent for about six years, but in 1887 he moved his stock to Poplar Bluff, when his youngest son, Robert L., became a partner. He now owns a large stock and a good farm. Sarah A. Harlow, a native of Monroe County, Ill., became his wife in 1847, and has borne him twelve children, eight of whom are now living. She is a Missionary Baptist, of which church he has been a member forty-two years. He is a Republican, and a member of the A. F. & A. M. and G. A. R. orders.

Charles Giese, the oldest merchant tailor of Poplar Bluff, was born in Baden, Germany, March 28, 1861, and is the son of Christ and Kate Giese, both natives of Baden. The father was a mechanic in his native country, and remained there until 1874, when he and family came to America, locating at St. Louis, where the mother still lives. The father died in 1882. The family consisted of four children, all sons, the eldest being our subject. He was educated in the old country, but since coming to America has become quite conversant with the English language. At the age of fourteen he began learning the tailor's trade, and served an apprenticeship of three years. After working for others until 1882, he came to Poplar Bluff, where he opened a shop and employed one man. Since then he has increased his business until he works seven men, and is doing well. In 1882 he married Miss Jennie Cole, who was born in St. Francois County. The result of this union was the birth of two children—a son and daughter. Mr. Giese is a Democrat in politics, is a member of the K. of P., also the A. O. U. W., and he and wife are members of the Presbyterian Church. Although commencing with very small capital, Mr. Giese has become one of the leading tailors of Poplar Bluff.

Dr. Edmund V. Glass, a Methodist minister, physician and surgeon, also a farmer, was born in Hardin County, Ill., in 1822, and was one of eight children born to Dudley and Jane (Givens) Glass. The father was a native of Georgia, born in 1760, and was married twice, his first wife being Margaret Russell. He soon after removed with her people to Kentucky. After his first wife's death he married Edmund's mother in West Kentucky. He was one of the pioneers of Pope, now Hardin County, Ill., and was interested in lead mining. He lost his property, and afterward removed to Fayette County, Ill., where he died in 1840. He was a tanner in early life, later a farmer, and was a soldier in the War of 1812 under Jackson. His father, Hiram Glass, was probably born in Dublin, Ireland, and when a boy came with his parents to America, and served through the Revolutionary War. The wife of Dudley Glass, and the mother of Dr. Edmund V. Glass, was born in South Carolina, and died in May, 1830. Her parents were both of English descent. They were married in London, and their bridal tour was their trip to America. Their son, John Givens, was a well known Methodist minister of Southern Illinois for many years. Dr. Edmund V. Glass was reared at home, and received limited educational advantages, but made up for this to some extent by self-study and close observation. At the age of fifteen he entered the store of Ebenezer Capp, at Vandalia, Ill., where in 1842 he married Miss Ella Gambill, who died eighteen months afterward, leaving one child (deceased). He was again married in 1844 to Miss Elizabeth E. Biggs, a native of Kentucky, who came with her parents, Elijah and Mary Biggs, to Williamson County, Ill., when a child. One child was born to this union, Joseph W. The second wife died in 1858, and in 1859 Mr. Glass married Mrs. Harriet Leubart, widow of John Leubart, and daughter of Nathan Hull. Two children were born to this union, only one now living, Rev. William Thomas, a Methodist minister of the St. Louis conference. The Doctor was engaged in farming and the mill business in Illinois until 1852, when he removed to Butler County, and settled where Neelyville now is, this being the first land purchased in that vicinity. He immediately entered the ministry as an itinerant, having been licensed by the Methodist Episcopal conference in Pope County, Ill., in 1850, and has since had a successful ministerial career. He was ordained a deacon in 1853, and an elder in 1866. In 1864 he returned to Illinois, and lived there about three years, when he returned to Missouri, and soon after to Newton County, Mo., as a supply minister. Here he remained about five years, preaching the gospel and practicing medicine, etc. Prior to his first return to Missouri he had spent some time studying medicine, which he continued after coming to Missouri. He spent a part of two consecutive years in the McDowell Medical College at St. Louis before the war, and has since had an extensive practice. He keeps along with the times, and has one of the most complete medical libraries in Butler County. The Doctor was formerly a Whig, and his first presidential vote was for Henry Clay in 1844. Since the war he has been a Democrat. He is a member of the Farmers' Alliance, and has a fine farm of 120 acres. During the war the Doctor went to Arkansas, was made captain of a company, and served a short time in the Confederate army in that capacity. He was afterward assistant surgeon a short time. Upon leaving the army he went to Illinois. Although born in a Northern State the Doctor's people were of Southern birth, and as he had lived for some years in a Southern State his sympathies naturally went that way, although he was opposed to the war and preferred not to participate. After a great many narrow escapes in eluding the enemy he made his way to Illinois, sent for his family, and remained there until the close of the war.

George W. Glass, dealer in timber, bolts, piling, logs, etc., and farmer, of Neelyville Township, was born in Williamson County, Ill., in 1841, and is the fifth of ten children born to George W. and Salina (Phipps) Glass. George W., Sr., was born in Pope County, in 1805, and married in Fayette County, Ill. After living in various places in Illinois, they removed to St. Louis County, where he lived about seven years, engaged in teaming. They came to Butler County in 1851, but in 1859 they settled four miles south of Neelyville, and there the father died, January 17, 1884. He was an industrious, upright citizen, and was a pioneer settler of Butler County. He served a short time in the Confederate army, under Capt. Reeves. He was of Scotch-Irish descent, and, of the nine children born to his marriage, only four are now living: Anna, widow of Robert Suggs; Nancy, wife of John W. Roberts; Missouri, wife of Lewis Maize, and George W. The mother was born, perhaps, in Fayette County, Ill., and died about 1875, aged sixty-three years. She and her husband were members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and were among the esteemed citizens of the county. George W., Jr., received a fair education, and came with his parents to Butler County when about ten years of age, and has witnessed many marvelous changes from that time to the present. Since about eleven years of age he has been crippled, the result of sickness. He has always devoted himself to farming, and for about four years he has been engaged in the lumber business. He owns the old farm of 240 acres, besides 320 acres of timbered land near by, at Hathaway Station. Politically a Democrat, his first presidential vote was for Seymour in 1868.

William C. Graddy, pharmacist, at Poplar Bluff, was born in Marshall County, Ky., January 13, 1854. His father, Lewis W. Graddy, was a native of the same county, and it was there that he married Miss Eliza Carpenter, a native of Mississippi. The father was engaged in agriculture up to within two years of his death, when he turned his attention to mercantile pursuits. He died in 1857, at the age of thirty-six, his wife surviving him until 1885, at the age of sixty-one. Of the seven children born to them William is the sixth child. Left fatherless at so early an age, his education was rather limited, and when but nine years of age he began working on a farm for his uncle. He spent some years, also, in a heading and tobacco factory, and at the age of twenty-two began clerking in a general store. In 1879 he came to Poplar Bluff, and, with his brother, opened up a stock of groceries and drugs, and has been engaged in some similar line ever since. Several changes have been made in the firm name, but Mr. Graddy has been the leading spirit, until, in 1887, he became the sole proprietor of what is now one of the best drug houses in the place. This has been acquired, too, from a beginning of about $300 when he became a citizen of Poplar Bluff. He was an active organizer of the Poplar Bluff Loan and Building Association, and now serves as a director and treasurer. He was mayor of the city for two years. His political preferences are Democratic, and he is a member of the K. of H. fraternity. In 1881 he married Miss Ella De Lapp, a native of Saginaw County, Mich. One child has been born to them, Grover B. Mr. and Mrs. Graddy are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

A. Hewitt Greason, junior member of the firm of Garetson & Greason, dealers in piling, timber and ties, is a native of the Keystone State, born in 1852, in Cumberland County. John Greason was a wide-awake Pennsylvanian, engaged in agriculture, and dealing in merchandise and grain. He was married to Margaret Monroe, a native of the same State, and in 1866 they removed to Iron County, Mo., where, besides being a merchant and farmer, he ran a saw mill. The father and mother lived to be about fifty-six and fifty-four years, respectively. The subject of this sketch was the fifth of a family of eleven children, and was well educated in ordinary schools, and also at Arcadia Seminary. After his school days he devoted himself to agriculture exclusively until 1881.

He then came to Poplar Bluff, and opened its first feed store, but soon turned to railroading, and became freight agent for the Iron Mountain Railroad at Poplar Bluff. He soon after became bill clerk and baggage master, and finally was promoted to foreman of the Iron Mountain Railroad stock yards, a position which he held for three and one-half years. He became a partner with Mr. Garetson in 1887, and in this, as in his other enterprises, he has been eminently successful. The firm does an extensive business. Mr. Greason is a Republican, and has served the city as alderman. He is a member of the K. of H., and belongs to the Presbyterian Church. In 1884 Miss Alice Metz, a native of Illinois, became his wife. They have a son and a daughter.

Josiah Harper, another successful and prominent farmer of Poplar Bluff Township, and the son of Joseph and Polly Ann (Stitt) Harper, was born in Hamilton County, Ind., in 1833. Joseph Harper was born in Virginia, and when a young man went to Indiana, where he was married to the mother of Josiah Harper, who was about five years old at the time of his mother's death. The father was again married, in 1843, and removed to Clinton County, Ill., but removed from there to Butler County, Mo., in 1851, where he died, six years later, at the age of fifty-two years. He was a farmer by occupation, and reared a large family. Josiah Harper received very limited educational advantages, and came with his father to Butler County. He was married, in 1866, to Mrs. Louisa Price, daughter of James Branham, and a native of Missouri. Mr. Harper, since his marriage, has lived in and near Poplar Bluff, and has over 400 acres of good land. In 1876 he was appointed county treasurer, and has been twice elected to the same position. He served until 1883. A Democrat, politically, his first presidential vote was for Douglas, in 1860. Mrs. Harper is a worthy member of the Baptist Church.

Charles F. Hinrichs, dealer in real estate at Poplar Bluff, has had a life more eventful than the generality of men, the details of which can but be briefly referred to in a sketch of this nature. He was born in Warin, Mecklenburg-Schwerin, Germany, February 15, 1828, and is the eldest of two living children of a family of six born to his parents, C. D. and Louise (Priester) Hinrichs, the former of whom died soon after coming to America, in 1847. He was a butcher by trade. His widow died in 1861. Young Hinrichs received a good education in the fatherland, and at the early age of sixteen his independent spirit manifested itself in a particularly strong manner. Having determined to start for America, and making several fruitless attempts to go, he was favored with a letter of recommendation from the burgomaster of his native city, to the minister at the capital, Schwerin. A minute account of the meeting with that official, the experience through which he passed, his embarrassment, etc., cannot be justly treated in the space to which this sketch is limited, but suffice it to say that with such earnestness did he plead his cause, that, shortly after returning home, news was sent him that he had been declared of age and that consent had been given him to emigrate to America. He started, and after thirteen weeks of ocean travel, landed in Galveston, Tex., without means, and a stranger in a strange land. It was a darkness before dawn, however, for he was soon employed by a butcher. He was enabled to return home, in 1847, by working his way as ship boy, and bring back his parents. They settled in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., where, owing to the father's death, the care of the family fell upon Charles. In 1861 he enlisted in the Missouri State Militia, and the following year joined Company L, of the Tenth Missouri Cavalry, United States army, as first lieutenant. In August, 1863, he was promoted captain, and served to the close, having participated in over sixty engagements. After the war he kept a country store in Cape Girardeau County, until he moved to southern Butler County, in 1867. He also shipped stock, and made money rapidly. His prosperity was interrupted by a great misfortune, in 1879, when a band of robbers entered his house, killed his nephew, and stole all his money they found. He then came to Poplar Bluff, where he has since resided. Mr. Hinrichs is a Republican, and a member of the G. A. R. In 1861 he married Malinda Moyer, a native of Cape Girardeau County, Mo., and of the two children born to them, the son lives. His wife died in 1879, and the following year he married Miss Belle Cook. Two of their four children are living. He and his wife are Seventh-Day Adventists. During the war, and while marching through some southern mineral countries, the information obtained by him concerning the Indian silver mines situated in Butler County, Mo., determined him to hunt them up if his life was spared. This he did, finding them and now owning them; and it is his intention to work them at the earliest possible moment.

G. W. Hill, farmer of Black River Township, was born in Washington County, Ark., December 14, 1838, and is the son of James W. and Margaret J. (West) Hill. Mr. Hill was born in Tennessee, about 1809, and went with his stepfather and mother to Washington County, Ark., where he was married at the age of twenty-six. He was a farmer by occupation, and died in 1849. The mother was born in Macoupin County, Ill., about 1813; then she went with her parents to Washington County, Ark., where she married. After the death of her first husband she married John W. Robbins, who removed to Greene County, Ill., in 1850, and in 1851 to Franklin County, Mo., and from there to Butler County, Mo., in 1854. He removed to Howell County, in 1858, where the mother died in 1863. Her father, James West, was born in North Carolina, but was an early settler of Macoupin County, Ill. He died in Arkansas. Thomas Hill, father of James W., was a native Virginian, and of Scotch-Irish descent. He was a soldier in two Indian wars, and died in Tennessee. G. W. Hill was the second of five children. He received but little education, and moved with his parents from place to place until he came to Butler County, where he worked by the month until the war. In July, 1861, he joined Company H, Sixth Missouri Volunteer Infantry, United States army, with Gen. Grant, in Missouri; was at the battles of Shiloh, Corinth, all through the siege of Vicksburg, Arkansas Post, Jackson, Miss., Chattanooga, Missionary Ridge, and all through the Georgia and Atlanta campaign. He was mustered out at Gen. Howard's headquarters, near Atlanta, Ga., August 1, 1864, and after three years and eleven days' hard service, he was the only man in the company not arrested nor in the guard-house. And out of about 103 he was one of twenty-seven to come out able for duty. He was never captured nor wounded. He returned to Cape Girardeau County, and was there married, September 29, 1864, to Mrs. Mary J. Holt, nee Northcut. To them were born four children, one now living, named Rudolph. Mrs. Hill died in Butler County, April 1, 1876, and October 4, 1877. Mr. Hill married Miss Susan Agee, who died April 2, 1884, leaving three children: James W., Margaret F. and Sarah B. Mr. Hill was married the third time September 12, 1886, to Mrs. Sophronia A. Mosley, a native of Tennessee, and daughter of John Dillyard, formerly of North Carolina. In 1866 Mr. Hill returned to Cape Girardeau County, where he lived two years. Since 1869 he has lived where Hillard now stands, the town being named for him, as he ran a woodyard at that place. He has 195 acres of as good land as is to be found in the vicinity, all the result of his energy and good management. Soon after marriage he was appointed registering officer, but declined to serve. He was reared a Democrat, and his first presidential vote was for Douglas, in 1860. Since the war Mr. Hill has been a conservative Republican. He is a member of the Farmers' Alliance, of the G. A. R., and of the Baptist Church. He is one of the county's best citizens, and has the respect of all. His parents were members of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church.

Levi Hillis. Prominent among the early settlers of Butler County who suffered all the privations incident to pioneer days stands the name of Levi Hillis. He was born near Nashville, Tenn., in 1823 and is the son of Samuel and Elizabeth (Osborne) Hillis. The father was reared in Tennessee, and lived there until about 1827, when he removed to near Albion, Ill., and in about 1832 came to what is now Butler County, where he made his future home. He died about 1860. He was a farmer and served in two campaigns under Gen. Jackson. He was twice married, the second time in Butler County. His first wife died in Illinois. His father, Samuel Hillis, was a native of Ireland. Levi Hillis was the third of seven children. He received no education, and was nine years of age when he came to Butler County, then a wilderness, with no schools, and when wild game of all kinds abounded. Here he was reared, and has lived in this county for about fifty-six years, perhaps the oldest settler now in the county. In 1842 he married Sallie Huskey, a native of Indiana, whose people were early settlers of Butler County. She died about 1851, and the two children born to this union are both deceased. Mr. Hillis was again married, in 1852, to Mrs. Narcissus Duff, nee Talton, who died in 1862, leaving two children, only one now living, Thomas. Since 1856 Mr. Hillis has lived on his present farm of 169 acres, which is situated one mile north of Hillard. He is one of the county's best citizens and an honest, upright man. He has always been an earnest worker for the cause of education, and for the general upbuilding of the country. He has been a member of the school board for some years, and has been a Democrat in his politics all his life. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and also a member of the Missionary Baptist Church.

Emlen W. Hoag, the editor of The Citizen, at Poplar Bluff, is a native of the Empire State, born in Chautauqua County, May 26, 1852. Isaac Hoag, his father, was a farmer in his native State, New York, and was one of those earnest Republicans of the abolitionist branch. He had first married a lady named Sarah Badgley, by whom he had one son, but after her death another New York lady, Miss Nancy Ballard, became his wife, and the mother of Emlen. She is now sixty-one years of age, surviving her husband, who died in 1881 at the age of sixty-six. She is an esteemed member of the Baptist Church. Young Hoag showed his journalistic inclinations and abilities before he had scarcely completed his education at the high school of Jamestown, N. Y., when he became connected with The Warren County Press, in Pennsylvania, and proved so accomplished in that line that he was soon the sole proprietor. His experience of two years in that enterprise led to his establishing the Chautauqua News, and four years later he became the founder of The Sunday News-Letter (now) The Sunday World, of Titusville, Penn. It was about this time that he sold out and took a vacation from his editorial toil, by selling out and dealing in stock in the west for about two years. Mr. Hoag resumed newspaper life in 1883, when he came to Poplar Bluff and became the editor of the newsy sheet which he has since controlled with so much success. In 1872 Miss Stella Whitaker, a native of New York, became his wife, and the union has been blessed with two children. Mrs. Hoag is a Presbyterian. Mr. Hoag is a thorough supporter and able advocate of Democratic principles, and served in the capacity of alderman during the years 1885-86. He is a member of the Masonic Relief Association.

James R. Hogg, dealer in meats, country produce, etc., was born in Jennings County, Ind., January 4, 1863, and is the son of Marion and Mary B. (Winslow) Hogg, natives of Indiana and South Carolina, respectively. They were married in Indiana, and in 1868 moved to Missouri, and to this county in 1870, where they have since resided, the father engaged in farming. He is Democratic in his politics, and a good citizen. To their union were born four children—two sons and two daughters. James R. was reared on a farm and educated in the common schools. In 1884 he abandoned the farm and engaged in his present business, at which he has been quite successful. In 1880 he chose for his companion for life, Miss Ida Dillard, who is the daughter of J. L. Dillard. This union resulted in the birth of two children, only one now living, Marion L. In connection with his store Mr. Hogg is opening up a farm with a view to stock raising. He is a member of the K. of P., is also a member of the I. O. O. F., and in politics affiliates with the Democratic party. His wife is a member of the Baptist Church.

Judge Andrew Holt, present judge of Butler County, brickmaker and farmer, was born in Dayton, Ohio, in 1829, being the son of Philemon E. and Permelia (Parsons) Holt, and grandson of Jerome Holt, who was born at Toll-and, Conn., and who, when a young man, went west with a Mr. Simms, who made a large purchase of land in Ohio, which Jerome Holt assisted in surveying. Jerome was a man of education, and an officer with Gen. Anthony Wayne during the Indian War and War of 1812. He was also with Gens. St. Clair and Harrison, and was wounded at Fort Recovery, Ohio. He was married in Cincinnati, Ohio, and was one of the first settlers of Dayton, being there before there was any settlement. He was of English descent, and his people came to America soon after the first settlement of the Northeast. He was for some years sheriff of Dayton, Ohio, and was postmaster at the same place for perhaps twenty years. He also organized the first Masonic lodge west of the Allegheny Mountains, in Gen. Wayne's army. He was known as Gen. Holt. Philemon E. Holt, whose birth occurred in 1804, was the third child in Dayton. He was a brickmaker, contractor and builder, and spent his entire life in his native city. He died in 1848. His wife was born in Harrison County, Ohio, in 1813, and was the daughter of Andrew Parsons, a Virginian, and an early settler of Harrison County. He was of English descent, and a farmer by occupation. Judge Andrew Holt was their eldest child. He secured a fair education in the Dayton schools, and by his own efforts and at the age of twenty began taking charge of his father's business. In 1852 he married Miss Hannah Reed, who died in 1877. Six children were born to this marriage, all now deceased. In 1878 Mr. Holt married Eliza Pilcher, who bore him three children, only one now living, Pearl. For many years Mr. Holt was engaged in the brickmaking, contracting and building business at Dayton, Ohio, and was for several years traveling salesman for the Dayton Nursery. In September, 1861, he enlisted in Company G, Seventy-fifth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, as lieutenant, in the army of West Virginia, and in January, when the two regiments consolidated, he resigned and went to recruiting. He joined Company H, One Hundred and Twenty-fourth Ohio Volunteers, as sergeant, and the last eight months commanded the company, but was not commissioned. He operated in nearly all the engagements of the Army of the Cumberland, and was twice severely wounded, at Resaca, Ga., and at Nashville, Tenn. He was with Sherman in his march to Atlanta, and returned with Thomas to Tennessee. He was mustered out at Nashville in July, 1865, and returned home. His colonel was O. H. Payne, now treasurer of the Standard Oil Company. He remained in Ohio until 1882, when he removed to Butler County, and settled on Black River. He has a good farm within two miles of the city. In 1886 he was elected county judge from the Eastern district, and has since held the office. He is a Republican in his political views, and his first presidential vote was cast for Gen. Scott in 1852. Although Butler County is largely Democratic he was popular enough to be elected. He is a member of the G. A. R., and also the Farmers' Alliance.

Dr. J. L. Horn, physician and druggist at Keener, was born in St. Francois County, Mo., in 1863, and is the son of Josiah and Jane (Sutherland) Horn, natives of Tennessee and Virginia, respectively. They were married in St. Francois County, and there the mother died in 1882. The father is living at Farmington, and is engaged in agricultural pursuits. He served in the United States army during the late war and participated in a great many battles. Dr. J. L. Horn was the youngest of eight children. He was educated at Carleton Institute at Farmington, and grew to manhood on the farm. In 1882 he began the study of medicine with his brother, Dr. A. J. Horn, of Farmington, and graduated from the Missouri Medical College at St. Louis, in 1885. He practiced in the vicinity of Farmington until 1888, when he came to Keener and there he has since remained. He is engaged in the drug business in connection with his practice and is a promising young physician. He is a Democrat in his political views, and his first presidential vote was cast for Grover Cleveland in 1884. He is a member of the Christian Church.

Milton C. Horton, cashier and a director of the bank of Poplar Bluff, was born at Ridgeway, Penn., August 6, 1857. His parents, Isaac and Sarah (Sherwood) Horton, lived in that State until the death of the former in 1887, and it is still the mother's home. She was born in New York, but spent the most of her life in the native State of her husband. His occupation was dealing in lumber. Milton C. was the second of their eight children. His education was gained by first taking a daily walk of six miles to the district school, and later in attending the Lake Shore Seminary. Mr. Horton has grown up in the banking business, and is familiar with every branch of it from the duties of an errand boy, where he began at the age of sixteen, to the chief management of the whole scheme. His first experience was with a banking house called the People's Saving Institution, in which he worked up from messenger to the position of secretary. He came to Poplar Bluff in 1886, and set on foot the banking house with which he has since been connected as a director and cashier. His success as a financier has been so marked that the institution has not lost a dollar through bad debts. Mr. Horton is a member of three fraternities, the Masonic, the A. O. U. W. and K. of P., while his political affiliations are with the Democracy.

M. A. Johnson, general lumber manufacturer, merchant and general business man at Keener, was born in De Kalb County, Tenn., in 1845, and is the son of C. A. and Alice (Bennett) Johnson. The father was a native Virginian and removed with his parents to Tennessee, where he was married. He lived in De Kalb County, Tenn., until 1853, when he removed to St. Francois County, Mo., and there made his future home. He died in the hospital at Nashville, Tenn., during the late war. He had served about six months in Company H, Forty-seventh Missouri Infantry. He was a carpenter and builder by trade, and had held various town offices in Farmington. He was of English descent on one side, and had a remote trace of Indian blood in his veins. Mrs. Johnson is still living and is a resident of Ste. Genevieve County. Of the thirteen children born to their marriage M. A. Johnson is the sixth. He was educated in the common schools and came with his parents to Missouri when eight years of age. At the age of twenty-one he began working for himself as a farmer, and in 1868 he was united in marriage to Artemisia McHenry, who died in November, 1877, leaving three children. In May, 1882, he married Nannie Haynie, who bore him two children, only one now living. Mr. Johnson farmed until 1871, and then removed to Wayne County, where he followed teaming until 1879, but was also engaged in farming. They then came to Butler County, locating near Shiloh, and Mr. Johnson engaged in the lumber business. In 1885 he removed his mill to Keener, where he has since carried on an extensive business, sawing and planing general lumber, shipping about 600 car loads per annum. He employs about 100 men, seventeen teams of two and four mules each, and about sixty-five horses and mules in all of his own, and keeps about ten to twenty teams hired all the time. Beside this he has a two-thirds interest in a general store of about $10,000 value, and has a saw mill on Ten Mile, nine miles from Keener, also a store at the same place. He has about 5,000 acres of land and has a fine residence at Keener. When Mr. Johnson first came to Butler County he was short of funds and was obliged to buy the mill on credit. He is now one of the wealthiest and most practical business men in the county. For the first nineteen months after starting in business he had a partner in the mill business. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, a K. of H., and is a Democrat in his political views, casting his first presidential vote for Seymour in 1868.

H. E. Johnson, attorney at law, at Poplar Bluff, was born in Richland County, Ill., August 27, 1847. His father was born in the year 1798, when Indiana and Illinois, etc., were all a territory. His father's was one of the first families to settle at Old Port (now Vincennes, Ind.). Their mode of travel was down the Ohio River in a keel boat, and then up the Wabash to the point where Vincennes now is. The mother of the subject of this sketch was born in 1811; her maiden name was Eckley. The Eckleys, so far as known, mostly lived in Carroll County, Ohio, where a great many of them still reside. When twelve years of age young Johnson was taken to Gibson County, Ind., where he attended school. He took all but his senior year in Merom College, Ind., and when sixteen years of age began in the employ of the E. & T. H. R. R., with whom he was engaged for nine years in the various capacities of newsboy, brakeman, fireman and finally train dispatcher. He then went to Ohio, and for one year was superintendent of the Ohio & Toledo Railway. For the next five years he was in the service of the Iron Mountain Railway as station agent at different places. In 1880 he was elected justice of the peace, and during his six years of duty became so well acquainted with law that in April, 1884, he was admitted to the bar, and now has a good practice. In 1885 he became interested in a jewelry store with a Mr. Brill. In 1869 Mr. Johnson was married to Miss Allie Hazleton, a native of the town by that name in Indiana. Two sons have blessed the union, one of whom, Gervasi, is studying medicine. Mrs. Johnson is a member of the Christian Church. Mr. Johnson holds Democratic views on political questions, and is a prominent fraternity member, being at the present time Master of the Masonic lodge at Poplar Bluff, and a member of the K. of H., I. O. O. F. and A. O. U. W. lodges.

Benjamin C. Jones, M. D., of Poplar Bluff, is the son of Rev. Eli Jones, a native of Virginia. Eli Jones' experience is of considerable interest. In his early life he came to Kentucky with a crowd of horse racers and sporting men, but circumstances led to his religious conversion, and he devoted his life to the ministry. He prepared for it by entering the theological department of Transylvania College, of Kentucky. He was a Presbyterian, and also was engaged in teaching for a time. While engaged in his work he met and married a Miss Hubbard, a native of Sumner County, Tenn. Years after they located permanently in Obion County, where he lived to be half a century old. Four children were the result of this marriage. After his death she married again, becoming the mother of three children by the second union. She died at the age of forty years, an esteemed (Presbyterian) Christian woman. At Mayfield, Ky., August 25, 1836, Benjamin C. was born, and, losing his father in his seventh and his mother in his sixteenth year, he had few advantages. He worked in Kentucky after his mother's death, and spent his scanty earnings in school. But when twenty years old he located at Bloomfield, Mo., and began the study of medicine with Dr. R. P. Parramore, whose daughter, Mattie E., he married in 1860. In 1861 he enlisted in Capt. G. S. Murray's company, of Arkansas, Confederate States army, and after three months under the quartermaster was transferred to the medical department. In July, 1863, he was taken prisoner and paroled. In 1864 he raised Company E, Seventh Missouri Cavalry, Confederate States army, and was elected first lieutenant and afterward promoted captain. He held the position until June, 1865. He then practiced in Arkansas, but since 1867 has been in Poplar Bluff. His twenty-three years of active practice have been crowned with success, and he stands high with his profession. The Doctor is county coroner, and is president of the Poplar Bluff school board. He is a member of the Masonic order. He is prominent in political circles, having served on the Democratic, Senate and Congressional Committees, and being now chairman of the County Democratic Committee.

Judge Eli C. Lacks, probate judge and president of the county court, was born in Jackson County, Ala., July 26, 1838. The career of his father, John Lacks, is interesting. Born in Middle Tennessee, he married a Miss Elizabeth Hill, of Madison County, Ala., and lived there until their son was five years old, when they came to Butler County. By trade he was a blacksmith, and of such renown that a radius of twenty and thirty miles covered his patronage. Soon, however, he drifted into political life and became the first assessor of Butler County, and held the office for four years. He was next elected to a term of four years as sheriff and collector, and was always an earnest supporter of the Democracy. Both he and his wife were Methodists, of which denomination he was a licensed local minister. He died in 1862, having survived his wife for six years. Of the nine children born to them, Eli C. was the third, and the rural life of those early days gave him only the meager advantages of six months of school; but the sturdy energy and self-reliance developed by such a life made up for all deficiencies in education. It was in 1858, when he was twenty years of age, that he began independently, and also was married to Miss Catharine Wisecarver, a native of Greene County, Tenn. The union has resulted in seven children. The war turned the attention of Judge Lacks next to military affairs, and from June, 1861, he served four years in the Confederate army. He was first lieutenant of Jennings' company about six months and adjutant of Reare's regiment a short time, also receiving a commission as captain in the recruiting service. After the conflict closed he engaged in teaching, sold patent medicines three years, farmed, and afterward was occupied with merchandising. He was elected assessor in 1872, and in 1884 became coroner. The Judge was chosen to his present position in 1886. His career has been accompanied with success in a financial sense as well as otherwise. For ten years he was Master of the Poplar Bluff Masonic Lodge No. 209, and now holds the office of secretary. He is also a member of the K. of H. His political convictions are thoroughly Democratic. Judge and Mrs. Lacks are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Hon. Robert P. Liles, a retired merchant at Poplar Bluff, was born near Nashville, Tenn., October 4, 1835. His father, Jesse Liles, was a young man when he left his native place in Georgia to live in Tennessee, to follow his occupation as a house carpenter and farmer. His public sentiments were strong, and led to a life-long adherence to union and Democracy. His military service was under Gen. Jackson in 1812. He married Miss Martha E. Gilbert in Tennessee, and in 1838 moved to Cape Girardeau County, Mo., where they died in 1866 and 1878, respectively. Both were esteemed members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Ten children were born to them, of whom Robert P. was the eighth, and but three years old when they settled in Missouri. His early life up to his twenty-second year was spent on the farm and in the log school-house hard by. His desires led him to become a clerk, but this was interrupted by the war, and June 4, 1861, he joined for six months' service in the Missouri State Guards, and after that enlisted in Company F, Eighth Missouri Cavalry, Confederate States of America. He served as first lieutenant in the Missouri State Guards, but after enlisting in the Confederate service, served as a private during the war. He was with Gen. Sterling Price on his raid through Missouri in 1864, fighting more or less day and night. He was in the actions at Little Rock, Poison Springs, Saline River, Jenkins' Ferry, Marks' Mill, Ditch Bayou, Helena, and other places. He surrendered in 1865 at Shreveport, La., and following that lived in Farmersville, La., two years, after which he moved to Missouri. In 1865 he married Louise McLawchlin, a native of Louisiana, but of Scotch extraction. Their only son died in infancy. In 1867 Cape Girardeau County, Mo., became their home, and after two years at farming, they moved to Bloomfield, Stoddard County, and entered mercantile life. Since 1877, when worth less than $1,000, he has been in Poplar Bluff, closely devoted to his interests as a merchant, until failing health compelled him to retire from active life, but not before he had become one of the wealthy residents of his adopted home. He was chosen in 1880, by a large majority, to represent Butler County in the Legislature. This is his only public experience as an officer, except as councilman of Poplar Bluff. He is a Democrat, and a member of the K. of H. Both Mr. and Mrs. Liles are Presbyterians.

Dr. James C. McCown, farmer of Beaver Dam Township, was born in Woodford County, Ky., in 1827, his parents being John and Eliza J. (Easton) McCown, natives of Musser and Woodford Counties, Ky., respectively. They were married in 1825, and the father died about four years later. He was of Scotch-Irish descent and a farmer by occupation. The mother was married the second time and lived some years in Missouri, but died in her native county in 1863. The Doctor was the only child born to his parents. He secured a good education at Central College, Danville, Ky., and in 1843 he began the study of medicine and practiced some until 1850, when he graduated at the Transylvania University, at Lexington, Ky. He practiced without interruption for ten years, when failing health caused him to abandon the same, and in 1864 he removed to Ralls County, Mo., and then to Monroe, where he engaged in farming and stock-raising until 1878, when he removed to Butler County, on Cane Creek, six miles west of Poplar Bluff. There he has since remained on a good farm of 343 acres. He was married in 1854 to Mary, daughter of John and Susan Jutty, of Clark County, Ky. Three children were born to this union: Thomas, James and Georgia. Dr. McCown is an earnest worker for the cause of education, and is a Democrat in his political views, his first presidential vote being for Lewis Cass, in 1848. He is an active worker for the Democratic party and is also foremost in all enterprises that tend toward developing the resources of the country and toward the advancement of the general public. He is a good farmer and makes a specialty of improving the grade of his stock. He is a member of the Baptist Church.

John Mangold, manufacturer and dealer in all kinds of oak staves and headings, was born in Dearborn County, Ind., in 1857, and is the son of Joseph and Christina (Hoff) Mangold, natives of Alsace, France, who, when children, came with their parents to the United States, and lived some time at Pittsburgh, Penn., where they were principally reared. They afterward went west to Dearborn County, Ind., where they were probably married, and where Mr. Mangold died about 1883. The mother is still living there. Mr. Mangold was a farmer and also followed the shoemaker's trade. They reared nine children, seven of whom are now living. John Mangold was the youngest child born to this union. He was educated in the schools of Dearborn County, Ind., and at the age of nineteen began for himself. He went to Butler County, and was in the saloon business at Harviell about five years. He then kept a supply store for four years and was in the meantime engaged in the stave business with eight or ten men, shipping to St. Louis and various other points. This business he has since continued and now employs from seventy-five to eighty men. He has a prosperous business which is rapidly increasing. His shipment in 1887 was nearly $50,000, finding a ready sale in all States, but principally in California. His staves and headings are principally for large casks. This is the only enterprise of the kind in Butler County. He has about 1,500 acres of choice timber land and is one of the most prominent business men of Butler County, all this property being the result of his own efforts. He was married in May, 1880, to Miss Sophia, daughter of John and A. M. Hampel. She was born in Jefferson County, Mo., and to their marriage were born three children. Mr. Mangold is a Democrat, politically, and his first presidential vote was for Gen. Hancock in 1880. He owns the most of Harviell, and considerable real estate in Poplar Bluff. It might properly be mentioned in this connection that Harviell is seven miles south of Poplar Bluff on the main line of the Iron Mountain & Southern Railroad. It has a Western Union Telegraph office, an express office and postoffice, and three general stores, one drug store, one blacksmith shop, three saw mills and lumber yards, one stave yard. It has 300 inhabitants. Mr. Mangold is a member of the Catholic Church and is a prominent citizen.

Henry H. Miles, sheriff of Butler County and the son of William and Rebecca (Gaskin) Miles, was born in Spartanburg, S. C., April 10, 1841. The parents were reared and married in South Carolina, and here the father spent the greater part of his life engaged in farming. Having lived in his native State until 1872, he and wife moved to Mississippi, where he died in 1877 at the age of eighty-four. He was a member of the Baptist Church, as is also his wife, who is still living and is eighty years of age. The father had, by a previous marriage, five children, and by his last marriage also became the father of five children. He was Democratic in his political views, and was a major in the War of 1812. Henry H., who was one of the children born to the second marriage, grew to manhood on the farm and received his education in the old Field School. At the age of twenty he went to Mississippi and was overseer on a plantation until the breaking out of the War, when he enlisted in the Confederate army as a private, under Capt. T. H. Shackelford's company, and served until the close of the war. He was promoted to the rank of captain of his company and was in the battle of Fort Pillow, Island No. 10, where he was taken prisoner and held at Camp Douglas and at Camp Randall. Being exchanged, he re-entered the service and was in the battles of Champion's Hill, Vicksburg, Jackson and in the Georgia campaign. He had two brothers killed in the army but he was never touched. He returned to his home in South Carolina, and while there, in 1867, married Miss Laura Hollis, a native of Union County, S. C., born in September, 1841. To this marriage were born four children, three now living, two sons and one daughter. Having returned to Mississippi Mr. Miles farmed until 1878, when he came to Butler County and here followed the same occupation for three years. He then moved to Poplar Bluff, opened a livery stable, and after running that a time, was chosen street commissioner and then marshal of the city. In 1886 he was chosen sheriff and is now one of the aldermen of Poplar Bluff. In his political views he has affiliated with the Democratic party all his life and is a K. P. and a K. of H.

Leonard O. Mills, a farmer of Epps Township, who was born in Jefferson County, Tenn., in 1835, is the third of eight children born to Juresiah and Elizabeth (Hutcheson) Mills, natives of East Tennessee, where they lived until 1852, when they moved to Butler County, and settled four miles northwest of Poplar Bluff. About 1856 they moved to Cane Creek, where the mother died in 1862 and the father in 1864. The father was a member of the Missionary Baptist Church. The mother's people were natives of Virginia. Thomas Mills, grandfather of Leonard O., was born in England, came to America at the age of twenty-one and settled in Tennessee. Leonard O. Mills received but a limited common school education and came with his parents to Butler County. In 1862 he joined Company C, of Col. B. Jeffers' regiment under Gen. John L. Marmaduke, and operated in Arkansas and Louisiana. He was captured at Cape Girardeau in May, 1864, and imprisoned in St. Louis for about one month, when he was taken to Virginia and exchanged in Demopolis, Ala., in June. He soon after rejoined his command in Stoddard County, Mo., and remained in service until the close of the war. He then spent a year in Arkansas, but returned to Butler County, where he has since resided, engaged in agricultural pursuits principally. He was married in 1880 to Mrs. Susanna J. Spurlock, widow of N. B. Spurlock and daughter of Thomas and Anna Mills, natives of Tennessee, where Mrs. Mills was born. To this union were born two children, Jesse E. and William Thomas. Mr. Mills, since his marriage, has lived on the old farm, which consists of 188 acres of good land, all the result of his own labor and good management. Mr. Mills is an earnest worker for the cause of education and the general upbuilding of the community. Politically a Democrat, his first vote was cast for James Buchanan in 1856. He is a member of the Farmers' Alliance and of the Missionary Baptist Church. Soon after the war Mr. Mills was registering officer and for many years road overseer. He had the misfortune to lose his wife in 1886.

Lemuel Mills, a popular grocer of Poplar Bluff, was born March 28, 1839. The lives of his parents, Thomas and Anna (Carmichael) Mills, ran along very evenly, the former from 1816 to 1875, and the mother's from 1815 to 1877, and both were natives of Jefferson County, Tenn., where Lemuel was born also. Both were members of the Baptist Church. They came to Butler County in 1853, and here they spent the rest of their lives engaged in agriculture. The father was one of the Georgia volunteers to assist in removing the Indians from that State. In politics he was a Democrat. The subject of this sketch was the eldest of eight children, and had few school advantages. He joined the Missouri State Guards in 1861, and after serving his time there enlisted in Company C, of Col. Jeffers' regiment, Confederate soldiers, where he served until the close of the conflict. After some three years spent on a farm in Louisiana he returned to Butler County, and, notwithstanding his early educational deficiencies, he made up for it in personal application, and was enabled to become a teacher. He alternated farming and teaching for a long time. In 1874 he began public life as clerk of the county court, and served four years. He is now the treasurer of Poplar Bluff. In 1883 he turned his attention to mercantile life, first in conducting a harness store, and about a year later as partner with M. Ferguson in the grocery business. The stock and building were destroyed by fire in 1885, and with a capital of $166 Mr. Mills began again, and now has a good stock and increasing trade. In politics he is a Democrat. In 1877 Miss Hester O., a daughter of John Eudaley, an old settler of Butler County, became his wife, and the union has been blessed by five children, three of whom are living. Mrs. Mills is a Methodist.

Thomas H. Moore. Among the earliest pioneers of Washington County, Mo., were James and Amanda (Williams) Moore. The former was born in North Carolina in 1801, and the latter was a native of Virginia, born in 1806. They reared a family of ten children on the old homestead, and lived to a good old age, passing away in 1885 and 1887, respectively. Both were esteemed members of the Presbyterian Church. The father's political opinions changed with the war from Democratic to Republican. His youngest son, Thomas H., was born at Caledonia, Washington County, September 1, 1846, and grew up with the usual rural advantages of a pioneer community, and devoted himself to farming until his twenty-sixth year. He then, in 1872, came to Poplar Bluff, and engaged with W. F. Neal as clerk for $20 a month and board. A season of illness led him to Ironton, where, after four years' clerkship, he returned to Mr. Neal's employ, and, except an interval at Louisville, Ky., in a wholesale house, he remained with this gentleman for ten years, four of which he was partner in the receipt of profits. His ability and financial success have been such that in 1887 he withdrew and formed the present firm, T. H. Moore & Co., one of the most enterprising firms in the place. In 1880 Mr. Moore married Jennie Harvey, a native of New York, but at an early age was brought to Iron County, Mo. Of their four children three are now living. Mr. Moore is a strong Democrat, and is now mayor of Poplar Bluff. He is a Mason and a member of the K. of H.

Joseph W. Morris was born in Anderson District, S. C., in 1832, and is the son of John and Rachel (Hopkins) Morris, natives of South Carolina, where they resided until 1846, when they removed to Cherokee County, Ga., and there the mother died in 1876, at the age of sixty-six. The father died in 1887, nearly eighty-eight years of age. Both were members of the Baptist Church. Samuel Morris, grandfather of Joseph W., was born in Abbeyville District, S. C., and was a soldier in the Revolutionary war. The subject of this sketch was the sixth of fourteen children, ten of whom are living, born to his parents. He never attended school but about three months, and that was after attaining his majority. He went to Georgia with his parents, and in 1854 married Miss Margaret E., daughter of John N. and Rebecca Swords. She was born in South Carolina, and by her marriage became the mother of four children, one now living, John Howard. Mr. Morris served four years in Company F, Third Georgia Cavalry, and operated mostly in East Tennessee, the last two years as lieutenant. In 1867 he removed to Butler County, and settled on Wolf Creek, six miles west of Poplar Bluff, where he has 300 acres. Although starting with nothing, he is now one of the leading farmers of that county. Formerly a Whig, his first presidential vote was for Gen. Taylor in 1848. He now affiliates with the Democratic party. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity.

William F. Neal, one of the leading merchants of Poplar Bluff, is a son of James W. and Nancy H. (Ford) Neal, natives of South Carolina and Virginia, respectively. They were married in Georgia, and here made their permanent home. He was a farmer by occupation, and both were members of the Baptist Church. While visiting his son in Butler County, Mo., the father died in 1878. The mother then broke up housekeeping, and now lives with her son. She is sixty-one years of age. In their family were six children, three now living—two sons and one daughter. The eldest son, William F., was born in Dawson County, Ga., in October, 1846, and was reared in Whitfield County, on a farm. He secured a fair education in the subscription schools, and in December, 1862, he enlisted in Company A, Fourth Georgia Cavalry, Confederate States army, and served until the close of the war. He was in the battle of Chickamauga, was taken prisoner near Knoxville, Tenn., and held fifteen months at Rock Island, Ill. He then returned to his home, and engaged in agricultural pursuits. In 1868 he married Miss Sarah J. Keith, a native of Whitfield County, Ga., who was born, reared and married in the same house. In 1870 Mr. Neal moved to Missouri, located at Poplar Bluff, and in partnership with John F. Lane opened a store, which he has since continued. He has had a number of partners, but for the past twelve years has been principally by himself. To Mr. and Mrs. Neal were born four children, two living, both daughters. Although starting with comparatively little means, Mr. Neal has succeeded well, and is now one of the heaviest taxpayers of the county. He is a Democrat in politics, is a member of the Masonic fraternity, belonging to the Chapter, and he and wife are members of the Presbyterian Church.

William W. Norman, proprietor of a saw and planing mill, established his business at Ash Hill in 1887, and employs about twenty men. They cut about 10,000 feet per day, and are doing a thriving business. Mr. Norman was born in Scott County, Mo., in 1853, and is the son of Elias and Telitha (Matthews) Norman, who died when William W. was but a boy, the father when he was two years old and the mother when he was ten. He is the only child living. After the death of his parents William W. hired as a farm hand, with the promise of five months a year at the common school. At the age of twenty-one he purchased a team and went to logging, which occupation he continued for four years. Then he and Mr. J. G. Scholz purchased a saw mill in Cape Girardeau County, which he operated with success for four years. He then purchased another, and at the end of a year Mr. Scholz retired, and Mr. Norman continues the business. He has 680 acres of timber land at Ash Hill, also has 200 acres in Scott County, and 700 or 800 acres in Cape Girardeau County, all the result of his own hard work. He is one of the best business men in the county. He was married in 1879 to Miss Mena Nussbaum, daughter of J. J. and Wilhelmína Nussbaum, natives of Germany. Mr. Nussbaum died, but Mrs. Nussbaum is still living, and is now a resident of Scott County, Mo. To Mr. and Mrs. Norman were born three children: Floy T., Lyman E. and Rosy L. Mr. Norman is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and of the I. O. O. F., also of the A. O. U. W., and is a Democrat in his political views. He cast his first vote for Rutherford B. Hayes.

George C. Orchard, dealer in groceries, provisions and feed, was born in Salem, Mo., September 1, 1860. William A. Orchard, after his marriage with Rebecca S. Welborn, located at Salem, where he carried on a line of merchandise, and also engaged in railway contracting. He served in the late war as a captain in the Confederate army. He died in 1882. His wife still survives him. Both belonged to the Baptist Church. George C. is the second of their three children. The Salem schools furnished his preparatory education, and in 1883 he graduated from Bryant & Stratton's Business College, at St. Louis. Thereupon he came to Poplar Bluff and became a salesman and bookkeeper for Ferguson & Co. He afterward clerked for R. P. Liles, and soon became his partner. This continued until in 1886, when he opened his present establishment. Mr. Orchard's ability as a general dealer has given him a first-class trade accompanied by the confidence of the community. His political interests are with the Democratic party. He now serves the city as clerk and assessor. In 1887 he married Maggie Smith, a native of Illinois. He is a member of the K. of P.

Hon. William L. Oury, proprietor of the Butler County Advocate, is a Virginian, a native of Wythe County, where he was born June 29, 1840. His father, John M. Oury, still lives in Carroll County, Miss., at the advanced age of seventy-eight years, and has, during his varied career, been an earnest, progressive man. He came from his native State of Virginia in 1844 to Mississippi. His political views have passed through the changes of Whig, Unionist and Democrat. In the Mexican War he served in the First Mississippi Regiment, and his former skill with the shears and needle was gained on the same bench that taught President Johnson that trade. His wife, Elizabeth (Duncan) Oury, a native of South Carolina, died at the age of seventy-six years. Both were members of the Christian Church. Nine children were born to them, and the eldest but one is our subject. Young Oury enjoyed common school privileges, and spent a term in the University of Oxford, Miss. His journalistic career began with his printer's apprenticeship, at the age of sixteen years, but this was interrupted in 1861 by his war service in Company I, Eleventh Mississippi Infantry, Confederate States army. Both battles of Manassas, Fredericksburg, Antietam, Wilderness, Gettysburg, Spotsylvania Courthouse, and nearly all of Jackson's Shenandoah Valley engagements witnessed his services, and although he entered as a private, he received a captain's commission before the close of the conflict. With the return of peace he resumed his newspaper connection, and published the Mississippi Conservative, and afterward the Brownsville (Tenn.) Bee. After Missouri became his home, in 1882, he owned the West Plains Gazette for about three years, but in 1887 purchased his present paper. His journal is a bright and wide-awake sheet, and represents its editor's views with fidelity. Mr. Oury is a strong and uncompromising Democrat, and his qualities led to his representing Carroll County, Miss., in the Legislature of that State, while he was yet a resident. In fraternal matters he supports the K. of H., A. O. U. W. and I. O. O. F. In 1864 he married Miss Emma Hansbrough, a native of Mississippi. Eight children have been born to them, and five are now living.

F. G. Oxley, president of the F. G. Oxley Stave Co., is the son of Clare and Philadelphia (Oliver) Oxley, natives of Virginia. Clare Oxley became a lawyer, and, soon after his marriage, began the practice of his profession in Kentucky, where he remained until 1833. He then went to Boone County, Mo., where he was associated as law partner with Sterling Price, the gentleman with whom he served in the Mexican War, under a colonel's commission. Soon after the close of the war he died. His political predilections were of the Clay-Whig order. His widow lived to be eighty-four years old. Six children were born to them, but only two now are living. The subject of this sketch was born in Boone County September 21, 1834, and received but few advantages in the old country schools. After his father's death he became the main support of the family. He has engaged extensively in the real estate business, both in Eastern Kansas and Western Missouri, aiding in the laying out of Leavenworth and Atchison. He was engaged in the same line at Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1857, and afterward became a druggist at Louisville, Ky. During the war his attention was given to contracting to furnish beef for the Union army. Since the war, however, he has been vigorously pushing the stave business, and with such unexampled success that his present company is probably the most extensive one of the kind in existence. The firm has passed through many changes, but Mr. Oxley always remains the leading spirit of it and established the present firm in 1886. They have an extensive plant at Poplar Bluff, one at Cincinnati, Ohio, and one at Junction City, Ky. They employ vast resources and men, and ship to California, Cuba, Liverpool, England, and many foreign ports elsewhere. Mr. Oxley was married in 1867 to Miss Margaret J. West, a native of Kentucky. Their two children, Robert F. and Mary E., are both attending college in Kentucky. Mr. Oxley and his wife are members of the Southern Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a Democrat.

Judge John C. Patty, farmer and stock raiser, of Epps Township, was born in Union District, S. C., in 1823, and is the third of thirteen children born to Rev. Joshua and Nancy (Walker) Patty, natives of South Carolina. The father was born during the Revolutionary War, and was twice married. Five children were born to his first marriage. He was of English-Irish descent, a farmer by occupation, and was a soldier in one of the Indian wars. He was also a Baptist minister, and followed his ministerial duties nearly all his life. He removed to Sevier County, Tenn., in 1831, and there died in 1862. His father, John Patty, was born in South Carolina, and was a soldier in the Revolutionary War. Mrs. Nancy Patty was born in 1805, and died about 1873 in North Carolina. Her father, Robin Walker, was born in South Carolina, of Irish descent, and was a soldier in the Revolutionary War. He died in South Carolina. Judge John C. Patty had very meager educational advantages, having never attended school more than a few months in his life. He went to Tennessee with his parents at the age of eight, and in 1844 married Mary Ann, daughter of Emanuel G. and Mary Jones, natives of Tennessee. To Mr. and Mrs. Patty were born nine children, five of whom are now living: Sallie, wife of John Whitsel; Joshua; Johanna, wife of Enoch Langley; Lovey J., wife of Charles Scarsgall, and Caldonia, wife of Albert Scarsgall. After marriage, Mr. Patty settled in Blount County, Tenn., where he remained until 1852, and then removed to Butler County, on Cane Creek, where he purchased forty acres of land. He now has 980 acres of excellent land on Beaver Dam, all the result of his own industry. He is a farmer, also a blacksmith and wagon-maker, and is a natural mechanic, and one of the prominent citizens of Butler County. He was a staunch union man during the war, although he took no part in that struggle. Soon after that event he was elected county judge, which position he held for six years, and was then re-elected, but was legislated out, and afterward served as probate and ex-officio county judge. At the end of two years Mr. Patty was again elected, and served two years with credit and distinction. Politically a life-long and consistent Democrat, his first presidential vote was cast for James K. Polk in 1844. Although not a member of the church, he is a church worker and a moralist. Mrs. Patty and children are members of the Missionary Baptist Church.

Joseph P. Porch, another successful farmer and stock raiser of Black River Township, was born in De Kalb County, Tenn., about 1842, and is the son of William and Sarah (Waldon) Porch. The father was born in Sussex County, Va., and, at the age of nine years, left the parental roof, and went with a neighbor to Tennessee, where he was married. He settled in De Kalb County, but removed from there to Smith County, and from there to Butler County, Mo., in 1851. After reaching the last named county, he settled in Black River Township, near where the town of Hendrickson now stands. He passed the remainder of his life in Butler and Wayne Counties, and was a life-long farmer. He was in one of the early Indian wars. The mother was born in Wilson County, Tenn., and died when Joseph P. was fourteen years of age. He was the eldest of ten children, and knows very little about any of his brothers and sisters. He received little or no educational advantages, and at the age of ten years began working as a farm hand, giving his wages to his father until twenty-one years of age. He then enlisted in Company H, Thirty-first Missouri Volunteer Infantry, and operated in nearly all the Confederate States. He was in the siege of Vicksburg, Jackson, Miss., Chattanooga, and all through the Georgia and Alabama campaigns, and was also with Sherman in his famous march to the sea. After the surrender at Raleigh he went on foot to Washington, D. C., and participated in the grand review. He returned to St. Louis, and was discharged in June, 1865. During his whole experience of the war he was never wounded or captured. In June, 1866, he married Miss Elizabeth Sandlin, a native of Butler County. She died about 1878, and was the mother of four children, only one now living. His first son, William, was born February 6, 1867; Nancy was born May 7, 1869, and Dora Isabelle was born June 2, 1871. Mr. Porch was married the second time, in 1880, to Miss Nancy, daughter of Lewis Johnson, and to this union were born three children. Since his first marriage Mr. Porch has lived on his present farm, which consists of 176 acres, all the result of his own work, having started as a farm hand. He is an industrious and enterprising citizen, and has the respect of all who know him. He is a Republican in his political views, and his first presidential vote was for Abraham Lincoln in 1864. He is a member of the G. A. R., and he and wife are members, in good standing, in the Missionary Baptist Church.

John W. Reed, farmer and stock raiser of Poplar Bluff Township, was born in Hampshire County, Va., August 4, 1818, and is the son of Abraham and Sallie (Hood) Reed, natives of Hampshire County, where they lived until about 1832. They then removed to Clark County, Ohio, and two years later to Princeton, Ind., where they passed their last days. Both were of Dutch extraction, and members of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. Mr. Reed was a farmer and miller by occupation, and was a soldier in the War of 1812 under Gen. Harrison. John W. Reed was the third of a family of eleven children. He never attended school, but was obliged to stay at home and aid in supporting the rest of the family. At the age of twenty-four he left the parental roof and engaged in flat-boating on the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers, where he remained about four years. He then started for the Galena lead mines, but stopped on his way in Jackson County, Ill., and went to work on a farm, and was married here, in 1846, to Miss Sallie Ellis, daughter of Stephen and Betsey Ellis, formerly of North Carolina. This marriage resulted in the birth of five children, only one, Richard, now living. Mr. Reed remained in Jackson County, Ill., until 1874, when he removed to Butler County, Mo., and there he has since lived. He has lived on his present farm of 300 acres, situated four miles north of Poplar Bluff, since 1884. It is a good tract of bottom land. In August, 1861, he joined Company H, Twenty-seventh Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and at the battle of Belmont was severely wounded, which disabled him for further service, and nearly resulted in his death. He was discharged October 27, 1862. He is an earnest worker for the cause of education, and for the general upbuilding of the country. He is a conservative Republican in his political views, was reared a Whig, and his first presidential vote was for Gen. Harrison. He is a member of the Farmers' Alliance, of the G. A. R., and also a member of the Christian Church. Mrs. Reed died April 25, 1888, at the age of seventy-two years. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church for many years, and was formerly a Baptist of good standing.

George W. Register, notary public, real-estate agent and insurance agent at Poplar Bluff, was born in Sullivan County, Ind., in 1844, and is the son of Richard J. and Elizabeth F. (Davis) Register. The father was born in Delaware in 1818, and when young came to Indiana with his mother. He was married in Sullivan County about 1843, and was one of the pioneers. He spent all his life as a farmer, until two years prior to his death, when he engaged in merchandising. He died in 1868. His father was of French extraction, and died when Richard was quite small. The mother of George W. was born in Sullivan County, Ind., where she still lives, aged about sixty-two. Both parents and grandparents were members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. George W. was the eldest of three sons and one daughter. He attended the common schools until about sixteen years of age, when he spent four years at New Lebanon Academy, one year at the State University and one year, 1867-68, at the National Normal at Lebanon, Ohio. He began teaching at the age of eighteen, and followed that occupation until after he came to Missouri. He was principal of the Paxton graded schools for five years, and principal of the Carlisle Seminary for two years. From 1871 to 1875 he was superintendent of public schools of Sullivan County, and was a member of the first County Superintendents' State Convention held at Indianapolis in 1873. He had the honor of being chosen as one of the "100 eminent educators of Indiana," who were asked to furnish their photos and autographs for an album, to be placed in the educational department of that State, at the Centennial at Philadelphia in 1876. He was married in 1868 to Miss Belle St. Clair, who died in 1879. Three children were born to this union. In 1880 Mr. Register married Miss Donna Dickey, formerly of Montgomery, Ala., but at that time living in Butler County, Mo. To them were born four children. In 1881 Mr. and Mrs. Register removed to Woodruff County, Ark., where he taught school. The same year he removed to Ironton, Mo., and in 1882 came again to Poplar Bluff, and for two years was principal of the public schools at that place. In 1884 he again taught school in Woodruff County, Ark., but since 1885 has been in the real estate and insurance business, and since 1886 has been notary public. He has a good farm of fifty acres, one and a half miles north of Poplar Bluff, where he resides. In politics Mr. Register is Democratic, casting his first presidential vote for Horatio Seymour in 1868. He is an earnest worker for the triumph of Democratic principles as expounded by Thomas Jefferson, and for the elevation of the working classes to that condition in life in which they may be able "to share in the gains and honors of advancing civilization." He is a member of the Masonic order, K. of L. and is also a member of the Farmers' Alliance. Mrs. Register and her two stepdaughters are members of the Baptist Church. Mr. Register is a Methodist. He was admitted to the Sullivan County bar about 1868, and again in Butler County in 1886, but never practiced law as a profession. He was a prominent member of the Indiana Horticultural Society, and is a member of the same society in Missouri. He organized the Wabash Valley Normal School in 1873, which was of great utility for the advancement of the educational interest. During the campaign of 1876 Mr. Register was editor of a campaign paper at Carlisle, Ind.

Dr. S. N. Rubottom, a practicing physician and surgeon of Cane Creek Township, was born at Greenville, Wayne County, in 1833, and is the son of Ezekiel and Amelia (Parish) Rubottom. The father was born in Chatham County, N. C., in 1770, and was married first in North Carolina to Miss Bettie, daughter of Dr. Bettis, a survivor of the Revolutionary War. Mr. Rubottom brought his family to Tennessee in 1803, and he was married the second time in 1810 to the mother of Dr. S. N. He was a gunsmith and blacksmith by trade, and worked some for the Indians. He died in 1857. He was once or twice a member of the Legislature, when it convened at St. Charles. He was also for several years county judge and justice of the peace, etc. He was a life-long Democrat, and a man of considerable influence. His father was a native of Wales, and a soldier in the Revolutionary War. Mrs. Amelia Rubottom was born in Richmond, Va., and was the daughter of John Parish. She died in 1844. Dr. S. N. Rubottom was the seventh of eight children. He attended the common schools in Missouri, and from the age of fourteen to twenty lived with Dr. V. M. Capp, a brother-in-law. Subsequently he began the study of medicine, and took one course at the St. Louis Medical College. In 1861 he began practicing at Greenville, and has continued practicing ever since with success. He was married in 1859 to Miss Eliza, daughter of John and Elsie Wisecarver, and a native of Cape Girardeau County. Her people were early settlers of Butler County. To this union were born seven children. In 1866 the Doctor settled on his present farm, which consists of 120 acres on Cane Creek, sixteen miles northwest of Poplar Bluff. He is an earnest worker for the cause of education, is a Democrat in politics, and a member of the Farmers' Alliance.

Harvey I. Ruth, manager of the Poplar Bluff Lumber & Manufacturing Company, was born near Reading, Pa., September 24, 1864. He is a son of Isaac and Elizabeth (Ruth) Ruth, both of whom were also natives of the Keystone State. The elder Ruth was a man of extensive means, and was devoted to its careful management and investment. The parents both died within a month of each other in the year 1871, leaving eight children. Harvey, then but a boy of seven years, was adopted by an uncle whose interest in him has always been of the kindest. He was educated in the public schools, and spent some time at Wellison's Seminary in Western Massachusetts. He was but nineteen years of age when he was sent to take charge of the extensive interests of the company he now represents, but the skill he has displayed in carrying it on indicates that his employers had been careful to choose a master hand. A large stationary saw-mill, with two portable mills as feeders, and a large planing-mill, fall under his care. He employs in all about three hundred men, and turns out an annual product of about three and a half million feet. Mr. Ruth is a Republican, and is a member of the K. of P.

Marshall E. Shelton, D. D. S., is the son of James M. and Elizabeth (Cooper) Shelton, the latter a cousin of Gen. R. E. Lee, James Fenimore Cooper and Peter Cooper. James Shelton was born while his parents were passing through Ohio, en route from Virginia to Indiana, where, at Knightstown, he settled after his marriage and engaged in horticulture, producing an extensive variety of fruits. Both were earnest Christians, he belonging to the Methodist Episcopal Church and she holding the Presbyterian faith. His political views were Republican. Both parents were born in 1822, but the father died in 1883. The mother, a native of Milton, Ind., now resides at Knightstown, that State, and has lived to see five of her seven children mature. Her two sons are engaged in the legal and dental professions. Marshall E. was born near Knightstown, Ind., March 12, 1858, and received his literary training in the high school of that place. In 1879 he entered the profession of dentistry, and graduated at the dental department of the University of Tennessee at Nashville. He at once located at Cape Girardeau, Mo., and while there was married to Mrs. Emma Duncan (nee Block), who was born at New Orleans in 1858. They have one daughter, Matilda. He is a member of the Christian Church, while his wife is a Presbyterian. The Doctor is a Mason, and holds the political faith of the Republican party. He has been especially successful in the line he has chosen, so that he was, in 1885, invited to lecture on the diseases and surgery of the mouth, in the College of Physicians and Surgeons of St. Louis. Since 1880, however, he has been the possessor of a large and lucrative practice at Poplar Bluff, and is now in the seventh year of his professional life.

Andrew Jackson Simms, farmer, was born in Perry County, Tenn., in 1858, and is a son of William and Jemima (Lisco) Simms. The father was born in Mississippi in 1804, and when quite small removed with his parents to South Carolina, where he was reared. He then went to Perry County, where he was married about 1830, and lived there until 1857, when he removed to Butler County, Mo., and settled near Neelyville. He died there in 1864. He was a farmer and the father of thirteen children. The mother was born in Perry County, Tenn., and died the winter before the death of her husband. Both were members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. After the death of his parents, Andrew J. Simms began for himself, and traveled through Arkansas, Tennessee and Texas. After attaining his growth, he attended the West Plains school two years, and after that farmed, with the exception of three years prior to 1884, when he was engaged in the saloon business at Neelyville. He was married in March, 1881, to Miss Dora E., daughter of Dudley and Lovina Lamdin, formerly of Illinois, where Mrs. Simms was born. This union resulted in the birth of three children, two now living: Lewis Edgar and William Alonzo. Soon after marriage Mr. Simms settled one mile southwest of Neelyville, where he has eighty acres, sixty of which are improved. He is a Republican, politically, and occupied the position of justice of the peace from 1880 to 1881. He is a member of the Christian Church, and an earnest worker for the cause of education and for the general welfare of the country.

John Souders, another successful farmer of Poplar Bluff Township, was born in Edmondson County, Ky., in 1852, and is the son of Isaac and Avau (Amos) Souders, natives of Kentucky, born in 1828 and 1830, respectively. Soon after marriage, they settled in Butler County, Ky., and in 1881 he came to Butler County, Mo., where the mother died in 1884. The father is still living, and follows agricultural pursuits for a livelihood. John Souders was the third of eight children. He was reared in Butler County, Ky., with little education, and in 1872 married Miss Martha, daughter of John Gamble. She was born in Warren County, Ky., and by her marriage became the mother of two children: Martha F. and Anna F. Mr. Souders removed to Butler County, Mo., in 1880, and settled on Black River, near Hillyard, with about ten acres cleared. He first rented for two years, but now has 120 acres of good land, ninety of which are cleared, and has a fine residence. He has always followed agricultural pursuits, and has been reasonably successful at the same. He is a Republican, politically, and a member of the Farmers' Alliance. Mrs. Souders is a member of the Christian Church. Mr. Souders has held many minor offices in his county, and is a good citizen.

Milton S. Spradling, farmer, and son of Obadiah and Lucinda (Milan) Spradling, was born in Henry County, Tenn., in 1827. His parents were born in Indiana and Virginia, respectively. The father was in the War of 1812, was at the battle of New Orleans, and afterward went to Virginia, where he was married. He then removed to Henry County, Tenn., and here followed the occupation of a carpenter and millwright. He died at Charlotte, Tenn., in 1862. His father was a native of England, was in the Revolutionary War, and died in Indiana. His weight was 480 pounds. The mother of Milton S. died in 1845. Her father, Thomas Milan, was a Frenchman, and a light horseman in the Revolutionary War. The subject of this sketch was the seventh of ten children. He received but little educational advantages, and at the age of fourteen began business for himself as blacksmith, which occupation he followed for eight years. He has followed the occupation of a carpenter and millwright off and on ever since. In 1854 he married Mary Ann Beasley, a native of Humphreys County, Tenn., and to this union were born ten children, seven now living: William and Barney (twins), Mary J. (wife of William Helens), James, Joseph U., Bettie Ann (wife of Wilson Mellwain) and Thomas. In 1860 Mr. Spradling removed to Butler County, Mo., and settled near Poplar Bluff. He has resided in this place for about twenty years, and has a good farm of 400 acres. He is a good citizen, and has the respect of all. He has spent considerable time in the study of mineralogy, and has had some practical experience of the same on his own farm. About 1882 he was informed by a Choctaw Indian, who had formerly lived in Butler County, that rich gold fields were on his farm. Investigation by a California gold digger proved this to be the case, and Mr. Spradling is making preparations for developing this hidden wealth. Mrs. Spradling died about 1876, and in 1883 Mr. Spradling married Mrs. Lucinda Harrison, nee Clements. Mr. Spradling is a Democrat politically, and his first presidential vote was cast for Taylor, in 1848. He is a member of the Farmers' Alliance, and also a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

G. A. Standard, attorney at Poplar Bluff, is the son of Thomas M. and Temperance (Osborn) Standard. The parents were born, reared, and married in Illinois, and are of English descent. The father is a farmer by occupation, and he is a member of the Presbyterian Church, as was also his wife, who died when her son G. A. was a small boy. The father married again, and in 1887 moved to this county. He was the father of two sons by his first marriage, only one now living, and five children by the second marriage, only two now living. He was a Democrat in his political views. G. A. Standard was born in Union County, Ill., April 15, 1852, and received his literary education in the common schools and at Ewing College. He educated himself, teaching and going to school by turns, and after finishing his education continued to teach for some time. After reading law at Vienna, Ill., and having prepared for an examination for legal license, he decided to come to Missouri, and in 1880 came to Poplar Bluff, where he took charge of the city schools, holding the position of principal for three years. In 1882 he was admitted to the bar, and in the fall of the same year was elected prosecuting attorney for Butler County, holding the office four years. In 1882 he married Miss Emma Varner, a native of Butler County, who bore him two children, both sons. Mr. Standard has been a member of the Poplar Bluff bar for six years, and is also interested in farming and stock raising. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., and is a Democrat in politics.

Michael D. Treece, dealer in general merchandise, is a native of Perry County, Tenn., born November 30, 1833. His paternal grandparents came from Germany, but his parents, Samuel B. and Sarah (Ketchersides) Treece were born in Bedford County, Tenn. Perry County became their home after marriage, until in 1835, when they moved to Alabama. They returned, however, after the war, and there spent the remainder of their lives. The father was a blacksmith by trade. Their religious home was the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and his fraternity spirit found expression in the Masonic order. He was a Democrat. Seven children were born to them, of whom Michael D was the fourth. Young Treece gained enough of an education to do business after he had reached the age of nineteen years. Soon after this he began in a harness and shoe shop, where he spent the next fifteen years of his life. He had charge of a government shop for a time during the Civil War, and after some time in his trade in Alabama and Tennessee, he came to Poplar Bluff. He worked by the day for a short time, and purchased a small stock of goods, chiefly on borrowed capital, owning about $20 worth in a stock of $200. To this he added a repair shop, and his business has so increased and prospered that it now occupies a two-story block 26x52 feet. He is a Democrat, and has served both as justice of the peace and city alderman. In 1855 he married Mariah J. Holley, a native of Tuscaloosa County, Ala., and their union has resulted in three sons and two daughters. Mrs. Treece is a Baptist.

B. F. Turner, another successful farmer of Butler County, was born in Logan County, Ky., in 1828, and is the son of Willis and Sarah (King) Turner, natives of Fairfax County, Va., where they were reared and married. They afterward moved to Kentucky, thence to Illinois, and from there, in about 1856, to Butler County, Mo., where they both died about 1860. The father was a soldier in the War of 1812, and a farmer by occupation. B. F. Turner was the eighth of eleven children. He was educated in the common subscription schools and went with his parents to Massac County, Ill., but in 1857 came to Butler County, where he married in 1859. He has seven children. Mr. Turner has since lived in Butler County, one mile northwest of Poplar Bluff, and has 3,000 acres of land, also owning land in Kentucky. After serving one term as public administrator, he was elected sheriff in 1868 and served two terms of two years each. He subsequently filled the position, two terms, a few years afterward. He is now engaged in farming and stock raising, and his property is the result of his own labor and good management. Politically a Republican, his first presidential vote was for J. C. Bell in 1860. Mr. Turner is a member of the Masonic fraternity, the I. O. O. F. and the K. of P.

Milton J. Wyatt, druggist Poplar Bluff, was born in Gibson County, Tenn., April 4, 1848. He is the son of Alfred and Narcissa (Banks) Wyatt, both born, reared and married in North Carolina. They afterward moved to Tennessee, and in 1858 to Ripley County, Mo., where they are both living at the present time, the father engaged in agricultural pursuits. When Price made his raid through Missouri, Mr. Wyatt was caught up and taken along. He served a term as public administrator of Ripley County, and is a much respected citizen. Both he and wife are members of the Southern Methodist Church. Of the nine children born to their union, five are now living, one son and four daughters. Milton J. Wyatt was reared a farmer boy, and received a limited education, owing to the scarcity of schools at that time. He was about nineteen years of age when Price made his raid through Missouri, and was taken with his father. He began business for himself as a bar-tender, and some time after he kept a saloon of his own. Subsequently he turned his attention to farming and then to the timber business. In 1886 he engaged in the drug business, and after a partnership with O. P. Adams of short duration, he became sole proprietor. He came to Butler County, Mo., in 1886. In 1873 he married Miss Theresa Cook, a native of Illinois, and a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Wyatt is a member of the Masonic fraternity, is a Democrat in politics, and is a man who will succeed in any undertaking.

IRON COUNTY.

Jacob T. Ake, registrar of lands in the United States land office, was born in Bedford County, Penn., May 15, 1835, and is a son of John and Elizabeth Ake, natives of Pennsylvania, and of German descent. The grandfather Ake came from Germany to America, locating in Berks County, and thence to Bedford County, Penn. John Ake, father of Jacob T., was a carpenter by trade, and followed this occupation during his youth. He was also engaged in mining for some time in the ore banks of Pennsylvania. He immigrated, with his family, to Iron County in 1856, and located in Pilot Knob for about one year, after which he came to Ironton, where he died in 1875. The mother died in 1879. They were the parents of ten children, only four now living. Jacob T. was reared in Bedford County, Penn., receiving his education there. He learned the tailor's trade, which he followed until the breaking out of the late war. Previous to this he moved to Iron County, and also resided in Pilot Knob for a short period. He then came to Ironton, where he followed his trade. In 1860 he married Miss Elizabeth Boswell, a native of England. Four children were born to this union, three now living: Harry, Dora and Victor. In August, 1865, Mr. Ake enlisted in Company B, Thirty-first Missouri Volunteers, and served until June, 1865. He was at the battle of Chickasaw Bayou, Arkansas Post, siege of Vicksburg and several others. While on detached service between Louisville and Lexington, Ky., he was captured, but was soon after paroled. After the battle of Vicksburg, he went to Paducah hospital in barracks, on detached service. In June, 1865, he was mustered out, came home and was deputy circuit and county clerk until 1871. That year he was elected to fill both offices, and served a portion of the time as circuit clerk, and keeping the office of county clerk. In 1874 he was re-elected and served one term. He was then appointed to fill an unexpired term as public administrator, and was elected twice to the same position. He has filled the office of city treasurer for five years. He is one of the prominent citizens of Iron County, and is a gentleman who has made a host of friends. Mr. Ake is a member of the Masonic fraternity, being Master of the lodge for three years, and represented that to the Grand Lodge. He is also a member of the I. O. O. F., and represented his district at the Grand Lodge of the Odd Fellows. He was made justice of the peace in 1858, and held the office until the breaking out of the late war.

John T. Baldwin, of the firm of Baldwin Bros., contractors and builders, was born in Hickman County, Ky., March 7, 1854, being the son of Joseph and Elizabeth (Stewart) Baldwin. The father was a native of Tennessee, and the mother a native of Hickman County, of the same State. The father was a carpenter by trade, and operated a saw-mill most of the time. In 1859 he removed to Poplar Bluff, Butler Co., Mo., where he operated a saw and planing-mill, and was also a contractor. He died there December 5, 1873. The mother died December 13, 1868. They were the parents of ten children, five now living: Thomas T., John T., Lucy (wife of E. I. Hamilton), James R. and Joseph L. The father married the second time, and one child was born to this union, who is now deceased. The father represented Butler County in the Legislature two terms. He was a Mason of the highest degree, and was also a member of the I. O. O. F. lodge, and represented both lodges at the Grand Lodge several times. He was one of the popular and prominent men of Butler County, and had many friends. His son, John T. Baldwin, was but four years of age when he came to Butler County, Mo. Here he received a liberal education, and remained with his parents until their death. He learned the carpenter's trade, and came to Ironton in 1873, where he has remained ever since, occupied with his trade. In 1880 the Baldwin Bros. bought out B. Shepherd, and have since conducted the business under its present name. They run a large planing-mill, and do all kinds of carpentering and building. They receive some large contracts, and have built all, or nearly all the buildings in Ironton, together with those in the neighborhood. These gentlemen do a large business, and are practical workmen. Mr. Baldwin was married in 1881 to Miss Estella Moser, a native of Iowa, who bore him three children: Meda L., John T., Jr. and Effie M. Mr. Baldwin is a member of the I. O. O. F. lodge. Mrs. Baldwin's father is now a resident of Emporia, Kas., late registrar of the United States lands of Ironton.

William E. Bell was born in Washington County, Mo., May 30, 1840, and is the son of Milton and Jane (Warner) Bell. Milton Bell, when a young man, in company with others, was captured by the Indians at Tippecanoe, but was, by the assistance of two friendly Cherokees, liberated, but not before every means of support had been destroyed, as they were traveling down the Red River in a flat-boat, which contained all their provisions, money, most of their clothing, and many other articles, all of which were destroyed. After being set at liberty, they found themselves 300 miles from any settled point, and were obliged to travel over rough and dangerous roads. After experiencing many hardships they finally settled in Washington County, Mo., at what was then the first iron mine in Missouri, and still known as the old Springfield Furnace. This was also included in Washington County at that time. Mr. Bell's marriage to Miss Warner was blessed by the birth of thirteen children, eight now living: William E., Mary J., Eliza, Thomas M., Henry C., Susan, Ingabar and Julia. Those deceased were named Eliza A., Catherine, John S. and Ann. William E., the subject of this sketch, had very limited educational advantages, and consequently is a strong advocate of the public school system, always lending a helping hand in that direction. April 9, 1870, he married Miss Lucy A. George, who bore him two children: Hervey L. and Thomas. Mr. Bell was drafted into the Union army and was conscripted in the Confederate army, but on account of disabilities was discharged from service. He has been engaged in merchandising, and is by trade a carpenter, but has spent most of his time in farming. He is a man much liked in his county, and has been assessor for eight years. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., and he and wife are members of the Presbyterian Church.

J. N. Bishop, dealer in stoves, hardware, furniture, farming utensils, etc., at Ironton, was born at Yellow Springs, Ohio, March 6, 1852, and is the son of Noah and Mary J. (McClellan) Bishop. The father was born in Litchfield, Conn., and graduated at Yale College as a Presbyterian minister. He then immigrated to Ohio, where he married Miss Mary J. McClellan, a native of Ohio, and there remained for several years. He preached the gospel for a number of years, and was president of the young men's seminary in Connecticut, for some time. He immigrated to Springfield, Ill., where he remained a few years, and then moved to Jacksonville, where he again preached the gospel. In 1869 he, with his family, moved to Iron County, and located in Ironton, where he lived a retired life the remainder of his days. He died in the fall of 1869. The mother died in June, 1872. They were the parents of three children: Anna L. Smith, now resides in St. Louis; Belle Moser, resides in Oakdale, Neb., and John N., who is the youngest of the family. He was reared, principally, in Illinois, receiving a good education in both the common and high schools. He was about seventeen years of age when he came with his parents to Ironton, and after reaching this place, he attended the Arcadia College for about three years. He then worked at his trade one year, then went to St. Louis, where he remained engaged in his trade for four years. He then went to the Black Hills, Dak., and was engaged in mining for something over a year. In 1877 he came back to Iron County, and engaged in merchandising, which occupation he has since continued. He is doing an extensive business and is succeeding well. In October, 1886, he married Miss Laura Brown, a native of Iowa. She is a member of the Baptist Church, and Mr. Bishop is a member of the city council.

August Block, son of Martin and Louisa (Ranch) Block, was born in Germany September 21, 1853, and when but one year old immigrated with his parents to the United States, and landed at New Orleans, after a stormy and tedious voyage. They then took passage on a steamer, and sailed up the Mississippi River, landing at Ste. Genevieve, the oldest town in Missouri. Later they took a trip across the country to Iron Mountain, where they lived eighteen years. In 1872 they moved to Middlebrook, where they have since resided. Martin Block is a shoe and harness-maker by trade, and during his stay in Iron Mountain devoted his attention to that business, having all the work of the mining company. By his marriage to Miss Ranch, which occurred in the old country, were born nine children, six now living: August, Morie, Rickie, Sophia, Henry and Matilda. Those deceased are Frank, Augusta, and an infant unnamed. August Block was married June 15, 1880, to Miss Barbara Kerchman, who was a descendant of an old German family, and an early settler of this county. Mr. Block left home in 1881, and went to Arkansas, where he remained nearly one year engaged in the railroad business. He then returned to Graniteville, and established himself in business, and has since had a thriving trade. He has a nice, neat, little saloon, and by his genial, affable manners has won the esteem of his fellow townsmen. He handles the choicest brands of native and imported wines, whiskies, brandies, etc. Mr. Block has been a member of the I. O. O. F. for thirteen years, and is also a member of the Masonic fraternity, having advanced as far as the Royal Arch.

Capt. H. M. Bradley, attorney and government claim agent, of Ironton, was born in West Jefferson, Ohio, August 10, 1839, and is the son of Jonas and Elizabeth (Davis) Bradley, both natives of Ohio, of English-Irish descent. The paternal grandfather was born in Logan County, Va., immigrated to Ohio in 1800, where the Indians camped on his place when peace was made with them. He was in the War of 1812, and passed his last days in Ohio. The father of our subject was a mechanic by trade, and followed this occupation all his life. He and his wife both died in West Jefferson, he February 6, 1855, at the age of forty-eight, and the mother April 16, 1859, also forty-eight years of age. They were the parents of seven children, three now living: James W., William L. and Capt. Hugh M. The last named was reared in West Jefferson, Ohio, and there remained until fourteen years of age, when he received his education at Delaware College, Ohio. In 1857 he went to Dubuque, Iowa, where he studied law for about one year. He then went to Louisiana, Mo., remained there a short time, being admitted to the Pike County bar in 1859. He then went to St. Louis, where he practiced his profession until the late war. He then went to Louisiana, Mo., and raised his first company at that place, going out as first lieutenant. This was Company I, Tenth Regiment, Missouri State Militia Cavalry Volunteers, and in 1863 it was consolidated with the Twelfth Missouri State Militia Cavalry, forming the Third and the Fifth Missouri State Militia, remaining as the same company. He raised his second company at Fredericktown, Mo., which was called Company I, Forty-seventh Missouri Volunteers, and Mr. Bradley went out as its captain, serving about seven months. He was in the engagements of Moore's Mill, Pilot Knob, Patterson and several hard skirmishes. At Patterson he was wounded seven times by gun shots, a minié-ball passed through his right thigh, and his left hand was shot to pieces. He was a brave officer and a gallant fighter. He rode a well-trained horse, and by this his life was saved many times. After being wounded April 20, 1863, he filled the office of provost-marshal at Ironton, Fredericktown and Columbia, Mo., during the years 1863, 1864 and 1865, and was filling the office at the time of being mustered out. He was mustered out April 5, 1865, and now draws an officer's pension. After the war he went to Madison County, Mo., where he remained but a short time. May 6, 1868, he married Miss Margaret B. Grove, a native of Pittsburgh, Penn. To them were born four children: William H., born May 15, 1870; Elizabeth B., born February 5, 1872; Ida May, born April 13, 1874, and Hugh M., Jr., born February 9, 1876. While in Madison County, Mo., Capt. Bradley was given the contract for carrying the United States mail from Pilot Knob to Pocahtontas, Ark., and filled this contract until 1868, when his time expired. He then went to Patterson, Wayne County, and engaged in the mercantile business at that place. He ran three stores at one time, taking the contract to build eleven miles of ties of the Iron Mountain Railroad, which kept him until 1873, when he came to Ironton and engaged in the law and claim agency business, which he is engaged in at the present time. He is also engaged in the insurance business, representing the Phoenix, of London, and Niagara, of New York. Mrs. Bradley and children are members of the Episcopal Church.

S. E. Buford, county collector, is a native of Missouri, born in what is now Iron County, September 1, 1849, and is the son of Pate and Arlotte (Carty) Buford, natives of Virginia and Kentucky, respectively. The paternal grandfather, William, was an old Virginian by birth, and immigrated to Southeast Missouri at an early day, locating at Caledonia. He died in what is now Iron County. Pate Buford was a farmer by occupation, having followed this occupation all his life. He represented Reynolds County in the Legislature for two sessions, and was assessor of Iron County for some time. He was a very prominent man, and had many friends. He died in 1873. He was married twice, and was the father of thirteen children, eight by the first wife, and only three now living: James, William and Simeon E. He was the father of five children by his second marriage: Jane, Paschal, Thomas, George and Charles. S. E. Buford was reared in Iron County, on the farm, and educated in the common schools. When twenty years of age he engaged as clerk in Bellevue, where he remained about one year. He then went to Pilot Knob, where he was in the employ of the Pilot Knob Iron Company, as clerk for five years. He was then appointed deputy sheriff for one year, and afterward engaged in merchandising in Reynolds County, where he remained for a few years. He then removed to Bellevue, where he carried on the mercantile business for about a year. In 1875 he married Miss Eliza A. Pickard, a native of Indiana. To them were born three children: William P., Oran J. and Della. In 1882 Mr. Buford was elected assessor of Iron County, and served one term. During this time he was employed by the St. Louis Ore and Steel Company as stock manager. In 1884 he was elected sheriff, and held that position one term. In 1886 he was elected county collector, which term of office expires March, 1889. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and he and wife are members of the Baptist Church.

Philip P. G. Carty, son of Joshua and Charlotte (Mallow) Carty, was born January 18, 1838, in Reynolds County, Mo., but which was at that time Washington County. The father, Joshua Carty, was a native of Kentucky, but has no definite knowledge of the exact locality of his birth, but thinks he was born near Bowling Green. He immigrated to Missouri between the age of fifteen and sixteen, and settled in what was afterward known as Reynolds County. His wife was born in Virginia, and immigrated to this State many years ago, making the trip across the country in a wagon, and first landed in St. Louis, when that city was but a village, and was settled principally by the French. She remained there but a short time, when they went to Boone County, where they remained for a number of years. They then went from that county to Washington County, or Iron County as it is now called, where she was married to Joshua Carty. Their son, Philip P. G. Carty, was married on March 4, 1858, to Miss L. Black, daughter of George and Mary Black of Reynolds County, Mo., and both of whom are now living, Mr. Black being seventy-four years of age, and his wife seventy-three, and both natives of Kentucky. To Mr. and Mrs. Carty were born ten children: Joshua J., George W., Andrew C., Philip D., Mary C., Sarah E., James H. (dead), Margaret C., Thomas S. and an infant who died unnamed. Mr. Carty was county judge in Reynolds County for six years, and received his commission from Gov. Fletcher of Missouri, in 1866. He has been a farmer all his life, and owns 165 acres of land, 120 being under cultivation. He and Mrs. Carty are members of the Baptist Church, and he is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and also a member of the Farmers' Alliance.

J. G. Clarkson, one of the county judges of Iron County, was born in Middlesex County, Va., July 8, 1826, and is the son of Joseph and Susan (Games) Clarkson, both natives of Essex County, Va., and both of English descent. The paternal grandfather, James, was born in England, and came to America during the Revolutionary War as a soldier. He settled in Essex County, Va., and worked at his trade, weaving, which he had learned in England. He died in Essex County, Va., at a ripe old age. He reared seven sons, all now deceased. His son Joseph was a farmer by occupation, and grew to manhood in Essex County, Va. He was a soldier in the War of 1812, and was quite young at that time. He moved to Washington County, Mo., in 1867, and there died in 1871. He was the father of three sons and five daughters, two sons and two daughters now living: James, Joseph G., Matilda and Virginia. Joseph G. was reared on a farm, in Fluvanna County, Va., and there remained until seventeen years of age, when he engaged in the saw mill and lumber business, which he carried on in Virginia, until the spring of 1861. He then enlisted in the Second Missouri Cavalry, Col. Radford's regiment, and served four years. He was in the battles of Manassas, Fredericksburg, Richmond and the Wilderness. He was captured in Loudoun County, Va., and was taken to Washington City, where he was kept a short time, and then taken down to Fortress Monroe, when he was exchanged. He then joined his regiment, and served until the close of the war. He had the misfortune to have his right foot broken by his horse falling upon it. He was courier for Gen. Wickam for some time, and while in the service in the Shenandoah Valley, having been sent up to remove a station flag, he became witness of the battle of Shenandoah Valley, without being in danger. It was a grand sight. Mr. Clarkson was the man who carried the message to Gen. Jackson. He expected to accomplish this during the night, but the sun was up before he arrived. In 1866 he immigrated to Washington County, Mo., where he engaged in the lumber business until the spring of 1871, when he came to Iron County, and has resided there ever since. He also has followed the lumber business at this place, and still continues. He was married in the fall of 1866, to Miss Nannie Covington, a native of Essex County.

Va., and to them were born three children: J. Walter, Lillie and Joseph G., Jr. Mrs. Clarkson died in 1875, and in 1876 he married Miss Lizzie Covington, a sister of his first wife. To this union were born four children, two now living: George W. and Rosser. In 1884 Mr. Clarkson purchased the Arcadia flouring mills, which he still owns and carries on. He has a beautiful residence in Arcadia, and has also a store, which he runs in connection with his mill. He also owns 400 acres of fine farming land in the Arcadia Valley. In 1880 Mr. Clarkson was elected county judge, and has held the office ever since. Mrs. Clarkson is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

H. M. Collins, proprietor of a livery stable at Ironton, is a native of Iron County, Mo., born June 30, 1855, and is the son of George W. and Tabitha A. (Harris) Collins, natives of Kentucky and North Carolina, respectively. They were married in Wayne County, whither they had removed at an early day, and were the parents of seven children, four now living: Artemissa, Narcissa, Florence and Harford M. The last named was reared in Washington County, Mo., in the village of Potosi, where he received a good education in the public schools, and also attended the Irondale Academy two years. He was but three years old when his father died, and he remained with his mother until fourteen years of age. He then engaged in mining for four years, and in 1876 he engaged in the livery business at Bonne Terre, St. Francois Co., where he remained for five years. He then moved to Pilot Knob, engaged in the same business for three years, and from there moved to Ironton, where he is still in business. He keeps a first-class livery barn and good horses, vehicles, etc., at reasonable rates. He owns the buildings he is now occupying, and, besides this, several houses and lots in Ironton. He was married March 2, 1885, to Miss Emily Schmitz, a native of Iron County, and to this union have been born two children, one now living: Emma Ethel. Mr. Collins is at present one of the city aldermen.

Franz Dinger, probate judge, was born in the Grand Duchy of Hesse-Darmstadt, Germany, June 30, 1832, and is a son of Tobias and Christina (Schwiebeinger) Dinger, both natives of Germany. The father immigrated to America, taking passage from Havre, France, in 1840, and landed in New Orleans. Here one year later the father died of yellow fever. He was a blacksmith and locksmith, having learned the trade in his native country. In 1852 Franz Dinger, his mother and two sisters, immigrated to America, locating at Evansville, Ind., thence to Jefferson County, Mo., where they remained until coming to Iron County in 1854. Here the mother died on May 24, 1888. Only three of her children are now living: Franz, Agnes (wife of John Schafer), and Margaret (wife of Henry Rasche). Franz Dinger attended the German schools eight years and private schools two years, but is mainly self educated in the English language. He obtained his license as an attorney in Missouri in 1866, and continued to practice his profession until about 1870. In 1860 he was elected justice of the peace, and has held that position ever since. April 27, 1859, he married Miss Amalia Weise, a native of Missouri, of German parents, and by whom he had nine children: Christian C., Herman O. F., Edward F., Jacob, Harry A., Annie M. (wife of P. A. Calvert), Amelia (wife of Joseph Callows), Bertha and Ida. Mr. Dinger was elected mayor of the city of Ironton, and has held that position twenty-four years. He has served sixteen years as justice of the county court, having been elected first in 1864, again in 1866, 1870, 1876, and in 1882 he was elected judge of the probate court, and re-elected in 1884, holding the office at the present time. He has always taken a great interest in school affairs, holding some important school offices, and was notary public twelve years. Before coming to this country Mr. Dinger occupied the important position of recorder of titles and drafts of plats in the government office in Germany. His ability to fill the official positions tendered him is apparent in the fact that in 1865 his county was in debt $35,000, and now it does not owe a cent, while the entire school fund of the county has been collected and disbursed without the loss of a dollar. During the late war his sympathies led him to embrace the cause of the Union, and he was elected captain of Company C, Sixty-eighth Enrolled Missouri Militia, subsequently Company E, Forty-seventh Missouri Infantry Volunteers. He was captured by the Confederates during Price's raid in September, 1864, and held as a prisoner until the 3d of October, when he was taken to St. Louis, and was ordered to take charge of his command. He then went on to Tennessee and remained there some time, reaching Nashville two days after the battle. Mr. Dinger is one of the most respected and esteemed citizens of Iron County, and has made an honorable record as a public officer.

He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, I. O. O. F. and the G. A. R., and is at the present time commander of the last named order. His family are members of the Lutheran Church.

William R. Edgar, receiver of the United States land office, was born in Cedar County, Iowa, September 17, 1851, and is the son of William R., Sr., and Rebecca G. (Tichenor) Edgar, natives of Rahway, N. J., and Warren County, Ohio, respectively. The Edgar family originated from Scotland, and immigrated to New Jersey about 1720, locating near Rahway. The great-grandfather and grandfather were soldiers in the Revolutionary War. They both died in New Jersey. The father of our subject immigrated to Ohio when a young man, was married in Lebanon, and in 1835 he immigrated to Iowa, being among the first settlers of that State. He remained there until after the late war, when he came to Iron County (1866) and located near Ironton, where he died in 1879, at the age of seventy-five. The mother died several years prior to this. They were the parents of eight children, three now living: Harriet M., Henrietta R. and William R. One brother, James, was killed at the battle of Iuka, Miss., September 19, 1862. He was a member of Company A, Fifth Regiment Iowa Infantry. William R. Edgar was reared in Iowa until fourteen years of age, and assisted his father on the farm until twenty years of age, receiving his education in the Arcadia College and St. Louis Law School, being a graduate of both institutions. He taught school four years; the last year he was principal of the Ironton public schools. In 1878 he was elected prosecuting attorney, and was re-elected four times in succession. He only served six months of his last term, resigning to accept his present office. He was married October 5, 1880, to Miss Pressia S., a daughter of Isaac G. Whitworth, and by whom he has two children: Maude and William R., Jr. Mr. Edgar is a man well-known throughout the county, and is much respected by all. He has good business qualifications, and will succeed in whatever undertaking he attempts. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity and is Master of the same.

Valentine Effinger, dealer in fine liquors, etc., at Pilot Knob, was born in Baden, Germany, April 15, 1846, and is a son of Sylvester and Magdalena (Seawood) Effinger, natives of Germany. The father was a quarryman in the old country, and also owned and carried on a farm. Both parents are dead. Of their family only two are now living: Elizabeth, who resides in Baden, Germany, and Valentine, who was reared in Germany, receiving a liberal education. In 1859 he immigrated to America, coming with some relatives, as both parents were dead. He took passage at Havre, and after a voyage of thirty-six days landed at New York. He then went to St. Louis and to Ste. Genevieve, where he landed. He remained for some time in this county—part of the time on a farm, and part of the time in a brewery. He was married May 18, 1861, to Josephine Motzel, a native of Ste. Genevieve County and of German parentage. To their union were born nine children, six now living: Lizzie, Willie, Henry, Louisa, Valentine and Joseph. In 1866 Mr. Effinger moved to Middlebrook, where he remained until 1872, engaged in the brewery business. He then came to Pilot Knob, and engaged in the saloon business, which he has since continued. He served two months in the State militia, but was in no regular engagements. Mr. Effinger is a member of the I. O. O. F., having passed the chairs twice, and is also a member of the Sons of Herman; has been a member of the town council, and city collector. He is a progressive and intelligent citizen, always ready to advance the interest of all public affairs. He and wife are both members of the Catholic Church.

John W. Emerson, now United States marshal for the Eastern District of Missouri, was born in Massachusetts in 1830, and is a descendant of the New England Emerson family, celebrated for the education and literary achievements of its members. While an infant Mr. Emerson's parents, with a colony, removed to Canada, where his opportunities for an early education were limited. While young, he and a younger brother, who subsequently became distinguished as a physician and surgeon, found their way back to New York State, where, and in Pennsylvania, some of the family and ancestry on the mother's side reside, and are distantly related to the Seymours and Conklings. By his own exertions, Mr. Emerson graduated at the Iron City College, Pennsylvania, and subsequently graduated at the University of Michigan. He studied law with William M. Moffatt while in Pittsburgh, but was not admitted to the bar until after he settled in Missouri, in 1857, since which time he has resided in Ironton, an honored member of the legal profession. In 1855 he married Miss Young, at Oswego, N. Y., a member of the Young-Elsworth family, of Revolutionary fame. Mr. Emerson has filled many important offices, among which are those of notary public, justice of the peace, United States commissioner, judge of the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit of Missouri, and is at present occupying the important office of United States marshal. Although a man of moderate political views, he has always been a Democrat, and has been a delegate to all sorts of conventions of his party, from county to national. The Forty-seventh Regiment of Missouri United States Volunteers was largely organized by him, and he volunteered as a private in its ranks, serving as such for some time, when he was appointed major, and commanded the regiment during a portion of the Hood-Thomas campaign in Tennessee and Alabama. He subsequently became colonel of the Sixty-eighth Regiment of militia, and commanded the same until the close of the war. His friends claim that in every position held by him he acquitted himself with superior ability, and has left no stain upon his record. His health was greatly impaired while performing the duties of judge in a circuit embracing eight counties. He resigned the judgeship for private life, and for the purpose of practicing his profession. He has several times declined to become a candidate for Congress. As a lawyer he has few superiors. He is a deep thinker and a forcible speaker. He has written several poems, which have attracted favorable attention among literary people. Among his poems are "Father of Waters," "Sailing Away o'er the Beautiful Bay," "My Home Afar," "My Lonely Heart," "Minnie Belle," "A May Day Intrusion," "Come Gently Tapping at My Door," "Arcadia, The Beautiful," and "Only One Flag," some of which have been published as songs. He has also written a number of essays and addresses, viz.: "Influences," "Mysterious Forces," "Data and Phenomena," and other subjects delivered at college commencements and on other occasions, have received the most favorable criticisms by the learned and thoughtful. His residence is one of the most beautiful in the State. It is located in the lovely Arcadia Valley, and is surrounded by the scenery of the Ozark Mountains, and is historical, being the place where Col. U. S. Grant was encamped when he received his commission as brigadier-general. Mr. Emerson has many warm friends, who have frequently urged him to accept various offices, but for many years past he has invariably declined all, with the exception of his present office of United States marshal, which position was given him by the President without his solicitation, and only accepted after much pressure from friends.

Dr. G. W. Farrar, a successful practitioner of Iron County, was born in Perry County, Mo., December 29, 1830, and is the son of Miles and Agnes W. (Barnett) Farrar, natives of North Carolina and Virginia, respectively. They were married in South Carolina, and immigrated to Perry County, Mo., about 1823, locating about ten miles from Perryville. There were five brothers who settled here, and the settlement was known as "Farrar and Abernathy Settlement." They were among the pioneers of that county. Mr. Farrar followed farming chiefly, but also followed boating for some time. He died in 1854, and the mother in 1850. They were the parents of thirteen children, two now living: Miles and George W. The last named was reared in Perry County, and there remained until seventeen years of age, when he came to Arcadia, Iron County, and was a member of the first class of Arcadian graduates. He was then appointed professor of the dead languages, which position he occupied for four years. In 1857 he graduated from the St. Louis Medical College, and immediately afterward began the practice of his profession at Ironton, where he still remains. In 1852 he married Miss Harriet P. Russell, a native of Connecticut. To them were born thirteen children, seven now living: William H. (of DeSoto), George W., Jr. (of Pilot Knob), Miles C. (railroad and hospital surgeon) and Francis M. (all of whom, together with the two sons yet to name, are graduates of the St. Louis Medical College). The other children are: Edward (now in Arkansas, in the lumber business), Theodore P. and Eudora. Dr. G. W. Farrar is classed an excellent physician, and was examining surgeon for several years after the war, but his health failing, caused him to resign and go to California, where he spent one summer. He has been a member of the Democratic executive committee for a number of years, and stands at the head as a man of ability and energy. Dr. and Mrs. Farrar are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and he has been steward of the same for twenty years. He is a member of the Southeast Missouri Medical Society, and also a member of the Masonic fraternity. He helped organize the first Sons of Temperance that was organized in Southeast Missouri. He has always been temperate, and an abhorrer of whisky and tobacco. He is one of the principal men to support the building of the large college at Arcadia, which is at present occupied by the Sisters. He was school commissioner for one term, and assisted in organizing the county public schools.

W. A. Fletcher, county clerk, was born in what is now Madison County, Mo., September 6, 1843, and is the son of Alexander and Nancy (Tullman) Fletcher, natives of Belfast, Ireland, and Richmond, Va., respectively. Alexander Fletcher immigrated to America with his parents when only nine years of age. They landed at Charleston, S. C., and leaving the family there, he and his father went into the Territory of Tennessee, where they took up land and built a house, intending to go back after the family, but the father died before returning. Alexander then started to go back after the family, but the cholera was raging, and he was persuaded not to go. He remained in Tennessee, and enlisted in the war against the Indians, he being at that time only fourteen years old. He also enlisted afterward in the War of 1812-14. He fought through that war, and helped drive the Indians through Illinois. He was a scout for many years. After the war he followed flat-boating for several years, and was in St. Louis when it was a small trading station. He located in Madison County, Mo., where he followed farming until his death, which occurred in Iron County, in December, 1864. His wife died in 1875. They were the parents of but one child, W. A. Fletcher. He was in his seventh year when he came to this county. Here he grew to manhood, received a liberal education, and remained with his parents until he attained his majority, being engaged in farming and manufacturing tobacco. In 1876 he married Miss Sadie F. Ringo, a native of Mississippi County, and to them were born seven children, Maude, Blanche, Alexander, Alma, Lena, Dickson and Edgar. Previous to his marriage in September, 1864, he enlisted in Company E, Forty-seventh Missouri Infantry, and served about seven months. He was in the battle of Pilot Knob, and a few skirmishes. In 1880 he was elected sheriff of Iron County, and re-elected in 1883 as sheriff and collector. In 1884 he was elected county collector, which office he held for two years, and in 1886 he was elected county clerk, which office he still occupies. He is a prominent man, and has a host of friends throughout the county and vicinity. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and his wife is a member of the Baptist Church.

W. T. Gay, manufacturer of wagons, plows, buggies, etc., was born in Devonshire, England, December 25, 1848, and is the son of William T. and Selina (Down) Gay, both natives of Devonshire, England. The father was a mechanic, and this trade he followed from his twelfth year until his death, which occurred in Ironton, in February, 1884. The mother died in 1885. Their family consisted of nine children, four now living: Ann (Mrs. Robert Tetley), William T., Martha (Mrs. John Tetley) and John H. The father, with his family, immigrated to America in 1852, taking passage at Liverpool, and landing at New York after a long and tedious ocean voyage. From there they went to Ohio, and located at Bellevue, where he carried on his trade for nine years. In 1861 he immigrated to St. Francois County, Mo., where he purchased a farm, put his sons to work on it, and he carried on his trade at Ironton until the time of his death. W. T. Gay was only about three years of age when his parents came to the United States. As soon as large enough, he began learning the blacksmith and wagonmaker's business under his father. He remained on the farm most of the time until of age, when he went into business with his brother, Samuel (now deceased), and carried on the business together about sixteen years. After the death of Samuel the firm title became Gay & Co. This firm does an extensive business for a small town, in the way of manufacturing wagons, plows, buggies, etc., and employs generally about six or seven hands. Mr. Gay was married December 25, 1871, to Miss Lucy C. Logan, a native of Missouri. To this union was born one child, Baby May. Mr. Gay is a member of the K. of H., also a member of the K. and L. of H., and is a member of the Masonic fraternity. Mrs. Gay is a member of the Presbyterian Church.

Dr. T. R. Goulding, a successful practitioner of Iron County, was born in the city of Lincoln, England, in March, 1818, and is the son of William and Elizabeth (Pillsworth) Goulding, both natives of England. William Goulding was a farmer by occupation, and was a great worker in the reform of 1832. The last twenty years of his life were spent in retirement, and in writing. He died at Gainsburgh County, of Lincoln, England, as did also the mother, he in 1842 and she in 1847. They were the parents of three children, George (who was killed in the battle of Bull Run), William (deceased) and Thomas R. The father had one child by his first marriage, who is now living and is ninety-eight years old. George Goulding, brother of our subject, was the first settler of Milwaukee, and ran the first hotel at that place. Dr. T. R. Goulding was reared in the city of London, where he obtained a good education, graduating at King's College. He then went into the British navy as assistant surgeon, and was wounded at the battle of Acre St. Jean D', on the Mediterranean sea, November 3, 1840. He served four years in the navy, then took passage at Liverpool, in 1847, and sailed for New York, thence to Milwaukee, Wis., where he practiced his profession until the spring of 1849, when he went to St. Louis and there engaged in the practice of his profession. He has been married three times; his first wife, Elizabeth Pyecroft, he married in 1846. One child, who died at sea, was born to this union. In 1865 Mr. Goulding married Miss Mary A. Richardson, who bore him two children, Richard and Neoma. In 1881 Mr. Goulding took for his third wife, Miss Sophronia Nifong, of Fredericktown. To this union was born one child, Nellie. After remaining in St. Louis until 1868, Mr. Goulding moved to Ironton, where he has since resided and where he has had a successful practice, being an excellent physician. He owns a beautiful home on the side of Shephard Mountain near Ironton. He is now building a hospital near his residence. This is made entirely of solid stone, and has nine rooms. It will soon be finished, and as soon as completed he will turn his attention entirely to the hospital duty. On a terrace between his residence and hospital are three stone statues: Venus, Minerva and Diana, nine feet high, weighing 5,000 pounds each, mounted on granite pedestals six feet high (100 feet above the valley), the work of Leon D. Pomerede, artist. In 1861 he enlisted in the Federal service, First Iowa Cavalry, and served until May, 1864. He went in as assistant surgeon, and in a short time was promoted to first surgeon, but soon after resigned, and was given a majorship in the First Missouri Cavalry. He was mustered out in 1864, and was appointed assistant adjutant-general of the State, serving in that capacity until the close of the war. He has been, since the war, United States examining surgeon. He resigned when Cleveland was elected, but was appointed again inside of a week. The Doctor has been a member of the Masonic fraternity since 1846, and his wife is a member of the Christian Church.

William Hackworth, farmer, was born in Lewis County, Ky., and is the son of John and Eliza Hackworth. The father was also a Kentuckian, and followed farming as an occupation. He came here on a visit to his son in 1888, was taken sick, and died, leaving twelve children to mourn his loss. William remained with his father during his younger days, going to school while living in Kentucky, and receiving a good education. He married, in 1855, Miss Mary Ann Pierpoint. He concluded in 1868 to come west, and located in Iron County, at Pilot Knob, where he remained two years, but in 1878 he came to Des Arc and purchased eighty acres of land, to which he has added from time to time about 300 acres of fine farming land. On his land he has some 200 acres of timber, also fine granite deposits and iron and lead. He also owns large bodies of land in Reynolds County. He entered the Confederate service in 1861, but only remained one year, afterward taking the oath of allegiance, and returning home to pursue his farming interests.

John W. Hancock, ex-judge, was born in Perry County, Mo., March 28, 1831, his parents being William and Neeley (West) Hancock, natives of Virginia and Delaware, respectively. They were married in Tennessee, and immigrated to Indiana, near Vincennes, where he remained two years. About 1814 they immigrated to Perry County, Mo., and located about ten miles from Perryville. He was one of the first settlers of that county, moving there when the Indians were numerous and his son, John W., used to play with them. The father was a farmer, miller, and stone-mason, and was handy at all kinds of work. He remained in that county until his death, which occurred in 1851. The mother died one year later. Both were consistent members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in which Mr. Hancock took quite an active interest. They were the parents of twelve children, five now living. John W. Hancock was reared in Perry County, receiving such an education as the schools at that day afforded and assisted his father on the farm until seventeen years of age, when he was employed as an overseer of a number of slaves for Charles Ingram, remaining with him for three years. He then lived with Burrell C. Porter, engaged in the same business for one year. While with him, in July, 1839, he married Miss Susan Cala-way, a native of Virginia, who bore him eight children, five now living: A. C., Lizzie, Mary, William and Martha. After his marriage Mr. Hancock moved to the eastern part of Madison County, where he remained for seven years. In 1847 he came to Iron County, and located near Pilot Knob, where he engaged in the livery business. He also kept hotel and carried on merchandising until 1873. He had in the meantime engaged in building extensively, and was in the saw mill business. At the last named date he moved to his present farm, where he has since resided. For the past seven years he has been engaged in the butchering and stock business. He owns a fine little farm, with good improvements. In 1860 he was elected judge of the county court, holding that office for five years. He has also been justice of the peace for nearly twenty years. Judge Hancock is a member of the Law and Order Society, and he and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

John Hartman, son of David H. and Etha (Black) Hartman, was born July 14, 1863, in Warren County, Iowa. The father was a native of Ohio, and the mother of Arkansas. The former left his native State when a mere boy, and settled in Iowa, where he remained until twenty years of age, when he decided to move to Missouri, but after reaching this State only remained a short time, when he returned to Iowa. He frequently made trips from that State to Missouri, but only remained a short time on each occasion, and during his rambles, and after his marriage, he made one trip to California, but returned to Missouri from that State, settling in Iron County, where he has since resided. While in Missouri he met Miss Black, whom he married. She came from Arkansas to Missouri with her parents when quite a girl, and by her marriage became the mother of ten children, seven now living: John, Mary M., Vianna, Sallie, Rosa, Philip and E. W. Those deceased are Donnie L., William and Leona. John Hartman, the subject of this sketch, was married April 14, 1881, to Miss Emily S. Carty, daughter of G. W. and Elizabeth Carty, old settlers of Reynolds County, in which county G. W. Carty was born and reared. To Mr. and Mrs. Hartman was born four children, all living, and are named as follows: William D., Charles T., Ollie C. and George W. The youngest is named after his grandfather Carty, of Reynolds County. Mr. Hartman has only lived in Bellevue Valley, and on his present farm, for the past three years. He is a young man, and lives on a farm of 110 acres of land, sixty under cultivation. He teaches school every year, having commenced teaching in Reynolds County, when only seventeen years of age, and taught five years in that county, and three in Iron. He and wife are members of the Baptist Church, and he is a member and secretary of the Farmers' Alliance.

Robert J. Hill, son of Thomas and Hester (League) Hill, was born May 11, 1851, near Bonne Terre, St. Francois County, Mo. The father, Thomas Hill, was a native of Kentucky, born in 1804, and was one of that State's old settlers. He came to Missouri when a young man, and settled in St. Francois County, near Farmington, where he was married to Miss League. They remained there until 1860, when they moved to Iron County. By this union were born ten children, nine now living: Henry H., James C., Sallie A., Bettie, Robert J., Thomas, Katie, Mattie and Maggie. The one deceased was named Whitmell. Mr. Hill is now eighty-four years old, and frequently makes trips to Ironton, a distance of ten miles, in a buggy, and quite often rides horseback to Caledonia, a distance of four miles. Robert J. Hill, the subject of this sketch, received a good education, being blessed with good schools in his neighborhood, and after completing his course in the common schools, took a two years' course at the Bellevue Collegiate Institution at Caledonia. He has spent his entire time in farming and stock raising, and has been quite successful, being the owner of 105 acres of land. He is a citizen who is held in the highest esteem by his fellow men. He was elected to the office of county judge of his district, which position he has held for the past two years. September 21, 1876, he married Miss Allie Cox, daughter of J. T. Cox, and an old settler of Iron County. Three children were born to this union: Ethel, Nellie and Wallace A. Mr. Hill is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and also a member of the Farmers' Alliance. His wife is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

John A. H. Hogue, merchant and postmaster at Arcadia, was born in Obion County, Tenn., January 15, 1841, and is a son of John B. and Jane D. (Robinson) Hogue, natives of South Carolina and North Carolina, respectively. The parents emigrated from South Carolina to Tennessee, and settled in Obion County, where the father followed agricultural pursuits, and was the owner of several farms. He removed to Dunklin County, Mo., in 1860, purchased a farm, and there remained until his death, which occurred in July, 1883. He was a very prominent man in that county, being county judge for a number of years. The mother died in 1841, and the father married the second time. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity, and a member of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. He was the father of one child by his first marriage, John A., and one by his second marriage, who is deceased. John A. was reared principally in Obion County, Tenn., where he received his education. After coming to Dunklin County, Mo., in 1860, he remained on the farm until 1861, when he enlisted in the six months' Missouri State Militia. He served in Company K, Fifth Missouri Volunteers, and was in the battles of Corinth, Iuka, siege of Vicksburg, where he was taken prisoner, but was soon after paroled. He then came home, and resumed farming in Dunklin County, where he remained until 1883, when he came to Arcadia and engaged in merchandising. Here he has since remained, engaged in this business. He was married, in 1864, to Miss Rebecca E. White, by whom he had five children, four now living: Cora B., Mortimer S., Maury A. and Iris M. In 1872 Mr. Hogue married his second wife, Miss Dora James, who bore him two children, one now living: Hesman D. His third wife was Miss Mary M. Howell, and five children were born to this union, three now living: John A., Jr., Rabley H. and Carl. Mr. Hogue is a Mason, a member of the K. of H., is a Democrat in politics, and he and Mrs. Hogue are members of the church.

Hon. A. W. Holloman, presiding judge of the county court, of Iron County, was born in Raleigh, N. C., January 1, 1805, and is the eldest of eight children born to his parents, Edmund and Mary (Barrett) Holloman, both of whom were born and reared in North Carolina. In 1810 the father moved to Upper Louisiana Territory, as it was then called, and landed at Cape Girardeau in the fall of that year. Here he remained until 1811, and it was during this year that the great earthquake occurred. In the fall of 1812 Edmund Holloman removed to Ste. Genevieve County, where he continued to reside until his death. His son, A. W. Holloman, received the best education that schools at that day afforded. In 1825 he commenced business for himself as a farmer, and also engaged in the saw mill business, which he carried on for several years. In October, 1830, he married Miss Lucinda S. Holmes, daughter of Capt. William Holmes, who came to this country in 1802, before the change of government. To Mr. and Mrs. Holloman was born a large family—six sons and five daughters—seven now living: John W., Thomas E., Robert F., Joel B., Mary A., Lucinda J. and Josie. In 1838 Mr. Holloman was elected to the Legislature from Ste. Genevieve County, on the Democratic ticket, running Benton or no Benton, and when the Legislature met, he assisted in electing Col. Thomas H. Benton to the United States Senate. At that time the parties were nearly equally divided between the Democrats and Whigs. The candidate for representative on the Democratic ticket had withdrawn, and left the field clear for his Whig opponent. Mr. Holloman was induced to become a candidate, and beat his opponent, Dr. Shaw, by a majority of twenty votes. Previous to this, however, Mr. Holloman had filled several minor offices in this county, and served as postmaster under Postmaster-Gen. Amos Kimball for several years. In 1846 he was elected one of the judges of the county court of Ste. Genevieve County, and served until the fall of 1849, when he moved to Arcadia Valley, for the purpose of educating his children. Here Mr. Holloman engaged in the saw mill and grist mill business, and united his efforts with other enterprising citizens of Arcadia Valley to build up the county, which was then Madison, but was changed to Iron County, in 1858. Mr. Holloman was appointed surveyor by the county court and elected at the next general election, and has filled this office ever since with the exception of one year. In 1875, in the seventieth year of his age, he was chosen representative in the Twenty-eighth General Assembly, the responsible duties of which honorable position he filled in an able and efficient manner. He cast his first vote for Andrew Jackson for president, and has always been a staunch Democrat. His parents were Methodists, and his mother was a devoted Christian, which led him to believe that her church was right. In 1844 he voted against the division of the church, but when the division took place he adhered to the southern branch, of which he is still a member. He is now in his eighty-fourth year, is still active, and is at present one of the county judges. He can ride or walk almost as far as any young man, and even take delight in getting on his horse and taking long rides. He has surely been one of Iron County's most important citizens, being always ready to advance the interest of his fellow men and of his country. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity.

Joseph Huff, circuit court clerk of Iron County, was born in Sevier County, Tenn., November 28, 1838, and is the son of William and Mary (Kear) Huff, both natives also of Tennessee. The maternal grandfather was born in Scotland, and immigrated to Tennessee at an early day. The paternal grandfather was in the War of 1812, and immigrated to Iron County, Mo., at an early day, where he died. William Huff moved to Iron County in 1841, and located near Ironton, where he resided for several years. He was a farmer by occupation, and died in 1886. The mother died in 1887. They were the parents of seven children, five now living: Joseph, Demarius, Narcissus, William and Jane. Joseph Huff was but three years of age when he came with his parents to this State. He was reared principally on the farm, until about twenty years of age, when he engaged in merchandising, as a clerk, for about a year. He then entered the clerk's office as deputy clerk, circuit and county, holding the position for about one year. In 1863 he enlisted in the State militia as first lieutenant in the Eighth Provisional Regiment, and served six months. In 1865 he was appointed circuit and county clerk, and in the fall of that year he was elected, holding the position four years. In 1866 he married Miss Martha J. Mayfield, a native of Illinois. Four children were born to this marriage: Arthur, Charles B., Stella and Birdie. In 1867 Mr. Huff was appointed circuit clerk, to fill a vacancy, and has held the office ever since, having been re-elected at each election thereafter. He was appointed assessor in 1864, and filled one term of office. Mr. Huff has been in office most of his life, and has given excellent satisfaction in all cases. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and is a member of the I. O. O. F.

Henry N. Hutchens. In North Carolina were born a boy and girl who afterward grew to manhood and womanhood in Perry and Wayne Counties, Tenn., and became man and wife. They were Lebanon W. and Anna A. (Culp), Hutchens, the former of German-Irish and the latter of German parentage. They were married in Wayne County, and afterward lived in Perry County until 1844. It was on March 4, 1829, while residing in the latter county, that there was born to them a son whose name heads this sketch. They located in Hornersville, Mo., in 1844, and followed farming, until the death of the father in about 1859, and the mother in 1868. Nine children were born to them, but of the seven who reached maturity only two are now living, Mrs. Jane Ward and the subject of this sketch. Young Hutchens was about fifteen years old when they came to Missouri, and with few school advantages he devoted himself to the farm duties at home until he reached the age of twenty-three. His health prevented his entering military service, and he farmed in summer, and in winter was a hunter and trapper, until his twenty-fifth year. For about seven years he sold goods in Hornersville, but after the war farmed until 1869, when he returned to Tennessee. He came to Iron County after his second marriage in Tennessee, and purchased about 167 acres, which he has since improved. His first wife was Emma S. Shiland, a New Madrid County lady of French descent. His present wife was Miss Kate C. Huggins, a native of Murfreesboro, Tenn. Their two children were Eddie and Willie. Mr. and Mrs. Hutchens are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is a member of one fraternity, the A. F. & A. M.

Frank Imboden, son of George and Betsey A. (Hughes) Imboden, was born September 1, 1856, in Maries County, Mo. The father, George Imboden, was a native Virginian, who emigrated to Missouri about the year 1837. At that early day railroads and steamboats were almost unknown and the long and tedious trip across the country was made in wagons. After reaching Missouri, they settled in Iron County, but was then called Washington County; here his parents lived the balance of their lives. In Iron County George Imboden grew to manhood, and here he married Betsey Hughes. Two years later they moved to the northern part of the State, settling in Maries County, and are living there at the present, the father being sixty-eight years old and the mother sixty-three. They are the parents of nine children, all now living, and the youngest twenty-five years of age. They are named as follows: James W., John H., Thomas V., George W., Joseph S., Benjamin Franklin, Columbus A., Eliza A. and Alberten. Frank Imboden was married October 5, 1875, to Miss Virginia Lucas, daughter of Philip and Bettie Lucas, and the result of this union was the birth of five children, all living: Dosia, Lettie, Arthur, Clara and Zora. Mr. Imboden has lived in Washington and Iron Counties since January, 1875, and has been on the farm, where he now lives, for the past nine years. He is a member of the Farmers' Alliance, and he and wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Hon. Peter H. Jaquith, merchant and postmaster at Pilot Knob, was born in Oswego County, N. Y., September 24, 1830, and is the son of John W. and Mary C. (Henderson) Jaquith, both natives of the State of New York. The Jaquith family are of French extraction, the great-grandfather having come from France about the time of the old Revolution, and located near Boston, Mass. The paternal grandfather was born in Vermont, and immigrated to the State of New York in 1820, where he died about 1836. John W. Jaquith, father of our subject, was a farmer by occupation, and followed this the principal part of his life. He immigrated to Wisconsin in 1866, and there died in 1872. The mother died in 1877. Of the five children born to their union, four are now living: Peter H., Jennie, Alfred L. and Mary C. Peter H. was reared on a farm in Oswego County, N. Y., and there remained until twenty-one years of age. In 1852 he came west, and roamed from one place to another until 1858, when he located at Pilot Knob, and engaged in merchandising, which he has since carried on. During Price's raid he suffered great loss, being cleaned out almost entirely by the Confederate soldiers. As soon as he could, he fitted up another stock, and has since been very successful. He was married in 1853, to Miss Marie Marvin, of Oneida County, N. Y., who bore him two children, one of whom is now living, Mrs. Ada Countryman, of Denver, Colo. He was married the second time in 1862 to Miss Caroline Hollatz, who was of German parentage, and who bore him four children: Clara (Mrs. J. K. Pogue), Alfred C., John and Alma. In 1860 Mr. Jaquith was elected justice of the peace, and one year later he was appointed postmaster, holding the position until 1865. In 1866 he was elected to represent Iron County in the Legislature, and served one term. In 1869 and 1870 he was the judge of the county court, but before his term was out he resigned, and in 1872 was re-appointed postmaster at Pilot Knob, and has held that position ever since. He has been a very prominent man in politics, and takes a deep interest in all public affairs of any importance. He owns considerable property in Pilot Knob, and affiliates with the Baptist congregation.

Henry M. Jones is the son of Julius A. and Martha (Walker) Jones, who, during the year 1826, moved from Mecklenburg County, N. C., to Madison County, Tenn., bringing with them three children. Two others were born to them in their new home. Their vocation was agriculture. The father dying in 1831, the mother was left to provide for the family as best she could. After providing a subsistence, very little could be done in the way of education, with the scanty facilities at that early day in this respect. However, they were all taught something of the three R's. The mother lived to see them all grown and settled in life, dying in August, 1877, in the eightieth year of her age. Henry, the youngest of the family and the subject of this sketch, was born February 6, 1830. On attaining his twentieth year he resolved to supplement his limited education with additional acquirements. To this end he attended and taught school alternately during four years. He then studied medicine, and graduated from the medical department of the University of Nashville, in 1857, being awarded the prize ($50) for passing the best examination on anatomy. Dr. Jones located in Gibson County, Tenn., until the fall of 1859, when he moved with his wife and one child (he having married Miss Mary J. Bidley, of Rutherford County, Tenn., April 21, 1858) to Jackson County, Ark., where he continued to practice his profession seven years, being connected during a part of the year 1862 with a Confederate regiment as assistant surgeon. In the fall of 1866, being stimulated by the high prices then prevailing, of farm products, and believing that he could attain to a more independent condition in life, he bought a tract of land containing 680 acres for $17,000, on credit of four years, and went to work, abandoning medicine. He paid for his first purchase, and has since increased his estate to 2,800 acres; and, from a cultivated acreage of 235 acres at the start, he now has 1,000 acres in one body under cultivation, which he rents to tenants, he having moved to Ironton, Mo., in 1874, for better health and other considerations. He has a good little farm of about 120 acres near Ironton, in the Arcadia Valley, devoted chiefly to stock raising. Dr. Jones has been fairly successful in all his efforts; is out of debt, and worth about $60,000—made by farming. Seven children have been born to him and wife, five of whom are living.

J. S. Jordan, prosecuting attorney, was born in Pike County, Mo., August 7, 1852, and is the son of Richard T. and Elizabeth (Bartlett) Jordan. J. S.

Jordan was reared in Pike County, Mo., until fifteen years of age, and then, after roaming around for several years, finally located in Reynolds County, Mo., where, in 1876, he was elected prosecuting attorney, and filled that position in an able and efficient manner for eight years. In 1877 he chose for his companion in life, Miss Minerva L. Farris, and the fruits of this union were four children, all but one now living, and are named as follows: Anna A., Olie H. (deceased), Jesse E. and John L. In 1886 Mr. Jordan was elected prosecuting attorney of Iron County, and in 1888 he was elected city attorney, which position he still holds. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., and is also a member of the K. of H.

Frederick Kathis, retired merchant of Pilot Knob, Iron Co., Mo., came to this county in April, 1857, and has been living in the county ever since, with the exception of the summer of 1859, when he went to Colorado, from whence he returned in the fall of the same year. He was in the merchandising and milling business for over twenty years, in Iron County, from which he retired in the year 1884. He owns considerable real estate in this county, to which he is now devoting his time. In 1865 he married Miss Dorethea Roemer, who bore him nine children, seven of whom are now living (four boys and three girls). Mr. Kathis has been a member of the Masonic fraternity for the last twenty-five years.

Judge John Kemper. Among the old Kentucky families who came to Missouri in 1835 were Henry and Elizabeth (O'Bannon) Kemper, natives of Virginia. They located near Fredericktown, where Mr. Kemper was engaged in farming, and also somewhat devoted to mechanical work, for which he had special aptitude. He died in 1863. While they were living in Mt. Carmel, Ky., there was born to them a son, whose name heads this sketch. Young Kemper received few educational advantages, but made the most of his opportunities, such as they were. He began farming independently at the age of twenty years, and in 1846 received the appointment of deputy sheriff, continuing four years. In 1851, he and H. J. Jones opened the first store in Patterson, Mo., and laid out the town plat. With the outbreak of the war he made up a company and started for the seat of hostilities. It was Company I, Third Regiment Missouri State Guards, in which he served six months, when it was disbanded. He then was given charge of the quartermaster's books of Jeff. Thompson's brigade, for a year, but on account of ill health resigned and went south. On his return he was made manager of the government tan yards in Randolph County, Ark., until he afterward joined Lee's army, and continued until the surrender. From that time until 1872, he was in Madison County, Mo., and then located in Iron County, on a place purchased before the war. It embraces about 260 acres, with 65 acres under cultivation, there being excellent deposits of quartz, iron, copper and lead. Judge Kemper was a county judge for two years, and for eight years served as justice of the peace. In 1848 he married Miss Elizabeth O'Bannon, and their children are Virginia A. (wife of Joseph Stagner), William B., Judith, Lucinda and Sanford. Mrs. Kemper died in 1882, a devoted Christian and member of the Baptist Church. Judge Kemper is a Mason and member of the Farmers' Alliance.

Joseph Kerchner is a native of Iron Mountain, St. Francois Co., Mo., where he was born in 1861, and is the son of Laurence and Agnes (Spidle) Kerchner, both natives of Germany. They immigrated to this country, making the trip in an old-time sailing-vessel, and landed at New Orleans. They then sailed up the Mississippi River to Ste. Genevieve County, settling at Ste. Genevieve, but only remained there a short time. He then removed to Iron Mountain, and there lived for eighteen years, when he removed to Graniteville, where he has since resided, and where he was for a number of years head engineer at the mines at Iron Mountain. He has since been engaged in farming, milling and the saloon business, the latter being conducted by his son, Joseph Kerchner, who is one of seven children born to his parents, all now living: Edward, Joseph, Barbara, Matthew, Frank, Mary and Caroline. Joseph Kerchner was for some years engaged in teaming, but for the past nine years has been engaged in the saloon business. He has the choicest brands of imported and native wines, whiskies, etc., and is doing a successful business. He is also engaged in the livery business, and runs a hack from Graniteville to Middlebrook. He has a full line of carriages and the best horses to be obtained.

Dr. C. C. Kerlogon was born August 19, 1855, in Ste. Genevieve County, Mo., and is the son of James E. and Mary A. (Palmer), Kerlogon. The father was also a native of Ste. Genevieve County, and there spent his boyhood days, wandering aimlessly over the country, as he was left an orphan when quite young. He went from this State to Illinois, where he remained four or five years, when he returned to Missouri, and engaged in the saloon business at Hillsboro, Jefferson County. He remained in that business until his marriage, after which event he sold out and removed to Iron County, where he engaged in agricultural pursuits, but only for a short period, and sold his crops early in the fall. He then went to St. Genevieve County, where he remained three or four years, following farming for a livelihood. He then went to St. Francois County, where he has since lived. The father is now sixty-four years of age, and the mother fifty-five, and both are enjoying excellent health. To their union were born thirteen children, eleven now living: Dr. C. C., David B., Sarah M., Zeno E., Laura A., Catherine, Francis E., Cora, Mark T., Clara and Monroe. Those deceased are Missoura, Ora and Alice. Dr. C. C. Kerlogon was reared on a farm, and there spent his boyhood days. He attended the common schools, and afterward entered Carleton Institute at Farmington, where he remained two terms. He studied medicine under Dr. Lamming, at Bloomdale, for two years. He then took a three years' course in medicine at the St. Louis Medical College, St. Louis, Mo., graduating March 7, 1883, and then returned to Ste. Genevieve and established himself in business at Zell Post-office, where he remained until March, 1886. He then came to Bellevue, and has practiced his profession there ever since.

Calvin Kitchel, farmer, was born in Ripley County, Ind., April 11, 1823, and is the son of Moses and Elizabeth (Ronney) Kitchel. The father was born in Ohio, and there remained until grown. He then removed to Indiana, and there married his first wife, who died leaving no children. His second marriage was to Miss Elizabeth Ronney, and to them were born seven children, two now living: Calvin and Mrs. Mary Cooper. The father having moved to Illinois, died there a number of years ago. Calvin Kitchel was married in 1844 to Miss Malinda Tucker, who was living in Illinois at the time of her marriage. Shortly after this event they moved to Arkansas, where they remained for about two years, and then returned to Illinois. Here they lived for thirteen years, after which they moved to Bee Fork of Black River, Reynolds Co., Mo., in 1857, from there to Iron County in 1863, thence again to Reynolds County in 1876, and returned to Iron County in 1887, where they have since lived. To their marriage were born eight children, all now living: Sylvester, John R., Zachariah T., Benjamin F., James A., William W., Augustus C. and George W. Mr. Kitchel has lived on his present farm for just one year, and has 180 acres, ninety under cultivation. There are indications of lead on the place, but they have never been developed. Mr. Kitchel is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and of the Farmers' Alliance.

J. W. Lashley, son of Arnold and Mary (Koontz) Lashley, was born in Washington County, Md., May 27, 1834. The father, Arnold Lashley, was born in Virginia and removed from there to Washington County, Md., when a young man, and was there married to Miss Mary Koontz, daughter of Daniel Koontz. Grandfather Lashley was also a native of Virginia, as was also his wife. Grandfather Koontz was a native of Germany and came to this country at an early day, and Great-great-grandfather Lashley was originally from England. His brother was a soldier in the British army and surrendered under Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown, during the Revolutionary War. From these two have descended the entire Lashley family in America. Arnold Lashley became the father of eight children, four now living: Mrs. M. J. Tewell, John W., Daniel, and Robert, and Mrs. M. Elbin, Mrs. S. Collins, Isaac W. and Mary E. are the ones deceased. Mr. Lashley has followed the occupation of a farmer all his life and has succeeded fairly well at that business. He had a brother Isaac, who was wounded during the late war, and died at Fredericksburg, Va. J. W. Lashley received a fair education in the common schools, and in March, 1856, was united in marriage to Miss Rachel Ritchie, daughter of Rev. Abraham Ritchie, and the result of this union was the birth of one child, Joseph R. Mrs. Lashley died in February, 1857. In 1861 Mr. Lashley married Miss Sarah Collins, daughter of Andrew Collins, and to them there were born six children, all now living: Isaac W., Francis A., Laura D., U. G., Henry C. and O. D. Mr. Lashley left Maryland when quite young, and moved to Bedford County, Penn., where he remained until 1867, when he immigrated to Champaign County, Ill., but shortly afterward moved to Iron County, where he has since lived. During the late war he enlisted in the Ninety-first Pennsylvania, First Division, Fifth Corps. While in Illinois Mr. Lasbley was elected to the position of justice of the peace, although he does not seek offices of public trust. He has always followed agricultural pursuits, and owns a splendid farm of 200 acres, 150 of which are under cultivation. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., also K. of H., is also one of the executive committee of the State Alliance, and was one of the organizers of the same.

Mrs. Belle Lay was born June 28, 1847, and is the daughter of William H. and H. B. (Goodwin) Coleman. The father was a native of Virginia, and when a young man immigrated to Missouri, settling in St. Louis County, about twenty miles from the city which, at that time, was but a small village. His wife was born in Fayette County, Ky., and was the daughter of Lloyd K. and Mary (Graves) Goodwin. Eleven children were born to them, seven now living: Mrs. C. V. Locker, Lizzie, Mrs. D. G. Blakely, Mrs. Lay, Mrs. Jennie Field, Mrs. Frank D. Terry and Lillie. Those deceased were named Ella, Jessie, Josie, and an infant not named. September 19, 1867, Miss Belle Coleman was united in marriage to Mr. Henry C. Lay, in St. Louis County. Mr. Lay was born and reared in St. Louis County, and was the son of John and Charlotte (Walton) Lay. During his whole life he followed the occupation of a farmer. After his marriage he removed to St. Francois County and there remained for about eighteen months, when he removed to Randolph County, and there remained seven years. They then came to Iron County, and settled where Mrs. Belle Lay now lives, and where Mr. Lay died September 29, 1879, at the age of forty-one. Their family consisted of five children, all now living: Daisy, Willie, Stephen, Etta and Harry. Since her husband's death Mrs. Lay has continued to carry on the farm work, and by judicious management, self-reliance and industry has acquired a nice property, having a farm of 242 acres, 200 under cultivation. Mrs. Lay received a good education in the public schools of St. Louis, and afterward finished at Bonham's Young Ladies' Seminary, but never quite finished her course. She is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and at one time was a member of the Good Templars. On this farm has been found, what is supposed to be an excellent class of marble.

James M. Logan, son of John V. and Elizabeth H. (Mallow) Logan, was born in Iron County, November 2, 1833. John V. Logan was born in Salem, Va., in 1809, and immigrated to this country when only twelve years of age. The mother, Elizabeth H. Logan, was born in Fincastle, Va., March 23, 1811, and immigrated westward the same year that her husband did, and settled only five miles from where he was living. They were the parents of seven children, four now living: J. F. C., James M., Lucy C. Gay and Elizabeth J. Purkis. Those deceased are Mary J. Muffley, William A. and Addison R. James M. Logan, the subject of this sketch, has lived in this immediate neighborhood for the past thirty-nine years, and remembers very distinctly when the entire Bellevue valley, with the exception of a few old Spanish grants, was one vast wilderness. About the time of his birth, and during his father's recollection, Indians passed through this country in great numbers, but were, as a rule, quite peaceable. Mr. Logan was married November 19, 1857, to Miss Ann Stephens, daughter of Joseph L. Stephens, one of Iron County's pioneer settlers. To this marriage was born one child, Eugene M. Mr. Logan has been engaged in merchandising for a number of years, and is also by trade a carpenter and cabinet maker, but never followed the cabinet-maker's trade for a living. For the past eleven years he has followed the occupation of a farmer and stock raiser, and is at present the owner of an excellent farm of 455 acres, 300 being under cultivation. He also owns an interest in four other farms in this county, and on some of his land are indications of splendid mineral deposits, but he has never had them developed. Mr. Logan is a member of the I. O. O. F., and of the Masonic fraternity. He and wife are members of the Presbyterian Church, Mr. Logan having been a member for thirty years, and at one time was a member of the church at Caledonia, the first Presbyterian Church west of the Mississippi River, with Thomas Donnell as pastor, and was by him baptized.

Eugene M. Logan, son of James M. and Ann (Stephens) Logan, was born in Bellevue, Iron Co., Mo., January 27, 1859. The father, James M. Logan, was a native of Iron County, as was also his wife, and the grandfather Logan was a Virginian by birth, who immigrated to this country at a very early day, and when the country was a vast wilderness. The grandfather Stephens was born December 29, 1812, near Bowling Green, Ky., and was about twelve years of age when coming to this county. His wife was also born in the year 1812, and by birth is a Virginian, although she moved to Kentucky when quite young, only remaining there a short time when she removed to Missouri, and there has since remained, being now in her seventy-seventh year. She remembers and can tell many interesting anecdotes connected with the early settlement of the country, and can remember when the Indians were almost everyday visitors. Mr. and Mrs. James Logan are the parents of one child, Eugene M., who, after completing his common-school education in the Iron County public schools, took a two-years' course in the Westminster College, at Fulton, Mo. December 30, 1880, he married Miss Fannie L. Reyburn, and to this union were born three children: Jennie E., Lemie and Annie B., all now living. Mr. Logan was, for a short time, engaged in merchandising at Belleview, after which he engaged in agricultural pursuits. He owns ninety acres of land, sixty being under cultivation, and, aside from this, he owns several other farms throughout the county. The old homestead, where Mr. Logan now lives, is a very beautiful place, being situated about one mile from Belleview. Mr. Logan is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and he and wife are members of the Presbyterian Church.

James Lovelace, mill-owner and farmer, was born in Middle Tennessee, in 1845, and is the son of P. M. and Sarah (Dunegan) Lovelace, who were natives of the same region. They moved west, however, and thinking to better their prospects, located in Wayne County, in 1855, where he followed farming together with the care of a grist-mill at Patterson, that county. He died in 1878, leaving a family of seven children: James, Manuel, Lowry, Virra, Caroline, Lucy and Dora. James Lovelace remained at home until maturity, and was given fair educational advantages. He was married in 1875 to Miss Alsie Fenton, a union which has resulted in five children living: Johnnie, Minnie, Nellie, Tommie and Ora. He was in the Confederate service a short time but soon returned to his chosen pursuits. In 1885 he built a saw mill in which he annually produces from his lands about 10,000 feet of pine lumber, for the St. Louis and Kansas markets. Previous to engaging in the saw milling business, he made some money in the contracting. He is also the owner of another saw mill besides the one mentioned, thus having two. Mr. Lovelace owns about 1,550 acres of timber land, and is one of the largest farmers in Iron County, owning five large farms under an excellent state of cultivation. His hill lands have deposits of mixed iron and lead with some silver, and are said to be well worth development.

Jefferson D. McClung is a native of Iron County, Mo., born June 16, 1862, and is a son of James A. and Martha W. (Hughes) McClung. The father was a native of Tennessee, and came to Missouri when the State was, comparatively, unsettled. He made his home a short distance from where his son, Jefferson McClung, now resides. Martha W. (Hughes) McClung, was born in Washington County, Mo. (now Iron County). Jefferson McClung received but a meager education, as he only attended the schools of his county for a short time. His wife bore him five children, all sons and all now living, viz.: William N., James H., Hugh K., Jefferson D. and Jacob L. James A. McClung, father of the subject of this sketch, was in the late war, and went to Arkansas where he died. Jefferson D. was married November 24, 1886, to Miss Maggie E. Hill, daughter of Uncle Thomas Hill, one of the early pioneers of Iron County. This union has resulted in the birth of one child, Ola K. Mr. McClung is a member of the Farmers' Alliance, and is a wide-awake, stirring young man.

Dr. J. R. McKinney, son of William and Sarah (Randolph) McKinney, was born in Owen County, Ky., November 20, 1813. The father, William McKinney, was born in Virginia, in 1786, and the mother, Sarah (Randolph) McKinney, was a native of New Jersey, came with her parents to Kentucky, and settled in Jefferson County, where she married Mr. McKinney, in 1806. Their marriage license was issued by the first clerk ever elected in Jefferson County. The grandfather, James McKinney, was born and reared in Virginia, where he married Mary Beattie, but more familiarly known as Aunt Polly. Of the eleven children born to their union, none are now living. They were named as follows: William, Archibald, John, Michael, George, James, Catherine, Rachel, Margaret, Elizabeth and Mary. The grandfather moved to Kentucky, settled in Henry County, and there remained until 1825, when he removed to Butler County, and there passed the remainder of his days. He died in 1830, and his widow nine years later. To William McKinney and wife were born five children, two now living: Dr. J. R. and David. The three deceased were named Harriet, Harrison and Mary. The mother of these children died, and their father then married Miss Elizabeth Morton, of Albemarle County. Five children were also born to this union, four now living: James W., Lavenia W., William M. and Laura. The one deceased was named Frances. Dr. J. R. McKinney was but an infant when his mother died, and he was taken by his grandparents and cared for, until his twelfth year, when he went to live with his father, who, in the meantime, had married the second time, and was living in Butler County, Ky. He worked on the farm, and attended the common schools, until his eighteenth year, after which he taught school one year, and, in 1833, he professed religion and joined the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. In 1834 he took his academic course at Little Spring Academy, and again taught school one year, reading medicine at the same time. In 1835 he entered the office of Withers & Wilson, as a regular medical student, reading under them two years. He then took a medical course at Louisville, in 1837, graduating in 1838 and beginning to practice in the fall of the latter year at Sugar Grove, Butler County, where he had a successful practice for four years. March 15, 1842, he married Miss Martha T. Johnson, of Kentucky, and one year later they moved on a farm in Warren County, Ky. At the breaking out of the war, in 1861, Dr. McKinney entered the Confederate service as a surgeon, and shared the fortunes and misfortunes of the lost cause, until the close of the war. In 1866 he moved to Iron County, Mo., and settled in Bellevue, where he now lives. The Doctor, by his marriage, became the father of these children: Mary E., Richard J., Theodore F., William T., Walter S., John R., H. H., David J. and L. D. An infant son, H. S., died in 1858. The Doctor practiced but little after coming to Missouri, but shortly afterward retired from the profession. Since that time he has been engaged in agricultural pursuits, and owns 460 acres of land, but has divided with his children. The Doctor has been a member of the church for fifty-five years, and his wife has been a member forty-seven years. He is a Mason, and has been a regent of the State Normal School at Cape Girardeau for the past eight years, missing but one meeting in the meantime. The great-grandfather of the Doctor, in company with two brothers, immigrated from Ireland at an early day, and settled in the old State of Virginia, where the Doctor's father and grandfather were born. The grandfather served during the Indian war immediately following the Revolutionary War, and the great-grandfather and one of his sons were in captivity for a number of years during the Indian wars. His son, Michael, while associating with them, learned the Indian language, so that he could speak it readily.

Azariah Martin. In Kentucky were born Miss Lucinda Hill and Mastin B. Martin, who grew to maturity in that State, and were married. The father was born April 7, 1809, and the mother's birth occurred September 29, 1815, and while their home was in Madison County, there was born to them a son, in 1839, to whom they gave the name at the head of this sketch. About March, 1845, they moved to Farmington, Mo., and two years later located in Iron County, near Stout's Creek, on the farm now owned by their son, Azariah. After the father's death, October 4, 1851, the mother managed the home until she married Mr. James Davidson. She also passed away, December 30, 1878, at the age of sixty-three years. Of six children born to her first marriage, Humphrey, James, Vienna, Samiria and Azariah are living. Azariah spent his youth after his fifth year in Missouri, in St. Francois and Iron Counties, at home, but when he became a young man, he began carefully working and saving until he was enabled to buy out the heirs of the old home, between 1866 and 1869. During the war he took part with both sides, and was taken prisoner in 1863 at Cotton Plant, Ark., in the hospital. He was paroled and returned home, and for a time worked at Pilot Knob, at burning charcoal. In August, 1864, he joined the State militia, and in September entered the Forty-seventh Missouri Infantry. He was mustered out in April, 1865. He was in the action at Pilot Knob. For two years he was engaged in charcoal burning, but has since that followed farming and stock raising. May 28, 1867, he married Amanda Hill, a native of Louisville, Ky. Mr. and Mrs. Martin are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is also identified with the Farmers' Alliance.

Felix R. Mills, son of Jonathan and S. (Glore) Mills, was born in Mississippi County, Mo., October 28, 1849. The father was born in Indiana, and when in his thirteenth year came to Mississippi County, Mo., where he passed his entire life engaged in agricultural pursuits. His wife was also born in Mississippi County, was reared there and lived there all her life until ten years of age, when she, in company with her son and daughter, came to Iron County, where they have since lived. She now has a little home near that of her son, and passes her time all alone, excepting when her two grandsons, Jimmie and George Favors, come to spend a short time with her, and when she visits her son's family. Grandfather Mills was born in South Carolina, and came to Indiana from that State at an early day, and there lived until 1823, when he removed to Mississippi County, Mo. Grandmother Mills was born in North Carolina. The father of our subject died in Mississippi County, December 17, 1864. He was the father of ten children, two now living: Felix R. and Mrs. Lucy Middleton. Those deceased are Mary, Eudora, Hardin and DeWitt; the others died in infancy. Mr. Felix Mills was married March 3, 1885, to Lucy Rice, daughter of Samuel and Margaret (Parker) Rice, both born and reared in Iron County. The result of this union was the birth of one child named Moman. Since coming to this county Mr. Mills has continued to follow his old occupation, that of farming, and now owns a nice farm of eighty acres near Kaolin. There are indications of lead on his farm, but these have never been developed. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and a good citizen.

James M. Morris, merchant, postoffice Des Arc, was born in Old Virginia, Louisa County, in 1842, and is the son of James M. and Mary (Crank) Morris, who were farmers and large slave owners, dying in 1887, and leaving six children. James M. received a good school education in his native State, and at his maturity the Civil War broke out, and he shouldered his gun in the defense of his native home, enlisting in 1861, in Company D, Forty-fourth Virginia Regiment, commanded by Col. Scott, in which he served until the close of the war, in 1865. He was wounded in 1864, and was discharged, but being of a daring and brave disposition, he could not remain at home while his country needed help, so he accepted the position in the postoffice department at the hospital of Chimborazo, Richmond, Va. He received three wounds, one in the head, a scalp wound, the second in the leg, and the third in the neck, the ball passing down, and lodging in the shoulder, where it now remains, and at times Mr. Morris suffers intense pain from its effects, his arm at times being paralyzed. He was in nearly all the principal battles that were fought in the East, being all the time in Stonewall Jackson's and R. E. Lee's corps of the East. He came west shortly after the close of the war, locating in Washington County, near Potosi, and engaged in the saw mill business, at which he was very successful. About 1878 he purchased large lumber interests in this county, and opened up a store in Williamsville, Mo., but finally moved to Des Arc, purchasing some town property and opening a store, and dealing in lumber, buying and selling for the Northern markets, etc. He owns a storehouse well stocked with a general stock of merchandise of about $8,000 in value, containing such goods as are kept in first-class stores. He also owns a fine dwelling, and five other lots. He married, in 1869, Miss Eugenie H. Phillips, daughter of George and Susan Phillips, of Essex County, Va., who died, leaving their daughter an orphan at a very tender age. There are five children living from this union, viz.: George W., James C., Monson M., Walter B. and Mary S. Mr. Morris was very unfortunate to lose his wife in 1886. He is a member of the Baptist Church.

Wiley O'Neal, farmer, was born in 1820, in North Carolina, and is the son of Samuel and Esther (Price) O'Neal, who were also born in North Carolina, dying there in 1839. He was a farmer by occupation. They had several children, but only one survives this union—the subject of this sketch, Wiley, who remained with his parents until their death. Having received a poor education, he started out in this world with a hard road to lead. He worked at farm work by the day until 1841, when he married Miss S. Perry, but she did not survive her married life long, dying without issue. Mr. O'Neal married his second wife in 1849, a Miss Elvira Allen, and had eight children, seven living, viz.: Elvira (married to Richard Lloyd), Wiley M. (married to Luster Bowles), William T. (married to Mer-niva Rainey), Sarah C. (married to Henry Perkins), Caroline (married to Newton Stokley), James S. and James C. Mr. O'Neal moved to the State of Missouri in 1855, and settled in the far west, in Jasper County, but not liking his location, he came to Iron County and purchased his present home, about two miles northeast of Des Arc, containing about 250 acres of valuable land, with some 100 acres cleared and in fine cultivation. Mr. O'Neal has, upon his children becoming of age, deeded them part of his homestead, leaving him 160 acres. Himself and family are members of the Baptist Church, and he is also a member of the Farmers' Alliance.

G. W. Phillips was born and reared near Nashville, Ill., and there spent his boyhood days. Having advantages for an education, he applied himself vigorously to his task and acquired an education, if not of the highest grade, one that will be useful in his life. About ten years ago his health failed, and thinking that a change of climate would benefit him, he moved to Belleview Valley, Iron Co., Mo., where he located on a farm of 260 acres, lying on a perfect square about two and a half miles northwest of Belleview. He now has 240 acres under cultivation, and a more beautiful place is not to be found. He has excellent buildings, good water supplies, a spring being in every field excepting one, and that is convenient for watering. A peculiar thing about the farm is, that the entire front is broadened by a general ridge, but his farming land is clear of all rocks. Immediately in front of the barn is a spring about three feet wide, gushing from beneath a huge bluff of solid rock, making a watering place the entire year, and being almost as cold as ice water. Taking all things into consideration, Mr. Phillips' farm is as fine and is as conveniently arranged as any in the State.

S. P. Rayburn was born in Iron County, October 22, 1858, and is the son of Samuel A. and Margaret Jane (Robinson) Rayburn. The father was born in Belleview, as was also the mother. Here they were married and here they reared their family. Their parents on both sides were natives of Virginia, and Grandfather Robinson was a soldier in the War of 1812. Of their family of six children, three are now living: S. P., Bettie and Margaret Jane. The father died May 1, 1888, at the age of sixty-three, having spent his entire life in this county and served the public as sheriff for four years, in what was then Washington County. He was a man highly esteemed by his countrymen, had led a life of usefulness, and had devoted much time in perfecting the present free school system, being a strong advocate of a thorough education. He had followed agricultural pursuits all his life, and was a good farmer. The mother is still living and is sixty-seven years of age. Their son, S. P. Rayburn, was married in 1881 to Miss Sallie Wyatt, of Iron County. To this union were born three children, all now living: Essie B., Mary and William A., who was named after his grandfather. Mr. Rayburn is a young man and is held in high esteem by the people of Iron County. In 1886 he was elected assessor over two competitors, and is at present a candidate for the same position. He is a blacksmith by trade but on account of his health was obliged to abandon this, and has since given his attention to farming. He owns 100 acres of land, eighty under cultivation. He and wife are members of the Presbyterian Church.

W. R. Read was born in Keokuk, Iowa, January 30, 1848, and is the son of William C. and Elizabeth (Relfe) Read. The father was born in Fulton, Callaway Co., Mo. and was married to Miss Relfe, a daughter of James H. Relfe, in Washington County, Mo. He then removed to Iowa and there followed his profession, that of law, but had only remained there but a short time when he lost his wife. He then returned to Washington County, but not with the intention of making it his home, but from there started for California, going down the Mississippi, in company with a number of friends from Fulton. After arriving at New Orleans he, with his friends, was on the top of the steamer viewing the beauties of the city, when the boiler exploded, and he was instantly killed. He was the father of two children, only one now living: William R. and James (deceased). William R. received good educational advantages, and took a thorough course in mathematics, but never completed the course sufficiently to receive a diploma. He also attended school for about two years in Fulton, Callaway Co., Mo. December 24, 1874, he married Miss Lucy R. McGready, of Potosi, Mo., and daughter of W. E. and Eliza McGready, old settlers of Washington County. Mr. Read has followed merchandising since leaving school and has been in business where he is now located since 1871. He and wife are members of the Presbyterian Church, and Mr. Read is a member of the Masonic fraternity.

August Rieke, merchant, was born in Germany September 26, 1846, and is a son of Andreas and Louise Rieke, born Lange, both natives of Germany. The father was born October 16, 1815, a farmer by occupation, and this he followed all his life in the old country. He died on October 11, 1887. He was the father of six children: Johanna, August, William, Louisa, Ernst and Hermine. August Rieke was reared on a farm in the old country, and was in the Prussian War 1870-71, being in some of the principal battles. He served two years in the regular service and one in the war. He was given a medal in 1871 for bravery displayed on the battle-field, and has the medal at the present time. He was also given a ribbon of Frederick William IV by his regiment, for bravery displayed in service, and was complimented on all sides for his gallantry in service. In 1874 he took passage at Bremen and sailed to New York, where he landed. From there he went to Ironton, where he has since resided most of his time, and worked as a laborer for two years. In 1877 he married Miss Dora Niedner, a native of Missouri. To them were born five children, of whom Matilda, Otto and Herman are living. In 1879 Mr. Rieke engaged in the saloon business, and has continued this ever since, operating the mercantile business in connection with it. He has been very successful in business, and is a good and prominent citizen. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., having passed the chairs in that organization. He is also a member of the encampment.

Anton Rochry, dealer in liquors at Ironton, was born in Alsace, France, on August 11, 1849, and is the son of Ignatz and Mary (Simon) Rochry, both natives of Alsace, France. Both parents are now living, and reside in their native country. Anton Rochry was reared in France, received a good education, and learned the shoemaker's trade, which occupation he followed for about five years, working in Paris and other large cities of the old countries. He was a soldier in the French army. In 1871 he sailed for America, taking passage at Liverpool and landing at New York. From there he went to Buffalo, where he worked at his trade for about seven months. He then went to Chicago, remained there a short time working in a brick-yard, and then went to Alton, thence to St. Louis, and later came to Iron Mountain, Mo. Here he was engaged in mining for some time, but went from there to Middlebrook, and from there to Graniteville, where he ran a restaurant and saloon for about two years. In 1876 he came to Ironton, and here he has since remained, engaged in the liquor business. In 1883 he made a trip to Europe to see his parents. He was married in 1883 to Miss Emma Mark, a native of Pittsburgh. To this union were born two children: Amiel and Mary. Mr. Rochry is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and of the I. O. O. F. lodge, having passed the chairs in the latter.

William Ruddock was born September 12, 1839, in St. Clair County, Ill., and is the son of John C. and Annie (Yearsleg) Ruddock. The father was born in Springfield, Mass., and immigrating westward, settled near Belleville, in St. Clair County, Ill., where William Ruddock was born. His mother was born in Newcastle County, Del., but came to Illinois when quite young, settling near Belleville, where she married John C. Ruddock, who was a very successful farmer. William Ruddock, subject of this sketch, married Miss Emma R. Coale, a native of the city of Baltimore, Md., but who was living in St. Clair County at the time of her marriage. She was the daughter of Jeremiah and Catherine Coale, who, at an early day, had removed to Belleville, St. Clair County, Ill., where she was married to Mr. Ruddock in 1864. To them were born four children, two now living: John C., named after his grandfather Ruddock, and William. Mr. Ruddock lived in Macon County, Ill., until 1883, having moved there from St. Clair County, in 1863, where he worked on his father's extensive farm for a number of years. In 1883 he came to Iron County, Mo., where he has since lived. During his residence in Macon County he was elected to the office of collector of revenue, which position he held for a period of two years. He is now school director in his own district, which position he has held almost since his first settlement in the county. He is also a member of the Farmers' Alliance, and by that organization was elected president of Lodge No. 120, Cedar Grove, which office he has held since its organization last August. Mr. Ruddock owns 309 acres of land, 100 acres being under cultivation.

Cyrus Russell, a prominent pioneer of Arcadia Township, was born in Connecticut in 1819, the son of Col. Cyrus and Rebecca (Pease) Russell, also natives of Connecticut. The father was born in 1795 and in his youth served in the State militia. In 1816 he married, and in 1838, with his family, came by team to Pittsburgh, and then by water went to Missouri, to the southeastern part. Here he entered 1,000 acres of land, most of which he improved, and was among the first citizens of that region. He held official positions most of his life, and although he was a member of the Congregational Church at first, he afterward became a Presbyterian, and was an organizer of the church at Iron-ton. He died in 1860. His children are Henry (deceased), Cyrus, Theodora P., Giles, William, Maria R. (now Mrs. Capt. John Smith), Flora A. (now Mrs. A. B. Guild), Frances H. (now Mrs. Dr. N. C. Griffith) and Harriet (now Mrs. Farrar). The mother died in 1870. The subject of this sketch attended school in Connecticut, a student with Frank Blair and Donald S. Mitchell. He lived with his parents in Missouri until 1849, when he returned east and was married. In 1851 he located where he now lives, and engaged in farming and carpentering, which has occupied him ever since. He helped build the old seminary at Arcadia, among other buildings. During the war he was taken prisoner while a skirmish was being fought on his place, near which the forces camped. He was not a soldier, however, not being accepted on account of ill health. After the war he resumed farming, and held the office of registrar for several years. Julia Dunham, his first wife, died soon after their marriage, and in 1853 he married Delia M. Clark, who was born in Connecticut in 1828. Of eight children the following are living: Julia (now Mrs. Rev. E. P. Keach), C. Sanford, Ebenezer and Sarah. Mr. and Mrs. Russell and family are members of the Presbyterian Church.

Judge Theodore P. Russell, a prominent farmer of Arcadia Township, was born in Connecticut in 1820. A sketch of his parents, Col. Cyrus and Rebecca P. (Pease) Russell, appears in the sketch of Cyrus Russell. The grandfather Russell was a soldier during the Revolution. The family are of English origin. The subject of this sketch was eighteen years of age when the family settled in Southeast Missouri, and lived on the old homestead (now known as Russellville) until twenty-six years of age. At that time he was married, and settled in the timber on a part of the old place, and cleared about 200 acres, of which he now has 132 acres under cultivation. About that time he was elected justice of the peace and served for eight years, and in 1860 was elected to the office of treasurer, but resigned in the following year to enlist in Company C, Sixty-eighth Missouri Militia, under Col. James Lindsey. After a month's encampment they were disbanded, but subject to government call at any time. They fought at Pilot Knob, and the first skirmish was on the Russellville farm. Since the war he has held the office of county and probate judge, being first appointed by the Governor, and afterward elected for a term of six years. For eleven years he had charge of seventy miles of highway as road overseer, and kept it in fine condition. His wife was formerly Miss Emily W. Guild, a native of New Hampshire, born in 1827. They were married in Pike County, Ill., her home. Twelve children have been born to them, of whom are living Charles W., Claudius C., Emily A., Maria A., Eliza E., John F., Nora A. and Alfred G. Those deceased are L. Kipp, Frederick P., William A. and Theodore. Those of the family interested in political and social questions are strong Prohibitionists.

J. H. Russell was born on May 29, 1823, in Washington County, Mo., and is the son of Alexander and Elizabeth (Rice) Russell. The father was born in Hawkins County, Tenn., and immigrated to Iron (then Washington) County when a young man. By his union to Miss Rice were born six children, two now living, Jefferson C. and J. H. Those deceased are Joseph, William, James M. and Moses. Alexander Russell came to Iron County in 1818, when large bands of friendly Indians roamed over the country. He could remember very distinctly when Missouri was admitted as a State, and could relate many interesting anecdotes connected with the early settlement of the country. J. H. Russell, during his boyhood days, had very meager educational advantages, as the schools were few and far between, but, notwithstanding this, by his own industry and determination, he has obtained a fair education. Mr. Russell has spent his entire life, with the exception of about three years, where he now lives, and remembers when the ground where Iron-ton is now located was one vast wilderness; when game of almost every kind was abundant, and remembers the opening of Iron Mountain and Pilot Knob—the great iron producing centers of Missouri. He was married in 1848 to Miss Estha J. Carsons, daughter of William Carsons, a native of Virginia. To this marriage were born eight children, five now living: William A., Julia A., John C., Mary R. and Amanda M. Those deceased are named as follows: Elizabeth J. (Mrs. Rayburn), James T. and Sarah J. During the late war Mr. Russell enlisted in Company C, of Col. White's Regiment Missouri Cavalry, but was afterward in the infantry organized in Oregon County, near Alton. He was captured in that county, sent to the Knob, from there to St. Louis, and from there to Alton, where he was paroled. He has been a farmer all his life, and had 600 acres of land, but divided with his children. Mr. Russell has always taken a great interest in the advancement of education, religion, etc., and has given freely and willingly to all. He is a member of the Farmers' Alliance, and he and wife are members of the Presbyterian Church, of which he has been an elder.

John Schwab, proprietor of the Ironton Manufacturing Company, was born in Siselen, Canton Berne, Switzerland, March 25, 1845, and is a son of John and Anna Schwab, both natives of Switzerland. They took passage at Havre for the United States in 1852, and landed at New Orleans after a voyage of fifty-two days. They then came up the Mississippi River, landing in Cape Girardeau County, where they remained for three years, the father engaged in farming. Mr. Schwab then took a trip up the Mississippi to St. Paul, but, not liking the city, came back and moved to Pilot Knob in 1856, when he worked in the mines until the breaking out of the late war. He then enlisted in the Home Guards, and served in that capacity six months. He was in the battle of Pilot Knob, was captain of the company, and lieutenant of the Home Guards. He is still living, and resides on a farm near Pilot Knob. The mother died July 4, 1880. They where the parents of nine children, five of whom are now living: John, Frederick, August William and Louis. The eldest child now living, John Schwab, was in his seventh year on arriving in America. He received a limited education in the common schools of America, and is self-educated in the English language. He remained with his parents until twenty-one years of age, but, previous to this, at the age of sixteen, he entered the Pilot Knob Iron Company's service as a clerk, where he remained until he was thirty years of age. In 1865 he married Miss Louisa Ranft, a native of England, of German descent, by whom he has ten children, seven now living: William, Louisa, Mary, John, Benjamin, Clara and August. At the age of thirty Mr. Schwab went to Graniteville, where he entered into the mercantile business for himself. This he carried on for five years, and then leased the St. Louis Ore and Steel Company's store, which he operated for three years and three months, keeping both stores going until the lease ran out. In 1882 he came to Ironton and engaged in the milling business, which he has continued ever since. The mill is owned by a stock company, and is run under a full roller process, with a capacity of seventy-five barrels every twenty-four hours. They ship to all points south, and do a good business. Mrs. Schwab is a member of the Lutheran Church.

John W. Speck, farmer and liveryman, was born in County York, Bridlington Quay, England, September 7, 1835, and is the son of John and Ann (Gething) Speck, natives of England and Wales, respectively. The father was a large cattle dealer in England, which business he followed until retiring entirely from active pursuits. They both died in England, and were the parents of three children, only one, our subject, now living. He was reared in England, and received a liberal education, graduating at Ford's College in England. In 1858 he sailed for America, taking passage at Liverpool on the steamer "Inman." He landed at Quebec, thence going to Montreal and Toronto. He remained in Canada until the spring of 1859, when he went to Dubuque, Iowa, and there worked by day's work, learning the habits of the people. In June, 1859, he came to Ironton, and engaged in the butcher business, which he followed for about twenty-five years. He then engaged in the livery business, which he follows at the present time, but is also engaged in farming. He owns a beautiful residence on his farm, and is very comfortably fixed. He was engaged in the stock business for a couple of years. In 1863 he married Miss Margaret Stevens, of Kentucky. She is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Mr. Speck is an intelligent and enterprising man, and is successful in his business.

E. C. Tual, blacksmith, Arcadia, was born in Medford, Burlington Co., N. J., in February, 1832, and is a son of Samuel and Elizabeth Tual, both natives of New Jersey, and of French-English descent. The great-great-grandfather was born in Germany, and immigrated to New Jersey, from whence this branch of the family sprung. The great-grandfather and grandfather were both born in New Jersey. The latter was in the Revolutionary War. He lived and died in New Jersey. He was a farmer by occupation. The father was a carpenter by trade, which he followed nearly all his days. He served in the War of 1812, and died in 1860. The mother died several years previous. They were the parents of nine children, six of whom are now living: Martha (resides in Hattenfield, N. J.), Ezra C., Samuel (in Toledo, Ohio), Elizabeth (in Bordentown, N. J.), Elwood (in West Unity, Ohio), George (in Hattenfield, N. J.). Those deceased are Charles, Angeline and Hattie. The subject of this sketch was raised in Burlington County, N. J., receiving a liberal education. At the age of sixteen years he went to learn the blacksmith's trade, and served a four years' apprenticeship, afterward following his trade in New Jersey until 1853, when he went to Australia. Later, he was engaged in mining and blacksmithing through Australia, South America and the Indies. He remained in this climate until 1859, when he returned to New Jersey, and in the same year traveled west, stopping about two years in Illinois. In 1859 he came to Missouri, and located in Arcadia, Iron County, where he has since made his home, with the exception of a few years. He spent about two years in Montana and the Black Hills, being engaged in mining and blacksmithing. He has been a citizen of Iron County since 1859. Mr. Tual was married in 1853 to Viana Evans, a native of Missouri, by whom he has seven children, six now living: Selden, George, Charles, Elwood, Gracie and Willie. The one deceased was Fannie. Mrs. Tual is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. Mr. Tual is an enterprising and successful man.

Father L. C. Wernert, of the Arcadia College, was born in Alleghany City, Penn., November 3, 1832, and is the son of Joseph and Teresa (Schieb) Wernert, both natives of Germany. They immigrated to America in their youth, and located in Alleghany City, where they were married, and where they resided all their lives. The father died in 1854, and the mother in 1869. They were the parents of three children, only two now living: John (who resides in Paw Paw, Van Buren County, Mich.) and Lawrence C. The father of these children was a contractor and builder, which trade he learned in the old country. He put up quite a number of buildings in Alleghany City. Father L. C. Wernert was reared in Alleghany City, Penn., and there he received his education. He was employed in a dry-goods store in that city for three years, and in 1868 he entered St. Francis Seminary, Milwaukee, Wis., and was ordained in 1876. He was immediately appointed assistant to Father Hennessey, of Iron Mountain, and remained there until 1880. He was then appointed pastor at Arcadia and surroundings. This is one of the largest Catholic institutions in the State of Missouri outside of the large cities. The school and church organization are both in a prosperous condition.

Isaac G. Whitworth, Sr., ex-county treasurer and merchant, was born in Madison County, Ga., November 19, 1816, and is the son of Winston and Sarah (Albright) Whitworth, the former a native of North Carolina, and the latter a native of Georgia. In 1819 they immigrated to Cape Girardeau County, Mo., in wagons, and were several weeks making the trip. They located near Perry County, where they remained only a few years, being one of the early settlers of that county. In 1827 they removed to Madison County, where they purchased a farm, and there remained until Mr. Whitworth's death, which occurred at the age of eighty-three years, in 1870. The mother died in 1884, aged eighty-seven years. Of their twelve children, eight grew to maturity, and six are now living: Isaac G., Elizabeth, John A., William D., Polly W. and George W. Isaac G. Whitworth remained on his father's farm until twenty years of age, when he engaged in saddling and blacksmithing and keeping groceries at the same time, for about eight years, and then went back to the farm, where he married, and where he followed agricultural pursuits for about ten years. He also engaged in lumbering and milling. His marriage, which occurred in 1846, was to Miss Nancy B. White, a native of Madison County. To them were born nine children, six now living: John W., Mary J., James M., William H., Sarah P. (Mrs. W. R. Edgar) and Isaac G., Jr. Mr. Whitworth was in the lumber business from 1856 to 1862, exclusively, running a saw mill, and employing a number of men. In 1862 he removed to Arcadia, Iron County, in order to educate his children. In 1864 he engaged in merchandising, and removed shortly afterward to Ironton, where he has since been engaged in the same business, the firm being known as Whitworth & Sons. They carry a general line of merchandise, with a good stock. Mr. Whitworth was elected county treasurer in 1878, and served for six consecutive years. He has held a number of school offices, city treasurer, city councilman and was justice of the peace for a number of years while in Madison County. Mr. and Mrs. Whitworth are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and he is also a member of the Masonic fraternity, of which he was treasurer for many years.

William H. Whitworth, county treasurer and merchant, was born in Madison County, Mo., March 7, 1855, and is a son of Isaac G. Whitworth, whose sketch precedes this. William H. was reared principally in Iron County, and when quite young began assisting his father in merchandising, which business he has since followed. He was elected county treasurer in 1884, and still holds that position. He is an intelligent young man, full of energy, tact and ability.

P. W. Whitworth, sheriff of Iron County, is a native of Madison County, Mo., born on February 26, 1856, and is the son of John A. and Pressia (White) Whitworth, both natives of Madison County, also. The father is a tiller of the soil, and still resides in his native county. The grandparents were early settlers of that county. P. W. Whitworth was reared to farm life, and remained at home until his marriage, which occurred March 21, 1874, to Miss Mary C. Tidwell, a native of Iron County, Mo. This union resulted in the birth of four children: Clarence E., Charles Goff and George W. The one deceased was named John A. After marriage Mr. Whitworth located on a farm near Fredericktown, where he resided until 1879, when he moved to Ironton, and there has since resided. He was engaged in mining for about two years, and clerked in the store of Whitworth & Sons for about four years. In 1886 he was elected sheriff of Iron County, and still holds that position. He is a good citizen and a man well respected. Mrs. Whitworth is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Bernard Zwart, attorney-at-law and notary public at Ironton, Mo., is also United States Commissioner of the Circuit Court for the Eastern District of Missouri, having been appointed to that office at the termination of his term as Collector of Internal Revenue, in June 1869. He was born near Amsterdam, Holland, September 9, 1827, and having received a liberal education, entered the banking house of Oppenheim Bros. as youngest clerk, and in less than two years, was, step by step, promoted to cashier in 1845. His parents, Lambert J. Zwart and Cecilia M. A. (Muller) Zwart, were both born in Holland, and his father was the first to introduce the use of steam, for manufacturing purposes, in his native country in 1834, having a large soap factory and oil mill, in connection therewith. In the year stated Mr. Zwart, Sr., purchased two steam engines to run his said factories, and also a steam flour mill, and carried on business in partnership with his brother-in-law, quite extensively, but, belonging to the anti-administration party, as he was a staunch Democrat, he came frequently in controversy with officers of the government, causing repeated audiences with the King of Holland, on one of which occasions he felt compelled, by reason of the King's ungentlemanly behavior toward him, to remind the King, that, having the power, he might order him out of the palace, but that he should beware, for he (Mr. Zwart) would spend the last guilder of money he had to let the people of Holland know what a tyrant their king was. After this he concluded to immigrate to America, arriving here with his family in 1848, provided with letters of recommendation from merchants in Amsterdam, to merchants in New Orleans, where he landed. Shortly after he started for Iowa, where he intended to locate; stopping a few days at St. Louis, the family reached Keokuk about June 20, 1848, and from there started to Wappello County, where they arrived on July 4. Mr. Zwart, Sr., bought a tract of land there, and to some extent tried farming, but none of the family having any experience in that line, this was abandoned in December, 1849, the family returning to Keokuk, where Mr. Zwart, Sr., commenced business as a contractor and builder, and, being a competent architect, he soon had plenty of work. Amongst others, he built some of the first large brick store-buildings on the levee, also the old medical college and hospital. Shortly after coming to Keokuk, Mr. Bernard Zwart, at the suggestion of Gen. (then Col.) Curtis, began to read law, applying his leisure hours for that purpose, but did not then continue the same, having more pressing business to attend to, clerking for his father, who, shortly after began the construction of public works, and also began the business of lime burning, on a then newly patented plan. It was at this time that Mr. Bernard Zwart invented some new and useful improvements in the matter of the construction of lime-kilns, and obtained a patent therefor from the United States. Shortly after, he removed to Carondelet, to superintend the erection of a kiln on his plan at that place, and it was here that Mr. Zwart, Sr., died April 30, 1860, from heart disease. His widow followed him January 23, 1875. The war commencing in April, 1861, all business in his line being suspended thereby, Mr. Zwart again took up his law studies, and shortly after organized the Second Regiment, Enrolled Missouri Militia, at Carondelet, and was appointed captain of one of the companies, having perfected the organization of the whole regiment in ten days. He was in active service, guarding the gunboats for a short period, when he resigned in June, 1863, to take charge of the organization of the provost-marshal's office for the draft, at Ironton, Mo., and remained in that place until the close of the war. He then applied for admission to the bar, and having passed a satisfactory examination, he began the practice of law, in partnership with Col. James A. Greason, in 1865. In May, 1867, he was appointed Collector of Revenue for the Second Collection District of Missouri, by President Johnson, and held this office until after President Grant's inauguration, and until June, 1869, having achieved quite a reputation in the department as an efficient and reliable officer. Having returned to the law practice in Ironton, he was on April 25, 1870, admitted to practice in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Missouri, and on the 18th of May, 1871, also in the District Court of the United States, for the Districts of Missouri. Since then he has applied himself steadily to the practice of law, and acquired the reputation of a painstaking and able lawyer, who does not allow the interest of his clients to suffer, if work on his part can prevent it; and as a result he commands a good and paying practice. In December, 1850, he was married to Miss Cornelia M. J. Henriët, whose father was born in France, and after the fall of Napoleon I, came to Holland, and in 1848 to America. Mr. and Mrs. Zwart have five children living, the eldest, Dr. B. H. Zwart, practicing in Kansas City, and with whom is also the second son, Albert, now nearly twenty-one years old, who is employed as bookkeeper and cashier of the National Exposition Company, in Kansas City; the second child, Henriëtte Marie (wife of W. H. Reese), the third, Rena M. (wife of David F. Reese, the Reese brothers being merchants at Ironton, Mo.) and Joseph J. A. E. Zwart, the youngest, still attending college. In 1868 Mr. Bernard Zwart was one of the delegates at large from the State of Missouri to the National Democratic Convention at New York, which nominated Messrs. Seymour and Blair as Democratic candidates for President and Vice-President that year. Mr. and Mrs. Zwart are both Catholics, and have been instrumental in securing the college at Arcadia for a convent for the Ursuline Nuns. They are in possession of an old family Bible which was published in 1746, and contains the family record since February 2, 1664, on which day the great-great-grandparents, in the seventh generation back, were married, and since which time the record has been kept up continuously, and in 1746 transferred from the old to the present Bible, each successive head of family recording the births, marriages and deaths of the several members, as they occurred, this record being in the Holland language. Mr. Bernard Zwart completed the work therein begun by his father, to draw a genealogical table of the whole family since 1664, at the proper places supplemented by genealogical trees, showing the different branches of the family; he has also translated into the English language the whole of the record, except a few words at one place, referring to some public calamity, which words have, from old age, become illegible. This old Bible is prized very highly by the whole family, and deserves more than passing notice by reason of its age, and record of so many generations. Mr. Zwart has also been prosecuting attorney for Iron County, and was quite prominent in politics from 1865 to 1872, when, after the adoption of the amendments to the Drake constitution, by which the old citizens of the State were again enabled to exercise the right of franchise, he withdrew therefrom, and since then has attended to his practice and duties connected therewith. His reputation is very high, and he is much esteemed and respected by all who know him, having always faithfully performed every trust committed to his care. In 1886 he received from his former fellow-citizens of Keokuk, Iowa, a formal invitation to attend the tri-State annual meeting of the old settlers of Keokuk and vicinity, but business preventing this, he was obliged to send his regrets for the kind regard thus shown him by his former fellow-citizens of twenty years before. Being a man of a good constitution, Mr. Zwart may live for many years yet to come.

WAYNE COUNTY.

John C. Adams is a son of Elam L. and Jane C. (McNeely) Adams, who were born in 1801 and 1808, and died in 1862 and 1866, respectively. They came to Missouri from their native State (North Carolina) over-land by wagon in 1825. They located near Jackson, and here the father worked at wagon making and farming, and was for some time justice of the peace. They were the parents of the following children: Mary A. (Wood), Sarah L. (Hill), Silas M., John C. and George W., who died, leaving a wife and three children. John C. resided on the home farm until 1880, when he went to Barton County, Mo., and farmed until 1885. He then sold out, and came to Wayne County, where he now has an excellent farm of 200 acres. In 1865 he married Mrs. Lillie C. Wilson (Howard), born in Cape Girardeau County in 1839, and a daughter of Thomas and Elizabeth Wilson. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson were the parents of eleven children, the following of whom are living: Alphonso, Mary Ann (McNeely), Addison and Lillie C. The father died in 1854, and the mother in 1870. Mrs. Adams had two children by her first marriage: Ivy (Robb) and Jeffie. The latter is deceased. Mr. and Mrs. Adams are the parents of the following family: Gustie (deceased), Louie (Hunter) Byrn, Rush, Luna and Gile. They are members of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. Mr. Adams served in Jeffers' regiment during the war.

John M. Alexander was born in Smith County, Tenn., in the year 1834, and is the son of Harmon and Margaret (Johnson) Alexander, who were born in North Carolina. His father was a farmer by occupation. He died in the year 1840, leaving a widow and six children: Richard W., Susan J., John M., Allen W., Amanda G. and James. John received a common school education, and had to work hard to help support his mother and the rest of the family. The family came to Missouri in 1852, locating in Wayne County, where they rented land until 1855, when John purchased a tract of land, which he afterward sold. In 1856 he commenced to learn the blacksmith's trade under Daniel Roberts; in 1857 worked with William Cressay, and during that year put up a shop of his own. In 1859 he began the manufacture of plows, wagons, etc., carrying on general smithing, which he has continued in connection with farming to the present time. In 1869 he bought his present home, a farm consisting of 314 acres, with about 100 in cultivation, with good dwellings and out-houses. He married his first wife in 1862 (Catherine Miller), and had eight children, seven now living: Eliza (married to H. Biggerstaff), Mary V., Ellen, Nancy, Emma D., Robert R. and Alice. Mrs. Alexander died in 1878, and he married, the same year, Mrs. Brown, a daughter of John Endaley. They have three children: Leroy, Willis and Esther. Mr. Alexander is a member of the Masonic lodge at Williamsville. He and three of his daughters are members of the Missionary Baptist Church. Mrs. Alexander and two of her daughters are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

William D. Allard was born in Wayne County, Mo., in February, 1854, and is the son of John and Maria (Pollard) Allard, who were both born in this county. Mr. Allard, Sr., served in the Rebel army during the entire war, and was wounded, receiving a ball in the left side from a Winchester. After the war he returned to this county and resumed farming, and died in 1869, leaving three children. William lived with his father until his death, and then commenced to fight through life for himself, his mother having died before her husband. He married in 1882 Miss Fannie Jackson, and they have had three children, only one of whom is living, Charley S. He became a widower, and married his second wife in 1885, Miss Cordelia Conner, and they are the parents of two children, Effa and a baby. He owns 110 acres of land, of which there are fifty-four under cultivation, with a good dwelling and barn. He values the land at $10 an acre. He is a Democrat in politics.

David J. Allen, banker and broker, of Piedmont, Mo., is a son of James and Mary (Blassengane) Allen, and was born in Humphreys County, Tenn., on the 16th day of February, 1841. His father and mother were natives, respectively, of Virginia and North Carolina. The fathers of both Mr. and Mrs. Allen were Revolutionary soldiers, and helped to free America from the British yoke. Mrs. Allen's ancestors were French, and settled in South Carolina in a very early day. James Allen was reared in Virginia, but when quite a young man immigrated to Tennessee, where he enlisted in the army, during the War of 1812, and was a gallant officer, under Gen. Jackson, at the battle of New Orleans. His death occurred in Kentucky, in 1847. The mother died in 1887, over eighty years of age. At the age of nine years, D. J. Allen, the subject of this sketch, came with his mother to Missouri, locating in Stoddard County, near Bloomfield, where the mother purchased a farm, and spent the remainder of her days. When fifteen years old he began clerking in a store, which occupation he continued to follow until the breaking out of the late Civil War, when he enlisted in Company A, Second Kentucky Regiment, under Col. Rodger W. Hanson, who commanded this regiment in the Confederate army. He was captured at the battle of Fort Donelson, and taken to Camp Douglass, in Chicago, Ill., where he was confined as a prisoner of war for more than seven months. When exchanged he rejoined his regiment, but was soon after taken sick, and sent to the hospital at Knoxville, Tenn., and from thence discharged from the army. He now returned to his adopted home in Southeast Missouri, and located in Commerce, Scott County, where he engaged as a clerk in the dry goods store of William Burgess, and at the end of eighteen months, owing to his many good qualities, was admitted as a partner, under the firm name of Burgess & Allen. Two years later Mr. Allen became sole proprietor, and continued the business alone, until 1866, when he moved his store to Kennett, in Dunklin County, Mo., it being the first stock of goods carried to that place, after the war had closed. In 1877 he located at Piedmont, in Wayne County, Mo., where he continued in the mercantile business until the winter of 1888. At that date his large brick and frame store buildings, together with his stock of general merchandise, were destroyed by fire, his loss being over $16,000, with only $9,000 insurance. Since that time Mr. Allen has been engaged in a financial and brokerage business. He has been a valuable and enterprising citizen of Wayne County, and being a staunch Democrat, has been honored by his party by being sent as a delegate to represent them in nearly all the State and congressional conventions since he has resided in Wayne County, and is at present a member of the Democrat State central committee, from the Fourteenth Congressional District. He is Master of Wayne Lodge No. 526, A. F. & A. M., at Piedmont, also a member of the I. O. O. F. In 1865 he was married to the beautiful and accomplished Miss Lizzie Burgess, of Cape Girardeau, Mo., sister of his former business partner. Mr. Allen has been very successful in all his business undertakings, but unfortunately has no children to inherit his name and fortune. He had a son, David J. Allen, Jr., who was the idol of himself and wife, but who was called away from them in death, on the 11th day of January, 1881, at the age of fourteen years.

John G. Allen first saw the light of day in Jackson County, Tenn., and is the son of William and Martha (Dodson) Allen. The father was also born in Jackson County, where he lived and married, but shortly afterward removed to the western part of the State, where he resided until coming to Wayne County, Mo., in 1885. Here he engaged in agricultural pursuits. He took part in the late war as a private under Benjamin Holmes, but before he received his discharge, died of dropsy, at Schneider's Bluff, Ark. His widow is still living in this county, and enjoying good health at the age of sixty. They had eight children, five boys and three girls, six of them now living: John G., Martha, James W., Louis J., Charles P. and Elias. Mr. John Allen was married for the first time on April 12, 1851, to Martha E. Eads, and had one child, now living, Charles H. He was married again November 22, 1874, to Matilda Odell, a widow with one child, Mary Lucinda Odell. By the latter union there are four children, Viola, John Thomas, Laura H. and an infant. In his boyhood days the country was not much settled, and educational advantages were very limited, and Mr. Allen only went to school about four months after he reached manhood, but was taught at home and has a good education. He principally occupied his time at farming, though giving his attention some to photography and blacksmithing. He and Mrs. Allen are members of the Missionary Baptist Church. Mr. Allen is a member of the Farmers' Alliance and Union League. His farm consists of eighty-one acres of land, forty under cultivation, upon which is a fine orchard consisting of a variety of fruits.

Dr. John L. Allison was born in Madison County, Ill., and is the son of Jesse and Mary (Foley) Allison. His mother was from Virginia, and the father from Kentucky. He served with distinction in the War of 1812-15 under Col. Taylor, dying in 1860, leaving two children, James G. and John L. The latter was educated in the common schools of Highland, Ill. He concluded to study medicine as a profession, and pursued his studies under F. R. Durrett, of Arrow Rock, Mo., and afterward took lectures at the Missouri Medical College, where he graduated. He entered the Southern army at the outbreak of the war and enlisted in Capt. Jamison's company, in which he served about ten days, when he was captured and taken prisoner. He took the oath of allegiance to the United States and was allowed to return home to Cooper County, Mo. In 1863 he moved to Madison County, Ill., and resumed the practice of his profession. In 1868 he moved to this State and located at Greenville. In 1875 he purchased his present home consisting of a fine tract of land containing 620 acres, fifty-five of which are in cultivation, and well improved. In 1856 he married his first wife, Amanda F. Ried, and has four children, William S., Georgie L., Ellee and Elwood B. His second wife was Miss Nancy L. Macom, and four children were born by this marriage, P. Harmon, Ora A., John D. and Tony L. Dr. Allison is a member of the Masonic lodge and also of the Odd Fellows. He and his wife and daughter Ellee are members of the Missionary Baptist Church.

William Bennett was born in Wayne County, Mo., in December, 1828, and is the son of Coleman and Elizabeth (Smith) Bennett. His parents were born in Kentucky, and came to Wayne County with their parents in a very early day. They settled on Bear Creek, twelve miles north of Greenville, on a farm which they afterward purchased. Moving from there to Arkansas, they lived there about twelve years, and then returned to Wayne County, Mo., where he lost his wife, after which he moved to Stoddard County, Mo., in which place he died in 1875. Eleven children survived him, four of whom are living: Perry C., Thomas Ransom and William, the subject of this sketch. He lived with his father until he married, at the age of nineteen, Miss Mary J. Ward, and they have had fourteen children, eleven living: Mary E. (married to John W. Childers, and has six in the family), James A. (married first to Becky Henderson, second to Harriet Ward, and they have three children), John F. (married to Phebe McColster, and has three children), Frederick M. (married to Elizabeth Wallace, has five children), George Washington (married to Ellen Smith, has one child), Perry Coleman (married to Jane Neighbors, has two in the family), Thomas J. (married May J. Davis), Sarah C., Marion A., Larkin and Noah R. After his marriage he followed farming on different places in the county, until 1861, when he moved to Stoddard County, where he stayed four years, and then returned to Wayne County, where he has lived ever since. In 1861, not caring to go to the war, he put in a substitute by the name of Micajah Dorsey, for a period of six months, allowing him his wages in the meantime. He purchased his present home in 1867, consisting of 394 acres, of which 100 acres are in cultivation, well improved, with all suitable out-buildings and dwellings. He has deeded part of his property to his children, besides buying other lands and deeding it to his many sons. Mr. Bennett and wife, as well as eight of his children and their families, are members of the Baptist Church.

C. A. Bennett, county judge and merchant, is a native of Barbour County, Ala., born February 24, 1841. His parents, John and Eliza (Whittimore) Bennett, were born in Alabama and North Carolina, respectively. They moved to Georgia, thence to Tennessee, where the father died in 1859, and the same year the mother and family came to Wayne County, Mo. They farmed on Cedar Creek until 1871, when they followed farming in a different portion of the county until 1879. Since then they have resided in Greenville. The mother resides with her son C. A. She and her husband were the parents of ten children, eight of whom are living: Amanda E., Clayton A., Emeline, Mary J., Susan J., Sutton, Frances, Starkey, James, John, Sarah and Lucy. The two last named are deceased. C. A. Bennett resided at home until the beginning of the war, and in 1862 joined the State militia. In 1864 he joined Company H, Forty-Seventh Missouri Volunteers, and served until April, 1865, when he was ordered to Nashville to go on Hood's raid. He was at Pilot Knob during the Price raid of 1864. He was mustered out in 1865, and came home and resumed farming. He owns about 700 acres of land, 275 acres of which are under cultivation. Since 1876 he has been engaged in the mercantile business in Greenville, and is doing well financially. He occupies and owns three buildings. In 1867 he was appointed deputy sheriff and collector under L. H. Linville. A year later he was elected sheriff and collector, and held the position for four years. In 1882 he was elected county treasurer. Two years later he was elected county judge of the Second District, and still holds the office to the entire satisfaction of all concerned. He is secretary of the central Democratic committee and has been for several years. He belongs to the following secret organizations: Masons, I. O. O. F., A. O. U. W., and the Grange. Mr. Bennett is a prominent man of Wayne County, and stands high in the estimation of the people. He was married in 1871 to Lucy A. Short, a daughter of Judge W. F. Short, and by her became the father of two children, who are now deceased. Mr. and Mrs. Bennett are members of the Christian Church.

John H. Bennett was born in Wayne County, in 1850, and is the son of John W. and Eliza (Whittimore) Bennett. The father was a native of Tennessee, and died before John H. was born. His mother came over here with relatives, and settled on Bennett's Creek, in the north part of this county, and is at present living with her son. At twenty-four, he married Miss Lucinda Duncan, and has two children, Maggie and Addie. When he started out for himself he purchased his present home, which contains eighty acres of land, with about fifty-five in cultivation. He was school commissioner in 1884-85. Mrs. Bennett is a member of the Baptist Church.

Richard E. Buehler, circuit clerk and recorder, of Wayne County, Mo., was born in Liban, Russia, September 16, 1836. His parents, Edward and Hedwig Buehler, were born in Berlin, Prussia, and afterward immigrated to Russia, where the father kept a book and stationer's store. In 1849 he and his son Richard came to the United States, landing in New York after a two months' ocean voyage. On their way from that city to Albany, N. Y., the steamer "Swallow," on which they sailed, was sunk, and some 200 people perished. Among those rescued were our subject and his father. They went back to New York, and went by rail to Pittsburgh, Penn., and then went by boat to Cincinnati, where the father remained in business until 1856. He then went to St. Louis, Mo., but in 1866 returned to Europe, and returned in 1868 and located in Chicago, and was burned out in the great Chicago fire in 1871. He died in that city in 1879. Richard E. Buehler remained with his father until 1855, when he went to Covington, Ky., where he opened and took charge of the first telegraph office, and worked at that business until 1857, when he went to the Rocky Mountains, and was absent until 1860. Upon his return he located in Belvidere, Ill., and worked at telegraphing until 1861, when he joined the United States Military Telegraphing Corps, and served in this capacity until the close of the war. He was stationed at New Madrid, Patterson, St. Louis and Fort Scott. At the close of the war he located in Patterson, where he followed merchandising until 1873, and then followed the same business in Piedmont until 1880. Since that time he has been a resident of Greenville. In 1882 he was elected circuit court clerk and recorder of the county, and has held the office ever since. He was married in 1864 to Mary E. English, a native of Cape Girardeau County, Mo., and by her is the father of four children: Edwin F., Frederick E., Laura and Ella M. (wife of John D. Settle). Mr. Buehler is a member of the Masonic fraternity, the K. of P. and the I. O. O. F.

George W. H. Butler was born in Wayne County, Mo., and is the son of George F. and Nancy (Kennel) Butler. His parents are both natives of Tennessee. He immigrated to this State in the early days, crossing the country in wagons, and locating in Wayne County, on the place now owned and occupied by his son. He served during the entire War of the Revolution. He died in 1833. Of his twelve children only three are living: Mary Ann, Eliza J. and George W., the subject of this sketch. His father dying when he was three months old, he was raised by his mother, and worked for her till he was grown to manhood. In 1861 he married his first wife, Miss Lenora Johnson, daughter of Lewis Johnson, of Wayne County. His family consisted of three children. One only is living: Lewis J. Mr. Butler entered the army in 1862, enlisting in Company I, commanded by Col. White, in which company he served three years. He was in the battles of Pleasant Hill and Saline River. After the war he returned home, and went to farming. His first wife died in 1875. He married again, in 1876, Miss Sirelda Kirkpatrick, and has one child: Hardy M. Mr. Butler owns 534 acres of land. The homestead consisted of eighty acres of land, entered by himself and brother. He bought the latter's share, and improved the entire tract with dwellings and out-houses. On his place, near Greenville, this county, he has in cultivation about thirty acres. Mr. Butler is a member of the Farmers' Alliance. He owns the Butler ferry across the St. Francis River, and which bears his name. His Greenville land he values at $5 an acre (400 acres), but his home property he values at $10 an acre. In politics he is Democratic. Mrs. Butler is a member of the Missionary Baptist Church.

John T. Butts, manager of H. N. Holladay's mercantile business, was born in Dunklin County, this State, in 1860, and is the son of Cyrus A. and Nancy H. Butts. The father was born in Tennessee, in 1836, and was married to Nancy H. Meade in 1856. The mother was born in Indiana, in 1837. They came to Missouri in 1858, and followed farming and cabinet-making as an occupation. They finally went to Texas, where they still reside. They had eleven children, seven living, John T., William A., Reuben F., Ella, Minnie, Hattie and Maggie. John T. received a common public school education in Dunklin and Iron Counties, and at the age of eighteen started out in life for himself as a telegraph operator, which he followed up to the strike of 1881, after which he was with Hohenthal Brothers, general merchandise, at Fredericktown, Mo., for four years, quitting that place to accept his present position with Hiram N. Holladay, filling it with credit to himself and employers. He married, in 1884, Miss Lizzie Newman, daughter of Thomas and Jane Newman, of Ironton, Mo. He has two children, Maud E. and Anna Z.

S. H. Carson, collector of Wayne County, Mo., and a native of Sevier County, Tenn., first saw the light of day on the 14th of April, 1839. His parents, Robert and Rebecca (Gunn) Carson, were born in the same State as himself. They moved to Georgia in 1847, where they afterward made their home, the former dying in 1865, and the latter in Tennessee, in 1842. Of their eight children, three are living, James, Elizabeth and Stephen H. The latter was reared in Georgia on his father's farm, and in 1861 enlisted in Company G, Ninth Georgia Regiment, and served until the cessation of hostilities. He participated in all the engagements in Virginia, except one, being in twenty-six engagements and fifty-seven skirmishes. He received a gun-shot wound in the thigh at the second battle of Manassas, and at a later period had his right thigh broken at the battle of Antietam. At Fort Harrison he had his left arm broken by a gun-shot, and also had his left thigh broken at Cumberland Church, and was left behind to recuperate. In 1869 he came to Wayne County, Mo., and located at Mill Springs, where he taught school for several years and then was employed for some time in a store. He was tax assessor for four years, and in 1886 was elected county collector, which position he still holds. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and is an intelligent and enterprising citizen.

Zedekiah Catron was born in 1855 in this county, and is the son of S. and E. (Kirkpatrick) Catron, who were also born in this county, their ancestors coming here in the early days, as pioneers of the country, when land was obtained by right of settlement. The parents of Zedekiah died during the war, leaving three children, John, Mary (married to Charles Morgan) and Zedekiah. He was nine years old when his parents died. He had to start out in life for himself at an early age, but by energy and pluck has managed to hold on to his share of his father's property, upon which he has built himself a very nice home. His farm consists of 120 acres of land, with about sixty acres in cultivation. He married in 1882 Miss Emma J. Estes, by whom he has had two children.

George W. Cook was born in Alleghany County, Pa., February 22, 1832, and is the son of John and Lydia Cook. His father left for California when George was quite young, and went through by land with a team in 1834, and upon his arrival at that place was taken sick and died. His widow did not survive him long, leaving George an orphan. He worked his way west, and stopped in Wayne County, in May, 1859, locating near his present home, and by hard work and great energy he saved enough to buy a home for himself. He married Miss Margaret Miller February 13, 1870, and had eight children, five living: Lydia, Jennie A., Martha Iva, Mary E. and William W. Mrs. Cook was born in Wayne County, Mo., September 2, 1851. Mr. Cook purchased his present home in 1875. It contains 156 acres, about forty of which are cleared. He donated four acres to build a Missionary Baptist Church, of which he and his daughter Lydia are members. Mr. Cook lost his wife in a very unfortunate manner. Her clothes caught fire, and before assistance could be given her she was burned to death.

William Creasy, a farmer and blacksmith of Wayne County, Mo., is one of the oldest men in the county, and was born in Bedford County, Va., in 1804. He is a son of William and Mary (Mason) Creasy, and a grandson of John Creasy, who was a native of Virginia, and there followed the occupation of farming. He lived to be ninety-eight years of age, and was the father of a large family. His son William lived in Virginia until 1829, when he moved to Tennessee, and in 1847 came to Southeast Missouri, and here died the same year. He was the father of a large family of children, all of whom are dead except the subject of this biography, who made his home with his parents until he reached the age of twenty years. He learned the blacksmith's trade, and for about eight months worked for a man by the name of Overstreet. He was married soon after, and continued to follow his trade. He moved to Tennessee, thence to Missouri, at the same time his parents moved here, and purchased a tract of fertile land. He did the first blacksmithing that was done in Wayne County, and the shop which he first built is still standing. As his shop was the only one for many miles around at that time, he had a great deal of custom, and his wife would often help him wield the sledge. He is the father of twenty-two children, eleven by his first wife, Bashaba Taylor, and eleven by his second wife, Ellen Smith. His first children, who are living, are Charlotte (Moss), Martha (Rhubottom), Tabitha (Moss), Lixa, Drue, Bashaba (Short), Esther (Pigg) and George. The deceased are Alexander, Deliah and Columbus. The children by his second marriage, who are living, are Harriet (Hughes), Mary A. (Rhodes), Lee, Ed, Robert and Laura. John, LaFayette, Joel William and Pernelia are deceased. Mr. and Mrs. Creasy have a good farm of 223 acres.

G. W. Creath, proprietor of the Commercial Hotel at Piedmont, Mo., is a son of William and Martha (Atkins) Creath, and was born in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., August 12, 1828. The father and mother were born in North Carolina and Virginia, respectively, and came to Missouri about 1824, and to Wayne County in 1828. He purchased land where Greenville now stands, and also carried on merchandising quite extensively, purchasing his goods in New York and Philadelphia. He was a very prominent man, and a well-to-do citizen. He died in 1839, and the mother in 1871. They were the parents of ten children, only two of whom are living: George W. and Carroll. G. W. Creath was reared in Wayne County, and received such education as the schools of that day afforded. At the age of eleven years he went to Jackson and learned the printer's trade, and at the end of four years went to St. Louis, where he worked at his trade for about two years. He then came back to Greenville and followed merchandising for several years. In 1852 he was elected circuit and county clerk of Wayne County, which position he filled until 1866. He also carried on farming on a large scale, and owned quite a large number of negroes. In 1872 he moved to Piedmont, where he has since resided, and owns considerable property. He has been married four times; in 1853 to Pernecia Plott, of Arkansas, by whom he had three children, one living, Charles. Malinda (McClintock) Creath, another wife, bore him three children (now deceased), and Nancy Jane Creath, nee Johnson, his third wife, bore one child, also deceased. Mr. Creath's present wife (formerly Mary Hammel) was Mary Banks. Two of their three children are living: Willard and George. Mrs. Creath is a member of the Christian Church, and he is a Mason, and belongs to the I. O. O. F.

O. D. Dalton was born in Ripley County, Mo., December 4, 1833. His parents, John and Sarah (Murray) Dalton, were taken to Missouri from Tennessee, when they were children, and the State was yet a Territory. They were married in Madison County, and moved to Ripley County about 1825, and in 1843 moved back to Madison County, where they both died, the former in 1876, and the latter in 1861. They were the parents of ten children, four of whom are now living: Oliver D., Isam, Elijah J., and John. Oliver D. Dalton was reared principally in Madison County, on a farm. In 1854 he engaged in the mercantile business at Black River, and from 1858 until 1861 followed the same business in Greenville. At the latter date the soldiers made a raid on the store, and took nearly all the goods he had. In 1862 he enlisted in Holmes' company, and served until the close of the war. He was in the battles of Pleasant Hill, Prairie Grove, Saline, Helena and Little Rock. He was mustered out in 1865. For the following six months he sold Southern histories in Southern Missouri, and then for some time sold the same work in Northern Missouri. In 1866 he located on his present farm, where he now owns 560 acres of very fine land. At the close of the war he was about $600 in debt, but by industry and economy has paid his debts and accumulated his present property. In 1866 he married Evaline White, who died in March, 1873, having borne three children, one living, Laura B. December 25, 1873, he married Pauline White, a sister of his first wife, and daughter of Dr. T. C. and Sarah (McSwain) White, both of whom were born in Tennessee. Mr. and Mrs. Dalton had four children: Terrell, Olive and Mattie (all deceased), and Henry C., living. Mr. and Mrs. Dalton are members of the church, and he is a Mason. He has served two terms as justice of the peace. Dr. White was born in North Carolina in 1802, and after residing in Tennessee for some time came to Missouri in 1852, and located in Wayne County. During the war Mrs. Dalton, on account of her Southern sympathy, was subjected to unusual indignities, and was taken to Ironton with two of her sisters, and forced to take the oath of allegiance to the United States. About six months afterward she was again taken prisoner, and confined at St. Louis for two months, given a mock trial before the provost-marshal, and sentenced to hard labor in the State prison, at Jefferson City, Mo., and there remained until the close of the war. She then went to Illinois to join her mother and sisters, who had been ordered to leave Missouri within ten days, or they would be treated as prisoners of war and their property all burned. They moved to Chester, Ill., where Mrs. Dalton met them.

Adam H. Dalton (deceased) was born in Arkansas, and, when a small boy, was taken by his parents to Madison County, Mo., where he grew to maturity. In 1843 he came to Wayne County, where he followed peddling for several years, and in 1853 engaged in merchandising in Greenville, continuing until 1863, when he removed to Illinois, but in 1866 returned to Missouri, and resumed the mercantile business at Farmington, St. Francois County, where his death occurred in 1870. He amassed a fine property, and was considered one of the county's best citizens. June 4, 1854, he married Nancy T. Wakefield, who was born in Tennessee, in 1833. Her parents were William and Susan (Witcher) Wakefield, who were both Tennesseans. Mrs. Dalton's grandfather lived to be one hundred and twenty-five years old, and was born in England. Grandfather Witcher was born and reared in the "Emerald Isle." Mrs. Dalton tells quite an interesting anecdote of her grandfather Wakefield. During one of the Indian massacres, which were numerous at that time, he was severely wounded, but managed to get away, and hide himself in a hollow log. In their search for him they stood on the log in which he was hid. It was so long before he could reach a place of safety and obtain food, that he was compelled to broil his moccasins to keep him from starving to death. He was active and strong at the age of one hundred and fifteen years. Mrs. Dalton's father died in 1833. His wife died a year later. The following are their children, who are living: Charles B., Buckner, Martha (Mrs. Gregory) and Nancy T. The following are the children born to Mr. and Mrs. Dalton: John H. and Josephine (who died in childhood) and Julia P. and Laura L., living at home. Mrs. Dalton and her daughters own several large farms, and have 330 acres under cultivation. Besides her two daughters, Mrs. Dalton has reared two orphan children: William and Zillah Dalton, nephew and niece of her husband. She gave the former a good medical education, and he is now a successful physician of Arkansas. The latter was educated with her own daughters.

E. J. Dalton, presiding judge of the county court of Wayne County, Mo., was born in Ripley County, Mo., August 23, 1838. The parents, John E. and Sarah (Murray) Dalton, were born in North Carolina, and, after residing in Tennessee and Kentucky, came to Missouri, and located near Fredericktown. The father died in Madison County in 1874, and the mother in 1861. Of eleven children born to them, four are living: Oliver, Isam M., Elijah J. and John E. John E. Dalton, grandfather of E. J. Dalton, served in the Mexican War, and died in Ripley County, Mo. Grandfather Edward Murray was a private in the Revolutionary War, and, during his service, was shot fourteen times by the British soldiers. He was captured, and, with eleven other men, was condemned to be hung. When he was taken out to be hung, he slipped between two officers and made his escape. He was found dead near a spring five miles east of Fredericktown, where he had gone for a drink. He was subject to fits, the result of his many wounds, and this was supposed to have caused his death. E. J. Dalton made his home with his parents until eighteen years of age. He then began teaching school, but at the end of two years began the study of medicine under his brother. He was preparing to take lectures when the war broke out, and in 1861 he enlisted in Col. Lowe's company and served six months, and again enlisted and served under Marmaduke. He was then taken sick, and went to Union County, Ill., and taught school for eight months. He then sold sewing machines for two years, and then returned to Madison County, Mo., and engaged in mercantile business for a short time. After carrying on the drug business in Fredericktown and Farmington until 1868, he returned to the farm, where he has since lived. He owns 160 acres of land, on which is erected a handsome residence. In 1866 he married Mildred Sebastian, by whom he has three children, two of whom are living: Hattie J. and Moro E. Mr. and Mrs. Dalton are members of the Baptist Church, and he is a Mason and a member of the Farmers' Alliance.

Wiley Daniel, sheriff of Wayne County, Mo., is a native of Hardin County, Tenn., where he was born December 23, 1846, being the son of James E. and Jane (Williams) Daniel, who were both natives of Jackson County, Ala. They moved to Tennessee at an early day, and in 1847 came to Wayne County, Mo., and located at Piedmont. He purchased forty acres of land, and entered enough more to make 200 acres, all of which was heavily timbered. He was a farmer all his life, and died May 4, 1888. His wife died in 1884. They were the parents of seven children: Susau (now Mrs. Adams), Rebecca, Nancy J., Charlotte (Mrs. Henry Wilkinson), Caledonia (Mrs. James McCollister), John and Wiley. The latter resided with his parents until twenty-four years of age, and during that time attended both public and private schools. He was married in 1870 to Harriet A. Graham, and moved to the farm where he now resides. Besides farming he has been engaged in the saw-milling business. In 1884 he was elected county sheriff, and moved to Greenville, where he has since resided. He was re-elected county sheriff in 1886. Mr. Daniel is well supplied with worldly goods, and is the owner of 528 acres of valuable land, and two lots in Greenville. He is a member of the A. O. U. W. and the Farmers' Alliance, and he and wife are members of the Christian Church. They are the parents of the following children: James F., Lydia J., Mary A., Margaret C., Harriet A., Daisy M., Ellen June and Eli.

Joseph Davis was born in Roane County, Tenn., in 1837, and is the son of Thomas and Elizabeth (Coffer) Davis, who were born in old Virginia, and afterward moved to Tennessee, and from there to Illinois, where they died. They had eleven children, six of whom are living: Robert, Julia A., Sarah E., Nancy C., Thomas J. and the subject of this sketch, Joseph. He lived with his parents until grown to manhood. The school he attended was in those days called a subscription school, as free education was unknown at that period. After becoming of age he took to farming as an occupation. He married, in 1857, Miss Martha C. Rievely, daughter of Franklin and Lovy Rievely, of East Tennessee. Mr. Joseph Davis had eight children, five of whom are living: James M. (married to Miss Lizzie May) and Fanny L. (married to C. C. Wells, and is the mother of eight children). The other ones are Jennetta, Isabella and Martha A. Mr. Davis became a widower in 1866, but was again married to Miss Jennie F. Hoffman. Mr. Davis entered the army in 1862, and enlisted in Company F, One Hundred and Twentieth Illinois Volunteer Regiment, commanded by Geo. W. McKegg, in which he served two years. He was taken sick after entering the army, and was suspended from service, but on recovering his health, he returned to his regiment, where he remained until it disbanded, in 1865. He was in the battles of Gun Town, Miss., East Port, Tenn., besides several skirmishes, but escaped all firing with only a flesh wound on his forehead. On returning from the war he went to Illinois, and resumed farming, until 1873, when he concluded to come west to Missouri, locating on Lost Creek, in Wayne County. He owns 274 acres of very valuable land, seventy-five of which are under cultivation, well improved, with good out-houses and dwellings. Mr. Davis is a member of the Masonic and G. A. R. lodges. Both he and Mrs. Davis are members of the Baptist Church. Mr. Davis is a Republican in politics.

Washington Davis was born in this (Wayne) county, in 1848, and is the son of William and Nancy (Dunly) Davis. His father is one of the pioneers of the county, still living at the old homestead, in Lost Creek, at an advanced age, and has as much energy and industry as any of his many sons. He has been very successful in obtaining this world's goods, and has been able to provide his children with a home, on their starting out in life for themselves. Washington sold the place given to him by his father, and purchased his present home, a place consisting of 200 acres, of Creek Bottom land, with seventy acres under cultivation. He estimates his land very highly, and says the hills contain iron ore in abundance. He married, in 1872, Miss Sarah A. Bettes, by whom he has four children: Laura A., Francis J., Ella B. and Chirley W.

Adam J. Duncan was born in Madison County, Mo., in 1824, and is the son of Eli and Rebecca (Johnson) Duncan, who were born in Kentucky and Missouri, in 1802 and 1805, respectively. The father came to Missouri in 1816, and here married Miss Johnson in 1821. The former died in 1866, and the latter in 1860. They were members of the Missionary Baptist Church, and he held the office of judge of the county court for some time. In 1829, Adam J. Duncan came with his parents to Wayne County, Mo. About 1839 they went to Ripley County, but a year or so later returned to their old place in Madison County, and there Adam J. lived until his marriage in 1851, to Melvina Mann, who was born in 1831, in Wayne County, Mo. To them were born the following children: Henry C., Rebecca J., Eli A. (deceased), Pinus E. (deceased), Richard A., Nancy C., Mary E. and Martha L. Rebecca married William Hoskins; Catherine is the wife of William Jordan, and Mary is the wife of James McAllister. While Mr. Duncan was a resident of Madison County the county was divided, and he became a resident of Iron County, and while living there, held the offices of justice of the peace, deputy sheriff and constable. Mrs. Duncan's parents were Andrew and Susan (Duncan) Mann, and were native Missourians.

Mrs. Martha Ann Duncan, widow of Andrew A. Duncan, a prominent farmer of Wayne County, Mo., was born in Reynolds County, Mo., in 1844. Her parents, Arnold and Lucinda (Biggers) Mann, were born in Missouri; the former died in 1872, and the latter when Mrs. Duncan was a little girl; twelve of their thirteen children were reared to maturity. The father's second wife was Thirza Blackwell, and to them were born two children; the mother is dead. Mrs. Duncan was married to Andrew Duncan, who was born May 22, 1835, and their union resulted in the birth of ten children, nine living: Andrew J., Lucinda J. (Bennett), Mariah I. (Wallace), Lee P., Margaret C. (Sheets), John, Robert H., George T. and Andrew L. The father died on the 20th of July, 1881. He was industrious and economical, and left his family well provided for. The farm consists of 400 acres, with 120 acres in a good state of cultivation. The four youngest children reside with their mother, and assist in tilling the farm. Mrs. Duncan gave her two sons (Andrew and Lee) each a farm worth $2,000. She is a member of the Missionary Baptist Church, and is a very estimable lady.

Thomas C. Durham was born in Warren County, Tenn., on the 10th day of November, 1835, and is the son of Robert and Sally Durham, who had, shortly after their marriage, left the county of their birth, Orange County, N. C., in company with five or six other families, over sixty years ago, to seek a home in the west. They settled in Warren County, Tenn., where, and in Van Buren County, they spent the remainder of their lives. His grandfather and grandmother Durham had emigrated from Germany to North Carolina in the days of its earlier settlements. His father, Robert Durham, was a farmer, mechanic and, for a number of years, was justice of the peace. He and his wife, Sally Jones, were each firm believers in Christianity, the father being of the old Baptist faith, and the mother of the Christian faith. They were the father and mother of twelve children, nine of whom are living, viz.: William G., Willis F., J. W., Thomas C., Andrew J., Catherine E., Lucy J., Martha and Sarah M. Thomas C. Durham, on the 14th day of February, 1858, in the State of Alabama, married Juda E. Welch, who was the daughter of Samuel Welch, whose father was one of the early explorers of the newly-discovered America, and a navigator. Mr. Durham and his wife came to this country about twenty-one years ago, and settled on Big Creek, but only remained there one year, when they came to the place where Mr. Durham now resides, a little farm one half mile south of Piedmont. The farm was then a woods, purchased at a tax sale, but cultivation has developed it into a nice little farm of ninety acres, fifty of which are cleared. He has another farm of 200 acres, fifty of which are in cultivation. He also owns some property in the city of Piedmont. When he came here there was only a woods where Piedmont, now a city of 2,000 inhabitants, stands, and no railroads through the country. There are good indications on his farm of iron, tin and lead, but no effort has been made to develop them. Mr. Durham, although a strong Union man, was in the Southern army under Col. Howard, and afterward under Col. Horton, on Gen. Bragg's division, but was never in any battles, being on post duty most of the time. He has a very good education and has been a school-teacher, but, however, the most of his time has been devoted to farming. Mrs. Durham, who had been a faithful mother, died September 4, 1887, and lies buried in the Piedmont cemetery by the side of her little daughter, Martha Ervaline, who had gone before. She was the mother of eight children, seven of whom survive her, viz.: William W.,

S. Robert, Emily J., John C., A. Jessie, Mintie A. and James T. Mrs. Durham had set before her children a Christian example. She had been a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church most all her life, however, in her latter days became somewhat partial to the Christian faith, but never attached herself to that church. While she did not live to see all her children grown, she saw Emily a widow, and William, Robert and John with families. She had seen her eldest son, William, a dry-goods clerk, her second son, Robert, a lawyer, and all her children growing up to respectful citizenship, with a fair chance for some of them to rise to distinction. Mr. Durham has since married Mrs. Clementine Noble.

W. F. Eads was born in Wilkes County, and is the son of John and Polly (Massey) Eads. The elder Eads was also born in Wilkes County, where he lived and died. He learned the trade of a carpenter, and was considered a fine workman, but he never especially followed the trade, turning his attention to farming, as he owned a splendid farm in his native county. The mother was also born in North Carolina, and there spent her entire life. The father was forty-six years of age when he died from the effects of a cancer. The mother died about one year ago, at the advanced age of eighty seven. There were eight children in the family, three of whom are now living: John, Nancy and William F.; those dead are Alvin, Pinckney, Milly, Alfred, Granbery and James. Mr. Eads was married in North Carolina, in 1859, to Annie McDaniel, and had eleven children, six of them now living. Mr. Eads served in the late war as a private under Robert E. Lee, Thirty-fourth North Carolina Regiment; was in the service twelve months, participating in the entire fight known as the Virginia Wilderness, and this regiment is credited with opening the firing, lasting for eleven days. He was captured at Hanover Junction, with 900 other comrades, was taken to Point Lookout, and confined in prison nearly a year, suffering greatly during his term of imprisonment. He was afterward paroled. Mr. Eads has devoted his life to farming, and owns 125 acres, 80 of which are under cultivation. He and his wife are members of the Missionary Baptist Church.

Noel A. Estes was born on Otto Creek, Wayne County, in February, 1842, and is the son of Asa and Minerva (Long) Estes. They died in this county, leaving ten children, five now living: Horace M., Jessie, Young W., Mary and Noel, who, losing his father when a small boy, was raised by his brother until he was able to fight the world for himself. In 1862 he entered the army, enlisting in Company H, Thirty-first Missouri Infantry; he only served a short time, when he was taken sick, and was discharged from the service. In 1864 he married Miss Rachel Conner, and has five children, two living: Liza (married to James Salyers) and Willie. He purchased his present home some eight years ago, which consists of 170 acres of very valuable land, with about 60 acres under cultivation. He has a fine dwelling and good out-buildings; is a member of the G. A. R., and is a Republican in politics.

Frank Farrell, secretary of the Missouri State Farmer's Alliance, is a native of Wayne County, Mo., born January 31, 1836, and is the son of James and Martha J. (Connor) Farrell, who were born in Cumberland County, Ky., in 1806, and 1809, and died in Missouri in 1875 and 1861, respectively. Their parents were from Virginia, and came to Kentucky about 1800, and engaged in agriculture. They were the parents of five children, two of whom are living: Nancy P. (widow of Matthew Rhodes) and Frank. They located in Wayne County, Mo., in 1831, and were active members of the Christian Church. Frank Farrell is residing on the old home place. Before the war he farmed and taught school, and during the Rebellion served a portion of the time in Company A, Forty-seventh Missouri Regiment, United States army, and was mustered out at St. Louis, and came home and resumed farming and teaching school. February 25, 1864, he wedded Mary Ann Warmack, who was born in Wayne County, in 1844, and four of their eight children are living: James, Nancy, Mary and Martha. Mr. Farrell is a member of the I. O. O. F., and is secretary of the State Farmers' Alliance. He is a prosperous farmer, and is the owner of 231 acres of land. Mrs. Farrell is a member of the Missionary Baptist Church, and with the exception of three brothers: James, William and Matthew, her family are all deceased. Her father died in 1866, and her mother in 1862.

James D. Faulkner was born in Lincoln County, N. C., in the year 1832, and is the son of Vincent and Susan (Carpenter) Faulkner. The father was born in Virginia. He moved to North Carolina, and there married and settled down to farming. In 1842 he immigrated west, and located for one year in Cape Girardeau County, Mo., and then came to Wayne, on Otto Creek, entering land and buying the title from the Government. He died in 1875, leaving six children: Joseph, Samuel, Jake, John, Lucy Ann and William, the subject of this sketch. His education was very limited, he only going to school three months in his life, as the advantages of receiving instruction were limited in those days. At the age of twenty he started out on his own account, working in different places until 1854, when he made an overland trip to California. On his arrival there he went to mining, and stayed about twelve years. He then returned to Wayne County and married, in 1869, Susan Duncan, daughter of Josiah and Margaret Duncan, of Wayne County, and by whom he had nine children, seven living: Andrew, Jim, Margaret, Llew, Thomas, Lee and Ira. Mr. Faulkner purchased the farm he now occupies with money he made in California. His farm consists of 440 acres, 200 of which are cleared, and in fine cultivation, with all necessary out-buildings, and a good dwelling. Mr. Faulkner is a Mason. He is a member of the Farmers' Alliance. He and wife attend the Methodist Episcopal Church.

William R. Frederick was born in Wake County, N. C., in 1841, and is the son of Lewis B. and Jemima (Evans) Frederick, who were also born in North Carolina, and immigrated to this State in 1859, locating in Wayne County, about seven miles southeast of Greenville, and followed farming as an occupation. The father died in Perry County in 1868, and left four children: William R., James J., Mary J. and Martha E. Mr. William R. Frederick lived with his parents until grown to manhood, receiving a common school education. He married, in 1861, Miss Sarah E. Neighbors, and has seven children living: Sophronia (married to Clay Haddock), Lewis P., Melissa (married to James W. Davis), Nathan C., Mary V., James W. and Flora J. He removed to Perry County in 1863, and served a short time in the Sixty-fourth Regiment, Enrolled Missouri militia, Robert Brewer, colonel, in 1864. Also volunteered, in February, 1865, in the one-year service of Missouri State militia, but was mustered out in June of the same year, and did not participate in any fights. After the war he returned to Wayne County, and began farming. He also took up school teaching, which occupation he is at present following. He located on his present home in 1876, which comprises 160 acres, about fifty of which are under cultivation, making a very nice small farm. Mr. Frederick is a member of the Farmers' Alliance. He and his wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

John Garrison, the son of Azariah and Rebecca (Phanatti) Garrison, was born in Tennessee, in July, 1850, where he lived with his father until thirty-five years ago, then coming to this county, at which time the father bought the place now occupied by his son, it then being an old Spanish grant. Old government grants are quite numerous, and a very striking feature is that these grants are laid off in almost every conceivable shape, without respect to our modern way of dividing by township and range. Mr. Garrison was married before coming to this State, and devoted his life to agricultural pursuits. He was seventy-three years of age at the time of his death, which was during the late war. He remained neutral during that conflict, but lived quietly with his family, and on account of his extreme old age was never molested. Mrs. Garrison died a few years before her husband. Mr. John Garrison was married on October 20, 1872, to Mrs. Mary (Atnips) Rainwater. By this union there were seven children, four of whom are now living: Charlotta E., Hattie, John E. and Azariah. Those deceased are Beccy, William L. and an infant. Mr. Garrison was but twelve years of age at the time of the war, and therefore remembers but little about the hardships his father endured. The school advantages during his boyhood were very meager. He has turned his entire attention to farming and stock raising. He owns 125 acres of land, about seventy under cultivation. Mrs. Garrison is a member of the Baptist Church. Mr. Garrison is a member of the Farmers' Alliance.

Alfred C. Graves, druggist, was born in New Orleans, La., July 29, 1850. His father, Maj. D. Graves, was born in Hatfield, Mass., November 3, 1813, but when small immigrated to the Western Reserve, in Ohio, near where the city of Cleveland now stands, where he remained until 1842, when he went to New Orleans, where, in 1846, he was married to Mrs. Minerva T. Bradford, nee Dunbar. He had by his wife (who was born in Louisiana, November 20, 1820, and who died in Jonesboro, Union Co., Ill., in July, 1867) nine children, three now living: Frank S., Louisiana M. and Alfred C., the subject of this sketch. The latter, with his parents, left Baton Rouge, La., in September, 1864, going to Illinois, where they remained until 1868, then going to Cape Girardeau, Mo., and finally to Wayne County, in 1870. In 1876 he began the drug business in the building he now occupies. He carries a full line of drugs and notions, and has the confidence and support of all classes in and about Williamsville. He owns three town lots, including the two upon which his residence and store are built. Lately he began the publication of a newspaper, which is issued weekly, under the name of The Transcript. In March, 1880, he married Miss Cynthia J. Moore, and has had four children—two living: Grace (aged seven years) and Mabel, aged fifteen months. His wife is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, but he is not connected with any religious or other order. His father is still living and in good health.

William R. Green was born in North Carolina, October 8, 1822, being the son of John and Jane (Ramsey) Green, who were born in Tennessee and North Carolina, respectively. They were early settlers of Tennessee, but the grandmother died in Wayne County, Mo. The grandfather was married the second time and came west to Missouri, but he was never heard of afterward. He was about seventy-four years old. His son, the father of William R., went to North Missouri in 1853, where he lived until the breaking out of the war, when he went to Arkansas and there died in 1862. His wife died in 1864. They were the parents of twelve children, only two of whom are living: William R. and Susan (a widow of Samuel Housley, who served and died in the Union army during the late war). William R. Green remained at home until his marriage in 1849, when he began farming and working at brick masonry. He has been a resident of Wayne County, Mo., since 1859, and has resided on his present farm of 160 acres since 1863. His wife, whose maiden name was Rebecca Jenkins, was born in Tennessee in 1824. Five of their seven children are now living: James M. (who is noted for being a fine physician, and resides in Arkansas), Albert J. (a Methodist Episcopal minister of Labadie, Mo.), Betsey J. (wife of Dr. S. A. Bates, of Piedmont, Mo.), Josie (Mrs. John Carpenter) and Tennie C. (who is single and resides at home). The latter is a school teacher. Mr. and Mrs. Green are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Jacob A. Gross, elder of the Missionary Baptist Church, and farmer of Mill Spring Township, was born in Bollinger County, Mo., in 1844, and is the son of Christopher and Sophia (Yount) Gross, the former a native of North Carolina, and the latter of Bollinger County. Christopher Gross was born in 1806, and when five years old, or in 1811, accompanied his father, Christian Gross, (a North Carolinian by birth) to Missouri, a location being made in Cape Girardeau (now Bollinger) County. Here he subsequently died, leaving fifteen children, of whom Christopher was the youngest. He grew to maturity in the county of his adoption, and in 1864 moved to Illinois, returning three years later to Southeast Missouri, and locating in Wayne County, near Patterson, where he died in 1885, leaving five children by his first marriage: Margaret (deceased), William, Sarah A. (deceased), Jacob A. and Peter. Mr. Gross' first wife died in 1848 or 1849, and subsequently, he married Martha J. Jaco, daughter of Thomas and Sarah Jaco, natives, respectively, of Georgia and Virginia. She accompanied her parents to Missouri when ten years old, and was one of a family of ten children, all of whom are deceased save Martha and David, who resides in Jackson, Mo. Mrs. Gross' father died in 1867 and her mother in 1859. Six of eleven children born to the union of Christopher Gross and Martha Jaco are living: Narcissus, Thomas B., Susan E., Philip, Christopher and James E. Those deceased are Rachel E., Andrew J., Rebecca and two infants. The mother makes her home with the subject of this sketch. Jacob A. Gross lived at home until nineteen years old, and first embarked in farming for himself in St. Francois County, where he lived ten years, going thence to Illinois, but three years afterward he settled near Patterson, Wayne Co., Mo., in 1867. In 1876 he located upon his present farm. He was ordained elder in the Baptist Church in 1871 in this county, and has since preached in different churches in this community, his charges at this time being at Otto Creek and Mill Spring churches. Mr. Gross was married to Miss Nancy M. Murry, and they have had nine children: Thomas A. (died in infancy), Laura J., William P., Rosa A., Peter, Sophia S. L., Mary C., Lucy E. and John G. Laura J. is the wife of William Luster, and William P. is also married. The others live at home, and are members of the Baptist Church, except the three youngest. Mrs. Gross was born in Madison County, Mo., in 1844, and was the daughter of William Murry, a native of Tennessee, and a soldier in the Jackson War; he died in 1878, his wife dying when Nancy was a small girl. Six of the eleven children in his family are living: Rebecca, Cordelia, Tabitha, Nancy M., William C. and Salome B.

Rev. William H. Hale is a native of Wayne County, Mo., born in 1850, and is the son of Stephen L. and Elizabeth (Whitt) Hale, who were born in Kentucky and Tennessee, respectively. The former was born in 1816, and came to Missouri in 1840, where he lived until his death in 1852. He was the father of four children: Sarah E., William H., Nancy Ann and Richard, who died in 1865. The mother came to Wayne County, Mo., in 1833, with her parents, Richard and Sarah Whitt. After Mr. Hale's death she married John W. Wilson, and by this marriage became the mother of seven children, only two now living: Nathaniel G. and Mary E. Rev. William H. Hale lived at home until twenty-one years of age, and attended the district schools. He taught school for some time, and between his terms of school attended Arcadia College and William Jewell College, and after studying in the latter college nearly five years for the Baptist ministry, began his ministerial duties. From 1880 until 1885 he was principal of Hale's College, and at the latter date sold out. In 1884 he joined the Christian Church, and has labored faithfully in said church ever since. He was married in 1878 to Mary Ann Smith, who was born in Wayne County, in 1849. Her parents were James and Lydia J. (Kelley) Smith, natives, respectively, of Kentucky and Missouri. The former died in 1883, and the latter lives with Mrs. Hale, who is her only child. Mr. and Mrs. Hale are both earnest workers in the church, and Mr. Hale has done much to further the cause of Christianity. He is a man of undoubted honor and sincerity of purpose, and as a consequence has much influence in the community in which he resides.
